

Convocation Audience To Hear Revenue Commissioner

14 Faculty Members Added To LC Staff

By Sandra Jamieson

Twenty-one new members have joined the Longwood faculty and staff for the 1961-62 session. There are fourteen new faculty members, six new staff members, a Spanish informant, and a French informant.

Miss Freda Siler, instructor in natural sciences, has joined the science department. Miss Siler received the B.S. degree from Salem College, Winston-Salem, North Carolina, and the M.Ed. degree from the University of North Carolina.

She has done doctoral work at the University of North Carolina. She has taught in the public schools of Franklin North Carolina, and Portsmouth, Virginia. She has also served as instructor in the Bureau of Correspondence of the University of North Carolina.

To the speech and drama departments has come Miss Suzanne Barnett and Mr. Richard T. Wiles, respectively. Miss Barnett received the B.A. degree from the University of Maryland and M.A. degrees from both Teachers College, Columbia University and Smith College.

She has completed all of the requirements for the doctor's degree at Indiana University. She has taught at Wheaton College and served as a teaching associate at Indiana University.

Mr. Wiles holds the B.A. degree from Scottsbluff College, Scottsbluff, Nebraska, and the M.A. degree from the University of Arkansas. He served as a graduate assistant for one year at the University of Arkansas and taught for one year at Scottsbluff College.

Dr. Alexander V. Berkis and Mr. David G. Vieira are the new members of the history and social sciences department. Dr. Berkis holds the LL.M. degree from Latvia, and the M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Wisconsin.

He practiced law in Latvia for three years and taught history in a high school in Germany for three years. He comes to Longwood from High Point College, High Point, North Carolina, where he taught for the past five years.

Mr. Vieira, who is a native of (Continued on page 4)

—Staff Photo
NEW ADDITIONS TO Longwood's faculty include Berkis, Savage, Leitch, Wiles, Vieira, Gibb, Patrick, and White.

Freshman Ratting Ends With Capping Ceremony

The Longwood gymnasium was the scene of chills, thrills, tears, and cheers on Monday night, October 2. Top rats and "Orchids-to-You" of 1965 were announced and capped at 7 p.m.

Eighteen Girls
This year eighteen girls were selected by the top rat of 1965 on a basis of good sportsmanship through the week of ratting which began with freshman capping September 25.

This exciting week of fun was held so that the sophomores and freshmen could meet one another and become acquainted with the traditions and spirit of Longwood College.

From Little Rat Court, which was held Saturday night and consisted of approximately one hundred chicks, this year's top rats made their decisions.

Durham, Sidi
Sue Durham and Janet Sidi were selected head rat and assistant, respectively, and were capped at Big Rat Court Monday night.

Selected as top rats of the class of 1965 were Meredith Cate, Jean Boon, Sandy Williams, Tot Sykes, Lynne Guerin, Mary Lou Dunn, Peggy Hunt, Barbara Smith, Pam Gustafson, and Rusty Stephenson.

Orchids
Sarah Jane Lynch, Susan Abernathy, Bobbi Rice, Wanda Old, Sandy Craig, and Joyce Lunsford were chosen "Orchids-to-You."

Campus To Host NASA Program In Jarman Hall

The Spacemobile, a traveling space unit sponsored by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration will be at Longwood tomorrow. Mr. John Callow and Mr. Robert Kress, lecturers traveling with the Spacemobile, will present two fifty minute demonstrations at 3 p.m. and 8 p.m. in Jarman Hall. Admission will be free.

Dr. Elizabeth Burger, professor of natural sciences at Longwood, arranged the unit to come to Longwood.

She says, "This Air-Space demonstration brings to us a better understanding of developments in space exploration in this country and why space exploration is important. As citizens, we want to know what our government is achieving in this area and how these achievements may benefit the world. As prospective teachers, Longwood students want to keep abreast of the scientific developments in (Continued on page 3)

Academic Procession To Begin Assemblies

Fall Convocation for the 1961-62 session will begin with the traditional faculty procession leading into Jarman Hall, followed by the presentation of the speaker for this year, Mortimer M. Caplin.

Kennedy Appoints

Caplin was appointed by President Kennedy last January to the post of Commissioner of Internal Revenue for the United States. Born in 1916 in New York City, the forty-five year old Caplin has taken his place along with other young men in Kennedy's "New Frontier."

Varied Career

Prior to his appointment, Mr. Caplin had engaged in the varied pursuits of lawyer, wartime army officer, author, and professor. He attended college at the University of Virginia, where he graduated with a B. S. degree in economics and political science. While an undergraduate, he was a member of Phi Beta Kappa, and was active in drama and sports. By 1940, he had returned to UVA law school to receive his LL. B. degree. This time he served as editor-in-chief of the school law magazine, "The Virginia Review," and graduated at the head of his class.

WW II Veteran

After graduation, Caplin worked first as a law clerk in a Court of Appeals, then with a New York law firm, until in World War II his services were required as an ensign and a lieutenant. He served overseas and participated in the Normandy invasion, where his battle group won special recognition.

In 1950, Caplin came back to UVA to become a professor in the law school. There, he taught tax and corporate law to President Kennedy's two brothers, Robert F., and Edward M. Kennedy. At the time of his appointment, Mr. Caplin was still teaching at UVA, where he had earned the reputation of being one of the outstanding tax experts in the nation.

Tax Reform

In his plans for improvement of the tax system, Mr. Caplin includes a simplification of income tax forms and a closer auditing and check-up on tax returns. In the checking system, he advocates that the revenue service audit one in ten tax returns, instead of the present method of auditing one in twenty.

Mr. Caplin has found time in his busy career to serve in an advisory capacity to Congress as a tax expert, to write a book, Doing Business in Other States, which was published in 1959, to pursue his hobby of boxing, and to be with his family.

Tolleson Chosen To Head Circus In Next Weeks

Page Tolleson, a senior from Gordonsville, will serve as general chairman of Longwood's Circus of 1961.

Page, who was tapped into AKG last spring, is vice-president of the TWCA; editor of the BSU newspaper; and is a member of the Rounda staff, House Council, Longwood choir, Student

PAGE TOLLESON

Education Association, and the Longwood Players.

Since 1927 Circus, which has been presented at Longwood since 1927, will take place October 28. The all-day festivities will begin with a parade at 4 p.m. and be climaxed that night at 8 p.m. in Jarman Auditorium as classes compete for skit awards and learn of the float awards.

Sponsored by AKG
Sponsored by Alpha Kappa Gamma, national honorary fraternity for leadership, Circus is now underway as each class has already begun work on their skits, floats and booths. Scheduled practices will begin October 16.

As representatives of each class, chairman have been selected to lead groups on skit, parade and booths. General class chairman are Jackie Skellie and Dibby Mohr, seniors; Ann Agre and Mary Beth Olsen, juniors; Vicki Taylor and Joyce Lake, sophomores; and Lynne Guerin and Peggy Hunt, freshmen.

The parade at 4 p.m. will feature (Continued on page 4)

Scholars Series Brings Lecturer Here Tomorrow

The first lecture of the Visiting Scholars Series of lectures will be held in Jarman Hall, tomorrow at 10 a.m.

"The Emerging World" will be the subject of the lecture by the Honorable D. N. Chatterjee, minister of the Indian Embassy, Washington, D. C.

Born in Calcutta
Mr. Chatterjee was born in Calcutta, and was educated at Calcutta and London universities. He served as first secretary of the Indian Embassy in Paris and London from 1948 to 1954.

Deputy High Commissioner
Later he served as Deputy High Commissioner for India in Karachi, Pakistan. Before coming to the Indian Embassy in Washington he was the Consul-General and permanent representative to the European Office of the United Nations in Geneva.

Members of the administration, faculty and student body are invited and urged to attend this lecture.

1200 Applications Produce 385 For Longwood's Class Of 1965

Entering Longwood College as the class of 1965 are 385 freshmen. These 385 girls were chosen from approximately 1200 applicants.

Eleven states other than Virginia are represented by this class. They are Delaware, District of Columbia, Kentucky, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Jersey, North Carolina, and West Virginia.

Thomas Jefferson School in Richmond sent the largest number of freshmen to Longwood. Other high schools having a large number of graduates to enter Longwood are E. C. Glass in Lynchburg, Jefferson Senior in Roanoke, and Warwick in Newport News.

Upper Quarter
Seventy per cent of the class of '65 were in the upper quarter of their graduating classes. And although this year's freshman class is slightly smaller than last year's, it has a larger number enrolled in English 112, the advanced freshman English class.

Beauty Queens
Several members of the class of '65 are beauty queens. Leslie Andrews of Farmville is Miss Farmville in the Annual Tobacco Festival. Kathryn Dean of Elkton, crowned as queen of the Rockingham County Fair, will represent Rockingham in the Miss Virginia State Fair Contest in Richmond. Suzanne Ballard of Willis Wharf is Queen Nemaquid.

Bishop Displays Art Work Here

An exhibition of paintings and graphics by Barbara Bishop of Roanoke are on display in the Art Department here until October 20. The exhibition includes ten etchings, ten lithographs, eight oil paintings, and five serigraphs.

Barbara, an art major of the Longwood graduating class of 1960, did this work at Woman's College, Greensboro, North Carolina during the 1960-1961 school year as a partial requirement for her Master's Degree in Art. She has exhibited recently at the annual student show at Woman's College, and the Winston-Salem Gallery of Fine Arts.

—Staff Photo
MAKING ELABORATE PREPARATIONS for "Hell Night" are J. Wright, J. Lake, and K. Laing. See story on page 4.

To The Class Of 1965

You have been, by now, sufficiently welcomed by heads of organizations, administrative officials, house-mothers, "Y" girls, big sisters, and so on ad infinitum, so that we feel justified in dispensing with the usual official Rotunda hearty welcome. You have surely realized, with the perceptivity inherent in old college students of two weeks' standing, that through all the speeches, the parties, and the meetings, there is a strain of real sincerity. You are welcome here because you are wanted and needed: another link in the chain, another unique segment of the growing, changing institution that is Longwood College. You are welcome not as guests, but as a part of us.

And so we would advise you, not of your welcome presence, but of your responsibilities. You are not only "Green and White" but just plain green. This, however, is not an unfortunate state of affairs, but a brand new beginning of a brand new life. You will not necessarily make it a good beginning by joining every campus organization and activity, nor trying to impress your "Josephine College" status upon your acquaintances. When you are least aware of it, you will be developing your individual personalities and forming new values. And however irrelevant this may seem to you, you will be contributing to the personality of Longwood College.

So, Freshmen, be aware of your opportunities and your responsibilities. The Rotunda is the voice of the students. Because you are new to us, your questions and opinions are particularly welcomed here. Here you can express yourself as an individual and as a college student in a very real way, and on occasion, you can see concrete results of that expression in some phase of college life. Here you have one of many positive means of contributing to Longwood, which is your new responsibility, whether you recognize it or not. The college newspaper belongs to you — use it as a part of your new challenge.

Of Rats And Ratting

Ratting — the old controversy between administration and students, and students and students — has been survived by another freshman class. As proven by the results of the poll printed in this issue, opinion is varied and vehement on the subject. This editorial is not designed to debate the rights and wrongs of hazing college freshmen. Some suggestions and criticism, however, have been made repeatedly and could perhaps, if made public, be instrumental in improving ratting at Longwood. At any rate, they bear discussion.

Ratting is a controversial matter, but need it be completely a game without rules? Some authority decides the sophomores have gone too far in some particular phase after the damage has been done and that phase of ratting is prohibited. Anything that is not specifically made illegal is permitted until it is proven harmful to the freshmen. This policy is slowly but surely making ratting extinct, but while it is in existence it is hardly the most fair and workable program for anybody concerned.

It could not be too difficult or time-consuming a job for Student Government or some other authoritative body to request that the old and new top rats form a committee to work out a definite program of ratting for future years. This program would outline exactly what can and cannot be done, as far as possible. It would give freshmen and sophomores a chance to discuss the good and bad features of the present ratting system. It would not necessarily make ratting less stringent for the freshmen of future years, but would make it more organized.

This committee might also discuss making Rat Weekend a closed weekend for freshmen. The freshman who goes through "Hell Night" on Friday, only to leave campus for the weekend never seeing the fun of Rat Day on Saturday hardly has a clear idea of what ratting is really like. Or perhaps the committee could devise a system whereby only those freshmen who wish to do so would go through ratting. It is apparent that the purpose of ratting is lost upon those who do not wish to enjoy it.

In a positive vein, it seems to the writer that the top rats from the Class of 1964 have taken more seriously their lesser known duty of governing by existing ratting rules to avoid any harmful effects during Rat Week. Congratulations are due them. This is a step in the right direction and we'd like to see it developed into a move toward more organized ratting.

The Rotunda

ESTABLISHED NOVEMBER 20, 1920

Published each week during the college year except during holidays and examination period by the students of Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia, Box 168.

Mary Bryl Mason — Editor-in-Chief
Ann Arner — Managing Editor Susan Eddy — Business Manager
Dorcas Humphreys — News Editor
Gayle Arner — Feature Editor
Lola Peters — Sports Editor
Lewellen Elmer — Exchange Editor
Phyllis Howard and Linda Sudduth — Photographers
Jane Hanger — Circulation Manager
Miss Mary P. Nichols — Faculty Advisor

(Unsigned editorials written by the editor)

Member: Virginia Intercollegiate Press (Rating First Class), Columbia Scholarship Press Association (Rating First Place), Intercollegiate Press.

NEWS STAFF: Don Banks, Assistant Managing Editor; Mary Beth Olson, Assistant Feature Editor; the Bearskins, Assistant Sports Editor; Doris Smith, Desk Editor.

Entered as second class matter at the Post Office at Farmville, Virginia, under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1911, registered for national advertising by the National Advertising Service. Printed by the Farmville Herald.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

Summer Experiences

Mix Fun With Work

By Pat Rea

Gone are the days when college students were humming, "It's summertime and the living is easy." With the exception of summer school victims, many headed for the beaches, camps or just lounged around home: the more indulgent ones worked.

The summer months, however, held several interesting experiences for several Longwood students.

For junior Gibby Britt it was a trip to New York with her award winning quarter horse Bob Parker.

Cutting Champion

Living up to his reputation as a Wisconsin, Illinois, and Indiana cutting champion, as well as Virginia State Reserve Champion Reining Horse, Bob gave outstanding performances at both the New York State Fair and the Maryland State Fair.

Gibby made the trip with the horse's trainer and his wife and is planning on going again next year.

Mexico City

Spanish major Mary Morris, senior, visited Tony Farias, last year's Spanish exchange student, in Mexico City. While there she toured Mexico City and Juarez, visited various cathedrals and other points of interest.

Mary said that she was fascinated by the beautiful parks and fountains and by the numerous street vendors who sell cactus blooms and food.

"I was also amazed at the poor. When a car stopped on the streets the children would rush to open the doors in order to receive a tip. The people seemed so excited when a tourist spoke to them in Spanish, because they were happy to hear someone speak their language."

Full Scrapbook

Needless to say, Mary returned with a scrapbook full of souvenirs as well as jewelry and Mexican costumes.

Thirty Pound Cake

Morag Nozick celebrated her twenty-first birthday in Glasgow, Scotland with a thirty pound birthday cake. Accompanied by her parents Morag, a senior, visited relatives in Scotland and Ireland.

"We went all over Scotland," said Morag. "And we visited a little town where there is more whiskey than water. You see, the water is cut off eleven hours out of 24 because the distilleries need the water."

Glasgow University

Morag, a member of Longwood's hockey team and president of the AA, also toured several colleges and universities including Glasgow University where her cousin is professor of psychology.

"Then I came back home and went to Hockey Camp," she said.

Laboratory Assistant

Then there's Linda Haich who worked as Dr. Carolyn Wells' assistant at Oak Ridge National Laboratory which is operated by the United States Atomic Energy Commission in Oak Ridge, Tennessee.

The twenty year old junior was asked to accept the job because of her interest in the biological field. Her duties consisted of experimenting with radiation and its effect on the cell.

Elevator Again Vandal's Target In Cunningham

Dear Editor,

When we returned to Longwood this fall to our rooms in South Cunningham, one of the first things we noticed and commented on was the interior of the dormitory elevator. Gone were all the carvings and pencil marks that had marred the elevator all of last year. There was nothing but a fresh coating of smooth grey paint that the school had applied over the summer.

Within the last few days there have mysteriously appeared a few fraternity symbols and names. We cannot understand how this could happen, after all the emphasis the Rotunda put on the deplorable act of students scratching various things on this same elevator last year, and above all, after the school took the time this summer to provide us with a once again attractive elevator.

We do not know who is responsible for such an act, but we hope by airing our views in the Rotunda it will come to their attention and maybe help them to think before doing such a thing again. Even the person or persons responsible for this could not possibly think that their "artistic" endeavors have added to the eye-appeal of the elevator.

Thank you,
Some S. C. Dwellers

Patronize

The Rotunda

Advertisers

Twice Toil Is Twice Fun In Some Rare Instances

By Mary Anne Lpford

Remember how the old song goes: "... And I'll be switched if I'll be hitched to a bicycle built for two." At least one Longwood girl doesn't feel that way for she and her fellow are co-owners of a bicycle built for two! Sophomore Judy Partee brought her tandem bike to school with her, and it has already been the cause of much interested chatter. Bermuda-clad co-eds clamored for the chance to "test-ride" the novelty at the Longwood Estate picnic, and Judy was answered countless times the query, "Where'd you find it?"

It all began, Judy says, when she and her boyfriend discovered they faced a summer in Norfolk, Virginia, with no car. "Ken is a sophomore at Oklahoma State and left his car there," Judy relates.

Borrowed Bikes

At first the two borrowed bikes from neighborhood children, but when their frequent dating bothered their young renters, Judy and Ken hit on the idea of buying the bicycle — for two people.

They phoned and phoned, but in all the city of Norfolk, no one had a tandem to sell, but they did have a few chuckles for the odd request. Finally, the pluck pair ordered a $100.00 tandem from Sears Roebuck — the first order for a tandem the clerk had had in five years!

Judy and Ken invested fifty-fifty in the bicycle and rented it for 50 cents an hour. And children weren't their only customers! Weight-conscious husbands and wives delighted in doubling on the bicycle. Soon many neighborhood children tried to imitate and make their own.

The public's surprise at seeing the quaint bicycle in busy downtown Norfolk amused Judy and Ken all summer. When they pedaled to Norfolk City Hall to get the license that was required for the bike, a perplexed policeman stopped traffic and let them pass. "Daisy, Daisy..." was sung to the couple every where they went.

Driving the bike brought laws and regulations. All traffic rules apply to bicycle riders in a city, including hand signals. It is against the law to ride on sidewalks. Judy and Ken's black and white English type bike was equipped with a hand brake and foot brakes. Both riders pedaled together, and the front rider had control of the hand brake, in case he saw the need to stop quickly. "I just gave the signals and carried the packages," says Judy.

More Fun

Two people can go everywhere on a tandem that they can go in a car — and have more fun doing it. Ken and Judy pedaled to the park to play tennis, to the beach, the laundry, and the movies, where they were allowed to park in the lobby!

After a summer of bike riding, they are convinced of the advantages: a bicycle drinks no gas, it can be taken down on the beach and ridden on the hard sand, and parking is no problem. Cudletes are perfect, Judy says, for pedaling.

One of the biggest advantages, though, became evident to Judy when she used her bicycle license as identification for getting in a Virginia Beach night club. The policeman at the door questioned little Judy's age, but sighed in submission: "Well, I've been in the business for thirty years, and this is the first time I ever let anyone pass for 18 on a bicycle license!"

Asked what will happen to the bike-built-for-two now, Judy just says she'll keep it at Longwood this winter. And then she smilingly adds, "Ken and I will be using it again next summer!"

—Staff Photo

WAITING FOR A PARTNER stands Judy Partee with her 'bicycle built for two.'

Stage, Hunting, Stamps Claim Instructor's Time

By Virginia Petty and

Pat Wallace

Advisor of Alpha Psi Omega is Mr. Richard T. Wiles, one of Longwood's new faculty members who teaches science and dramatic art. He is also sponsor of the Longwood Players. First on the Players' agenda is "The Admirable Crichton," by J. M. Barrie, which will be presented November 16, 17, and 18.

Impressive Background

Mr. Wiles has an impressive background in the field of the theatre. He attended the Colorado Shakespeare Festival for the last two years as a member of the repertory company. Last winter he worked on a community theatre project in Hobbs, New Mexico. In college he worked in the technical, acting, and directing fields of the theatre. Upon receiving his B.A. degree from the University of Colorado, Mr. Wiles did graduate work at Portland State College; and earned his Masters degree at the University of Arkansas. He has also taught at the University of Arkansas, Portland State College, and Scottsbluff College.

Theatre, Reading

Since his profession is centered around the theatre, it is also a hobby. Reading is another hobby; most of the literature he reads is concerned with the theatrical field.

Mr. Wiles is an avid hunter; when asked his favorite game, he replied with a wink, "Anything that is in season." Stamp collecting is still another favorite pastime.

Rec Swims

Swimming Pool Made Available For Work, Play

Rec swims began Monday, October 2, at 4:50 p.m. These rec swims are for the students in swimming classes who must make up an extra period and for any student who desires a free swimming period.

Track suits and towels are supplied by the H2O Club. The swimmers must bring their own caps. Beginning swimmers are required to wear red caps, all others may wear any color they desire.

The buddy system is observed in rec swims and no swimmer will be allowed in the pool without a swimming buddy.

Rec swims are scheduled for Monday and Thursday from 4:50 to 5:45 p.m. and Wednesday from 10 to 10:45 a.m.

Season Opener Results In Tie In Harrisonburg

By Barbara Agee

Excellent defense and sparkling play highlighted the opening hockey game of the 1961 season for the Longwood varsity team.

On Madison's new hockey field, the Longwood Ladies allowed their opponents only two goals in a hard-fought game. Madison's scores came as the first two goals of the game followed by a rushing point made by Linda Hatch in the first half.

Efforts In Vain

In the second half Madison's efforts proved to be in vain as only one more point was scored. This time it was Sandy Phlegar who made a fine rushing shot. The final score was 2-2.

Second Game

The second game was a deadlock all the way as neither team managed a goal. The splendid defense of both teams was the reason.

All girls on the team played. The starting line-up was guard Floesie Barnard, left fullback, Morag Nocher, right fullback Betty Lou Dunn, and left halfback Jo Savage.

Also playing were center halfback, Barbara Stewart; right halfback Trina Childress, left wing Janice Harris, left inner Linda Hatch, center Sandra Phlegar, right inner Barbara Grey Martin, and right wing Virginia Parker.

Other team members include Ellen Brady, Susan Coe, Cherrise How, Brenda Ibel, Earline Lange, and Shirley Metcalf.

Also Joy Moore, Lois Obenashin, Faye Ripley, Sharon Sarver, Joyce Snyder, Gay Taylor, Peg Waldo, and Judy Wilson.

—Staff Photo
DISPLAYING NEWLY AWARDED AA BLAZERS are L. Peters, J. Savage, K. Holland, L. Sudduth, V. Parker, K. Ripley, T. Childress, and M. Nocher.

Blazers Awarded By AA To Outstanding Seniors

Blazers were awarded by the Athletic Association to nine outstanding senior athletes at the AA Demonstration September 28. Those seniors receiving white blazers were Trina Childress, Morag Nocher, Virginia Parker, and Faye Ripley. Blue blazers were awarded to Sarah Buston, Keaton Holland, Lois Peters, Jo Savage, and Linda Sudduth.

Participation

Blazer awards are selected on the basis of participation in a variety of sports, scholarship, total number of points received, and other contributions to college athletics, and one of the most important qualifications—Sportsmanship.

A total of thirty points accumulated over a three year span is needed for the white blazer and a total of twenty points is needed for the blue blazer award.

The point system is based on participation in varsity and class sports, offices held on the AA Council, and individual sports. All four winners of the coveted white blazer are physical and health education majors.

Trina Childress from Norfolk has played varsity basketball, hockey, and archery. She has served on the AA Council for three years and was secretary last year. She is also a member of the SEA, Monogram Club, and has participated in all class sports.

Morag Nocher hails from Prince Anne and is currently president of the Athletic Association.

Her other activities include H2O, Monogram Club, SEA, varsity hockey, and archery, and all class sports.

Virginia Parker from Andersonville is a member of the Monogram Club, SEA, Athletic Council, and has played varsity basketball and hockey, and has also participated in all class sports.

Faye Ripley comes from Lee Hall and is a member of the varsity hockey, basketball, and archery teams. She also holds membership in the H2O, Monogram, SEA, AA Council plus all intramural sports.

Variety of Majors

Winners of the blue blazers hold a variety of majors.

Sarah Buston, a physical and health education major from Taxewell is treasurer of the Monogram Club, a member of the H2O, AA Council, SEA, varsity basketball team and is active in class sports.

Keaton Holland from Holland is a biology major. She holds the position of vice-president of AA, a member of the Monogram Club, SEA, Kappa Delta sorority, and participates in class sports. Lois Peters comes from Lynchburg and is majoring in social sciences. She is active in class sports, a member of the Monogram Club, Longwood Players, Alpha Sigma Tau sorority, sports editor of the Rotunda, and varsity archery team.

Jo Savage, an elementary and social science major from Danville, is president of the Student Government Association, a member of the Monogram Club, Alpha Sigma Tau sorority, Alpha Kappa Gamma, varsity hockey team, and active in class sports.

Linda Sudduth from Culpeper is a library science major and participates in class sports, and the varsity basketball team, Monogram Club, AA Council, Longwood Library League, and the Rotunda staff.

At the conclusion of the demonstration, Morag Nocher, president of the AA, awarded the above honors.

Spacemobile

(Continued from page 1)

this new field of space study." The demonstrations include space science experiments and answers to six basic questions: (1) What is a satellite? (2) How does it get up into orbit? (3) What keeps it in orbit? (4) What does it do? (5) What good is it? (6) What are the plans for future space research and exploration by the NASA?

Also included in the demonstrations are scale models of launch vehicles, satellites and space probes, electronic equipment, and other special devices for the demonstration of space science and exploration.

Sports Summary

H-S Tigers Win; Blue Devils Rage In Pigskin Play

By Ann Carroll

Lopsided scores were predominant throughout the East in college football games this weekend. Closest home was Hampden-Sydney's trounce on Bridgewater, 51-7. This gave the Tigers their seventeenth straight victory over the Eagles.

At the same time in Richmond at the Tobacco Festival, Duke's Blue Devils raged over Virginia's Cavaliers, 42-0. The scoring was all done in the second and third quarters.

In Maryland, the Middies of Annapolis smashed William and Mary's Indians 44-6. At this homecoming game, the Indians scored only during the last quarter. This defeat marks the tenth straight for the Indians.

Closer competition in scoring gave Virginia Military Institute an 8-6 victory over Richmond.

Randolph-Macon's team defeated the Quakers of Guilford College 6-4.

In North Carolina, the University of North Carolina rallied over North Carolina State 27-22.

This Saturday, the following teams are scheduled to clash: VMI at George Washington, Virginia, playing host to North Carolina State; Randolph-Macon at Western Maryland; Washington and Lee with Franklin and Marshall; and Hampden-Sydney, traveling to Sewanee, and Virginia Tech, at West Virginia University.

—Staff Photo
HOCKEY ENTHUSIAST, Constance Applebee, demonstrates dribble to C. Longstreet, G. Taylor, J. Moore, and P. Waldo.

US Hockey Founder Emphasizes Fitness

Still vivacious and full of life at 88, Miss Constance Applebee, the well-known hockey player from England, told the student assembly Tuesday how to keep fit by playing hockey.

She said that a hockey player is sure to possess good physical, mental and spiritual qualities not found in the average person.

Among the things a person learns to develop in hockey playing, she mentioned, are endurance, determination, physical fitness, will power, and the ability to deal with opposition and to discount it as being a hindrance to one's work.

Introduced Hockey Everywhere Miss Applebee has been, she has stimulated interest in hockey. The United States is indebted to her for introducing the game to this country in 1901. Due to her efforts, the game was popularized within the first

Dag's Sudden Demise Creates New Crises

As the sudden death of United Nations Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld shocked both eastern and western powers, new tensions have been arising on his replacement.

US President J. F. Kennedy staunchly defied the Russian proposal of a three man committee to act as secretary general. Such a replacement as this would give the communists powers the right of veto. In turn this would weaken the position greatly.

Congress adjourned its session September 29 after holding the longest session since the Korean War in 1951. The appropriations for this year totaled $95.2 billion. This figure sets a peace-time record.

President Kennedy, in speaking before the UN, challenged Russia to a "peace race." He introduced a six month disarmament plan, which agreed to stop production of nuclear weapons. Such a plan would halt the "arms race" now in progress and give a better prospect of future peace.

In the Middle East, Syria broke off her relationship with the Arab Union. This revolt destroyed Nasser's dream of an "Arab Nation" which would unite the Arabic-Moslem world.

Tennis Matches Commence Soon

In just a few days, class tennis competitions will get under way on the Longwood courts. The annual event is open to anyone who enjoys playing tennis. For the past several years the green and whites have been victorious in class tennis competitions.

Singles matches will be played first. After the opponents have been pitted against each other, they have one week to play the first round.

Doubles matches are expected to take place in the spring.

Tomorrow will be the last opportunity to sign up for the tournament.

FBLA Conclave Names Graduate 'Miss Executive'

Katie Mae Bolt, a 1961 graduate of Longwood, was named Miss Executive of America 1961. The tenth annual convention of the Future Business Leaders of America was held in Washington, D. C. in June of this year.

Sponsored by Phi Beta Lambda, national honorary business fraternity, Katie Mae competed with representatives from fifty states and Puerto Rico.

Steady Record

Since 1957 Longwood girls have steadily kept their record in winnings. In 1957 Charlotte Hall placed first in the state and first in the nation.

Lois Ogburn and Nancy Mills won first place in the state in 1958 and 1960 respectively. In 1959 Christine Joties won second place in the state.

According to Mr. Hollis Guy, national director, no other chapter in the nation has so consistently been a winner.

State Theatre FARMVILLE, VA.

Show Times

MONDAYS THRU FRIDAYS

Afternoons: 2:15

Evenings: 7:00 &amp; 9:00

SATURDAYS:

2 Afternoon Shows

1:15 and 3:15

2 Evening Shows

7:00 and 9:00

SUNDAYS:

1 Afternoon Show Only

2:30 P.M.

2 Evening Shows

7:15 and 9:15

ENDS WED.—OCT. 4

THURS.—FRI.—SAT.

OCTOBER 5-7

FREE — Jimmy Clanton Records to the First Five Hundred Customers!

SUN.—MON.—TUES.

OCTOBER 8-10

WED.—THURS.—OCT. 11-12

SPORTS CAR RACING THRILLS! M-G-M — BILL TRAVIS

THE GREEN HELMET

ED HEGLEY, JACK BRADSHAW, Betty Ross

Charge Accounts

Invited . . .

See Longwood Jewelry

at

LONGWOOD
JEWELERS

Welcome Freshman!

Look For Your

Charms and

Charm Bracelets

at

MARTIN

THE JEWELER

Special:

Choice Sirloin

Steak

French Fries

Hot Rolls

$1.35

COLLEGE SHOPPE

Early Rush System Initiated By Greeks

By Neal Banks

Alpha Beta Gamma Rho. Wear those phisoes, they will show!

The Greeks are at it again. Miss Wilson fired the starting gun and rush, rush, rush became the keyword for all sorority women on campus.

The next two weeks will be equally exciting for freshmen and upperclass Greeks alike. Parties, get-togethers, movie trips, and coke dates will be the favorite pastimes as the Pannelleion groups rally around the rushees.

Silence Starts

On Saturday, October 7, rush officially begins with the start of silence. All rushees, after receiving instructions, will attend open house on sorority hall from 1 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. There will be nine parties, each lasting twenty minutes. Dress will be Sunday attire. This is to allow rushees to become acquainted with sorority members in their own "families."

Faculty Reveals Various Origins

(Continued from page 1)

Brazil, holds the B.A. degree from King College, Bristol, Tennessee, and the M.A. degree from the University of Richmond. He has done doctoral work at American University.

His experience includes that of the Claims Representative with the Social Security Administration and Social Worker with the Virginia State Department of Welfare.

Three new members have joined the music department. They are Miss Mary Joanne Curmitt, Mr. Ivan Olson, and Miss Patricia M. Reilly.

Miss Curmitt received the B.M. degree from Cornell College and the M.M. degree from Oberlin Conservatory. She studied for three years at the University of Copenhagen and has completed the requirements for the doctor's degree at the Eastman School of Music in Rochester, New York. She taught for one year at Hardin-Baylor College in Texas. For four years, she was Director of the Temple School of Music in Temple, Texas. She served as a graduate assistant at the Eastman School of Music.

Mr. Olson received the B.M.E. degree and the M.Mus. degree from Northwestern University. He has done doctoral work at the University of Michigan. Mr. Olson has had experience teaching in the public schools of Dearborn, Michigan; Ann Arbor, Michigan; and Whitmore Lake, Michigan. He has also served as a teaching fellow at the University of Michigan.

Miss Reilly received the B.S. degree from Wisconsin State College and the M.A. degree from Columbia University. She has done doctoral work at Indiana University. She has had experience as a teacher and supervisor of music in both elementary and high schools. For four years, she served as Supervisor and Assistant Professor of Music at Wisconsin State College. During the past three years, she was a member of the faculty at Coe College.

Mr. Carson Gibb and Mr. J. Ellington White are new members of the English department. Mr. Gibb received the B.A. degree from Wesleyan University and the M.A. degree from the University of Pennsylvania. He has done work on the doctor's degree at the University of Pennsylvania. He taught for one year at West Virginia University, and for six years was a member of the faculty of Lafayette College.

Mr. White attended Washington and Lee University for two years and received the B.A. degree from Kenyon College. He received the master's degree from Johns Hopkins University. He has taught at the University of Richmond and for two years was Director of Publications at Holins College. He comes to Longwood from the faculty of Mississippi Southern College.

To the art department comes Mrs. Nancy Leitch. Mrs. Leitch holds the B.A. degree from the College of Fine Arts of Carnegie Institute of Technology and the M.F.A. degree from the Cleveland Academy of Art. She taught art at the Warwick High School during the past eight years. She has also studied at the University of Virginia and the College of William and Mary.

Mr. Alfred L. Patrick has joined the business education department. Mr. Patrick holds the B.S. degree and the M.Ed. degree from Virginia Polytechnic Institute. He taught for two years at Virginia High School in Bristol and served for one year as a graduate assistant at V.P.I. He comes to Longwood from the faculty of Northeast Louisiana State College, Monroe, Louisiana.

Mrs. Helen Barnes Savage is a new assistant professor of philosophy. Mrs. Savage holds the B.S. degree from Jacksonville State College and the M.A. degree from Columbia University. She has completed all of the requirements for the doctor's degree in philosophy at Duke University except the dissertation. She taught for eight years in the public schools in Alabama and also taught for three years at Stephen F. Austin State College, Nacogdoches, Texas.

Mr. W. D. Martin, Mrs. Martha T. Melvin, Mrs. James E. Orange, Miss Margaret Sammon, Mr. Murray Templeton, and Mrs. Edna Watkins have also joined the Longwood staff.

Mr. Martin will serve as clerk in the Business Office. He attended State Teachers College, Livingston, Alabama.

Mrs. Melvin will assist in the Admissions Office. She attended Salem College, Winston-Salem, North Carolina, and Strairford College.

Mr. Orange will serve as administrative assistant in the president's office. He will help conduct several studies on the operation of the college which will provide some of the factual bases for the evaluation of the College preparatory to continued accreditation.

Mr. Templeton, the new cashier in the Business Office, is taking the place of Mrs. Myers who resigned to take a teaching position in the Prince Edward Academy. He received a diploma from the University of North Carolina.

Miss Sammon will be a dormitory head resident, taking the place of Mrs. Marion Council who resigned this summer to accept a position near her home town in North Carolina. Miss Sammon holds the B.S. degree from George Peabody College.

Mr. Templeton, the new cashier in the Business Office, is taking the place of Mrs. Myers who resigned to take a teaching position in the Prince Edward Academy. He received a diploma

from the University of North Carolina.

Miss Sammon will be a dormitory head resident, taking the place of Mrs. Marion Council who resigned this summer to accept a position near her home town in North Carolina. Miss Sammon holds the B.S. degree from George Peabody College.

Mr. Templeton, the new cashier in the Business Office, is taking the place of Mrs. Myers who resigned to take a teaching position in the Prince Edward Academy. He received a diploma

from the University of North Carolina.

Miss Sammon will be a dormitory head resident, taking the place of Mrs. Marion Council who resigned this summer to accept a position near her home town in North Carolina. Miss Sammon holds the B.S. degree from George Peabody College.

Mr. Templeton, the new cashier in the Business Office, is taking the place of Mrs. Myers who resigned to take a teaching position in the Prince Edward Academy. He received a diploma

from the University of North Carolina.

Miss Sammon will be a dormitory head resident, taking the place of Mrs. Marion Council who resigned this summer to accept a position near her home town in North Carolina. Miss Sammon holds the B.S. degree from George Peabody College.

Mr. Templeton, the new cashier in the Business Office, is taking the place of Mrs. Myers who resigned to take a teaching position in the Prince Edward Academy. He received a diploma

from the University of North Carolina.

Miss Sammon will be a dormitory head resident, taking the place of Mrs. Marion Council who resigned this summer to accept a position near her home town in North Carolina. Miss Sammon holds the B.S. degree from George Peabody College.

Mr. Templeton, the new cashier in the Business Office, is taking the place of Mrs. Myers who resigned to take a teaching position in the Prince Edward Academy. He received a diploma

from the University of North Carolina.

Miss Sammon will be a dormitory head resident, taking the place of Mrs. Marion Council who resigned this summer to accept a position near her home town in North Carolina. Miss Sammon holds the B.S. degree from George Peabody College.

TOP RAT, L. Royster, commands L. House, M. Cate, and A. Steiner to 'Praise 64.'

College Receives Praise For World Contribution

Longwood College has received a letter of commendation for the contribution made in furthering international understanding during the past academic year from the southeastern office of World University Service.

A special note of congratulation was extended to Cherron Kelly Dunman, Chairman, World University Service "for her role in this endeavor through the excellent administration in conducting a successful campaign."

As part of the program $28.85 from the annual World University Service campaign was contributed to student international self-help and mutual assistance projects sponsored by WUS.

This gift, coupled with contributions from the campuses around the world, makes possible health facilities, housing accommodations, supplementary foods and educational equipment for needy students in the Middle East, Africa, Southeast Asia and the Far East.

Health Center Projects include establishment of a health center at Chung Chi College in Hong Kong; a co-operative student dormitory in Madras, India; x-ray apparatus for Naspur University in India; medical instruments and supplies for health services in Indonesia; equipment for a student printing house in Israel; textbooks and academic journals for Korean universities; and materials for a library in Basutoland, Africa.

WUS represents an international arm of academic life of the new Longwood library is scheduled to be completed December 15, according to Mr. Charles E. Butler, librarian.

"However, one does have to anticipate some unforeseen delays," says Mr. Butler, "and no certain date can be set for the move."

Ready Second Semester If construction is completed by December 15, the books will be transferred to the new library over the Christmas vacation. If not, it will be ready for use by second semester.

Being completely air-conditioned and having the best lighting obtainable are two of the assets of the new building. Other additions include private and group study rooms and an informally furnished lounge on each floor.

On the lower floor will be a listening room which will not be equipped at the present time. There will be individual study tables distributed throughout the library.

The new section of the library will house the reference collection, education books, bound periodicals, and the card catalogue. The exhibition room will be completely redone and will be used exclusively for art and other exhibitions.

PIZZA?? WHERE?? You Know . . .

THE COLLEGE SNACK BAR

Come In and See Our Longwood Stationery—49c Envelopes—29c

SOUTHSIDE DRUG STORE

Scoriotia Ida Lorena Appendini is the Spanish informant; Madeleine Anne-Marie Lallamant, the French informant.

In accounting and business administration from Smithfield-Massey Business College.

Mrs. Watkins is serving part-time as secretary to Dr. Patterson in his newly-assumed position of Director of Student Teaching. She attended Pan-American Business School and Longwood College.

Scoriotia Ida Lorena Appendini is the Spanish informant; Madeleine Anne-Marie Lallamant, the French informant.

'To Be Or Not To Be' Traditionally Ratted

By Ginny Gilmore

With the end of ratting, freshmen form varied opinions and sophomores get a view of the event in a different light.

Many students, both freshmen and sophomores, looked upon ratting with extreme dislike while others looked upon it as one of the biggest and most exciting events in the school year. Still others found faults that could be improved, or pointed out events that were particularly thrilling to them.

Ratting Immature

Some sophomores felt that ratting was a nonsensical idea completely irrelevant to the purpose of college. One stated that it "is very unfair to inflict another worry on an already unsure freshman."

She felt that it would be more pleasant to be able to come to Longwood and know that the upperclassmen would manifest their friendship in a sane and mature manner.

Serves Its Purpose

Many other sophomores felt that ratting, if taken in the right spirit, was a good idea. One felt that if the sophomores were not too domineering and if the freshmen realized that ratting was all in fun, it served a good purpose.

Many felt that the true purpose of ratting was for the freshmen and sophomore classes to know each other better. One claimed that ratting was a good institution because it promotes good class spirit.

Old Tradition

Many felt that it was an old tradition at Longwood and to lose it would be to lose a part of Longwood. Another pointed out that it keeps the freshmen busy all the time. There is no time to get homesick.

Some sophomores felt that ratting can go to extremes. They feel that there are always some who take advantage of their position during ratting. One girl stated that many freshmen in-voke this attitude on the part of the sophomore by being sarcastic.

Looking back, one sophomore recalled that it enabled her to meet a lot of upperclassmen who are her friends now. She felt that without this contact, she might never have known these girls.

Purpose Basically Bad?

One freshman felt that ratting was a very upsetting experience for many girls. She felt that whether a girl is afraid or not, it is hard on her nerves. She went on to say that the reason that sophomores enjoy ratting is basically bad. She felt that any group of people expressing another group was wrong. She has believed that the principle behind ratting was not effective. Many sophomores rat only those freshmen they already know. She said that although she learned many sophomores' names, she doubts that many remember hers.

Unknown Another freshman was for ratting one hundred per cent. She felt that both classes got a lot of enjoyment out of it and got acquainted at the same time. She did feel, however, that the meaning of ratting was not made clear to them in the beginning. This, she stated, instilled a feeling of rebellion and fear in them.

One freshman's only criticism was that it was thrown at them too fast. Many agreed that ratting should come after they are more settled.

Sophs Commended The Top Rats were commended by one girl who explained that they offered to help when they could. Another freshman was most impressed with the singing on Saturday afternoon. It was then that she realized that the sophomores were really buddies.

Sorry It's Over One girl was regretful because it was all over. Another felt a little tired, but admitted it was fun. "I'm looking forward to next year," was one freshman's final comment.

COPYRIGHT © 1961, THE COCA-COLA COMPANY COCA-COLA ® COKE ARE REGISTERED TRADEMARKS

BETWEEN FRIENDS... There's nothing like a Coke!

Get that refreshing new feeling with Coke!

Bottled under authority of The Coca-Cola Company by

Lynchburg Bottling Company, Lynchburg, Va.

The Rotunda

VOLUME XLI

Longwood College, Farmville, Va., October 11, 1961

No. 2

Circus To Bring 'Sawdust In My Shoes'

New Professor Publishes Work In Recent Books

By Sue Thompson

New to the Longwood campus this year is Mr. Ellington White, an assistant professor in the English department. Mr. White is originally from South Carolina, but his parents are now living in Staunton, Virginia.

Professor White attended Washington and Lee University for two years. He received his A.B. degree from Kenyon College in Gambier, Ohio, and his M.A. degree in English Writing from Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, Maryland. He also had a year of study in creative writing at the State University of Iowa.

He is married to the former Jean Farley, originally from Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. They have two children, David, three, and Nancy, two.

Likes Longwood

Mr. White says that he "likes Longwood very much and feels very fortunate in being here."

He is teaching freshman English, a survey of English literature for sophomores, journalism, and during the second semester will teach a creative writing course.

Having worked on several newspapers and been a feature writer for the Bermuda News Bureau in Hamilton, Bermuda, Mr. White has also served as director of press relations and publications at Hollins College. He has taught in the English departments of the University of Richmond and Mississippi Southwestern College.

Published Work

He has published short stories in the Sewanee Review, Georgia Review, Quarterly Review of Literature, and New Story Magazine and has critical essays in the Provincial magazine and in two books, The Lasting South and South (an Anchor Book due this spring).

He has also had a Sewanee Review Fellowship in Fiction during the academic year 1957-58 and is finishing a novel begun during this time.

His "The Perils of Flight" has recently come out in The Best American Short Stories 1961 and is a story about two women on whose isolated farm an airplane crashes. ("Robert Penn Warren," appearing in South: Modern Southern Literature, is a critical examination of Warren's work.

Besides his literary achievements, Mr. White enjoys fishing and tennis.

Alumnae Group Holds Fall Meet

The Longwood College Alumnae Association held its fall council meetings here Friday and Saturday.

About forty chapter presidents, council and board members attended the two-day session. Mrs. Walter Brown of Petersburg, national first vice-president of the association was the presiding officer.

Dr. Richard Brooks, chairman of the department of education, was the guest speaker for the opening dinner Friday night.

Dr. Francis G. Lankford, president of Longwood, addressed the group at the final meeting Saturday.

—Staff Photo

SHAKING SAWDUST FROM THEIR SHOES
ARE S. Weaver, B. Tuck, P. Tolleson, J. Savage,

J. Detrich, M. Blewett, P. Green, A. Howell, P. Hickey, and M. B. Micou.

61 LC Students Gain Recognition On Dean's List

The college recognizes the students whose names are listed below for their superior scholarship during the second semester of the 1960-61 session.

Seniors: Betty Jane Allgood, Dorothy Lee Burnette, Archer Cassada, Mary Anne Cooley, Helen Fox, Cherry Gorman, Mary Hite Grayson, Rose Marie Johnson, Jeannette Metcalf, Barbara Moore, Nancy Morris, Nancy Speakman, Janet Wainwright, Sara Watkins, Sandra Watkins, Frances Weaver, Mary Rob Harris, Joyce Odom, Nancy Umbarger.

Juniors: Sue Carolyn Agee, Martha Burroughs, Laura Elizabeth Carson, Neddie Chapman, Evelyn Ford, Joyce Grizard, Rosemary Henry, Ann Ransom, Emily Smith, Helen Jean Taylor, Lucy Trotter, Julia Waldo, and Patricia Anne Williamson.

Sophomores: Janet Anderson, Brenda Duke, Ellen DuPuy, Betty Farley, Judy Giles, Nancy Huffaker, Elaine Lohr, Shelby Jean Lucy, Caroline Phillips, Jean Pollard, Charles Joseph Predgo, Lucy Swink, Fran Webster, Marty Wyatt, Signe Young, and Thomas Layne.

Freshmen: Charlotte Amelia Craig, Gloria Jean Kafer, Charlotte McClung, Marie Lacella Murphy, Lois Ann Obenshain, Margaret Alice Pond, Linda Le-wan Rippey, Marjorie Twilley, Melanie Wilkes, Mary Catherine Lancaster, and Louise Garner.

Sororities End Week Of Formal Rushing

Silence, which began at 7 p.m. on Friday, formally opened the climactic week of fall rush. On Saturday, the first parties were held from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. On Sunday, the second series of parties, requiring dressy attire, was held in the afternoon. Tuesday night saw the third series narrowed to a rushee's choice of four parties to attend, each lasting half an hour.

Tonight, the rushees will be entertained at parties which will last for one hour, thirty minutes of which will be the presentation of a skit.

The Alpha Gamma Deltas have chosen the theme of "Mother Goose," to enact a parody on the familiar storybook characters. Due to the process of furnishing, which is under way in the AGD room, another unique seating arrangement has been planned.

The Alpha Sigma Alphas' skit will portray the members of the group in "Dogpatch." Original songs and decorations will support the main theme.

"Alpine Stopover" has been chosen the theme of the Alpha Sigma Tau parties, utilizing the sorority letters and the alpine atmosphere which will pervade their parties.

The Delta Zeta sisters have chosen the relaxed, informal setting of an "Hawaiian Isle" to be the scene for their final party. Appropriate decorations, songs, and dances will develop the festive theme.

Kappa Delta's door decoration depicts a heavenly scene. With the use of the heavenly colors of red and black, the rushees will be met by a surprise inside the room.

Phi Mu has planned a skit around the theme, "Come Sail on the S. S. Phi Mu." By means of sailor costumes, sea songs, and surprise decorations, the Phi Mu room will be transformed into a sailing vessel.

Having an unusual underwater theme this year, the Sigma Kappa Sea Kingdom, with President Beth Goodwin as King Neptune, and including some mermaids and fish.

The Tri-Sigas have used their theme of, "Inn of the Sigma Happiness," which is patterned after the movie of a similar name.

Zeta Tau Alpha has chosen "Zeta Fishing Cruise" as its theme, in which the good ship Alpha sails to Zeta Island, accompanied by Zeta sailors and singing, dancing, and comedy.

Theme Is Revealed, Circus Wagon Rolls

I feel "Sawdust In My Shoes" as I hear the laughter start, and suddenly I find I feel sawdust in my heart. Underneath a canvas sky, jungle beasts will reign. Clowns, gay antics, spice the night, with sawdust in their veins. So shake the sawdust in your shoes, let it tingle for awhile. Now, can't you feel it starting . . . it's that special Circus smile.

Against a background of much gaiety, intermingled with peanuts, delicious popcorn, cotton candy and endless fun, the spirit of "Sawdust In My Shoes" will come alive as the theme of Alpha Kappa Gamma's traditional fall Circus, October 28.

Big Top

Escorted by lively clowns, the audience will enter the Big Top, still brimming with the thrill and fascination of the afternoon parade, which will see the culmination of weeks of hard class work in competition for the winning float.

As the excitement dies down and the sawdust has been shaken from all the shoes, silence will prevail in Jarman Auditorium as the spectators are heraled by the Ringmaster, as she slowly, but confidently, takes over as mistress of ceremonies.

With top hat in her hand she will introduce the clowns with their white paint and their hearts . . . hearts big enough for the whole world. Their humor, sprinkled with sawdust, will reach every member of the audience, filling them with merriment and carnival spirit.

Animal Trainer

Then the Animal Trainer appears, controlling her menagerie of wild beasts with her mighty whip, and the show begins with sparkling colored lights playing from stunt to stunt in the presence of the reigning queen of Circus and her court.

Two New Maps Give Locations Of LC Students

By Doris Smith

Have you ever drilled 1,137 holes in a map? Morag Nopher and Virginia Parker tried it in the preparation of two maps showing where Longwood students and alumnae live.

Mr. Allen in the Public Relations Office designed these maps, and Mr. Henderson in the shop designed the frames around the maps.

Cover State

Each hole represents a student on the student map, but on the alumnae map each hole represents ten alumnae, unless tagged. The maps only cover the state of Virginia because it would be a very difficult job to include all of the states and foreign countries.

For instance, there are 7,294 alumnae living in Virginia; 1,979 in the other 49 states and 43 in twelve foreign countries.

These maps will be on display in Jarman Hall starting Monday, October 16.

Representatives

As representatives of each chairman have been selected to lead groups on parade and booth activities. Float chairmen are as follows: Lois Peters, Fatsy Skelton, seniors; Susan Lane, Barbara Moyer, juniors; Brenda Isabel, sophomore; and Connie Birch, Amy Haley, freshmen. Booth chairmen are Jeanne McKenzie, senior; Tinsley Crump, Ann Green, juniors; Marian Russ, sophomore; and Kathy Dodie, Wanda Old, freshmen.

General class chairmen are Dobby Mohr, Jackie Bielle, seniors; Ann Agre, Mary Beth Olson, juniors; Joyce Lake, Vivian Taylor, sophomores; and Lyn Guerin, Peggy Hunt, freshmen.

Committees headed by mem-

(Continued on page 4)

—Staff Photo

PANHELLENIC REPRESENTATIVES B. Stuck, M. Lipscomb, B. Raine, S. Beardmore, D. Mohr, S. Hudlow, and S. Crisman.

Ladle Rat Rotten Hut

(Reprinted from the RPI Prospect.)

The story that follows was composed by a Jesuit priest in Dallas, Texas, on a bet that he could compose a story using all English words out of context.

Wants pawn term, dare worsted ladle gull hoe lift wicker murder inner ladle cordage honor titch offer lodge, dock, florist. Disc ladle gull orphan worry ladle cluck wicker putty ladle rat hut end fur disc raisen pimple caudier "Ladle Rat Rotten Hut."

Wan moaning Rat Rotten Hut's murder calder in set: "Ladle Rat Rotten Hut, heresy ladle basking tudor cordage offer groin murder hoe lifts honor under side offer florist. Shaker lake, end stopper laundry wrote, end yonder no sorgung stenchies dun stopper torque wet strainers."

"Hoe cake, Murder," resplendent Ladle Rat Rotten Hut, end sea tickle ladle basking an stuttered off. Honor wrote tudor cordage offer groin murder, Ladle Rat Rotten Hut mitten anomalous woff.

"Wall, wall, wall," set disc woff, "evanescent Ladle Rat Rotten Hut! Wares or ladle gull goring wizard ladle basking?"

"Amor goring tumor groin murder's" reprisal ladle gull, "grammar's seeking bet. Armon tickling arson burden barter end shirker cockles."

"O Hoe! Heifer blessing woke, setter wicket woff (butler taught tomb shift, "O! tickle shirt court tudor cordage offer groin murder. Oil ketchup wicker letter, end den, O bore!")

Soda wicket woff tucker shirt court end wheeney rector see cordage offer groin murder, plecter inner widow end some debdore pore oil worming worse lion inner bet. Inner flesh disc abdominal woff lipped honor betting adder rope any pool down a groin murder's nut cup and gnat nut any curdie doze inner bet. Inner ladle wile, Rat Rotten Hut a raft attar cordage an ranker dough ball.

"Comb ink, sweat hard," setter wicket woff, disgracing is verse, Ladle Rat Rotten Hut enty bet rum end stud bayer groin murder's bet.

"O Grammar," crater ladle gull, "wart bag icee gut. A nervous sausage bag icee."

"Buttered locky cheek whiff, doling," whiskered disc ratched woff, wicker wicket small.

"O, Gram mar, a, water bag noise. A nervous suture suture anomalous promissus!"

"Better small you wif," in-sewer woff, ant mouse worse wadding.

"O, Gram mar, water bag mousy gut. A nervy suture suture bag mouse!"

Daze worry on forger nut gull's laest warfs. Oil offer soddien, throne offer carvers end sprinkling offer bet, disc curl end blast thursday woff cease port Rat Rotten Hut end garbled erupt.

MURAL: Yonder nor sorgung stenchies shutt ladle gulls stop-torque wet strainers.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS BY BOBER

Instrument, Instructor New To Music Students

By Taney Pegram

This year Longwood College has as a new member of the faculty, Dr. Mary Joanne Currutt. Originally from Rockport, Missouri, this new instructor of organ and harpsichord states that her previous years have been worthwhile and rewarding.

Dr. Currutt received a B. M. degree from Cornell University and her M.M. degree from Oberlin University. She also studied organ and harpsichord for three years at the University of Copenhagen in Denmark under a Fulbright Grant. Such an honor is given to only 1500 of the many thousands that apply.

Lectures in Danish

Dr. Currutt recalls the lectures as being completely in Danish and quite confusing at first. She later completed the requirements for her doctor's degree at the Eastman School of Music in Rochester, New York.

In Dr. Currutt's office in Jarman Hall, the music department's newest instrument has been placed. Made in Passau, Germany, it is the 347th harpsichord to be made by Mr. Sperrhake.

Advantages

Having a very quiet sound compared to a piano, Dr. Currutt pointed out, is one of the harpsichord's advantages. Since it is small as well as quiet, the harpsichord would be an ideal instrument for a family living in an apartment. It could be played without disturbing other tenants and wouldn't take up too much floor space.

When asked about opportunities for girls to study the harpsichord, Dr. Currutt made an interesting and informative observation. All students at Longwood must take at least six hours of either art or music. Any girl who

(Continued on page 4)

Mirror Mimics Moves Of Harried Student

By Mary Beth Olson

In my opinion mirrors seem to be rather poorly placed. I have, in fact, taken a distinct dislike (bordering on hatred) to my mirror. Its reflective glass faces my bed both day and night. As I sit gracefully sprawled across the bed I cannot help but gaze at the glassy image.

Hour's Scrutinization

"How on earth could I have let my hair get in this condition," I mutter as I stare at the reflection. Of course the only remedy for my peace of mind is to lay aside the book and meander to the mirror for an hour's scrutinization of a hopeless situation.

Particularly Painful

Mornings are particularly painful to me. As I awaken I peep cautiously from beneath the cover—"Oh lovely face—Bee-utiful face, to whom do you belong? I gaze at your pasty-white complexion—carefully gloved with Clearasil, your hue accompanied by a trace of last night's mascara on your cheeks, and your hair is your crowning glory—a mass of spiral rollers, baby pins, clips, topped with a glob of spray net. I can only say—Aaaaaa!"

Afternoons have assumed a dreadful place in my life. After my physical education course I come stumbling into my humble abode, weave uncertainly across the room, and collapse on the bed—to be greeted by two glassy eyes staring intently at my monogrammed, snug-fitting, well-pressed gym suit.

"Horror! Grass stain!" I leap from the comfort of my foam rubber mattress and dash to the mirror to observe the stain.

Fanatical

I have become so fanatical on the subjects of my mirror and its position that in order for anyone to communicate with me during an absence from my living quarters they need only leave

(Continued on page 4)

Circus Magic

I am a clown. I have a round red nose, an exaggerated smile, and "sawdust in my shoes." I am a very special circus clown and I belong to a very special Circus. Our performers are amateurs and we perform only once a year, but our love of the Circus is very, very real.

People often ask me why I am a clown. They don't understand why I yearly assume a new identity, forgetting the everyday cares of everyday life and taking up special cares in a pretend-world of bright lights and laughter.

As I paint on my greasestrip smile, the smile is inside too, for I know I have sawdust in my shoes and Circus in my heart.

"Bah!" say some. "Humbig! Whoever heard of a Circus in your heart? Circus is wasted time and needless anxiety and lower grade averages. Circus is for children and John Ringling North, and even Mr. North has given up!"

And when I hear these retorts my greasestrip smile is real, for, being a Circus clown, I know its secret magic. Yes, there is hard work and confusion; there is worry over trivialities and never enough time in the day. All to make some people laugh and perhaps to make some cry. But the magic of Circus must be reckoned with—the magic called fun. Those of us who have sawdust in our shoes can find it everywhere in the Circus atmosphere. It is the fun of working together with real determination to produce something good. I'm glad that I am a clown and can tell you about the magic of Circus. Now maybe you can find it too.

—Staff Photo
PLAYING THE HARPSICORD, Dr. Mary Joanne Currutt, finds worthwhile and rewarding pleasure.

Scientists' Cosmological Theories Come To Astronomers' Attention

(Editor's note: The following is the first of a two-part commentary on the astronomer's view of the universe by Walter Sullivan, originally published in the "New York Times." We offer it in the hope that it will stimulate interest and provide some background for the lectures to be presented here November 20 and 21 by eminent astronomer and Danforth Visiting Lecturer, Dr. Harlow Shapley. The second portion of the article will appear in next week's "Rotunda.")

Is the universe growing older? Or is it ageless, with new galaxies, new stars, new planets—perhaps new life—forever being continuously created.

For the past three weeks this question, marking the difference between the "steady-state" and the "big bang" cosmologic theories, has held the attention of astronomers from many lands. They discussed it first at a small conference in Santa Barbara, Calif., and then at the General Assembly of the International Astronomical Union, which ended at the University of California in Berkeley on Thursday.

In attendance, at one or both meetings, were almost all of the leading figures in the cosmological debate that has been carried on in recent years with increasing fervor. Both sides pointed to recent discoveries and observations which, they feel, support their point of view.

Heart of Controversy

In summing up the controversy Dr. Herman Bondi of Kings College at the University of London set the points on which virtually all are agreed.

(1) First, all of the distant galaxies are moving away from us. A galaxy is an assembly of stars, the Milky Way galaxy has a population of stars reckoned in the billions. The galaxies themselves, within range of optical or radio observation, also probably number in the billions. Expansion of the universe was postulated before it was observed. The receding motion of the galaxies, indicating expansion, has been observed in the stretching or "reddening" of their light waves, the so-called "red-shift."

(2) The dimmer the galaxy, the greater is the red shift. This indicates that galaxies farthest away are receding fastest.

(3) The distribution of matter throughout the universe is uniform. Optical observations suggested this have recently received strong confirmation from the observations of radio-astronomy.

The farther we look, the deeper we penetrate into the past. Thus, as Dr. Bondi puts it, "geography turns into history," as astronomers explore the most remote sky areas.

In 1927 Abbe' Georges Lemaitre, a Belgian astronomer-cleric, published the "big bang" hypothesis to account for the expanding motion of the galaxies. If you run this motion backwards five billion years, he said, it seems evident that all of the galaxies originated at one point.

In explaining this idea to newsmen at the conference of Astronomical Union he described this starting point as "a kind of bottom in space and time." What existed at the beginning was one single entity with no structure. There followed the "beginning of multiplicity" and the flying apart of the components.

Abbe' Lemaitre denies the allegation of his opponents that his views are tailored to fit the concept of a divine creation. His cosmology differs from the "steady-state" view (the idea that the universe is being continuously created) for one thing in that it permits the existence of superlatives, such as a "largest" galaxy and a "hottest" star, whereas the other cosmology does not.

One of the chief problems in present day astronomy and cosmology arises from the puzzling recent discovery that some stars seem to be roughly twice as old as the "universe." This finding was cited in two of the talks given to the 1,000 astronomers who attended general sessions of the Astronomical Union Conference. One was by Dr. Jan H. Oort of The Netherlands, president of the organization, and the other by Dr. Martin Schwartzchild of Princeton University.

Dr. Schwarzschild noted that, although the beginning of the expansion of the universe is put at thirteen billion years ago, the ages of some star clusters in our galaxy are now estimated at twenty-five billion years. The latter ages are based on theoretical stellar life histories.

Group Discusses Current Events In Recent Meet

The Longwood Forum held its first current events and world affairs discussion Monday, October 9. These discussions will be held every other Monday at 4:15 in the Student Lounge. Everyone in the student body, faculty and administration is invited to these meetings. The purpose of the organization is to stimulate an interest in, and give students an opportunity to discuss, current events and world affairs.

Senior class representatives on the Forum are Eleanor Bradford and Jean Cloud. Gayle Ann and Susan Lane represent the Junior class, and Rae Ferguson and Evelyn Gray represent the sophomore class. Mr. M. Henry Bittinger and Mr. J. Hunter Bailey serve as faculty advisors to the group.

Sports Review

WVA Blanks Tech; Indians Halt Furman

By Donna Humphlett

Attacking from the air, West Virginia blanked Virginia Tech, 25-0 this weekend. One of the WVU six-pointers was scored on a pass, and accurate aerials set up the other three touchdowns.

Tech was inside the Mountaineer twenty, three times, including a last minute drive to the thirteen, but the Mountaineer display was complemented by a crushing ground game which proved to be too much for the outmanned Tech squad.

Leading another aerial attack was George Washington's Bill Hardy. The Colonials, sparked by Hardy's pivot passes, ripped VMI, 30-6. The 21-pass attack featured four touchdown passes. Hardy, connecting with all but four of his fourteen attempts, provided three of the six point passes, and Merv Hollard, his understudy, provided the other.

The Keydets' lone touchdown was registered by Sinton Jones on a fourth-down, one yard sweep off left with 1:07 left in the third quarter.

Before a homecoming crowd of

Tennis, Hockey Share Spotlight In Class Games

By Ann Carroll

With the winning of the Color Cup set as its goal, each class has already started competition in tennis matches, and has begun practice for the hockey games to be played in November.

The Color Cup is awarded each year to the class colors with the greater number of 15,000. UVA bowed to NC State, 21-14. Outplaying the Wolfpack in the first half, the Cavaliers had possession for 49 plays to 21 for State. Then, in the second half, NCS quarterback, Roman Gabriel, began making connections. Bill Elias, Virginia Coach, blamed second quarter penalties and a poor third quarter for his team's defeat.

In Williamsburg, William and Mary halted Furman's three game winning streak, and snapped its own string of ten straight losses. Playing a better brand of ball than they had earlier in the season, the Indians gained 281 yards on total offense. The big gear for the day was fullback Stan Penkunas with 75 yards. Another Indian star, H. C. Thaxton, fumbled effectively.

University of Richmond dropped its third straight defeat to the Citadel, 24-6. With second string quarterback, Sid Mitchell, tossing two TD passes, the Citadel trounced the Spiders, 24-6.

Duke racked up its third straight victory when the Blue Devils handed Wake Forest its third loss this year. Quarterback Walt Rappold threw touchdown passes of 11 and 17 yards to a 23-0 Atlantic Coast Conference win.

Society Sponsors Picnic At Estate

Beore Eh Thorn, English honor society, is sponsoring a picnic October 18 at the AA cabin on Longwood Estate.

Invitations will be extended to members of the English faculty and to freshman English majors.

Varsity Hockey Captain, T. Childress, checks line-up for Westhampton game.

Annual Contest To Try Talents, Musical Minds

On October 31, at the regular assembly period, the Athletic Association will sponsor its annual song contest.

To encourage class spirit and competition is the main purpose for having the song fest. This year, the songs are to be about the individual classes. All music and lyrics must be original, but almost any type of music is acceptable.

Last year the class of '64 won the cash prize for composing "Joan of Arc".

Each class will pick a committee to compose the song and they in turn will teach it to the rest.

Since the busy Circus weekend comes up just before this assembly, everyone is urged to get together as often as possible to learn their class's song.

At the assembly, the classes each sing their composition, twice. While the three faculty member judges deliberate, traditional Circus or college songs are sung.

All of the Longwood songs have come from this contest, except for the Alma Mater.

Longwood Team Defeats Division

The Longwood hockey team playing its usual good game swept two games from the Norfolk division of William and Mary in Norfolk, Saturday, October 7, by scores of 4-0 and 12-0.

Playing the second game of the still young season, the varsity team was on the offensive for almost the entire first half. Breaking through the division defense, Longwood scored three times in the first half.

In the second half the Division came fighting back and threatened to score several times while holding Longwood to one goal. Center forward Sandy Phlegar was high scorer in the game with two goals followed by Virginia Parker, and Lindy Hatch with one apiece.

The William and Mary Division found themselves completely helpless against Longwood's second team. William and Mary found themselves playing an entirely defensive game as the blue and white pushed through twelve goals. Five girls accounted for the Longwood goals with Lois Oenshain leading all scorers with four goals followed closely by Susan Coe with three, Ellen Brady and Gay Taylor with two, and Joy Moore with one.

Commendations go to the Longwood defense for holding W&M scoreless throughout both games.

Childress Leads Varsity Through Hockey Season

Expresses Hope For Good Year

Trina Ann Childress, a senior physical education major from Princess Anne has been selected to serve as varsity hockey captain for the 1961 season.

Last year Trina was secretary of the Athletic Association and is publicly chairman for this year. She is secretary of the Monogram Club, holds a Senior Life Saving Certificate, and is a member of SEA and YWCA.

Outside of what she considers her most important hobby—sports—Trina enjoys singing, drawing, and gives Longwood's best ukelele players some tough competition.

White Blazer
She has also played varsity basketball for three years, varsity archery for two years, and class tennis and volleyball. Trina was among the outstanding athletes who received a white blazer at the AA Demonstration.

Trina wished to express through the Rotunda that, "I predict a good season for Longwood, and am proud to be captain of a team that has such drive and spirit. I hope that everyone will support the team in our future home games."

A game with Westhampton is scheduled for October 13, and a game with the Richmond Club is on the agenda for October 14. The following weekend, Longwood will meet the Little Colonels. These games are to be played on the Longwood hockey field.

Center Halfback

Trina's position is that of center halfback. Other members of the first team include Flossie Barnard, Betty Lou Dunn, Lindy Hatch, Janice Harris, Barbara Gray, Martin, Morris Nocker, Sandy Phlegar, Faye Ripley, Jo Savage, Gay Taylor and Judy Wilson.

Members of the second team are Ellen Brady, Susan Coe, Cherany Howe, Brenda Isbell, Erlene Lang, Shirley Melcalf, Joy Moore, Lois Oenshain, Sharron Sarver, Lefty Snyder, Barbara Stewart, Peggy Waldo, Susie Waters, and Judy Wilson.

Martin about the "Little Willie" card trick which so entranced Miss Barlow, an English coach affectionately known as "Twinkle Eyes," or quiz Betty Lou Dunn about the correct use of the verb "to lie!"

Scholarships

Flossie Barnard, Betty Lou Dunn, and Barbara Stewart were awarded student scholarships to attend hockey camp. Morris Nocker and Faye Ripley worked in the camp store, while industrious Jo Savage served as waitress in the dining hall.

In addition, every girl who attended hockey camp collected newspapers for the Athletic Association or helped with the rummage sale held last year in order to earn money toward the fee for attending camp.

Three Longwood seniors traveled to the Pocomo: Morris Nocker, Faye Ripley, and Jo Savage. However, the juniors held the lead with eight members of their class huffing and puffing in the camp store, the dining hall, and down the "pitch." They included Flossie Barnard, Susan Coe, Betty Lou Dunn, Lindy Hatch, Barbara Gray (hockey legs) Martin, Joy Moore, Sally Sims, and Barbara Stewart. Chris Longstreet, Lois Oenshain, Sharron Sarver, Gay Taylor, and Peggy Waldo represented the sophomore class. The girls were accompanied on their delightful trip by Miss "B" who led the caravan in her sparkling new Oldsmobile.

LC Enthusiasts Drawn To Camp In Pennsylvania

By Lefty Snyder

The Pocomo Mountains in Pennsylvania are well known for their many picturesque honeymoon resorts; but also nestled among the tall peaks is another attraction which draws both southerners and northerners alike — The Hockey Camp, located in Tobyhanna, Pennsylvania.

From September 7 through 14 Longwood College was once again well represented as sixteen hockey enthusiasts received the expert hockey instruction that is given so patiently by Miss Constance Applebee.

Miss Applebee, who brought hockey to the United States, is director of the hockey camp. This season she was ably assisted by coaches representing the United States, England, and Australia, including Longwood's own Miss Burger.

Southern Draw
Longwood and its "southern" draw was the target for much good natured teasing by the northern schools, but southern belles were soon substituting "you guys" for "y'all."

When not practicing stickwork or playing match games, the players were indulging in mouth watering food served at camp, or taking a much needed rest. The week flew by with only two injuries — Sally Sims pulled her trusty crutches out of moth balls and our versatile president of student government sustained a leg injury.

Otherwise all went well. The weather was so beautiful that many of the players found time to swim in the enticing lake on the campsite.

It was agreed upon by all that the week was an invaluable experience of hard work, learning, and fun. Ask Barbara Gray

H-S College Faces Big Task In Next Games

By Lois Peters

Facing one of their toughest schedules in many years, the Hampden-Sydney Tigers have a big job ahead of them in trying to improve on last year's two won and six lost record.

Under the capable leadership of tri-captains Tim Butler, tackle; Tom Treadway, fullback; and Bill Sale, center, plus returning lettermen at every position, the Tigers have a good chance to improve upon last season's record.

Although the Tigers have returning lettermen to fill every position, their main weakness lies in lack of depth. The squad hopes to counteract this weakness with their speed and drive.

In their opening game of the year fighting hard to avenge last year's 14-7 defeat at the hands of W & L, Hampden-Sydney went down to a heart-breaking 7-6 defeat. Displaying their power, the Tigers completely routed a hopeless Bridgewater team 31-7 in their second game. Traveling to Tennessee this past Saturday, Hampden-Sydney met defeat at the hands of a strong Sewanee team 21-9.

One of the biggest events of the football season will take place Saturday, October 14 at Death Valley when the annual Dad's Day game against Western Maryland is scheduled to get underway. The Tigers will be looking for their second win of the season and their second consecutive win over Maryland.

Visit The CAMPUS BOOK STORE
for Books
&
Art & Lab Supplies

SPECIAL:
Choice Sirloin Steak
French Fries
Hot Rolls
$1.35
COLLEGE SHOPPE

Scarab Watch Bands and Scarab Bracelets
at
MARTIN
THE JEWELER

FREE To The First
Ten Longwood Girls:
A Longwood
Ball Point Pen
WEYANOK
BOOK STORE
200 High Street
Farmville, Virginia
EX 2-4027

Need A Study Break?
Visit Your COLLEGE SNACK BAR
for a
Special Treat

FRESHMEN, C. Birch and J. Walker, cast scornful eyes on Red and White ribbons on the Color Cup.

points won in sports activities and other events through the year.

Ten Points
Each activity win gives the victor ten points towards the cup. At the end of the year, the cup is put in the Home Office with the colors of the winning sister classes. This year the Red and Whites will be striving to keep their colors attached, while the Green and Whites have plans of detroning their rivals.

Tennis matches started October 6, and chairman Faye Ripley said she hoped the first rounds would be completed by today. To gain ten points in this sport, a class must have the over-all winner in all the matches.

Class Hockey
Susie Waters and Lauriee Hamlet are co-chairmen of the class hockey games. General practices are now being held on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 4 p.m. and on Friday at 3 p.m. To be eligible to play, freshmen who are in physical education classes must attend at least four of these general practices. Upperclass men must go to at least eight practices.

To keep the number of practices in order, after each practice the girls are to sign up in the field house by individual classes. In this hockey competition, the winner of the ten points is the class with the majority of victories.

Tentative Schedule
The tentative schedule for play in the hockey games is set up for November. The first games will be around November 9 and 10, with play between the sister classes. The next day, play will be between the freshmen and seniors. The sophomores and juniors will compete next.

The final games are scheduled to be between the freshmen and sophomores, and the juniors and seniors.

The best way to win the Color Cup is summed up by Susie Waters, "Everybody come out and support your team."

Frat Pins Mean Much, Little, As Pinned Wish

By Beck Brehm

"Oh no! . . . do something!" a newly pinned girl, whose name we won't mention, screamed as five of her friends jumped from behind their hiding places in the shrubs at the stroke of twelve midnight to carry her bodily away from her pinmate, up the stairs, and into the shower.

This scene actually happened at Longwood summer school and these five girls had decided to make something new and dramatic of the traditional showers that occur so often here at Longwood when one of the students gets pinned. As the showered one stood there dripping with her new madras blouse making rather artistic streaks down her skirt and bluish-black puddles on the floor she said, "Gosh, y'all are so sweet! This just means so much to me."

Misconception

How much does a fraternity pin actually mean? It is a common misconception that a pinning means less and less as the years go on. This, however, is not entirely true. An interview with an older lady revealed that during one "shagging, Charlestoning" summer school session at UVA, she was pinned to six different boys representing six different fraternities. According to her, each boy was quite free of jealousy and was very proud to be pinned to such a popular girl. Her only problem was having to arise 45 minutes earlier every morning in order to get the pins correctly placed on her blouse so that each one could be displayed properly.

As time went on, fraternity pins came to have a more serious meaning. If someone were pinned about 15 years ago, it meant that the boy could not afford a diamond at that time, or that for some other reason the couple would have to wait a while before becoming actually engaged.

Modern Times

To get down to modern times, there seem to be many different conceptions of what being pinned means. It seems to be true that pins are being given out more freely and, also, that they mean just what the two persons concerned wish them to mean.

Fraternity pins were quite crudely defined in a nearby boys' school magazine as "fifty-five dollars worth of permanent pinning." All of the pinned set became quite insulted and began to make remarks about dignity and feeling being stripped away from everything.

Today a pin can mean that two people are in love, it can serve as a status symbol (she's pinned!), it gives a feeling of security, or, in some cases, the two people hardly like each other, but "everybody else is getting pinned."

Mirror's Magic Reflects Moods, Many Meanings

(Continued from page 2)

a note on the mirror. My roommate may wave at me and I will see it through the mirror. Friends may visit and from my vantage point on the bed I can only see the back of their heads. At night as I squat comfortably over a memorable work of Edgar Allan Poe, Mad comic book or health education parallel I am amazed by the picture on the reflective surface.

Eleven O'clock

"Why you've never looked lovelier, you gorgeous creature! Eleven o'clock at night seems to do things for you. The black rings under your eyes aren't nearly so obvious, the glazed look in your eyes is becoming, and every strand of hair is in place." I murmur admiringly. Once again I am drawn to the mirror to take a closer look at this work of art.

Is it any wonder that I am not fond of my mirror? It completely disrupts my day. It follows me wherever I go—in the bathroom, in the Rotunda, downtown, in a friend's room. Even now as I sit at my desk typing, there is someone staring at me, imitating my every move. I think I shall form an organization for the elimination of mirrors, reflective glass windows, and aluminum. Are you interested?

Faculty Receive Staff Advances For Fiscal Year

The promotion of five faculty members has been announced by Dr. F. G. Lankford, Jr., president of the college. Dr. Lankford also announced the appointment of Dr. Charles H. Patterson, Jr., as director of student teaching.

Dr. Patterson will carry out the work of this newly established position in addition to his regular teaching role. He will be responsible for the teaching program and supervision of the student teachers at Longwood College in the cities of Danville and Roanoke, and the counties surrounding Prince Edward County.

Promoted were Dr. Blanche C. Badger from associate professor to professor of mathematics; J. Hunter Baller from instructor to assistant professor of mathematics; Dr. Richard B. Brooks from associate professor to professor of education; Foster B. Gresham from assistant professor to associate professor of English; and Dr. Ruth B. Wilson from associate professor and Dean of Women to professor of education and Dean of Women.

GENERAL CLASS CIRCUS CHAIRMEN discuss mutual problems. They are V. Taylor, J. Skellie, D. Mohr, L. Guerin, J. Lake, P. Hunt, M. B. Olson, and A. Agee.

Timely Topics

East, West Germans Fire Across Border

By Barbara Wilshar

Tension fills the air today as the Berlin crisis threatens to erupt. The situation grew worse when gunfire broke out between the East and West German police. The firing commenced as the East German police, in pursuit of two East German refugees attempting to escape, fired near the West German border.

The West German police returned the burst of fire which they felt was meant for them. One of the two fleeing refugees was killed and the other captured by East German forces.

This first stage of gunfire was followed by a second later in the week. President Kennedy and Russian Foreign Minister Gromyko met Friday to discuss the recent world problems. President Kennedy announced that the West would not yield to communist control of Berlin. The question now, is what next?

After failing to reach a suitable agreement, 120,000 production workers of the United Auto Workers Union of the Ford Motor Company went on strike.

LC Professor To Make Talks

Dr. R. C. Simonini, Jr., chairman of the English Department, will be principal speaker at two meetings of English teachers this week.

On October 13 Dr. Simonini will speak on the subject "Teaching Written English" at the meeting of the VEA District A English Teachers at Mary Washington College. The District A organization is an affiliate of the Virginia Association of Teachers of English. "Linguistic Sophistication for Tomorrow's Citizens" will be Dr. Simonini's topic at a meeting of District E English Teachers on October 14 in Danville. Dr. Simonini will discuss some basic assumptions of modern linguistic science which should underlie all our teaching about the English language in schools today.

Farmville's Only Exclusive Women's Store invites You To Come In and Browse Around . . .

THE DOROTHY MAY STORE Under New Management

Curnutt

(Continued from page 2)

has had at least three or four years of piano lessons is eligible to take a course in harpsichord. She said, "I want everyone to feel completely free to come and talk to me about such an elective, and I will be glad to help you in any way I can."

As a new member of the Longwood College faculty, Dr. Curnutt has much experience and knowledge in the field of music. "The kind of music studied by a student has a definite effect on him," she said, "and it has a refining influence on personal character."

Later on in October an organ workshop is being planned and is to be held here at Longwood College.

Carter Speaks To LC Students

Dr. George F. Carter, geographer and author, spoke to the students of Longwood this afternoon on "The Antiquity of Man in America."

Dr. Carter has taken part in geographical research in Southwestern United States, including the Mojave and Colorado deserts, coastal California and the Sierra Nevada mountains. He has also done a study of the Chesapeake Bay area.

He attended San Diego State College and received his A.B. and Ph.D. from the University of California. He later taught in both of these institutions and at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, Maryland.

Dr. Carter is the author of two books: Plant Geography and Culture History in the American Southwest, and Pleistocene Man at San Diego.

HOLLYWOOD BEAUTY COLLEGE above
Southside Sundry
 Shampoo Set ..... $1.00
 Hair Cut ..... $1.00
 Perm. Wave ..... $5.00
 (Includes Shampoo, Set, & Cut)
 Work done by advanced students in latest fashions

SOUTHSIDE SUNDRY CO.
 Stationery, Reg. $1.00 For 50¢
 Kodacolor Film
 Reg. $1.15 NOW 85¢ (620, 127, and 120)
 Many Other Specials!!

Circus Directed By Class Heads In Next Weeks

(Continued from page 1)

bers of AKG are as follows: publicity, Sandra Weaver, Jane Pennington; stunt, Judy Detrich, Peggy Green; parade, Becky Tuck; booth, Ann Howell, Mattie Blawett; animals and clowns, Mary Byrd Micon, Jo Savage; and queen and court, Page Tolleson, Pat Hickey. The general chairman of Circus is Page Tolleson, and the assistant chairman is Pat Hickey.

Alpha Kappa Gamma invites everyone to this year's Circus and expresses their very best of hopes that the student body will participate in, and enjoy Circus to its fullest extent, as "Sawdust In My Shoes" fills the autumn air.

Patronize

The Rotunda

Advertisers

Charge Accounts

Invited . . .

See Longwood Jewelry

or

LONGWOOD JEWELERS

Where Will You

Find It?

LANSCOTT'S GIFT SHOP!!

State Theatre FARMVILLE, VA.

Show Times

SUNDAYS:

1 Afternoon Show Only
 2:30 P.M.
 2 Evening Shows
 7:15 and 9:15

MONDAYS THRU FRIDAYS

Afternoons: 3:15
 Evenings: 7:00 & 9:00

SATURDAYS:

2 Afternoon Shows
 1:15 and 3:15
 2 Evening Shows
 7:00 and 9:00

WED.-THURS.—OCT. 11-12

SPORTS CAR RACING THRILLS!

M-G-M presents BILL TRAVIS

THE GREEN HELMET

CO. BOGLEY • JACK WARREN King Rider

FRI.-SAT.—OCT. 13-14

A Fascinating, Fabulous Woman!

SUSAN HAYWARD • DEAN JAGGER

HAYWARD • MARTIN

"Ada"

Produced by M. J. COLEMAN

SUN.-MON.—OCT. 15-16

THE TURNER TRIANGLE

ROBERT ROSS • BOB HOPE

BOB HOPE

"Possessed"

Produced by M. J. COLEMAN

TUES.-WED.—OCT. 17-18

"Homicidal"

BEGINS OCTOBER 19

ROCK HUDSON

CINA LILLOBRICIDA

"Come September"

Bottled under authority of The Coca-Cola Company by

Lynchburg Bottling Company, Lynchburg, Va.

Around The Campi

The grippers are seen and heard everywhere. Found in the Rec, dorm rooms and any other place that has seats, the grippers slon traditions, the dining hall, and the handbook, and wonder why somebody hasn't done something about prevailing conditions.

When the grippers run out of gripes and complaints, they flake out for a before supper snooze. The time after supper is allotted to hair setting and new complaints. Perhaps someone did get her toes stepped on that day, or see something she didn't like. That furnishes enough material for an hour's griping session.

Day in, day out, they live the same griping, whining, complaining lives. They gripe; they sleep; they set each other's hair.

Week ends come; the grippers go—home, away from the demands of collegiate society. And Sunday night finds them describing each homespun detail of their week end while fellow-grippers who remained at school listen and complain of their plight.

Worthwhile activities ask for the gripper's service. She refuses—she doesn't have time. Circus committees ask for their support. And the grippers complain that Circus is "mickey," but they do nothing to raise its intellectual level.

Ask the gripper to support any activity and the answer is, "I didn't come to college to play."

No. They came to gripe and to sleep.

Has anyone yet signed up to take Mr. Paladini's home economics course?

Miss Barnett's Speech 311 class broadcasted yesterday at 4 p.m. for the first time. Tune in for chat about Longwood activities every Tuesday.

Longwood's first victory over the Richmond Club made hockey history for the college over the week end.

Found: One empty peach wine bottle on the hockey field. Owner may claim mine in the Rotunda office. Whereabouts of contents unknown.

Condolances are extended to Sandra Freedman for injuries sustained while boarding the elevator.

This column is a pioneer effort to brighten the Rotunda. Contributions from the student body are welcome.

—Staff

Sturm To Tread Sawdust As Circus Animal Trainer Parade Marks Start Of Gala Festivities

TRYING HER OUTFIT FOR SIZE brings a grin to the face of new Animal Trainer G. Sturm.

A fine mist of sawdust drifts through the autumn air, the cry of a wild beast resounds, and Ginny Sturm officially becomes Animal Trainer for Circus, 1961.

As animal trainer, Ginny will lead the parade which officially marks the beginning of the Circus festivities on October 28. Directing the parade, which will be highlighted by the area National Guard Color Guard, Ginny will lead the students dressed in their class colors, marching beside their class floats, circus animals, clowns, Circus enthusiasts, and an ensemble composed of members of the Longwood band.

The parade will move down Pine Street to route 460 and proceed along Main Street, circling back to the campus via High Street. Another highlight of the afternoon parade will be found in the colorful equestrians featured this year.

Ginny's reaction to her being selected as Animal Trainer was one of "misbelief and shock." "When they told me I just couldn't believe they were being serious. Then, when it all sank in, I felt a little scared, too. I certainly do feel honored to have been chosen and I hope I can do my best to be a good one."

Last year Ginny was in the Chorus for her class skit, "Lollipop," and worked on the float. She is currently second vice-president of the French Club; secretary of the Newman Club; and activities chairman of Kappa Delta social sorority. Last year she participated in Freshman Production, the water pageant, class hockey, and was a member of House Council.

In addition to her duties in the parade, the Animal Trainer will conduct the show featuring the animals prior to the presentation of class skits in Jarnan Hall beginning at 8 p.m. The evening Circus program will also climax the afternoon festivities as the Ringmaster announces the prize-winning float of the afternoon parade.

At the present time, Circus practices are now underway as each class is busily preparing their skits and designing float ensembles. Still working on promoting 100 per cent class participation, each class urges their members to "please budget their time wisely so that they can keep up with class work and still help with some phase of the activities." Even though many will not be able to be here on Circus weekend itself, there are many important things that must be done prior to the final program.

General chairman for Circus this year is senior Page Tolleson. Mrs. Kathleen Cover is the faculty advisor for the honorary leadership fraternity, Alpha Kappa Gamma, sponsor of the annual college Circus.

Province Officer Visits Delta Nu

Mrs. Lawrence Irwin, province president for Delta Nu chapter of Sigma Kappa social sorority, visited the campus last week.

During her visit, Mrs. Irwin held conferences with chapter officers and with the Dean of Women. She also conducted meetings with the entire chapter during Rush Week.

Mrs. Irwin is from Fort Bragg, North Carolina.

151 Students Pledge Greek Groups As Parties End Formal Rush Week

151 Students pledged one of nine social sororities here Friday, October 13. After parties in the chapter rooms, the pledges and members went to the movies and then had a sing at the College Shop.

Pledging Alpha Gamma Delta were Martha Stewart Bergeron, Marcia Rheta Catoo, Barbara Ellen Cutchin, Donna Leigh Davis, Katherine Ella Dean,

Carolyn Ann Gowen, Miltz Holley, Sharon Page Hollins, Marlene Virginia Keen, and Elizabeth French Lynch. Carol Paxton Macey, Sarah (Continued on page 3)

Entries Requested For Yule Parade

Santa is coming to town! December 8 is the day for the annual Christmas Parade bringing Santa to Farmville. The parade is sponsored by the Farmville Junior Chamber of Commerce. The mile-long parade will travel the length of Main Street.

A number of area high school bands and the Fort Lee Army Band are expected to participate. Various beauty queens from surrounding counties and other beauty queens from Longwood College will take part in this celebration.

For the first time, a prize of fifty dollars is offered for the best float. Floats can be entered by any club, organization, or other interested persons. There are no special rules or regulations concerning the floats in order to give more leeway to participants.

There is no limit as to the number of floats that can be in the parade, as this is going to be the biggest Christmas parade ever in Farmville. Ben Bowers, director of the Christmas Parade Committee said, "We welcome float entries from the college." The date was set early in order that the area college students would be able to see the parade before going home for the holidays.

Mass Media Course Now Offered At LC

By Lewan Rippey

A new course in communications is now offered at Longwood. The course carries two credits and gives the students a general knowledge of mass media such as television, movies, newspapers and their effects on our culture and life.

Meeker To Talk To Conference

Dr. Richard K. Meeker, associate professor of English at Longwood, will address the Virginia Humanities Conference at the College of William and Mary, Saturday, October 21.

The theme of the conference is "Recent Progress in the Humanities." Dr. Meeker will discuss "Recent Progress in the Teaching of English." Other speakers will discuss progress in the other aspects of the humanities.

It also gives a specific knowledge of radio and its techniques.

First Project

The first project of the class is the radio program, Listening at Longwood, which is heard at 4 p.m. Tuesday afternoons. This year the class will be in charge of organizing and planning programs for Listening at Longwood.

Each student is responsible for organizing one of these programs although she does not have to participate on the air.

Schlegel

Betty Ann Atkinson organized the first program. She arranged for Dr. Marvin W. Schlegel, of the history and social science department, to be interviewed on the UN by Jo Ann Cartwright.

Miss Suzanne Barnett, the instructor for the class states the primary purpose of the program is to present a picture of the college to the outside world and to present activities of interest to Longwood students.

—Staff Photo

INN OF THE SIGMA HAPPINESS is portrayed in a rush party by R. Pett, N. McLaughlin, K. Nottingham, V. Johnson, and V. Holden.

The Rotunda

ESTABLISHED NOVEMBER 26, 1920

Published each week during the college year except during holidays and examination period by the students of Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia, Box 168.

Mary Byrd Micou Editor-in-Chief
Ann Agee Managing Editor Susan Edly Business Manager
Donna Humphlett News Editor
Gayle Arns Feature Editor
Lois Peters Sports Editor
Lewann Rippey Exchange Editor
Florence Harard and Linda Sudduth Photography
Flora Hanger Circulation Manager
Miss Mary P. Nichols Faculty Advisor

(Unsigned editorials written by the editor)

Member: Virginia Intercollegiate Press (Rating First Class), Columbia Scholastic Press Association (Rating First Place), Intercollegiate Press.

NEWS STAFF: Neal Banks, Assistant Managing Editor; Mary Beth Olson, Assistant Feature Editor; Sue Beardmore, Assistant Sports Editor; Doris Smith, Desk Editor.

Entered as second class matter at the Post Office at Farmville, Virginia, under the Act of Congress on March 3, 1914, Represented for national advertising by the National Advertising Service. Printed by the Farmville Herald.

Library Manners

Like it or not, inconsiderate and careless behavior seems to be a trait of campus living. Such behavior is reflected in regard to the library as well as in other phases of student activity. Although the problems students create for themselves and for each other in the library are comparatively few, with a little thought and consideration they may be further minimized.

One problem encountered is the mutilation of books and magazines. Often pictures, maps, or entire articles have been removed from library materials destroying their value forever. As humorous as it may appear, another aspect of the library problem concerns people who hide things. Although concealing books within the library itself appears harmless, other students are nevertheless prevented access to such material. A more serious and unfair act is the removal of books—especially reserve books—without checking them out at the desk.

The permanent loss of books is slight, but the problem of overdue books is an everpresent, and usually needless, one. Some people seem to think that the library profits from the fines charged. This is not true; to the contrary, the inconvenience for other students and the additional work for the library staff far outweighs the two cents per day fine.

Paying a fine or only occasionally violating library policy in no way reduces the responsibility each person should assume in a college community. Hampering the usual circulation of a library book is actually just as selfish and inconsiderate an act as is shoving an elderly person aside—or pushing in front of a line in the rec.

CAMPUS FEES COMMITTEE. J. H. Wamsley, M. H. Binger, B. Wilson, and M. Vaughan mull over 61-62 budget.

Machines, Snack Bar Add To Campus Fees

By Pat Rea

The quarter made a tinkling sound as it dropped into the washing machine. As the machine began to fill with water one student turned to a companion and said, "Hey Judi, did you ever wonder where all these quarters go? Do you suppose the housemother pockets them or something?"

Activity Fund

Judi, obviously impressed, replied that she didn't know and suggested that they ask Susie Smith, a senior. So Susie explained to them how the money from both the washing machines and the dryers go into the Activity fund which provides money for all campus—wide organizations. "Of course this isn't the only way the Campus Fees Committee collects money," Susie said. "A portion of the snack bar profits, vending machine profits, admission fees to various plays and programs which are paid by Farmville townspeople, plus the annual twenty dollars each Longwood student pays is submitted to the fund."

The above characters are fictitious but have you ever wondered just what is done with the nickels and dimes and quarters you spend every day in "the machines?"

Mr. Jacob H. Wamsley has provided a list of organizations which benefit from the activity fund. They are the Athletic Association, FBLA, French and Spanish Clubs, freshman, sophomore, junior, and senior classes, Orchestra, Home Economics club, Lyceum programs, the Music Education National Conference, Longwood Band, 120 Club and the Longwood Forum.

All honorary fraternities are provided for and they include Boere Eh Thorn, Lynchos, Kappa Delta Pi, Pi Gamma Mu, and Pi Delta Epsilon. Also, the Rotunda, the Colonnade, and the Virginian receive aid.

Mr. Wamsley also submitted the Statement of Policy of the Campus Fees Committee which is stated below.

"The Campus Fees Committee, recently created by the President of Longwood College, declares the following to be its statement of policy:

"1. That in so far as practical the campus fee which is charged each student each year will be distributed among the activities on the campus in such a way that the student will receive during her four student years approximate benefits equal to the amount paid by her during the period as campus fees.

"2. That we will encourage current and economical expenditure of funds appropriated to various organizations.

"3. That we will insist upon uniform and accurate record-keeping procedures in all organizations to which money will be appropriated.

"4. That we will discourage the retention of surplus funds in organizational treasuries.

"5. That funds under the control of this committee which are not derived directly from the students on a fee basis will be used in a manner deemed most reasonable by this committee after careful study and consideration of individual requests.

"6. That this statement of policy will be approved by the President and that changes in this policy or development of new policy will be subject to the review of the President."

Two students, selected from the junior and senior classes, are on the committee. They are appointed by the presidents of those two classes.

It's A Good Thing To Give Flowers From

COLLIN'S FLORIST
Phone EX 2-4154

Astronomers Ponder Steady-State Theory

(Editor's Note: This is the second half of a feature on the astronomer's view of the universe, reprinted from the New York Times. It is printed as a preface to the Shapley lectures.)

To account for this discrepancy, Abbe Lemaitre has postulated that the presently observed rate of expansion between the galaxies or clusters of galaxies may apply only to the present time. The rate may have been greater in the past. Therefore the true age of the universe may be considerably more than it appears to be from the observed present rate.

The great difficulty in the opposite view—the "steady-state" concept of the universe—is that it theoretically requires the manufacture of new matter from nothing. If the universe is forever expanding, yet forever the same density, an equal number must form. This would violate the law of the conservation of matter and energy that scientists have long considered established.

Protagonists of the steady-state view, however, point out that relativity has enforced revision of other seemingly irrevocable laws. Furthermore, according to Dr. Fred Hoyle of Cambridge University, England, who was at Berkeley, it is necessary to produce only one atom of hydrogen in a bucketful of space every ten million years to make up for the expansion.

Looking at the Past

The most widely discussed tests of the rival cosmologies at the California meetings were those based on the assumption that if the universe is aging, we should be able to see it in a more youthful form by looking far enough into the past.

Some, for example, believe the elliptical galaxies are a senile form. And galaxies of other configurations, such as ours, are believed to be a typical spiral galaxy which must be younger. But observations are difficult for the most distant galaxies observable visually are mere pinpoints and their structures cannot be determined.

A new approach that has produced results which some regard as damaging to the "steady-state" theory, is the analysis of radio signals from distant objects.

Unfortunately, the radio spectrum is not divided into emission lines whose shifts toward the red can be used as a gauge of distance. To get around this Dr. Martin Ryle of Cambridge University has for several years been analyzing, in terms of relative strengths, the sources of radio "noise" that dot the sky.

He assumes that the weaker a source the farther it is away. Furthermore, the weaker sources should be more numerous, because the field of view expands with distance.

If the universe is thinning out as required by the "big bang" concept, one would expect to see a still greater density of radio sources at great distance (far in the past). This is what Dr. Ryle reports he has found.

The Other View
Backers of a "steady-state" universe, however, question whether the weak sources observed by Dr. Ryle are really very far away. Dr. Hoyle notes that only twenty or thirty radio sources have been identified optically so that their distances can be measured. And he cites recent observations made at the University of Manchester with antennas some 100 miles apart.

By a closed television circuit between the two points it has been possible to make phase comparisons of incoming radio waves and thus determine the width of the radio sources. Three sources were found to be very narrow and therefore presumably far away. A large percentage, however, were large and irregularly shaped, indicating that they are comparatively near.

Despite this challenge to Dr. Ryle's results, the "steady state" team admits that it is fighting an uphill battle. And, Dr. Bondi says, they are going to be fighting it for a long time to come.

Student Revolt Brings Criticism

Dear Editor,

As members of this student body, we would like to express our disappointment with the so-called "Mature college women" that constitute the population of this school.

We are referring to the reaction of the student body upon the announcement of the attire for Annual pictures. We refer not only to the reaction in the dining hall, but to signs seen and remarks overheard around campus.

The fact that many students disagreed with the decision of the Annual staff does not bother us. It is the students' right to do so. What we are concerned about is the way they reacted.

Instead of bringing constructive criticism to those concerned, the students resorted to childish actions such as printing signs and pasting them around school. This is neither a mature nor constructive way to show disapproval.

If the student body chooses immature actions, immature results will follow. The only way to obtain mature results is to act accordingly.

Thank you,
Three Seniors

See . . .
Longwood Charms
Gold Filled
Ten Karat
Sterling
at
MARTIN
THE JEWELER

Birthday Cakes
Made To Order
Call

LEESE'S PASTRY SHOP
Main Street
Phone EX 2-5154

LC Appetites Compete Pound For Pound

With Diet Of Hampden-Sydney Students

By Pat Rea

Did you know that the chef at the Boy Scout Jamboree in Colorado Springs, Colorado, last summer was none other than the chef who prepares Longwood's meals? That the strawberry short cake, butterscotch brownies and "homemade rolls" are the results of the talents of the top rated bakers employed by the Slater System?

That before the Slater System, meals were prepared in ovens which were heated by coal? That the modern stove can bake as many as 78 pies at once? That thousands of dollars were spent on the recently added dishwashing equipment?

Pound for Pound

And did you know that Phillip the baker can prepare enough doughnuts in three hours for every student here? That pound for pound Longwood girls eat as much as Hampden-Sydney boys (anyone for dieting)?

By now you know that Longwood College maintains one of the most modern kitchens in the state of Virginia and that it has been and will continue to be improved.

Several physical education majors toured the dining hall last week and were impressed by their observations.

Sandy Phlegar, Trina Childress and Faye Ripley all agreed that more people should be given the opportunity to see for themselves how well organized the kitchen is as far as employees and equipment are concerned.

Class Project

Someone also mentioned that perhaps freshmen could tour the dining hall but Faye had a better idea. "The Junior and senior health classes could do it as a class project and by then the freshmen would appreciate it more. I've eaten in many colleges in the state of Virginia but none can compare with Longwood."

"Food at Longwood is much better than we are willing to admit. We have to complain about something so what better scapegoat than the dining hall?" replied Virginia Parker. "I'd like to thank Mr. Clark for the opportunity to see the way our food is prepared."

Susan Coe and Betty Lou Dunn decided that they were fascinated by the machines which make the rolls and doughnuts more than anything else. "It was amazing how well they operate on such a large scale," one echoed the other.

Morag Nocher summed it up this way: "I was so busy trying to switch a piece of gingerbread that I didn't pay very close attention but it was quite interesting."

Spear To Serve As AAUW Head

Miss R. Jenelle Spear, assistant dean of women, is now serving as president of the Farmville branch of the American Association of University Women.

Formerly vice-president of the association, Miss Spear assumed the presidency when Miss Mary A. F. Kumble, the elected president, accepted a teaching position outside the Farmville area.

DINING HALL SPORTS NEW EQUIPMENT.

Week Brings Double Win For LC Hockey Players

It was a busy weekend for field hockey on Longwood's campus as the Blue 'N' Whites were matched against Westhampton College, Friday October 13, and the following day the Longwood team met The Richmond Club Team, a semi-professional group of players.

Friday the thirteenth proved to be a lucky day for our second team as they easily captured an undisputed victory over the Westhampton second team. Although the opponents repeatedly tried to push our forwards out of their scoring area, the game was predominantly an offensive one for Longwood. The final score was 3-0 as Longwood claimed another victory for her record.

Playing in the game were Susan Coe, Ellen Brady, Cheramy Howe, Brenda Isabel, Earline Lang, Shirley Metcalf, Joy Moore, Lois Obenshain, Sharon Sawyer, Barbara Stewart, Gay Taylor, Peggy Waldo, Susie

Waters, and Judy Wilson.

Saturday brought with it a cold, driving rain which did not prevent the Longwood Varsity from meeting the Richmond Club. A small group of hearty spectators hovering under brightly colored umbrellas watched as the first goal was scored against the powerful Richmond Club. Although many of the players resembled "drowned rats", the entire game was beautifully played by both sides. In the last remaining minutes of the game, Longwood made a final offensive push for the goal and succeeded in scoring to win the game 2-1.

The starting eleven for the Blue 'N' Whites was composed of Flossie Barnard, Trina Childress, Betty Lou Dunn, Janice Harris, Linda Hatch, Barbara Gray Martin, Morag Nocher, Sandy Phlegar, Joy Ripley, and Jo Savage. Substituting in the second half of the game was Peggy Waldo. This Saturday Longwood is pitted against the Colonels on our home field, and everyone is invited to come out and watch another exciting game.

Last Second Goal Brings Citadel Win

By Lois Peters

William and Mary, on the verge of their second upset win in a row, went down to a 1-0 defeat on the Citadel's last second successful field goal attempt. Only seconds away from being heroes before a large homecoming crowd, Bill Gilgo kicked the Indians' hope away with his field goal from 27 yards out.

Death Valley proved to be the death of Homecoming Saturday as Western Maryland chalked up a 1-0 victory over the Tigers in the annual Dad's Day game. Playing an almost entirely defensive game, the Tigers threatened seriously only twice.

The W&L - Randolph-Macon game which was billed to be a sixty-minute affair turned into a complete rout for W&L. The Generals hit paydirt three times in the first quarter on their way to a lopsided 43-0 victory. This victory was W&L's thirteenth decision without a loss over a three year span.

Sam Fischer, Virginia's senior quarterback, snaked over for the Cavaliers' first touchdown and passed for the second in leading UVA to a 14-7 win over VMI's Keydets. Fischer also saved the game for Virginia with his end zone interception in VMI's last bid for victory.

Halfback Roger Holdinsky tore through Pitt's defense and scored two touchdowns as West Virginia turned back Pitt 30-6 in an upset win.

Charge Accounts

Invited . . .

See Longwood Jewelry at

LONGWOOD
JEWELERS

Southside Sundry Co.

Film Developed And

Printed Oversize

8 Exposures ..... 39

12 Exposures ..... 53

Come in Today!

NEWMAN'S

MEN'S SHOP

Traditional Styles

111 Main Street

Farmville, Va.

See Our

Ladies' Sportswear

GETTING DRY AFTER PLAYING during Saturday's rain is J. Talbott, '61 graduate now with the Richmond Club.

Parker, Taylor Pilot LC Varsity Hockey

By Sue Beardmore

A senior Physical Education major, Virginia Parker, and a sophomore Physical Education major, Gay Taylor, are varsity hockey managers for the 1961 season.

Virginia, sometimes called "Red," lives in Saluda, Virginia. She served as varsity hockey manager her freshman year, is a member of the A.A. Council, SEA, Y.W.C.A., plays varsity hockey and basketball, is President of the Monogram Club, and was a recipient of a white blazer.

For the past two summers Virginia has taught hockey and swimming at Kenwood Camp situated in the Berkshire Mountains in Connecticut. One can usually see "Red" watching the late, late show, but she also enjoys a camping, reading good books in her busy agenda. She has recently pledged Alpha Gamma Delta Sorority, serves as Secretary of Orchestra, is a member of the A.A. Council and Y.W.C.A. Dancing and collecting cups and saucers from the different states are her favorite pastimes.

Junior, Laurene Hamlet and Sophomore, Susan Waters fill the position of class hockey managers. They work together to insure that each person has the required eight practices which is needed for participation in a class sport.

Laurence is a Home Economics major from Phenix, Virginia. "Lars" is very active in all class and school activities. She is social co-chairman of the Y.W.C.A. Historian of the Granddaughters Club, and a member of the Baptist Student Union. "Lars" plays class books, and sewing. If you have ever wondered who's responsible for the clean, neat varsity hockey uniforms—It's Sophomore Gay Taylor. Gay collects the uniforms and makes sure that they are laundered properly. Even though she's a member of the varsity hockey and basketball teams, Gay still finds time to include other activities and enjoys sewing and drawing.

CLASS HOCKEY MANAGERS, L. Hamlet and S. Waters watch as G. Taylor and V. Parker check varsity schedule.

An Occupational Therapy major from Roanoke, Susie Waters is also a very active girl. She enjoys dancing and in her spare time sews. Susie is a member of the A.A. Council, Sigma Kappa Sorority, plays varsity hockey and is Vice President of Orchestra.

Students Pledge Nine Sororities, Rush Week Ends

(Continued from page 1)

Frances Ogilvie, Betty Ann Parks, Judith Pradel, Lynn Ann Schaefer, Betty Ann Sharpe, Norita Hill Sizer, Gaynelle Thomas Taylor, Helen Susanne Tucker, Margaret Irving Waldo, Carolyn Lee Wall, and Anna Raye White also pledged Alpha Gam.

Alpha Sigma Alpha pledges include Sandra Leigh Crone, Joyce Anne Cundiff, Katherine Shearer Ebert, Brenda Louise Garren, Pamela Jane Gustafson, and Hy-lah Margaret Haile. Other pledges were Carolyn Paige Jamison, Shirley Marie Moody, Ingrida Maria Ruff, Brenda Lee Shackelford, and Alta Rooth Stricklin.

Alpha Sigma Tau pledges were Constance Jane Birch, Meredith Cato, Beverly Carole Dowdy, Anne Marie Haley, Kitty Belle Martin, Linda Leigh Old, Alice Faye Payne, and Ann Jennette Persak. Lydia Walton Royster, Marian Alice Russ, Margaret Elizabeth Shepherd, Ann Terrie Swann, Zoe Thompson Tapp, and Marjorie Ann Twilley also pledged Zeta.

Delta Zeta took in Jane Frances Bryan, Patricia Ann Bryan, Thelma Kay Calhoun, Barbara Louise Ennis, Linda Joliffe Everly, Frances Ann Hill, Valerie Ann Leese, Joyce Carol Lunsford, Eleanor Linda Ohi, and Margaret Bradford Oliver. Also pledging were Joyce Marie Baskin, Patricia Rand Sadler, Suzanne Louise Spellman, Christine Carol Young, and Martha Lee Young.

Pledging Kappa Delta were Mary Snyder Applegate, Betty Flo Biddlecomb, Mary Dixon Bodine, Barbara Clevenger, Judith Marie Cox, Mary Lee Densmore, Martha Sue Garrett, Lovey Ann Gilchrist, Donna Kay Harrell, Diane Lillian Kersay, Jean Louise Leary, Anita Pea McLemore, and Frances Lander Pegram. Other KD pledges included Mina Butler Postlewait, Jean Embrey Roman, Patricia

Reece Rowe, Nancy Glenn Ruckman, Charlotte Embler Sammis, Virginia Lee Starkey, Mary Scott Sykes, and Diana DeSaussure Upshur.

Phi Mu pledges were Mary Lee Barnes, Betty Jane Camp, Charlotte Ellen Garner, Judith Leslie Ivy, Gloria Jean Kafer, Frances Elizabeth Lee, Lynn Ellen McCutchen, Susan Myrtle Mithrop, and Diane Jean Myrtle. Hilda Gray Reeves, Janet Ann Sidel, Sandra Kay Springer, Carolyn Lee Stephenson, and Betty Gene Tate also pledged Phi Mu.

Sigma Kappa's pledges include Mary Alice Way Barr, Elizabeth Susan Brittingham, Mary Jane Brittingham, Catherine Westbrook Cobb, Emily Tinsley Crump, Ann Baker Garrett, Patricia Anne Gray, Patricia Lynn Guerin, Leila Sue Houser, Cheryl Lee Howe, Joan Arthur Meadows, Faye Cecil Messick, and Kathleen Natalie Miller. Other Sigma KAP pledges were Sue Virginia Moseley, Martha Frances Mulre, Carol Jean Schrieker, Phyllis Anne Shackelford, Ann Rodgers Sink, Charlotte Jet Stalon, Jacqueline Marie Walker, and Sandra Waugh.

Sigma Sigma Sigma pledges were Janice Carol Blowe, Patricia Arleen Brooks, Kathryn Ann Bullington, Donna Lee Clark, Nancy Lee Connell, Betty Marshall Hall, Susan Scott Harwood, Susan Tucker Hawks, Ann Marie Hogan, Sharon Lucille Howell, Nancy Gay Knewstep, Rita Lee Mahan, and Jolene Tate Poffenberger. Jeri Carlyle Rawles, Anthony Martha Raymond, Diane Esta Sturtevant, Mary Scott Whitehead, Sandra Nichole Williams, Sandra Leigh Wise, Linda Anne Woodall also pledged Tri Sigma.

Pledging Zeta Tau Alphas were Ann Dudley Brooks, Maria Arthur Costan, Jeannette Denton, Emily Katherine Dodge, Susan Victoria Durham, and Cynthia Todd Gray. Also pledging were Linda Day Harrison, Frances Ednamas Hudson, Carol Ann Moyer, Joanna Grace Otto, Lola Jean Quick, Jo Anne Stack, and Mary Stratton Walker.

IN THE COLLEGE BRAND ROUND-UP

PRIZES:

1st Prize — SYLVANIA PORTABLE TV

2nd Prize — POLAROID CAMERA KIT

WHO WINS:

1st Prize will be awarded to group, fraternity, sorority or individual accumulating highest number points.

2nd Prize will be awarded to group, fraternity, sorority or individual accumulating the second highest number points.

RULES:

- Contest open to all students.
- Each empty package submitted on Parliament or Alpine will have a value of 5 points. Each empty package submitted on Phillip Morris Regular or Commander will have a value of 10 points. Each package submitted on Marlboro will have a value of 1 point.
- Closing date December 8, 4:00 p.m. Turn in wrappers to Pete Hatcher. Located at THE REC, Longwood College.
- Entries will not be accepted after closing time. Empty packages must be submitted in Bundles of 50. Separate your 5 and 10 point packages.

Get on the BRANDWAGON ... It's lots of fun!

State Theatre FARMVILLE, VA.

Show Times

SUNDAYS:

1 Afternoon Show Only

2:30 P.M.

2 Evening Shows

7:15 and 9:15

MONDAYS THRU FRIDAYS

Afternoons: 2:15

Evenings: 7:00 & 9:00

SATURDAYS:

2 Afternoon Shows

1:15 and 3:15

2 Evening Shows

7:00 and 9:00

ENDS WEEK—OCT. 18

OCTOBER 15 THRU 24

Rock Hudson / Gine Lollobrigida

Sandra Dee / Bobby Darin

Walter Slezak

TECHNICOLOR

LOVED BY WOMEN

AT LONGWOOD THEATRE, 1111 MAIN STREET, FARMVILLE, VA. 22420

A PRESENTATION OF

Television Entertainer Advocates TV Criticism

Danny Kaye thinks that television criticism should be taught on every college and university campus in the country.

"Nearly everybody takes his turn at belting TV," he says. "At least we might raise the level of criticism by offering degrees in the subject."

Danny as no beef with the specific, constructive criticism of television to which both the critics and public are entitled. But he thinks it's time to stop the generalized knocking of the medium, which reached even into official quarters when the FCC chairman recently characterized television as a "waste-land."

"No doubt much of TV is a wasteland," Kaye agrees. "Yet for the selective viewer, it can be not only entertaining but enlightening."

Danny cited one week's Los Angeles TV logs in support of his position.

"Every weekday on Los Angeles television, college courses are given for credit," he points out.

KAYE ON COLLEGE—Danny Kaye believes there's a need for courses in television criticism in the nation's colleges, since he feels critics are influential in bettering the program content of the medium. His 1961 "Danny Kaye Show" will be presented on CBS-TV for General Motors on Monday evening, November 6.

"I'm presently watching a USC course on Ernest Hemingway's works. But since I never got past PS 149 and Thomas Jefferson High School in New York, there's not much point in my earning credits for the course."

During the one week of TV programming he picked at random, Kaye also pointed out such worthwhile viewing as an Adlai Stevenson report, a World Concert show with Arthur Rubinstein, a chronicle on the life of Ernest Hemingway, documentary on Radioactive Medicine, a "Brandenburg Gate" drama.

"Sure, there are also hours of violence, old movies, giveaway shows, reruns, and reruns of reruns," he says. "But it's easy to escape viewing a worthless or 'undesirable' program. Every TV set is equipped with a simple on-off knob."

Certain entertainers who stayed strictly away from television during its formative years are not entirely blameless, Danny admits. He mentions one performer of some prominence who publicly doubted that he would "ever" appear on TV. "That was me," says Danny cheerfully.

What changed his mind? Obviously, he thinks much more of the medium today. Also, he has a sponsor (General Motors) for whom he does only one 60-minute show per year, with complete creative freedom and with as much time for preparation and rehearsal as Danny deems necessary. The second annual "Danny Kaye Show" starts Monday, November 6, from 9 to 10 p.m. EST.

Whatever the attacks on television, Danny is sure it will continue to grow, just as the motion picture has withstood similar raps. "For many years, Hollywood was criticized for allegedly catering to a twelve-year-old audience mentality," he states. "Now, the industry is condemned by many individuals and pressure groups for producing so-called 'adult' films aimed at, say, the college age level. But good pictures are still being made."

"Why, Hollywood has even survived the publicity annually given to the Harvard Lampoon's ten 'worst' movie selections. A comedian by trade, Danny Kaye is also known to be a serious-minded citizen who is not at all facetious in the suggestion that TV criticism be taught at high academic levels."

"Many of the future creators of television products will come from our colleges and universities," he says. "And certainly many of our best-informed viewers will come off the campus. Let's hope it can also be a source of qualified critics."

Teacher Exams Given By ETS

The National Teacher Examinations, prepared and administered annually by Educational Testing Service, will be given at more than two hundred testing centers throughout the United States on Saturday, February 10, 1962.

At the one-day testing session a candidate may take the Common Examinations, which include tests in Professional Information, General Culture, English Expression, and Non Verbal Reasoning; and one or two of thirteen Optional Examinations designed to demonstrate mastery of subject matter to be taught. The college which a candidate is attending, or the school system in which he is seeking employment, will advise him whether he should take the National Teacher Examinations and which of the Optional Examinations to select.

A Bulletin of Information (in which an application is inserted) describing registration procedure may be obtained from college officials, school superintendents, or directly from the National Teacher Examinations, Educational Testing Service, Princeton, New Jersey. Completed applications, accompanied by proper examination fees, will be accepted by the ETS office during November and December, and early in January so long as they are received before January 12, 1962.

Come in and See
the new Shirts & Sweaters
at the
DOROTHY MAY
SHOP

WESTHAMPTON COACH, August Chapman enjoys after-game tea served by Joy Moore. (story on page 3).

Longwood Music Department Offers Christmas Workshop

On October 21, the Music Department at Longwood College is offering a Christmas Choral Workshop. This Workshop is aimed at non-professional people who do music work in the churches. Letters have been sent by the Longwood Music Department to Episcopal, Methodist, Presbyterian, and Catholic churches all over the state. The principal participants, according to Miss Joanne Currutt of the Music Department, will be from a fifty mile radius around Farmville.

The main objective of this Workshop is to give short lessons in practical problems any church musician would encounter in the choice and playing of music for the Advent and Christmas period. Miss Currutt said that the music studied would be easy, to moderately difficult.

There will be music exhibits from four of the finest publishers in America. Miss Currutt says, "We hope to influence the standard of church music for Christmas. We will try to give these church players more ideas."

Tentative Schedule
A tentative schedule of the Workshop is as follows: 9 a.m. to 10 a.m. Christmas Repertoire for the Organist (Miss Joanne Currutt), 10 a.m. to 10:30 a.m. coffee break and time to see the music exhibit, 10:30 to 11:15 a.m. Demonstration of Solo Songs for Christmas (Mr. James McCombs), 11:15 a.m. to 12 noon The Art of Hymn Playing (two groups: Church Pianists; Church Organists), 12 to 1:30 p.m. lunch in the Tea Room, 1:30 to 2:15 p.m. Chanting in the Church (Mr. Sterling Adams), 2:15 to 3:30 p.m. Christmas Music for Junior and Senior Chorus (Dr. John Molnar), 3:30 p.m., tea-time for weary workshopers.

Miss Currutt says, "This Workshop is offered as a service to the whole community, which all Longwood is a part of. Any Longwood girls who are interested are invited to come."

'Queens' From All Classes

Jo Savage, a senior from Danville, will represent Longwood College at the Harvest Bowl, October 21 as Longwood's Harvest Princess. The Harvest Princess is chosen by an administrative body.

Jo says, "I am looking forward to it—it should be an exciting weekend."

In addition to serving Longwood as president of student government, Jo is a member of the varsity hockey team, Alpha Sigma Tau social sorority, and Alpha Kappa Gamma.

Three freshmen represented Longwood College in the 1961 Tobacco Festival in Richmond. Linda Fore from Brookneer, represented her home town at the Tobacco Festival. Linda was sponsored by the Brookneer Junior Women's Club in this beauty contest.

Linda graduated from William Campbell High School. While in high school, she was co-captain of the cheering squad, co-editor of the year book, SCA secretary, Beta Club secretary and choral club pianist.

During the talent show Friday, Linda played the piano, and in connection with the piece she played, did an oil painting.

Linda is no stranger to beauty contests, having been Homecoming Queen and May Queen while in high school.

In speaking of the Tobacco Festival, Linda said, "I had a wonderful time and I wish every girl could have the opportunity to go." Linda is majoring in English and plans to teach.

An honor graduate from Prince Edward Academy, eighteen year old Jo Leslie Andrews represented Farmville at the Tobacco Festival. To quote Jo Leslie, "It was a breathtaking experience for us princesses. The formal balls, the dinners, the parades, the music, the wonderful people, already seem to have been but a dream. I lost the contest for 'Queen of the Tobacco' but what a way to lose!"

Suzanne Tucker, a freshman, left for the Tobacco Festival Tuesday, September 27. Suzanne is from Chatham. She won the Miss Pittsylvania County title on June 17, representing the Chatham Lions Club.

Graduating from Chatham High School in June of 1961, Suzanne held many honors while in high school. She was a majorette, president of the Tri-Hi-Y and won the Tri-Hi-Y Good Attitude Award during her senior year. She was also assistant business manager of her high school annual, belonged to the Beta Club, and was president of the French Club.

During the talent show Friday night, Suzanne did a baton twirling routine and danced. She was of the Tobacco Festival. "It was go-go all the time but really worth it." Suzanne is majoring in French and plans to teach.

Katherine Dean, also a freshman holds the titles, "Miss Rockingham County," "Miss Elkton Fire Queen" and first runner up to "Miss State Fire Queen."

Kathy is from Elkton, and was graduated from Elkton High School where she participated as a varsity cheerleader, in varsity basketball, and as assistant editor of the year book.

Kathy is an elementary education major and plans to teach. The "Miss Northern Neck Fair" title was captured by Betty Flo Biddecomb, an eighteen year old freshman at Longwood.

Betty Flo hails from Lillian, where she was selected "Miss Flame" at the annual Fireman's Festival. She was then entered in the "Miss Northern Neck Fair" contest where her competition consisted of 37 girls from five counties.

Last week, she journeyed to the State Fair, where she was one of the five finalists for "Miss Virginia State Fair." Betty Flo also plans to major in elementary education.

Suzanne Ballard, Queen Nemagold, is eighteen years old and from Willis Wharf. She graduated from Northampton High School, where she was selected to enter the Nemagold contest. The contest was sponsored by Eastern Virginia and Eastern Maryland for the promotion of Nemagolds, which are large sweet potatoes, common to the Eastern Shore area.

Suzanne was crowned by Joe Dimaggio at Onancock. She and her two princesses, one from Maryland and one from Virginia, will reign for the coming year.

Suzanne recently visited the Governor and made appearances on television stations for Nemagold publicity. She is an English elementary education major.

Last spring, a beauty contest was sponsored by the Festival of Five Flags celebration in all eastern and southern coast colleges. Dobby Mohr, a senior from Lynchburg, won the Miss Longwood College title. Dobby said about this honor, "I could have died; I couldn't believe it."

Dobby received her highly honored and coveted title, Miss Congeniality, June 11. She received a sterling bowl and $250 for this honor. Dobby said that she was so very honored and flattered to have been chosen by the girls, and that nothing could have come as more of a surprise.

For A Slim & Slender
Figure; Stop At
The S and S Contour
Shop
For Lovely Skin and Relaxation
Steam Baths ..... $1.50
Slenderizing Program
$12.50 Month
EX 2-5373

Need A Study Break?

Visit Your

COLLEGE SNACK BAR

for a

Special Treat

HOLLYWOOD
BEAUTY COLLEGE
102 N. Main
EX 2-9091

Shampoo Set ..... $1.00
Hair Cut ..... $1.00
Perm. Wave ..... $5.00
(Includes Shampoo, Set, & Cut)

Work done by advanced students in latest fashions

For Art Supplies
and Books
Visit Your CAMPUS BOOK STORE
Today

COPYRIGHT © 1961, THE COCA-COLA COMPANY. COCA-COLA AND COKE ARE REGISTERED TRADEMARKS

OPEN WIDE and SAY A-H-H-H!
Get that refreshing new feeling with Coke!

Bottled under authority of The Coca-Cola Company by

Lynchburg Bottling Company, Lynchburg, Va.

The Notunda

VOLUME XLI

Longwood College, Farmville, Va., October 25, 1961

No. 4

Around The Campi

WHAT TO DO? When you're sitting in the parlor talking to your boyfriend from Hampden-Sydney and you hear someone screaming your name from second floor. Knowing instinctively that it has to be a phone call you debate for a moment about what to do. Should you ignore it and pretend you didn't hear? Should you race upstairs leaving bewildered date behind? Should you say naively, "Did you hear that?"

Assuming (for no particular reason) that you select the latter of the three alternatives let's suppose that your date replies in a quite intelligent voice, "Uh, sounds like someone calling you, doesn't it?"

"Yes, it does." Now you race upstairs leaving bewildered date behind. Upstairs you discover a long distance phone call from the boy you met at the beach. Quite happy that he has called you, can't seem to enjoy the conversation for wondering what date in the parlor is thinking. At last you return to parlor expecting date to be gone, but no — oh, good, he's there — but you can't enjoy the conversation for thinking about the phone call. The vicious circle.

In Farmville the morning temperature is forty degrees. In the afternoon the temperature is eighty degrees and in the evening the temperature is sixty degrees. How do we dress? Simple, we change clothes three times a day.

Wondering what to give Mom for Christmas? See Mr. Merritt in the Science Building. He will be glad to talk to you about preparing a potted plant of some description for a gift or for your own pleasure.

Last look!

—Staff

White Elephants Find New Homes Among Citizens

By Ginny Gilmore

Longwood said goodbye to some old familiar objects as obsolete school property was sold recently at public auction. The auction was held at the Old Knitting Mill on the corner of Race and Redford Streets on the fourteenth of this month.

Among the items sold were old beds without mattresses, which netted from four to five dollars each. Other useful items bought were old roasting pans from the Tea Room, which are now serving as dog dishes.

Dumbbells Sold
More decorative objects that were bought were little white crockery pitchers from the Dining Hall, which were sold to some ladies of the town for flower arrangements. Old wall telephones have now found a new use as planters in some Farmville homes. Two old wooden dumbbells from the Physical Education Department and three unusable pianos, selling at 13, 19 and 25 dollars provided do-it-yourself projects for more ambitious citizens.

Buyers Include Faculty
One Longwood faculty member came away from the auction with the cut-out sections of the lap boards used for testing purposes in Jarman. Other items sold were a vegetable dehydrator, selling for two dollars, and an old-fashioned water cooler for three dollars.

Civic and Money Making
The auction served both as a civic venture and a money making project. The gross profit for the auction came to $439.36. The profit went to the General Fund of Virginia and was credited to Longwood. Auctioneer W. W. Dickerson donated his services and credited his commission to the Memorial Recreation Association of Farmville who sponsored the project.

Lockers

The students who have gymnasiums in lockers in the locker room are asked by the Physical Education Department to clean them out by October 31. Those lockers are needed for the Tidewater Hockey Tournament.

Wilson To Speak At Appomattox

Dr. Ruth B. Wilson, dean of women at Longwood College, will address the Appomattox County Home Demonstration Club at their twenty-fifth anniversary achievement day program, Saturday, October 21.

The program will be held at Appomattox Elementary School and will begin at 11 a.m.

Players To Present 'Admirable Crichton'

On November 16, 17, and 18, the Longwood Players in conjunction with the Hampden-Sydney Jongleurs will present their fall play, "The Admirable Crichton" in Jarman Auditorium.

"The Admirable Crichton" is a comedy, written by the English author, James Barrie. It is a social satire depicting a house of English aristocracy of early 20th century. The head of the house, Lord Loam, believes that everyone should be equal, and this leads to an unforeseen twist of events which adds new comedy to the play.

Cab Venable will play the part of the butler, Crichton. Ed Baker will portray the Honorable Ernest Woolley. Lady Agatha, Lady Catherine, and Lady Mary Lennox are portrayed by Dorothy Cox, Mary Lynn Lander, and Mary Beth Olson, respectively. Vince Montaigner will play

Ringmaster White Reigns With Top Hat For Crown

—Staff Photo
PREPARING FOR HER ROLE as Ringmaster for Circus is Alice White.

Lynchburg Sponsors Limelitters Concert

The Lynchburg College Student Government Association will sponsor the Limelitters, new young recording artists, in a concert Saturday, November 4 at 9 p.m. in the Lynchburg City Armory.

According to planning chairman, Dawson Watkins, the concert is being given to raise funds for international health and educational projects. Tickets are $2.50 per person and may be purchased from Lynchburg College student cabinet members or the following business firms in Lynchburg: Henry Ross, L. Oppelman's, S. H. Franklin, S. O. Fisher, Phillips Brothers, Miller and Rhoades and

(Continued on page 4)

Skit, Parade Entries

Ready As Day Nears

By Ann Agee

With the cry of, "La-dies and gentlemen . . ." which has been the characteristic invitation to Circus since its institution, Alice White will officially welcome alumnae and parents to Circus, 1961.

Alice, a junior from Suffolk, is this year president of her class, and was vice-president of her Freshman class. She has been active throughout school, participating in activities of the Longwood Players, the Colonnade staff, Alpha Sigma Alpha sorority, her class hockey team for two years, Freshman Circus co-chairman, and Freshman and Sophomore Productions.

On Saturday afternoon, October 28 at 3 p.m., the annual parade will be held, headed by the Ringmaster and Animal Trainer, who will be followed by the class float entries, prizes for which are to be announced that night.

Beginning at 8 p.m., the theme of "Sawdust in My Shoes" will pervade the atmosphere from the opening of the curtain for the skits, to the sale of the final hot dog on the Midway.

After the Ringmaster's welcome, the clowns will perform comic gymnastics, and then the traditional Circus animals will come out, subdued by their master, Animal Trainer Ginny Sturm. Things will get under way with the presentation of the various classes' skit offerings, each of which will last fifteen minutes, and will be judged on originality and class participation.

Following the announcement of the winning skit and float, Circus-spirit-infused parents and friends will be directed to the Midway, located in the Main

'Balance Sheet' Publishes First Patrick Article

By Ann Carroll

"Develop More Than Speed In Typewriting" is the title given to an article in the October, 1961 issue of The Balance Sheet, a magazine for business men and women. This article was written by Mr. Alfred L. Patrick, a new member of Longwood College's Business Education department.

First Article
In his first published article, Mr. Patrick explains that he believes more than speed and accuracy should be emphasized in the teaching of typewriting. (Continued on page 3)

—Staff Photo
REHEARSING FOR FALL PLAY, "The Admirable Crichton," are C. Venable, D. Cox, M. L. Lander, and M. B. Olson.

Interested Students?

This week the Rotunda received an unsigned memorandum from "Interested Student," raising six questions concerning newspaper policy. While it is not our habit to recognize unsigned correspondence, we should like to give our answers to these questions.

"1. What ever will the Rotunda find to put on the front page once Circus is over?" The Rotunda will find whatever is campus news to put on the front page. We realize that the value of Circus is questioned by students and faculty members who believe that anything not academically and intellectually rewarding has no right to so prominent a place in campus life. However, we also realize that, regardless of personal opinion, Circus is news. We invite "interested students" who feel they have access to more newsworthy stories than those we print to bring them to the newspaper office at any time. We print the campus news.

"2. How would the Rotunda ever fill four pages unless the faculty and the administration didn't shove all their propaganda in?" The Rotunda would not fill its four pages without faculty and administration news because we would not be fulfilling our duty to cover college news. Strange as it may sound to "interested students," the faculty and administration belong here too.

"3. How about a prize for the student who thinks of something besides sports to put on page three?" How about a prize for the student who looks on page three for news of college sports? Ask a silly question and you'll get a silly answer. Page three is the Sports Page.

"4. Why don't you write an editorial griping about people who gripe about grippers?" We don't write editorials griping about people who gripe about grippers because we believe in constructive criticism.

"5. Did you know that faculty members are always the last people to get their Rotunda?" Yes, we know it. The faculty and administration newspapers are delivered at the same time the student papers are taken to the dining hall on Wednesdays. We can hardly ask the Circulation Staff to deliver Rotundas to faculty and administration homes so that they, too, can read the paper during Wednesday dinner.

"6. Why don't you published reviews of anything?" We occasionally print reviews when we have time and material. Student contributions, here too, are welcomed.

Now for our question:

If you are really "interested students" why do you not offer workable suggestions instead of derogatory criticism? We cannot tell exactly what it is you're interested in.

Antidote For Reality

Once there was a kingdom in which all the citizens were given pills. These were the student pills, for upon taking them, the citizens saw only the beautiful. All was seen as it should have been or could have been, and not as it actually was.

One day one of the citizens forgot to take his pill before going to bed. And the next morning upon rising, he saw something he had never seen before—bedbugs. At breakfast he discovered he did not like the taste or the smell of the food he was given. As the day progressed, he saw still more ugly things—children with sore stomachs, women with hollow, ugly faces, men with a vacant look in their eyes. He saw ragged clothes and motley animals, flimsy houses and guards with weapons in their hands.

He decided that the other people in the kingdom should see these things. But when he went to them with his discoveries, he found that they were incapable of understanding him, for they could not see what he could see. While resting he noticed a boy watching him, and decided to attempt to show this boy what was ugly. He walked over to the boy and told him to come with him.

They went to the man's tiny apartment and sat down. The man told the boy to look out the window at a group of underfed children who were going by, but the boy only smiled. He pointed out a mangy dog to the boy, but no light of recognition came to the boy's vacant eyes.

In desperation, the man picked up a knife and began tearing his own heart out. He screamed in pain, and pain distorted his face. The boy stood over the man's body and watched the blood rush over the floor, he listened to the diminishing moans, and studied the distorted face. When the face relaxed and the moans stopped, the boy walked out of the apartment and went back to the place where he had first seen the man. It was getting dark, so he reached in his pocket and got one of his pills and swallowed it.

—DMH

The Rotunda

ESTABLISHED NOVEMBER 29, 1929

Published each week during the college year except during holidays and examination period by the students of Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia, Box 105.

Ann Arns	Managing Editor	Stuart Edley	Business Manager
Dennis Harnish			News Editor
Gayle Arns			Feature Editor
Leslie Peters			Sports Editor
Lorain Hunter			Exchange Editor
Phyllis Harnish and Linda Smith			Photography
Jan Hunter			Circulation Manager
Miss Mary L. Nichols			Faculty Advisor

(Unsigned editorials written by the editor)

LONGWOOD'S TWINS get together to discuss mutual problems. Pictured are the Silvers, the Warrens, the Skellies, the Wilsons, and the Parks.

Plea For Individuality Is Twins' Identical Cry

By Sue Thompson

Five sets of twins are students at Longwood this year. Freshmen are Chris and Mary Young from Richmond, Betty and Peggy Parks from Wardsboro. Pam and Sandra Silver are sophomores from Vinton, Mary and Martha Warren, juniors from Arlington, and Jackie and Patsy Skellie, seniors, from Elkton. The Skellies and Parks are fraternal twins; the other are identical.

Identical twins can do something that no one else can: switch on dates, friends, parents, and teachers. Giving a drawback to this, Pam Silver said, "If Sandra did something wrong, I might get blamed for it." Both Mary and Martha Warren play tennis, cook, sew, and enjoy "most anything in the domestic line." Both girls worked in banks this summer as bank tellers.

Patsy Skellie's hobbies are playing the piano and swimming, and Jackie says she likes to "just loaf around." Betty Parks' hobbies are reading, dancing, water sports, and dating, while Peggy enjoys skiing, horseback riding, and twirling the baton. Peggy said, "Being a twin has lots of advantages. You never have a chance to get lonely because there is always someone your own age there to talk to. And you can share clothes so that you have twice as many."

Betty has a unique reason for saying that she enjoys being a twin. "On a date, if you have nothing to talk about, it makes a good subject." The main disadvantage of being a twin, she feels, is that people think of you as one person and not two individuals. "Like they consider you the Parks twins, not Betty or Peggy, until they get to know you."

Mary and Martha Warren confuse boys over the phone so that they don't know which one they are talking to. Mary said, "One time this summer, one of Martha's boy friends got us mixed up and started feeding me a line."

Patsy and Jackie Skellie roomed together their freshman year.

Randolph-Macon Serves As Host

Randolph-Macon College at Ashland served as host of the annual Student Virginia Education Association convention beginning October 21. State Senator William Spong's speech on "Completeness for Quality Teaching" was the main feature of the convention.

On this subject Patsy said, "I found out I was rooming with such an idiot that I decided in order to stay sane I had to find another roommate. I would rather have her come in spurts during the day than all at once."

Jackie's version is a little different. "We got along well, but I was neat and Patsy was messy, and she borrowed money all the time." She said of being a twin, "I feel like I have a shadow all the time."

Patsy says she enjoys her twin. "I couldn't do without her. There is a special closeness between twins, even though it doesn't look like it."

Varied Backgrounds Characterize Vieira

By Mary Ann Lipford

A bright-eyed little boy of two and a half scampered ahead of his trimly handsome father as they made their way across the leaf-covered Longwood lawn. The father was Mr. David Vieira, a new addition to the college history department, on his way to the interview which produced this article.

Mr. Vieira is a native of Brazil and the son of a Brazilian minister and his wife. The older Vieira taught history and English, so though Portuguese was their native language, "We'd try speaking English at the table occasionally to learn a little."

Asked how Presbyterians fare amid the Latin Catholicism of Brazil, Mr. Vieira relates that Presbyterianism can only claim about two per cent of the country's churches, but that in proportion to its small number, Presbyterianism's influence is surprisingly strong. This is because most Presbyterians in Brazil are professors, medical men, and other highly educated and respected persons. How does Catholicism in Brazil compare with Catholicism as we know it? Mr. Vieira believes the Latin Catholics are much closer to the medieval form of Catholicism. "Whether they realize it or not, our Catholics here have been greatly influenced by the Protestants. Reading the Bible is one example. In Brazil, the Bible is considered a dangerous book."

After receiving his early education at a mission school at Garanhuns, young Vieira completed a full academic scholarship to King College in Bristol, Tennessee. There he was awarded a B.A. degree in history. With one degree tucked securely under his academic belt, he worked in Brazil for a year, his eye still on more education. He journeyed to New York, hoping to enter graduate school there, but he was drafted into the army. Immigrants, he says, who come to the states are eligible for draft by a country whose nationality is not their own. For two years Private Vieira served as news editor of an agency which dispatches army news throughout the country. In the flippancy, unassuming humor that has already endeared him to his students, Mr. Vieira admits: "We really did nothing but throw paper clips around, but we had impressive titles."

Fresh out of the service, Mr. Vieira considered entering the ministry. He attended a Union Theological Seminary in Richmond for two quarters, but left there and received his M.A. degree in history from the University of Richmond. With the exception of writing his final dissertation, he completed all his doctoral work at American University. Tentative plans for his dissertation are to write on "The Confederate Immigration to Brazil," but the difficulty and expense of going to Brazil to do research may force him to change his topic.

The young history professor relates an unforgettable summer experience he had while yet in college. The unquestioning college boy accepted a waiter's job at a Presbyterian camp in New Jersey. He had been there only a few days when he realized his plight; he was in a Bible Presbyterian Camp, a group of people who were "about as puritanical as 17th century New

Fate Steps In, American Cliche Becomes Reality

By Gayle Arns

Surely everybody has heard the old cliche, "It's like looking for a needle in a haystack." And certainly no one can deny the impossibility of such a search. We would all agree that nothing less than a miracle would enable us to retrieve a needle from a haystack.

Sophomore Betty Ann Wall is by no means an exception in the above consensus, and it is little wonder that she was sorely distressed this summer when she lost her treasured high school ring while on vacation at Virginia Beach.

It was all occasioned while she was in the midst of one of those flirtatious feasts that so many girls seem to engage in when vacationing on the beach. She and her gentleman friend were casually getting acquainted by tossing a beach ball back and forth over the undulating waves of the ocean, when she suddenly perceived her bare finger which seconds before had displayed her ring.

Immediately the good humored expression on her face was superseded by one of distress and sorrow. The ball game was called to a halt. Her friend expressed his regret and tried to soothe her, but both readily acknowledged the fact that a search for the lost ring was a search. Resignedly, she ironically observed: "Oh, well, I'll write you and let you know if it ever turns up."

But sometimes Accident has a way of stepping in where effort is impracticable and miracles impossible. Such was the case with Betty Ann's lost ring.

Several weeks later after she had returned to school, she received a long distance telephone call from her mother, telling her that the lost ring had been found. It seems that the ring had been mailed to the high school tied to a small two by two inch piece of cardboard with a tiny thread of fishing string. There was no name, no explanation—just a three cent stamp and the address of the school. Who could have found the ring? How was it discovered? Could it have washed up on shore with the tide? Could it have been caught in someone's fishing hook? Betty Ann breathed a sigh of relief and thankfulness when she once again could enjoy the sentiments that one feels toward his high school ring. But she still considered the unanswerable mystery that is behind the miraculous retrieval of the lost treasure.

Englanders? There was no smoking, drinking, or make-up allowed; prayer meetings lasted all day long, with the exception of a "generous" break each day. The campers swam at nearby Long Beach Island, the women all in one-piece suits, and the men's chests properly covered by shirts. When asked about the summer romances that year, Mr. Vieira laughingly assured us that there was nothing to do but go to prayer meetings!

Anne Peitl, of Richmond, was studying art at Virginia Inter-med when she and Mr. Vieira met and were married. Mrs. Vieira, a professional portrait artist, presents her most recent paintings in a public showing this week in Farmville. Their only child, David, is a lively boy whose main interest just now is the nursery school he attends.

The bright eyes were heavy: Little David was sleepy, and wanted to go home. The pleasant interview over, Mr. David Vieira and son strolled once again across the lawn of his first college appointment—Longwood.

Patronize

The Rotunda

Advertisers

CHECKING COMPETITORS for class tennis games are H. Gilliam and P. Womble. —Staff Photo

Quarter Horse's Merits Include Power, Control

By Gibby Britt

In the western part of the United States Quarter Horses are used daily for both work and play, but many Longwood students had never heard of the breed. Contrary to popular opinion, a Quarter Horse is not just a quarter of a horse, and is not worth only 25 cents. In order to correct this misunderstanding a series of articles on the American Quarter Horse will appear regularly in the paper for the next few weeks.

Every State

Quarter Horses are found in every state and in twenty foreign countries, working on ranches or farms and competing in rodeos, horse shows, contests, and race tracks. They are not large horses, usually standing a little over fourteen hands high (one hand equals 4 inches) and weighing between 900 and 1,400 pounds.

Two main ways to recognize a Quarter Horse are by his disposition and appearance of strength. They are calm, won't flinch or shy at strangers, and will stand still when they are not working or competing. They are sturdy, heavily muscled horses with fine heads and legs.

Face Like A Lady

It is often said that a good Quarter Horse will have a face like a lady and hind quarters like a cook. This is where they get their sudden speed, and it helps anchor them down for quick stops. They can go in any direction in a hurry, and as an old cowboy saying goes, "will turn on a dime and give you a nickel change." In other words, the Quarter Horse is a powerful animal that has himself under complete control.

The Quarter Horse has only been an official breed since 1940, the year the American Quarter Horse Association was organized and registration started for horses that met the breed standards. However, the history of the stock horse goes back even before good records were kept of their characteristics and performances.

Popular Sport

In Virginia and North Carolina Quarter Horse racing was one of the most popular weekend sports. The colonists would match two of their best horses for a quarter of a mile, thus giving the "Quarter Horse" his name.

It wasn't unusual in those days to name Quarter Horses after a friend or relative. People would speak of A. D. Reed, Buck Thomas, Roger Mills, Dollie Spokes, Harmon Baker, and Peter McCue . . . and then have to say whether they meant the person or the horse.

Six Classes

Quarter Horses may be divided into six general classes. They may be used for farm and ranch work, performance contests, straightaway racing, rodeos, and halter shows. The sixth category takes in all the odd jobs people do on horseback: trail riding, parades, polo, jumping, cutter racing on snow, and horseback square dancing. It is obvious that the Quarter Horse is one of the most versatile breeds in the world.

Tech Victorious, Clemson Passes Raze Blue Devils

By Sue Beardmore

Tech vs. U. Va.:

Seventeen thousand football fans witnessed the fourth annual Harvest Bowl game played at Victory Stadium in Roanoke. The first touchdown made by Tech's senior quarterback, Warren Price, started the Hokies on a lopsided victory over the favored Cavaliers. Price, with his speed and drive, proved to be the incentive the Hokies needed. The final score was 20-0.

Duke vs. Clemson:

Duke's Blue Devils suffered an important defeat at the hands of Clemson's Tigers in their attempt for the ACC title again this season. Sophomore Tiger Jim Parker, sparked the game with his spectacular passing ability. This was the second straight win for Clemson this season. The final score was Clemson 17, Duke 7.

VMI vs. Davidson:

By scoring two touchdowns in the final quarter against Davidson, VMI can credit two Southern Conference wins to the vic-

Patrick Article Stresses Skills Besides Typing

(Continued from page 1)

Other areas which he says should be stressed include self-reliance, self-analysis, economic usage of time, as well as of supplies and equipment, and also punctuality and the ability to proofread.

This is Mr. Patrick's first year of instruction at Longwood. Prior to coming here he was on the staff at Northeast Louisiana State College in Monroe, Louisiana. He also taught for two years in Bristol. Before entering this profession, he received his Bachelor of Science degree and also his M. Ed. degree from VPI.

Charge Accounts

Invited . . .

See Longwood Jewelry at

LONGWOOD
JEWELERS

By Lefty Snyder

There seems to be never a dull moment on the Longwood campus this year as Circus weekend draws near. Directly following, on November 3 and 4, Longwood will play host to the Tidewater Hockey Tournament. Hockey teams from the entire Tidewater area will compete against each other in the tournament, and from these amassed players a selection committee will choose the First and Second Tidewater Hockey Teams. The Tidewater Teams will then travel to the Southeast Hockey Tournament which is to be held later.

Last year, the Tournament was held at Westhampton College in Richmond with the Little Colonels playing host to visiting teams. Longwood was represented by 15 of her best players, and succeeded in having seven of the Blue 'N Whites selected to play on the Tidewater Team.

Under the guidance of Miss Der and Miss "B," plans for the Tournament are presently being made. Barbara Stewart, a Junior Physical Education major from Roanoke, is Student Chairman of the Tidewater Tournament. Working under her are many committees chairman who are executing the large number of tasks which are necessary before the tournament can be successfully held.

College teams participating in the Longwood are, Longwood, Mary Washington, Westhampton, William and Mary, and The Norfolk College of William and Mary. The Club Teams that will be playing here are The Little Colonels, The Petersburg Club, and The Richmond Club.

The games will begin Friday afternoon at 1:30 p.m. as Longwood is pitted against Westhampton. Following at 2:45 will be the Richmond Club against William and Mary; and at 3:55 Petersburg Club is vied against The Little Colonels. Meanwhile, out at Longwood Estate where a new hockey field has been laid out, spectators will be able to watch Mary Washington College and Norfolk Division at 3:30.

On Saturday, the play will begin at 9:30 with Westhampton vs. Norfolk Division, William and Mary vs. Mary Washington at 10:10, and at 11:10, Richmond Club vs. The Little Colonels Action at Longwood Estate begins at 1:30 with Longwood playing the Petersburg Club. Saturday afternoon the selection committee will choose the Tidewater Teams and that same afternoon the selected teams will play a demonstration game.

The entire weekend should prove to be an exciting one for both avid hockey enthusiasts and interested spectators.

Timely Topics

Premier Khrushchev Announces New Plan

By Barbara Wilsher

Soviet Premier Khrushchev announced a twenty year plan before the twenty-second Soviet party congress this week. He stated that this plan would, in twenty years, enable the Soviet Union to have the highest living standard in the world.

Western nations displayed intense disapproval when the Russians let it be known that a fifty-negotiation bomb was to be exploded. This would be the equivalent of fifty million tons of TNT.

The United States requested that this test be halted as the fallout from this bomb would double that of past bombs. The United States has also stated that unless a test ban treaty is signed, she will have to take protective steps and that this would include testing.

Within 24 hours after the Soviet party congress had convened that nation published an article indicating that she desired the friendship of the United States, Britain, and France.

The United States has again taken a negative stand on the question of the admission of Red China into the United Nations.

Last weekend Operation Sky Shield II was held. This was a mock attack which lasted for twelve hours. No other air traffic was allowed during this time. The value of this project has been questioned by some.

The meeting of the big four has been postponed. This seems to indicate that there is slim chance for negotiations in the near future between these main world powers.

General D. Taylor has been ordered by President Kennedy to visit Viet Nam. The purpose of this visit is to investigate what measures are needed in order to halt the communist threat there. There has been some question as to whether the selling of surplus planes to Yugoslavia was a wise move.

Industrial union fell a full point for the month of September. This was due mainly to Hurricane Carla and the United Auto Workers strike.

Tension is not completely cleared between the United Auto Workers and Ford Motor Company.

COPYRIGHT © 1961, THE COCA-COLA COMPANY. COCA-COLA AND COKE ARE REGISTERED TRADEMARKS

BETWEEN CLASSES...
get that refreshing new feeling with Coke!

Bottled under authority of The Coca-Cola Company by

Lynchburg Bottling Company, Lynchburg, Va.

RIDER AND MOUNT G. Britt and her Quarterhorse, Bob Parker, practice for next competition. —Staff Photo

'61 LC Graduates Established In Varied, Farflung Vocations

As the class of '62 are now considering their futures, the class of '61 are established in their respective jobs.

Now holding out of state teaching positions are Sandra Ferber in Alaska and Mary Lee in Maryland. In graduate school are Nancy Lemen, Nancy Morris, Maryanna Overholt, and Carolyn Thorpe, and Virginia Haverer is in nursing school.

Holding positions other than teaching are Bobbye Bolster, who is with General Electric in Schenectady, N. Y., Katie MacBolt, doing secretarial work in Miami, Florida, Pat Callahan, doing secretarial work at UVA, and Beatrice Gay, secretarial work in Farmville. Dottie Gills is now a stewardess with American Airlines, while Rose Johnson is doing government work in Maryland. Ann Kovacevich, Becky Woodriddle, and Sue Gossnell are in secretarial positions in Washington, D. C., Richmond, and Williamsburg, respectively. Page Landers and Lucy Wilson are with departments of welfare in Nottoway County and in Portsmouth.

Peggy Mullin has accepted a position as assistant director of cafeterias in the Newport News school system. Jo Anne Parsons is reporting for the Richmond Times Dispatch, while Wirtley Raine is working in a laboratory in Illinois.

Teaching in city school systems are Alexandria, Dottie Webster and Alma Jean Whight; Danville, Mary Bonner, Sara Boswell, Nancy Lee Cole, Patsy Chaney Feltz, Barbara Moore, and Linda Payne; and Fredericksburg, Jean Gates and Pat Southworth Mahler.

At Hampton are Sandra Booth, Angelle, Pat Barrow, Jean Helms, Barbara Keech Langslow, Nancy Umberger, Pat Wise, and Mary Mercer Wright. Poole, Lynchburg, Ellen Grady, Clara Lee Parker, and Kathy Wallace Young; Newport News, De Laura Albertson, Linda Forrest, Nancy Kelly, Bobbie Koons, Anne Lilliston, Janice McElmurry, and Janet Wainwright.

In Norfolk, the following are teaching: Bettie Jean Clait, Matilda Powell Conley, Lee Holt, Kathryn Hubbard, Gerry Phipps, Mrs. Elizabeth B. Walker, and Sandra Wadman. In Portsmouth, Bobbie Caples. Only two former students, Josephine Crowder Baker and Melissa Rowe, are holding teaching positions in the Richmond city schools, while Rosalene drew many, including Betty Abbot, Mary Blair Booth, Nancy Olinger Caudill, Jean Dancy, Nancy Lechler, Billy Lee, Gerry Ludwick, Gladys Patrick, Earline Queen, Mary Jane Royal, Martha Grey Shirley, and Janet Underwood.

Also teaching in a city school system are Pat Hampton Bolt and Shirley Ann Murray, in Suffolk.

County school systems attracted the following: Accomack, Lillie Rogers, Amelia, Mary Anne Hamner Copley and Robert Thomas, Jr.; Amherst, Barbara Jean Elder; Bedford, Judith Beckner and Frances Harnsberger; Brunswick, Clara Dell Kidd and Evelyn King Thompson; Campbell, Marie Waller; Charlotte, Carol Boile, Nancy Martin Dickinson, Mable Healy, and Carolyn Oliver.

At Chesterfield are, Carol Barnes, Harriet Butterworth, Nannie Lee Caldwell, Betty Sue Dickinson, Nancy Inge, Cecil Kid, Mary Owen, and Catherine Reid. Frances Ann Weaver is teaching at Culpeper.

Fairfax attracted Elizabeth Elliot, Bettie Jane Stearns, Doris Tolley, and Judy Welch, while Henrico employed Patsy Carr, Sandra Clements, Melissa Harrell, Brenda Parsley, Jeanette Talbott, and Marianne Zimmerman.

In King William are Jeanette Metcalf and Frances Norton; Loudoun, Betsy Joyner, Nancy Kelly, and Janet Stanley; Mecklenburg, Nancy Evans Cobb and Gladys George Wells; Middlesex, Peggy Blackwell; Montgomery, Barbara Bailey; Norfolk, Frances Ayers, Lou Ella Culler, Harriet Dawson, Sarah Lampton, Joyce Odum, Gayle Paschal, and Beverly White.

Emily Shelton is teaching in Nottoway, Mrs. Elsie Freeman Bunting in Orange, Lee Burnette in Powhatan, Laura Cliborne in Prince George, Mary Ellen Miller, and Nancy Speakman and Frances Tine in Prince William. Princess Anne County employs many Longwood graduates, including Betty Chappell, Ann Coleman, Page Davis, Elizabeth Dunn, Beverly Kersey, Alice Layne, Judy Robertson, Virginia Van de Riet, Hannah White, and Gaye Yates.

In Pulaski, are Nancy Cullip, Cherron Kelly Duman, and Gwen Keese, and in Roanoke, are Mary Lee Barnes, Anna Margaret Lacy, Lindy Lee Lande, Norma Routt, Sue Ellen Sites, and Nancy Moran Swann.

Cherry Gorham, Vickie Malley, and Joyce Gillespie Whitlock are teaching in Rockbridge. Linda Campbell in Russell, Barbara Brantley in Southampton, and Mary Rideout in Sussex. Betty Jane Allgood, Libby Arehart, Barbara Chaffin and Nancy Quarles are now teaching in York County.

AlphaSigmaTau Tops Sororities For Scholarship

Alpha Sigma Tau was awarded the Scholarship Cup for the 1960-61 school session. This sorority topped the list with a yearly average of 1.74. Kappa Delta followed with a 1.73 average.

Alpha Gamma Delta was third with a 1.67 average. Next came Alpha Sigma Alpha with 1.63. Sigma Kappa with 1.61, Zeta Tau Alpha with 1.615, Delta Zeta with 1.51, and Sigma Sigma Sigma with 1.48.

For fall 1960 Alpha Sigma Tau headed the list with a 1.80 average followed by Kappa Delta with 1.77, Sigma Kappa with 1.659, Alpha Gamma Delta with 1.650, Alpha Sigma Alpha with 1.635, Zeta Tau Alpha with 1.6313, Sigma Sigma Sigma with 1.60, and Delta Zeta with 1.47. Phi Mu came in first for spring 1961 with a 1.72 average followed by Kappa Delta with 1.70, Alpha Gamma Delta with 1.694, Alpha Sigma Tau with 1.69, Alpha Sigma Alpha with 1.63, Zeta Tau Alpha with 1.60, Sigma Kappa 1.58, Delta Zeta with 1.55, and Sigma Sigma Sigma with 1.36.

Since Phi Mu was not started until Spring 1960, it was not included in the list of yearly averages.

Baldwin's

Baldwin's

DRESS NATURALLY 4 WAYS IN PANTI-LEGS™ By GLEN RAVEN

Fashion's most fascinating new idea... and so practical. PANTI-LEGS are the happy waist-to-tee combination of non-transparent panty brief and sheerest stretch stockings. Perfect with sportswear, dress, street and evening wear. Wear them with skirts, slacks, culottes, shorts, all your dresses, everything. You're in perfect shape with this combination of non-transparent panty brief and sheerest stretch stockings. PANTI-LEGS are made of Enka Nylon for longer wear and smooth, sag-free fit.

With Seams (non-run) or Seamless
Petite (6' to 5'3") Medium (5'3" to 5'6")
Medium Tall (5'6" to 5'8") Tall (5'8" and over)
With Seams $2.50 / pair—2 pairs $4.90
Seamless $3.00 / pair—2 pairs $5.00
COLORS: Mist Bisque, Catalina

State Theatre FARMVILLE, VA.

Show Times

SUNDAYS:
1 Afternoon Show Only
2:30 P.M.

2 Evening Shows
7:15 and 9:15

MONDAYS THRU FRIDAYS
Afternoons: 3:15
Evenings: 7:00 & 9:00

SATURDAYS:
2 Afternoon Shows
1:15 and 3:15
2 Evening Shows
7:00 and 9:00

WED.-THURS.—OCT. 25-26

FRI.-SAT.—OCT. 27-28

SUN.-MON.-TUES.

OCT. 29-30-31

KENNETH MORE

DANIELLE DARRIEUX

"Age of Innocence"

English Mute

"BEN HUR"

CANCELLED

Southside Sundry Co.

Film Developed and

Printed Oversize

8 Exposures ..... 39

12 Exposures ..... 55

Come In Today!

Colonial Dames Offer Patriotic Essay Contest

The National Society of the Colonial Dames of America is sponsoring an essay contest which is open to all third- and fourth-year university or college undergraduates. The essay is to be entitled "Patriotism Re-Appraised: A Study of the Individual American's Duty to His Country." Prizes will consist of $2000 for first prize, $1000 for second and $500 each for five entries winning honorable mention ratings. The papers of the first and second place winners will become the property of NSCDA with all rights reserved.

All entries are to discuss these six points: 1. The philosophy of the "founding fathers" of America in drawing up the Constitution; 2. The "Bill of Rights" and its privileges and limitations; 3. The individual's obligations to a government which derives its just power from the consent of the governed; 4. Can an individual's actions affect the fortunes of a nation?—Give an example from the last twenty-five years; 5. From the same period, give an example of a nation whose fortunes were adversely affected by general indifference to patriotic ideals; 6. Comment on: "I was born an American, I will live an American; I shall die an American; and I intend to perform the duties incumbent upon me in that character to the end of my career." — Daniel Webster, 7-18-1850.

Papers must be 4000-5000 words in length and must be accompanied by a bibliography and footnotes.

Papers must be typed, double spaced on 8 1/2 x 11 paper, one original and two carbon copies. Entries are to be submitted to Mr. Ellington White in West Wing 201.

Final judges for the contest will be Miss Marguerite Appleton, Ph.D., National President of the National Society of the Colonial Dames of America, Admiral Alan Kirk, U. S. N. (ret.), former Ambassador to the U. S. S. R., and to Belgium, and Dr. Robert L. Johnson, former president of Temple University.

Lynchburg Hires Popular Singers

(Continued from page 1)

Randolph Keith and J. Miller Rhoads in Pittman Plaza.

The Limeliters, having recently appeared on the Ed Sullivan Show, will give a concert of a refreshingly different blend of vocal and instrumental folk music.

Members of the Limeliter group are Lou Gott, Alex Hasslev and Glenn Yarbrough, all three individual performers before their chance meeting in Los Angeles which resulted in their merger.

The trio has appeared on the Dinah Shore Chevy Show, in concerts with Chris Connor, George Shering and Shelley Berman, and on a national tour with comedian Mort Sahl.

Visit The CAMPUS BOOK STORE

for Books

&

Art & Lab Supplies

The Rotunda

VOLUME XII

Longwood College, Farmville, Va., November 1, 1961

No. 5

Noted Musicians Render Concert In Jarman Hall

By Marjorie Freese

The celebrated musician, Henri Honegger, will present a cello concert for students, the faculty and the townspeople Monday evening at 8 p.m. in Jarman Auditorium. He will be assisted by Walter Robert at the piano.

A preview of the concert was given last night in the Virginian Room when selections from the forthcoming program were heard on tape.

Honegger, born in Geneva, began his musical studies at the Conservatoire. He continued his study with Julius Klengel in Leipzig, following which he was with Alexander and Pabst Casals at the Ecole Normale in Paris. Later he studied with Emanuel Feuermann.

At the Edinburgh Festival in 1949, Honegger gave the first performance in Great Britain of the "Sonata da Camera" for Cello and Orchestra by B. Martinu under the direction of Ansermet. This work, dedicated to Mr. Honegger, was also performed by him at the Biennial Festival in Venice, and at the festivals of contemporary music in Frankfurt and Paris.

In 1950, commemorating the bicentenary of Bach's death, Mr. Honegger presented the first complete performance in America of the "Six Suites for Unaccompanied Cello" in New York. He was afterwards invited to give this same program for the Holland Festival 1958.

Honegger has appeared as soloist, not only with the best known orchestras of Europe, but also in North and South America and in Africa.

Walter Robert, professor of piano in the Indiana University (Continued on page 4)

CAST OF SOPHOMORE SKIT, "It's a Woman's World," voice complaints in camp scent.

Simonini, Gresham Attend Symposium

Dr. Rinaldo C. Simonini, chairman of the English Department, and Mr. Foster B. Gresham, assistant professor of English, will attend the annual meeting of the Virginia Association of Teachers of English in Richmond November 3.

Dr. Simonini will attend as the editor of the Virginia English Bulletin, and Mr. Gresham will attend as the Executive Secretary of the Association.

The program will be devoted to a symposium on English composition.

Queen Mohr Reigns Over "Sawdust" Ring

By Ginny Gilmore

Each year, as the first highlight of Circus, the queen and her court are presented to the audience. The queen, a senior, and her court, representing each of the classes, are chosen by their classmates on the basis of their participation.

This year, Ringmaster Alice White crowned Dibby Mohr as Queen of Circus, 1961. Her attendants were Ann Agee, junior; Joyce Lake, sophomore; and Maria Grant, freshman.

Second Year

Queen Dibby Mohr, chosen for the second consecutive year by her class as Circus co-chairman, holds drama as one of her main interests. Besides working on Circus, she also served as director of Sophomore Production in 1960.

Dibby, an elementary education major comes from Lynchburg where she graduated from E. C. Glass High School. She is a member of Alpha Gamma Delta social sorority and is president of the Panhellenic Council. She represented Longwood in the Festival of Five Flags in Pensacola, Florida this summer.

Junior Attendant

Ann Agee, junior attendant, also served as co-chairman of Circus for her class. During her Freshman and Sophomore years she participated or helped with both Circuses and Productions. She is a member of Delta Zeta, the Athletic Association Council, and is Activities Calendar Chairwoman. She now serves as managing editor for the Rotunda and has played class hockey for two years.

When asked what her main interest was, Ann simply replied, "Longwood." Ann comes from Farmville and attended Cumberland High School.

Card Party

The Farmville Chapter of Longwood Alumnae will have a card party Tuesday, November 7, at 8 p.m. in the main rec.

This is a benefit party to raise funds for the Mary White Cox Scholarship Fund. This scholarship goes to a local girl attending Longwood.

The prizes for this party are donated by the local merchants.

Class Of 1964 Wins Circus Skit Honors

Seniors Show Talent On Engine-Size Float

By Ann Carroll

All of the sawdust has gone from the shoes; no longer are the signs a part of the dining hall atmosphere. Tears of joy and sadness have all been wiped away, and Circus, 1961, is over.

Saturday, October 28, was only a few hours from becoming Sunday when the long-awaited announcement of the winning skit was made. A tip of her top hat, a few seconds of restless silence, and Ringmaster Alice White presented the final verdict of the Circus Judges.

First Honors

To the Class of 1964 went the first place honors. No longer was Jarman Auditorium silent. Cheers, tears and screams of excitement and disbelief were raised by both those on stage and the audience. This announcement completed the victories for the Red and White classes.

Ringmaster Alice, having introduced the court representatives, and Animal Trainer Ginny Sturm having put her animals through their performances, the skits began.

Language Clubs Plan To Feature College Alumnae

Miss Mary Greenland, a 1955 graduate of Longwood College, will return Friday, November 3 to speak and show slides to the French and Spanish Clubs.

Miss Greenland was a Spanish major while at Longwood. During her senior year, she was one of six seniors who were offered a scholarship to study toward her Master's degree at the University of Mexico. Upon her graduation, Miss Greenland went to Costa Rica where she served in an Episcopal Mission.

(Continued on page 3)

gan. The Freshmen presented their version of a Longwood freshman, bewildered with the problem of having to choose between work and play. Their conclusion came with the reminder that Joan of Arc is our guide.

Winning Skit

The winning skit followed. Here, the sophomores portrayed the world situation as it would be in the hands of the women. The women had decided men were making a mess of the world, so a delegation of women voted their discontent before the United Nations. The finale depicted these women running the world even on the battle field.

The Class of 1963 presented a melodrama, complete with hero, heroine and villain. Just as with a real melodrama, the play ended with the buzz saw heading menacingly toward the main characters, only to have the curtain close before the saw actually gets to them.

The senior class won second place with an interpretation of a train station and the types of people found there.

In the parade held Saturday afternoon, each class exhibited a float paralleling its own skit. The Class of 1962 gained first place with a replica of a train engine and a real engineer. The other floats in order of appearance were the freshmen's image of Joan of Arc, the sophomores' version of the United Nations building and the world, with women of different nations surrounding these, and the Juniors, with a scene from the melodrama.

These two phases of Circus having ended, only the Midway was left. From Jarman Auditorium, the audience, the Court representatives, the animals, clowns and students headed for the Main Rec, where everything from popcorn, peanuts, and cider to candied apples, hot dogs, and coca colas could be found. Gradually the crowds departed into different directions, and as the Midway was completely deserted, Circus, 1961, was over.

Staff Discloses News Of Sales For 1962 Annual

The 1962 Virginian will go on sale tonight after supper on second floor Rotunda. The price will be $5.00 and full payment is requested at the time of purchase. A representative will be on second floor Rotunda every night after supper or you may contact any staff member.

The deadline for subscriptions will be the Tuesday night before Thanksgiving holidays.

Since the students received their pictures free this year, the Virginian staff hopes the students will add $3.00 to the $2.00 saved and buy a Virginian.

The staff members living in South Cunningham are, Carolyn Elliott, Mary Leach Elmore, Jean Bass, Piggy Green, Jean Cloud, Pam Bullen, and Ann Smith. Staff members in Main

(Continued on page 3)

CIRCUS QUEEN, D. Mohr, reigns over traditional festivities.

Around The Campi

As the Red and Whites continue to rejoice, the Green and White are now quietly trying to forget Circus, 1961. But there's still the Color Cup!

The Seniors are happy, not so much over the fact that they placed in Circus, but that they've made their last rosette.

Latest ad "around the campi"—Joan haircuts.

Thanks to the Campus Fees Committee for finding it in their budgets to pay for our school pictures this year, rather than having us pay for them.

Anybody noticed the beautifully autumn-clad tree in front of the Methodist Church?

To maintain our obligation to inform the public: estimates go in November 10.

On Monday afternoon did anyone happen to notice two studious-looking horses prancing up the newly constructed library of Longwood College?

What ho! Was your pumpkin patch sincere last night? Did you sit up now quietly trying to forget the morning awaiting the arrival of the Great Pumpkin? Oh, alas and alack!! The Great Pumpkin fell in the fish pond beside the Science Building. And drowned. Now Linus can get some sleep.

THE ROTUNDA is weary of beauty contests, tired of all the Miss Americas and Miss Conflowers who sprout annually across the countryside. We have decided to run our own contest. Here are the categories:

- (1) The girl on campus who knows the least about anything: MISS INFORMATION OF 1961.
- (2) The girl who gets lost the greatest number of times each year: MISS DIRECTED OF 1961.
- (3) The nicest or the un-nicest girl on campus: MISS BEHAVIOR OF 1961.

Any nominations?

—Staff

The Rotunda

ESTABLISHED NOVEMBER 26, 1959

Published six days during the school year except during holidays and examination period by the students of Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia, Box 165.

Mary Byrd Mason	Editor-in-Chief
Ann Agee	Managing Editor
Gayle Ann	Feature Editor	Editor
Luis Peters	Sports Editor	Editor
Leslie Hopper	Exchange Editor	Editor
Francis Harwood and Linda Sudduth	Photography	Editor
Jane Hanger	Circulation Manager	Editor
Miss Mary P. Nichols	Faculty Advisor	Editor

(Unsigned editorials written by the editor)

Thank You

The Circus wagons are repacked with tents and caged animals snarling for freedom. Kindness prevails where once the rafters rang and sand dust was tread. Circus has come and gone again at Longwood. This spectacle for children of all ages has again unfolded the true spirit of Longwood College by the enthusiasm and participation of each student.

To you, the students of Longwood College, we wish to express our appreciation for your part in Circus. It does not matter now which colors won, which class, which float took the prize. The success of Circus was in the fact that students worked together and students revealed a true, proud spirit of belonging to this institution. You are Circus. Through your enthusiasm, your spirit, your interest, and your participation, Circus became again a major highlight of the college year. For two busy weeks and more, Longwood students worked. And for what? We know the answer, for when we can say, "I was a part of Circus," it is then that we know that each has caught the spirit of Longwood by working for her class and that the spirit of Circus has come into each heart.

We finally shake the sawdust from our shoes as we view the last Circus Wagon moving out of town.

—Alpha Kappa Gamma

And The Tree Fell

A farmer when he felt he was too old to till the land any longer turned his farm over to his son. And the son was to run the farm as if it were his own. There was one condition that the son was to abide by—he was not to chop down the magnolia tree which stood in front of the farm house.

The son thought that this was little to give in return for the farm, and so he agreed to the condition. Later, when the son's wife had their first child, she began to worry about the tree's falling, for it stood near the child's bedroom window.

The old man told her she was being foolish, and proceeded to tell her how beautiful the tree had been when he had been a young man and how it had shaded the front porch during the hot summer months.

"But," she retorted, "it no longer is beautiful. And it will never have leaves again. It's just an old rotten tree." She turned to her husband for support, but he could not say anything for in doing so he would lose the farm.

Constantly the young wife begged the men to chop the rotten tree down. But the old man would not listen to her, and the young man could not.

One night a storm came up. The winds beat heavily against the tree. Thunder roared, and torrents of rain fell. The old man could not sleep, so he stood at his window and watched the storm.

There was a loud crack, and then he heard the scream of his grandson.

—D. M. H.

FRENCH INFORMANT: Anne-Marie Lalllement points out her native land to Ida Adagene, Spanish informant.

Dining Hall Problems Explained By Clarke

Believing that the student body would benefit from a clearer understanding of the Slater System and what it does, Mr. A. H. Clarke, Slater manager for Longwood College, offers the following information.

Slater Food Service Management is a company which provides tailored food service for schools, colleges, seminaries, and universities in 31 states.

This company purchases, prepares, and serves food for students, relieving its clients of all the problems and details of providing such food service.

Standards

Among its attractions are the Slater System's assurance of specifications and standards as established by the Slater purchasing department, its combined buying power, and its well-rounded staff of dietitians, chefs, managers and planning experts.

At the same time, the Slater System offers individual attention by assigning local managers to each college. In addition to Mr. Clarke, Slater is represented on this campus by his assistants, Mrs. Annita Tucker and Mr. A. Taylor.

Misunderstandings

By means of the Rotunda, Mr. Clarke wishes to explain certain procedures which have led to misunderstandings among the students.

First of these is the often asked question, "Why close tables?" Tables are closed when the dining room people are reasonably certain that many people will not be at a meal. Feeling it is senseless to prepare food only to throw it away, the Slater people close some tables and use the money they save on other food benefits for the student body.

Tables are closed as systematically and as accurately as possible. When a table is closed, girls will be aided in finding seats by Mr. Clarke, Mr. Taylor, Mrs. Tucker, and the two student hostesses, who may be found near the balcony steps.

Second Helpings

Another subject which has led to misunderstanding is the matter of "second helpings." Mr. Clarke says that the only items for which second helpings are explained are entrees, salads, and desserts—hence students may expect second helpings on meat, vegetables, and bread at each meal.

When students are asked to leave the dining room by a specified time after each meal, and when they are asked to stack their plates and silver, the reason is that they are helping the student waitresses by doing these things.

Although it is not a Slater regulation, the dining room people wish to remind the students that refraining from beginning a meal before the blessing is important as an observation of manners and respect.

Food Committee

Realizing that it is natural for girls to perceive flaws in any system, especially when it concerns food, a Student Food Committee is formed each year to coordinate the student body and the food management services in handling grievances, misunderstandings, and new ideas. Too, Mr. Clarke or Mr. Taylor are in their office each day, except Thursday, to consult with students.

Mr. Clarke asks that any time an organization knows its members will not be attending a meal they inform him in advance. He adds that the bake shop often has time to handle special orders if they are notified well in advance also.

As in other areas of school facilities, the dining room has progressed greatly over the years. The kitchen is well equipped now to provide good food service. In striving to continue improvement in the quality of their food and service, the Slater people welcome your suggestions.

Ida, Anne-Marie

View Longwood

By Ellie Bogan

American campus life is a new experience for two of Longwood's new students. They are Anne-Marie Lalllement and Ida Adagene.

College Different

Anne-Marie hails from Paris, France and Ida comes to us from Mexico City, Mexico. Both girls agree that college life in America differs greatly from that which they have known in their home town.

Degree in English

Anne-Marie is working on her degree in English and French literature at Sorbonne. When she returns to France, she will work as a guide-interpreter. Besides aiding the French students learn the language, Anne-Marie teaches modern dance and English.

The pert little blonde says that before her eleven-day trip to America, she bought a green plaid skirt in Paris, thinking that she'd be way out front in fashion here but was disappointed to find upon her arrival that everybody already wears skirts with the sewn-down pleats.

Impressed By Greenery

Eighteen year old Ida has been to the United States before but was quite impressed by the greenery of Virginia. After leaving Longwood, Ida will return to the University of Mexico, where her father teaches, to study. She hopes to become a psychiatrist.

Pizzas Not New

Ida's family is Italian; thus, pizzas are not new to her. One of the things that surprised her most is the American practice of eating peanut butter and jelly sandwiches and other such combinations. Most of our foods are the same but the Mexicans season their dishes differently, Ida relates.

Ida is taking courses in English, modern dance and French. Ida has two brothers. She likes to swim and go to parties.

Anne-Marie has two older sisters and a younger brother. Ida says she gets homesick all the time. But Anne-Marie hopes to visit New Orleans and Key West before leaving the States.

PUNCHING TIME CLOCK: Wilson and Charlie Brooks begin another day of work on Longwood campus.

Charlie, Wilson Personify Adage

By Neal Banks

"Like father, like son" the old adage goes. This is a more than slightly accurate observation when one meets Charlie Brooks and his son Wilson. Both on Longwood's maintenance staff, both imbued with the love of their work and the college, and both so very dignified and extremely polite, it would be difficult not to guess that these men spring from common blood.

Though not a native of Prince Edward County, Charlie is as much at home here now as though he had been "born and bred" in the area. Originally from Buckingham, most of his life has been here for as long as he can remember and a great deal of it with the college.

"I came here, let's see, in 1925. The place was real different then. Why, they used to put three or four students in the same space they put two today. But I guess that's because you girls bring so much more stuff now. We never used to see all these trunks, clothes, and animals."

In the pre-Longwood years Charlie worked for T. W. Wood and Company in Richmond. Wilson and his sister were born in Richmond.

"But I wasn't there long. I've never called Richmond home," Wilson said. "I had two other jobs before the college, one in a shoe factory and the other as a veterinarian's assistant." This is quite in keeping with Wilson's soft voice and gentle manner.

Wilson, the handyman in Jarman, started at Longwood only last year, and has already become an invaluable addition to the Players' production staff.

"There just isn't anything in that theatre he can't do," one of the girls has said.

"Oh, I like it just fine over there," he said with a smile. "I'd be content to stay there indefinitely."

When Charlie was asked about some of the exciting incidents of his time at Longwood, he laughed.

"Goodness, thirty-five years is a long time. There've been so many, it could take all day. I remember the big fire when the old auditorium burned. That was plenty exciting. And I could talk all day about the changes in the college. It wasn't easy being a janitor in those old days. The work was much harder and there were fewer conveniences. We watched this school through a heap of growing."

Charlie and Wilson both like their Longwood jobs, and plan to stay. But I asked Charlie the old inevitable question: when does he plan to retire.

"Well, I don't like to say, for sure." There was a definite twinkle in his eye. "But I'll be here a few more years."

New Coffee Pot

Staff Finds Solace Amid Tumult, Chaos

By Neal Banks

"Hey, Byrd, can we put this head in all caps?"

"Who has the red pencil?"

"Cuckety - cuckety - cuckety-pink," goes the typewriter.

"Who doesn't have a ten o'clock class? The proofs have to go to the Herald."

"Ard on and on and on. The efficient (?) Rotunda staff grinds out another edition of Longwood news. Most Sunday nights and any Tuesday afternoon the local journalists' balldick is alive with action, although not always of a literary nature. When the schedule gets tight—and it frequently does—there's the need for coffee breaks, trips to the rec, and plain non-journalistic chit-chat.

The newspaper office, located on the central campus thoroughfare, is a writer's paradise. The drab green walls with peeling paint are picturesque, the inch-long roaches companionable and the straight-backed chairs perfect for a three-hour sit.

The temperature is consistent—100 degrees in fall and spring and 32 degrees in winter. These are the conditions under which a newspaper operates, and any changes would be sacrilege. It is the atmosphere in which true artistry is born.

To aid the staff in maintaining its sanity a coffee pot has been purchased. Along with this go mugs which will be handed down to incoming staff members. And still more additions have been planned. In the not-so-near future the Rotunda hopes to be proud possessor of a chaise longue, card table, dart board, telephone, hairdryer, and bar, all in the name of better journalism. These items, however, will be added gradually over a long period of time. It has taken twenty years for a single pencil sharpener and coffee pot.

So, students, this is your Rotunda in operation. Be proud of Her, cherish Her, respect Her. Her staff may not be long with you.

Tidewater Tourney Here This Weekend

Quarter Horse Able In Pasture And Ring

By Gibby Britt

Quarter Horse people agree that as much as half of the entire breed are still used on ranches working livestock, as was originally intended. However, the adaptability and showmanship of the Quarter Horse has also made him a favorite in the show ring.

Horses working in the rodeo arena have been trained for a highly specialized job. Calf roping is one of the most popular events, and consists of roping a calf and tying three of its legs together.

Calf Roping

There are three kinds of calf roping: ranch roping, where speed doesn't count; rodeo roping, where speed does count; and Quarter Horse performance roping where the horse's ability to help do the job is of primary importance.

Performance contests are strictly for Quarter Horses. They consist of reining, cutting, barrel racing, western riding, and working cowhorse classes.

All the events have originated from the old-time ranching skills. These contests are not easy for a horse because they amount to a cowhorse working without a cow.

Cue From Rider

When cattle are being worked, a horse will watch the cattle and take his cue from them so he will know what to do. But in these events, the horse takes his cue from his rider.

Still, he has to have as much speed and control as if those cattle were all around him. A good reining horse needs to have steady gaits and a smooth stop. He must also be able to back straight and fast, roll over his hocks and pivot, and change his leads in a figure eight. This event is a stiff test for both the horse and rider.

Cutting Horse

The cutting horse has the most highly specialized job of all. He not only must be smart to turn and dodge at a moment's notice, but must have an inborn characteristic called "cow sense."

Only a small percentage of Quarter Horses have this ability to out-guess cattle. For this reason cutting horses are expensive and hard to find, but the satisfaction one derives from owning such a horse is well worth the expense. A cutting horse in action is one of the most beautiful displays of motion and agility. In arena cutting, the horse and rider move slowly into a herd of cattle until the rider picks the cow to be separated from the herd. Then the horse takes over.

One Thought Ahead

He assesses the cow out of the herd and keeps him out by cutting off his every move to get back. To do this the horse must be one thought ahead of the cow. Most cutting horses will come so close to the ground when they stop and turn that the rider's foot will hit the ground.

The cutting horse keeps his ears flat back against his head when he's working a cow. This shows his determination, and if that cow doesn't go exactly where the horse wants him to, he'll reach out and bite him.

One can almost see that pony's brain working overtime. It takes approximately two years to train a cutting horse, but when he's ready to go he'll win up to ten thousand dollars a year.

Convention

Representatives from the Colorado, Virginia, and Rotunda staffs left this morning for Miami, Florida, to attend the annual convention of the Associated Collegiate Press. Representing the Rotunda is Judy Dietrich, while Virginia and Colorado delegates are Carolyn Elliott and Mary Leach Elmore, and Mary Byrd Micou and Lois Peters, respectively.

STUDENT CHAIRMAN for Tidewater Hockey Tournament. B. Stewart, prepares for busy week end.

Tennis, Hockey To Begin Color Cup Competition

By Ann Smith

The Red and White, Green and White class sport competition is in full swing again with class tennis matches in the third round.

Faye Ripley, class tennis manager, says "I hope this tournament will be completed by the end of the first nine weeks."

The Green and Whites still in the class tennis matches are Paisy Womble, Lindy Hatch, Ann Egerton, and Henrietta Gilliam. Red and Whites participating are Peggy Waldo, Winnie Egolf, and Lois Obenshain.

Tennis Manager

Faye Ripley, class tennis manager, has also been manager of class volleyball and varsity hockey. She is a senior physical education major from Williamsburg.

Class hockey play-offs are also drawing near. All upperclassmen have to have eight practices and freshmen are required to have four practices.

Games Scheduled

The hockey games have been scheduled beginning November 6. November 6, the Sophomores and Seniors play. On the seventh the Freshmen Seniors play. November 9 is the date for the Junior-Senior game and the ninth is Freshman versus Juniors. November 13 is the date for the Freshman-Sophomore game and the Junior-Sophomore game will be on November 14. All these games are scheduled to begin at 4 p.m.

Laurie Hamlet is the class hockey manager. She is a Junior from Phenix and is majoring in home economics.

Varsity Hockey

Longwood Bows To MWC Eleven For First Loss

The varsity hockey team lost their first game of the season Saturday to Mary Washington. The Longwood led 2-1 until the second half when Mary Washington scored two goals. Members of the starting line-up were Flossie Barnard, Trina Childress, Betty L. Dunn, Janice Harris, Linda Hatch, Barbara G. Martin, Morag Nocher, Sandy Phlegar, Faye Ripley, Virginia Parker, and Jo Savage.

Captain Trina Childress had the following to say about the game: "The team realized they were facing strong opposition, and I think they played a splendid game."

The second team also played a game. The players consisted of E. Brady, S. Coe, C. Howe, S. Metcalf, L. Obenshain, S. Saver, L. Snyder, B. Stewart, G. Taylor, P. Waldo, and J. Wilson. The team came from behind 3-0 to win 4-3.

Mary Washington held a tea for the teams after the game.

Miss Her and Miss "B" accompanied the team on the trip.

Hockey Game Series To Lead To Playoffs

As the weekend draws near, Longwood College is preparing to welcome to its campus hockey players from the entire Tidewater area. These players will comprise teams from Westhampton College, Mary Washington College, William and Mary College, the Norfolk Division of William and Mary College, and Longwood College. Club teams participating in the tournament will be the Richmond Club, the Little Colonies of Richmond, and the Petersburg Club.

The Tidewater tournament is the first in a series leading to the National tournament, where the best field hockey players are selected for the first and reserve United States Teams. The U. S. Team then competes in International hockey matches.

A selection committee, composed of seven field hockey experts, will observe the games and select from the participants the members of the Tidewater first and second teams. The players will be chosen on the basis of individual performance. At 3:00 p.m. Saturday a demonstration game will be played by these two teams on the college hockey field.

Directing the tournament are Miss Augusta Chapman, President of the Tidewater Field Hockey Association and Professor of Physical Education at Westhampton College, and Barbara Stewart, a Longwood physical education major from Roanoke who is Student Chairman of the Tidewater Tournament.

The games will begin Friday, November 3 and continue through Saturday afternoon. Matches will be played on the college hockey field from 1:30 to 3:00 p.m. Friday and 9:00 a.m. to 12:30 Saturday; on the temporary field at Longwood Estate, games are scheduled for 3:30 p.m. Friday and 10:30 a.m. Saturday.

Those players selected for the Tidewater Teams will compete in the Southeast Hockey Tournament which will be held November 17 and 18 in Roanoke.

Charge Accounts

Invited . . .

See Longwood Jewelry at

LONGWOOD JEWELERS

State Theatre
FARMVILLE, VA.

WED.-THURS.-NOV. 1-2

Marines. Let's Go!

FRI.-SAT.-NOV. 3-4

SCREAM OF FEAR!

Sun.-Mon.-Tues.-NOV. 5-6-7

PAUL NEWMAN
THE HUSTLER
JACKIE GLEASON

NOVEMBER 8-9-10-11

Tanny

TECHNICOLOR WARNER BROS.

News Summary

Russian, U.S. Activities Further Scientific Pace

By Sandra Jamison

Soviet Premier Khrushchev announced Saturday that he is determined to go ahead with the testing of the fifty-megaton nuclear bomb regardless of the appeals made by, as he described them, "fair-minded people abroad."

Scientists report that there is a possibility of little radiation fallout from Russia's bomb.

Saturday the Soviets withdrew the tanks that they had placed on the Berlin border. About 75 minutes after Russia's withdrawal, the U. S. pulled back to a point 800 yards from the frontier.

Within the next few weeks the U. S. will launch a 150-pound cigar-shaped satellite carrying radio equipment. The purpose of the test will be to test the readiness of the man-in-space Project Mercury's world-wide network. The test will be done as Mercury-Scout 1, and no recovery will be attempted.

The eighth hurricane of the season, Hattie, was reported heading toward Cuba with winds up to 125 miles per hour. The weather bureau reported it as "a dangerous hurricane." It was proceeding on a northerly course at seven miles per hour.

Major Ernesto Guevara has been removed from his position as one of the top managers of Cuba's economy. He was replaced by a board composed of Cuban Communists. The U. S. made great strides in their space program when they successfully fired an eight-engine Saturn rocket. The purpose of this booster will be to lift three-man Apollo moon capsules on the preliminary orbital missions around the earth.

President Kennedy went to Oklahoma mountain country Sunday to dedicate a road. After the dedication, he went to see Senator Kerr's prize Angus cattle.

After making the official mid-year review of the federal budget, an estimated $6,885,000,000 was reported as deficient.

The Russians announced an orbital launching of a carrier rocket into the central Pacific and stated that it was the last in this current test series.

Staff Members For LC Annual To Take Orders

(Continued from page 1)

Cunningham are Caste Griggs, Wand Barnett, Ann Friedman, Lewin Rippey, and Libby Fredmore. The girls in North Cunningham are Carol Benton, Janet Wright and Joan Lord. Susan Rollins, Ann McCants, Mary Rot Harris, and Mary Lee Warner can be contacted in Wheeler and Duden Campbell can be reached in Tabb.

Around The Campi

Madras is considered by some circles to be the paragon of textiles. But do they know that Madras was the material used by plantation owners to clothe their slaves? It was the cheapest material available to the penny-conscious aristocrats. Now the times have changed, and most collegiates wear Madras as a status symbol.

Harried Rec workers have reached the breaking point—they're selling bologna and tuna fish sandwiches.

Ever feel as though you live in a tenement building in a large city? The feeling is easy to attain when you live in one of the Cunningham dormitories.

Wonder if anyone has thought of wearing lead cardigans now that atmospheric radiation is steadily increasing because of recent Soviet nuclear tests?

Suggested Thanksgiving reading—"Perils of Flight" by Ellington White.

No one has claimed the peach wine bottle which was found on the hockey field. There is a thirty day limit, after which time the Rotunda is no longer responsible for "unclaimed articles."

Concerning unclaimed articles, the head table is beginning to look like a jewelry store. From the obvious value of these items, it seems that their owners would claim them.

The AA is concerned over the theft of its posters, which required hard work to make. So, poster-pouchers and souvenir hunters, pick on somebody else.

Announcement: To clear up some confusion, the dining hall "dry run" refers to the new meat-carving utensils and how to use them, not to week-day lunches. It is inconceivable that one of the meals this week turned out to be a "flop." On such rare occasion, however, it is excusable.

Any more entries for the "Miss" contest? The contest closes, for real, on Nov. 27.

—Staff

Radio Programs Provide Variety For LC Campus Broadcast Fans

"Longwood Speaks" and "Listening at Longwood," the two school radio programs broadcast over Station WFLO from Farmville, give students varied learning experiences, while giving people within broadcasting range the opportunity of learning what is going on at Longwood.

Program Of Music

Last week, on the Listening at Longwood program, heard on Tuesday at 4:00 p.m., a program on Mose Allison's music was given. The program was written and supervised by Mary Field. Betty Atkinson narrated the program while Mary did the announcing. Yesterday at 4 p.m. Harriet Hunt interviewed Dr. Meeker on Ellen Glasgow.

On the "Longwood Speaks" program, last Sunday at 4 p.m., a taped speech by D. N. Chatterjee, Minister of India for the United States, was given, discussing the development of western countries that started as colonies. Next week they hope to give a program on harpsichord music from Byrd to Bartok which will be given by Miss Curran of the music department. Her objective will be to show the versatility of the instrument and the variety of the music written for it.

Student Program

Any student who prepares an acceptable program can give it over either yesterday. If anyone is interested they should see Miss Barnett who is in charge of the workshop.

Simonini Assists New Commission

Dr. R. C. Simonini, Jr., head of the college English department, has recently been appointed to a new Commission on the English Language established by the National Council of Teachers of English. This commission is the third established by the Council in its fifty-year history, and it will be especially concerned with bringing into schools the benefits of current developments in the science of linguistics.

The commission consists of fifteen English scholars and linguists from institutions throughout the country. Its first meeting will be held in Philadelphia in November, during the NCTE convention.

—Staff Photo
DISCUSSING PLANS are newly elected freshman officers M. Grant, B. Wright, L. Guerin. W. Old.

Job Placement

Out of a graduating class of 191 seniors, only 106 have conferred with Mrs. Watkins about placement for jobs. The remaining eighty-five are urged to see Mrs. Watkins as soon as possible.

Astronomer To Lecture In Assembly

The noted astronomer, Dr. Harlow Shapley, will be at Longwood November 20 and 21 as a Danforth Visiting Lecturer. He will present four lectures and will be available for student discussion groups in science.

First Lecture

"Galaxies and Man's Place in the Universe" will be presented at 8 p.m. on November 20 in Jarman Auditorium. This lecture will be open to the public.

"The Origin and Development of Life" and "Probing Interplanetary Space" are two lectures to be presented to the faculty and science students, and on Tuesday, November 21 at the regular assembly period. Dr. Shapley will present "Science Ponders Religion."

Dr. Shapley was on the staff of the Mount Wilson Observatory at Pasadena, California, for seven years, and was director of the Harvard College Observatory at Cambridge for 31 years.

Holds Degrees

He was awarded honorary degrees by 16 universities, including those of Delhi, Honolulu, Ireland, Mexico, Toronto, Copenhagen, Princeton and Harvard, and has been made an honorary member of the national academies of ten countries.

One of Dr. Shapley's latest publications, "Of Stars and Men," has been published in Swedish, Japanese, Italian and Hindi, and is being made into a full-length motion picture. He states in this book that some forms of life may far surpass Homo Sapiens in intellectual capacity, and that he believes that highly developed life may exist on a hundred million planets.

He will present four lectures and will be available for student discussion groups in science.

Alpha Kappa Gamma Taps New Members

Ceremony Held During Assembly In Jarman Hall

—Staff Photo
AKG MEMBERS P. Hickey and A. Howell congratulate L. Peters, M. Nocher, and A. White.

Alpha Kappa Gamma, national leadership fraternity for women, tapped eight into its membership in a ceremony yesterday at 2 p.m. in Jarman Hall. Five seniors, Neddie Chapman, Morag Nocher, Lois Peters, Nancy Pretty, and Judy Smith and three juniors, Sandra Phlegar, Margaret Vaughan, and Alice White were tapped.

Neddie Chapman, a math major from Blacksburg, has maintained a consistent dean's list average since her freshman year. Among her activities are work with the YWCA, Wesley Foundation, and membership in Kappa Delta Pi and Lynchons. Presently Neddie is treasurer of the senior class.

Senior Morag Nocher is a physical education major from Lynchburg, in sports editor for the Rotunda. Among Lois' activities are work with class and varsity sports, on the Longwood Players, on the Colonnade business staff, and with her class. Lois is a member of Alpha Sigma Tau and active in the Cumberbund Association and in class activities.

Nancy Pretty from Roanoke was also recognized. An elementary education major, Nancy is president of the YWCA, a member of Alpha Sigma Tau, and active in the Cumberbund Association and in class activities.

The final senior to be tapped was Judy Smith, a business major from Portsmouth. Judy is currently president of Phi Mu. In addition she participates in the activities of Phi Kappa Phi, Omega Psi, and serves as head typist for the Colonnade. Judy is also a member of SCA and served as secretary for her freshman class.

First of the Juniors to be tapped was Sandra Phlegar. Sandy is a physical education major from Lynchburg. She is a member of Alpha Gamma Delta, a representative to Student Government from the Junior class, and participates in many phases of athletic activity. Sandy served as treasurer of the OO her sophomore year.

Margaret Vaughan from Ashland is math major. A member of Zeta Tau Alpha, Margaret is also active with the Y Cabinet and is vice-president of the Granddaughters club.

Junior class president Alice White was the final person to be tapped. Alice, a biology major from Norfolk, is active in Alpha Sigma Alpha and was chosen Ring Master for the 1961 Circus. Alpha Kappa Gamma selected these girls in recognition of their leadership abilities and promise of future usefulness to the school in the areas of scholarship, athletics, or campus or social leadership.

Freshman Officers Selected For Year

Maria Ann Grant was elected president of her class for 1961-62 at the meeting held on October 31. Other officers elected were Betty Wright, vice-president; Kathy Dodge, secretary; Lynn Guerin, Treasurer; Amy Haley, student government representative; Wanda Old, student government representative; and Pam Gustafson, dorm president for Ruffner Hall.

Varied Backgrounds

Maria Grant, a sociology major from Lynchburg, was graduated from Holy Cross High School. Betty Wright is a physical education major and is interested in all types of sports. She graduated from Virginia Beach High School and is considering joining the Peace Corps.

A graduate of Thomas Dale High School, Kathy Dodge is majoring in elementary education. She is eighteen years old and very much interested in swimming. She is from Chester.

Lynne Guerin of Fairfax graduated from Fairfax High School and is majoring in French. She enjoys every aspect of college activity.

Anne Marie Haley, better known as "Annie," is a graduate of George Washington High School in Danville. Amy who is also an elementary education major, likes all types of sports and enjoyed her cheerleading career in high school.

Wanda Old comes to Longwood from Roanoke where she graduated from William Fleming High School. Wanda, majoring in and planning to teach biology, is also interested in art.

Pam Gustafson, who is from Virginia Beach, is majoring in history and mathematics. In addition to being dorm president, Pam is also a 1965 "Top Rat" and played the part of the freshman in the freshman circus skit.

This meeting was held in the Main Rec at 11 p.m. Alice White, Junior class president, officiated until Maria Grant was elected, at which point she conducted the meeting.

Alterations Raise Funds

No time to fix that button? No time to take in that dress? Don't panic! Members of the Home Economics Department are available each Thursday afternoon from 1 p.m. to 2 p.m. to make these alterations.

Money-Raising Project

The project was adopted by the Home Economics girls as their major fund raising project. The fee for one hour of alterations is 65 cents, and this altering is done in the Home Economics rooms. There will be no alterations made on the Thursday before Christmas, December 14. Also there will be none accepted on the Thursday prior to examinations or during the examination period.

As the styles change, Home Economics girls suggest that one keep her clothes up to date by using the facilities of this department.

Swimming Test

The Junior Swimming test will be given any day of the week at 4 p.m., running through November 9 and from November 13 to 15.

All students are required to pass a beginner's swimming test or a course in swimming before the end of their Junior year.

Any Junior or senior who hasn't received a notice notifying her of the swimming test, or who has not taken a class in swimming, may report to the pool any day at 4:00 to take the test. Bathing suits, towels, and caps will be furnished.

Editor Leaves Town

"The editor leaves town and nothing goes," is the old newspaper saying. "Headlines don't have to fit," no need to proof the first copy, so what if this story is ten ems too long — they can always squeeze lead and make it fit!" These are the daydreams, (or nightmares, on occasion,) of the members of the Rotunda staff, as the editor basks in the Miami sun. Would that they were true, but headlines must fit, copy must be proofread again and again and again, and everybody knows that lead type cannot be squeezed.

In the absence of the editor, the staff has strived to maintain the Rotunda's high standards of good journalism. Few Longwood students are aware of these standards, not having been trained to recognize them. On such seemingly unimportant point is making headlines "fit" to count the proper number of letters for the space allowed; or writing heads which are original, yet not misleading. These are just a few of the standards to which your staff must conform in order to publish a paper which you can be proud to read and which will represent the college well in other parts of the state. A good yardstick for evaluation is a newspaper from another college. Compare your Rotunda with another college paper.

The Rotunda is constantly changing, adopting new and journalistically better makeup and content. And each week, a great deal of effort and many hours are spent in publishing a newspaper which will inform, entertain, provide an audience for students' ideas, and stimulate the student body to thought and mature action.

—A. A.

Troublesome Times

The following is reprinted from the Mary Baldwin College Campus Comments.

These are troublesome times. We are living in the most dangerous and uncertain period of all history. No longer can we be so naive as to think our country is omnipotent. Russia has just announced that her scientists have worked out projects for building bombs with an explosive power five thousand times the power of the United States' bomb which devastated Hiroshima. Our optimistic Senator Kennedy, the campaigner who vigorously promised to improve a great deal of our foreign relations, is now the fatalistic President Kennedy who agrees with his critics that his administration will be unable to make any marked improvements in many of the world's situations. Instead, the United States will attempt to "hold its own" with foreign nations.

Where are we heading? The Communist Party believes that "capitalism has entered its final stage" and promises a new world, a communist world, to replace the "old order." The present Party Program also promises that as Communism triumphs "labor will be a source of joy . . . man's best moral qualities will reveal themselves in full." In the months and years to come, idealistic promises like these will reach the millions of people looking for a better way of life. How will they react to this? The success or failure of the Communist mission will depend largely on the response it receives from the West.

The time of the "sunshine patriot" is long gone. Americans must fight for their peace and freedom or assuredly they will lose them. Their armor will be Truth; their shield, Knowledge; their spear, Faith. The world must know the Truth about our government; America needs a stronger propagandist program and enthusiastic ambassadors who are so convinced of the greatness of their country that their zeal is contagious. She needs patriots who thoroughly understand her government and are willing to fight for its preservation. Most important of all, she needs Faith to carry her through these troublesome times. Americans must believe that God will not give up a people, who have seriously attempted to unite the world in love and harmony, to nuclear destruction, or leave them helplessly to perish.

—Janice Smith

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

Faculty Birthday Dinner Provokes Original Hats

Last Wednesday, the faculty let their hair down and came to a banquet given by the Sister System, modeling original, homemade hats representing their birthday month.

A social committee, headed by Mrs. Magnifico, was in charge of entertainment at the banquet. Members of the committee were Mrs. Bobbitt, Dr. Jeffers, Miss Spear, and Miss Trent. The social committee had a parade of hats, which was followed by singing of birthday songs.

Hats Original
Many original hats were worn to the banquet. Mrs. Bobbitt wore a mortarboard, covered it with halloween paper and attached little plastic pumpkins and candy to the corners. She had a plastic pumpkin sitting on top. Mrs. Dugger, born in June, wore a bride's veil. On the back of the veil was a sign—"Wanted—

One Groom."

There were many Christmas hats at the banquet. Miss Spear used an old hat, wrapped up several boxes with Christmas paper and attached the boxes to her hat. She had a string of Christmas lights around the hat but, as she said, "I couldn't get them to come on." Mrs. Moran had an old hat completely covered with evergreen, with Christmas decorations attached to the evergreen. Dr. Lane had a Santa Claus hat on.

Mrs. Jones, born in October, had taken fall leaves, covered them with wax and attached the leaves to a hat. She had a plastic pumpkin on top of her hat, wired so it would light up.

A prize was given at the banquet for the most original hat. Mrs. Jones received the prize for her original creation of a lighted Halloween pumpkin.

Puzzled LC Students Ponder Tub Versus Shower Problem

By Mary Beth Olson

For all those who have a rigorous schedule of activities and have trouble organizing their spare time, it is imperative that one understand the necessity of a Saturday night bath—no shower.

A shower is an ingenious device arranged to scald one in a moment. In another second one may suffer from an acute case of chills. The spray is guaranteed to dampen anything within fifty feet—hair, eye-makeup, bedroom slippers, towel, and dry clothes.

If the soap should slither to the floor during the process of showering, all is lost! Either one braves over to pick up the sneaky little thing—which is the cue for the shower to send forth a rush of extremely hot water, or one risks stepping on the slippery little bar and breaking an arm, leg, or neck. There is also the possibility of getting a lethal dose of water in the eyes, mouth, nostrils, or ears.

Upon slipping out of the shower one may feel invigorated or exhilarated—the same sensation can be gained from dashing up and down the hockey field for an hour, stumbling up three flights of stairs, or plowing through the crowd going into the dining hall.

It takes thought, ingenuity, and time to take a bath. A bath is an opportunity to learn how to budget one's time. Perhaps a course in the art of taking a bath should be required. The fundamentals of bath-taking include such essentials as the following:

1. Turn both the hot and cold water faucets until a stream of water appears. Place a large plug in the drain to prevent the water from escaping. Blend the mixture of hot and cold carefully and test it with the left elbow.
2. While the water is filling the tub assemble the necessary

Berkis Discloses Law As Former Profession

By Mary Anne Lipford

Returning from his usual ten o'clock Friday morning class, the history professor found two girls waiting at his office door. He warmly urged both students to come into the small, uncluttered room and began at once to look for the blond's recent test. A wide smile revealed her apparent satisfaction with her grade — indeed, an extremely high grade for a freshman's first test — and the professor carefully pointed out her errors. Here were two new faces at Longwood; both, Dr. Alexander V. Berkis, the attractive freshman were rather symbolic, it seemed, of two new beginnings which held promising futures. Both would do well here; the freshman was obviously interested in her test results, and Dr. Berkis was clearly concerned that she understand the test. Displaying a genuine interest, he commended her on an "excellent background and understanding" as she left. Then he settled himself into a chair and turned his attention to the other girl — the author of this article.

Dr. Berkis is a native of Latvia, where he practiced law as a trial lawyer after receiving his Master of Law Degree from the University of Latvia. Dr. Berkis recollects defending many cases, but an outstanding one in his mind is a particular murder case. His client was convicted and given a death sentence, for all the evidence appeared to be against him. Skillful arguments and an appeal to a higher court brought victory to Dr. Berkis for his client. At the mention of another trial lawyer, television's Perry Mason, Longwood's Berkis smiles, amused. He assures us that Mason is highly glamorized: "I could never unlock doors . . . go into people's homes and search!"

Dr. Berkis' shingle came down when he fled the Communists in Latvia and went to Germany to live for over five years. There, as Chairman of the Committee of the Refugee Center, he directed the entire educational program of the 125,000 Latvian refugees who had fled Communism after World War II, as he had done. Six per cent of the Latvian population actually went into exile. Dr. Berkis' task in Germany was a mammoth one; he was responsible not only for the school system, but the cultural program for his fellow refugees. One of these refugees became his wife in Germany and came with him to the States in 1959. "After I lost my native country, I saw no reason to linger in Europe. I believe there would not be a Berlin Crisis today if all Europeans would forget their jealousy of Germany—she has built up rapidly since the War—and formed a strong European Army" Dr. Berkis says he decided to leave Germany for this same reason eleven years ago; he simply couldn't digest the fact that the Europeans were "committing suicide" via their hatred for Germany—hatred which made them blind to the real issues at stake: Communism and the Russians.

In America, Dr. Berkis studied at the University of Wisconsin and received his M.A. and his PhD. in history. He then moved southward and began a five-year stay at High Point College. He is very glad, he says, to now be in Virginia because " . . . it is the state richest in tradition and history. I appreciate that." Then, too, he is glad to be closer to Washington and the doors of the Library of Congress—familiar doors to him, as he works to complete his second book. His first, The Escape of Duke James in Cowland, is a history of his native country and was published in 1960. This first work was written in English, although Dr. Berkis has had numerous excerpts and articles published in Latvian and European journals.

What does a scholarly history professor do in his leisure time? Dr. Berkis leans toward physical exercises: walking, skating, and skiing. He and Mr. Helms engage in an occasional game of chess, and, of course, Dr. Berkis reads. His favorite books are not history-related, however. He reads volumes on medicine and philosophy—but never best sellers.

Asked his opinion of Longwood girls as scholars, Dr. Berkis says he is " . . . satisfied to realize the quality of students here, especially freshmen."

As his interviewer rose to leave, she asked a final question, more for curiosity than a scoop: "How'd you like the way Circus came out?" "Fine," replied her new friend with a smile, "It was quite a new and different experience for me!"

only be introduced after the other principles have been mastered.

The advanced bath-taker may take as long as an hour seated in a fragrant tub, (fragrance is an advanced skill, introduced immediately after soft music—washing away the tensions of the week.

BATHTUB ENTHUSIAST, C. Flynn, makes last minute test, checks equipment. —Staff Photo

Sports Review

UVA Wins First Conference Tilt In Three Years

By Sue Beardmore

For the first time in three years, the University of Virginia won an Atlantic Coast Conference game by upsetting South Carolina 28-20 in Saturday's game. Doug Thomson, a sophomore fullback, was the game's leading ground gainer with 81 yards in 18 carries. Thomson scored the first and last touchdowns, and staged the finest performance by a Virginia player since 1958 when UVA beat Duke.

VMI can no longer claim the title, "Southern Conference champs." For two years VMI has whipped Citadel in the final conference game of each season, but the tide turned against the Keydets this season. The Bulldogs trailed 8-7 when they made the winning touchdown in the fourth quarter and clinched the Southern Conference Title. The Citadel's two remaining games are against non-league foes. The final score was 14-8.

The Ohio State Buckeyes defeated Iowa's Hawkeyes by 29 to 13 Saturday before a large crowd of 83,795 spectators. This was Ohio's fourth straight win in the battle for the "Big Ten" championship. As a result of this game, Iowa is no longer in the running. Iowa has beaten the Bucks twice in the last two years, but evidently OSU coach, Woody Hayes, statement that "we never lose three straight games to anyone" is true.

University of Richmond routed Virginia Tech 14-0 in Saturday's football contest. Brent Vann, halfback, scored the first touchdown ten seconds before the half ended as 14,500 fans roared their approval. The Spiders scored a safety and field goal in the fourth quarter when Tech's Warren Price "fielded" a 50-yard punt on the Tech goal line. This was the first win by a Richmond team over Tech since 1950.

Timely Topics

U Thant Replaces Dag, Russia Continues Tests

By Lewan Rippey

Fifty-two year old U. Thant from Burma has been chosen as acting secretary general of the United Nations to replace the late Dag Hammarskjöld. He is a practicing nurse who supports what he believes is right—whether it is Communist or West. As head of Burma's delegation he has denounced the Soviet Union for its intervention in Hungary and the United States for its position on Cuba. He is against any attempt to weaken the secretary general's powers, which Soviet Premier Khrushchev has been attempting by proposing a three-headed Troika in place of the secretary general. He feels weakening of these powers would weaken the UN.

The Atomic Energy Commission said Saturday that the Russians are continuing nuclear test explosions in the Arctic. Another atmosphere shot in the Novaya Zembla area, where the 50-megaton superbomb blast of October 30 was exploded. The fallout cloud from this 50-megaton superbomb passed over the Great Lakes region and eastern Canada. Saturday heading for the Atlantic Ocean. The test on November 4, last Saturday, was the 31st in the current series.

The United States Weather Bureau, tracking the radioactive ash from the 50-megaton superbomb said there is no danger of contamination at this time. Premier Khrushchev declared that the series of tests will be extended if the U. S. resumes tests in the atmosphere.

Most of the Russian people have no knowledge of these nuclear explosions by the Russian

SELECTED FOR SECOND TIDEWATER TEAM were V. Parker, T. Childress, P. Waldo, L. Hatch, J. Harris.

5 Longwood Girls Honored During Week End Tourney

By Barbara Agee

Five Longwood girls were chosen as members of the second Tidewater team at the annual Tidewater Hockey Tournament which was held here last weekend, November 3 and 4. The purpose of the tournament was to select the individuals who will compose the team which will play in the Southeastern Tournament in Roanoke November 17 and 18. The five girls selected were Trina Childress, Janice Harris, Lindy Hatch, Virginia Parker, and Peggy Waldo. The Little Colonels, a professional club in Richmond, was the only other team to have as many as five of its members named to the Tidewater team.

The first game of the tournament pitted Longwood against Westhampton. It proved to be an exciting game, with Longwood winning 2-1. As Freshman physical education major Judy Wilson describes it, "It was, I believe, the best game we have played. They all worked together like clockwork. There was also a penalty goal, which is unusual."

In the second game, held at 2:40 pm, on Friday, the Richmond Club defeated William and Mary 4-0, and at 4 pm, the Little Colonels closed out the Petersburg Club 5-0. Both games were played on campus.

At 3:30 on Friday at the Estate field, the Norfolk Division of William and Mary went down to Mary Washington, 5-0, rewarding the good work of the Mary Washington forward line, the team's unity, and the excellent defense.

In the fifth game of the tournament and Saturday's first game, Westhampton met and successfully conquered the Norfolk Division, with a score of 3-1. Excellent offensive play was the key for Westhampton. They dominated the first half, scoring two goals. A quick second-half goal by the Division was followed later by another Westhampton score. At 10 am, William and Mary (Williamsburg) met the Mary Washington team in a close game resulting in a 2-2 tie.

On the lighter side of news, Princess Margaret of Britain gave birth to a 6 pound 4 ounce boy on Friday, November 3. The boy is the fifth heir to the throne.

General Maxwell D. Taylor, the President's military adviser, has just recently returned from a first-hand study of the Southeast Asian cold war front. On his arrival Friday he indicated that he was against sending U. S. combat forces to Viet Nam, because they have plenty of manpower. A rising Communist onslaught is aided by the Vietnamese lack of morale and confidence, due partially to the lack of political freedom and of economic-social betterment.

Hurricane Hattie struck British Honduras on October 31. As of Saturday the death toll had reached 204. British soldiers from Jamaica were brought in to enforce martial law to prevent the looting of food.

Blue'n Whites Lose To Roanoke College

By Lefty Snyder

The Varsity Hockey team met defeat for the second time this season in their match against Roanoke College in Roanoke on November 1. The Blue'n Whites found themselves pitted against a strong offensive and defensive Roanoke team whose record was one of no losses after the climactic victory over Longwood. Although the score was tied 1-1 at one time, the hostess team scored another goal to down our Varsity 2-1.

Those seniors who played their last inter-collegiate hockey game for Longwood were: Trina Ann Childress, Morag Nocher, Virginia Parker, Pave Ripley, and Jo Syvace. Others in the starting line-up were Janice Harris, Lindy Hatch, Sandy Phevar, Barbara Gray Martin, Betty Lou Dunn, and Flossie Barnard.

Longwood's Second Team ended their season with a crushing defeat over Roanoke's Second Team to become undefeated for the year. The team exhibited excellent spirit and teamwork as they took the lead in the game and prevented their opponents from scoring throughout the remainder of the game. The final score of the game was 3-0.

Susan Coe, Lois Obenstain, Shirley Metcalf, Sharron Sarver, Barbara Stewart, Lefty Snyder, Gay Taylor, Peggy Waldo, and Judy Wilson were the starting eleven who sparked the second team to another undisputed win.

Patronize

The Rotunda

Advertisers

TAKING ROLL-IN for Longwood is B. L. Dunn, Tidewater official, L. Chapman, watches.

HOLLYWOOD
BEAUTY COLLEGE
102 N. Main
EX 2-9091

Shampoo Set ..... $1.00
Hair Cut ..... $1.00
Perm. Wave ..... $5.00
(Includes Shampoo, Set, & Cut)

DOROTHY MAY'S

Full Lined Socks
Queen Casuals
for $5.99
(Imported from Italy)

Need A Study Break?

Visit Your COLLEGE SNACK BAR
for a
Special Treat

COPYRIGHT © 1961, THE COCA-COLA COMPANY. COCA-COLA AND COKE ARE REGISTERED TRADEMARKS.

KEEP YOUR DATES STRAIGHT

Buy A Pi Delta Epsilon Activities Calendar

Time is Running Out . . .

Buy Your Virginian
NOW!

GREAT BETWEEN COURSES!

Get that refreshing new feeling with Coke!

Bottled under authority of The Coca-Cola Company by

Lynchburg Bottling Company, Lynchburg, Va.

'Dozen Snappers' Enter, 'Jazz Up' Circus Parade

As the Circus Parade passed, many people were surprised that it contained a band. Some were not aware that Longwood had such an organization at all.

The Longwood Band is a regularly scheduled class that can be taken either with or without credit. It meets under the direction of Mr. Clifford L. Smith once a week for the purpose of "giving instrumentalists of the college an opportunity to perform the best in band music and to develop further their interest in their instruments." It is open to all students who wish to participate, and meets at 4 p.m. on Wednesday afternoon.

Tuba Player

As can be expected of any band in an all girls' college, the main problem that faces the band is instrumentalization. Girl flute and clarinet players are not hard to find, and trumpet, trombone, and drum players are becoming more and more common. However, the band has yet to find a girl tuba player. Thus, the band seems a little overpowered by the higher instruments. To alleviate this problem, many members are assigned to lower pitched instruments. Most of the instruments used belong to the school, but many members prefer to use their own.

Officers of the band are president, Vandal Holman; secretary-treasurer, Christine Longstreet; and librarian, Evelyn Ford.

"Dozen Snappers"

The "Dozen Snappers" the clown band that performed in the Circus parade, while members of the Longwood Band, were performing as individuals who were asked by AKG to play. These twelve girls, dressed as clowns, played, "When the Saints Go Marching In" and "Bill Bailey" while riding on the back of a truck. Those in the Circus band were flute, Barbara Sours; clarinet, Rosa Doyle and Linda Wilson; trumpet, Ginny Gilmore, Silvia Jones, and Mary Langran; french horns, Evelyn Ford and Linda Deane; trombone, Christine Longstreet; baritone, Vandal Tompkins; and drum, Sue Dews and Nancy Oldfield.

Where do great ideas come from?

Every major advance in our nation's civilization, from the days of the Constitution and the Bill of Rights, has been guided by men of vision—men equipped by education to create great ideas.

So, at the very core of our progress is the college classroom. It is there that the great ideas of the future will be born. That is why our colleges and universities are of vital concern to every American. Hampered by lack of funds they are doing their utmost to raise their teaching standards, and to meet the steadily rising pressure of enrollment.

They need the help of all who love freedom, all who hope for continued progress in science, in statesmanship, in the better things of life. And they need it now!

If you want to know what the college crisis means to you, write for a free booklet to: HIGHER EDUCATION, Box 36, Times Square Station, New York 36, New York.

State Theatre FARMVILLE, VA.

NOVEMBER 8-9-10-11

THE CARON-CHEVALIER
STORY BY BOYER-BUCHHOLZ

NOVEMBER 12-13-14-15

FROLICKING during faculty birthday dinner are Mrs. Janice Lemen, Dr. Moss, Miss Spear.

Jarman, Art Department Display Two Exhibits Of Paintings Here

From November 6-20, there is a display of the art works of Mrs. Janice Lemen, professor of art at Longwood, and of the late Mrs. Elizabeth Nottingham Day, in the Art Department Gallery and in the Jarman Art Lobby.

Taught Art

Before her death in 1956, Mrs. Day was head of the Art Department at Mary Baldwin College in Staunton. She was a graduate of Randolph Macon Woman's College, and upon graduation, she studied painting for three years in New York. Having won the Edward McDowell Traveling Fellowship in 1931, she exhibited in European museums. In 1941, she married an artist, Horace Day, and both became instructors of art at Mary Baldwin College. She was then made head of the art department, where she remained until her death in 1956.

National Exhibitor

She was president of the Virginia Art Association and a member of the Virginia Art Commission. She and her husband spent their summers in Southwest Virginia, in New England, and on Edisto Island, S. C. Mrs. Day's works have been exhibited nationally and are included in the collections of many galleries and museums. One of her paintings is owned by Longwood College and can be found in the Rotunda. The exhibit in the Art Department is all water colors loaned to the college by the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts.

Three LC Students Attend Conference

Three Longwood seniors were the first students to be present at a conference of the Virginia Humanities Association.

Three Lauded

Dr. Davis Y. Paschall, president of William and Mary, paid special tribute to Betty Farley, Judy Delrich, and Ellen DuPuy, in his address welcoming the assembled humanities professors to his college on October 21. The three are English majors at Longwood.

Three humanities professors from here attended the conference. They were Dr. Marvin W. Schlegel, Dr. Dorothy B. Schlegel, and Dr. R. K. Meeker. The topic of discussion at the meeting was "Progress Made in the Humanities."

Meeker Speaks

Dr. Meeker presented to the association audience a survey of the changes made in English course offerings in the past nine years. He made the following observations in his address:

(1) There is an "almost dangerous trend" toward the trimming-away of courses dealing with the pre-Renaissance period.

(2) The offering of more descriptive linguistics courses is giving greater sophistication to our study of languages.

(3) Greater stress should be placed upon the study of European literature.

A tendency to "cut across national boundaries in literature" is evident in the trend toward classifying a story by its "type," rather than by the age in which it was written.

Cooperation Stressed

According to Dr. Meeker, the major purpose of the Virginia Humanities Association is to stress interdepartmental cooperation. He stated that humanities professors are concerned with human values, whereas professors of the sciences are concerned with facts.

For Art Supplies

and School Books

Visit Your

CAMPUS BOOK STORE

Come In and See

Our

Silver Disc Pins .... $3.30

And Earrings ..... $4.40

at

MARTIN

THE JEWELER

GIVE FOR CHRISTMAS!

The New

English Bible—$4.95

The Layman's Bible

Commentary—$7.00

American Heritage

History of Civil War

$19.95

Amy Vanderbilt's

Complete Etiquette

$5.50

Better Homes & Garden

Cook Book—$3.95

Poetry Collections and

Gift Editions

$1.00 up

WEYANOKO

BOOK STORE

200 High Street

Phone EX 2-4027

THEY SAID IT COULDN'T BE DONE - BUT TODAY'S L&M GIVES YOU-

They said it couldn't be done...until the Wright Brothers flew this plane for 59 seconds in 1909. Today flying is so much a part of modern life that 40 American colleges offer regular flying courses, many of them for degree credit.

Puff
by puff

Less tars & More taste

DON'T SETTLE FOR ONE WITHOUT THE OTHER!

Change to L&M and get 'em both. Such an improved filter and more taste! Better taste than in any other cigarette. Yes, today's L&M combines these two essentials of modern smoking enjoyment—less tars and more taste—in one great cigarette.

Light into that Live Modern flavor!

© 1961 LIGGETT & MYERS TOBACCO CO.

COLUMBUS BOYCHOIR re-enacts scene from "Amahl and the Night Visitors."

Lyceum Choir Gives 'Amahl'

By Ann M. Smith

The Columbus Boychoir will appear at Longwood College November 21, for this year's first Lyceum program. The choir will present Gian-Carlo Menotti's TV opera, "Amahl and the Night Visitors."

Community Enterprise

The Columbus Boychoir originated as a community enterprise in Columbus, Ohio. Mr. Herbert Huffman, assisted by the Kiwanis Club and the Broad Street Church, founded the Columbus Boychoir School in 1940.

The school is now located in Princeton, New Jersey. It offers regular academic instruction in grades four through nine, with a special emphasis on music, including three hours of rehearsal daily.

Musical Director

Mr. Donald T. Bryant is now musical director and head of the school, having succeeded Herbert Huffman in 1956.

The Columbus Boychoir was chosen by the State Department and the American National Theatre and Academy as the first youth group to represent the United States abroad under President Eisenhower's International Program for Cultural Presentations. The choir toured seventeen South and Central American countries and sang to over 40,000 people.

College Day Held This Week End, 100 To Visit LC

This year, Longwood College will hold its College Day Program on November 18. Approximately one hundred girls throughout the state and from Maryland will attend.

At 9 a.m. the girls will register in the Rounda. If any girl wishes, she may attend classes from 9 until 11 a.m. During this time, cakes will be served in the Main Rec. At 12:15 the girls will have lunch in the college dining room. A meeting with administrators and department heads will be held in the Small Auditorium at 1 p.m. and from 2:30 until 3:30 the high school students will have a tour of the campus.

This is the second time that the college day program has been held.

Virginians

The Virginian staff is 'selling' annuals every night after supper on second floor Rounda and the members of the staff will be contacting the student body individually soon. The staff asks that annuals be bought before Thanksgiving. Anyone who has not bought an annual before this time cannot buy one later. The Virginian is $5.

Joint Concert

They have appeared in a joint concert with Argentina's National Symphony Orchestra, and have performed with Leonard Bernstein and the New York Philharmonic, with Fred Waring and his Music Workshop group at Shawnee, Pennsylvania, and with many other top artists.

They have also appeared in a Christmas show at Radio City Music Hall, and have been featured on such television shows as Omnibus, Steve Allen, Arthur Godfrey and the Bell Telephone Hour.

The Columbus Boychoir School has an enrollment of seventy. From this enrollment, twenty-six selected singers go on tour.

Plans Complete On Construction Of LC Buildings

Longwood signed a contract with Andrews, Large, and Whidden, local contractors, November 4. This was the first step toward the building of a new laundry and gym which are expected to be completed and ready for use by September, 1962. The two buildings are expected to cost $500,000.

At present, the old "T" building is being torn down to provide space for the new and more spacious laundry. It is also hoped that plans for a street leading from Madison Street by the laundry to the rear of the dining hall are realized before next September. In the future, the equipment necessary for the maintenance of the school will be located on this street. This is part of the plan to improve the appearance of back campus.

Dr. Lankford said that the old laundry will not be torn down but will be used for other purposes. The new gymnasium will be located diagonally across from South Cunningham on the corner of Madison and Pine Streets.

VOLUME XLII

Longwood College, Farmville, Va., November 15, 1961

No. 7

'Crichton' Opens Thursday

Nineteen Chosen For 'Who's Who'

REHEARSING SCENE FROM "The Admirable Crichton" are E. Baker, C. McNair, B. Atkinson.

'Admirable Crichton' Opens November 16

By Doris Smith

Opening night jitters! Whoever heard of such a thing? Just because everyone backstage is running around in a frantic race to get scenery, props, make-up, costumes, and lights just right, is no sign that anyone is the least bit nervous over opening night of the big play.

Jarman Hall may be the scene of such activity beginning November 16 at 8 p.m. as the Longwood Players and the Hampden-Sydney Jongleurs combine their efforts in the production of "The Admirable Crichton" by James M. Barrie.

Farce Situation

The play may be called farce in the concession to the Victorian audience but it does not involve magic or the supernatural. It does involve a farce situation in which the British class system prevails when it is transferred to another environment, but with absolute reversal of individual positions.

In England, the lords and ladies fill their "natural roles" as masters of butlers and kitchen maids, but on the island the "natural capabilities" of butlers and kitchen maids reverse the classes, and the butler becomes master of the island. Barrie draws an ironic, humorous, and faintly bitter conclusion in the scenes that follow.

Elements of Satire

The play itself is a competition as to style, the basic framework being Edwardian "well-made" sentimental comedy. But it also contains elements of farce and the social satire that was beginning to be the "avant garde" movement of the period as exemplified by Shaw and others. The core of the play is essentially situation comedy.

(Continued on page 4)

Lankford Recognizes Seniors In Assembly

Yesterday in assembly nineteen seniors were named to Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities. These girls are chosen by the faculty and administration on leadership qualities and promise of future service.

The seniors who were chosen are:

Mattie Blewett, Gimmie Chapman, Neddie Chapman, Judy Detrich, Carolyn Elliott, Peggy Green, Pat Hickey, Ann Howell, Maddie MacNeil, Mary Byrd McCou, Dibby Mohr, Morag Nocher, Jane Pennington, Nancy Pretty, Jo Savage, Diana Snow, Page Tolleson, Becky Tuck, and Sandra Weaver.

Blewett Serves

Mattie Blewett from Hampton is a member of AKG, and has served on Student Government for four years, serving as secretary in 1960, and as vice-president this year. Mattie has also been active with the BSU, this year serving as president.

Gimmie Chapman is from Bonoke, and is a member and president of Zeta Tau Alpha, president of Alpha Psi Omega honorary dramatics fraternity, treasurer and technical director for Longwood Players. Last year, she was president of the Panhellenic Council.

Active in religious organizations on campus, Neddie Chapman was treasurer of the YWCA last year, and is president of the Wesley Foundation this year. Her other activities include serving as treasurer of her class and of the Lynchos Society this year, member of Kappa Delta Pi, and a member of Alpha Kappa Gamma.

Judy Detrich from Hampton is most interested in literary activities. She is currently serving as editor of the Columbian, historian of Beore Eth Thorn and of her class, and vice-president of Pi Delta Epsilon. Judy has also served on the Rounda as feature editor for three years, and is a member of the Cotillion Club and

AKG.

Editor Elliott

Carolyn Elliott from Hopewell is currently serving as editor of the Virginian. She served as assistant circulation manager of the Rounda and assistant literary editor of the Virginian last year. Carolyn is a member of the Longwood Players, the Rounda staff, and the Cotillion Club.

Peggy Green, a member of AKG, is also a member of Kappa Delta sorority, Kappa Delta Pi, Pi Delta Epsilon, Beore Eth Thorn, and the yearbook staff. For 1960-61, she was vice-president of her class, literary editor of the Virginian, and vice-president of Kappa Delta. This year, she is president of KD, vice-president of Beore Eth Thorn, treasurer of AKG, and was a clown in Circus.

Pat Hickey from Richmond, has been treasurer of her freshman class, class representative to student government for the past two years, and she is now president of the Newman Club, vice-president of AKG, and corresponding secretary of Alpha Sigma Alpha sorority. Ann Howell, also from Richmond, is active in school organizations. She has served as secretary, treasurer, and currently as president, of House Council. She has been secretary-treasurer of the Madrilal Singers, treasurer of Alpha Sigma Alpha sorority, and is a member of AKG.

MacNeil active Music major Maddie MacNeil is a member of the Madrilal Singers, having been president in her sophomore year, a member

(Continued on page 4)

Astronomer Shapley Lectures Next Week

By Diane Smith

Dr. Harlow Shapley, the eminent astronomer, will visit Longwood College as a Danforth Visiting Lecturer on November 20-21.

More Lectures

This outstanding man is credited by many to have delivered more lectures on science, especially astronomy, than any other ranking American scientist.

His wit, verve, and eloquence, combined with his mastery of his own field and his knowledge of other fields of science, have kept him in constant demand for many years. His interests extend from the physiology of the tiny ant to the farthest reaches of space.

Strength Education The Danforth Visiting Lecturer program is "to strengthen the intellectual, religious and cultural aspects of liberal education in the United States."

While on campus, Dr. Shapley will give a public lecture on "Galaxies and Man's Place in the Universe" and an assembly address on "Science Ponders Religion." During two informal meetings with students, Dr. Shapley will discuss "The Origin and Development of Life" and "Probing Interplanetary Space."

Dr. Shapley completed his formal education at Carthage Academy, the University of Missouri, and Princeton University. He was on the staff of the Mt. Wilson Observatory at Pasadena, California for the next seven years. For the following 31 years, he was director of the Harvard College Observatory at Cambridge, and from 1952-1956 he was Lecturer on Cosmography at Harvard University.

Latest Book

One of his latest books is Of Stars and Men which provides a definite "yes" to one of the most provocative of all scientific questions: "Is there life on other planets?" Dr. Shapley feels that some forms of life may exist on a hundred million planets—perhaps more.

Of Stars and Men has been published in Swedish, Japanese, Italian and Hindi; it is also in a paperback edition, and is being made into a full-length motion picture.

Dr. Shapley's visit to Longwood is made possible by a project sponsored jointly by the Association of American Colleges and the Danforth Foundation. His tours as a Danforth Visiting Lecturer will take him to 23 outstanding colleges and universities.

EMINENT ASTRONOMER, Harlow Shapley prepares for lecture series.

All Bad Things . . .

At the risk of being accused of sticking our necks (notably extraordinarily long ones) out, we should like to make a suggestion. We do not ask for immediate action, but we do ask for student reaction via letters to the editor.

Why don't we try to bring some good movies here? Not downtown, but here on the Longwood campus. We don't mean "Marjorie Morningstar," but the so-called "art" movie. We seem to recall that "Death of a Salesman" proved to draw quite a crowd to Jarman.

What we don't know is how many of the students who saw the "Salesman" were there only because some English professor made it mandatory that they be there. We'd like to think that a goodly number of the student body would be enthusiastic over the opportunity to view some of the good art movies that they may otherwise not have the chance to see. We'd like to think it so much that we are willing to back, either in or out of print, a campaign to bring at least one art movie to this campus as an experiment.

Other colleges show art movies regularly, either with free admission (we assume that they are paid for through some medium equivalent to our Campus Fees Committee), or at reduced admission prices. A really good film such as "Hiroshima Mon Amour" would provide the kind of entertainment we for the most part miss on this campus. This kind of entertainment would be a godsend for the bored but not inebriated students, dating or dateless, who don't wish to spend Saturday night seeing the Cavalry overcome the Indians for the forty-ninth time.

The main objection, we conclude, is the fear that no one here gives a snap whether or not they ever see an art movie. We don't believe this is true, but the only way Longwood students will ever be able to see an art movie on this campus is for those same Longwood students to ask for the privilege. Do you want it?

Campus Art Movies

"Oh, dear God, how I hate school. I hate the hurry and the pressure, the insincere people, the false values; and most of all I hate the ugliness of everything around me."

"Funny that you should see ugliness. Look out your window. The bare trees are like arms groping toward the bleak sky. Patterns in black and gray. Don't you see it?"

"The trees are cold and I am too. I hate winter. My room is always unbearably hot, except on the most frigid evenings, and then we are subject to sub-zero temperatures on the hall. Besides, who has time to look at trees groping toward the sky? I have a five hundred word theme due tomorrow at eight a.m. And, oh, dear God, how I hate to get up in the morning."

"Where would you be? Out of the atmosphere of searching and creating your own thoughts? Away from here? It is always cold in the wintertime, and winter brings a solitude of its own. Look, now the trees outside are swaying in a strange ritualistic dance. The dance is like the winter. It's a funny mixture of something peaceful and something searching and reaching, waiting, looking for something better."

"Wind, blah."

"Listen, the wind is louder now."

"It is! That means it'll be colder tomorrow. And my winter coat needs to be hemmed up. I just don't understand it. All the bad things happen to me, and all the beautiful things happen to you."

Around The Campi

To those seniors who have finished—but finished!—their nine-weeks exams: It's not a big thing, girls. Just remember on the second-go-round "Statistics can be fun!" So you can't graduate—you'll have a boll you fifth year.

To those lucky enough to have made it to their student teaching go wishes for luck and success. You'll be missed during the next few weeks.

To those who have returned go citations for courageous work in the field. We're glad you're back in the organization.

"Everybody's favorite," J. D. Salinger, has had his latest, Franny and Zooey, on the top ten list for weeks.

Do professors realize that it is just as discourteous of them to keep a class after the hour is up as it is for their students to be late in coming to class?

Why don't Longwood students write letters to the editor of the Rotunda? It is one of the most effective ways of getting ideas across to those who can carry them out.

Did you know that Joan of Arc is held in high esteem by Soviet history students because of her nationalism?

As this is the last Rotunda before the Thanksgiving holidays, the staff takes this opportunity to wish you and yours "Happy Turkey Day."

—Staff

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

"D RATHER, YOU DIDN'T CREDIT ME AS 'GIVING' YOU THIS 'F'— YOU EARNED IT."

'Funny Campus Fire' Sparks Blistering Day

By Mary Ann Lipford

A funny fire? This reporter who ambitiously approached the Wheeler fire from an amusing feature angle and emerged from interviews completely thwarted is convinced: there was nothing funny about the Wednesday morning fire in Longwood's newest, most beautiful, and most fireproof dorm.

Second Floor?

Trudging up to Wheeler's second floor (which is really the third floor—Longwood wants its girls to use their minds!), we viewed the scene of the fire, a maid's closet. There on the blistered door was a smudged and sooty call-down chart.

Mrs. Thelma Baber, Wheeler's beloved head resident, jokingly remarked that her second-floor girls had had their sins burned away! At the top of the chart was a sad-looking nebbish (or was it a ghost? Our art appreciation is below par!) who alone witnessed the entire fire and who really knows how and when it began.

Box of Paper

Apparently the fire started in a box of paper supplies producing heat of obvious intensity: the air-lick, windowless room of cement blocks and tile floor displays burns that might have been disastrous in a less fireproof place.

Fortunate it was that the fire chose the closed closet—and not Ruffner, Post Office, or even a dress storage closet—to spend early Wednesday morning.

This should point out the value of a truly fireproof room, where damage is concentrated but limited, and should steer Longwood students to more sober thoughts of fire extinguishers, regulations, and precautions.

Not Funny

It is not uproariously funny that no one knew there was a fire extinguisher on the opposite end of the hall. What is amusing about no one's knowing how to use the extinguisher even if its location had been well-known? Mrs. Baber called a dorm meeting Wednesday night and re-emphasized the old fire regulations.

1. Smoking is absolutely prohibited in any of the dress storage rooms.

2. No one may enter a maid's closet with a lit cigarette.

3. Cigarette butts are not to be thrown on the floor anywhere in the dorm.

4. Trash cans are to be used only for waste paper; sand-filled cans are for disposal of cigarettes.

Wednesday's Wheeler fire further brought to light another point: there should be some connection between the loud ear-splitting alarm which rang through the interior of the dorm and the outside.

Outside Alarm

Except for the deafened Wheeler residents, no one else on campus knew about the fire! Perhaps an outside alarm, or one connected with downtown's fire department is the solution.

Hero

What about a hero? Did our fire have the conventional hero? Some reports had it that Mr. Merritt was called to the rescue, and bravely extinguished the flames after they were discovered by an unknown heroine, probably a second-floor inhabitant.

One story had it that Mr. Merritt was directed to extinguish a fire on second floor Wheeler. Taking these directions too literally, he engulfed first floor Wheeler with water! Of course this—the only amusing aspect of the whole fire was false, so our hopes for a humorous "second" were forgotten. Actually, credit for putting out the fire should go to Robert Bolling, Wheeler's janitor.

Substitute Humor

Mrs. Baber, sensing that the fire in her dormitory had been somewhat of a "loser" as far as humor was concerned, kindly offered an amusing anecdote about a fire in her own past: years ago, she and her husband returned to their new apartment, two happy newlyweds after their honeymoon. The apartment was filled with already-paid-for furniture and shiny wedding gifts. The first night home, a disastrous fire raged through the apartment house and wiped out all the new couple had. Nevertheless, this fire at least produced some funny incidents! One was a large, portly man who tenderly carried a sofa pillow to safety, but threw a large mirror out the window to save it! Mrs. Baber recalls that her then-fashionable raccoon coat was minus one arm after that fire; it burned off as she escaped through the flames.

Though we are grateful that the recent fire produced no extensive damages, one thing must be admitted as a news story: Wheeler's fire wasn't so "hot!"

Patronize

The Rotunda

Advertisers

Thanksgiving Brings Relatives, Memories

By Mary Beth Olson

Thanksgiving is a time of rosy cheeks, football cheers, oranges and browns, the smell of roasting turkey and spicy gingerbread, a crackling fire, and the murmur of familiar voices.

The bustle of dressing for the game is accompanied by the prancing voice, "Dear, it's getting late. Come on!" The finishing touches are quickly examined.

Gloves are hastily donned as one wraps the gay, knit scarf in the colors of "our team" about the shoulders. The horns honking, the cars decorated in crumpled paper streamers, the large "mums" on camel coats are indications of the season.

Home Center

The leaves have lost their crimson hue, fading into rust, oranges and browns. The air is sharp and biting, unadorned with the scent of burning leaves. However, the home is the center of a crackling. Within its walls there is a warming glow.

Preparations for the meal are underway. The celery and onions are boiling. Soon they will be combined with the bread crumbs to create the stuffing for the enormous de-feathered bird needed in the roasting pan. The crust for the pie is molded, but lacks its pumpkin filling.

Dad is in his favorite chair with his legs stretched out. He's wearing the old brown scarf that have seen at least ten years of loyal service. The living room reeks of his favorite tobacco.

You are seated on the foot stool gazing into the yellow-gold flames. The flickering lights dance across the late-afternoon shadows.

It's strange, but Dad looks older now. That gray has crept into his hair when you weren't looking.

The fire feels good, but your cheeks are flushed. I can smell the gingerbread. I can hear the turkey sizzling as Mum bastes it. The doorbell sounds—the reverie is shattered. The aunts, uncles, cousins, nieces, and nephews have begun to arrive.

The table has never looked lovelier. The candlelight flatters faces—softens them, erases the lines of age, and gently conceals the tense gestures. Mom looks so proud as she places the golden bird in the place of honor.

Dad has put on his tie, and somehow he looks more distinguished. Sister's eyes are bright and her face is pink with excitement. All are gathered. Dad rises and all heads are bowed. His voice is deep and soothing.

"Dear Father, as we gather here—both young and old—we ask Your guidance in the coming year. As we look about us—at all you have given to us—we can but offer thanks for all Your many blessings."

Thanksgiving is a time of rosy cheeks, football cheers, oranges and browns, the smell of roasting turkey and spicy gingerbread, a crackling fire, and the murmur of familiar voices. Thanksgiving is all the name implies—a moment in eternity set aside to thank God for his gracious goodness.

AFTER FINISHING her own coiffure, M. Mcweeney tries new hair-do on P. Evans.

Coiffures Capture Longwood Crowns

By Neal Banks

"A pretty girl is like a melody—if you can see her for all the hair! Today's trends in coiffures are strictly feminine, strictly fashionable, and strictly a mess. The Jackie-like that has invaded American fashion promotes the carefully careless approach. Flick the comb and whatever turns out (or up, or under, as the case may be) is most chic and "Bon!"

Shave and Shear

Fashion-conscious canines would be more at home than a female in a poof, beehive, twist, or vamp. But to those who fail to follow. At present the schools seem to be split. The long hair of last year, according to those "in the know," is out. Now we must shave and shear to acquire the look of the twenties. There are still many, however, who are more pleased with the ultra feminine appearance that long hair brings, and delight in wearing it in the many variations that lengthy tresses afford.

Style Advantages

There is a good angle to the hair dilemma, though. It most certainly is easy to keep. A four-hour trip in an open sports car doesn't disturb the style, but rather helps create the desired look. The more tossed and turbulent, the better.

This isn't the only advantage. With the extreme modes, hats are necessarily out, and in their place are whimsies and small bands. This is a boon to the girl with long tresses and a short budget. The money usually spent on a chapeau can now go towards other precious adornments.

Literature Emerges

A popular new literature has emerged from this "headly renaissance." The fight for True Trash is over: Girls now crowd the newsstands for the latest issues of "Hair Styles" and "Hair-dos." With each new publication appear new weird heads on friends and roommates.

There is one consolation in sight. Heads have reached the unique. A return to the traditional is the only course left in sight.

Objections To Tests Unheeded By Soviets

By Barbara Wilsner

The Soviet Union announced that it feels justified in continuing nuclear testing until the West stops its testing. All indications tend to point out that the Soviets plan to keep testing nuclear weapons.

The Russian people, however, have not been informed as to the Soviet tests and their consequences.

Last week the Voice of America was successful in reaching the Soviet Union. It broadcast that the present nuclear testing would have an effect on future generations. Soviet Premier Khrushchev also admitted that the nuclear tests were harmful to health.

By means of tear gas, the West German police were able to tear down a wire fence just inside the West Berlin border. Orders by East Germans warning against destroying the fence were ignored.

An East German had been reported caught between the two fences of East and West Germany.

Prime Minister Nehru of India recently arrived for a ten day visit to the United States. He expressed a desire for peace when he conferred with President Kennedy Monday.

Tennis Matches Won By Womble For Cup Points

As the color cup competition once again gets under way, the Green and Whites gained 5 points in the class tennis singles.

Playing in the semi-finals were Patsy Womble, Linda Hatch, and Henrietta Gilliam. Green and Whites; and Lois Obenshain, a Red and White. In the first match, Womble vs. Hatch, Womble won 6-1, 6-0. Lois Obenshain defeated Henrietta Gilliam 6-1, 7-5.

In the finals Patsy Womble defeated Lois Obenshain 6-3, 6-1. Tennis doubles will be held in the spring with more points for the color cup awarded to the winning color. Members of each class are urged to participate.

President Kennedy has asked General Eisenhower to head a newly organized "people to people program" designed to bring workers of the various fields in America in contact with those of corresponding fields in other countries of the world. General Eisenhower considered such a program in 1956.

In news of the state, Virginians elected Albertus S. Harrison Jr. as their governor on Tuesday, November 7. Other officials elected were Miles Godwin, lieutenant governor; and Robert Y. Borton, attorney general. These men represent the Democratic party.

Heads Announce Tentative Plans Of H2O Pageant

The H2O Club has announced tentative plans for its Christmas Water Pageant to be held December 7 and 8. Because the club plans to produce only one pageant this year, Co-Chairmen Mary Byrd Micou and Ann Smith are hoping to produce a "spectacular" show. The theme of the water pageant, to be revealed at a later date, is one that should prove to be appealing to both young and old.

Both Mary Byrd and Ann are experienced performers in the water musicals as well as being old hands at transforming the Longwood Pool into an aqueous stage of sparkling color and scintillating sound. Under the advisement of Mrs. Bobbitt, they are now preparing for the event which is less than four weeks away, and have announced committee chairmen to be: Backdrops, Carol Nye; Caps, Lani Robinson and Ginny Sturm; Costumes, Ginger Culpeper; Lighting, Barbara Stewart; Make-up, Lois Obenshain; Music, Joanne White; Party, Daye Stone; Programs, Ann Greene; Props, Lefty Snyder; Publicity, Rosa Pettit and Peggy Waldo; and, Usher, Jean Bass.

The Co-chairmen are scheduling around twelve numbers for the pageant, several of which may prove to be very different from what the Christmas spiritized audiences have viewed in the past presentations. Tryouts for the water pageant will be held Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday of this week. The H2O Club invites all who are interested in participating in the pageant to venture down to the poolside and demonstrate their water skills.

RED AND WHITES, P. Pierce and C. Long—Freedman's and J. Wilson's Green and White street match Sally Red and White against S. "Gangreen."

Class Spirit Proves Keen For Color Cup

Freshmen will wear their traditional rat caps until Thanksgiving, following the outcome of Monday's hockey game.

The Sophomores defeated the Freshmen 1-0 in a fast-moving rivalry between the two classes.

The Senior-Junior hockey game proved a suspenseful one until the final few minutes when the Seniors went on a scoring rampage. At half-time the score was 1-0, Seniors. In the second half, fine rushing was the key to three more goals for the Seniors, making the final score a 4-0 Senior victory.

A fast rushing game on the part of the Sophomore team led to their victory over the Senior team, 3-2.

The Seniors scored their second victory at the expense of the Freshmen. The experienced Seniors scored two goals in the first half against only one from the freshmen. Another two Seniors of the class accumulating the most points in all the athletic events.

So far, the green and whites have five points for winning the tennis singles tournament.

Green Banners Hang On Dorms

By Donna Kafka

The Color Rush of 1961-62 was held last Thursday, November 9, at 4 p.m. in the afternoon.

No Points

Although no points toward the Color Cup are given for Color Rush, it is an exciting event. Winners display their class colors in the dormitories they represent.

Winnie Walker, running for Ruffner, Jackie Walker, running for Main Cunningham, and Sarah Jane Lynch, representing Wheeler, took the lead for the freshman class.

Janice Harris, a Junior, came in first place for North Cunningham. The red and whites applaud Chris Longstreet for winning the colors for Student Building.

New Color Cup

There will soon be a new Color Cup in the Home Office which, in the spring, will bear the colors

GIVE FOR CHRISTMAS!

The New
English Bible—$4.95
The Layman's Bible
Commentary—$7.00
American Heritage
History of Civil War
$19.95

Amy Vanderbilt's
Complete Etiquette
$5.50

Better Homes & Garden
Cook Book—$3.95
Poetry Collections and Gift Editions
$1.00 up
WEYANOKO
BOOK STORE
200 High Street
Phone EX 2-4027

When Your Studies
Grow Weary and
You are Ready to Drop,
Stop!! and Visit Your COLLEGE
SNACK BAR
For a Refreshing Treat

Southside Sundry Co.

Film Developed And Printed Overseas

8 Exposures ..... 39
12 Exposures ..... 55

Come in Today!

DOROTHY MAY'S

New Shipment of Kilts.....$7.99

&
Knee Socks
$1.00 & $1.25

Rating Received By LC Magazine On Past Issues

Issues of last year's Colonnade, Longwood's literary magazine, were sent this year for the first time to the All American Magazine Critical Service, a service which offers criticism to magazines. This is sponsored by the Associated Colleague Press.

The Colonnade received a good rating and was commended for its editorial content and its features, which were marked as well-written and interesting.

Quality Good

The quality of poetry, the art work, the editing and the display were all noted as being very good. Editor-in-chief Judy Detrich commented that because this was the first time the Colonnade was sent in for criticism from this Service, it was not submitted for an Honor Rating, though in future years it will be.

Four Short Stories

Concerning this year's issues, Judy said the first one will come out sometime before the end of November. The four short stories which will be in this copy were written by Evelyn Gray, Becky Brehm, Rebecca Wilburn and LaVerne Collier.

The remainder of the magazine will contain essays by Becky Brehm and freshman Mary Ellen Minceo, poetry by Ellen Barnes and Eleanor Kevan, art work by Judy Woodyard, Melanie Wilkes, Charlotte Haile, Sandra Wise, Pegi Evans and Scottie MacGregor, and a special section devoted to photography.

HOLLYWOOD
BEAUTY COLLEGE
102 N. Main
EX 2-9091

Shampoo Set ..... $1.00
Hair Cut ..... $1.00
Perm. Wave ..... $5.00
(Includes Shampoo, Set, & Cut)

Collin's Flowers
Make Happy Hours
Visit

COLLIN'S FLORIST
Phone EX 2-4154

Longwood Coffee Mugs
and
Instant Coffee Heaters
at

LANSCOTT'S
GIFT SHOP!!

State Theatre FARMVILLE, VA.

ENDS WED.—NOV. 15

AUDREY HEPBURN
BREAKFAST
AT TIFFANY'S
A PARAMOUNT RELEASE
TECHNICOLOR

NOVEMBER 16 - 17 - 18

FRONTIER EXCITEMENT!
6-8-9-10-11-12-13-14-15-16-17-18-19-20-21-22
A THUNDER
OF DRUMS
CinemaScope and METROCOLOR

NOVEMBER 19 - 20 - 21 - 22

Susan
Hayward
John
Gavin
Back
Street
A EMI RELEASE
VERA MILES

For
Complete Beauty Care
The
Vanity Beauty Shop
Styled Haircuts .... $1.00
EX 2-4460

6 · 10<sup>7</sup> · 365<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub> *

* 60 million times a day people get that refreshing new feeling with ice-cold Coca-Cola!

Bottled under authority of The Coca-Cola Company by Lynchburg Bottling Company, Lynchburg, Va.

Nineteen Named For Who's Who

(Continued from page 1)

of Sigma Alpha Iota honorary music fraternity, Alpha Psi Omega, Longwood Players vice-president last year, delegate to and vice-president of the Music Educators National Conference last year, and president of the Choir, 1961-62.

Mary Byrd Mico from Chester, is currently serving as editor of the Rotunda and vice-president of Sigma Kappa sorority. Last year, she served as president of Sigma Kappa. She is a member of AKG, Pi Delta Epsilon, Beta Eta Theta, and Kappa Delta Pi.

Dibby Mohr, coming from Lynchburg, is now serving as president of the Panhellenic Council, and last year, served as vice-president of that organization. She is a member of Alpha Gamma Delta sorority and the Lynchburg Club.

Another outstanding student named to Who's Who is Marge Nocher, who is president of the Athletic Association. Morag has been treasurer of H20, varsity archery manager, and a member of the varsity hockey team. She is also a member of the Monogram Club and AKG.

Jane Pennington from Buckingham is a member of Alpha Kappa Gamma, the Band, Cotillion Club, SEA, and Phi Mu sorority. Last year, she was president of SAI and secretary of AKG.

"V" President Pretty

Nancy Pretty, active in the YWCA, has served as secretary and treasurer of her class, and was elected to the Freshman Commission for 1958-59. Nancy, a native of Danville, is a member of Alpha Sigma Tau sorority and AKG.

Student Government president Jo Savage comes from Danville, and has participated in college affairs since her freshman year. Among her activities are, Student Government treasurer, class hockey manager, business manager of the Student Handbook, H20 Club, varsity hockey team, Monogram Club, AKG, SEA, and AST sorority.

Diana Snow from Natural

Barrie's Comedy Unites Themes

(Continued from page 1)

The Longwood Players and the Hampden-Sydney Jongleurs will attempt to compose the many themes: the fallibility of the English class system, valid inference to false ideals, and man's inability to be satisfied, by nonrealistic style of acting and set design satirizing the style of the time.

Although serious social comment seems to be the intent of the author, it was not Barrie's purpose to burden his audience with self critical contemplation, but to provide them with an entertaining evening of laughter. Mr. Wiles said, "We will do our best to convey this intent to you."

Characters

The main characters include Cab Venable as Crichton, Mike Couchman as the Earl of Loam, Ed Baker as Sir Earnest Woolley, and then the daughters of the Earl: Lady Mary, Lady Agatha, and Lady Catherine played by Mary Beth Olson, Mary Lynne Landers and Dorothy Cox.

The director of the play is Mr. Richard Wiles, the assistant to the director is Ben Cullison. The technical director is Gloria Chapman with Melinda Walker as stage manager. In charge of costume design is Anne Wells, and Barbara Stewart is in charge of the light designs.

The crew chiefs are lights, Jean Bristow; costumes, Laurice Hamlet and Suzanne Sloop; scenery, Tinka Cockrell and Barbara Gray Martin; props, Jean Lowry and Pat O'Neill; sound, Barbara Fields and Cab Venable; and makeup, Peggy Waldo.

The play will be presented the nights of November 16, 17, and 18 in Jarman Hall. The admission is $1 for adults, $.75 for students. There is no charge for Longwood students.

Bridge has been active in various fields. She was editor for the 1961-62 Handbook, junior class secretary, Pi Gamma Mu secretary, editor for AGD sorority, and is vice-president of House Council this year.

General AKG chairman for Circus this year, Pate Tolleson, has participated in many other activities on campus. Currently, she is editor of the BSU newspaper, vice-president of the YWCA, member of the choir, Longwood Players, and Rotunda staff. In her sophomore year, she was a delegate to the state YWCA leadership conferences.

Others Outstanding

Becky Tuck, from Greensboro, N. C., is president of the senior class, historian of AKG, and vice-president of Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority. "Tuck" was also president of her class last year. AKG president Sandra Weaver has also been active in college organizations. She is past editor of the Rotunda, assembly chairman for 1961-62, short story editor for the Colonnade, and a member of Pi Delta Epsilon.

For A Slim & Slender Figure; Stop At The S and S Contour Shop

For Lovely Skin and Relaxation—
Steam Baths ..... $1.50
Slenderizing Program
$12.50 Month
EX 2-5373

For Delicious Brownies, Cupcakes, & Other Good Pastries Visit

LEESE'S PASTRY SHOP
Main Street
Phone EX 2-5154

China Contest
Selection of 5 Patterns
by Syracuse In Silhouette Shape
Close Dec. 15, 1961

MARTIN
THE JEWELER

Marlboro—

campus favorite in all 50 states!

...It's a top seller at colleges from U.S.C. to Yale
...and 1st in the Flip-Top box in every single state

If you think you're seeing more Marlboro men lately, you're right. More than 25,000 smokers all over the country are switching to Marlboro every month!

You'll know why when you try them.

Marlboro is the filter cigarette with the unfiltered taste. The secret of the flavor is the famous Marlboro recipe from Richmond, Virginia... and the pure white Selectrate filter that goes with it.

Try Marlboro and judge for yourself. On or off campus, you get a lot to like.

Flip-Top box or King-size pack

See
Water
Pageant

The Rotunda

Attend
Senior Dance

VOLUME XLI

Longwood College, Farmville, Va., December 6, 1961

No. 8

AKG Sponsors Annual Contest For Door Decor

The Christmas door decoration contest sponsored by AKG each year is again being held, featuring some innovations designed to provide for more variation in themes, and to make for more participation, more interest, and more fairness. For these reasons, contest chairman Jane Pennington announced that AKG is offering prizes for three categories. Prizes will be given for the best hall carrying out a single theme, for the best door of a religious theme, and the best door of a light or humorous theme.

Judging for the contest will be done by members of the faculty on December 12. Students participating in the contest are asked to leave their decorations up through the night of Dec. 12 when faculty members and their families will tour the dorms following the faculty dinner.

All students are urged to take part in the contest.

—Staff Photo
CO-CHAIRMAN OF DANCE COMMITTEE, J. Jones and S. Sharpe, select dresses for Saturday night event.

Seniors To Present Annual Class Dance

By Nancy Dobyns

With "Silver Bells" as their theme, the Class of 1962 is giving the annual Christmas dance Saturday, December 9. From eight to twelve p.m. the formal dance will be held in the main rec.

Music will be furnished by The Collegians, a seven-piece orchestra from the University

In the afternoon there was a luncheon at the Hotel Marion. Afterwards, there were committee reports and a program, after which the convention was closed with the installation of the National Officers.

Julia Williams, an alumna of Longwood, was elected as editor of The Torch, the national AKG magazine.

The Florence Nightingale Circle at the University of South Carolina won the first place scrapbook award with Longwood taking second place honors.

The circles that attended this convention were from Longwood, University of South Carolina, Columbia College, College of Charleston, Lander College, and Erskine College.

The Spring Planning Conference will be held this April at Fauley's Island off the coast of South Carolina.

of Richmond. Tickets for the dance are $2.40 per couple.

Sue Sharpe and Judy Jones are heads of the dance committee. Other committee heads include Jeanine Mackenzie, decorating; Neal Banks, technical director; Carolyn Elliott, publicity; Betsy Wilson, programs; Jean Bass, tickets; Ann Vinger, favors; and Judy Smith, Jean Cloud and Gayle Jones, invitations.

There will be a party after the dance for members of the Senior Class and their dates. This party is being planned by Ellen Powell.

The theme of the dance, "Silver Bells", will be carried out partly through use of a Christmas tree decorated with silver bells which will be on the dance floor. Dr. and Mrs. Francis G. Lankford, Miss Ruth B. Wilson, and the officers of the Senior Class will be among those in the receiving line.

Representatives Visit Longwood To View Campus

Freshmen members of the General Assembly were briefed on Friday by Dr. Lankford on the proposed six million dollar expansion program of the College. The legislators were winding up a week's tour of Virginia institutions aimed at familiarizing them with their needs.

Dr. Lankford explained the school's plan to increase enrollment from 1,171 students to 2,000 students by 1970. He compared the recommendations of the Capital Outlay Commission of $5,500,000 to the school's request of $6,079,267 to meet the needs of these additional students in the next six years.

Activities Building Included in the needs for acceptance of these extra students, Dr. Lankford listed additional dormitory space, expansion of the dining hall facilities, and a student activities building.

He pointed out the necessity of providing the students with such an activities building because of the need to use the present recreation room for dining facilities. Dr. Lankford explained to the legislators that the reduction in the college's request by the Capital Outlay Commission was in opposition to the estimations already made by a competent architect.

H2O Club Presents Annual Water Show

Calendars

The Monogram Club is selling dish towel calendars. These towels come in a choice of three different designs — floral, Dutch, and checked. These 1962 calendars can be bought from Virginia Parker or any member of the Monogram Club at a price of 50 cents.

Longwood Seeks Musical Talent

In hopes of attracting talented musicians to Longwood, the Music Department is awarding eight $100 scholarships to promising high school seniors.

These scholarships will be awarded on a competitive basis. Miss Curditt, Mr. Adams, and Mr. McCombs will listen to interested students in the various areas of Virginia and base their decisions on these auditions. To receive a scholarship, a student has to be registered and accepted at Longwood. These scholarships will be given to students excelling in either vocal or instrumental music.

Swimmers To Depict Nautical Nutcracker

"The Nutcracker" has been selected by the H2O Club as the theme for the annual Christmas water pageant to be presented December 7 and 8.

Chris Longstreet, who portrays the Nutcracker, and Janice Harris, who portrays the little girl, will take the audience on a journey to the land of the Nutcracker.

Co-Chairmen The co-chairmen, Ann Smith and Mary Byrd Mico, have worked with the heads of the various committees to present many new and interesting features for this pageant.

For instance, part of the backdrops will consist of live tin soldiers. Also in one of the scenes there will be a floating Christmas tree.

One of the feature attractions will be two swimmers adorned with electric lights performing in complete darkness.

No Blackouts This year there will not be the usual blackouts between numbers. All entrances and exits will be made with respective lighting for each number.

Various spots and lighting techniques will add much color and emphasis to the performance of all numbers.

Committees The committee heads who have been selected are props, Lefty Snyder; backdrops, Carol Nye; lights, Barbara Stewart; make-up, Lois Obenshain; caps, Lani Robinson and Ginny Sturm; publicity, Rosa Pettit and Peggy Waldo; doors and ushers, Jean Bass; music, Brenda Isbel and Joanne White; programs, Ann Greene; costumes, Ginger Culpepper; party, Dave Stone. Each of these committees has been busily working to make this a most outstanding pageant.

Performances will be at 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. on December 7 and at 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. on December 8.

No college students will be admitted to the 4 o'clock performance on December 7. This is for the school children and townspeople. Admission is 35 cents.

AKG Members Attend Meet In Charleston

Alpha Kappa Gamma held a convention at the College of Charleston at Charleston, South Carolina, this past week-end. The representatives from Longwood were Judy Smith, senior member; Alice White, junior member; Sandra Weaver, president of Joan Circle; and Mrs. Kathleen Cover, advisor. These representatives left here Friday, December 1 and returned Sunday, December 3.

The theme of the convention dealt with expansion. The part Longwood's circle had was to discuss and interpret "The History, Ideals, and Qualifications of Alpha Kappa Gamma."

The morning program consisted of a business session and committee meetings. Sandra Weaver served as secretary of the Extension Committee, while Judy Smith served as secretary of the Resolutions and Findings Committee, and Alice White served as secretary of the Scrapbook and Nominations Committee.

Around The Campi

Is Christmas coming early this year or is everyone getting "into the spirit" a bit early?

What to do when you trip and fall down three flights of stairs; lie there and pretend you're dead, or walk back up and fall again pretending that it's a new game you've learned?

Was Hamlet beat? Is Ophelia the girl for Hamlet? Did his unhappy childhood cause him to shrink the responsibilities life has placed upon his shoulders or is he plain chicken? Turn your dial to radio MWV at 8:05 to find the answers to these and many other questions.

Somewhere around the campi Judy Detrich has lost a cameo ring. If anyone has seen this missing treasure, please let her know.

How many people signed out for the Chi party at Hampden-Sydney last week? Chi Phi that is.

Congratulations to Sandra Weaver who has been enlisted into the Waves. Some people will do anything to get into the peace corps.

—Staff

Christmas Pageant To Reveal Madonna

By Diana Upshur

The annual YWCA Christmas Pageant will be presented on Thursday, December 14, at ten o'clock in Jarman Auditorium. This year instead of the usual nativity scene, a new and different theme, "The Halo", will be used. It is an original play version of "The Littlest Angel", written by Mary Beth Olsen.

The part of each character in the play will be portrayed by two persons—one to be the voice behind stage and one to act on stage. Voices off-stage will be as follows: Timmy—Wistie Rochelle; Saint Peter—Betty Alderson; Gabriel—Signe Young; Newcomer—Carla McNair. Their counterparts on stage are Carol Baumgardner as Timmy, Ann Carroll as Saint Peter, and Vicki Mink as Gabriel. Harriet Hunt will be the narrator.

The cast for "The Halo" also includes four shepherds, three wisemen, twenty-one angels, a council of elders, and a chorus. Shepherds are Carolyn Cowen, Kay Cobb, Gay Taylor, and Martha Muir. The wisemen will be played by Sue Carter, Carolyn Anderson, and Susan Lane.

A highlight of the pageant will be the announcement of the Madonnas, who is to be chosen by the students before the pageant. Also, the White Christmas of spring will be brought forth after the pageant by the representatives of each class.

Betty Ann Rex is in charge of the music and Bert Coldiron is chairman. "We have an excellent cast," says Bert, "and this year's Y Pageant should be one of the best yet."

—Staff Photo
WATER PAGEANT CO-CHAIRMAN, A. Smith and M. B. Mico, practice their number.

Our Decision

In the last issue of the Rotunda we requested comments directed toward the newspaper as the voice of the students, concerning an experiment with art films at Longwood. We suggested that art films be brought here on a trial basis if such an experiment be justified by student backing. A small portion of the student body has responded to our challenge, and we thank them for using the college newspaper as it was meant to be used, as an instrument of expression for the college.

A conference with the administration has revealed that bringing feature films to Longwood is a very real possibility. The films would probably be, as one of today's letters to the editor suggests, a mixture of some old, good features and some "arty" movies. They would be financed through the student activities fees, and would be presented in Jarman Hall on Saturday nights. These Saturday night movies would be open to students with or without dates, faculty members, and the administration.

The films might be ordered and brought in as an experiment as early as next semester if there is a real desire for them on the part of the student body. Let us know, then. Do we want such a variety of films at Longwood? Will we go to see them? The decision is ours.

Thank You

Dear Colonnade Staff:

Thank you for giving us a literary magazine of which we can be justly proud. It gives us pleasure to know that outside our school people will read the Colonnade and see that this is an example of how we think and feel and sometimes even analyze. More important than our pride in the impression that it will carry outside the college, we are proud of the Colonnade because it is a part of ourselves.

We are grateful to you for creating a physical proof of our thoughts and feelings, which we believe are important. It is not easy to mold from so many different minds a coherent pattern of expression. Thank you, too, for challenging us with our own words and tantalizing us with the evidence of our embryonic philosophies.

We are not all creative in a literary sense. It is proof of your success that the Colonnade is not a literary magazine representative of the writers who contribute, but a literary magazine representative of the Longwood student.

Sincerely,
The Rotunda Staff

Reorganization

Longwood's Student Government is considering a reorganization of its executive body. We believe this should mean that all Longwood students are considering this government reorganization. Unfortunately, from all outward appearances the student body is disgustingly indifferent to the fact that the group which makes the rules and regulations by which we live is in a state of change.

This is the very time for us to decide in our minds and discuss among ourselves what we expect of a student government association. Now, while Student Government is examining its flaws and good points, we can make our wishes known with the expectation of seeing them acted upon. And yet we have not heard one single spontaneous discussion of the government reorganization; we have not observed one glimmer of genuine interest in this vital subject.

We cannot develop a workable student government organization by electing officers and representatives and then sitting back while they lift and revise excerpts from the best of other colleges' student government handbooks. The best ideas will come from the students who must be governed.

Perhaps the plan of reorganization suggested by our government is just what we need and want. But we don't believe our student government representatives would have us accept it without question. Though we may agree with the new plan, let us look for flaws in it and argue a little about it.

The Rotunda

ESTABLISHED NOVEMBER 29, 1920

Published each week during the college year except during holidays and examination period by the students of Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia, Box 185.

Mary Byrd Mico	Editor-in-Chief
Ann Agee	Managing Editor
Donna Thompson	Business Manager
Charles Ann	News Editor
Lula Peters	Feature Editor
Lewann Miley	Sports Editor
Fluorine Harwood and Linda Stoddish	Exchange Editor
John Hanger	Photography
Miss Mary P. Nichols	Circulation Manager
	Faculty Advisor

(Unsigned editorials written by the editor)

Member, Virginia Intercollegiate Press, Raising First Class, Columbia Scholarship Press Association (Raising First Place, Intercollegiate Press)

NEWS STAFF: Neal Shanks, Assistant Managing Editor; Mary Beth Shanks, Assistant Feature Editor; Sue Brinkman, Assistant Sports Editor; Terry Smith, Book Editor.

Entered as second class matter at the Post Office at Farmville, Virginia, under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879, (approved for national advertising by the National Advertising Board, Inc.) at the Farmville, Virginia, office.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

Literary Professor Combines Interests

By Mary Anne Lipford

On a wall of his small office Mr. Ellington White has hung a picture that is perfectly indicative of his interests. A thin black strip of wood frames a breezy, beach-side photograph of the new Longwood English professor in more relaxed moments than a discussion on Bacon's essays might afford.

Dressed casually, Mr. White and a friend are obviously elated over a bonafide catch, and Mr. White is quick to inform visitors that his picture partner possesses the best fisherman's reputation in Whale Bay, Bermuda.

Profession or Avocation—Mention the picture on the office wall, and one senses immediately that Mr. White's forte has been found. "Actually," he says, "I don't know whether I consider fishing my profession or my avocation."

A pair of pursuits are vying for the title of Ellington White's profession, each of which has been well developed—writing and teaching. He admits that he considers himself "... a writer first, a teacher second."

His formal background for both fields began after service in the U. S. Army during World War II, where he was stationed in the Pacific. He attended Washington and Lee University for two years and confesses that he "wasn't even aware" of visiting VMU, he was so entirely involved in his studies.

Upon the advice of a much admired English professor there, Young White transferred to Ohio's Kenyon College, a small liberal arts school whose good reputation was largely a result of its English department.

At Kenyon Mr. White was editor of the student literary magazine "Hika," and this, he says, was a completely consuming job. He respectfully thanks now that it was consuming to the point of putting out all but literary interests, but he loved the work on "Hika." "There were a lot of good writers at Kenyon Mr. White relates. I was thinking the other day of the people who have appeared in 'Hika'; two have written novels, and one, Jim Wright, is a splendid poet."

After graduation from Kenyon, Mr. White received a fellowship to the State University of Iowa. He stayed only a month at the writer's workshop there, then accepted a newspaper job in Greenwood, S. C. as Acting-Site Editor of the Index Journal, who publicly pledged, "We print all the news that fits."

Mr. White's new job entailed travel and talk. By casually chatting with sheriffs and their cronies and anyone else he chanced upon, Mr. White acquired amazing amounts of information about what was happening in the Index Journal's surrounding counties.

Mr. White became affectionately known as the Great Cat because he inevitably wore a voluminous coat—really too heavy for that area and season—but generously given to him by a friend.

He returned to Iowa for a year, then went on to Johns Hopkins where he was granted his Masters of Arts degree in English writing. Asked about his most

(Continued on page 4)

Peace Corps Solicits Volunteers From LC

By Ann Carroll

So what is this new group everybody's talking about? I mean, we've been hearing about this Peace Corps thing for over six months, but, well, what is it?

Representatives

To answer this question, representatives of "this Peace Corps thing" are visiting colleges and universities throughout the United States. On Wednesday, November 22, one of these, Mr. Blair Butterworth, spent his day by explaining this new project to Longwood listeners. In summary, this is what he said.

Promote Peace

Even before taking office, J. F. Kennedy suggested the possibility of a Peace Corps, and after taking his oath, his Congress voted to allow some $30 million to the United States "to promote world peace and friendship through a Peace Corps, which shall make available to interested countries and areas men and women of the United States qualified for service abroad and willing to serve, under conditions of hardship if necessary, to help the peoples of such countries in meeting their needs for trained manpower, and to help promote a better understanding of the American people on the part of the people served and a better understanding of other peoples on the part of the American people."

Desperate Need

It is easy to see that some nations are in desperate need of aid when in one area of South America, a man took a bite of the first bar of soap he was given, for lack of knowing what to do with it. This same area has a very high mortality rate of children under the age of two, and this everyday necessity of ours, soap, is one major cause of this. Bathing a baby is something strange and new to these primitive peoples.

It is to these places the Peace Corps volunteers are to go. Any American over eighteen can apply. First, a questionnaire is filled out with answers to such questions as "Can you speak two?" and "Where would you like to go, and what would you do?" These green forms can be obtained from any post office, or from the Peace Corps, Washington 25, D. C.

Step Two

Step two is to take a test of aptitude. This is not a competitive test, but one to determine who is best qualified in all fields of work. What are these fields? Teaching, agricultural extension work, dietetics, home economics, health working, sanitation engineering, nursing, doctoring, and surveying are just a few.

These application forms sit in the Peace Corps files until some country seeks a qualified Volunteer.

to find the person most nearly suited for the position, a carefully selected board goes over your form, twice. When the final selection is made, this person is asked, with the approval of at least one representative of the seeking country, to serve.

Training Period

The training period then begins, and lasts from three to six months. Experts in language and culture of the different countries will acquaint the volunteer more thoroughly in these fields at selected colleges throughout the U. S.

Next, a period of several weeks is spent in places such as Puerto Rico for physical training.

Here the trainees climb rope walls, spend one night in the jungle alone, in a hammock, to become accustomed to strange noises of foreign lands, and each person is tossed in a swimming pool, hands and feet tied, to acquaint them with the real meaning of panic.

Two-Year Periods

For two-year periods, 31 Volunteers have already been sent overseas, to nations such as Tanganyika, the Philippines, Chile, Ghana and Nigeria, India, Thailand and Malaya have requested aid, and Volunteers are already in training for these places. These people will have transportation to and from the countries paid by the Peace Corps; a daily allowance of $2.00 will be given to them. No more than this is necessary, because the PCV lives on the same standard as those with whom he is working. The Volunteer has no special privileges; he is treated as "one of them." Each Volunteer will have with him at all times a native of his particular country so that at the end of the length of time, this country will not be abandoned and left to regress to the state it was before the representative ever got there; but, instead, this native is to learn the skills well enough to continue to carry the program out, thereby helping his country help itself.

Alumni

What happens to the Peace Corps alumni? They return to find awaiting them interviewers with questions concerning the outcome of the peace program as seen and experienced by those who are the Peace Corps, those who know the answer. They will find waiting for them any number of jobs in teaching, lecturing, in industry and in just about any field which can use persons knowing the language, culture traditions and peoples of these tiny countries.

Most Exciting

Probably most exciting to these alumni will be the large sum of money waiting for them in Washington, D. C., to be used for anything the individual volunteers desire. As Mr. Butterworth says, what girl couldn't use this in her dowry!

'Interested Students' Answer Request For Opinions On Films

Dear Editor,

I was delighted with your most recent editorial advocating an art film series. It has been a source of regret to me that really fine entertainment of the film medium has not been available here on campus. This has been an established precedent for many years at several schools, and I believe it would be to the benefit of both faculty and students if such a practice were instituted here.

I would suggest that the program be handled by students under a faculty advisor. In this way it would be possible for the whole campus to more easily express their likes and dislikes and play some part in the selection of future presentations. It might be interesting to alternate between an art film and one of the past greats about which the present generation has heard much but seen little, such as "Grand Hotel."

Regardless of the operation plan, however, it is a truly worthwhile idea. It is to be hoped that the Rotunda will continue to back it.

An Interested Person

Dear Editor,

With reference to your editorial concerning "arty" movies, we wish to say yes, we are interested.

Judy Dietrich
Pat Hickey
William Egolf
Mike Deichmann
Peggy Green

"PEACE CORPS volunteers," S. Freedman and C. Gay, emerge from jungles after over-night training detail.

Timely Topics

Russians Want Ban On Nuclear Testing

By Barbara Wilsher

The Soviet Union announced this week that it wanted a ban on all nuclear testing. Under the Russian proposal, Britain, France, the United States and Russia would halt all tests. This would include underground testing which has been recently carried on by the United States.

An ape named Enos was put into orbit by the United States

Wednesday, November 29. This animal traveled around the earth twice. John H. Glenn, Jr., has been selected as the astronaut to travel in the path that this ape took.

The Soviet Union demanded that the United States withdraw her warships from the coast of the Dominican Republic. The Russian delegate to the United Nations accused these vessels of threatening the peace of the Caribbean.

The son of Governor N. Israel Rockefeller still remains missing. The governor states that he has not given up hope of finding his son. Meanwhile, the search for the young Rockefeller is being continued by the Dutch and tribesmen of the area.

Attention turns to the Congo again as President Moise Tshombe of Katanga Province advised his people to prepare for war. He announced that he will launch war if any attempt is made to end the independence of Katanga.

Princess Margaret and Anthony Armstrong-Jones announced that the name of this son will be David.

Choir, Singers, Chorus Present Music Program

Sunday, December 10 at 3:30 p.m. Longwood will hold its annual Christmas concert at Jarman Auditorium. The Longwood orchestra, the Madrigal Singers, the Chorus, and the Choir will participate.

The Wind Ensemble, directed by Mr. Smith, will begin the program with selected carols. Lucia Claff of the Richmond Symphony will be the guest harpist and will accompany the orchestra in "The Ceremony of Carols" by Britten.

Madrigal Singers Under the direction of Mr. McCombs will sing "Rejoice Ye Christian Men" by Praetorius, "Madonna and Child" by Donato, and "Les Anges dans Nos Campagnes," a French carol. An intermission will then follow.

Under the direction of Miss Reilly, the Chorus will be caroling in the traditional manner using costumes. They will sing "Now Leave Your Plow," a French Carol, "The Little Drummer Boy" by Katherine Davis, Henry Onorati, and Harry Simeone, "Now the Harest Day" by J. Kricka, "The Inn at Bethlehem," a sacred folk song from the "Tyrol," and "Jesu Bambino" by Pietro A. Yon. Mr. McCombs will be the soloist.

The Choir will sing "Hodie Christus Natus Est" by Sweetbuck, "Rejoice! Rejoice!" by Byrd, with Dr. Currutt at the organ, "The Childhood of Christ" by J. S. Bach, "Madonna's Slumber Song" by Herd, featuring Linda Deunne on the violin, "What Strangers Are These?", a Scotch song, and "Gloria Gloria", a Polish song.

Soloists will be Madeline MacNeil, Carol Plerce, Alice Joy Peelo, and Kathleen Slusher. The accompanist will be Joan Tyler Ivy.

Landrum Views Aired In Article

The opinion of Mrs. Emily K. Landrum, Associate Professor of Physical Education, Longwood College on "The Problem of Evaluation in Creative Dance" requested by the National Education Association was published as one of two points of view in the November issue of the Journal of Health, Physical Education, Recreation.

Mrs. Landrum's point of view reflects "process" in comparison to "product" as the singular definitive term of creativity in education. The opposing professor of Health, Physical Education, Recreation.

Mrs. Landrum stresses in her articles that evaluation of one's personal growth, development, change in attitude, forward adjustments, or awareness of dance in one's daily life become as important in the creative approach as achievements, skills, or the products—the dances or compositions.

She received her B. S. in physical education from the University of Illinois, and her M.A. from Teachers College (Columbia University). She has been on the Longwood Faculty since 1940.

—Staff Photo
PRACTICING MODERN DANCE NUMBER are J. Harris, G. Taylor, and S. Waters.

Creative Activities Shared In Orchesis

By Janice Harris

Orchesis, honorary dance society, prepares for a busy schedule in the realm of creative dance this year. The club's activities began in September when "Two Degrees East, Three Degrees West," an expression in the jazz idiom, was presented as part of the Athletic Association Demonstration.

On December 10, the club will aid in a lecture demonstration on Religion in Dance to be held at the Methodist Church in cooperation with the Wesley Foundation. This project is largely that of Mrs. Emily Landrum's modern dance class but will be supplemented by Orchesis members.

The efforts of the club at present are concentrated on dance themes for two primary functions. The first is the Virginia Dance Festival to be held on February 9 at the Virginia Museum Theater in Richmond, Virginia.

Orchesis has, for many years, participated in this festival. Among other things, the festival includes a dance workshop in which dance club members from many colleges are directed by a well-known figure in the field of dance.

Each college presents an original dance composition which, after its performance, is commented upon by the guest Artist-lecturer. Last year, Longwood's Orchesis received an excellent evaluation on its performance.

Class Volleyball Practices Start For Cup Points

"All right, girls! Let's volley the old ball," is a favorite expression around the gymnasium these days, for class volleyball practices have begun.

Co-Chairman
Lindy Hatch and Susan Coe, co-chairmen of class volleyball during the 1961-1962 season, commented that participation for all classes has been very good, and that there is still time for all those who are interested to join the practices.

Only eight practices are needed in order that a person may be eligible to play on his class team. Actual play will not begin until next semester, and there will be competition among the classes with points given toward the color cup for the winning classes. The score, at present, for the color cup is Red and White, 10; and Green and White, 5.

The schedule for practices is as follows:

4:50-5:30 Wednesday
3:05-3:34 Friday

Sports Review

Army Bows To Navy, Cavaliers Halt Terps

By Barbara Agee

With most teams playing their season-ending games during the last two weeks, there remain only the bowl games to be played. With the surprising number of upsets, bowl game bids have been hanging in the balance.

Maryland's chance for Gator Bowl play was crushed by the charged - on UVA Cavaliers. Batted as underdogs by three touchdowns, the Cavaliers went on a rampage to record a 28-16 victory.

The TD pass was the secret weapon, as three of them spelled downfall for the Terps.

Their defeat opened the way for Penn State (7-3) in the Gator Bowl. On December 30 Penn will meet Georgia Tech at Jacksonville, Florida.

The classic Rose Bowl game in Pasadena will feature host UCLA (7-3) pitted against the Minnesota Golden Gophers (7-2). A disappointment in last year's Rose Bowl game the Gophers get another chance on January 1.

Undefeated Alabama (10-0) goes to the Sugar Bowl in New Orleans on New Year's Day.

Mississippi (9-1) accepted its bid to the Cotton Bowl and will encounter the rigorous Texas team (9-1) the same day. The Orange Bowl features 9-1 Colorado and Louisiana State which is also 9-1.

Gotham Bowl Utah State (8-1) vs. Baylor (5-3)
Aviation Bowl New Mexico (7-4) vs. Western Michigan (5-1)

Camellia Bowl — Pittsburgh (Kansas) (9-0) vs. Linfield (Oregon) (5-0)

Orange Blossom Classic — Florida A and M (9-0) vs. Jackson (Mississippi) (9-1)

Liberty Bowl — Syracuse (7-3) vs. Miami (Florida) (7-3)

Bluebonnet Bowl — Kansas (6-5-1) vs. Rice (7-3)

Tangerine Bowl — Middle Tennessee (7-3) vs. Lamar Tech (6-2-1)

Sun Bowl — Villanova (7-2) vs. Wichita (9-2)

Another classic already played is the annual Army-Navy game. For the third successive year Navy emerged the victor this time by the margin of two field goals. In front of President Kennedy a score of 19-7.

Survey Finds Increased Demand For Education

A record number of foreign students were in the United States last year, reflecting the growing demand for education throughout the world. This is the finding of the annual Open Doors 1961 survey just released by the Institute of International Education.

Open Doors, a collection of six surveys on the number of foreign students, professors, physicians and industrial trainees in the United States as well as the number of American students and professors abroad, report increases in all categories. The survey revealed a total of 60,633 foreign persons were in this country during 1960-61 for study, training or teaching, while 16,324 Americans went abroad during 1959-60 for these purposes.

In 1960-61, 53,107 foreign students from 143 countries and political areas were enrolled in 4,666 United States colleges and universities. This is almost a 10 per cent increase over last year when 48,486 students were reported by the IIE survey.

The statistical rise was accelerated for by the growing number of African and Asian students coming to study in the United States. Last year, there were 1,559 African students in American colleges and universities; this year the total was 2,831 -- a 44 per cent increase. A 17 per cent rise was shown in the 19,222 students reported from the Far East compared with 17,175 for the previous year.

There were 26 countries that had more than 500 students in the United States. Canada continued to send the largest number—4,658, with China (5,394), India (4,835), Iran (2,880), and Japan (2,434) next in order. Egypt and Indonesia, both of which had fewer than 500 students last year, were represented by 337 and 528 students respectively.

Of the total number of foreign students, 26,632 or 50 per cent were enrolled as undergraduates, 21,404 (40 per cent) were (Continued on page 4)

—Staff Photo
REFEREE C. Longstreet waits as J. Snyder and C. Griggs prepare for jump shot.

GIVE BOOKS FOR CHRISTMAS!

Catherine Marshall's Beyond Ourselves ..... $4.95
Pat Boone's The Real Christmas ..... $1.50
Solinger's Franny and Zooey ..... $4.00
Taylor Caldwell's A Prologue To Love ..... $'95
PT 109, John F. Kennedy in World War II ... $4.95
Mila 18 by Leon Uris ..... $4.95
The New English Bible ..... $4.95
Webster's New Collegiate Dictionary ..... $5-15
Etiquette and Cookbooks ..... $1.00 and up
James Wellard's A Sound of Trumpets ..... $3.95

WEYANOKA BOOK SHOP

Class Basketball Game Schedule Plans Announced

Co-managers of class basketball, Lois Obenshain and Brenda Libel, have announced that the class basketball games will probably be played off about the middle of March. "Participation has been very good so far", Lois says.

Practices are being held from 4:50 until 5:30 p.m. on Tuesday and Friday and from 6:50 until 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday.

To be eligible to play class basketball a student must have eight practices.

The co-managers urge everyone to come out and support their team.

Patronize The Rotunda Advertiser

Foreign Students

(Continued from page 2)

graduates and 3,632 (6 per cent) were classified as "special students." (Information on academic status was not supplied by approximately 3 per cent of the students.)

Engineering continues to be the most popular course of study, with 23 per cent of the visiting students in this field. The humanities (19.6 per cent) and the physical and natural sciences are the next choices. The desire for rapid development in the countries of Asia and Africa provides the stimulus for the concentration on engineering and sciences, while the more stable economies in Europe and Canada are responsible for the large numbers studying the humanities.

Foreign students were in schools in 49 states, none in Alaska. The District of Columbia, Puerto Rico and Guam during 1960-61. The states of New York and California still lead in the education of foreign students, with New York edging California out of the top spot it occupied last year. There were 6,629 overseas scholars who chose New York, while 6,618 were enrolled in California schools.

There were 23 colleges and universities—five more than last year—which reported more than 400 foreign students on their campuses. The University of California again tops the list of schools, reporting a 2,863 foreign student body. The next four universities are New York University (1,645), University of Michigan (1,520), Columbia University (1,340), and University of Minnesota (1,117). Howard University and Massachusetts Institute of Technology have the highest percentages of foreign students to their total enrollments—16 per cent and 12.4 per cent respectively.

For the first time, more students (19,422 or 36.5 per cent) received support from private organizations than any other source. In previous years, the number of self-supporting students outnumbered other support sources. The decrease in self-support last year is drastic, dropping from 42 per cent in 1959-60 to 30 per cent this year—an indication of the step-up in private scholarship programs in response to the need for education in the developing countries. The United States government also increased its foreign student aid—almost doubling its grants over last year, awarding some scholarship help to 4,349 students as compared to 2,632 last year.

In the other foreign categories, Open Doors reported a large increase (43 per cent) in the number of foreign faculty teaching in American colleges and universities. There were 3,636 professors and other advanced scholars affiliated with 704 U. S. institutions this year, with the largest percentage (43 per cent—1,566) coming from Europe.

In its survey of hospitals, Open Doors found that 9,953 foreign physicians trained in U. S. hospitals during 1959-61. There were 8,182 who served as residents and 1,753 as interns. This represented a 5 per cent increase in foreign doctors but a considerable decrease in the percentage of interns. Heretofore interns were approximately 33 per cent of the total, whereas this year their percentage is only 18 per cent. Of the 9,953 total, 3,366 (36 per cent) came from the Far East with the greatest number, 2,303 from the Philippines.

In its second year of reporting on foreign industrial trainees, Open Doors found that 912 U. S. corporations trained 3,065 overseas personnel for a period of one month or more. Nine countries had more than 100 trainees in the States, with the largest numbers coming from Germany (278), United Kingdom (260), Brazil (235), Japan (186), and Canada (182).

In the Americans abroad category, more students and faculty were reported abroad than ever before. (Since student statistics must be collected from foreign universities entailing more time, figures for students are for 1959-60.)

There were 15,306 young Americans enrolled in 540 institutions in 63 foreign countries in 1959-60. This represents a 12 per cent increase over the previous year. There were 13,774 (90 per cent) of these U. S. students in twelve countries, with the largest groups in France (2,420), Canada (1,994), Mexico (1,540), Germany (1,454), and United Kingdom (1,337). In eleven European countries and Mexico, there were more Americans in their schools than there were students from these countries in U. S. institutions. The most popular field of study was the humanities (7,595) with medical sciences next (3,068), followed by the social sciences (1,754).

Here was a large increase in the number of American faculty abroad in 1960-61. There were 2,218 U. S. scholars (25 per cent more than last year) from 394 American colleges and universities, reported on educational assignments in 92 countries. More than half of these faculty members were in Europe, with the largest concentration in the United Kingdom (12 per cent). Of the faculty survey the diversity of interest is represented by the lack of heavy concentration in any country. The greatest numbers of American school are annual come from the faculties of Michigan State University (223) and the University of California (161).

—Staff Photo
SPANISH FIESTA DANCERS take bow after completing number.

Song, Dance Theme For Spanish Fiesta

December 1 the annual Spanish fiesta given in the Main Room by members of the Spanish classes. The entertainment began at 8 p.m.

Entertainment consisted of Spanish dances and Christmas carols and a Spanish play. The queen of the fiesta was chosen from one of the committees working on the fiesta. She was chosen on the amount of interest she has shown and how hard she worked on the fiesta.

The climax of the fiesta was the breaking of the "pinatas," which were filled with "goodies." A prize was given for the best pinata.

Mrs. Anita B. Ernouf of the foreign language department arranged the program.

The purpose of the annual fiesta is to enjoy and become better acquainted with the celebration of Christmas in Spanish-speaking countries.

French Program Offers Variety

Le Cercle Français will hold its monthly meeting Tuesday, December 12 at 4 p.m. in the Little Auditorium. Each year the December meeting of Le Cercle Français is designed to show the French students Christmas traditions and customs in France.

The beginning, intermediate, and advanced French classes will participate in the program. The three groups will sing songs together and each class will sing French Christmas carols.

Each class will also present a short program. The advanced class will present a dramatization of "Le Joueur de Notre Dame" by Antoine France.

A variety program will be presented by the intermediate class. This will include the reading of a poem, a clarinet duet, two short talks on French Christmas customs, and Christmas carols by an octet.

The beginning class will present a skit about the Christmas customs of a French family.

The program will close with Maria Konovaloff singing the traditional Christmas solo, "Noël d'Adam."

Unusual Parade Featured Friday

The second annual Farmville Christmas parade will be held this Friday, Dec. 8 at 6 p.m.

Riding in the parade will be eight of Longwood's beauty queens. Many floats will be entered by Farmville businesses and organizations. This parade is one of the largest ever held in this area, consisting of four bands and thirteen floats equipped with lights and costumed $5,000. A $50.00 prize will be awarded by the Jaycees for the best float. Over 700 people are now participating in the parade in various ways.

Business Teachers Hold Statewide Conference

Business education teachers in secondary schools in the Central - Southside Virginia areas will meet at Longwood November 15 at 4 p.m. for a conference on the theme, "The business teachers' opportunities and responsibilities for teaching general business and practical economic education through all the business subjects."

Statewide Basis
Sponsored by the State Department of Education and under the direction of Arthur L. Walter, State Supervisor of Business Education Service, conferences on this theme will be held on a state-wide basis.

Longwood College's business education department will be host for the regional meeting, and members of its faculty will serve as panel members.

Speakers

Speakers on the program are Dr. Pierce Lunkin, chairman of the economics department, School of Business, RPI and economics consultant to the Bank of Virginia, and Dr. S. Dickerson Jr., head of the business education department, Madison College.

School divisions to be represented at the conference are Amherst, Amelia, Appomattox, Buckingham, Campbell, Charlotte, Cumberland, Lunenburg, Mecklenburg, Nelson and Nottoway counties, and from Brookneal, Rustburg and Lynchburg.

White Observes Longwood Girls Shy In Classes

(Continued from page 2)

off-read authors, Mr. White says he enjoys rereading works of contemporary Faulkner.

Interestingly, he cannot read Graham Greene's novels while he is engaged in writing a book of his own because he tends to be influenced by Greene's style.

Currently, Mr. White is completing a true-to-life magazine story on bondfishing in Whale Bay. With eyes fairly sparkling, he asserts that bondfishing is the most elusive, fascinating of all fish. These speedy and powerful fish are the gamiest in all the world, he says.

Mr. White says, "I do detect a shyness about being involved with any intellectual issue of any sort." He concedes that this may be a womanly trait—the failure to become vocally excited, to discuss outside class, an essay or a particular passage of prose. "Learning shouldn't begin and end at the classroom door," he contends.

He even refers to Cardinal Newman, who says that college is a place where people interested in learning get together and talk about it. "We learn by osmosis; we don't realize much that is being learned, but even years from now, it will come back to us." Because of the varying ideas on how we actually do learn, Mr. White thinks learning is almost mystical. "I'd hate to have to formulate a theory about learning!"

Having been at University of Richmond, and at Hollins College as Director of Publications and at Mississippi Southern, Mr. White came to Farmville with his wife and two children, David, three, and Nancy, two. He says he is happy here because he has time to do his own work. And then he adds, "One of the greatest joys of being at Longwood is that you don't have to fool around with football players." Obviously, Mr. White and some of his students may disagree on "Joey!"

NEWMAN'S
MEN'S SHOP
Traditional Styles
111 Main Street
Farmville, Va.

See Our
Ladies' Sportswear

COLLIN'S FLORIST
Collin's Flowers
Make Happy Hours
EX 2-4154 or EX 2-3330

Just Arrived!
Pinehurst Lingerie
$1.00 and Up
DOROTHY MAY

State Theatre FARMVILLE, VA.

NOW PLAYING
ELA KAZAN'S PRODUCTION OF
SPLENDOR IN THE GRASS
DIRECTED BY ELIA KAZAN
STARRING WILLIAM INGE
NATALIE WOOD
with PAT HINGLE and JUDY GARLAND
TECHNICOLOR
SUN.-MON.—DEC. 10-11

20th Century Fox
francis of assisi
CONCELAZIONE COLOR BY DE LUXE
TUES.-WED.—DEC. 12-13

20th Century Fox
THE BIG GAMBLE
COLOR BY DE LUXE
DECEMBER 10-16

WALT DISNEY'S
Greyfriars BOBBY
TECHNICOLOR

LONGWOOD
JEWELERS
See Us For Your
Christmas Gifts.
Charge Accounts Invited.

Give a Charm from
MARTIN'S
for Christmas.
Free Gift Wrapping!

WIND SONG
by
Prince Matchabelli
SOUTHSIDE
SUNDRY CO.

Do Your Christmas
Shopping at Lancotts

OPEN WIDE and SAY A-H-H-H!
Get that refreshing new feeling with Cokel

Bottled under authority of The Coca-Cola Company by

LYNCHBURG BOTTLING WORKS, Lynchburg, Va.

Merry
Christmas

The Rotunda

Happy
New Year

VOLUME XLI

Longwood College, Farmville, Va., December 13, 1961

No. 9

LONGWOOD ANGELS work way up ladder of success in Heaven. —Staff Photo

Student Government Constitution Studied

By Donna Humphlett

Yesterday, the student body voted to effect the revision of the present constitution of Student Government. This revision is an attempt to relieve the customary fourteen people of so much responsibility and place it in the hands of more people.

Major Change

The major change in the constitution is the creation of a two-body Student Government to replace the present one body. The new Student Government will consist of a legislative board to make the rules and a judicial board to enforce them. Each class will have two representatives in each body.

Another change is the number of major officers of Student Government. The present constitution calls for four, a president, vice president, secretary, and treasurer. The revised constitution requires five. The president, vice-president, secretary, and treasurer of the Student Government Association will serve on the legislative board. A chairman, elected by the student body, will preside over the meetings of the judicial board.

Definite Improvement
Jo Savage, president of the Student Body had this to say about the new constitution: "I think it's a definite improvement of the criticism of the past student governments."

"Being an officer of Student Government is an excellent opportunity for someone and this would definitely give more people that opportunity. There has been favorable response from the Student Body, and they seem to feel the need for a change."

Snowa Receives Gift Scholarship From Dixie Club

Ann Snowa, a junior elementary education major from Richmond, is the recipient of a gift scholarship given by the Dixie Club of New York. The Dixie Club, an organization interested in assisting the education of southern students in southern institutes, awarded the scholarship on the basis of outstanding scholarship and ability. Mrs. Catherine T. Palase, first vice-president of the Dixie Club, concluded her letter to Mrs. Watkins, director of admissions with, "The good wishes of each member of Dixie go to Longwood College for continued success in the great contribution you are making in the education of future teachers of America." Ann is a member of House Council and the Canterbury Club.

Faculty Adopts Grading System, Begins Next Fall

In a meeting held last week, the faculty adopted a new four-point grading system which will become effective beginning with next year's freshmen. The system will not affect any student who is already at Longwood.

Under the new system, four quality credits will be given for an "A," three for "B," two for "C," one for "D," and none for "F." Under the present system, three credits are attributed to an "A," two to a "B," one to a "C," and none to "D" and "F."

All work completed at Longwood or another school toward a degree will be counted toward a student's total quality points. Grades earned in courses repeated will be averaged in equally with the original grade. Under the present system, the original grade is thrown out and the repeated grade is recorded. The new system calls for a change in the indexing of student standing. For example, the present requirement of a 1.0 for Junior standing will become a 2.0.

The change has been made in an attempt to raise the scholastic achievement standards of the college by making requirements more difficult and by placing the college on the same grading level with other colleges.

Sophomores To Give January Production

The Sophomores are hiding the theme for production behind parades and fans. Their Production is to be January 12.

The committee chairman for production have been chosen. They are: Mary Anne Lipford and Jerry Clarke, co-chairmen; Evelyn Gray, script; Judy Melcher and Linda Woodall, scenery; Betty Anne Alkinson, make-up; Barbara Fields, costumes; Anne De Jarnette and Joanne Stack, props; Sally Barclay and Anna White, programs; Stuart King, tickets; Ann Carroll, Brenda Isabel and Jean Bristow, lights; Lola Obenshain, Peggy Whittak

Marlboro Contest

Last week, the winners of the Marlboro wrapper saving contest were announced. Delta Zeta won the first prize of a television set with a total of 50,000 points. Dona Scarborough won the second prize, a Polaroid camera, by submitting 423 individual points. Another contest will be held for second semester, offering new prizes and competition.

Cercle Francois Renders Satire In Jarman Hall

By Donna Humphlett

Le Cercle Francois will present the film version of Moliere's comic play "Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme" ("The Would-Be Gentleman") January 5 at 7:30 p.m. in Jarman Hall. Admission will be fifty cents.

Filmed in Paris by the "House of Moliere," the movie centers around the title character, Monsieur Jourdain, who is an extremely wealthy bourgeois. When he aspires to all genteel qualities, he gathers around him instructors of music, dance, fencing, and philosophy. The result is a lively satire on the pretension of a silly rich man to the snobbery of the aristocracy.

English subtitles are provided.

Leukemia Cure Seen In Future

One of the most recent discoveries in the broad program of leukemia-related research, supported by the American Cancer Society, suggests that a vaccine may one day be developed to control this form of cancer in humans. A Chicago scientist reported at a society meeting that he had injected human volunteers with a substance taken from persons who died of leukemia. Blood serum from these volunteers was then able to protect mice against leukemia. No method, however, has yet been found to cure or prevent leukemia in humans. The Society needs your support to step up research on leukemia and all forms of cancer. Support the 1961 Crusade of the American Cancer Society.

Sophomores To Give January Production

er, publicity; Pat Gallahan, music; Susie Waters, dance; and Carol Carawan and Marian Russ are heading a pep committee. The sophomores even have their class sponsor, Miss Allen, working on the production.

In addition to song and dance, musical instruments will be used in the production. A new twist will be given to the dances being used, and the costumes are also of different style.

Door prizes, donated by local merchants, will be given away. Tickets will be 35 cents for students and 50 cents for adults.

Madonna Presented Following Theatrics

Students View 'Littlest Angel' Thursday Night

By Ginny Gilmore

The well-known tale of the delinquent child angel who makes a supreme sacrifice in giving a gift to the Christ Child will be presented to Longwood students, guests and faculty members in the annual Christmas Pageant tomorrow night.

The Halo

"The Halo," an original Christmas play, based on the story of "The Littlest Angel," was written by Mary Beth Olson and will be directed by Bert Coldiron.

The play will be pantomimed by actors on stage while the voices will come from back stage. Lighting, under the supervision of Jean Bristow, and a choir of angels, directed by Betty Ann Rex, will add to the effectiveness of the production.

Timmy Untrifful

Timmy, the newly arrived angel, played by Carol Baumgardner, finds himself before the gates of Heaven as the play opens. Here his troubles as a citizen of Heaven begin, as he not only is late for his appointment with St. Peter, but is caught telling fibs about his past life on earth. God's wrath is evoked, and He frightens Timmy into truthfulness with bolts of lightning.

St. Peter, played by Ann Carroll, reprimands him for his untruthfulness and for failing to mind his parents. God's voice, with a choir of angels in the background, coming from backstage, recites the Ten Commandments.

As Timmy stands shamefaced, St. Peter explains to him that God is forgiving, and then proceeds to inscribe his name in the Roll of Heaven. He opens the gate and Timmy is given his first view of Heaven, with angels hard at work polishing stars, sweeping clouds, and making nowliakes.

Karee Halo

Timmy proves to be a slow learner, and his first year in Heaven proves to be a year of many hail storms on earth, because he has so much trouble making nowliakes. He is finally rewarded with a tiny star of his own. More years pass until Gabriel himself visits Timmy's corner of Heaven, and orders the removal of his little star. Timmy is heartbroken, but his sorrow is short-lived, for Gabriel commends him for his good conduct and hard work, and rewards him with a halo, making him a full-fledged angel.

Christ Child

After Gabriel places the halo on Timmy's head, he tells all the angels of a coming event, the greatest in the history of Heaven. As the narrator reads the story of the Christ Child from the scriptures, Timmy and the other angels look upon the nativity scene.

Timmy, at first puzzled at the worship of a mere child, is touched as St. Peter explains that He is the Son of God, and tells him of His mission on earth. Timmy watches as gifts are brought to the Child, and then decides to give him one of his own. As he offers the Baby his present, the voice of the Lord, speaking to him for the second time since his arrival in Heaven, commends Timmy's act of unselfishness.

Madonna

The play will be followed by the presentation of the Madonna who will be revealed sitting at the manger scene.

The White Christmas Offering by each student organization will take place, as the head of the organization file by, laying their gifts beside the Christ Child.

SOPHOMORE PRODUCTION co-chairmen, M. A. Lipford and J. Clarke, discuss production plan with class advisor, Miss Allen.

Evergreen

The tree is like the season.

The tree, majestic, points toward the sky and freedom, a symbol of something better. Yet even while it points the way upward, it is laden with the gaudy manifestations of Man's materialism. Man calls it evergreen, and throws it on the trash pile the day after.

It is with us all the year, but once a year we truly see it. It grows, develops, matures. And still it does not really change. It is the same for our great-grandparents and for us. But with new generations we see it through new eyes.

The tree is like the season. May our generation see it as it was meant to be seen.

Keep Talking

The most widely used textbook for college economic students is "Economics, An Introductory Analysis."

The author is Prof. Paul A. Samuelson of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He also is president of the American Economics Association. Here are extracts from successive editions:

First and second editions, 1948 and 1951: "If price increases could be held down to, say, less than 5 per cent per year, such a mild steady inflation need not cause too great concern..."

Third edition, 1955: "If price increases could be held down to, say, less than 3 per cent per year, such a mild steady inflation need not cause too great concern..."

Fourth edition, 1958: "If price increases could be held down to, say, 2 per cent per year, such a mild steady inflation need not cause too great concern..."

Fifth edition, 1961: "Price increases that could be held down below 2 per cent per year are one thing. But..."

And on the TV program Meet the Press, March 1961: "...if we can hold things down so that the official index of prices goes up by no more than 1.5 or 2 per cent, I shall be very content."

Some people hope the professor will keep on talking and that his book will go through many more editions.

—From A United States Chamber of Commerce Release

Santa Shakes Sack To Satisfy Students

By Neal Banks

"Dear Santa, Would you please bring me..."

Letters from Longwood directed to the North Pole request a multitude of things. The gifts bestowed this year should prove various and unique—a season's task in themselves.

Ann Green says Jimmy Boyd can have his two front teeth. All she wants is her tonsils. She'll spend part of her vacation in the hospital losing them.

Janice Harris said without any second thoughts "a smaller nose."

Lani Robinson wants only a diploma.

A friend suggested that Santa bring Ann Scott Thompson six searab bracelets. "...to keep company with the six she already has."

Linda Ohi feels like a fish out of water, she wants to trade her Yankee accent for a Rebel drawl. Could Natalie Miller be asking for the same thing?

"Bee Gee" wants to get rid of her alibi. "I've been called 'Heddy Leus.' I wish I could wake up Christmas morning and find a new pair in my stockings!"

Joanne Cohen wants Santa to do something about the leak in her collar. Maybe Mr. Henderson could help her.

One Junior, bemoaning the third year slump as she watched the couples at senior dance, said "A male!"

Barbara Meyer wants more meat on her bones, and Kay Nottingham wants less. "I wish Mr. Claus would give me a foot-proof diet."

Carol Nye wishes she were more like a "Major." "I want to be an athlete."

Sandra Freedman isn't asking for anything special. "Let him surprise me with a bagful of goodies."

Charlotte Jones wants a flying carpet for her Hampden-Sydney friend, "to make the seven miles easier," she said.

This illustrates what the jolly man is up against. But just imagine the chagrin of his look-alike in the Thalmimera toy department when the following conversation occurred:

Santa: "Ho, ho, ho, and what do you want, little man?"

Little Man: "An ironing board."

Santa: "Oh, come now, what would you do with an ironing board?"

Little Man: "I want it to beat my sister with!"

The ROTUNDA STAFF
Wishes You
A
MERRY CHRISTMAS

The Rotunda

ESTABLISHED NOVEMBER 20, 1920

Published each week during the college year except during holidays and examination period by the students of Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia. Box 189

Myrd Mouson Editor-in-Chief
Ann Ayres Managing Editor
Donna Humphlett Business Manager
Gayle Aron News Editor
Lola Peters Feature Editor
Lillian Oliver Sports Editor
Elaine Barnard and Linda Studish Book Review Editor
Jane Hanger Photography
Miss Mary E. Nichols Circulation Manager
Faculty Advisor

—Staff Photo
LONGWOOD LADIES were seen in Farmville Christmas Parade.

Longwood Girls Join In Christmas Parade

From beginning to end, Longwood participation could be seen in the annual Christmas parade in Farmville. Thirteen Longwood beauty contest winners were helped onto their floats by Dr. Sneller and Mr. Taylor. This began a parade seen by an estimated 12,000 people. A hot dog feast where 40 hot dogs were wrapped and served to the participating bands by the college YWCA marked the end.

Six Bands

The parade itself consisted of six bands, fourteen floats, and the local chapters of Boy Scouts, 4-H'ers, and other attractions.

Parade chairman Kenneth Lane termed the parade "the greatest success in Farmville history" and congratulated the Longwood beauty queens on their bravery on such a cold night. He also gave special thanks to the YWCA and the Slater Food Service Management for their efficient handling of food for the bands.

800 Participants

Of the 800 participants in the parade 24 were Longwood College students, and Santa Claus added the traditional children's touch to the festivities. This was a parade in which all who participated should be proud and all who saw enjoyed.

Longwood girls participating were Linda Mae Fore, Betty Flo Biddlecomb, Suzanne Ballard, Wanda Old, Katherine Ella Dean, and Jo Leslie Andrews.

Also representing the college were Gwynne Phillips, Jean Stone, Amy Haley, Barbara Muehlman, Norah Elliott, Carl Dickson, and Doris Harwell.

Reorganization Plan Evokes Student Poll

By Peggy Pond

In accordance with its policy of reporting trends of opinion concerning vital issues around the campus, the Rotunda has conducted a poll to sample the feeling of students on the proposed reorganization of Student Government.

Two Boards

The question "What do you think of the plan for Student Government reorganization?" was asked to students at random. The feature of the plan evoking the most widespread comment involves the division of the Student Government Association into two boards: a Legislative Board to handle rule changes, Constitutional Amendments, and business matters, and a Judicial Board to exercise authority over all rule violations and infractions of the Honor Code.

An enthusiastic senior, Susan Lane said, "I think it is an excellent idea. I've heard that it has worked at other colleges. It seems a better idea to have two bodies, one to legislate and one to carry out judicial functions. It will bring out the leadership abilities of more people."

Gloria Newton, a Junior, had this to say, "I approve. It will bring about more efficiency in Student Government proceedings."

Logical Type

Said Kathy Puckett, a freshman, "I am in favor of it because two separate departments seems the most logical type of organization."

Because the plan provides for a separate set of officers for each Board, many students see it as a means of lessening the responsibilities borne by Student Government members.

Said one Junior, Lucy Swink, "I like the plan. It would require less time of people on Student Government and a few wouldn't have to bear the burden of responsibility."

More Opportunity

Jean Lowry, another Junior, added, "I am in favor of the plan because it would give more students an opportunity to participate in Student Government and would make them realize that it is their organization."

Although an overwhelming majority of the students polled favored the plan in its entirety, several students did evidence some doubt about it. Said Vandal Holman, a senior, "Some reorganization is necessary because of the increasing enrollment of the college. However, the present plan could have worked had it been enforced."

One Weakness

A sophomore, Brenda Johnson, pointed out, "I can see only one possible weakness in the plan for reorganization. The fact that the president of Student Government will be a member of the Legislative Board and not of the Judicial Board may cause students to feel that the two Boards aren't of equal importance. Otherwise, I am definitely in favor of the plan."

Motto 'Be Prepared' For American Public

(The following feature is based upon an article recently published in Time Magazine.)

By Marlene McSweeney

The Berlin crisis and the danger it threatened touched off a sudden interest in the United States in civil defense. President John F. Kennedy in his address on May 25, 1961, emphasized the fact that the Civil Defense program to protect the civilian populace would be very expensive. He also reminded the American public that Civil Defense cannot give complete blast protection in event of a surprise attack.

People gathered in public places and private homes began to discuss the possibility of personal protection afforded by home fallout shelters. In many modern cities, business buildings erected in the last ten years have provided special shelters for employees. But what protection would a housewife in Newark, New Jersey, have if a bomb were dropped on Manhattan?

First Warning

The first warning of a nuclear attack would be a blinding flash, seen for hundreds of miles. Almost everything in a one-mile radius from the point where the bomb is dropped would be totally destroyed. Some reinforced concrete buildings might remain standing within five miles of the central point. However, all wood-frame structures would be wrecked within a ten-mile radius.

The most dangerous of all the bomb's effects would come after the heat and shock waves due to the radioactive fallout resulting from the upheaval of earth caused by the tremendous jolt of the bomb. This earth and debris is carried more than 100,000 feet into the air and mixed with more than 200 types of radioactive particles. Wind and atmospheric conditions will carry these particles to fall back to earth in quantities which are quite harmful. The particles may be carried as far as 150 miles from the point where the bomb was dropped.

Shelter Cost

A more elaborate shelter may cost upwards of $1,500. However, the Government has made available blueprints for simple basement or backyard shelters. These may be constructed of steel, concrete, or wood and may be built for $150 or less.

What provisions are necessary for survival once inside the shelter? A two-week supply of food and a minimum of salt content. It is recommended that water be placed in plastic or metal containers. Canned foods will last for an indefinite period. It is advised that the foods chosen have a minimum of salt content. This will inhibit thirst.

Every shelter should have an air-intake-exhaust system, a first-aid kit, and flashlights. There are numerous other small items, such as, air purifiers, garbage cans, matches, and can openers, which are also useful.

Moral Question

There is also a moral question involved in the erection of fallout shelters. What is a man to do if his next door neighbor is shelterless and attempts to invade his private shelter? To take the neighbor in would mean sure death for himself and his family. However, exactly what can the man do ready for any aggressive move on the part of other nations can Americans hope for survival.

Americans must remember that it is best to "be prepared" at all times. Those who oppose the erection of fallout shelters may realize that only by being ready for any aggressive move on the part of other nations can Americans hope for survival.

Water Pageant Gains Applause In Open Letter

Dear Editor,

So often your columns are filled with criticisms and complaints that it might come as a shock to discover what the content of this letter will be. I would like to voice a thank you and many compliments to all of the people who put on the Christmas Water Pageant.

"The Nutcracker" was an artistic and imaginative production. Each part was unique and clever, while the whole show conveyed a continuity of thought—and a fine gift for our Christmas season.

Sincerely,

A Representative Student

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

"ONE OF THE FINEST FRESHMAN LITERATURE TEACHERS WE'VE EVER HAD"

Book Collection Award Offered College Student

Under the sponsorship of the Saturday Review, The Book-of-the-Month Club and The Women's National Book Association the Amy Loveman National Award will be given yearly to a college student who has collected an outstanding personal library. The award, a gift of one thousand dollars, will be made each year, beginning with 1962.

The Amy Loveman National Award was established in memory of the late Associate Editor of Saturday Review, a Book-of-the-Month Club Judge, a member of The Women's National Book Association and winner of their Constance Lindsay Skinner Award. Miss Loveman was widely known and beloved in the publishing world and throughout her long and distinguished career in literary journalism, was particularly interested in broadening the horizons of young people by introducing them to the universe of books and ideas. The sponsors believe that the Award offers a realization of this important objective of Miss Loveman.

Nominations of senior students for the Award will be made by Chairmen of Campus Library Award Committees who will have selected a local winner. "How I would start building a home library," "The next ten books I hope to add to my personal library and why," "My ideas for a complete home library," and an annotated bibliography of the local winner's present collection accompany

Four Audiences View Christmas Water Pageant

The 1961 Christmas Water Pageant, "The Nutcracker," was presented last Thursday and Friday to a capacity crowd for all four performances.

Many innovations made this Pageant different from the previous ones. The lights, designed and worked by Barbara Stewart, were of various colors this year. A marked difference was effected in pick-up by the lights of the swimmers as they moved down the pool.

The backdrops were much simpler this year, with only the name of the pageant, "The Nutcracker," written in modified old English. Three live "tin soldiers" played by Clis Griggs, Marion Ross, and Sarah Jane Lynch, stood at attention during the pageant.

Many special effects were used this year — including a number done in complete darkness with lights attached to the swimmers and a number done with dry ice to give a cloudy, fairyland effect. The last number done — a duet by Janice Harris and Chris Longstreet — "Pas de Deux," was one of the outstanding numbers.

The co-chairmen, Mary Byrd Micou and Ann Smith, said they were very happy and pleased with the pageant. "It couldn't have been done without the wonderful cooperation and help of the various committee chairmen, Mrs. Bobbitt, and, of course, the wonderful swimmers."

—Staff Photo
MEMBERS OF TECHNIQUES CLASS, L. Obenshain, C. Longstreet, B. Stewart, B. G. Martin, B. McDaniel, and C. Nye practice trampoline skills.

the nomination for the national award.

The judges for the Amy Loveman National Award will include a Saturday Review Editor, a Book-of-the-Month Club Judge, a nationally known college or university librarian, a nationally known author, critic, or book collector.

No collection of less than 35 books will be considered. Collections are to be judged on basis of intelligent interest, scope and imagination shown in creating the collection and knowledge of the books as revealed in the annotations. Collections (excluding textbooks) of any type are eligible; whether centered in a subject or avocation, a single author or group of authors, a general collection.

The deadline for nomination is April 30th. The award will be made to the winning student at Commencement time. For further information concerning the Amy Loveman National Award, write Box 553, Times Square Post Office, New York 36, N. Y.

LC Book Store Adds To Wares In Paper Backs

One hundred different paper back editions are now available in the Longwood College bookstore.

Trade Books
This trade book department or collection of leisure reading is an asset which many colleges are now striving to obtain. The bookstore can now truly be called a "book" store rather than a textbook store.

To illustrate the enthusiasm already shown by the students, one obviously well-read individual purchased 21 selections while the books were being shelved for their introduction to the Longwood campus on Wednesday.

Classics
Not only classics and philosophy but some best sellers are available, and copies not in stock can be obtained by students through the bookstore.

Patronize
The Rotunda
Advertisers

HOLLYWOOD BEAUTY SHOP

Let Us Assist You With Your

Hair Tinting .....	$5.00 and up
Shampoo and Set .....	$1.00
Hair Cuts .....	$1.00
Permanent Including Shampoo, Cut, Style, Set .....	$5.00

CALL EX 2-9019

Former LC Student Returns As Teacher

By Ann Carroll

Once upon a time in Lynchburg there was a little girl named Phyllis Watts. She came to college in Farmville to get a B.S. degree in Education, majoring in physical education and minor in biology.

Sidk Chairman

Her very first year she got in the Red-and-White spirit of her class as chairman of the freshman Circus skit. During her four years here, she was a member of the Monogram Club, the H2O Club, and was tennis manager for the Athletic Association.

From Longwood, she went to the University of New York to do graduate work. Here she met Clifford Sydney Harris, Jr. and "he chased me 'til I caught him," she explains. He is in the service, so the Harris has traveled in all parts of the United States.

Golf Champion

In Arkansas, Mrs. Harris taught golf, and was a golf champion for two years; she has taught in Illinois and in New Mexico. In Virginia she taught tennis, boating and canoeing at Sweet Briar College, and was Director of Girls' Physical Education at Andrew Lewis in Roanoke. While in Roanoke County, she was selected as the Outstanding Citizen, and among her prizes were a corsage, an appearance on television and a free trip to Natural Bridge.

Besides Teaching

Besides teaching, Mrs. Harris has worked with the State. She wrote a booklet for beginning teachers, called "How To Teach Tennis, Shuffleboard, and Ping-Pong."

She and her husband spent five years in Alaska, three in Anchorage and two at Eielson Air Force Base, twenty-six miles south of Fairbanks.

For two years, she was Toastmaster in Anchorage; she managed and taught swimming at a pool there, called the Spa, a term meaning a place of swimming. She learned to mush dogs, to ski (she won a medal at this, too), and she learned to use an Eskimo yo-yo.

Newspaper

Mrs. Harris did some writing for a newspaper in Alaska, and she had her own dog team. During the summer months, she and others would train the dogs, and in the winter these dogs were divided into groups, called the Scrubs and the Varsity, (the leg-length determined which went where) and then the dog races would begin.

Meanwhile

Well, her husband was sent to Korea, so until she can join him, she decided to return to her alma mater and teach.

So she did, and she is Mrs. Harris in the Physical Education Department at Longwood this year, who has a sign to show her swimming classes when they are trying to concentrate on getting across the pool in the elementary backstroke. It says "Smile." She is the Mrs. Harris who holds coach classes in physical education; and she is the one who says "Living is exciting; the people I meet are nice and I learn so much from them."

In her office on her bulletin board, under the "Peanuts" cartoon, she has a printed explanation of why she loves teaching. The title of this is "More than Gold," by William Lyons Phelps, and his last sentence summarizes: "The excitement of teaching comes from the fact that one is teaching a subject one loves to individuals who are worth more than all the money in the world."

Mrs. Harris lives at Longwood Estate with her Siberian husky, who is called Susie, short for Tyndrum Sustina. (The first part is a kennel name and the latter is the name of a mountain across from Anchorage.)

One student summarizes Mrs. Harris' personality with: "She is a charming and delightful person who likes people, and she is always inviting someone out for cokes and pizza." Fixing and flipping pizza is one thing she has learned to do since coming here this year.

To conclude the story of Mrs. C. S. Harris, to date, she herself says: "I am delighted to return to my alma mater. And Merry Christmas!"

—Staff Photo
LONGWOOD ALUMNA, Mrs. Harris now instructor of physical education, demonstrates stroke to class.

PE Studies Include Bowling, Trampoline

By Barbara Agee

Something new has been added to the Physical Education 302-303 class agenda. Along with the basic techniques of hockey and the other usual sports, two new sports have been introduced — bowling and trampolining.

Five Lessons

Five lessons of each are being presented to the class. During the first five lessons, half the class went to a local bowling alley, and the other half rode the college bus to a local trampoline center. After five lessons, the groups were reversed.

Mrs. Eleanor Bobbitt gave bowling instructions, while two experienced student — jumpers, Sharon Surver and Lois Obenshain, gave trampoline lessons under the supervision of "Miss Bee."

Growing Popular

Since these two sports are growing in popularity, it is believed that lessons in these techniques will greatly benefit all students participating, especially the physical education majors.

Freshman Lurine Robertson says that the trampolining "helps develop coordination and the bowling develops techniques basic to many other sports." Sophomore Shirley Medcalf believes this program "is very beneficial as trampolines are used in schools more and more. Bowling provides excellent leisure time activity."

All the physical education majors agree that every student should be able to participate in such a program.

the ages of 18 and 40, and must have completed at least one year of college work. A few full scholarships are available.

The University of Vienna, offering summer courses at its St. Wolfgang Campus near Salzburg, combines study with outdoor life at a mountain lake. Its aim to enable English-speaking students to become acquainted with Austrian educational and social values. Courses being offered include German language, law and political science, education, arts and history.

Students who have completed at least two years of college are eligible to apply. The fee for the full six-week program, including maintenance, tours and excursions, and attendance at the Salzburg Festival is $335, with an optional four-day trip to Vienna costing $35. A few scholarships covering partial or full fees are available to six-week students.

Applications for both the British and Austrian programs may be obtained from the Information and Counseling Division, the Institute of International Education (see letterhead). British Summer School scholarship applications must be received before March 1, 1962, and admission applications before March 31. Scholarship applications before March 31. Scholarship applications for Austrian schools must be returned by March 1, and admission applications by May 1.

College Greeks Mark Yuletide In Varied Ways

This week the Greeks are busy with Christmas parties, carolling, and sponsoring needy families.

Alpha Sigma Alpha is having a party but rather than exchange gifts, they are giving gifts to their room as to classes.

Alpha Sigma Tau is having a party and helping an underprivileged family.

Delta Zeta is also having a party and the girls are sending gifts to their adopted children in Richmond.

The Alpha Gamma Deltas are having a party as well as Sigma Kappa, Phi Mu, Kappa Delta, Sigma Sigma Sigma, and Zeta Tau Alpha. The Sigma Kaps are going carolling and wrapping gifts. Phi Mu is also helping a family as are the other sororities.

Zeta Tau Alpha is inviting their patrons and their families to their Christmas party. They are wrapping presents for eight children, and they have made forty-five small Christmas trees to place in the hospital. The tree in their room will be given to the hospital when the vacation begins. On Thursday, they are decorating the columns at the hospital with greenery.

The Delta Zetas' room is now furnished with a stereo which they won saving cigarette wrappers of the Philip Morris Company.

Lane Addresses Geography Meet

Dr. Charles F. Lane, Professor of Geography and Geology at Longwood College, presented a paper at the 16th annual meeting of the Southeastern Division, Association of American Geographers, which was held at the University of South Carolina Nov. 20-21.

Dr. Lane's paper, "Some Natural and Cultural Observations in the Dismal Swamp of Virginia," was presented at the Southern Studies session of the meeting.

A member of the Longwood faculty since 1950, Dr. Lane received his B. A. and M.S. degrees at the University of Tennessee and his Ph. D. from Northwestern University. He served as president of the Virginia Geographical Society from 1951 to 1958, and is State Coordinator of the National Council for Geographic Education.

GIVE BOOKS FOR CHRISTMAS!

Catherine Marshall's Beyond Ourselves .....	$4.95
Pat Boone's The Real Christmas .....	$1.50
Salinger's Franny and Zooey .....	$4.00
Taylor Caldwell's A Prologue To Love .....	$ .95
PT 109 John F. Kennedy in World War II .....	$4.95
Mila 18 by Leon Uris .....	$4.95
The New English Bible .....	$4.95
Webster's New Collegiate Dictionary .....	$5 - $15
Etiquette and Cookbooks .....	$1.00 and up
James Wellard's A Sound of Trumpets .....	$3.95

WEYANOKO BOOK SHOP

Merry Christmas!

SOUTHSIDE
SUNDRY CO.

CHRISTMAS SPECIALS!

- Stationery
- Dolls
- Informals

The Snack Bar

Just Arrived!

Prince Gardner

Accessories

from $2.50 up

DOROTHY MAY

Marlboro

campus favorite in all 50 states!

...It's a top seller at colleges from U.S.C. to Yale
...and 1st in the Flip-Top box in every single state

If you think you're seeing more Marlboro men lately, you're right. More than 25,000 smokers all over the country are switching to Marlboro every month!

You'll know why when you try them.

Marlboro is the filter cigarette with the unfiltered taste. The secret of the flavor is the famous Marlboro recipe from Richmond, Virginia... and the pure white Selectrate filter that goes with it.

Try Marlboro and judge for yourself. On or off campus, you get a lot to like.

Flip-Top box or King-size pack

Studio Christmas

Cards at

LANSCOTT'S

Merry Christmas!

MARTIN
THE JEWELER

SALE!

A whole table of books

COLLEGE
BOOK STORE

The Rotunda

VOLUME XLI

Longwood College, Farmville, Va., January 10, 1962

No. 10

Around The Campi

That exams are drawing near is obvious by the "do not disturb" signs already tacked up on various doors around the campi. At a time like this one would think that these studious hermits could stand an encouraging word from a friend.

Congratulations to Mr. Helms' American History classes who have just fought the War of the American Revolution.

The flu season and semester exams seem to be hitting Longwood at the same time. Could this be indicative of something?

It seems that UVA has nothing over Longwood now!

Noticed anything new about the dining hall lately? Longwood is really going ivy this year.

Congratulations also to those who have graduated from the ranks of the unattached.

Only thirty-two more shopping days 'til Abraham Lincoln's Birthday.

Someone has changed the sign "Hose for Korean Women" to "Hose for Student Teachers!"

—Staff

Three Seniors Head Elections, May Day

By Peggy Pond

On December 12, the Longwood College student body elected Judy Detrich as chairman of Major-Minor elections, Keaton Holland as chairman of May Day, and Mary Leach Elmore as business manager of May Day.

Judy Detrich is an English major from Hampton. She is editor of the Colonnade, historian of Beta Epsilon Theta, vice president of Pi Delta Epsilon, a member of Alpha Kappa Gamma, and is listed in "Who's Who."

Screening Board

As chairman of Major-Minor elections, Judy will organize the election of the screening board whose duty it will be to select three candidates for each of the four major offices from nominations, and she hopes everyone will do her part by voting when election time comes.

May Day

A biology major from Holland, Keaton Holland is vice president of the Athletic Association, a participant in class sports, a member of the Monogram Club and a member of Kappa Delta social sorority.

It will be Keaton's job to coordinate and direct all the activities connected with May Day. She and Mary Leach Elmore will meet soon with the senior members of Student Government to decide on a theme and definite committees.

Tentative Plans

Tentative plans for committees for properties, dances, and May Court were discussed at a

Sophomores Go Japanese

Philbrick Visits Campus January 16

FBI Counterspy To Speak Here On 'Three Lives'

Herbert A. Philbrick, who speaks here during assembly in Jarman Hall on Tuesday, January 16, shook the foundations of the American section of the communist criminal conspiracy when the United States Justice Department suddenly revealed at the trial of "The Eleven" top communists that he had been a counterspy for the FBI... because the shocked Reds knew him as a member of the Party's highest echelons. He also thrilled millions of Americans as he testified before Judge Harold Medina, how he had lived for nine years as a respected member of his community while working his way up the ranks of the communist party underground.

Recalling how his initial contact with communists was made when he was innocently drawn into a communist front organization, Philbrick says, "I feel it a real responsibility to warn

SOPHOMORES, D. Brewer and J. Baldwin, "worship" Buddha.

Oriental Theme Revealed Friday In Jarman Hall

By Deris Smith

The theme for Sophomore Production will not be revealed until the night of Production, Friday, January 12. However, the information that it is "Made in Japan" is being disclosed. The production will be at 8 pm in Jarman.

This mysterious production is to be narrated by a Sophomore soothsayer, Joan Baldwin. Sophomore Production is divided into three acts. The first is at a Japanese tea house that has been converted to a coffee house. The second act is at an authentic Japanese tea house, and the third act returns to the coffeehouse.

The main characters include Michi, Lu, Doni, Johnny Japanese, and Lei-San. Michi, played by Marlene Kren, is a Japanese teenager who can't decide whether to be a "bopping" teenager or to be a very formal Japanese girl like the girls before her.

Lu, played by Peggy Pond, has been westernized to the new way of doing things, having experienced the old way, herself. Carol Carawan as Doni is rather stupid, and naturally a pest to Michi. Sandy Waugh as Johnny Japanese is the "ivy" boy friend of Michi who tries to convince her that she should be a "bopping" teenager.

Besides these characters, (Continued on page 4)

Scholarship Aid Honoring Hiner Donated To LC

Mrs. Earl Crafts, teacher of the first college-level home economics course in Virginia, has donated in the name of Miss Mary Clay Hiner, a retired English professor now living in Farmville, a $5000 scholarship fund to assist financially any worthy student. This fund was given to the Longwood College Foundation, Inc.

Miss Hiner came to Longwood College in 1965. She studied at Peabody and the University of Chicago, and she received her M.A. degree. She specialized in children's literature in her education work. In 1947 she retired from her English teaching position, although she still resides in Farmville.

Mrs. Earl Crafts, the donor of this scholarship, offered as an elective in 1967 the first home economics course on a college level. This she did at Longwood. After three years in Farmville, however, she left and traveled. Before moving to her present home in Lima, Ohio, she taught in Georgia, South Dakota and Arizona.

College Displays Museum Exhibit

The Longwood College Art Department Gallery will be the site of the exhibition, "Art in Higher Education in Virginia," January 8-22. The display is on loan from the Virginia Museum of Art. Included in the exhibition will be work by Longwood students.

The exhibition will be displayed on the second floor of West Wing Building.

PHILBRICK

how anyone can be victimized by the scheming communists." In his lectures he gives graphic and first hand illustrations of "worthy groups" and fake organizations with high-sounding ideals that the communists have infiltrated or formed for their own devious purposes. He describes how many innocent and reputable citizens have unwittingly signed petitions or supported organizations controlled by communists.

English Faculty Announces Test For January 15

The English Department has announced that the Junior English Test has been scheduled for Monday, January 15 from 7 to 9 p.m. in West Wing 106 and West Wing 107.

All students of current junior standing, students who will attain junior status next semester, and transfer students are required to take this test as a part of graduation requirements. A list of students who have demonstrated proficiency in previous standard tests and in English course work will be posted shortly in the West Wing and these students will be absolved from taking the test.

The Junior English Test covers correctness and effectiveness of written expression and reading ability.

(Continued on page 3)

—Staff Photo

RECENTLY ELECTED May Day chairman and business manager, K. Holland and M. L. Elmore discuss plans with J. Detrich, Major-Minor elections chairman.

among the nominations made by each class. This election will be held in February.

Judy will also supervise the Major-Minor elections held later in the spring. Although few definite plans have been made for the election, Judy urges everyone to be thinking seriously of qualified candidates for the recent meetings. Suggestions for a band to play at the May Day Dance are also being considered. Keaton said she is already praying to the rain gods not to send rain for May Day.

Mary Leach Elmore, who will work closely with Keaton on May Day, is an elementary and

Powell Selected For Editorship Of LC Handbook

The newly elected editor of the Handbook for 1962-63 is "Wootie" Powell, an elementary education major from Newport News.

POWELL

Active in many class and campus activities, Wootie is a member of Alpha Gamma Delta social sorority, Granddaughters Club, and House Council. She is also on the assembly committee, and is chairman of the Junior Dance committee.

She says of her new position, "Longwood College has meant so much to me that I'm afraid to have an opportunity like this to serve it."

Timely Topics

India Announces Plan To Resist Red China

By Barbara Wilsner

Prime Minister Nehru of India says that if Red China carries out its threat of invading northern India, his country will resist.

The forces of the United Nations and Katanga Province clashed last week in battles near and in Elisabethville. At least 40 persons were killed and many injured in these battles. The fighting resulted from the anger of the Katangese government over a United Nations resolution stating that the secession of Katanga from the central government of the Congo was illegal.

The Kennedy's plan to visit the Latin American countries of Venezuela and Colombia on January 16 and 17. The purpose of this trip is to show that the United States is interested in the development progress of Latin America.

United Nations ambassador Adlai Stevenson announced that he intends to keep his UN post and not to run for the Senate. This decision was rendered after President Kennedy promoted Stevenson a more important role in US foreign policy. Britain plans to send into space its first satellite this coming spring. This launching is a part of a British-American scientific research movement.

The United States no longer has hopes for having a manned space flight this year. The attempt to put a man in space will be made early next year.

Blue-Gray Game Sees Rebel Win With 42-7 Score

By Ann Smith

In football, the big news was the thirteenth annual Senior Bowl Game. The Rebels were victorious over the North with a lopsided 42-7 win. From the South, Ronnie Bull of Baylor and Earl Gros of LSU were named most valuable players and Billy Neighbors, an All-American from Alabama was named top lineman. For the North, Tom Larscheid of Utah State was voted most valuable back and Clark Miller, also of Utah State, most valuable lineman.

Still in football, on the pro scene, the Lions trounced the Eagles 35-10 before 25,612 fans in the second pro-playoff game at the Orange Bowl.

In basketball, Hampden-Sydney had a narrow win over Norfolk-William and Mary, 84-82. Randolph - Mason won over Bridgewater, 76-57. Other news in basketball, Illinois opened a bid to the Big Ten Championship with a 91-71 victory over Michigan. This makes Illinois 8-1. Michigan 2-3. Indiana beat Michigan State with a close 76-71 and Wisconsin won 91-79 over Iowa. Boston College stopped Navy, 88-79. The Atlantic Coast Conference was captured by Wake Forest with a 81-54 win over Clemson. This is Wake Forest's third conference victory.

Closer to home, Hampden-Sydney and Randolph-Macon refused to join the new College Athletic Conference league. Finances were given by both colleges as the reason for the refusal. Dick Burrell, Hampden-Sydney athletic director, esti-

—Staff Photo
VARSITY BASKETBALL MANAGERS, F. Barnard and N. Eudy, look over schedule of games.

Varsity Managers Chosen For Season

Varsity basketball managers for the 1962 season are Junior Flossie Barnard and Norma Eudy, a sophomore. Flossie, a physical education major from Richmond is a member of the Athletic Association council, the Monogram Club, and is photographer for the Rotunda. Norma, from Randolph, is also a physical education major and a member of the AA Council.

Team Fast

Among the duties of the managers is the one of helping to choose the team. Flossie said of the members, "This is a fast team. They look pretty good to me, and I think we'll do very well this year." Norma added that this year, the team also has a height advantage, most of the team being taller than last year's. Team members for this year are, Senior Linda Suduth; Juniors Linder Hatch and Sandy Phlegar; Sophomores Shirley Carr, Norma Eudy, Doris Harrison, Brenda Isbell, Lola Oenshand, Sharon Sarver, Ann Sneed, Jean Still and Gay Taylor. Freshmen chosen for the team are Susan Abernathy, Sandra Ashworth, Kathy Dean, Lurline Robertson, Melody Saunders, and Carrie Lee Wilson.

Games Scheduled

The managers now have most of the games scheduled, and they are as follows: Madison here February 20 at 7 o'clock. Mary Washington here February 24 at 2 o'clock, clinics at 4 o'clock. February 25, and Westhampton there March 3. Arrangements are in the making for games with William and Mary and RPI, and possibly for a game between the second team or the Freshman team and Medical College.

Flossie and Norma hope to see the attendance at varsity games increase this year, because, "Most of our games are going to be here, therefore, we hope a lot of people will be interested and will come out to see them."

Philbrick Discusses Life As Counterspy

(Continued from page 1)

ace. "While we must be cautious . . . and rightly so — we must not curtail our support of groups and organizations working for better communities and a stronger and better America."

Author of the best-selling book "I Led 3 Lives" which was serialized in over 100 newspapers Philbrick wrote in New York Herald Tribune column "The Red Underground," which was widely syndicated throughout the country. He has several times scooped the communists in their own security-laid plans from information transmitted to him by sources still working inside the Party, loyal individuals whose identity must be a carefully guarded secret. But by revealing the Reds' projected activities in a certain area or within a certain group he has forced the communists many times to cancel or change their original plans.

To dramatize the lessons he learned about communist operations and infiltration tactics, Philbrick authorized a series of documentary television films based on his experiences. The series is the first documentary presentation yet made on anti-communism, and has many sponsors across the country who are presenting the TV show as a public service program. To assure complete authenticity, Philbrick maintained close supervision over the writing, editing and production of the films.

"To be sure even the atmosphere would be real," Philbrick says, "We put into the scripts such details as—where is a cell meeting held?—what does it look like?—what kind of furnishings?—what types of characters attend them?—what mannerisms do they have?—exactly what did they talk about and what words did they use?"

Philbrick nevertheless is relieved at last to be free from the tension of living a triple life as businessman and father, secret "member" of the communist party, and volunteer counterspy for the FBI. It was some months after the trial before he and his family could settle down to a new life. Even today certain "security measures" are taken because of Red crackpots. "Of whom there are a few in the Party" quips Philbrick; however, "after nine years of close contact with communists of all types, I'm vastly relieved and happy to restrict my contacts today with businessmen!"

Philbrick now owns and operates a country store in New Hampshire. He lives there with his wife, five daughters, and one son. He now has time to indulge in his hobbies of photography and his home workshop, and to play his Hammond organ, an enthusiasm shared by his wife and daughters.

In his lecture Philbrick describes the beginning of his career in anti-subversion when he discovered how cleverly the communists had infiltrated his youth group. He tells how he rose gradually in the ranks of the party, his training as underground communist, until he became a member of the "Pro" group, the select and secret conspirators who determine the "tactics and strategy" of party policies. The existence of this powerful body was unknown, at the time Philbrick revealed it at the trial in Foley Square, even to rank and file communist party members. Philbrick tells how he kept his tortuous activities for the FBI a complete secret from everyone except his wife until finally he gave his key testimony, helping substantially to convict the eleven communists on trial.

Philbrick says, "I speak now as an ordinary citizen and businessman who has had an opportunity to gather some additional experience and insight into the forces at work around and beneath us. Each of us have our own lives to live; but we should also be some of our time and attention to the most important simple question and problem facing the world today . . . the menace of the communist criminal conspiracy and how to defeat it."

Seniors Elected, Head May Day, Major-Minors

(Continued from page 1)

social sciences major from Charlotte, North Carolina. She is business manager of the Virginian, and holds membership in Pi Delta Epsilon and Alpha Sigma Tau social societies. At the present time she is student teaching in Roanoke.

Business Matters

It will be her responsibility to handle the money and other and other business matters concerning May Day. Her first big job will be to draw up a budget to distribute the money allotted to May Day among the various committees.

All three girls are looking forward to graduation with anticipation, but they concurred in saying that they will miss Longwood and the friends they have made both in the student body and on the faculty.

Closer to home, Hampden-Sydney and Randolph-Macon refused to join the new College Athletic Conference league. Finances were given by both colleges as the reason for the refusal. Dick Burrell, Hampden-Sydney athletic director, esti-

Examination Schedule

		First Semester 1961-62 Session
Examination Day and Date		Morning 8:05-11:05	Afternoon 1:05-4:05
Wednesday, January 24	10:05 MWF Classes MW & WF Classes MTWTF Classes	10:05 TTS Classes TTh Classes TuS Classes ThS Classes
Thursday, January 25	2:05 MWF Classes MW & WF Classes MTWTF Classes	9:05 TTS Classes TTh Classes TuS Classes ThS Classes
Friday, January 26	11:05 TTh Classes 2:05 TTh Classes	1:05 MWF Classes MW Classes WF Classes MTWTF Classes
Saturday, January 27	9:05 MWF Classes MW & WF Classes MTWTF Classes
Monday, January 29	11:05 MWF Classes MW & WF Classes MTWTF Classes	8:05 MWF Classes MW Classes WF Classes MTWTF Classes TWTuFS Classes
Tuesday, January 30	8:05, 4:05 MWF Classes MTWTF Classes TTh Classes MW & WF Classes	8:05 TTS Classes TTh Classes ThS Classes

Friday, January 26, 7:00-10:00 p.m.—CONFLICTS, Room 21.

Any student with an examination conflict should notify the professor responsible for administering one of the examinations in conflict. The professor will deliver the examination for the student to the Dean of the College before the Friday evening examination conflict period.

Any deviation from the above schedule must be approved in advance by the Dean of the College.

Examinations for evening classes will be scheduled on the evening of the regular class meeting during the examination period.

Paper Back

Book Display

COLLEGE BOOK STORE

See The

January Bargain Table

at

LANSCOTT'S

New Contemporary

Cards!

Only 10c Each

35 doz. to choose from

WEYANOKE BOOK STORE

Ground Floor
Hotel Weyanoke

NEW YEARS SPECIAL PERMANENT WAVE

$7.50

Complete
Styled, Cut and Set

VANITY Beauty Shop

Farmville, Va.

Have a Tasty Snack

at the

COLLEGE SNACK BAR

TAKE THE FULL LENGTH MIRROR TEST

Measure Up For '62
Join The Pound Dropping Group At The

Slim & Slender Contour Shop

Farmville, Va.
Programs: $12.50 Month
$2.50 Single Visits

Leitch Exhibits Art At Randolph-Macon

By Ginny Giffmore

A survey of the works of Mrs. Nancy V. Leitch, Art Instructor at Longwood, opened at Randolph-Macon Woman's College Sunday and will continue through January 28.

The exhibit is based around sculpture, her main interest. She has experimented and used many materials in this field, including heavy steel wire and ceramic medium. Also included in this exhibit will be drawings, mostly of animals and sixteen large weavings.

Her work has been exhibited in various museums and has won many awards and prizes. It is represented in collections both here and abroad.

Carnegie Tech Graduate Reared in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, Mrs. Leitch began painting at the age of thirteen. She later became interested in sculpting, and majored in sculpture at Carnegie Tech in Pittsburgh.

After graduating from Carnegie, she spent some time as a free lance sculptor, specializing in display work and the study of animals.

She then did advance study in sculpture and ceramics at Cranbrook Academy of Art, Michigan. Here she studied under the internationally known Swedish sculptor, Carl Milles, best known for his fountains, and assisted Majla Grotell, ceramist.

Interest in Weaving

After doing private teaching, she came to Virginia because of relatives here, and taught at Warwick High School in Newport News. Here she became interested in weaving because she had to teach it.

She took an interest in a teaching opportunity at Longwood because she wanted a change in the kind of teaching she was doing, and a chance to do more specialized work. She enjoys Longwood because it is a small, friendly school. "I hope it stays that way," she reflected. She finds Longwood girls very cooperative and pleasant to work with.

Hunting and Writing

She enjoys the Farmville area because it is a relaxed and easy-going place with a little country atmosphere still left.

Mrs. Leitch used to hunt and do some writing in her spare time, but finds little time or opportunity in her teaching career for either.

Freshman Production Under Way

Have you seen a lot of Freshmen hurrying from room to room, from Main Rec to Tabb Rec with mysterious, worried or pleased expressions? They are hard at work on Freshman Production to be presented in February.

The various committee heads report the script is already written. "We are very pleased with our script and really feel this will be a fast moving production," said Nancy Attkisson, one of the chairmen.

The chairmen for Freshman Production are Nancy Attkisson, Nancy Chandler Story, and Nancy Knewstap. The committee heads are dance, Melinda Davidson; Bobbie Burrell, and Sherry Holek; scenery, Ann Persak; lights, Connie Birch; props, Betsy Lacey; music, Pat Wallace; publicity, Cheramy Howe; script, Amy Haley, Peggy Hunt, Leslie Burris; and make-up, Susanne Ballard.

—Staff Photo
TWISTING TO CHECKERS TUNE are freshman, J. Loftin and D. Clark.

Farmville Woman's Club To Sponsor 'Artmobile'

The Virginia Museum Artmobile will be on exhibit here the week of February 5. It will arrive on February 3, and will open for viewing on February 5, continuing through February 9. The exhibit will be located on the street behind Cunningham dormitory.

Club-Sponsored

The Artmobile, sponsored by the Farmville Junior Woman's Club, is free to all students and the sponsoring club. A fee of 25 cents per person will be charged to the general public.

Worthwhile Exhibit

All students are encouraged to attend this exhibit as it contains many valuable and famous paintings.

'Slavic Review' Prints Analysis By LC Historian

Dr. Alexander V. Berkis, associate professor of history and social sciences here has reviewed The Chronicle of Henry Of Livonia by James A. Brudage for the "Slavic Review." Dr. Berkis, who received his doctorate from the University of Wisconsin, joined the Longwood College faculty in September of this academic year.

'Made In Japan' Revealed Friday By Sophomores

(Continued from page 1)

there will be dancers, a ukulele chorus, bongo players, and a flute and clarinet duet. The dances vary from a Japanese Twist to a Fan Dance. The music is original and recorded, and the costumes are colorful with some of them being authentic. The setting includes three types, stationary, flown backdrops, and the use of the scrim for a sky effect. Special lighting will be used and included in a list of props are a Buddha, a gong, and Japanese lanterns.

Jerry Clarke and Mary Anne Lipford, co-chairmen, agree that participation for Production has been very good. Sophomores in Longwood Players are also working on the show. Among them are Barbara Fields, Betty Atkinson, Patti O'Neill, Jean Bristow on lights, and Kaye Godwin as stage manager. Outside help has also been given by Cab Venable.

Tickets will be sold during the week and at the door on the night of Production. The admission is 50 cents for adults and 35 cents for students. Door prizes donated by local merchants will be given between the second and third acts.

Twist Turns Torsos To Turbid Top Tunes

By Neal Banks

You might as well face it—you're out if you don't have a disc with the latest Chubby sounds. I mean, man! How can you Twist without it?

Peppermint Lounge

For instance, how often do you hear about the Conacabana, these days? The Peppermint Lounge has made it positively nonexistent. Instead of "overheard at '21'" it's now "Seen last night at the Peppermint."

The craze has taken the country quicker and harder than either Elvis or Davy Crockett. Chubby Checker, the "Twist King," is the by-word on all fronts.

Dresses have even been designed and put on the market with the slogan, "They'll really Twist their necks for a look." The models have variations of fringe that flutter violently while gyrating. Ed Sullivan's television rating increased 20 per cent when the Peppermint

Twisters appeared on his show. Shaky Knowledge Parents say the dance is obscene, and then promptly ask their offspring to teach them how. The attempt is usually unsuccessful, but their knowledge, though shaky, is carried to bridge clubs, luncheons, and business meetings.

While Chubby Checker chortling is the preferred sound, the Twist can be done to any kind of music. It is rumored that "Brahms Lullaby" and "Joy to the World" are particularly adaptable. Tempo doesn't matter here, just the movement.

Ease in Performance

One of the nicest features of the dance (?) is the relative ease with which it can be performed. The feet are placed about twelve inches apart, the front knee slightly bent. As the hips rotate, the weight of the body shifts from one foot to the other. This is basic. From this point on it's every man for himself, and usually is. The partner is ignored. He's just there for those insecure persons who are afraid to journey out on the dance floor alone. After one has learned to Twist with finesse, it can be done solo, anywhere, any time.

There doesn't seem to be an end in sight. As this writer types away, the sounds of "Let's Twist again" come from a uke in the next room. 1962 will probably say, "Let's Twist again, like we did last year—e-e-a-r."

Good Luck

On Exams!

Attend Sophomore

Production

Free Door Prizes

Rytex Informals

MARTIN
THE JEWELER

Patronize

Rotunda

Advertisers

Certainly!

It was there, in the ground, in the air and water. It always had been. There are no more "raw materials" today than there were when Rome ruled the world.

The only thing new is knowledge... knowledge of how to get at and rearrange raw materials. Every invention of modern times was "available" to the Romans, Caesar, Charlemagne.

In this sense, then, we have available today in existing raw materials the inventions that can make our lives longer, happier, safer, easier. We need only knowledge to bring them into reality.

Could there possibly be a better argument for the strengthening of our sources of knowledge—our colleges and universities? Can we possibly deny that the welfare, progress—indeed the very fate—of our nation depends on the quality of knowledge generated and transmitted by these institutions of higher learning?

It is almost unbelievable that a society such as ours, which has profited so vastly from an accelerated accumulation of knowledge, should allow anything to threaten the wellsprings of our living.

Yet this is the case.

The crisis that confronts our colleges today threatens seriously their ability to produce the kind of graduates who can assimilate and carry forward our rich heritage of learning. The crisis is composed of several elements: a salary scale that is driving away from teaching the kind of mind most qualified to teach; overcrowded classrooms; and a mounting pressure of applications that will increase 100% by 1967.

In a very real sense our personal and national progress depends on our colleges. They must have our aid.

Help the colleges or universities of your choice. Help them plan for stronger faculties and expansion. The returns will be greater than you think.

If you want to know what the college crisis means to you, write for a free booklet to: HIGHER EDUCATION, Box 36, Times Square Station, New York 36, New York.

The Rotunda

VOLUME LXI

Longwood College, Farmville, Va., February 14, 1962

No. 11

Members Selected For Screening Board

Last week each of the four classes at Longwood elected representatives for the Major-Minor Elections Screening Board. Freshmen, Rhea Mahan and Millie Woodward; sophomores, Dana Brewer and Betty Jean Russell; juniors, Betty Stack and Laurie Hamlet; and seniors, Neddie Chapman and Susan Crisman are serving on this board. Judy Dietrich, chairman of Major-Minor elections, and Jo Savage, Ann H. Griffin Morag Nocher and Nancy Pretty as heads of organizations will also serve. Their responsibility is to choose the most qualified of the candidates nominated by each class for the major student offices.

Former System

The system of using a screening board in elections was adopted in 1960. There was a similar committee until then, but there were no class representatives.

Instead, the heads of the major organizations, a chairman, and the editors of the publications made up the deciding committee. With the adoption of the Screening Board, a better, more efficient and representative method of electing officers was established.

Objective Decisions

The Screening Board has to be as objective as possible in making decisions. They look for certain qualifications in each candidate in the screening process.

Among these are poise, tolerance, good character, the respect of the students given a candidate, and the ability to cooperate with faculty, sponsors and student. A grade average of C is a requirement, and experience is considered. Qualities necessary for a particular office also influence the decisions.

Students' Responsibility

Because the Screening Board is to represent every Longwood student, its success depends on each girl here. Information about a candidate's character and capabilities should be relayed to a representative, and if any student thinks one candidate is more suited to a particular office, this also should be told to Screening Board members.

Only with the cooperation and helpful information of the entire student body can the board perform its duties well. The results of their present decisions will be announced February 16.

Fashion Show

The stage of Jarman auditorium will be set for "A Winter Day of Fashion" on February 20.

The fashion show, sponsored by the Home Economics Club, will be at 8 p.m., and there is no admission charge.

Those modeling are home economics majors who have participated in sewing classes during the year.

Humphlett Acts As Trial Editor

Donna Humphlett, a sophomore English major, served as editor-in-chief of this week's Rotunda, the first trial issue and the newspaper's fiscal year. Donna is presently serving as news editor.

Working with Donna for this trial issue were Ann Carroll, managing editor; Pat Res, news editor; Ginny Gilmore, feature editor; Lefly Snyder, sports editor; Doris Smith, desk editor; and Lewan Rippey, exchange editor.

Completing the trial news staff were Sue Thompson, assistant news editor; Mary Ann Lipford, assistant feature editor; and Carolyn Wagstaff, assistant sports editor.

Rhodenhiser Speaks During Annual REW

O. WILLIAM RHODENHISER

Students Hear Evening Talks In Jarman Hall

By Page Television

Religious Emphasis Week, sponsored annually by the Longwood YWCA, is being held this week as a concentrated effort in helping students to take time to "Be Still And Know," thus carrying out the thematic purpose of this week's program and scheduled activities. Dr. O. William Rhodenhiser, Jr., of the Department of Religion, University of Richmond, is guest of the college during this week of religious activities.

Pastoral Counselor

Dr. Rhodenhiser, associate professor of religion at the University of Richmond, although relatively young, has behind him a long career both as a pastor and a counselor. He is perhaps best known in the field of pastoral counseling, particularly in the areas dealing with the relationship between psychiatry and religion. It was in leading to his Doctor of Theology Degree at Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville where he took also his bachelor and master's degrees in divinity.

Phi Beta Kappa

His pre-professional training was received at the University of Richmond from which he was graduated with Phi Beta Kappa honors in 1944. He was president of the Ministerial Association, president of his social fraternity, Alpha Delta, and a member of the editorial staff of the University Library magazine.

While in Kentucky, Dr. Rhodenhiser served as assistant chaplain both at the Kentucky State Hospital at Danville, a mental institution, and at the Kentucky Baptist Hospital in Louisville.

One of his most significant associations was with Dr. Russell L. Dicks, a pioneer in the field of religious counseling and former professor pastoral counseling at Duke University. While working with Professor Dicks, Dr. Rhodenhiser served as assistant chaplain at the Duke University Hospital and also was acting chaplain for one year at the North Carolina Baptist Hospital in Winston-Salem.

Varied Pastors

His pastorates have been in Kentucky, North Carolina, and Virginia. The last was at Law.

(Continued on page 3)

Class Of '65 Goes Exotic

"The Sultan and his wife, Kasandra, request the honor of your presence at 'terzetta' in Jarman Palace on February 23, 1962, at 8 o'clock."

This is an invitation to attend this year's Freshman Production. The theme itself is a secret, but it is a political satire which could have taken place anytime. Exotic dancers, bright scenery, and subtle humor are said to make this year's production a most colorful one in the past.

Chandler Story, Nancy Atkinson, and Nancy Kneppert are the trichairmen who have worked so diligently to make this presentation a success. The main speaking parts are held by Mary Lynn Lander, Nancy Leary, Lynn Guerin, Judy Maxwell, Cassie Buchner, Jean Rebel, Jo Leslie Andrews, Betty Hodnett, Julie Caldwell and Anne Evans. There are actually no main characters on or off stage. In other words, all will help to make this production great. There are approximately 70 freshmen in the cast, and all freshmen are expected to have some part in it before the production is over.

"United We Stick, Divided We're stuck" is the motto of this year's Freshman class. It seems quite appropriate when considering the mishaps that have taken place since Freshman Production got under way. For example, the script had to be completely rewritten when it was discovered that the first script was duplicating something that had been written before. Therefore, the freshmen had to start from scratch twice. Secondly, right after the first flat was put up, it broke in half. These are just two examples of incidents which happened to slow up Freshman Production and to make the cast begin to wonder if the production was in some way fixed. The results on Friday night are sure to show the ability of the freshmen and the fact that nothing can stop them.

G. WHIPPLE

Whipple Goes To Winchester For Annual Fete

Senior Ginny Whipple is to represent Longwood in the Thirty-Fifth Annual Apple Blossom Festival in Winchester on May 3, 4, and 5.

Each year, a faculty committee selects a girl who is representative of the student body and possesses the qualifications of beauty, personality, and poise.

Active

A social science major from Middlebrook, Ginny is president of Alpha Sigma Alpha social sorority, and a member of the Co-tillion Club and the Granddaughters Club. She says of the committee's selection, "I'm very surprised, but honored to have been chosen to represent Longwood at the Apple Blossom Festival."

Entertainment Provided At the Festival, the princess will be entertained by tea dances, formal balls, informal receptions, and the pageant itself.

Along with Longwood's representative there will be present at the Apple Blossom Festival, princesses from every college and university in Virginia, in addition to princesses from the four horticulture areas of the state.

Juniors Present Mardi Gras Ball For Class Dance

Anyone attending the Junior Dance between the hours of 8 and 12 p.m., February 23, will descend the stairs not into the main rec, but into New Orleans during Mardi Gras time.

The decorations will include a sidewalk cafe scene where couples may sit at checkered-clothed tables and watch the dance floor festivities. The couples will enter the dance floor through a giant replica of a clown's mouth. Here they will see murals depicting Mardi Gras scenes.

The Divots will provide the music.

The cost of the dance is $2.00 per couple and is semi-formal.

Committee Heads

Norma Wahl and Sandy Little head the Junior dance committee. Norma, a chemistry major from Charlottesville, is also president of Zeta Tau Alpha social sorority, and a member of Lynchburg local honorary science fraternity. A business major from Norfolk, Sandy is a member of Alpha Sigma Tau social sorority and secretary of the YWCA.

The other committee are: decorations, Joyce Powell and Barbara Muehlman; publicity, Scott MacGregor, and Wanda Barnett; tickets, Wendie Powell, and Betty Boyd; and for the party after the dance, Rosa Pett and Marilyn Hobbs.

During the intermission refreshments will be sold and the various church, social, and sorority rooms will be open.

Molnar Writes Music Article

In the January issue of the Music Journal appears an article by Dr. John W. Molnar, Chairman of the Music Department. In the article, "Choral Placement," Dr. Molnar stresses the importance of securing a good blend within the sections of his choir.

Players To Present Anouilh's 'Antigone'

Longwood Players and the Hampden-Sydney Jongleurs will present the annual spring plays at 8 p.m. in Jarman Auditorium on March 8, 9 and 10 under the direction of Mr. Rick Wiles. Two plays will be given each night.

Anouilh Tragedy

"Antigone" by Jean Anouilh is a tragedy which was first written and produced in Paris in 1940. The play is a protest, through the use of symbolism, against the Nazi occupation of France. Antigone symbolizes France rejecting Nazism which is represented by Creon. Anouilh modernized the original Greek tragedy by Sophocles.

Antigone will be played by Carla McNair, the Chorus by Barbara Fields, and Creon by Mike Couchman. Others performing in Antigone will be Susan Molitor as the nurse, Mary Lynn Lander as Ismene, Evans Harbour as Haemon, Elizabeth Deichmann as the messenger and Ed Baker, Randolph Keller and Bev Howard as guards with Betty Ann Atkinson as Eurydice.

Comical Parody

The second play to be presented each night is The Bald Soprano written by Eugene Ionesco. First produced in Paris in 1950, The Bald Soprano is a comical parody of people who are uncertain of who they are and why they exist. This will be a new type of comedy to most students at Longwood.

Mrs. Smith will be played by Betty Ann Atkinson and Mr. Smith by Mike Caver. Others in the comedy will be Tom McDaniel as Mr. Martin, Doty Cox as Mrs. Martin, Mary Beth Olson as Mary, Dave Anderson as the fire chief, and Bev Howard as the clerk.

Stage Crew

Crew chiefs working on the plays will be Jean Bristol, lights; Barbara Fields, sound; Melinda Walker and Kay Godwin, stage managers; Patsy Skille, assistant to the director; Ginny Chapman, technical assistant.

Others helping with the plays will be Sandra Freedman, costumes; Barbara Grey Martin, scenery; Peg Waldo, make-up; and Pat O'Neil and Jean Lowery, props with Mary Kay Rine as house manager and Scott MacGregor, publicity chairman.

Incidentally, for those who did not understand everything clearly (which is no wonder since there were no programs to give an initial explanation), "Always Pterro" is a play within a play about the people in a travelling group of players who are rehearsing the classic Pas de Trois—Hilarquin (the lover), Columbine (the Coquette) and Pterro (the Clown).

"Portrait of a Summer Sunday" is an impression in movement of "Summer and Smoke" by Tennessee Williams, was the second ballet. Here, Oldyna Dynowska as Alma (the girl in rose) was particularly effective which was first written and produced in Paris in 1940. The play is a protest, through the use of symbolism, against the Nazi occupation of France. Antigone symbolizes France rejecting Nazism which is represented by Creon. Anouilh modernized the original Greek tragedy by Sophocles.

Antigone will be played by Carla McNair, the Chorus by Barbara Fields, and Creon by Mike Couchman. Others performing in Antigone will be Susan Molitor as the nurse, Mary Lynn Lander as Ismene, Evans Harbour as Haemon, Elizabeth Deichmann as the messenger and Ed Baker, Randolph Keller and Bev Howard as guards with Betty Ann Atkinson as Eurydice.

Comical Parody

The second play to be presented each night is The Bald Soprano written by Eugene Ionesco. First produced in Paris in 1950, The Bald Soprano is a comical parody of people who are uncertain of who they are and why they exist. This will be a new type of comedy to most students at Longwood.

Mrs. Smith will be played by Betty Ann Atkinson and Mr. Smith by Mike Caver. Others in the comedy will be Tom McDaniel as Mr. Martin, Doty Cox as Mrs. Martin, Mary Beth Olson as Mary, Dave Anderson as the fire chief, and Bev Howard as the clerk.

Stage Crew

Crew chiefs working on the plays will be Jean Bristol, lights; Barbara Fields, sound; Melinda Walker and Kay Godwin, stage managers; Patsy Skille, assistant to the director; Ginny Chapman, technical assistant.

Others helping with the plays will be Sandra Freedman, costumes; Barbara Grey Martin, scenery; Peg Waldo, make-up; and Pat O'Neil and Jean Lowery, props with Mary Kay Rine as house manager and Scott MacGregor, publicity chairman.

Incidentally, for those who did not understand everything clearly (which is no wonder since there were no programs to give an initial explanation), "Always Pterro" is a play within a play about the people in a travelling group of players who are rehearsing the classic Pas de Trois—Hilarquin (the lover), Columbine (the Coquette) and Pterro (the Clown).

"Portrait of a Summer Sunday" is an impression in movement of "Summer and Smoke" by Tennessee Williams, was the second ballet. Here, Oldyna Dynowska as Alma (the girl in rose) was particularly effective which was first written and produced in Paris in 1940. The play is a protest, through the use of symbolism, against the Nazi occupation of France. Antigone symbolizes France rejecting Nazism which is represented by Creon. Anouilh modernized the original Greek tragedy by Sophocles.

Antigone will be played by Carla McNair, the Chorus by Barbara Fields, and Creon by Mike Couchman. Others performing in Antigone will be Susan Molitor as the nurse, Mary Lynn Lander as Ismene, Evans Harbour as Haemon, Elizabeth Deichmann as the messenger and Ed Baker, Randolph Keller and Bev Howard as guards with Betty Ann Atkinson as Eurydice.

Comical Parody

The second play to be presented each night is The Bald Soprano written by Eugene Ionesco. First produced in Paris in 1950, The Bald Soprano is a comical parody of people who are uncertain of who they are and why they exist. This will be a new type of comedy to most students at Longwood.

Mrs. Smith will be played by Betty Ann Atkinson and Mr. Smith by Mike Caver. Others in the comedy will be Tom McDaniel as Mr. Martin, Doty Cox as Mrs. Martin, Mary Beth Olson as Mary, Dave Anderson as the fire chief, and Bev Howard as the clerk.

Stage Crew

Crew chiefs working on the plays will be Jean Bristol, lights; Barbara Fields, sound; Melinda Walker and Kay Godwin, stage managers; Patsy Skille, assistant to the director; Ginny Chapman, technical assistant.

Others helping with the plays will be Sandra Freedman, costumes; Barbara Grey Martin, scenery; Peg Waldo, make-up; and Pat O'Neil and Jean Lowery, props with Mary Kay Rine as house manager and Scott MacGregor, publicity chairman.

Incidentally, for those who did not understand everything clearly (which is no wonder since there were no programs to give an initial explanation), "Always Pterro" is a play within a play about the people in a travelling group of players who are rehearsing the classic Pas de Trois—Hilarquin (the lover), Columbine (the Coquette) and Pterro (the Clown).

"Portrait of a Summer Sunday" is an impression in movement of "Summer and Smoke" by Tennessee Williams, was the second ballet. Here, Oldyna Dynowska as Alma (the girl in rose) was particularly effective

(Continued on page 3)

Dance - Drama Group Evokes Review

By K. Ann Atkinson

On Tuesday, February 6, Emily Frankel's Dance-Drama group performed three modern ballets which had incorporated within them techniques of interpretive dance. At the perfect level of professionalism, there is a fine distinction between the technique and choreography of modern dance and of modern ballet.

The dancers, most of them having been rooted in ballet, seemed at a loss for what to do with some of their movements—particularly their extensions. Their apathetic motions indicate a general lack of perfected professionalism in that the dancing was simply poor ballet with a little modern dance thrown in.

Never carrying through a step to completion, the performers left the audience waiting for a particularly brilliant spectacle which never came. However, there were some fine passages of rhythmic, lyric and dramatic movement.

Comedy Dancing

Ralph Hoffman, in the first ballet, "Always Pterro" performed a fine bit of comedy dancing as the character Pterro. The company's second ballerina, Oldyna Dynowska's anxious walk after she slapped Pterro's anxious face with a rose was particularly effective to the comic routine.

Incidentally, for those who did not understand everything clearly (which is no wonder since there were no programs to give an initial explanation), "Always Pterro" is a play within a play about the people in a travelling group of players who are rehearsing the classic Pas de Trois—Hilarquin (the lover), Columbine (the Coquette) and Pterro (the Clown).

(Continued on page 3)

In The Long Run

There was once a young prince who was to ascend the throne of a tiny kingdom. On the day of his coronation he was dressed in the traditional coronation robes which had been handed down from ruler to ruler. And then he got into the gold coronation carriage drawn by eight white horses and made his way to the cathedral where he was to be crowned. All went as gloriously as had been expected. But when he came out of the cathedral to meet his subjects, he saw a few of the poorer people dressed in rags and standing around crying, "We want more bread. We demand higher wages."

The king was appalled by this disorderly behavior. He went back to his castle and immediately called in the Extreme High Counselor in Charge of the Behavior of the Subjects. "What can I do," demanded the ruler. "What will the rulers of other kingdoms think, if I allow my subjects to ruin royal ceremonies and make demands of me, their ruler."

"The people think too much," said the Extreme High Counselor.

"What do you mean by that?" questioned the ruler. "In thinking, subjects sometimes forget who is the ruler and who are the ruled. Therefore, if you want to be recognized as the ruler of obedient subjects, forbid the subjects to think," advised the Extreme High Counselor.

"That I shall do!" exclaimed the ruler. Then the ruler sent out a decree. "From this day forward," it said, "the people of this kingdom may talk but they may not think, for in thinking they sometimes forget who is the ruler and who are the ruled."

The people of the land being good subjects obeyed the decree, but as time went by they found that they could not speak without thinking, so they stopped speaking. All through the kingdom quiet prevailed. No one thought, no one spoke except the ruler. And he only spoke when he had a new law to announce.

One day many years after this decree the ruler called all his subjects together in an assembly to announce to them the new ruler, for by this time he was getting along in age. For the children born after the decree it was the first time they had heard a human voice. For while these children sat and listened to the sound that was new to them. But then suddenly the ruler's voice cracked, for he was no longer in the habit of making speeches. And just as suddenly a little boy for a reason known to no one laughed. Then all the people began to laugh. The ruler was dumbfounded. He tried to call order above the laughter, but the people were laughing so loudly they could not hear him.

The ruler rushed down the stairs of the platform and looked up at the stage. He saw nothing funny. "What are you laughing at?" he shouted. And still they did not stop. Finally, one of the older men said, "The older ones are laughing at their folly, and the younger ones are laughing at you — they've never heard a human voice."

The next day a new decree went out. It said, "From this day forward the people of the land may think, for if they hear the voices and thoughts of others, they will not laugh when their ruler speaks to them."

—DMH

Think Before Voting

During the past week each class has nominated candidates for the offices of legislative president and of judicial head for the Student Government Association. Within the next week elections for these two offices will take place.

The importance of interest and participation in this election and in those to come, cannot be emphasized enough. During the election period, your screening board will meet to consider and decide upon candidates. This screening board will need your careful thought and expression. Offer opinions and suggestions to your representatives. Discuss the potentials and qualifications of each nominee, so that the slate for each office will include capable, interested people — people whom you can trust with the responsibility of these offices of vital interest to each individual in the student body.

—Judy Dietrich, Major-Minor Elections Chairman

Goals Set

Your YWCA has adopted the following goals for Longwood's Religious Emphasis Week:

First: to start individuals thinking and including God in their daily routine of activities. To learn to be still and know — that there is a Greater Power in this working in each of our lives.

Second: to encourage each student to develop a closer relationship to God.

To present an opportunity for each student to find answers to personal questions about the Christian way of life or to any problems which may exist for her.

Third: to emphasize the Christian's responsibility and privilege to serve God in today's troubled world.

Fourth: to encourage each student to determine her own beliefs, to tolerate others' beliefs, and to live a life that confirms one's own religious stand.

And, finally, each student should find herself a better Christian for having experienced REW herself.

—Page Tolleson, REW Chairman

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

"I SAID—WE HATE TO BOTHER YOU AT HOME, PROFESSOR SHARP, BUT COULD WE TROUBLE YOU A MOMENT TO DISCUSS A COUPLE OF QUESTIONS ON THAT EXAM WE HAD TODAY."

Registration Brings Student Headaches

By Mary Beth Olson

This morning I arose feeling extremely tired, listless, rundown, and suffering from a severe migraine headache. No severe migraine headache. No severe migraine headache. No severe migraine headache. I glanced groggily at my mangled tentative card—the erasure holes allowed the morning sun to peep through. The combination of pen and ink, tears and blood created a maze of artistic shapes—indistinguishable but artistic. I stumbled to the bathroom, grasped the bottle of aspirin. . . . "Only one or two to give me strength to face the day." They stuck in my throat so I took a third to force the others down. It, too, became imbedded in my esophagus!

Dressed at last, I wandered dazedly—drawn by some mysterious force toward the dean's office. The mysterious force? Perhaps it was fear that I wouldn't graduate, that I would overcut a class, that I might miss The Guiding Light, that I might strangle on aspirin tablets.

As I entered Ruffner I noticed an enormous crowd gathered in the hall. . . . "Aha! Something exciting is happening," I thought. I edged quietly around the fringe of the group. Elbows were working frantically—and a left elbow to the solar plexus, a right elbow to the ear lobe. Unruly feet crushed my shining weejuns and came crashing about my ankles and knees. From within the crowd there were groans of excruciating pain. The corner of a notebook made its way into my left side followed by a pencil-point to the right. "Aaaaaa!" I muttered unashamedly.

Suddenly a hush came over the writhing mass. . . . a door squeaked ominously open. I reached deep into my pocket and found my glasses. Standing framed in the doorway stood an

Showing Of Art Films Requested

Dear Editor:

In regard to the editorial concerning art films on Longwood Campus we feel that they would be eagerly accepted and very much enjoyed.

Sunday afternoons at Longwood are unnecessarily boring and films such as these would add to both the culture and the enjoyment of the students at Longwood.

You have our whole-hearted support on this!

Three Students

imposing white-haired figure—with a rather hunted look in his eyes.

"All right, girls. One at a time—I'll get to you all one at a time. . . ." The figure rapidly retreated to the safety of his office.

WHOOOOOSH—I was swept forward by a well-placed elbow into Doctor Moss's small reception room. Around me were some twenty-five other girls. . . . "A scream to the right of me, a screech to the left of me roared and echoed."

"My kingdom for an aspirin!" my thumping head cried. I clutched my ragged, flimsy tentative schedule card in my hot little hand.

One by one girls entered the little office and one by one they departed. Their faces bore various expressions. Some were smiling. . . . there were definite degrees of smiles; the small grin, the medium smirk, the large smile, and the giant-economy-size Pepsodent ad. Some were frowning—the small pout, the medium sulk, the large frown, and the giant-economy-size temper tantrum.

I glanced at my watch—two hours! I gritted my teeth and removed my foot from the vice-like grip of a large rubber boot. The minutes ticked slowly by one by one. The line moved inch by inch nearer and nearer. At last I stood nose-to-door on the precipice of Doctor Moss's sanctuary. My hands were cold and clammy. My stomach turned three consecutive flips and then lay quietly trembling.

The door knob turned. . . . I straightened my shoulders. A deep voice inquired, "All right, little lady, may I help you?"

"Uh. . . . Yes sir, it's about this." I mumbled holding out the battle-scarred schedule.

"Let me see. . . . my, my, my, followed by tch, tch, tch well, I see here that you have five consecutive classes on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday. . . . how did you get away with that? And no Saturday classes. . . . my goodness! It will never do. No, we'll have to chance something. . . . Twenty-five hours! Good heavens! We'll drop this and this and this. . . . and we'll change this to eight o'clock on Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday. . . . Now, isn't that better?"

"But sir. . . . but. . . . " "That wasn't so hard now was it? Nothing to it!"

"But sir. . . . I. . . . uh. . . . " "You're welcome. Next please. And what can I do for you, little lady Oh. . . . "

French Student Tells Of Experiences Abroad

By Mary Anne Lipford

"Oh, I live in a very nice university town," piped the peppy exchange student with a surprising hint of British brogue—surprising because she hails from Montpellier, in the southern part of France. To Annick Julliard, Longwood's new French assistant, English is nothing new or particularly frightening; she had studied it since she was eleven. This included four years of study at the University of Montpellier which culminated in a degree in English there.

"Half of your life, can you realize it, you have been studying English!" remarked Ida, Annick's Spanish roommate who speaks our language well, too, and who remained stationed nearby during the entire interview, offering suggestions and clever comments. Already the two have become fast friends and expressed a desire to . . . call the Greyhound man and see how much it would cost for Annick to come to Mexico."

British Accent

Her British accent can be explained by the year Annick spent in England as a French assistant in a secondary school for that is what high schools are called. "I lived in a dig," related Annick, pausing to explain that "digging" is the commonly used name for a place of lodging in England. She was surprised that we don't have digs here.

Wedding Spectator

Her bright brown eyes sparkled with interest as she described the night she and a friend spent on a London street in anticipation of Princess Margaret's wedding. She seemed particularly proud that her picture later appeared in a book about the wedding, and went on to describe the American students with guitars, beads, and that night and her friend met that night. "That's why we were photographed," Annick confessed, "—the boys were so picturesque!"

Fairly bubbling with personality that would suit American and Frenchman alike, Annick laughingly described her visit to a Scottish barracks, where "the men looked so funny, doing exercises in kilt!" Annick also smiled as she told about the tea-drinking in England. "If you're tired, they say tea will make you no longer tired. . . . if you're sick, they say tea will make you better."

Group Sponsors Math Program

In recent years the National Office of the Future Business Leaders of America and the National Office Management Association have been aware of the increasing importance of mathematics in high schools and college curricula and to those planning to become the future business teachers and the future business leaders of America.

The National program has been co-ordinated by states. The Longwood College chapter number 1224, Gamma Upsilon chapter of Phi Beta Lambda has been chosen to make the mathematics program available to business students in all Virginia high schools that have a FBLA Club.

The Richmond Chapter of NOMA is sponsoring this program and will have charge of giving the awards. Appointed to head this state-wide program are Dr. M. L. Landrum and Mr. Alfred Patrick, both of the Business Education Department at Longwood College.

It was strange. . . . I only wanted. . . . and now. . . . But there's always the American office. Maybe they'll have some clean schedule blanks so I can recopy mine.

they are always talking of a 'nice cup of tea!'"

The conversation turning to France, Annick assured us that Bright Bardot is not typical of French girls. In fact, she said, the French are a bit bored with all her publicity.

Social Customs

Annick, in comparing American and French dress, observed that we dress up more here than her French people do. Admittedly, she wore high heels every day to school, but that was because the university was in town—"not in the country," said Annick with a gesture, "like Longwood!" There are few formal affairs in France; skirts and sweaters are more often worn to the dances which last from 10:00 p.m. until 5:00 a.m. American records are snatched up readily at French shops by teenagers who enjoy rock 'n' roll and are learning the twist! Fats Domino, Louis Armstrong, and Ray Charles are great favorites.

Asked if French teenagers "go steady," Annick reported that they had no such term or symbols (such as high school rings) of romantic status. She seemed fascinated with the explanation of our "planning" customs here. "You have so many little things which show what college you come from: rings, charm bracelets, etc. . . . we have nothing." She seemed pleased, though, with her new Longwood ring, a recent gift.

French Youth Serious

The French youth is very serious-minded. We were told. Thoughts are turned to studies more often than dances. "La nouvelle vague"—the new wave of movies—in which French teenagers are depicted as being wild and immoral has caused quite a stir of resentment among the French youth. Annick assured us that the movies are badly exaggerated.

ANNICK JULLIARD

French Diversions

The family is of great importance in France and with a predominantly Catholic population, divorce is uncommon. Football, rugby, tennis, and Le Tour de France are popular sports—but not baseball. Chocolate milk has replaced wine in her brother's diet—but wine is still drunk with meals by most Frenchmen. Joke about Americans eating "cow meat." Indeed, Annick finds it difficult to get used to having sweet and salty foods in one meal.

"Well," we asked finally, "how do you like it over here?" "Why do you ask?" Annick replied that she had only been here two weeks and seen one boy, so it was a little hard to tell yet! As this reporter reluctantly closed the interview and bid the amiable Annick "au revoir," we hoped Annick would learn to like it here—and felt confident that Longwood would love her!

Timely Topics

U.S., Britain Open Exchange Agreement

The United States and Britain have an exchange agreement in which they plan to open their nuclear testing sites to each other. They announced that Christmas Island in the Pacific would be a site for testing.

Francis Gary Powers, the pilot of a United States U2 plane that went down in Russia on May 1, 1960 on a photographic mission, and Col. Rudolf Abel, a Soviet spy held by the United States were exchanged in Berlin on Saturday. Frederick L. Pryor, an American student held by East German authorities was also returned to the United States.

Doomsday, which was set for early last week, came and went.

Music Fraternity Sponsors Trips To Productions

Sigma Alpha Iota, music fraternity founded at Longwood College in 1959, is sponsoring this year's trips to several musical productions held at the Music in Richmond. The purpose of the trips is to give the music majors and any other interested persons an opportunity to see live performances of plays, operas, concerts and soloists otherwise not available. This project was started last year by Miss Jessie A. Patterson, former associate professor of music.

These performances are presented monthly by Musical Celebrations, Inc. This year Longwood students have attended only one of these programs, a presentation of "The Barber of Seville." On February 19 another group will be going to a concert given by the Philadelphia Philharmonic Orchestra. These trips last from late afternoon until after midnight, and the cost, averaging $5.00, covers transportation and tickets.

Miss Riley, patroness, and her assistant, Carol Combs, are in charge of arrangements and selections. Suggestions concerning the choice of such trips should be made to either of these people.

State Theatre

FARMVILLE, VA.

WED.-THURS.-FEB. 14-15

Double Feature
"Curse of the Werewolf"
— And —
"Shadow of the Cat"

Fri. Thru Mon.—FEB 16-19

Walt Disney
Babes in Toyland

TUES.-WED.—FEB. 20-21

BOBBY DARIN
STELLA STEVENS
Too Late
Blues

FEBRUARY 22 THRU 26

ONE TWO THREE
BILLY WILDER'S
DORIS DAY
JAMES CAGNEY
HOLLYWOOD
ANGIE DUFFIN
ARLENE FRANKE
DELUXE SHOW PRESENTS

without much excitement. The doomsday alarm was due to the strange arrangement of the planets and an eclipse. These combined effects caused the prediction of the end of the world.

A new weather satellite, Tiros IV, was put into orbit by the United States February 8. The launching of this satellite took place at Cape Canaveral, Florida.

President Kennedy has proposed an education bill which does not authorize aid for church or private schools. He feels that giving aid to church schools is unconstitutional.

Cuba was accused in a recent United Nations meeting of trying to wreck Alliance for Progress and make it easier for the spread of communism in the countries of Latin America. President Kennedy urged Congress to charter a Communications Corporation. Shares in the corporation would be sold to the public and communications firms. These shares would be sold for not less than $1000 a share. The profit would be made by renting satellite channels to firms such as a telephone firm or a telegraph firm. This set up could relay messages to any part of the world.

U. S. Army air support has sent two companies to aid South Viet Nam in her struggle against communist guerrillas.

Landrum Chosen Dance Chairman For Fiscal Year

Longwood College is once again proud to claim Mrs. Emily K. Landrum, Associate Professor of Physical Education, as Dance Chairman of the State of Virginia. Mrs. Landrum was appointed Dance Chairman at the request of the National Section on Dance of the American Association of Health, Physical Education, and Recreation.

Also at the executive council meeting, Mrs. Landrum was requested to serve as a member of this council in the capacity of representative for resolutions.

Mrs. Landrum will be serving her fourth term as Virginia's State Dance Chairman. Her professional duties will include demonstrations of dances at state conventions and conducting workshops.

While acting as State Dance Chairman, Mrs. Landrum was prominent in initiating dance into the high schools of Virginia. She went directly into the high schools to teach, often taking members of Orchestras to aid in demonstrating modern dance. Over a period of three years, fifteen high schools were visited and as a result two symposia on dance were developed for high school students and teachers. Then at the request of the State Department of Education, Mrs. Landrum edited the modern dance section of the present high school bulletin on physical education.

Professional writing has also been an accomplishment of Longwood's Physical Education Instructor. Thus far, she has written five articles which have not only been related to dance, but also to teaching sports and learning. In the November issue of the Journal of Health, Physical Education, and Recreation (JOPHER), can be found Mrs. Landrum's most recent article, "Evaluating Student Work in Creative Dance."

Patronize
The Rotunda
Advertisers

MEMBERS OF VARSITY basketball team check schedule.

Psychology Classes Use New Educational Trend

By Glanny Gilmore

A new trend in education for Longwood, that of the large lecture course, is being used in the teaching of Educational Psychology this year. This type of instruction, commonly used in larger colleges and universities for this type of course was found necessary because of the largeness of the present sophomore class.

Because of the enrollment of 310 students in Psychology 251 last semester, five additional sections would have been needed in addition to the eight sections used last year. To take care of these five sections, it would have been necessary to employ another instructor.

Discussion Groups

To take care of this problem, three large lecture sections, taught by Dr. Brooks, which met twice a week were created. The class was again divided into eight discussion groups which met once a week under Dr. Brooks, Dr. Patterson, or Dr. Sweetfeger. In these groups, students were able to ask any questions which might have come up and the instructor could elaborate on the material covered in the lectures.

System Better

From the standpoint of instruction, according to Dr. Brooks, this system is much better than has been used in the past. For this course, the three professors worked together and there were able to present a unified point of view in respect to Educational Psychology. The only variance was in the instruction of the discussion groups.

Clerical Problems

The major problem brought about by this new system was of a clerical nature. Students had to be assigned to discussion groups so there would be no conflict with another class. Keeping a balance of straight grading tests and reporting grades was time consuming and required the work of all three professors. Another problem faced by the professors was assigning Saturday classes. These classes were given to those students who had no Saturday classes yet recorded. Numerous requests for transfer from a Saturday class were voiced.

Space Limited

Space was another problem which has yet to be met. Although the lecture classes met in the Training School Auditorium, the largest lecture classroom on campus, the class is still crowded and acoustics are bad. This will be solved when the Training School is remodeled.

Outside library sources proved to be still another problem. The library does not contain enough duplicate copies of books needed for assignments not in the regular text.

Additional Groups

For the second part of this course Psychology 256, thirteen discussion groups have been created to take care of the additional students who are taking this course and to cut the sections down from approximately forty to twenty-eight. Required reading assignments have been cut down to a minimum this semester.

"Many may be critical of large class teaching," Dr. Brooks stated, "but research has shown that in terms of a course of this nature, as much learning takes place."

FREE GIFT!

Find YOUR Picture

in

Rogue's Gallery

LANSCOTT'S

DOROTHY MAY'S

Come in and see our new

Spring Cottons

• Bobbie Brooks

• Junior Vogues

Varsity Schedule

Varsity Basketball Schedule

Date	Opponent	Time	Place
February 15	M. C. V. (one game)	7:30	Here
17	Madison	2:00	Here
20	Roanoke	7:00	Here
24	Mary Washington	2:30	Here
March 3	Westhampton	2:00	There
6	R. P. I. (one game)	7:30	Here
10	William and Mary	2:00	Here

Student Critic Reviews Ballet

(Continued from page 1)

yellow) and Dale Muchmore as the young man performed the difficult choreography of the assault scene most admirably. Miss Dymovska has a fine sense of the dramatic, which she conveyed particularly well in the violent arm and body movement of the pas de deux.

Naomi Marritt as the seductive Rosa moved sensuously through her love scene with Mr. Muchmore displaying her sultry Latin charms through some truly beautiful passages. Unfortunately, she took a rough spill — the worst of all the spills that evening. But she and Mr. Muchmore handled this complication with professional skill.

Unskilled Romeo

The high point of the program was "Romeo and Juliet." Emily Frankie, the company's director, and Terrance Miller danced out the story of the forces of fate and family which moved the lovers to their tragic end. Miss Frankie danced a beautifully lyrical Juliet, frail and loving in her poetic emotion. Whereas, Mr. Miller, though a handsome Romeo, failed to display any dancing prowess whatsoever. His best efforts were to support Miss Frankie in some of her charmingly graceful passages.

Lack of Precision

On the whole, the company lacked any sort of brilliance or precision with a possible exception of two, and in many instances even some elements of control. The highly polished stage floor very likely had much to do with this. As one person's feet after another slipped out from underneath him, an air of tension crept through the company. Technique — and even choreography! — began to fall away to only stilted movement. The most obvious example was in the last part of "Romeo and Juliet" where the music swelled into a profoundly moving sequence and Romeo, who supposedly in a fit of mournful passion and about to kill himself, just stood there occasionally swaying.

In view of the rough circumstances under which the dancers had to perform, however, credit should be given for a noble, if sad, program. At all costs it was an evening of entertainment.

REW Speaker Gives Sermons, Student Counsel

(Continued from page 1)

renewville Baptist Church where he served four years before joining the department of religion at the University of Richmond.

Display in Jarman

Sermons are held each night in Jarman auditorium, beginning at 6:45 p.m. with a student-led "singalong." An eye-catching display in the Jarman lobby points out the various aspects of the theme song of the week, Be Still, My Soul. Each night a different verse of the song has been the highlight of the display. At 9:30, throughout the week, an informal discussion group is being held in the Y-Lounge. Any and all controversial subjects, religious or otherwise, can be discussed at these times in an informal atmosphere. The discussions will be held Monday through Thursday nights of the week.

Speaks in Assembly

In addition to the evening services and discussion periods, Dr. Rhodeniser has spoken to the entire student body at Assembly on Tuesday of this week. He has also been interviewed on radio concerning his attitudes on the individual's or Christian's responsibility in modern society and has led a noonday devotional period at the Baptist Student Center. His future schedule of activities includes a talk to the world religions class on Thursday and a meditations service at 7:00 a.m. Friday morning to close the week's activities.

Valentines by

Gibson

SOUTHSIDE SUNDY

Want a good book?

Try The

COLLEGE

BOOK STORE

HOLLYWOOD BEAUTY COLLEGE

102 N. Main

EX 2-9091

Shampoo Set ..... $1.00

Hair Cut ..... $1.00

Perm. Wave ..... $5.00

(Includes Shampoo, Set, & Cut)

Silver Company Offers Awards In Scholarships

During the months of February and March, Reed and Barton, America's oldest major silver-smiths, are conducting a "Silver Opinion Competition" in which scholarship awards totaling $205 are being offered to duly enrolled women students at a few selected colleges and universities. Longwood College has been selected to enter this competition in which the First Grand Award is a $500 cash scholarship; Second Grand Award is a $300 scholarship; Third Grand Award is a $250 scholarship; Fourth, Fifth and Sixth Awards are $200 scholarships; and Seventh, Eighth, Ninth and Tenth are $100 scholarships. In addition, there will be 100 other awards consisting of sterling silver, fine china and crystal with a retail value of approximately $50.00.

In the "Silver Opinion Competition," an entry form illustrates twelve designs of sterling with nine designs of both china and crystal. (Entrant simply lists what she considers the six best combinations of design to match certain design periods.) Awards will be made to those entries matching or coming closest to the unanimous selections of table - setting editors from three of the nation's leading magazines.

Anne Bradley is the Student Representative who is conducting the "Silver Opinion Competition" for Reed & Barton at Longwood College. Those interested in entering the "Silver Opinion Competition" should contact Anne Bradley at Main Cunningham 235 for entry blanks and for complete details concerning the Competition rules. She also has samples of 12 of the most popular Reed & Barton designs so that entrants can see how these sterling patterns actually look.

Through the opinions on silver design expressed by college women competing for these scholarships, Reed & Barton hopes to compile a valuable library of expressions of young American taste.

Business Group Backs Contest

Dr. M. L. Landrum, chairman of the Longwood Business Education Department, has announced that Delta Rho chapter of Pi Omega Pi, National Honorary Business Education Fraternity, plans to sponsor the Virginia state-wide essay contest for all high schools having a chapter of the Future Business Leaders of America. This is the third year that Longwood College has sponsored this contest. Essays will be judged at regional meetings in the state sponsored by the FBLA.

Need to Improve

For the past several years, the National Office of the FBLA has realized the great need for students to improve upon written expression, especially if they have set their goal to become future business leaders.

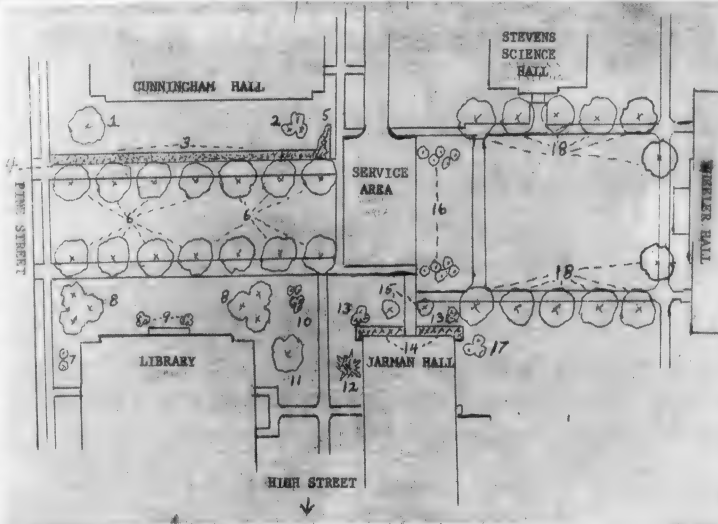

The Longwood College FBLA chapter number 1282, Gamma Epsilon chapter of Phi Beta Lambda, will co-operate with Pi Omega Pi in the program. Chief co-ordinator for this state-wide contest will be Mr. W. G. Leeper of the Longwood Business Education Department.

Register now for the $4.95 book

America and Its Presidents

to be given away George Washington's Birthday February 22nd

WEYANKE BOOK STORE

PROJECT SKETCH of proposed new Longwood interior campus show were more than 500 plantings of flowering trees, shrubs will go. Details in accompanying story.

Mall Transforms Former Play Area

By Pat Rea

There will be some changes made in the appearance of Longwood's campus much to the relief of Longwood students and the sorrow of the town kids.

Diamond Confiscated

Once the space at the back of the library was used as a baseball field in the spring and a football field in the fall where no doubt some great games were played by the children of Farmville as well as Longwood Summer School students who occasionally played softball there. When construction to enlarge the library began, the "intramural-field" became a supply yard for the workmen. Now that the library has been completed and the supplies depleted, a great transformation is taking place.

Variety Featured

Grading is currently underway and most of the 550 trees and shrubs of seventeen different types should be planted this month. And remember the Wheeler driveway with all the holes six feet in diameter and nine feet deep — the ones that, in order to avoid falling in, students had to tramp through mud and slush to protect their lives only to have another shoe polishing job on their hands. Well, soon it will be part of the great transformation.

At the present students who travel to Stevens Hall and Wheeler Dorm must detour in order to reach their destination. They either detour or risk fire and wet cement. This is the first step toward completing a central campus mall which is to be located between Cunningham Dorms, Wheeler Dorm, Stevens Hall and the library. The driveway has been eliminated and several sidewalks will replace it. Vehicles must travel the once one-way street at the back of the Cunningham Dorms in order to reach Wheeler Dorm, Stevens Hall and the back entrance of Jarmann Hall.

Landford Comment

President Landford stated that he feels this project will give Longwood one of the most beautiful campuses in Virginia and will contribute to the community an area of distinct beauty.

The Longwood Mall will contain the following: 1. Existing Elm. 2. Flowering Dogwood. 3. Spring Glory Forsythia. 4. Little Leaf English Ivy. 5. Wintergreen Bayberry. 6. Red Maple.

Art Display Shown Here

On display in the Art Department of Longwood College is an exhibition of 27 serigraphs. This display includes the work of fifteen artists, and has been lent to the college by the Western Serigraph Institute of California.

The word serigraph comes from "ser" meaning silk, and "graph" to draw; hence, to draw on silk. It is an original work of art and is made in limited editions. Serigraphy, introduced to the United States in 1936, is one of the newest print-making processes.

Among the works in this display are "New York Towers" by Dorothy Bowman, "At Sundown" by Thomas Laursen, and "Morning Mist" by Philip Gronquist. The exhibition will be on display through February 20 and is open to the public. The works of art are for sale.

7. Burford Chinese Holly. 8. Southern Magnolia. 9. Fortune Osmanthus. 10. Linden Viburnum. 11. American Peach. 12. Common China fir. 13. Double File Viburnum. 14. Stokes Japanese Holly. 15. Shell Pink Crape Myrtle. 16. Hopa P. Flowering Crabapple. 17. Chinese Holly. 18. Water Oak. (Please refer to the diagram.) The cost of this project will not exceed an approximate $9000.

Dunn Receives Federal Award In Cancer Work

Dr. Thelma B. Dunn, sister of Longwood's Dr. Robert T. Brumfield, has been named one of six government career women to receive the Federal Women's Award for 1962. She was awarded this honor for her outstanding experiments in cancer research. For her research, she was named one of the five outstanding women in science. Of these five women, three are Southerners. In 1959, the U. S. government sent Dr. Dunn among a group of six women scientists to Russia for conferences with Russian scientists.

Native Virginian

Dr. Dunn a native Virginian attended Westhampton College for two years, completing her undergraduate study at Cornell University. She attended the Medical College of Virginia, subsequently accepting a position teaching pathology at the University of Virginia as the first woman, on the medical staff.

The wife of a physician and mother of three grown children, Dr. Dunn manages a family and a career well. She is now head of the cancer induction and pathogenesis section of the National Cancer Institute, Wirtley Raine, a 1961 graduate of Longwood, is presently employed by Dr. Dunn's staff.

Meet your friends

at the

COLLEGE SNACK BAR

Six To Deliver Lecture Series For Institute

Higher Education for Women in the South will be the theme of the spring and summer Institute of Southern Culture, lecture series this year. Six outstanding scholars, including one professor from Longwood will deliver their lectures at Longwood. Three of these lectures will be given on April 27 and the remaining three on July 25.

This program, established at Longwood College in 1956, is designed to promote the study of traditional aspects of Southern civilization through academic course work, special lectures, and through the publication of research in the field.

Spring Session

The spring lectures will include Quality Education for the Southern Woman," by Dr. Althea K. Hotel, Former Dean of Women and Lecturer in Sociology, University of Pennsylvania; "Higher Education and the Nature of the Southern Woman," by Dr. Francis B. Simkins, Professor of History, Longwood College, and "The Twentieth Century Revolution and the Higher Education of Southern Women," by Dr. Gladys Boone, Professor of Economics, Sweet Briar College.

Summer Session

Lectures for the summer session will be "History of Higher Education of the South," by Dr. Fletcher M. Green, Keanan Professor of History, University of North Carolina; "Co-education and Co-ordination versus the Traditional Woman's College," by Mrs. Eudora Ramsey Richardson, Writer, Richmond, Virginia; and "Higher Education in the Traditional Woman's College," by Dr. Otis Singletary, Chancellor of the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina.

Financial support for the Institute has been provided by the Longwood College Alumnae Association. For further information, write to or see Miss Virginia Bedford, Chairman, Institute of Southern Culture. All lectures are open to the public.

NEWMAN'S

MEN'S SHOP

Traditional Styles

111 Main Street Farmville, Va.

See Our

Ladies' Sportswear

Around The Campi

Welcome home to those seniors who were student teaching last semester. And welcome back to our side of the desk.

Page Tolleson has done a fine job coordinating REW for the 'Y', even though she was away last nine weeks.

We predict that by June the new inner campus between the Library and North Cunningham will have a nickname. The mall? The inner court? The back yard? Nevertheless, we predict it will have a nickname.

Th Peppermint Lounge has nothing on Third Floor Main after dinner every night. Somehow, something's missing though. Like partners.

It's hard to believe preparations are beginning for May Day. And the dell is still under a layer of snow.

Events to look forward to: Freshman Production and Junior dance.

The Virginian staff is working frantically to meet deadlines. They need lots of cooperation from the rest of us, who'll benefit by their work. Good luck to our sister publication. We anticipate an interesting yearbook.

Congratulations to the Vieia and White families. The Vieias have a new baby, and the Whites have a new girl in their family.

—Staff

The Rotunda

VOLUME XLI

Longwood College, Farmville, Va., February 21, 1962

No. 12

MacKenzie To Reign As May Day Queen

By Pat Rea

Jeanine McKenzie will reign as Queen of May Day Festivities in the Dell at Longwood Estate, with Nan McLaughlin as her maid of honor.

Jeanine, a senior art and French major from Portsmouth, is a member of Alpha Sigma Tau social sorority, and was Madonna in the Christmas Pageant. This will be her second appearance on the court.

When asked her reaction on being told of her election, she replied, "I was very surprised—I suppose anyone would be."

Appearing for the fourth time

J. MacKENZIE

on the court, Nan McLaughlin, a senior elementary major from Woodberry Forest, is a member of Sigma Sigma Sigma social sorority.

Making her third appearance is Zee Tapp, a senior from Versailles, Kentucky. Sandy Little, a junior from Norfolk will be seen for the second time.

Those making their initial appearance will be Nancy Pretty, senior, Danville; Dibby Mohr, senior, Lynchburg; Alice White, junior, Suffolk; Kay Nottingham, junior, Norfolk; Betty Rice Dawson, senior, Callee; Diane Carrington, sophomore, Fredericksburg; Bobbie Cadow, sophomore, Fredericksburg; Janice Blowe, sophomore, Portsmouth; and freshmen, Suzanne Ballard from Nassawadox and the Longwood hard.

Carroll Serves As Trial Editor Of Newspaper

Ann Carroll served as editor-in-chief of this week's trial issue of the Rotunda. Ann is currently serving as a reporter. A sophomore from Lexington, Ann is an English major. She is secretary of Kappa Delta social sorority and a member of Canterbury.

The trial managing editor, Ginny Gilmore, is a speech correction and audiology major from Falls Church. She is a reporter for the Rotunda, a member of the Longwood Players and the Longwood hard.

Working under Ann for this issue were Ann Agee, assistant editor; Ginny Gilmore, managing editor; Pat Rea, feature editor; Doris Humphreys, sports editor; Fuzzy Road, news editor; Doris Smith desk editor; and Lewan Rippey, exchange editor.

Completing the staff were Diana Upshur, assistant feature editor; Sandra Jameson, assistant sports editor; Barbara Wilfey, assistant news editor; Lefty Snyder, assistant desk editor.

Radio Program

Martha Garrett will have charge of the WFLO radio program "Listening at Longwood" on Tuesday, February 27, at 4:00 p.m. This will be a program concerning the accommodations of the new library.

Students Model Winter Fashions In Campus Show

"A Winter Day of Fashion" was presented Tuesday, February 20, in Jarman Auditorium by the Home Economics Club.

In this program a story of an old woman dreaming of her college days showed the fashions of 1962 as seen from the year 2220. The little old lady, played by Margaret Anne Tattersson, was a graduate of Longwood College in 1962, and her dream she sees all of her classmates and some of her professors.

First Scene

In the first scene, the models were shown in School Days, dressed in garments for class wear. Modeling were Jane Anthony, Frieda Boykin, Laurie Hamlet, Mary Lou Pennington, Liz Printz, Ellen Terry and Shirley Wilson.

Scene two depicted an Afternoon of Shopping. Girls in this scene were Jean Cox, Joyce Cundiff, Dot Goodman, Laurie Hamlet, Reeky Lane, Eunice Lewis, Shelby Lucy, Eloise Rosser, Daye Stone and Signe Young. The Theater was the last scene showing Charlotte Brooks, Sandra Cowan, Mary Glenn Falls, Sara Gil, Barbara Ramsey, Sandra Silver and Peggy Thorpe, escorted by Mr. James Helms. Dr. Charles Lane, Mr. David Vieira, Mr. Marvin Scott, Dr. Gordon Moss, Mr. Hunter Ballew and Dr. Robert Brumfield.

Committee Heads

Signe Young and Ann Sneed were the co-chairmen for this fashion show, and Kay Lockridge was in charge of the script. Other committee heads were publicity, Eloise Rosser; stage manager, Joyce Cundiff; invitations, Betty Jean Jones; reception, Charlotte Brooks and Jean Cox; program, Frieda Boykin and Sara Gil; music, Charlotte Angum; and display, Sandra Cowan and Barbara Ramsey.

—Staff Photo

PREPARING FOR DANCE, Juniors S. Macgregor, H. Hunt, J. Powell, paint Mardi Gras scene.

Freshmen Produce Satire 'Xerazantia'

—Staff Photo
MEMBERS OF PRODUCTION CAST, S. Scruggs, J. Leary, N. Mawrey go through dress rehearsal.
STAGE CREW, M. Caloe, A. Persak, N. Miller, put finishing touches on scenery.

Divots Appear Saturday For Semi-formal Dance

By Diana Upshur

Cloves . . . costumes . . . excitement . . . music and dancing! The Main Rec will be transformed into a Mardi Gras scene at the junior class dance on Saturday, February 24, from 8:12 p.m.

The theme will depict a typical New Orleans restaurant during the Mardi Gras season, as the familiar "rec" tables are disguised with colorful tablecloths and wine bottles. In order to dance to the Jive, twist, mardi-gras, music of the Divots from Roanoke, couples must step through the mouth of a clown marking the entrance to the dance floor.

Attire for this year's junior dance is semi-formal. Tickets are $2.40 per couple, and are on sale this week. They can be purchased from any junior and also at the door.

The recruiting line will include President and Mrs. Francis O. Lanford; Dr. Ruth B. Wilson; Mr. Raymond H. French, junior class sponsor; Alice White, president of the junior class; Maria Grant and Dr. O. Carolyn Wells, freshmen class president and sponsor, respectively; and Norma Wahl and Sandy Little, junior dance chairmen.

For the members of the junior class and their dates there will be a record party in Main Cunningham Rec following the dance. Refreshments will be served.

Committee heads: Committee chairmen are Sand-chairmen: Annie Bailey and

Class Presents Mythical Story In Jarman Hall

Xerazantia, a universal political satire which was written, directed, and staged by the Freshman Class, will be presented in Jarman Auditorium on Friday. The story takes place in Xerazantia, a mythical land somewhere in or near Turkey. Universal political incidents can be recognized throughout the plot which works toward their moral, which they claimed is merely, "all ends." The story, subtly humorous, has a hidden or double meaning in almost every line.

Mosque Set

Three different sets will be used in the three acts, imitating Mosque outlines. Colorful oriental colors will be used to give it an exotic appearance. The first setting will be the palace throne room and the second will be a courtyard scene with real palm trees and a double balcony effect. The last scene remains a secret and will not be revealed until the night of the play.

Exotic Dances

During the play, five dances will be presented. These dances, depicting different countries will be performed in small groups with one solo by Dottie Cox.

The costumes, which were designed and made by the Freshmen have been copied from typical costumes of those countries which they represent.

Charmes

Chandler Story, Nancy Knapp, and Nancy Atkinson are co-chairmen of this production. Crew chiefs include Jackie Walker, stage manager; Natalie Miller, technical director; Ann Persak, scenery; Connie Birch, lights; Pat Spies, properties; Bobbie Burton, Melinda Davidson, Sharon Hellek and Pat Wallace, music and dance.

Also in care of Production are Linda Givens, costumes; Suzanne Ballard, make-up; Judy Weed, programs; Cheramy Howe, publicity; and Ann Gordon, usher.

The Freshmen also wish to give credit to Kaye Godwin, Jean Bristow, and Ginny Chapman, members of the Longwood Players who have advised and aided them; and to Cab Venable and Mike Couchman, who have helped design and build the set.

Characters

The cast for the production includes Mary Lynn Lander as the Sultan, Jean Leary as Beral, Lynne Guerin as the Jessee, Nancy Moore as Anasuek, Casey Bachner as Shirk, Judy Rebel as Obexioz, Jo Leslie Andrews as Kassandra, Betty Hodgett as Ker Midjan, Betty Caldwell as U Suhn Laos, and Anne Evans as Pharnah.

Volleyball

The annual faculty-student volleyball game, sponsored by the AA, will be held tonight at 8 o'clock in the gym. The seniors will play various members of the faculty. Admission is 15 cents.

"The Influence and Significance of India Today." This lecture assesses the place of India in the contemporary world.

Younger Speaks To LC Students On World Goals

Dr. Edward Younger, professor of history at the University of Virginia, will be the guest speaker in assembly at 1 p.m., February 27. He will also speak at 4 p.m. at a forum in the student lounge, and at 7:30 p.m. in the Small Auditorium. All students are invited to attend these forums.

Mr. Younger taught at the University of Alabama, and has only recently returned from a speaking tour in India, where he was well received.

His assembly speech is "The Origins and Nature of the World Situation Today: A Historical Analysis." This lecture analyzes the forces creating the world upheaval today. From the history of Western Civilization, it traces the origins and development of true revolutionary goals to which most people aspire. It also identifies and defines these goals.

His speech at 7:30 is entitled

Timely Topics

Glenn Circles Globe

Kennedy Tours East

By Barbara Wisler

Yesterday at 9:47 a.m. the capsule carrying astronaut John H. Glenn, Jr., was successfully launched and put into orbit. After circling the earth three times, he was rescued at 2:43 p.m.

Administrators Go To Richmond For Conference

Dr. Francis G. Lankford, Jr., president of Longwood College, accompanied by Miss Ruth B. Wilton, Dean of Women, and Dr. Gordon Moss, Dean of the college, attended the Forty-eighth Annual Meeting of the Association of Virginia Colleges, held on February 15 and 17. Dr. Lankford, president of the Association, presided at these meetings which were held in Richmond.

Dr. Charles K. Martin, Jr., president of Radford College, gave an address to the members "The Recruiting and Orientation of Faculty Members." Following this address was a panel discussion with Dr. Floyd V. Turner, president of Virginia Intermont College; Dr. Edward J. Overton, dean of the Summer Session, University of Richmond; Dr. J. C. Suddith, director, Clinch Valley College; and Dr. C. Ralph Arthur, president, Ferrum Junior College. Friday night, Dr. Joseph C. Robert, professor of history, University of Richmond, spoke on "Why Not Two Apps. for the Professor?"

John M. Turner, dean of Lynchburg College and vice-president of the Association, presided Saturday morning when Dr. Grell Simpson, chancellor of Mary Washington College of the University of Virginia, explained "The Effective Use of Faculty Members." Dr. Charles B. Vail, dean of Hamden-Sydney College, spoke on "The Relevance of Faculty Members." The early morning session was closed by a discussion of these two addresses, which was led by Dr. Harriet Hudson, dean of Randolph-Macon Woman's College.

The two-day series of meetings closed with a business meeting presided over by Dr. Lankford.

The chances of an east-west summit meeting by June look good. However, Premier Khrushchev's proposal for such a meeting to be held March 14 was rejected by western leaders. Both President Kennedy and Prime Minister MacMillan have turned down the Soviet proposal.

American US pilot Francis Gary Powers has been returned to the United States after having been imprisoned inside the Soviet Union for 21 months. Powers was questioned by the US intelligence agents as to how much information he gave the Russians concerning his mission and as to exactly what happened the day his plane was shot down.

Attorney General Robert Kennedy continues his tour by visiting Red China. He gave out relief noodles to the needy and shook hands with many of the Chinese natives.

Poet Robert Frost who is 87 years old is reported to be recovering slowly from the lung congestion which caused him to be placed in the hospital January 6.

LC Group Hears Orchestra Play 'Tschaiakovski'

On Monday night, a group of students and faculty attended a concert in Richmond by the Philadelphia Philharmonic Orchestra. The concert featured the performance for the second time in the western hemisphere, of Tschaiakovski's unfinished seventh symphony.

Several years ago, the notes and preliminary sketches from the work were found by a Moscow Conservatory professor, Semyon Bogatyryev, who began to reconstruct the symphony in collaboration with Taneyev, another Russian musician. Most of the reconstructed work was taken from orchestrations of other of Tschaiakovski's unpublished work.

Mr. Ivan Olson, professor in the music department, said, "Tschaiakovski began this symphony in 1892—one year before his death—and it is clear that he wasn't satisfied with the work, for he never meant to have it published." Olson also believes, "It would have been just as well if Bogatyryev had left the seventh symphony where it was. Although it retained the Tschaiakovski charm and some of the emotional impact, it could not compare with his other six symphonies."

The seventh symphony is in four movements, which is traditional symphonic form. The first movement is somewhat like the second symphony. The second movement is the most mature portion of the whole symphony, and ironically, only half of the movement is Tschaiakovski's own work. The third movement overemphasizes the use of pizzicato, and the fourth is a rite, illustrating the excessive exhibition of feeling characteristic of Tschaiakovski's works.

Exciting Paperback

Novels

at the

COLLEGE

BOOK STORE

Try A

Tasty Treat

at the

COLLEGE

SNACK BAR

SWIM MEET MANAGERS, C. Longstreet and B. G. Martin, practice diving.

Varsity Basketball Begins Successfully

Longwood College's varsity basketball team has successfully met and defeated two visiting teams in the past week. The two schools are Medical College of Virginia and Madison College.

The first of the games was

Group Attends Hollins Festival, Hears Aldridge

Four members of the English faculty and ten students attended the Second Annual Literary Festival at Hollins College on February 17.

Mrs. Mildred Davis, Mr. Carson Gibb, Dr. and Mrs. Richard S. Mosker, and Mr. Ellington White accompanied Sharon Coulter, Susan Crisman, Betty Rice Dawson, Donna Humphlett, Barbara Poland, Jean Pollard, Judy Purcell, Gayle Ray, Nelda Shields, and Rebecca Wilburn to the college.

Gayle Ray, a sophomore pre-nursing student from Scottsville, read a poem, "No," she had submitted earlier to Hollins College. Gayle's poem had been selected by Hollins to be read at the festival. After the reading the attending poets gave a critique of the poem.

Aldridge Speaks
John W. Aldridge, author and critic, addressed the group at 11 p.m. The topic of his talk was "The Irrelevance of Outrage in Southern Fiction." He stated that there is nothing new in contemporary Southern literature: it is an imitation of the Faulknerian theme. Following Aldridge's talk was a reception and coffee, followed by a luncheon at 12:45 p.m. for the guests, faculty, and students of Hollins College.

Writer Talks
During the luncheon, William J. Golding, writer-in-residence at Hollins, addressed the group on "Innocents Abroad." After spending several minutes explaining the significance of and apologizing for the title of his talk, Golding launched a speech valuing college creative writing courses.

Poets Read
The group assembled in Bradley Hall at 2:30 p.m. for an afternoon poetry reading. The guest poets, William S. Merwin and Robert Hassel were introduced by Hollins English professor John A. Allen.

Merwin has written four books of poetry, the latest of which is "The Drunk in the Furnace." Hassel is the author of two novels and a book of poems.

on February 15 when the Longwood team played on the home court against the Medical College. After a late start the game moved along quickly with the home team scoring 13 points in the first quarter to three points made by the visitors.

Starting forwards, Doris Harrison, Lindy Hatch and Lurline Phlegar had the score up to 28-4 at half-time. Guards were Linda Suddeth, Jean Still and Shirley Carr.

During the second half freshman forwards Carrie Lee Wilson, Kathy Dean and Lurline Robertson went in the game with guards Melody Saunders, Sharon Sarvor and Gay Taylor. The Medical College team scored only 10 points during this half as Longwood dumped 35 more points into the basket to make the final score 64-14.

Madison Game
Madison College arrived on seventeen to play two games with Longwood. The first of the games resulted in a 46-25 score favoring Longwood. The starting players were the same as in the Medical College game. In the second game Madison made a strong attempt, and scoring was made point to point by the two teams. The home team fell behind only once, but the final score gave Longwood another victory, 59-41.

Students Gain SEA Invitations Of Membership

Fifty-one Longwood students recently accepted bids to be members of the Student Education Association.

This organization has as its purpose the development among college students of understanding in the teaching profession through participation in the work of local, state and national education associations.

Members gain practical experience in working together and in working with other associations on problems of the profession and of society.

Students in the education field are eligible for membership. Those receiving bids were Mary Hannah Drummond, Anne Penntes, Phyllis Graves, Mary Ivy Cook, Becky James, Cynthia Alcock and Ginny Sturm.

Also, Marjorie Twilley, Donna Arnold Deloris Watkins, Peggy Pond, Betty Ann Atkinson, Sandra Marie Phelps, Beverly Moser, Anne Woelner and Jean Lowry.

Clara Mayes, Nancy Burton,

Longstreet, Martin Manage Swim Meet

Barbara Grey Martin and Chris Longstreet, co-managers of the Swim Meet announce that the plans for this annual event are already in progress. The meet is scheduled for April 19 at 4 p.m.

The requirement for participation in the swim meet is eight rec swimmers, four of which must be obtained at the special rec swim which are going to be held every Thursday at 5 p.m. beginning this week. These rec swimmers are for instruction in the basic skills for competitive swimming. For girls taking a swimming class, only four rec swimmers are necessary. These four must be obtained in the special swim meet rec swimmers.

To receive credit for the four regular rec swimmers, the lifeguard should be contacted. To provide for the special rec swimmers, regular rec swim time has been changed to Monday and Friday at 5 p.m. and Wednesday night at 9:45.

The Swim Meet counts 10 points toward the Color Cup and is color competition instead of

There will be six events. These have been planned so that there is a field for everyone participating. The diving will include a required front header in any position and two optional dives. The 75 yard individual medley consists of 25 yards each, of the breast stroke, back stroke and free style. There will be a 100 yard free style relay and a 100 yard medley which will include back stroke, breast stroke, butterfly stroke and free style. The form swimming will include the breast stroke and back stroke. The swim meet will end with the pajama relay.

DURING HALF-TIME of Saturday's game, Madison and Longwood teams practice shooting.

Basketball

The Longwood College basketball team defeated Roanoke College 73-25 in the first game & 69-11 in the second game last night.

Bobbi Mast, Raye Turner, Nancy Oldfield, Diana Deik, Janet Culpepper, Mary Catherine Pulley, Rosa Doyle, Judy Beck and Barbara Holderfield were bid.

Also, Evelyn Gray, Betty Ann Rex, Mary Beth Olson, Carol Benton, Melaine Wilkes, Anne Broad, Shirley Dumanan, Patricia Winstead, Sharon Coulter, Dana Brewer, Jeannie Kafer, Betty Howard, Gail Jones, Betty Anne Wall, Shelby Webb and Frances Daniel.

Finally, Carol Martin, Kathleen Laing, Jerry Clarke, Lucy Swink, Gloria Newton, Susan Lane, Margaret Cooke and Barbara Fields.

Creon Desires Personal Death

(Continued from page 2)
charion call to remind men of this distinction. Their cause is always the same—a passionate regard for the sanctity of human dignity. Well, Antigone is calm tonight. She has played her part. A great wave of unrest now settles down upon Thebes, upon the empty palace, upon Creon, who can now begin to long for his own death. Only the guards are left and none of this matters to them. It's no skin off the nose. They go on playing cards."

Patronize Rotunda Advertisers

Place your order now for Degree Rings and Pins.

MARTIN THE JEWELER

Longwood Sweet Shirts

LANSCOTT'S

English Preparation, Visitation Discussion

By Morag Nocher

The importance of English preparation in high school was expressed again this year at the fifth annual principals' and counselors' visitation day at Longwood College on February 15.

After talking with members of the freshman class from these particular schools, the representatives met with members of the faculty and administration of Longwood College in the afternoon in an effort to discover the biggest problems encountered by college freshmen.

Jones States

Mr. R. Jefferson Jones, principal of Brunswick High School, Brunswick, stated, "I think we are trying to do something that is impossible." He mentioned that the colleges get the "cream of the crop." He felt that the problem in high school was trying to teach the "college-bound" and the "non-college-bound" students at the same time; therefore, the best job was not being done with the "college-bound" students. He emphasized his statement by saying that a student that fails one year of English has to stay in high school an extra year (since the state requires five years of English), or he has to take two English courses in one year, when he cannot even pass one. Mr. Jones also felt that it was undemocratic to force a child to do something he cannot do.

A guidance counselor at Randolph Henry High School in Charlotte County, Mrs. Boice Ware defended the "non-college-bound" student by making a plea for courses in which the "slow-normal" student would be taught English which he could utilize, especially in communication. As a guidance director and an English teacher, Mrs. Ware was confronted with the problem of students being unable to communicate with her, in trying to discuss their problems.

Dr. Richard B. Brooks, chairman of the department of education, answered a plea for teachers that are trained to work with the "slow-normal" students to sustain their four years is not a long enough period in which to train teachers at several ways. He felt that graduate work was needed in order for this to be accomplished.

Mr. J. M. Helms, principal of Virginia Beach High School, Virginia Beach, explained that he felt the high school principals could help alleviate the problem by influencing the local school boards to help lighten the English teachers' daily schedule.

In delivering the closing remarks of the session, Dr. Francis G. Lankford, Jr., president of Longwood College, expressed his delight at the good spirit and sincere interest shown by the representatives in their discussions. Dr. Lankford discussed his fear of the fact that the "number one" problem in a few years will be getting the best students into college. He stated that he did not believe that the people of Virginia as a whole have waked up to the problem of the state being faced with higher education.

He made a plea to the high school representatives to "join hands with us (college administrators and faculties) to let the message be fully known and thoroughly understood." Dr. Lankford said that unfortunately the state is not expanding residence colleges as rapidly as the need increases. He closed his remarks by inviting the visitors to return to the college in an effort to keep the problems at ways in mind.

Dr. C. G. Gordon Moss, Dean of Longwood College, who conducted the meeting, brought it to an official close by asking the visitors, administration, and faculty to keep working on the problem, as even though, as a body, they were parting physical company.

DURING EVOLUTION SEMINAR, Dr. Jeffers leads discussion with D. Frantzen, M. Wyatt, S. Moody.

Soph Reviewer Gives Critique Of Musicale

By Betty Ann Atkinson

Gamma Kappa Chapter of Sigma Alpha Iota presented on Sunday, February 18, at 4:00 p.m. in Jannar Auditorium a Third Anniversary Musical, a small, but vigorously attentive audience.

The program opened with the sparkle and precision of Betty Ann Rex and Carol Combs at the piano playing the awesome "Concettino" by Franz Liszt. With seemingly effortless ease, Betty Ann manipulated the keys with a swift and exact artistry. The quality of her playing is clear and brilliant, even in the most spectacular passages. Carol swept through the difficult piece with an intense and concentrated sensitivity that denoted an emotional contact with the material.

Organ Piece

Madeline MacNeil at the organ started off with R. Vaughan Williams' "Rhosymedre." She eased into her beautifully smooth, gliding technique, conveying the quiet serenity of the intriguing number.

Searle Wright's "Green-sleeves" was next on the program played by Nancy Oldfield at the organ. The piece, difficult for its polyphony was handled admirably for the most part. Miss Oldfield's technique is right for the organ; and she played smoothly and confidently.

Piano Number

At the piano Jeanette Elder played Debussy's "Gollwieser's Cake Walk," a number full of fun and frolic. Conscious of exact detail, she displayed a good sense of rhythm.

Madeline MacNeil, to the pleasure of the audience sang in her lilting soprano voice three love songs: Hiram's "Prairie Waters by Night," Bowles' "Letter to Freddy," and Cooper's "Enough." She is especially good with songs of much emotion, and it is a moving experience to hear her. Jane Pennington played a subtle, sensitive and confident accompaniment.

Volume Control

Mozart's "Fantasia in D Minor" and Schwanen's "Polish Dance" were played by Patricia Galanis. With a relatively accomplished technique and pleasant romantic style, Pat displayed some versatility in volume control. The "Polish Dance" allowed for her expressive romantic phrasing and a flourish of French spice. The piece was well played technically and well comprehended. Thoughts of Toulouse Lautrec and the Moulin Rouge flowed through the air. Raye then played Dupre's "In Dulci Jubilo" and Clerambaut's "Trumpet in Dialogue" on the organ with a relatively smooth technique and good comprehension of the pieces.

Program Finale

The program ended with the brilliance of Jane Pennington at the organ. She is a confident, accomplished artist, vibrant with the spirit of professionalism. Playing Pachelbel's "Fantasia" and "Bon Himmel Hoch Da Dommichher," she carried the audience through a remarkable and exhilarating experience. Her powerful artistry rates such adjectives as brilliant, expert, and exquisite. She has mastered the organ.

Although the program on the whole was marked by occasional nervousness and its resulting effects the experience of viewing it was certainly worthwhile. The polish and perfection of several of the artists were stimulating, while at times an air of anxiousness for some of the performers hung in the air. Credit is deserved for all the dedication and work that went into its make up. The afternoon was indeed well spent.

George Washington Specials!

One table Books ..... $2.22
Another table ..... $1.22
Better books reduced to $2.22 for Feb. 22nd Only
Golden Encyclopedia—
16 vol. .... $22.22
Reg. $94.50
Typewriters ..... $52.22
Register for free book, American Presidents!

WEYANOKE BOOK STORE

Simkins Speaks At Conference In Washington

Professor of history Dr. Francis B. Simkins will address a meeting of the Civil War Round Table in April in Washington, D. C. His topic will be, "Women of the Confederacy."

The Round Table is a nationwide organization working with the Centennial, which meets at historical Civil War sites to discuss various phases of the war.

Biology Majors To Hold Forum With Natural Science Scholars

By Donna Frantzen

On Thursday afternoons at 1:00 a group of junior and senior biology majors meet with faculty members from the department of Natural Science to discuss current biological topics. After old and new business has been dispatched and the refreshments have been passed, the girls give short reports on papers they have read.

Dr. Carolyn Wells, Mr. Robert Merritt, Dr. George W. Jeffers, Dr. Robert Brunfield and Marvin Scott are on hand to keep the seminar students from committing biological heresy.

The evaluation for the screw worm fly, the advisability of using birth control methods as a means of limiting our expanding population, genetic effects of radioactivity and evolution are just a few of the topics that have been brought up for discussion.

Several times during the year the members are fortunate to have visiting scholars address seminar to give lectures open to the student body. Visits from these lecturers who are members of the Visiting Scholars Series are arranged and sponsored by the Lynchos Society. Friends or acquaintances recommended by the faculty members are also invited to address the seminar.

Biology seminar has proved both interesting and helpful to those who have taken it. It provides a place and atmosphere for bringing up individual theories and ideas and gives the students an opportunity to apply those lectures who are members of the Visiting Scholars Series as well as acquire new ideas.

Special Service To Be Given On Campus At H-S

The Westminster Fellowship will have a special church service at the Presbyterian Church on the Hampden - Sydney campus, Sunday, February 25. The Vocational Guidance Team from Union Theological Seminary and the Presbyterian School of Higher Education has charge of these services.

SHOW TIMES

Mondays Thru Fridays
3:15-7:00 and 9:00
Saturdays: 1:15-3:15-7:00-9:00
Sundays: 2:30-7:15-9:15

Now Playing Thru Monday

TUES. WED. - FEB. 27-28

MARCH 1-8-3
THURS-FRI-SAT.

Around The Campi

It seems that the seniors in South Cunningham are continuing their intellectual pursuits. Any time of day or night one can walk through the halls and see them involved in a stimulating game of pick-up sticks.

Chi, who seems to have gone "inactive," has some loyal checker-uppers. A sequence of informative signs in the "C" elevator stated: "Chi, your signs are fading," "Then," "Chi, you're still fading." Finally, after Chi painted their sign, a note appeared saying "Messy!"

A student teacher was asked by one of her students: "Miss Childress, when do you have to go back to the university?"

One would think that certain seniors would be proud enough of their status to wear their caps and gowns to assembly and march in with the rest of their class.

If you find the new library interesting, try making a trip to Freedom's special "literary" collection. We bet that nothing in the new library can match hers.

Isn't it nice to have so many pretty freshmen on May Court this year?

Girls, don't pack your galoshes yet, the spring rains have yet to fall behind Jarman.

We're waiting for the new petti-pants craze to overpower someone into forgetting they're not Bermuda.

It appears that a certain ex-student teacher is so busy making slides in the science building on week ends, she hasn't seen her husband in a month.

The freshmen are to be commended for their clever production "flying sultan" in the Rotunda.

Longwood students don't know what they're missing by not attending movies on week nights. It seems that there's a special show on the way back to school.

—Staff

THE CONTOUR SHOP

EX 2-5373

Steam Baths $1.50
Pedicures, Body Massage,
Slenderizing Programs

Open Saturdays

The Rotunda

VOLUME XLI

Longwood College, Farmville, Va., February 28, 1962

No. 13

Around The Campi

Why isn't the art department on first floor West Wing instead of second. If it were, the students taking English wouldn't have to listen to the incessant pounding and stomping and whatever else is necessary to make napkin rings, bracelets, and letter holders. Then, too, art displays would be in a more accessible spot.

Becky Tuck recently had the privilege of becoming the first girl to get locked in the new library. After a frantic hour and a half, she was released by the librarian, the architect, the mechanic...

Another library story — Saturday, a freshman was showing the library off to visitors. "Where was the old one?" they asked her. "Over there," she said, pointing in the direction of the elementary school. "What did they use this building for before?" The freshman returned with, "Oh, this is a new building. They've just been building on it for years and years."

How about the new safety device on the door beside Miss Spear's office. No more worries about being knocked down the steps by a flying door.

Orchids to the persons responsible for the new bulletin board in the ex-Smoker. People who used to gather there to smoke should be pleased that the Smoker still has a purpose.

Here's a little motto for all those who work on one of the student publications:

The students get the paper,
The college gets the fame,
The printer gets the money,
And the Staff gets the Blame.

The entire Rotunda staff would like to thank Dr. Simonini for the dictionary he contributed to our clean, rearranged office. From now on hurried headline writers will not have to run to the library to look up words.

—Staff

Evolutionary Change Evident In Library

During the course of Longwood's history, many changes have been made which have broadened the scope of both the school and students. Most of these changes were made in the past, making it impossible for present students to know what it meant to have had the change made. However, in the case of the library, the present students are very capable of comparing it before and after the big change. But even in this instance, there have been many changes that present students have not been witness to. The library as it is now is the result of an evolutionary, not revolutionary, process.

First—this was in the pioneer days of female education—the library of Farmville Female College occupied one room. Students going into the tiny library were struck by the large "Silence" signs then the voice in most libraries.

Library Grows

Gradually, the library grew until it occupied several rooms in West Wing. And in 1937, the building which was the library until this month was built under Franklin Roosevelt's Public Works Administration program. At first, this building not only served as the library, but also offices.

The library continued to grow. The staff was enlarged. And in 1958, the old library reached the bursting point. The college requested funds for enlargement. Then, consultations with building authorities were made and plans worked out.

Because of the scope and character of the enlargement, it was necessary for the library staff to vacate the entire building. And in January, 1961, the book collection was moved to the empty elementary school on campus. For the Longwood students, this was the library until February, 1962, when the library staff again moved—this time back to the enlarged library building. Barely recovering from the move of the two week move, the staff was ready to offer better service than ever last week.

What changes were made? The first thing one notices upon entering the library is the change in lighting. The library—now the best lighted building on campus—is lighted by a new development, fluorescent tubes made by shadowless, diffusing grids. And today's librarian—unlike her predecessors—thinks of the entire library as a browsing and study area. Informal furniture is scattered throughout the new square feet distributed among three floors. The stacks were reminiscent of years past when students were not allowed to browse, but told a librarian the name of the desired book and the librarian got it for her.

Seminar Rooms Included

The main structural program was leaving out the stack core and adding roughly 25,000 square feet distributed among three floors. The stacks were reminiscent of years past when students were not allowed to browse, but told a librarian the name of the desired book and the librarian got it for her. The program also called for rearranging, redecorating, and remodeling the old building. A number of seminar rooms for small, special classes were added. And too, there are now rooms for group discussions, typing rooms, and small faculty study rooms for special projects.

Radio Program

A classical selection for cello and piano will be presented on Longwood's radio program next Tuesday at 4 p.m. Henri Honneger and Walter Robert will be at the cello and piano respectively.

Group Chooses May Day Theme Of 'Merriment'

"Merriment for Her Majesty" became the theme chosen for May Day last Monday night. After considerable thought and fairly tale reading, Dibby Mohr, theme and script chairman, met behind closed doors with Keaton Holland, Mary Leach Elmore, Sue Beardmore, and Mary Anne Lipford and decided this theme would be most suitable for a production of this type.

Everyone's Enjoyment

Just what mysterious merriment will be in store for her majesty remains to be seen, but the production will, as in years past, be staged for everyone's enjoyment and so that all those who wish to take part in it may in some way or another.

Work in Secrecy

Committee heads will work in secrecy to keep their plot under cover until the last possible minute. Progress will be going quickly now that the theme has been decided on, and each committee will need help so that the work will not be too time consuming for a few.

Gold Mine Ahead

Keaton, Chairman of May Day, expressed her wish that everyone will become as enthusiastic as the five who have dugged on the theme. Keaton, who consulted her fortune in the Wishing Well in the newspaper on the day of the decision feels that her prophecy for a "gold mine ahead" has been completely fulfilled. "Now that Freshman Production is over," she stated, "I hope that attention will be centered on the May Day Production."

Agee Publishes Final Trial Issue For Fiscal Year

Serving as trial editor for this week's issue of the Rotunda is Ann Agee, a junior from Farmville.

Filling temporary positions on the staff were managing editor, Lewman Rippey; news, Sandra Jamison; sports, Barbara Agee; feature, Diana Upham; desk, Barbara Wisler; headlines, Dixie Grant.

Also working on the staff were Ann Carroll as assistant sports editor, Pat Rea, assistant feature editor, Donna Humphlett as assistant news editor, and Ginny Moore, assistant desk editor.

The purpose of trial editors is to provide editorial experience for the staff, and to choose the editors for the coming year.

The present library now has money room for the book collection to grow from 70,000 to 150,000 volumes. And as far as the administration and library staff can see ahead, there will be ample seating for a larger student body.

Adding areas for smoking and student lounges, the library staff, as represented by Mr. Charles Butler is, "More than eager to have everyone use it (the library) as much as possible."

Phlegar, Bailey Fill Government Posts

NEWLY ELECTED GOVERNMENT HEADS, S. Phlegar and A. Bailey, discuss future plans and problems.

Officers Chosen To Lead School In Coming Year

Elections for the heads of the new Student Government branches were held last week. Annice Bailey, a junior math major from Norfolk, will hold the position as president of the legislative branch for the coming year, while Sandra Phlegar will serve as the head of the judicial branch.

Annice has been very active in activities at Longwood. She is a member of Kappa Delta social sorority and served as educational chairman last year. This year she is serving as membership chairman.

Bailey Serves

She has been a member of Freshman Commission and Granddaughter's Club. She was a Top Rat and co-chairman of her sophomore class booth for Circus. At present, Annice is serving as secretary of Student Government.

When asked about her reaction to the election she said, "I was honored and surprised." Referring to the recent change in Student Government, Annice said she thought the change was good "because the school is growing and it would be too much of a job for one council."

Phlegar Active

Sandra Phlegar is a junior physical education major from Forest. Sandra is currently serving as captain of the basketball team. This is her third year on the team. She is also varsity tennis manager and a member of the H2O club. She has played both varsity hockey and tennis for two years. Last year she was treasurer of the Athletic Association.

As a member of Alpha Gamma Delta social sorority, she has served as both rush and activities chairman. She has been props chairman for both class productions and has worked on Circus productions. At present Sandra is junior class representative to Student Government. This fall she was tapped for membership in Alpha Kappa Gamma honorary society.

When asked to express her feeling concerning her election, Sandra after much thought she said, "I feel very honored and I'd like to thank the Student Body for placing their confidence in me."

Art Film Plans Show Progress

Dr. Lanford announced in the dining hall Wednesday night that student requests for art films on campus have been granted. After seeking outside aid to no avail, the college decided to show the films on its own.

Dr. Neveu of the science department has agreed to help in the showing of the films. The films will be shown on Saturday nights in Jarman Auditorium. They will be selected by a faculty-student committee. Final arrangements are now being made so that the films can begin in a few weeks.

March 15. In addition, all students must pay a $50 fee by May 1. This fee in past years was due June 15.

Mollegen To Lecture As Visiting Scholar

American Catholic Philosophical Association and the Thomistic Institute of America.

Prolific Author

Included in his published works are Art and Prudence, A Dialectic of Morals, How To Think About War And Peace, and his most recent, The Idea Of Freedom.

The public is invited to attend both lectures.

1,159 Applicants Seek Admission For Coming Year

Mrs. Mary W. Watkins, Director of Admissions at Longwood College, has announced that to date 1159 applications have been received for next year's vacancies. This number includes both transfer students and prospective freshmen, and compares with 977 received at the same date last year.

Applications to Longwood have increased steadily in the past years. In 1956-57, 543 students applied. In 1959-60, 850 admission forms were acquired. Last year a record number of 1181 applicants vied for acceptance.

Two-thirds accepted. Between 350 and 400 new students will be accepted for the coming year. Of these, two-thirds have already been admitted. Although Longwood has only 1022 beds, more students can be accepted due to the student teaching program. This allows the rooms of practice teachers away from campus to be used for a nine-week period.

Practices Adopted

Because many high school seniors apply to more than one college as an assurance of college acceptance, Longwood has adopted several practices to help determine the enrollment as early as possible.

Each application must be accompanied by a $10 fee. Each old student is being required to pay a $10 room deposit fee by

Action For Action

The prompt action which the administration took to satisfy the students' request for art movies is to be appreciated by the student body. Both the art movies and the immediate action are to be appreciated, for this is indicative of the fact that the administration is not only sensitive to our needs and open to our requests, but takes measures to do something about them.

The administration had considered the idea before it was brought up by the students, but knew no student reaction to it, and when interest was shown through letters to the editor, this was brought to the attention of the administration, who took steps to make the project materialize.

The matter was seen through the Campus Fees committee which appropriated money, and was then placed in the hands of a joint faculty-student committee which will organize the program and select the films to be shown. It is now up to the student body to support the project, which is the result of a great deal of effort.

—A. M. A.

'Slow Down And Live'

The following is a reprint from the Mary Baldwin College newspaper. It is significant because it points up the fact that life at all colleges is basically the same.

Rush out of class to catch someone who might get away, hurry to do a little errand that just can't wait—our lives are spent in mid-flight, always a little behind schedule. There is more to be done than we can finish at all, much less finish well.

We study with an intensity that learning is impossible. Cramming our minds with the facts, we fly on to something else without stopping to assimilate what we have, to build the facts into knowledge.

Stop! Where are we going in such a hurry. There may be only twenty-four hours in this day, but tomorrow holds promise of twenty-four more. There is time to look up—to see the steeple silhouetted against the sunset, to breathe in and out and chill our lungs, refresh our souls.

Here we have challenges to meet, responsibilities to accept, but our own ability and initiative determine the degree of our success. If we lift our eyes beyond the hour's task to the wider aim, the ultimate purpose, if we do not fail to seize life's small, beautiful moments, this busy time in our lives can be the most fulfilling instead of the most frustrating.

The Rotunda

ESTABLISHED NOVEMBER 20, 1960

Published each week during the college year except during holidays and examination period by the students of Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia.

Mary Byrd Mison Editor-in-Chief
Ann Acre Managing Editor
Donna Humphlett Business Manager
Gayle Ann News Editor
Lois Peters Feature Editor
Lewann Rippey Sports Editor
Flonzie Barnard and Linda Robinson Exchange Editor
Jane Hanger Photographer
Miss Mary P. Nichols Circulation Manager
Faculty Advisor

Entered as second class matter at the Post Office at Farmville, Virginia, under the Act of Congress on March 3, 1914. Registered for national advertising by the National Advertising Service. Printed by the Farmville Herald.

Skellie, Peters Chosen Top Personalities

On Basis Of Versatility, Class Interests

By Nancy Mowrey
 Lois Peters and Jackie Skellie have been honored by the Class of 1962, by being chosen senior personalities. Their vivacity and all around friendliness won them the votes of the seniors. Jackie, senior in English, was a member of Alpha Gamma Delta social sorority and secretary of Chabots, which she described as a sort of nutty organization that spreads good will. Jackie is also a member of the Student Education Association.

Class Supporter

Her red and white enthusiasm is evidenced by her participation in class hockey and basketball. She got into activities at Longwood in her sophomore year when she did a music act in Circus. In her junior year, Jackie was a co-chairman of the float committee they won. She helped to write the script for her junior Circus, and had a lead role in the show. As co-chairman of senior Circus, Jackie contributed much to the success of her class. She is also co-chairman of the approaching senior assembly, and she will conduct an interview on May over Longwood radio, publicize

May Day. Orientation week has usually kept Jackie busy. She was a junior assistant, and this year was a senior orientation leader.

Hobbies Different
 What interests Jackie? "I like to do different things." She has an intense interest in cave exploring. She is also interested in a certain Connecticut Yankee named Pete. Her other hobbies include modern design and mis-

JACKIE SKELLIE

—Staff Photo
 PREPARING FOR REC SWIM, G. Arm, instructor's student, and P. Rea, beginner, choose swim caps.

Home Privacy Invaded By Today's Sponsor

By Diana Upshur

The other night my boy friend and I decided to spend a quiet evening at home watching television. I turned on the TV set in the living room.

"And now, a word from our sponsor . . ."

"Do you feel dull, depressed, absolutely gross? Nerves on edge, tension mounting up? Take so and so and feel good. Relief! How can you possibly feel anywhere near good after watching this commercial? A picture flashes on the TV screen: We see hammers pounding on someone's poor brain, a nervous tension wire, and another sort of something which looks very painful indeed. Then we are subjected to an internal diagram of the human body, and have to watch while the 'A' and 'B' aspirin and Bufferin tablets have a frantic race down the esophagus to the stomach. By the time you finish watching this commercial you feel like you've had it!

Romance Suffers
 If this isn't enough to desaden any romantic inclinations a boy might've had, I don't know what is. We switched stations.

The miserable voice of the sponsor speaks:
 "Do you have sinus colds? Postnasal drip? Take Dristan and feel good . . ." Then we see a picture of a man breathing on a glass plate. A circle of sweat forms under one nostril while the other side remains blank. "See," the sponsor says, "more air comes out of this side because he used our 'Nifty New Nasal Nozzle,' or some such nasal.

Our daily living habits are revealed to us in the bathroom of the Smith home. Here we see Mr. Smith, Mrs. Smith, and Sisie Smith all standing in a row. They are furiously brushing their gleaming white teeth to the tune of "Brusha, brusha, brusha . . ." Have you ever wondered where the yellow goes? It goes right down the darn drain, that's where it goes!

Situation Futile

The commercial for one brand of mouthwash will tell you what "not even my best friend will tell you" (which causes a furtive glance at your boyfriend). But when the ad about "Don't Broadcast Bad Breath" comes on, you don't speak to each other for the rest of the evening for fear of broadcasting bad breath!

I give up! Let's try another station.

"And now, a word from our sponsor . . ."

Pool Beckons Those Who Seek Challenge

By Mary Beth Olson

"Oh, I must go down to the Longwood pool through the 'rec' and the showers, and gym . . . To the chlorine, and steam, and water temp. cool. Oh joy to beginners just learning to swim!"

A necessary prerequisite for a swimming class is the presence of a body of water. To facilitate the learning process it is advisable that there be both a shallow and a deep body of H<sub>2</sub>O. The shallow section is primarily for the beginner. It gives him a sense of security to feel the liquid lapping at his knees rather than filling the nasal passages. Of course in order to blow bubbles—a primary objective of every beginner—the beginner must learn to bend himself into a pretzel-posture to submerge the nostrils.

The deep end is for those with experience in bubble-blowing, floating, and suffocation. Generally caused by a lack of air. The deep-end swimmer is intrepid, well-coordinated, and buoyant.

Hidden well, in the vicinity of the gym, near the tennis court, below the small auditorium, next to Venable street—is Longwood College's answer to the pool problem. Here lies in majestic splendor a rectangular, tiled, blue-green haven for frustrated fish. Within this enclosure have passed all students who are candidates for graduation . . . before receiving a diploma each student must make at least a paddling-acquaintance with the Longwood pool.

Attire Formal

The attire for the dip is formal—almost regimented. The student receives a shapeless blob of blue which she must don to the best of her ability. The limp material—creams for starch or reinforcement or a rather shapeless blob to fill it. There is no need for embarrassment, however, the hole in the vicinity of the lower back has company. A rip in the side, a tear at the front, or a fringe at the bottom.

Shower A Hazard

A shower is next on the agenda . . . this is done rapidly in order to preserve the curl of the hair, to prevent chill-blains, and to insure that the tanksuit will still be with the swimmer when he enters the pool.

After an invigorating shower the would-be swimmer dashes at top speed to pool-side. The clear blue of the water glares menacingly . . . the smell of an adequate dose of chlorine assures the swimmer that the water is as clean as possible and that he will have red eyes and sticky hair for at least a week.

Temperatures Vary

The motley crew sits cunctly awaiting the instructor and contemplating the water temperature—lake-warm, cool, cold. . . beware the film of ice! Several reluctant students may hover over, under, beside, or around the strategically placed radiators. At last the trump of fate familiar to all "And now, class, the one who can swim the length of the pool five times, underwater, without coming up for a breath, using the side-stroke, the crawl, the trudgen, the butterfly, the back-foot-let side-over-arm-wallow will have an automatic "A" in swimming!" Oh, I must go down to the Longwood pool through the 'rec', and the showers, and gym . . .

Students Offer Plea To Respect Campus Beauty

Dear Editor:

The new sidewalks, which are being laid for their usefulness, will also add to the beauty of the campus. Recently, however, certain students have written in the wet cement leaving imprints which will be there until new sidewalks are laid. This may be a few years from now and we will have to look at these masterpieces for quite a while. Since we, the student body, have been deemed Longwood sic. Says Jackie, "I'm very artistic. My enamels are just beautiful." Instrumentally, she has become quite proficient with a Klondike and comb.

(Continued on page 3)

LOIS PETERS

Future Plans

Post-graduation plans present Jackie with a problem. She is considering taking Jack Paar's place, or she thought she might teach in Princess Anne County. Her reaction to the news of her selection as a senior personality was, "I was my usual reserved, intellectual, quiet self, especially since I stuffed the ballot box when I saw Lois Peters stuffing it. I didn't want her to get ahead of me." Delightfully vivacious, witty, the "Nut of Longwood", that is Jackie.

Peters Contributes

Lois Peters, a social science major from Lynchburg is a member of Alpha Kappa Gamma, Alpha Sigma Tau social sorority, the Longwood Players, and the Monogram Club.

Lois has contributed much to Longwood and the Senior Class. In her junior year, she was a co-chairman of the Circus skit, and this year she served as co-chairman of the float committee that made the winning float. She has played class hockey, basketball, and archery, has been presented with the blazer award, and is the sports editor of the Rotunda.

Likes Travel

"Lotus," as she is nicknamed, loves to travel. "My latest book, titled How To Travel On Borrowed Money, should be available soon." Her travel experience is quite extensive; last spring she went to Fort Lauderdale, she spent the summer in Massachusetts, and in

(Continued on page 4)

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

JUNIOR MAJORS participating in movement program are S. Simms, B. L. Dunn, S. Coe, F. Barnard.

Junior Majors Help Landrum Initiate Movement Program

By Lefty Snyder

An experiment in teaching movement education becomes a pattern for learning and teaching in the total physical education program on the secondary and college level. Ten junior physical education majors at Longwood College are assisting Mrs. Emily K. Landrum, associate professor of Physical Education at Longwood College in teaching 250 freshmen students movement, through total body concepts to elicit a total body response of movement for understanding one's self and for understanding movement patterns underlying the skills of physical education.

Becon as a group project in Kinesiology, the science of human movement, from the premise that movement is used in some way, to some degree, in every task accomplished in daily life, sports, activities and dance, the majors had to go "way out," as Mrs. Landrum says "feel that they were on a loose limb looking for another limb with a firm base of support." "Way out" meant for them digging deeply into the sciences forming the foundations for physical education. Relationships had to be established between the human and mechanical elements of movement through a study of the balancing and unbalancing mechanisms found in the skeletal and anatomical structure of the body. Physiological, psychological, and educational theories of movement had to be interrelated to understand movement or for skill learning in physical education. Observation in all activity classes of the college became the laboratory for these juniors as they became more aware of their own problems as teachers, and acutely aware of the type of learning, when it was physiological, when it was psychological, and when it was mechanical, and how did a method of learning tie it together.

At this stage, the majors approached the chairman of the department of physical education, Miss Olive T. Ier, who gave permission to try the experiment in those freshmen classes where it was feasible. Five of the eight classes are taking part in the project.

Workable and understandable concepts were used as guide lines toward learning and teaching, such as, the body is a collapsible structure, which generally tends to fold up, relax, or give in to gravity. And the body is a segmented structure. This concept of posture to body mechanics approach underlies the total physical education program.

By nature of the general tendency toward collapsibility, extensibility, and segmental relationships, and the problem of balance, equilibrium or shifting of one's center of gravity, becomes a personal problem to be solved in all skill learning in physical education. The body is always seeking for balance of its total self or of its specific parts. Shifting of the center of gravity through main body weights and segments, extensibility, elicits a total body response for understanding movement, and for skills in all areas of physical education. Man is exploratory by nature of his own body's design to move in three directions and many dimensions. The exploratory concept is basic in learning about the self, about movement, and about one's human patterns of movement. Movement is always related to a purpose, a need, or a symbol, whether it is in daily life skills, sports skills, aquatic skills or dance skills—all these problems were held in consideration by the girls as they carried out the instruction experiment in the first lesson, expressions on faces read, "What can I learn about movement? It's something I do every day." By the end of the introductory lesson, many discovered movement for the first time. They discovered that gravity and working against it became two different problems when one sat Turk-like cross-legged on floor to concentrate upon feeling a "pull" here and a "hold" there.

The relaxation sessions have been too effective. It isn't unusual to have to gently nudge a student to awaken her so that the class may continue. When a whole period was given to relaxation, no one was too eager to leave the gym. One student related that she didn't want to do anything but just "sit" in space.

By the end of the first week, most began to understand the body as a mechanical and human structure which always sought for balance of its total self or body parts. Many assumed toward other students in class, of "Anything that you can do, I can do better. Watch me!"

Body conditioning became a future problem to pursue in two of the five participating classes when many encountered difficulties in holding their own body weights in a position resembling that of hanging in a hammock.

Another lesson clarified movement as having relationships to gymnastic types of movement, which come from the mass movement patterns of human movement. In other lessons work and sports skill movements were compared as each developed from a basic movement pattern of the extremities. By another session, students were dancing without realizing it.

After the classes have ended, each student will be given the opportunity to evaluate movement as it has meaning and significance for her. They will be asked what have they learned about themselves through this unit on movement, what solved some of their problems of learning in physical education, what had been most difficult for them and why, and what had been their greatest personal gain? The juniors will tabulate the results as informative facts which will be applicable to their student teaching when they are seniors. Students who have been taking part in the project are, Flossie Barnard, Susan Coe, Betty Lou Eber, Barbara Joy Martin, Joy Moore, Carol Wye, Sandra Phlegar, Sally Simms, Joyce Snyder, and Barbara Stewart.

New Bright Hues Make For Lively Spring Fashions

The new spring colors are lovely—different from Spring 1961. Three themes seem apparent. One is the whitened tights which are being shown on the firmer or crisper fabrics such as seen in sportswear. In this group a bright orange ansears, sometimes a clear coral or a sunny gold. Chatterbox is new and seems important. This may be a more yellow chatterbox or salad green in tone. Mediterranean blue is a "lattering clear blue" that will continue.

The second theme is the red, white and blue group. In many cases all appearing at once or in some cases, just the blue and white. The blues is much brighter and clearer than navy, and the red is either a vermillion or a paprika tone.

The third theme is the softened pastels which appear mainly in

Cellist

"Longwood Speaks" will present cellist Henri Honegger and pianist Walter Robert, in a return performance. Students who did not hear the program in November, tune in Longwood Radio, Sunday at 4 p.m.

Faculty Loses To Senior Team In Annual Game

The annual student-faculty game was played last Wednesday and resulted in triumph for the student team. To win, the team had to take two out of three games.

Playing a fast and ferocious game for the faculty team were Mrs. Bobbit, Mrs. Harris, Miss Burger, Miss Siler, Mr. Scott, Mr. Merrill.

Also, Mr. Viera, Mr. Helms, Mr. Ballew, Dr. Brumfield, Dr. Meeker, and Dr. Sneller.

The student team was composed of the following players: Faye Ripley, Morag Nocher, Joe Savage, Trina Childers, Liza Peters, Paisy Skellie, Nancy Branscome, Linda Sudduth, Keaton Holland, Sarah Buxton, Winnie Egolf, Susan Bierer, Mary Leach Elmer.

The first game was won by the students 14-4. The faculty came back with a strong second game and took it 12-3.

Exciting Third The third game was the most exciting, however, as both teams battled to the end. At the half the score was 8-7 in favor of the faculty. In the second half, the student team poured on the steam to streak by the faculty and make the final score a triumphant 15-10.

LC Upholds 5-0 Record

The Longwood varsity basketball team continued its winning streak by taking two games from Roanoke College, February 22 upping their season record to 5-0.

Again the team won on their home court, and again by a substantial margin. Starters Doris Harrison, Sandra Phlegar, and Linda Hatch, dumped in 34 points in the first half, while the Roanoke forwards found it difficult to score under the guard of Jean Still, Shirley Carr, and Ann Snod.

Roanoke scored only 9 points in that half.

Freshmen Score

For the second half, the freshmen forwards took over. Carrie Lee Wilson, Lurline Robertson, Kathy Dean played well. Between them, 39 points were scored in that half. Only in the third quarter was the scoring anywhere near evenly shared between the teams. Longwood scored 16 points and Roanoke 14.

However this spurt for Roanoke was not enough, for guards Still, Carr, and Linda Sudduth clanged down to allow only three more points while Longwood bucketed 23 more making the final score a rollicking 73-26.

Scoring Easy

The second game proved to be another frolic, as all members of the team combined to take an easy victory. Quarter scores were 15-2, 35-4, 63-8, and the final score was 69-11.

the softer fabrics used for daytime, afternoon and evening wear. A camel shade with a c'ar pencil overtones looks promising as do the coral, peach and lead orange group. The greens in this category run to Nile and pistachio. Teal greens are sunny and clear; but Whiten. The blues in this group are whitened white. The blues is much brighter and clearer than navy, and the red is either a vermillion or a paprika tone.

The third theme is the softened pastels which appear mainly in

Longwood Six Victorious Over Mary Washington

The Longwood victory streak was extended by trouncing Mary Washington 56-26 on the winner's court February 24.

Starting the game were forwards Sandy Phlegar, Linda Hatch, and Doris Harrison, and guards, Linda Sudduth, Jean Still, and Shirley Carr.

M-W Leads

The scrappy first quarter ended 10-6 in favor of Mary Washington. Forwards Carrie Lee Wilson, Kathy Dean, and Lurline Robertson played the second quarter which wound up 20-15 for Longwood. Rebounding kept the Mary Washington team in the game. In the third stanza Longwood sent in Linda Sudduth, Melody Saunders, and Norma Eudy at guard. The game broke wide open in this quarter, ending with a 41-19 score. After that, Longwood coasted to a 36-26 win in the final period.

Easy Victory

In the second game, the Longwood girls grabbed a fast 18-7 score in the first quarter, with Linda Hatch, Doris Harrison, and Sandy Phlegar as forwards, and Linda Sudduth, Melody Saunders, and Norma Eudy playing guard. Both teams played a floor battle in the second period, but Longwood came out on top with a 28-12 lead at halftime.

Third quarter play was fast with good ball handling on the part of both teams. The lineup changed again, when Jean Still, Ann Snod, and Shirley Carr came in as guards and freshmen Lurline Robertson, Kathy Dean, and Carrie Lee Wilson took the forward positions. Although Mary Washington fought to stay in the game, the quarter ended 39-16.

Game Breaks

Guards Shirley Carr, Sandy Ashworth, and Brenda Ibel came in at guard for the final period. This game, also, broke when the blue and whites dunked in 14 more points, to Mary Washington's 1. Lois Oberbaum, Gay Taylor, and Lurline Robertson played forward, as the last whistle blew with a 53-17 victory for Longwood.

DURING MARY WASHINGTON GAME, Longwood player tries for two-pointer.

Timely Topics

Khrushchev Proposes Summit Conference

By Janet Lacey

Col. John H. Glenn, Jr., the first orbiting space pilot, whipped around the world three times in four hours and 56 minutes last week in his two-ton Friendship seven spacecraft. He encountered some trouble on the second orbit, but when asked if he wished to continue, he answered: "Affirmative. I'm ready to go." President Kennedy presented Glenn with the Distinguished Service Medal of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration for his courage and "outstanding contribution to the human knowledge."

Sidewalk Letter

(Continued from page 2)

Ladies, it seems unfitting that we should mar anything that adds to the attractiveness of our campus. A great deal of time and money has been spent on this beautification of our surroundings. As ladies we should respect both the beauty and usefulness of these sidewalks. If we continue to mar these sidewalks, we are in a sense "wasting the state's money down the drain."

Of course, only a small number of students have left their "marks," but those students are defacing property which will be used for some time in the future.

It is a shame to have to write about such a trivial matter, but if the marring of the sidewalks continues the matter will no longer be trivial.

Let's try to correct this problem, and our campus will continue to be beautiful.

Wet Cement

Premier Khrushchev's latest 30-page message to President Kennedy insisting upon a March summit meeting, seems to have chilled the possibilities of successful negotiation in the forthcoming Geneva Conference.

The Carpanel Bill calling for daylight saving time in Virginia from the last Sunday in April to the last Sunday in October was sent to the floor of the House with the approval of the House General Laws Committee.

Literary Festival Draws Students

The Southern Literary Festival Association is holding its annual festival at Converse College, Spartanburg, South Carolina, April 19-21. The purpose of this gathering is to encourage student writing by submitting work to professional writers and critics for their helpful criticism. Manuscripts will be submitted to the festival from various institutions of the South.

There will be several outstanding personalities attending the festival. Eudora Welty, a celebrated writer from Mississippi; Andrew Lytle, a novelist and current editor of the Sewanee Review; Flannery O'Connor, and Cleann Brooks will be present.

The association will award a prize in each division of the festival. The divisions are poetry, short story, essay, and one-act play.

Mr. Ellington White, who is planning to take a group of Longwood students to the festival, is now accepting manuscripts until March 20 and it is hoped that Longwood will make a number of contributions.

Reprinted from Home Sewing News.

Summer Vocations Vary For Students

By Peggy Pond

Although the summer is still two term papers and a thousand pages of parallel away, it is not too early for students to consider whether or not they will seek summer employment and, if so, what type of work they want. Longwood students do enter a wide variety of occupations during the summer, although employment at Girl Scout camps, private campus, and municipal day camps as counselors, unit leaders, and life guards seems to be the work engaged in by more girls than any other single type. As an example, Sandra Freedman, a junior math major spent her time giving care and therapy to physically and mentally handicapped children at Camp Easter Seal. Although camp jobs are not high-salaried, most girls find them rewarding and beneficial to them as future teachers.

Clerical Jobs

Girls skilled in clerical work find positions in private and governmental business offices. Last summer Dee Watkins, a sophomore French major, enjoyed varied experiences as a switchboard operator, statistical typist, private secretary, and receptionist while working for Kelly Girl Service, Inc. Barbara Poland, a sophomore English major, found her work in the Internal Audit Division of the Department of Agriculture quite interesting, particularly the assignment of editing the handbook for the administrations new Feed

Grain program.

Because many research projects conducted by college and universities are carried on during the summer, a number of girls find work collecting samples to be used in the research. Catches Fireflies Ann Carroll, sophomore English major, worked in this capacity by catching lightning bugs for a project conducted by John-Hopkins University in a successful effort to discover the cause and source of the insects' glow.

Governmental research projects provide opportunities for students to gain practical experience in their subject fields. Linda Hatch, a junior biology major worked under Dr. Carolyn Wells, assistant professor of natural sciences at Longwood as a laboratory assistant on a project dealing with irradiation of cells at the Oak Ridge National Laboratory of the Atomic Energy Research Commission. Next summer Donna Franzen, Sandra Weaver, and Jackie Poole, all biology majors, will work at Oak Ridge.

Theatre Work

Theaters doing summer stock productions often hire students to work in their business departments. A sophomore art major, Betty Musser, and a freshman history major, Joyce Neal, worked in the box office of the Barter Theater in Abingdon.

There are only a sampling of the types of work Longwood students have done. There are other job opportunities which may be considered. For example, Dottie Cox, a freshman English major, modeled for a Richmond department store and "Lefty" Snyder, a junior physical education major worked for three summers at a veterinary hospital as a receptionist, but ended up assisting the doctor in operations and even learned how to clip puppies.

There are many jobs available to college students who are interested and willing to work. Advertisements and often application blanks are posted to bulletin boards throughout the school. Summer job information is also available in Mrs. Watkins office.

Boston Revives Study Of Greek For Curriculum

A Greek major language sequence has been reinstated and revived in the curriculum of Boston University. Dr. Emily Vermeile, assistant professor of classics at the university's College of Liberal Arts, said this revival has been sparked by a general increase in language interest precipitated by the National Defense Education Act and a broad general feeling that America is backward linguistically.

Dr. Vermeile, a specialist in Greek and archaeology, says, "Since Greek is a basic language people who have studied translated versions of the classics in Great books courses are now anxious to read the originals, particularly Homer and Greek tragedy."

In focusing public awareness of the American language gap and providing funds for closing it, the NDEA statute inspired an increase in language offerings on the part of colleges and universities.

Film Developed

8 Exposures

39c

SOUTHSIDE SUNDRY

HEAD LIBRARIAN, Charles E. Butler, tells of his poems published in anthology.

Campus Drive

The annual Campus Chest Drive, sponsored by the Freshman Commission, began yesterday, continuing through March 2. The money raised will go to the State Crippled Children's Hospital, the National Cancer Society, and the World University Services. The objective of the drive is $200.

MIT Professor Advocates Unity In Science Field

Bio-physicists, now scattered among many departments at universities, should get together for an organized attack on the mysteries of "the most complex and wonderful phenomenon available to scientific investigation, the mind itself."

This was the challenge thrown out by MIT Biophysicist Francis O. Schmitt in a recent lecture at Northwestern University.

While bio-physicists have prospects "thrilling and challenging beyond (those of any previous period in the history of science)" they are nevertheless in too many scattered locations on American campuses, he asserts. Schmitt suggests formation of bio-physicists research centers, not to weaken the hand of existing departments as teaching organizations, but to vastly reinforce the research efforts of the bio-physicist among them.

In such centers could be located "the most expensive hardware and specialized technicians" needed for the most advanced research. And if well-planned, such research centers result in cross-fertilization of ideas and backgrounds, have the fruitful "vigor that is usually associated with hybrids."

He reported that MIT already has several research centers, is planning five more. Two are closely concerned with bio-physicists—Communications and Life Sciences. He also noted in an interview that Russia already has a bio-physicist research center, which houses 1,000 people. Suggesting a research problem for a bio-physicist research center, Schmitt said that among the major scientific-technological advances of recent years, "none can be more significant for the race than those of communication." Among all creatures on this planet, man is the only one capable of transcending his thoughts, however, imperfectly to spoken and written symbols and thus to communicate with his fellows.

Printed and spoken words "are reasonably satisfactory for simple messages, but inadequate for conveying complex conceptual ideas, human emotion and spirit. Will bio-physicists re-

Six Sororities Pledge Thirteen In Spring Rush

Thirteen girls accepted bids to sororities during Spring Rush which began Monday, February 19 and ended with the final signing Monday, February 26. Six social sororities participated during this informal rush period. Alpha Gamma Delta received as pledges sophomore Brenda Isbel and junior Diane Pessala. Alpha Sigma Alpha pledged freshmen Henrietta Giliam, Pat Murphy, Janet Watkins and Chandler Story, plus sophomore Mary Anne Debnam.

Pledging Delta Zeta was sophomore Bobbie Cadow. Millie Woodward, freshman, accepted a bid from Alpha Sigma Tau. Sophomore Ann Downey pledged Zeta Tau Alpha. Bids accepted to Sigma Sigma Sigma were Duden Campbell and Sally Jarman, freshmen, and Pam Crox, sophomore.

Kappa Delta, Phi Mu and Sigma Kappa did not go through informal Spring Rush as they each met the quota of forty-five, as set by Panhellenic, during the early rush period.

Seniors Discuss Hobbies, Plans

(Continued from page 2)

the fall, Lois went to Miami. Between trips she enjoys sports, reading, "anything that's going around the hall" and she confessed that she has a secret interest in Wall Street. Lois' room, which is decorated with souvenirs of good times from a top rat to the bluebird of happiness, is a hub of activity. Her magnetic personality is the reason.

Plans Tour After graduation, Lois is planning a trip to Europe to broaden her intellectual and cultural experiences, with the ultimate goal of becoming a connoisseur of European delicacies. When told that she had been chosen senior personality, Lois modestly blushed, "I am very humble, honored, grateful and proud—but I wasn't stuffing the ballot box, I was just putting in the votes my friends were handing me." Her versatility and all around congeniality make "Lois" a truly exceptional personality.

In a serious moment, Jackie and Lois both said that they were deeply honored by being chosen senior personalities.

search on mind pave the way for bypassing sensory mechanisms," so men could communicate directly, mind to mind? (Schmitt said this in his 1961 Baccalaureate Address at MIT, but conveyed the same thoughts at Northwestern.)

'Trial Balances' Includes Poetic Works Of Butler

By Mary Anne Lipford

With interested eyes scanning the freshly painted columns and no-longer-useful scaffolding, the reporter mounted the steps of Longwood's library. Though reports, speeches, and tests lurked in her classes of the coming week, the trip was not for reference material or even an afternoon of diligent study. She was seeking the librarian, who she'd heard, wrote poetry "on the side." The person she sought was soon found at a shelf of magazines, thoughtfully thumbing through a recent issue. Exhibiting the quiet friendliness and eagerness to help which is typical of him, he led the way to his spanking new office—and Charles Edward Butler began to tell of his poetry.

Writing College

Mr. Butler's first work was as an undergraduate at the University of Denver. An English major and a native of Colorado, he frequently received the pleasure that publication in campus collections brings. He concentrated chiefly on short lyric poetry, and when asked about his "inspiration" for ideas, Mr. Butler related that his work usually recorded his personal reactions to things. The reporter, quite untutored in the art of poetry writing, asked how one actually writes. Does he merely pick a pretty afternoon, grab up pad and pencil, and pour all his loveliest thoughts onto paper? With a kind smile, Mr. Butler assured her that this was not the procedure. "I usually get an idea a line... work on it awhile... put it away... go back to it. Ideas come up any time. You don't go out looking for them."

After receiving a B. A. degree in English, Mr. Butler remained at the University of Denver to work for his B. S. in library science. His master's degree in that field was later granted by the University of Michigan.

Index Praise

In 1936 an anthology of work by college poets from all over the country was published and appropriately entitled Trial Balances because the work of those poets was certainly akin to something before a final balance, a final answer. When five of his poems appeared in the anthology, Mr. Butler says, "I was terribly thrilled—oh, I had all sorts of wild dreams!" A critic's opinion of each young poet was expressed, too, and of Mr. Butler it was said: "How rare to find in a youngster such precision of thought, and of form, too."

After Trial Balances, Mr. Butler tackled the writing of a long narrative poem dealing with the Santa Fe Trail in early American history. In order to capture the authentic atmosphere or "Quivira," one vacation was spent in driving from Independence, Missouri, to Santa Fe. "Some of the ruts of the wagon wheels of the 1840's can still be seen!" he says.

Serves In War

In 1944 the Yale University Press published a small collection of his poems about World War II, in which he served. He was in England in the Air Force, in a division jokingly referred to as the "chair-borne" division because they seldom actually flew. His war experiences were also the basis for a novel he had published in 1950, Follow Me Ever took place on an air base in England, and written in the first person, spoke as a serviceman remembering something that had happened to another soldier.

A Guggenheim Fellowship later sent Mr. Butler to Ireland to write about 16th century Ireland. He is still working on his poems and modestly confides, "I may be lucky enough to have some published again."

No Favorites

Asked if he has a favorite poem that he wrote, Mr. Butler says, "I'm like another poet who says his favorite is the one he's working on now." William Butler Yeats is his most admired poet, and there are no family ties there!

Mr. Butler is married "to a library assistant I met behind the stacks in Denver!"

The reporter didn't linger for her peek-on-the-side obviously had much to do in his new library. As she descended the steps she vowed she'd spend some time in that library during the coming week. That is, after she read Trial Balances, tucked safely under her arm.

Four Students Present Recital To Keysville Club

Four Longwood students presented an organ and piano recital at the Keysville Methodist Church on Thursday, February 16. The Fine Arts Department of the Keysville Woman's Club sponsored this concert.

Miss Joanne Currutt, member of the Longwood Music Department, coordinated the program. Participating were Patricia Spies, freshman from Baltimore, Maryland; Betty Howard, sophomore from Arlington; Doris Harwell, freshman from Petersburg; and senior Jane Pennington of Buckingham.

Need A Study Break?

Visit Your COLLEGE SNACK BAR
for a
Special Treat

NEWMAN'S

MEN'S SHOP
Traditional Styles
111 Main Street
Farmville, Va.

See Our
Ladies' Sportswear

HOLLYWOOD BEAUTY SHOP

Let Us Assist You With Your
Hair Tinting ..... $5.00 and up
Shampoo and Set ..... $1.00
Hair Cuts ..... $1.00
Permanents including Shampoo, Cut,
Style, Set ..... $5.00

CALL EX 2-9019

See The
Paperback Book
Display at the

COLLEGE
BOOK STORE

No Time To Write?
Buy Contemporary Cards

at
LANSCOTT'S

The Rotunda

VOLUME XLI

Longwood College, Farmville, Va., March 7, 1962

No. 14

Actors To Present Two Foreign Plays

By Leslie Burris

On March 8, 9, and 10, the Longwood Players and the Hamden-Sydney Jongleurs will present two one-act plays, "Antigone," and "The Bald Soprano."

"Antigone" Protests

"Antigone," by Jean Anouilh, was written in protest of Nazi occupation of France during World War II. According to Dottie Cox, the play is a play of all rights—there is no wrong. The cast consists of Carla McNair as the sorrowful and stubborn Antigone; Mike Couchman as the powerful Creon, Evans Harbour as the lover Haremon, and Cab Venable as the Chorus. Others in the play are, Susan Moltrop as the nurse, Liz Deichmann as the messenger, Ed Baker, Bevo Howard and Bill McClellane as guards, and Betty Ann Atkinson as Eurydice.

Wiles Directs

Serving as general director of both plays is Mr. Rick Wiles. Mindla Walker is serving as assistant director of "Antigone," and Pasty Skelle as assistant director of "The Bald Soprano." Stage manager for both plays will be Kaye Godwin. Glinia Chapman will serve as technical director, with Barbie Fields and Jean Bristow in charge of sound and lights, respectively.

"Soprano" a Parody

"The Bald Soprano" is an anti-play breaking all playwright conventions. The story, by Eugene Ionesco, concerns a perfect society where there are apparently no problems and everyone is bored to distraction. Betty Ann Atkinson, who plays Mrs. Smith, says, "It is a parody on the theater in particular and on society in general." In this play, Betty Ann plays the pseudo-phosphated Mrs. Smith, Mike Caver plays the heckled husband, Dottie Cox the charming Mrs. Martin, and Tom McDaniel plays the daring Mr. Martin. Others in the cast are David Anderson playing the fire chief, and Mary Beth Olson as the maid.

—Staff Photo
REHEARSING ROLES ARE C. VENABLE, M. COUCHMAN, and L. DEICHMANN.

Admission Free

'Riffifi' First Film In Scheduled Series

"Riffifi," a French film, will appear on Longwood's Jarman screen on Saturday, March 10, at 2 p.m. This is the first of a series of films sponsored by the Campus Fees Committee. Admission will be free for Longwood students, their dates, and Longwood faculty members and their families.

Dassin Director

"Riffifi" was directed and written by Jules Dassin, with music by Georges Auric. The film has French dialogue with English subtitles. Starring in this story of a jewel robbery are Jean Servais, Carl Mohner, and Perlo Vito (Jules Dassin).

Dassin has become famous for his films of crime and brutality ("Brute Force," "Naked City," "Thieves Highway," "Night and the City"), and in his first French film he has produced one of the finest crime pictures ever made.

Jewel Robbery

"Riffifi" is the story of a carefully planned, shrewdly executed jewel robbery. Its characters are so developed that the spectator finds himself attached to them, hoping for their success. The robbery takes place in the final part of the film; a full 35 minutes without dialogue.

Betsy Crowther in the New York Times says of "Riffifi" that it gives you the thrill of being an inside participant in perhaps the keenest crime film that ever came from France... terrific Parisian robbery... Mr. Dassin has staged the robbery and checked it against a wristwatch until you in the audience almost scream when somebody accidentally touches a piano key or a little thing goes wrong."

Identification Cards

The presentation will be open to Longwood students and their family and their families. Students present will be expected to present their identification cards when requested to do so. Because of the film rental agreement it is not possible to invite the general public.

Correction

The Rotunda printed a misleading statement in the February 28 issue, concerning room reservation fees. The $50 fee will be due on May 1 for entering freshmen and transfers, only. For all present Longwood students, the fee will be due on June 15.

Faculty Figures Gain Recognition In 'Who's Who'

By Morag Nocher

Eight Longwood faculty members have been included in the 1962 edition of Who's Who in American Education. Among those listed in this twentieth edition are as follows: Dr. Blanche C. Badger, Dr. Elizabeth Burger, Dr. Merle L. Lardrum, Dr. C. G. Gordon Moss, Dr. Dorothy Schlegel, Dr. Marvin Wilson Schlegel, Dr. Donald Arthur Wesley, and Dr. Ruth Wilson. Dr. Badger, associate professor and chairman of the department of mathematics, received her degree of Bachelor of Arts from Winthrop College, her degree of Master of Arts from University of Tennessee, and her Ph.D. from George Peabody College for Teachers. She joined the Longwood faculty in 1956.

Dr. Burger, professor of natural sciences, received her degrees of Bachelor of Science and Master of Arts at the College of William and Mary and her Ed.D. at the University of Virginia. She came to Longwood in 1940.

Dr. Landrum, professor and chairman of the department of business education, received his degree of Bachelor of Science at Columbus Business University, Columbus, Ohio, his degree of Master of Arts at New York University, and his Ed.D. at Indiana University. He joined the Longwood faculty in 1959.

Dr. Moss, professor of history and social sciences and dean of the college, received his degree of Bachelor of Arts at Washington and Lee University, his degrees of Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy at Yale University. He served as a member of the Longwood faculty in 1926-27, 1929-30, and from 1944 until the present. Dr. Moss was appointed dean of the college in January, 1960.

Dr. Dorothy B. Schlegel, associate professor of English, received her degree of Bachelor of Arts from Dickinson College, her degree of Master of Arts from the College of William and Mary, and her Ph.D. from University of North Carolina.

Dr. Marvin W. Schlegel, professor of history and social science, received his degree of

(Continued on page 4)

College Publications Choose New Heads

Editors Named; Staffs Chosen For Fiscal Year

By Gliny Gilmore

The editors and business managers of the three college publications were chosen last Thursday at a meeting of the Publications Board.

Named editors-in-chief were Rebecca Wilburn, the Colonade; Ann Acee, the Rotunda; and Cissie Griggs, the Virginian. Serving as business managers for the coming year are Carol Benton, the Virginian; Bobbi Mast, the Rotunda; and Diane Whitley, the Colonade.

Publication Board

To come to a decision, Jane Hanger, chairman of the Publications Board met with the present editors, business managers, and advisors of the publications. Nominations were made on the basis of experience and activity and the Board made the final decisions. Jane was nominated chairman of this committee by the Student Government and approved by the student body last year.

Wilburn Appointed

Rebecca Wilburn, newly appointed editor of the Colonade served on the literary board for the past fiscal year and has contributed both short stories and poetry to it since she was a freshman. She is an English Major in Secondary Education from Rippelmead, and a member of Epsilon Eta Theta honorary English Fraternity. "I'm very honored to have been chosen," Rebecca stated, "but more than an honor it is a responsibility. My staff and I will do our best to keep high the standards of the Colonade."

Diane Whitley, the new Colonade business manager is a Business Education major from Franklin. In her freshman year she served on the circulation staff for the Colonade and in her sophomore year was on the business staff. She is a member of the Future Business Leaders Association and Psi Omega Psi, honorary business fraternity.

The new Colonade staff, effective immediately, consists of essay editor, Jean Pollard; poetry editor, Donna Humphlett; and art editors Judy Woodyard and Melanie Wilkes.

Acee Edits

Chosen editor-in-chief of the Rotunda was Ann Acee, a history major from Farmville. She served as managing editor this past year and is a member of Delta Zeta social sorority, the Athletic Association Council, and is active in calendar chairman. This year she was elected co-chairman of Circus by her class and was chosen junior attendant to Circus Court.

The new Rotunda business manager for the coming year is Bobbi Mast. The past year Bobbi served as assistant business manager of the Rotunda, and is a member of Pi Gamma Mu Social Science Fraternity, the House Council, and is Drama Chairman for Westminster Fellowship, An Elementary and Psychology major. Bobbi comes from Winchester.

Staff Chosen

The new Rotunda staff, active immediately, consists of managing editor, Donna Humphlett; news editor, Ann Carroll; feature editor, Pat Bear; sports editor Gliny Gilmore, and desk editor, Lewann Rippey.

—Staff Photo
PUBLICATION HEADS (L to R) R. Wilburn, C. Griggs, and A. Acee enjoy recently acquired positions.

'Existence Of God,' Topic Of Adler Talk

Dr. Mortimer J. Adler, author, scholar, and associate editor of Great Books of the Western World, spoke to the Longwood student body yesterday in assembly. The title of his talk was, "The Proof for Existence of God."

He began by stating that in the history of western thought, several philosophers have proved the existence of a god. But this god is not the god of western religious thought; it is the god of the philosophers; therefore, this proof is not valid for most western people.

Questions Existence

Adler then asked how one can be certain that anything exists. One can feel by intuition that something exists, or he can infer from past events that something exists.

Since one must define a concept before it can be proved, the next question was: what is God? only three possibilities: They are: (1) God is unlike all things of the world, (2) God is essentially like all things of the world, (3) God is partly alike and partly unlike the things of the world.

Develops Concept

The first two concepts were eliminated because if God were totally unlike the world there would be no contact with the world; therefore, God would not exist. Secondly, no one can conceive of a god essentially alike the things of the world. The only alternative was the third—that God is both alike and unlike the things of the world.

Five Propositions

The body of Adler's speech dealt with and defined the terms used in the five propositions presented. The five propositions were: (1) the causal principle—the existence of an effect which

(Continued on page 4)

Arnn Publishes Interim Edition For 'Rotunda'

Gayle Arnn, a senior English and social science major from Martinsville, served as editor of this issue of the Rotunda. She has served on the staff for three years, holding the positions of assistant sports editor for last year and of feature editor for this year. She has also served as Colonade essay editor for 1961-62.

Gayle, a three-year student, said, "It has been a pleasure to work on the Rotunda, for not only has it rewarded me with a strong feeling of satisfaction, but I feel that the journalistic experience will prove valuable in the future."

The staff for this issue consisted of managing editor, Donna Humphlett; news editor, Ann Carroll; feature editor, Pat Bear; sports editor Gliny Gilmore, and desk editor, Lewann Rippey.

Around The Campi

The snow which fell earlier this week unfortunately fell a little too late for the week end travelers, but was both a timely and a welcome sight to the local student teachers, who didn't resent in the least having to get up for school only to have to go back to bed—for lack of anything to do.

We were waiting for some good snow sculpturing to manifest itself as a result of this excellent sculpturing-snow. A freshman Rodin fan made the only attempt which has appeared so far. And then there are those of us whose whole talents consist of making angel wings in the snow.

Lent begins today, which brings up the questions of what to abstain from. After hearing a long list of things being given up by friends, one junior made the profound statement, "I'm going to give up..."

—Staff

Dorm Issue Still Pending

Last spring when the incoming seniors signed up for dormitory rooms, they broke a long-standing and much-adhered-to precedent at Longwood College—that of having each class housed in a respective dormitory.

As a result of the seniors' decision to split housing some in Wheeler and the rest in South, there naturally ensued a like division in each succeeding class. This sparked a violent protest among the majority of the underclassmen, the essence of their argument being that "a class divided against itself cannot stand." What would happen to class participation? What would happen to class spirit? Such questions were prominent in the minds of the worried underclassmen.

Now that the much brooded over year is just about over, it is interesting to look around and evaluate the effects of mixed classes in the dormitories. Have you ever seen a more enthusiastic class than this year's freshmen? Did you ever see a more superior freshman production? In answering these questions truthfully, one must surely realize that the main fear of diminished class spirit was not well founded.

In actuality, there have been some definite advantages to intermixed dormitories. Probably one of the most important is that many freshmen have gotten to know and to become personal friends of seniors that they might otherwise have never known. In rebuttal to this apparent advantage, some have argued that the freshmen need to be making more acquaintances with members of their own class. Lankford pointed out, however, that the freshmen have three more years to develop acquaintances with their own class members. In addition, he also reminded us that the dormitories are no longer adequate to fit the size of individual classes; Ruffner is too small for the freshmen, while Wheeler and S. Cunningham have more than enough space for the juniors and seniors. Certainly it would not be prudent for beds to remain empty when the demand is so great.

On the other hand, one student observed a totally unpredicted disadvantage that has occurred — it seems that the majority of the freshmen who didn't make their grades are those who have been housed with upperclassmen. Whether or not this can be attributed to the influence of the upperclassmen is questionable, but worth looking into.

At any rate, the question is still pending in a precarious position. All factors considered, what would be the best solution to the dorm problem? Such tactics as "brainstorming" or "group dynamics" could prove invaluable in reaching a solution. Therefore let us be encouraged to pool our ideas as individuals or as groups in order to find the best workable solution.

—G. G. A.

Screening Board .... Fair?

A few years ago, in 1959, the method of electing major officers was changed. Prior to this time, a nominating committee composed of retiring major officers, including the editors of the three publications, and the chairman of major-minor elections was responsible for presenting a slate of candidates to the student body. Three years ago the method was changed to the present system: candidates are nominated by the student body through class meetings and narrowed down to three candidates for each office by a screening board composed of the two major officers, two representatives elected from each class, and the chairman of major-minor elections.

Clearly the present system is an improvement over the old one; however, events in the past week have led to a questioning of the fairness of the screening board method. The job of the screening board, as it now exists, is to select the three most qualified candidates, considering personality, opinion, general qualifications, and personal abilities. You may be assured that the screening board takes its job seriously and is as free from bias and prejudice as it can possibly be. The screening board wants to be fair to the student body and believes that the fairest thing it can do is present the three candidates it feels most qualified.

Now, if this system seems fair, the student body should trust the decisions of the board, or its effectiveness will be undermined. If, on the other hand, the system has faults, it should be improved or drastically changed. Do you think, for instance, that since the Athletic Association and YWCA are no longer represented on Student Government, they might just as fairly, and more effectively, elect presidents within their respective groups? Or that the screening board should be replaced by direct elections without any screening of the candidates? Or what?

The point is this: if you are honestly dissatisfied with the present system, think of a better way and work to have this way changed — you might work through the evaluating committee recently appointed by Student Government (this committee is appointed annually to review rules and Constitutional methods, etc., and is composed of Judy Jones, chairman, Lucy Trotter, Lucy Swink, Lois Obenshain, and Maria Costan), or you might go directly to Student Government with your ideas.

How can you, if you feel this system, or any part of it, is unfair, allow it to remain? And if you feel it is a good system, how can you undermine its effectiveness by a lack of faith in its procedures?

Judy Detrich, chairman
Major-Minor Elections

Published as student news outlet by the Post Office at Farmville, Virginia. Contains the school newspaper on March 7, 1962. Reprinted for national advertising by the National Advertising Service. Printed by the Farmville Herald.

IN ACTIVE POSITIONS as backstage workers are (Top L.) J. Bristow, (Bottom L.) B. G. Godwin, and (R.) B. Martin.

Radical Restrictions Reveal Roaring Days

By Mary Beth Olson

Oh students, oppressed by severe restrictions, unjust regulations, and unreasonable rules—back up your dreams of the "good old days," your powder and paint, and your pettinaps and fly with me into the past. I issue you an invitation to the era of the roaring twenties—our destination is Longwood College 1924-1925.

Here is your guide book—a slim volume of thirty-four pages, impressively entitled Constitution, By-Laws, and Regulations for Student-Government of State Teacher College Farmville, Virginia. Flip through the pages rapidly! Dining Room Regulations . . . "Students are required to come to their meals unless in the infirmary or excused by the home department." The table hostesses must report all table absences to the Head of the Home. The Hostess must report all unnecessary noise and misconduct to the Executive Board. Aggravate? No Friday night pizza, no week end excursions to the College Shop, no extra hour of sleep. . .

Allowed To Shop . . . Suppose you have just run out of toothpaste, hand lotion, or Ritz crackers and peanut butter—there is a section devoted to you. Shopping. . . "School days 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. Saturday 9:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. . . Allowed to go shopping twice a week with permission from the home office. . . It certainly would encourage efficiency, advanced planning, and the large economy size of toothpaste, hand lotion, etc.

That movie that you've been waiting to see. . . "allowed to go to moving pictures once a week with permission from the home office." You must learn to carry a rabbit's foot, mute, unlightable prayers, and cross your fingers in the hope that there won't be two exceptionally good movies in one week.

Sunday is a Day of Quiet . . . "No musical instruments used during church hours and no rascals on Sunday?" But never fear, after your uproarious week end of social life the rest will indeed be welcome. "Gentlemen visitors are allowed on Friday and Sunday from 7:00 to 9:45 (Gasp?) p.m. All engagements must be approved at the office of the 'Head of the Home.' Oh, I must warn you that the telephone is not to be used for social conversation. Also there are some things that are definitely taboo. . . positively forbidden—

1. Card playing
2. Going into the Farmville post office or railroad station
3. Being joined at the soda fountain or on the streets (Horror?) by a young man or young men.

Movies On Saturday . . . Perhaps 1926 would be a better destination in our flight. . . Yes, I see by the guide book that things are looking up? Gentlemen callers may now stay fifteen minutes longer, but only on Saturday and Sunday from 7:00 until 10:00 not a word about socializing verbally on the phone. Also you are allowed to go to the moving pictures on Saturday night if accompanied by a chaperon, or in groups of four or more unchaperoned (i.e., not in a line). Juniors and Seniors may have permission to go down town at any time during the day—on business.

No? Not 1926? Let's try 1928-1929. . . Students must not:
1. Ride without permission
2. Go into the Farmville post office or railroad station.
3. Be joined at the soda fountain or on the streets (Terrible?) by young men.
4. Sit on the wall in front of the Student Building.
5. Smoking is absolutely forbidden!!

6. Girls are not permitted to use the Tasse-Freezes were the only breaks for the dunned codes. "Now, these plays — 'Antigone' and 'Bald Soprano' aren't taking as much work on scenery," the friendly junior relates. "Lighting will make this set!"

By Mary Ann Lipford

When the curtain comes up on a new play in Jarman, backstage here sit in all fairness, they seldom sit weary workers, each deriving satisfaction from a different phase of the production that begins to unfold before the eyes of an always-precipitate audience.

For Barbara Gray Martin, the biggest reward is "the when you hear that first applause for the set." Scenery crew chief of Longwood Players for two years now, "B. G." was appointed, as are all crew chiefs, by the executive committee of Longwood Players after she had been recommended by the technical director on the basis of previous experience and ability. Barbara Gray is responsible for gathering a capable crew, so she is constantly on the lookout for Longwooders with imagination—and an abundance of energy. The freshman class is her main target in the talent hunt. Of course, the work and time spent on a play will depend upon the complexity of the set required, B. G. explains. "We painted like mad on 'Admirable Critchton' . . . had as many people as we had paint brushes." We worked till one every night the week before the play, and even got up Sunday morning to work." Quick trips to the Tasse-Freezes were the only breaks for the dunned codes. "Now, these plays — 'Antigone' and 'Bald Soprano' aren't taking as much work on scenery," the friendly junior relates. "Lighting will make this set!"

Assisted Stage Manager . . . Asked how she became drawn into the fascinating "world" of backstage Jarman, B. G. recalls that her freshman year she was on the scenery crew and assisted the stage manager. She admits to actual performance in one play, "I was a maid!" she laughs and tells. "All I did was shift scenery. . . I didn't have a single line."

Stage manager for this week's coming plays is Kaye Godwin. With an impressive record of successful class productions and large-scale plays to her credit, Kaye is well prepared to take on the responsibilities Jarman entails. When the director instructs his actors on blocking weeks ago, Kaye jotted down this information for it is her job to remind them if they get off blocking. On the night of actual performance, the Farmville native will sit at her desk on stage right and await the cue to begin from the director sitting in the balcony. Phone make communication possible between Kaye and music, sound, and lights. She cues actors for entrance via a microphone rigged up in the Green Room.

Familiar Figure . . . If anyone ever had grease paint in her blood, it is Kaye. A familiar figure at Jarman just about any time, she says her satisfaction comes from " . . . well, just everything!"

Jean Bristow is always enthused, it seems, over her latest work in lighting. Lighting crew chief for Longwood Players, the sophomore from Richmond is especially excited about the newest plays. She speaks eagerly of the special lighting that has been set up to give odd effects, like deep shadows on the actors' faces. "This play is just made for light!" she says with a sparkle. "We've switched off proportional dimming so we can control each dimmer manually." What would happen if someone switched the board back to proportional dimming? Will a panicky laugh? "I don't know what would happen!"

Helps With Lights . . . In addition to her faithful work with Longwood Players, Jean has helped with lights for water lions. She says she found her work on productions the most satisfying, perhaps because they were the most challenging. She is quick to praise her competent (Continued on page 3)

Students Show Thoughtlessness Toward Speaker

Dear Editor:

Apparently the students who attended the lecture last Thursday morning were afraid "teacher" might make them stand in the corner during recess or something if they were late to class.

Before Dr. Mollegen was through speaking to us, approximately half the audience, one by one, in a rapid succession disappeared. I suppose the speaker realized that it was class time but the fact remains that it was quite impolite of these girls to walk out in the middle of the lecture.

Professors Excuse . . . Don't you think that the professors will excuse you for something like an assembly running over time. If not, then you must think we have some terribly narrow-minded professors. It's much easier to explain to a professor the reason for your tardiness than it is to explain rude behavior to a guest speaker.

We should keep this in mind the next time we have a guest speaker.

A Watch Bird

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS BY BOBER

"HOWS HE COMING ALONG ON TH' COURSE DESCRIPTIONS FOR TH' NEW CATALOG?"

A Progressive Student

(Continued on page 3)

Timely Topics

President Supports New Recreation Bill

President Kennedy has urged a new land purchase program to furnish more recreation area.

Cost Estimated. The cost is estimated between $500 million and one billion dollars to be spent during the next eight years. This would give more recreation space for the United States population.

Summit Urged. Premier Khrushchev of the Soviet Union urged again for an 18 nation summit meeting to be held to discuss disarmament. Attempts by Khrushchev, not long ago, were turned down by Western leaders.

Glenn Predicts. Astronaut John Glenn, Jr., recently prophesied that there would come a time when space "automobiles" will be used. These vehicles would change from one orbit to another at the wish of the driver. These "automobiles" would have to be more powerful than the Friendship 7.

Also dealing with space, scientists of the Soviet Union claim that before a space craft could land on the moon, more must be learned about the earth's surface.

Testing Resumed. President Kennedy has released the information that the United States will continue with nuclear testing.

The President sent a bill to Congress urging for health insurance for the aging. A billion dollar boost in social security taxes would be necessary to accomplish this.

Various Factors Of Personality Affect Grades

Educators have long puzzled over the student who scores high on tests of academic ability and yet flounders badly when he gets into the classroom. Research by Dr. W. Leslie Barnette, Jr., Director of the University of Buffalo's Vocational Counseling Center and Professor of Psychology, has shown that measurement of certain personality characteristics may become a key factor in the prediction of student academic performance.

To gain a new perspective on potential academic ability, Professor Barnette tested for a personality trait cluster known to psychologists as "achievement motivation." Achievement motivation, explains Professor Barnette, "is the confidence a student has in his ability to succeed and to surmount hurdles, his desire to compete and grow in an academic atmosphere, and his motivation to achieve." These are examples of personality traits not measured by the usual college aptitude tests.

Test Devised. Professor Barnette tested 186 students here who were applying for academic scholarships in addition to being given the usual college aptitude tests involving reasoning ability and reading Point Ratio Scale, constructed skills, a test called the Honor by Professor Harrison Gough of the University of California, was also included.

This is a simple measure of the motivation to achieve which asks the student to respond to a series of some thirty statements as they are descriptive of himself. "I was a slow learner in school; people pretend to care about one another more than they really do; I have a tendency to give up easily when I meet difficult problems; These are examples of test items which would be answered as false by the student with high achievement motivation. High-achieving students would typically answer as true: I seem to be about as capable and smart as most others around me.

Results Show. In checking the results from this short personality inventory, Professor Barnette found that 49 of the students tested were eventually awarded academic scholarships here whereas 137 who showed up for this scholarship testing were not given scholarships. The results of this personality measure were not available to the Scholarship Committee when they made these scholarship awards. The students who received academic scholarships scored 50 per cent higher on this Honor Point Ratio scale than did the non-recipients.

To broaden the scope of his sample, Professor Barnette then selected a cross section of 175 freshmen who had completed two semesters' work with a full academic load. He found that those who scored high on the achievement motivation measure almost invariably had average grades or above (C or better for the entire freshman year), while those who scored low were very unpredictable regarding academic

Wall Announces Eighty Students On Dean's List

Eighty students who have a 2.5 average or more, have been named to the Dean's List "for their superior scholarship during the first semester of the 1961-62 session."

Those students having Dean's List averages are: Sue Carolyn Agee, from Buckingham; Janet Anderson, Buena Vista; Jo Leslie Andrews, Farmville; Donna Arnold, Sarasota Springs, New York; Sandra Ashworth, Danville; Sue Beardmore, Cincinnati, Ohio; Ruby Bell, Richmond; Martha Bergeron, Richmond; Mary Bodine, Richmond; Dana Brewer, Alexandria; Martha Brown, Oceana; Nancy Burton, South Boston; Jo Ann Cartwright, Newport News; Neddie Chapman, Blacksburg; Jo Anne Cohen, Richmond; Barbara Ann Cole, Danville; Margaret Cooke, Columbia; Anne Cordie, Victoria; Dottie Cox, Richmond; Charlotte Craig, Norfolk; Susan Crisman, Winchester; and Mrs. Frances Gravatt Crowder, Blackstone.

Others Outstanding. Other outstanding students are: Lucille Davenport, from Portsmouth; Linda Dennis, Wachapreague; Ellen Dupuy, Winchester; Carolyn Elliott, Hopewell; Rebecca Evans, Lame grades. "In other words, some of the low scorers did OK, but there were others who fell below average," Professor Barnette explained.

Scale Rates. The psychologist's conclusion was that a person scoring low in achievement motivation will be a far greater risk than the student who scores high. The high scorers typically turn in an average or better academic performance. From this personality measure, Professor Barnette drew certain conclusions on what might be expected of students who scored at different levels on this achievement motivation inventory.

Psychologists feel that personality factors may be a key in predicting college success rather than such things as intelligence, such as College Board scores. By sampling significant personality characteristics, such as the desire to achieve or be successful, predictions concerning a student's future college performance will be improved.

Such information will not only provide college counselors with helpful information concerning student problems, but can also be considerable aid to a Scholarship Committee in picking "winners."

NEWLY ACQUIRED COLOR CUP stands on display in Rotunda.

Association Provides New Class Color Cup

A new color cup bought recently by the Athletic Association should inspire stronger color competition and class participation. The results of competition in the last two years have already been engraved on the new cup. One engraving is the Green and White's victory of 1959-1960. The other engraving is the red and white victory of 1960-1961. The Red and Whites now have the honor of displaying their ribbons on the color cup. This year's result will upset this one-to-one balance.

The last color cup engraved with results from 1945 to 1959 shows that the Green and Whites won 6 during these 14 years.

At present the Red and Whites have won 10 points in hockey, while the Green and Whites won 8 competitions including Crosse: Helen Fox, Richmond; Katie Fulton, Weyers Cave; Edith Fuqua, Roanoke; Dot Goodman, Cumberland; Peggy Green, Newport News; Mrs. Shirley Saunders, Harwood, Dillwyn; Pat Hickley, Richmond; Vicki Holland, Ridgeway; Betty Howard, Arlington; Nancy Huffaker, Norfolk; Carolyn Hughes, Winchester; Gayle Jones, Elkton; Virginia Kafer, Arlington; and Virginia Lee Kemp, Hampton.

Other of these outstanding students include: Mary Catherine Lancaster, from Farmville; Elaine Lohr, Ashland; Shelby Jean Lucy, Lawrenceville; Betty MacCorkie, Lexington; Charlotte McClung, Farmville; Louise Manks, Stamford; Mary Byrd Micou, Chester; Dibby Mohr, Lynchburg; Ewell Alexander, Dillwyn; Gloria Newton, Arvonia; Morag Nocher, Lynnhaven; Nancy Oldfield, Newport News; Patti O'Neill, Colonial Beach; Judy Partee, Norfolk; Jane Pennington, Buckingham; Merle Perkins, Natural Bridge; Bill Pleasants, Cartersville; Jean Pollard, Richmond; and Peggy Pond, Portsmouth.

Girls Students. Also named to Dean's List were: Jackie Poole, from Newport News; Mrs. Joyce Grizzard Porter, Drewryville; Mrs. Ann Ransom Puller, Newport News; Mary Catherine Pulley, Windsor; Bonnie Nance, Timonium, Maryland; Betty Ann Rex, Charlottesville; Lurline Robertson, Chatham; Susan Rollins, Charleston, West Virginia; Taylor Rowell, Surry; Jo Savage, Danville; Emily Smith, Bowling Green; Chandler Story, Norfolk; Lela Sullivan, Petersburg; Ginny Summers, Schuyler; Lucy Swink, Blacksburg; Helen Gene Taylor, Wachapreague; Lucy Trotter, Richmond; Ray Turner, Isla of Wight; Kay Willis, Portsmouth; and Signe Young, Roanoke.

5 points in tennis matches. There is still plenty of opportunities for both sides to gain points in the remaining sports of basketball and volleyball, tennis and archery matches and in the swimming meet in April.

The new color cup will be on special display for a few days in the Rotunda. To avoid class friction, both red and white and green and white ribbons will be on the cup, since it is new. The A. A. Council asks that students not tamper with the display in any way.

Old Restrictions Prove Rigorous In Modern Age

(Continued from page 2)

"U-Drive-It", whatever they are.

Callers Entertained. All gentlemen callers are to be entertained in the parlors of the main building. Students must be on campus at 6:00 p.m. (sounds familiar?) In the Spring and in the fall students may walk on High Street west as far as (Go west, young man, go west!) the pavement extends (they were building even then?) and on Buffalo Street as far as Appomattox Street until 7:20 p.m. Students must not leave the college or return to the college with young men without special permission from the President or the Head of the Home.

I note a strange look on your faces... "disheveled, relief, horror?" Or is it just fatigue after the big weekend? Grab your billfold and dash down to the College Shop, the Tea Room, or the Pile and Ten... Forget the "good old days"... And enjoy scenic Farmville, historic Longwood College, have a cigarette!

Jarman Crews Receive Reward For Hard Work

(Continued from page 3)

crew for this week: Connie Birch, Rusty Stephenson, and Jackie Walker.

When do Jean's efforts really reap their reward? She thinks it's the night of dress rehearsal. "When everything goes well, you know it's going to be okay the next night, and when you have a bad rehearsal... well, everything's going to be all right then too!" Jean continues. "Opening night is sort of bad for me because I know after that one time, it'll never be again."

All three of these Longwood Players share the feeling of one who said, "When the curtain goes over there, you just can't get away."

Varsity Basketball Co-Captains Chosen

Juniors Sandra Phlegar and Lindy Hatch are the co-captains of this year's varsity basketball team.

Plays Varied Sports. Sandra is a physical education major from Forest. This is her third year playing forward with the varsity team. She has also played hockey for two years and has been on the tennis team of which she is now manager. She plays class volleyball, and serves on the Athletic Association Council. Sandra served as treasurer of the council for 1960-61.

Hatch Active. Biology major, Lindy Hatch is often to be found hibernating in the science building. Lindy, also a forward, has been on the basketball team since she was a freshman. Lindy, also, plays hockey and has for two years been named to the "Tidewater Hockey Team. She plays varsity tennis and is class volleyball manager. Lindy has been on the Athletic Association Council for three years.

Concerning their basketball team this year, Sandra said,

Longwood Team Totals 10-1 Tally As Finals Near

Longwood's Varsity Hoopsters, directed Hollins College Friday, February 23, in a game played at Roanoke. Both Longwood teams secured easy victories over their adversaries in well-fought games.

The starting six for Longwood included forwards Sandy Phlegar, Doris Harrison, and Lindy Hatch. Guarding the opponent's goal were Shirley Carr, Ann Sneed, and Jean Still.

On Saturday, March 3, the Blue and White team traveled to Westhampton College in Richmond, but only the second team returned to Longwood victorious. Although the first game was a battle to the end on the part of both teams, playing in the first game were Ann Sneed, Shirley Carr, Norma Eady, Lindy Hatch, Doris Harrison, Sandy Phlegar, Carrie Lee Wilson, Lurline Robertson and Kathy Dean, and Melody Saunders.

In the second game, Longwood retaliated to win. With two games left to be played in the season, the basketball squad has already attained a reputable record of ten wins and only one loss.

The team is well-rounded and works together well. Lindy served and added, "The team has good height, too."

Future Success

Both girls agreed that since all but three players are sophomores or freshmen, the team should continue to do well in the next few seasons. Sandra and Lindy also said that they would like to see more school support for the team for the remaining months.

Wisconsin Wins; Giants In Lead For 1961 Season

Wisconsin's Badgers upset Ohio State, the number one college team, 6-47, Saturday night. The Badger victory marks the first loss for the Buckeyes in twenty-seven games. The Badgers, beaten three times in conference play, took the lead through the first period, but lost out the remainder of the game.

The New York Giants topped the National Football League in pass interception for the 1961 season with a 8.5 per cent on thirty-three steals of three hundred eighty-six passes thrown by opponents. The Eastern Conference champions had a league-leading total of five hundred twenty-six yards returned from the interceptions. Dallas was second in the team standings, with a 7.7 mark after taking twenty-five of three hundred twenty-six passes thrown.

When Roger Maris hit sixty-one homers and Mickey Mantle hit fifty-four for the New York Yankees in 1961, it marked the first time two players, on the same club had each hit more than fifty homers in the same season.

The University of Virginia lacrosse team, which won over the co-champion Army in the final game of the 1961 season, will begin a twelve-game schedule against Australia's all-star team March 15.

It's almost spring and the baseball clubs are in training: the Detroit Tigers at Lakeland, Florida; the Pittsburgh Pirates at Fort Meyers; the Washington Senators at Fort Belvoir; and the Boston Red Sox at Scottsdale, Arizona.

Patronize The Rotunda Advertisers	Spring Is Here and so are Bobbie Brook's Dresses Co-Ordinates (Blouses, Shorts, &amp; Shirts) All at the DOROTHY MAY STORE
Get Your Paperbacks at Your COLLEGE BOOK STORE	DISC PINS Sterling Silver $3.30 FTI and Gold Filled Florentine $3.85 Monogrammed 50c MARTIN THE JEWELER
Visit Both "Racs" Try Cinnamon Toast for a Treat in the Senior "Rac"	SOUTHSIDE SUNDRY CO., INC. 8 Exposures Developed and Printed ..... 39c 12 Exposures ..... 55c

National Drama Society Issues Membership Bids

Alpha Psi Omega, a national honorary drama fraternity, has issued bids to twelve Longwood students.

Those receiving bids were Liz Detelman, senior; Jean Lowry, Scottie MacGregor, and Barbara Grey Martin, juniors; Sophomores Betty Ann Atkinson, Jean Bristol, Carla McNair, Barbara Fields, Kaye Godwin, Paul O'Neill, Peg Waldo, and Sandy Waugh.

To become a member of Alpha Psi Omega one must have had two major roles and one minor role in plays presented or four minor roles. Also eligible for membership are those who have done extensive work in other play production fields.

Requires

A major role consists of playing a leading part in a play or acting as technical director, stage manager, or assistant director. A minor role means a supporting role in a play, a position as a crew chief, or other active work not considered as a crew chief's position.

Officers of Longwood's chapter, Iota Tau, are Ginnia Chapman, president; Mary Lou Wood, Vice-president; Ann Smith, secretary; and Ann Wells, treasurer.

The purpose of this organization is to promote interest in the dramatic arts through active leadership.

Smith College Instates Study; Cancels Classes

Papers, examinations, and nearly all classes were suspended at Smith College for a three week period, January 8-26 for an experiment in education designated the "interim session." The new program replaces a reading and examination period which formerly followed the Christmas holidays. This year, midyear examinations were held immediately before the holidays began.

The new program was designed to afford all students an opportunity for independent study and discussion, to permit juniors and seniors to investigate special topics in the field of the major, and to assist freshmen and sophomores in determining the field of their major interest.

To serve the latter purpose, two lecture - discussion series, involving the various disciplines and their relationships, were organized primarily for underclassmen but were also open to the whole student body. The subjects of the lecture series: "China - An Area Study" and "Radioactivity." Both were designed for students with no background in these areas.

Auditing System Found Valuable; Credits Earned

In progressive action indicative of the new academic emphasis at Dickinson College the faculty altered radically the system of auditing courses. Under the new system "any student in good academic standing and who is registered for 16 or more hours during a semester may, with the approval of his advisor and of the instructor concerned, register to audit up to 6 additional hours."

"A student who is so auditing may after the end of six class weeks and prior to the beginning of the fourth class week before examinations, by written approval of both his instructor and advisor, convert his audit registration to regular registration credits."

This forward looking program, it was emphasized here, will allow the most gifted students to audit six hours and perhaps change them to course credit during the semester. It is possible that the gifted students will be able to graduate with several additional credit hours.

The less gifted student who wishes to broaden his liberal arts horizons and is not certain of his academic ability in a course which interest him can audit it and, if he finds himself capable of the added work load, add the course for credit. It can be assumed that individual faculty members will have policies concerning holidays during the period the student is auditing.

presented are Midway High School, Church Road; Montvale High School, Montvale; Nelson County High School, Lovington; Powhatan High School, Powhatan; Prince George High School, Prince George; Renau High School, Gretna; and Sunnyside-McKenny High School, McKenney.

Journal Prints Critique By Gibb

Carson Gibb, assistant professor of English at Longwood College, had an article published in the February, 1962 issue of "The Explicator," a critical journal published at the University of South Carolina. His article deals with Robert Frost's "Mending Wall."

Mr. Gibb pointed out in his interpretation that walls both divide and unite men, and that good fences do make good neighbors.

This is Mr. Gibb's first year at Longwood. He is originally from Philadelphia, and came here from Lafayette College in Easton, Pennsylvania. He received his A.B. degree from Wesleyan University in Connecticut and his Master of Arts degree from the University of Pennsylvania.

Simkins Honored For Contributing To Encyclopedia

Dr. Francis B. Simkins, head of the history department, has been honored with a citation from the editors of the Encyclopedia Britannica.

The citation was presented to him for his contributions to these reference books. Among the things he has written for them are articles about Danville, Charlottesville, Roanoke, Lynchburg, and Alexandria.

College Campus Site For Annual Business Meet

The Future Business Leaders of America, District II, will have their tenth regional meeting in the Student Building, Saturday, March 10.

Delegates from 17 high schools of the region are expected. After registration, delegates will compete for prizes and the chance to enter in the state and National competitions. The contests will include bulletin board, essay, exhibit, Mr. and Miss FBLA, parliamentary law, public speaking, spelling, and a scrapbook.

Officers Elected

New regional FBLA officers will be elected and installed for the coming year in the afternoon session. The Longwood Business Education Department will supervise the day's activities.

Representatives from FBLA chapters are expected to attend from Appomattox High School, Appomattox; Ivan River High School, Ringgold; E. C. Glass, Lynchburg; Huguenot High School, Richmond; George Washington High School, Danville; George Wythe High School, Richmond; Halifax High School, South Boston; Hopewell High School, Hopewell; and Manchester High School, Richmond.

Outs Represented

Other schools which will be represented

MORTIMER ADLER INSPIRES students with talk in yesterday's assembly.

Future Language Labs Forsee Advancements

The nation's first dial-selector and monitoring system for language learning has been put to use in the University of Michigan's Language Laboratory. With the installation of the dial-selector, most of the longer lessons are being cut into shorter segments, according to Erwin M. Hamson, acting director of the Language Laboratory.

In the past, some lessons were 30 to 50 minutes long, making it necessary for the student to wait 25 to 45 minutes before hearing and working on the 5 or 6 minute segment he wished to hear. In addition, Hamson points out, the new system will not only help prevent students from learning faulty habits, but also will improve the speed and quality of language learning.

The dial-selector works much the same way as a person dialing his telephone for correct time or weather information. A language student, wearing earphones, selects his lesson by simply dialing a number of continuously playing tape recordings of the language he is studying. All of the Laboratory's 145 booths will be equipped with this device.

At the same time, the monitoring system will enable trained linguists in a remote controlled monitoring booth to listen to each student's work, individually or to a group of students simultaneously. If a student makes a mistake, the monitor cuts into the student's circuit for two-way conversation to tell him of his error. The monitoring will be available for at least 50 booths.

The dial-selector system "offers a definite teaching advantage as it enables each student to proceed at his own pace, dialing a new program only after he has mastered the present one," according to Dean Roger W. Heyns of the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts.

Editors Choose Staff Members For Fiscal Year

(Continued from page 1)

ditor, Ginny Gilmore.

Griggs Serves

Claire Griggs, an elementary education major from Danville, served as assistant editor of the 1962 Virginian. She is a member of Delta Zeta social sorority, was a Top Rat for 1961, and served as co-chairman of Freshman Production. She has participated in preparations for Circus and is now playing class basketball.

Business manager Carol Benton is now serving as assistant business manager of both the Virginian and the Colonade. A business education major from Norfolk, Carol is a member of Sigma Kappa social sorority, and the Student Education Association. The Virginian staff for 1962 is as yet undecided.

Kappa Delta Pi Initiates Eight

On February 14, 1962, The Beta Epsilon chapter of Kappa Delta Pi initiated eight new girls. They were Diana Eukstian, Susan Lane, Elaine Lohr, Gloria Newton, Jean Pollard, Lucy Swink, Frances Webster, Martha Ellen Wyatt.

Kappa Delta Pi is an honorary society for students in education. A student must be in the upper fifth of the student body in order to receive a bid.

Longwood Host To Noted Guest; Speaks On God

(Continued from page 1)

requires a coexistent cause implies the existence of that cause. (2) whatever exists is either necessary or contingent. (3) existence of a contingent being implies coexistence of the cause of its existence—its cause must exist with it every moment. The fourth proposition was his original proposition — no contingent being can be the extrinsic cause of anything that needs an extrinsic cause; therefore, no contingent being can be caused to exist by another contingent. (5) contingent beings do exist; therefore, a necessary being does exist.

"Rational Persuasion"

The proof of his premises are logically valid. The degree to which one understands them, Adler called a degree of rational persuasion. Rational persuasion is less than knowledge, but goes beyond the evidence. Only the mind that understands those premises can know of God's existence. This mind is a rational, philosophical mind working with evidence—not a mind which relies on faith alone.

Copies of Dr. Adler's speech will be available from the public relations office after March 26.

Why Newspapers Are Like Women

—because . . .
—they are bold face type
—they have form
—they always have the last word
—they are well worth looking over —back numbers are not in demand
—they carry news wherever they go
—they have a great deal of influence
—you can't believe everything they say
—if they know anything they usually tell it
—they are never afraid to speak their minds

'Who's Who'

(Continued from page 1)

Bachelor of Arts from Susquehanna University and his degree of Master of Arts and his Ph.D. from Columbia University. He joined the Longwood faculty in 1946.

Dr. Wesley, assistant professor of education, received his degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Doctor of Education from Western Reserve University and his degree of Master of Arts from Ohio State University. He came to Longwood in 1960.

Dr. Wilson, as social professor of education and Dean of women, received her degree of Bachelor of Science from State Teachers College, Slippery Rock, Penn., her degree of Master of Education from Syracuse University, and her Ed.D. from University of Pittsburgh. She joined the Longwood College faculty and was appointed dean of women in 1957.

State Theatre FARMVILLE, VA.

NOW PLAYING THRU SAT.

SUN.-MON.-TUES.

MARCH 11-12-13

Jennifer Jones

Jason Roberts, Jr.

'Tender Is The Night'

WED.-THURS.-FRI.-SAT.

MARCH 14-15-16-17

Debbie Reynolds

HOLLYWOOD BEAUTY SHOP

Let Us Assist You With Your

Hair Tinting .....	$5.00 and up
Shampoo and Set .....	$1.00
Hair Cuts .....	$1.00
Permanents including Shampoo, Cut, Style, Set .....	$5.00

CALL EX 2-9019

GREAT BETWEEN COURSES!

Get that refreshing new feeling with Coke!

Bottled under authority of The Coca-Cola Company by FOSTER BOTTLING CO., INC.

LYNCHBURG BOTTLING WORKS, Lynchburg, Va.

1962 is as yet undecided.

College Commemorates 78 Years Of Education

On March 31, Longwood will observe its annual Founders Day, in celebration of the 78th year since the founding of Longwood in March, 1884. Anyone ever having attended this college is invited back, especially members of the graduating classes ending with the numbers "2" or "7", such as 1942, 1947, etc.

Program Scheduled

At 11:15 on March 31, there will be a Founders Day program in Jarman Auditorium for the visiting alumnae. To begin the program, there will be an academic procession by the faculty and seniors. The Reverend James C. Murphy, pastor of the Farmville Methodist Church, will give the invocation. Jo Savage, President of Student Government Association, and Mrs. J. Carter Hanes, President of the Alumnae Association, will extend greetings to the alumnae.

Cumtut to Perform

Afterwards, Dr. Joanne Cumtut, harpsichordist, will play selections on the harpsichord. Dr. George Jeffers, Professor of Natural Sciences, will introduce the speaker, Dr. Ruth Wilson. Dr. Wilson's address will be "Changing Patterns in the Higher Education of Women."

The faculty of Longwood College on the Founders Day Committee are Mrs. Eleanor W. Bobbitt, chairman; Miss Mary Nichols, Mrs. Elizabeth S. Jones, Miss Rebecca L. Brockenbrough, Miss Virginia Wall, Dr. George W. Jeffers, and Miss Ruth Wilson.

Events Listed

The following is a schedule of events for Founders' Day Week-end: Friday, March 30, 2:00-9:00 p.m., registration in the Rotunda with members of Granddaughters' Club, as hostesses, 8:05 p.m., dinner in the college dining hall; 8:00 p.m., class reunions. Saturday, March 31, 8:00-11:15 p.m., registration in the Rotunda; 9:00-10:30 a.m., coffee at the Alumnae House with the Farmville Alumnae Chapter as hostesses; 11:15-12:15 p.m., Founders Day Program in Jarman Hall; 12:20-1:10 p.m., Alumnae Association business meeting. At 1:15 p.m., the Alumnae Luncheon will be held in the college dining hall; 2:30 p.m., Reunion festivities; 4:00-5:00 p.m., Open House at the President's home; and at 6:05 p.m., dinner in the dining hall. At 8:00 p.m. in Jarman Auditorium, a program will be presented with the Longwood College Choir, Dr. Joanne Cumtut, harpsichordist, and the Richmond String Quartet. The final event, at 9:45 p.m., will be Open House at the Alumnae House.

Representatives From Farmville Attend Meeting

Miss Jennelle Spear and Miss Mary P. Nichols attended a meeting of the American Association of University Women March 8-10. This South Atlantic Conference of the A.A.U.W. took place at the Williamsburg Lodge in Williamsburg, Virginia. Miss Spear and Miss Nichols were delegates from the Farmville Branch of A.A.U.W. Miss Spear also representing Longwood as a corporate delegate.

Purposes Stated

The purpose of this organization is to maintain high standards of education by keeping up with and being aware of various problems; also to take the action whenever possible. Some of the topics discussed at this convention were: "Automation and Effects on Labor and Industry," "Urban Growth," "Structure and Organization Change in A. A. U. W."

Many States Attend

The states represented at this particular conference included: Florida, Georgia, West Virginia, Virginia, North Carolina, and South Carolina.

Colonnade Contest

The deadline for the Colonnade's annual literary contest is March 31. Short stories and poetry may be submitted to Rebecca Wilburn or any member of the staff. Prizes of $10 and $5 are being offered in each category.

Herskovits Talks To LC Students In Jarman Hall

By Nancy Mowrey

Dr. Melville J. Herskovits, professor of anthropology at Northwestern University, scholar, and author of many books, spoke Thursday on "Culture and Human Behavior" to a Longwood audience.

Defines Culture

Dr. Herskovits first defined culture as the totality of learned behavior or the man-made part of the environment, as distinguished from higher learning and the arts.

He says homo sapiens are distinguished from lower animals by speech and the use of tools. Man can use symbols which are developed or learned; other animals use instinctive signs. All men are of a single species, which is evidenced by their mutual fertility. Nothing can be developed by one society that any other society cannot learn with in individual capacity. The consciousness of culture was also pointed out by Dr. Herskovits. There is very little in American culture that has not come from elsewhere.

"Enculturation," as defined by Herskovits, is the process by which one grows into the culture of his society. It includes everything from learning religious tenets to how to tie one's shoelaces; it determines the way of life of a culture.

Questions Raised

Dr. Herskovits raised the question, "What are the eternal truths or virtues?" His answer was that every culture has its own concepts of the infinite. (Continued on page 4)

'Players' To Enact 'Richard III' Drama

Actors Present Classical Drama Of Shakespeare

"Now is the winter of our discontent made glorious summer . . . With these words, Players of Washington D.C. will open the performance of "Richard III" tomorrow March 15, in Jarman Auditorium. This artist Series Program begins at 8 p.m. Richard III is one of William Shakespeare's earliest plays. In it are action, poetry, intrigue, and conspiracy, making it one of the author's most melodramatic works.

The story traces the bloody ascent of Richard, Duke of Gloucester, to the throne of England.

Lead Role

Starring in the lead role of the tragedy is John Starrs, an actor from Chicago. He is an alumnus of Loyola University in Chicago. This is his first year with the Players, although he has had much experience in classic productions.

Besides Richard III, he has been in "Hamlet," "The Taming of the Shrew," "Othello," and "Much Ado About Nothing." Last summer he received considerable acclaim from both critics and audiences for his participation in the classical repertory of the Cincinnati Shakespeare Festival.

The Players Company is an outgrowth of the Speech and Drama Department of Catholic University in Washington, D. C. Since its beginning in 1949 the group has made twelve annual tours of the United States.

Last spring they toured Europe for six weeks, presenting "The Merchant of Venice." This tour was sponsored by the Department of Defense. The trip marked the eighth year of an overseas tour. With this record, the group has received the distinction of being the longest-running national classical repertory company in America in the 20th Century.

Longwood Visit

The troupe will be playing here tomorrow as part of a full-season tour of thirty-six states. The tour season runs from late September until May.

Besides the presentation of "Richard III," the group has given such plays as "King Lear," "Othello," "Hamlet and Juliet," and "Macbeth."

Harnack Speaks To English Class

Novelist Curtis Harnack will be at Longwood March 29 to talk to the creative writing class taught by Mr. Ellington White.

At present, Mr. Harnack is teaching English at Sarah Lawrence College. He is the author of two novels, the latest one, "Love and the Silent," was published last month. He has also written short stories.

Mr. Harnack wife, Hortense Collier, is also an author and will be on campus with her husband.

Short story writer, David Jenkins, will speak to the creative writing class in April.

APPEARING AS RICHARD III Thursday night in the Players Incorporated production is John Starrs.

Seniors Reviews Talk Delivered By Adler

By Ann Smith

Last Tuesday, March 6, Dr. Mortimer Adler spoke to the student body about the existence of God, which he set out to prove by logical reasoning.

Reactions Sought

In an effort to find out the student body reaction to this rather difficult and certainly different subject, a poll was conducted by the Rotunda. Both Page Tolleson a senior, and Dudley Brooks, a junior felt Dr.

Adler contradicted himself. Both girls said he began his speech by saying he was going to speak on and prove the existence of the God of the western world; however, Page and Dudley both thought he spoke entirely about a philosophical God, Judy Detrich, a senior, said, "He was one of the few philosophers I have ever heard of read who presented their subject matter so concretely instead of so highly abstract. It was the first time in a long time I'd listened so hard to a speaker. He motivated you to listen." Mary Sue Loftis Rose, a junior, said, "I was challenged to keep up with him by the very way he introduced the speech." Diane Leavitt, also a junior, said she thought Dr. Adler was trying to prove the existence of God to everyone—believers and non-believers.

Speech Organized

She Beadmore, a senior, felt that Dr. Adler had his speech so well organized that it was fairly easy to follow his points. Diane Brewer and Sharon Coulter, sophomores, felt his speech was very interesting and very rewarding to listen to. Both Sharon and Dana felt it was a challenge to follow him. Sharon said, "It was very rewarding to know you were thinking with a great philosopher." Dale Cannon, a freshman, said she thought Dr. Adler's speech rather deep and that she needed more background in philosophy and logic to really understand what he was saying. Many students echoed Dale's feelings. Many students said they tried to follow Dr. Adler's speech but found it very difficult because of the lack of background involving both his concepts and philosophical vocabulary.

Lecture Taped

A tape of Dr. Adler's speech will be played in the Virginia Room at 6:30 tonight for anyone who is interested in hearing his speech again.

retary; and Lois Obenahin, treasurer.

Leah Heads, "Y." Elaine Loeb has been chosen to head the YWCA for the coming year. She is a math major from Ashland. Among Elaine's many activities with the "Y" are, serving on Freshman Commission for one year and the "Y" cabinet for two years. She is vice-president of the Wesley Foundation this year, and co-

(Continued on page 4)

College Elects New Organizations Heads

Last Wednesday, March 7, the new heads of the Athletic Association, House Council, and YWCA were elected, with the remaining officers for these organizations being elected Monday night.

Barnett Elected

Wanda Barnett, a history and social sciences major, from Charlottesville, is the incoming president for House Council. Wanda has served as a dorm president for two years, acted as co-chairman for publicly Junior dance, and participated in all Circuses and Productions. She is currently serving as historian for Zeta Tau Alpha, and as junior representative to the Virginia.

Wanda, obviously pleased with her election and riotous to interview, said, "All those who voted against me, beware, cause if I find out who you are, I'll give you a call-down."

Makes Plans

In a more serious mood, Wanda outlined her future hopes for House Council. "I'm just beginning to realize all the responsibilities that go along with it, and I hope that we will be able to provide a strong and fair House Council respected by the student body. This will be possible only through the cooperation of the students."

The other officers for House Council are Peggy Hughes, vice-president; Lynette Oslen, secretary; and Joan Perry, treasurer.

Stewart To Serve

Barbara Stewart, from Roanoke, has been elected to serve as president of the AA. Her sports activities include playing varsity hockey for two years, and class hockey and volleyball for one year, serving on the AA council for two years, this year serving as student chairman for the Tidewater hockey tournament held here. Her other activities include working as light crew chief and light designer for this year and last, member of Alpha Psi Omega, the dramatic honorary, and serving as treasurer of the Longwood Players. Barbara said of her election, "I feel very honored, and I hope I can prove worthy of the confidence placed in me by the student body."

BARBARA STEWART

The newly-elected officers for the AA are Betty Lou Dunn, vice president; Gay Taylor, secretary; and Lois Obenahin, treasurer.

Leah Heads, "Y." Elaine Loeb has been chosen to head the YWCA for the coming year. She is a math major from Ashland. Among Elaine's many activities with the "Y" are, serving on Freshman Commission for one year and the "Y" cabinet for two years. She is vice-president of the Wesley Foundation this year, and co-

ELAINE LOEB

WANDA BARNETT

Professor Kalif To Direct Panel On Social Work

George T. Kalif, Director of the School of Social Work at the Richmond Professional Institute, will lead a panel discussion in the Student Lounge on Thursday, March 29 at 1 p.m.

Role Discussed

On the panel will be representatives from the Family Service Agency, the State Department of Welfare and Institutions, the Child Care Bureau, and a social case worker. The panel will discuss the social worker's role in each of these fields including the training required of the social worker, the quality and type of people he will be working with, and the work he will be doing.

There will be a discussion by the audience and the panel at the end of the program. Everyone is invited to attend.

Sister Classes Vie For Points In Two Sports

By Ginny Gilmore

Old class rivalries are once again thrown into play as both the class basketball and volleyball tournaments are held simultaneously this week. For the winning sister classes of each tournament, ten points will be awarded towards the Color Cup. Color Cup point standings are now ten for the Red and White Classes and ten for the Green and Whites.

Volleyball Tonight

Co-chairmen of class volleyball this year are Susan Coe, a junior physical education major from Clinton, New Jersey, and Lindy Hatch, a junior biology major from Falls Church.

The volleyball games started Monday and will end tomorrow. At press time, the wins stood as follows: Freshmen, two games; Sophomores, one game; Juniors, no games; Seniors two games. The results of games will be added to these for the final results. Each class played two games of 6 minute halves against each of the other three classes. Two points were given for each game won and will be tallied at the end of the tournament to avoid confusion. The junior class will play the senior class tomorrow to complete the tournament.

Basketball Near End

Two sophomores, Lois Obenshain and Brenda Isbel, were co-chairmen for the basketball tournament. Lois, from Roanoke, is a physical education major, while Brenda, a biology major, comes from Portsmouth.

The basketball tournament will be completed tonight as the Freshmen are pitted against their archrivals, the sophomores. The wins for basketball

—Staff Photo
LONGWOOD VARSITY BASKETBALLER adds two points to the home team score during game with William and Mary.

Timely Topics

Recent Storm Hits 600 Miles Of Coast

The coastal areas of Virginia and neighboring states were hit hard last week by one of the worst storms recorded. The storm was caused by the position of the moon and a strong northeast wind. The storm affected the coast for a length of 600 miles.

The West is believed to have ready a plan for disarmament to offer the Soviet Union. This plan would not contain terms as strong as those in the plan presented last year.

Premier Khrushchev put be-so far are: Freshmen, one game. Sophomores, one game; Juniors, no games; Seniors, one game. The game results will be added to complete this list and the results of both tournaments will be announced tomorrow.

Swim Meet Near

The swimming meet, which will be held at 4:00 p.m., April 19, is the next color cup event to be held. Competition is already keen, but everyone is urged to support her class.

for the Central Committee Monday morning his "take a chance" bill. This is a program to provide for the feeding of the people of the Soviet Union. Khrushchev has called for more farm output.

Khrushchev voiced his disfavor at the U. S. proposal to resume nuclear testing. He indicated that this proposal would affect the forthcoming Geneva Conference.

The public appearance of Francis Powers, the U2 pilot captured and imprisoned in Russia, was held last Tuesday. Powers explained how he heard an explosion and then his plane fell into Russian territory. Powers will remain an employee of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Hundreds of Indian peasants of Peru were in rebellion against government troops last Sunday.

The Virginia General Assembly last Saturday. Among the developments this session were a resolution urging congressional disapproval of United States plans to purchase 100 United Nations bonds, final approval of a two-year state budget totaling nearly 1.5 billion dollars, provisions for a program by which vigorous economic growth can be pursued in the state, and legislation requiring motorists to submit to a blood alcohol test if arrested for drunken driving.

Seniors and Seniors Busy

The sophomore and senior classes led in summer employment with 60 per cent of the members in each class engaging in jobs of some sort. The juniors and freshmen followed with 53 per cent and 52 per cent working respectively.

Swim Meet

The annual swimming meet will take place soon. All students interested in participating are encouraged by the Meet chairmen to get in the required number of practices in order to be eligible to swim for their classes.

Hunt For Props Proves Hilarious

(Continued from page 2)
and bump around! Mrs. Motley helps us out, too, by suggesting where we can find things.

Unusual Props

And some of the props Jean and Patti have had to track down border on the hilarious. Unable to find an entire life-size mounted deer demanded by "Admirable Crichton's" script,

Patti resourcefully brought a deer skin from home, stuffed it with newspaper, and made a head. "It was the funniest looking deer there's ever been!" laughed Patti. Jean finally found a Turkish water pipe for "Arms and the Man" and the girls garnered up real criminal-type handcuffs, as Patti calls them, for "Antigone." She is at her funniest, though, telling of the honest - to - goodness live chickens that had to be plucked on stage for "Crichton." "We'd go down to Economy and get involved warmly in Rome on Saturday. They are in Rome on a 33-day private visit during which they will visit India and Pakistan.

Variety Of Summer Activities Revealed By Students In Survey

The recent survey taken by the Public Relations office on the summer activities of Longwood students produced the following information: Approximately 56 per cent of the entire student body had summer jobs which earned for them an estimated $150,000. Twenty per cent of the girls went to school and the remaining 24 per cent either relaxed at home or traveled.

Seniors and Seniors Busy

The sophomore and senior classes led in summer employment with 60 per cent of the members in each class engaging in jobs of some sort. The juniors and freshmen followed with 53 per cent and 52 per cent working respectively.

Types of work varied from baby sitting to supervising day camps to working in various government agencies. Eighty-two percent of the girls earned less than $600, ten girls earned between $600 and $1000, and three made over a thousand dollars. The average salary was $225.

Various Colleges

Colleges attended ranged from Longwood to the University of Puerto Rico, and included a wide variety of courses. The students who spent their summers traveling covered territory from Mexico to Canada and Puerto Rico. Several students also attended the Methodist Student Movement Conference in Urbana, Illinois.

Season Ends

W & M Bows To LC; Record Stands 12-1

By Barbara Agee

Despite injuries and absences, the Longwood Varsity walked away from their court twice victorious over William and Mary Saturday, bringing their season to an end with an excellent 12-1 record.

Starting the first game for the victors were Sandra Phagar, Doris Harrison, and Gay Taylor playing forwards, and Linda Suduth, Jean Sull, and Shirley Carr as guards.

First Quarter Close

The first quarter was tight, with little shooting on either end of the court. The quarter score was a low 6-5 in favor of Longwood. In the second quarter, the game broke with Longwood dumping in 13 more points to W & M's additional two baskets and three charity points. The score at the half was Longwood 19, W & M 7.

Playing in the second quarter and for the rest of the game as forwards were Lurline Robertson, Sandra Phagar, and Kathy Dean. Guards for the period were the same as those in the first quarter with Melodie Saunders and Norma Eudy substituting in the last few minutes of the half for Carr and the injured Sull.

Longwood Scores

During the third stanza Longwood bucketed 15 more points to W & M's 7, turning the game into another L.C. scoring festival. The final quarter proved that when the home team scored 22 points to the visiting team's three, making the final score of the first game 36-22.

Second Game

The second game was practically a duplicate of the first. Starters were Lurline Robertson, Doris Harrison, and Kathy Dean as forwards, with Ann Sneed, Shirley Carr and Brenda Isbel as guards. Excellent rebounding on the part of the guards and fast-moving forwards were the keys to Longwood's wins. At the quarter the score was a wide 17-4 in favor of Longwood.

In the second quarter the same guards remained in the game, and the forwards were Doris Harrison, Lois Obenshain, and Barbara Agee. W & M scored only two points in the quarter and the half ended with a score of 26-6.

three little chickens every day just before 4:00, and Mr. Miles would kill 'em just before rehearsal."

Though the work at Jarman is hard, it's never boring, as the adventures of props and costume crew chiefs will tell you, backed up by a verification from the technical director. Something special is bound to be found in the work of which all four people said during their interviews, "Of everything at Longwood, working in Jarman has meant the most to me."

LONGWOOD

JEWELERS

Disc Pins
Sterling & Gold Filled
Monogrammed Free
$2.00

Longwood Sweatshirts

For Spring!

Get Yours Now
On Sale At
LANSCOTT'S

Gay Taylor went in for Agee in the third stanza and Sandra Ashworth substituted for Shirley Carr. The quarter ended with Longwood ahead 22-15.

Playing in the last quarter were forwards Gay Taylor, Lois Obenshain, and Barbara Agee, and guards Sharon Sarver, Brenda Isbel, and Norma Eudy. The home team scored fourteen points to the visitors' five, and the game ended 46-20.

"Miss B" and "Miss B" unanimously agreed, "We had a wonderful season. The scores, themselves show that much. The team has been excellent to work with. Next year's team should be excellent, as we stand to lose only one player."

Archers Ready Target Practice For Competition

By Lefty Snyder

Varsity Archery Managers Betty Lou Dunn and Chris Longstreet have announced tentative plans for the beginning of the archery season. On Thursday at 3:00 p.m., there will be a meeting in Miss Brockmeyer's office of all those girls interested in shooting for the Varsity Archery Team.

Although no definite dates have been scheduled for varsity games, matches with Randolph-Macon Woman's College, Westhampton College, Mary Washington College, and RPI, are being planned.

Local Changed

Due to the construction behind the library, archery will be shot on the hockey field this season. Although this will limit the times at which extra periods and class practices will be available, extra periods are hoped to be scheduled on Saturdays. All of those girls enrolled in an archery class will automatically shoot for her respective color in the race for the Color Cup; and, anyone else wishing to compete in the class archery matches is asked to contact Miss "B." before beginning practice.

Co-managers Chris and Betty Lou expect a large turnout Thursday for Varsity Archery tours, as well as a successful archery season.

Come In and See

Our Denim Outfits
at the
DOROTHY MAY
STORE

NEWMAN'S

MEN'S SHOP
Traditional Styles
111 Main Street
Farmville, Va.

See Our
Ladies' Sportswear

SOUTHSIDE SUNDRY CO., INC.

8 Exposures Developed and Printed ..... 39c
12 Exposures ..... 55c

—Staff Photo
WARMING UP for color cup competition, sister classes volleyball.

A Want-ad

The Rotunda needs staff writers. Anyone interested in absorbing, entertaining, informative work for an excellent, superior, progressive publication, apply within. Experience not necessary. Satisfaction guaranteed.

College Coeds Train For Post In Peace Corps

To counteract the propaganda purpose of the Russian government's Friendship University, Morningside College has inaugurated its own "Peace Corps in Reverse" program. Under the new international Student Program, 17 African students are receiving training free of charge.

Operated on an accelerated schedule which will enable a student to be graduated with a Bachelor's degree in three calendar years, the new program is being sponsored by the Board of Missions of The Methodist Church and the Division of Higher Education of The Methodist Board of Education.

The Board of Missions has agreed to pay the board and room costs for twenty student years for the three-year period of the program. This will total $1,000 per student per year, or a total of $60,000 per board and room for the entire group. The Division of Higher Education will cover the cost of the coordinator, to cost $6,000 per year. All transportation costs to the campus and return to the African countries will be cared for by the Board of Missions.

To offset all other living costs, Morningside has secured for each student a sponsoring church service club, or individual. Credit is given to each church through the Conference Treasurer, classifying the gifts etc. This has been authorized by the North Iowa Annual Conference. Morningside hopes that other colleges and churches across the land will see the possibility of such a program and endorse it.

Longwood Group To Judge Meet

Miss Suzanne Barnett of the English Department will participate in the judging of a forensics meet and a one-act play festival at Stony Creek High School on April 7. Two Longwood students will also participate in the judging. They are Nan Hovey-King, a sophomore speech therapy major, and Sharon Coulter, a Junior English major. They will be judging oral reading, public speaking and oral reading.

Around The Campi

The basketball team deserves recognition from the student body for their outstanding work in representing Longwood with their commendable 12-1 record.

From the M. C. V. newspaper comes a quote which might well explain some difficulties which students have at times, "Directions are what you read to find out what you did wrong."

Another statement from M. C. V. also deserves consideration in view of recent articles on patriotism. "Who but Americans can afford chairs that vibrate and cars that don't!"

Complaints are being made about student tardiness to meals and assemblies. "Wonder what would happen if there were no set time to come to meals? Moss confusion, maybe? And then, again, wonder what would happen if everybody showed up on time as they were supposed to?"

BIG SCOOP! IMPORTANT! FLASH! For those students who have been so conscientious in their studies, keeping the nose undistracted to the grindstone, we would like to let you know—Spring Vacation begins this Saturday!

Have a nice Spring Vacation!

—Staff

Radio Workshop Prepares Tapes For Large Area

The Radio Workshop of Longwood recently increased the distribution of tapes prepared for the program "Longwood Speaks." This program has, prior to this time, been carried at 4:00 p.m. by radio station WUDL exclusively. Starting Sunday, March 18, at 12:30, WWSV in Creve will present "Longwood Speaks."

Programs Staggered
Programs will be staggered in order that each station will present a different show. A series of tapes has also been distributed to the radio station at Union Theological Seminary in Richmond. They will be presented at 10:00 p.m. on Thursday nights. The series will begin on April 19.

Next Presentation
The next presentation of "Longwood Speaks" will be March 18. Farmville's WFLC will carry Dr. O. William Rhodenbier's address, "Our Life and God's Plan," and WWSV will present "The Emerging World," a speech by India's Prime Minister Chatterjee.

Tuesdays at 4:00 WFLC carries "Listening at Longwood," a student production live from Longwood. The next program, a discussion of Founder's Day, will be March 27.

Direction Away From Vocational

Commenting on changes instituted at Lafayette College this year, President K. Ronald Berghel states in his recently released annual report that "Fundamentally the direction was away from early commitment to vocational choice." A.B. students no longer will be asked to select the general fields of their majors. They will, rather, pursue the completion of a set of requirements common to all candidates for the Bachelor of Arts degree.

In fitting the new general requirements, additional emphasis was given to science. All students, regardless of their field of interest, will now complete two years of science, one of which must be a laboratory science. They must also take either a year of mathematics or a year of logic, including symbolic logic.

In addition to demonstrating competence in the writing of English, students must take two years in the humanities, one year of which must be in literature. All students must complete work equal to two year courses in the social disciplines, one year of which shall be devoted to study in this area with historical perspective.

DURING LONG PERIOD of precipitation, Longwood's halls were lined with umbrellas between meals and classes.

Magazine Holds Views Of English Professors

A report on the "Professional Career of the College English Teacher: Present Practices and Some Desirable Principles" appears in the March 1962 issue of the National Council of Teachers of English. The 22 page study, which will be issued also as a separate publication by the NCTE, was prepared by a committee of 17 college English professors including Dr. R. E. Simonini, Jr., of Longwood.

Report Advises
The report outlines what the college English teacher in general

Wilson Gives Talk On Proposed Plans To Honor Society

Dr. Ruth B. Wilson, professor of education and Dean of Women here, was guest speaker at the Delta Kappa Gamma meeting in Richmond on March 8. Delta Kappa Gamma is a National Honorary Society of women teachers. Miss Wilson spoke to the three local chapters—Beta, Alpha Alpha, and Alpha Epsilon—on the "Long Range Plans for the Delta Kappa Gamma Society."

Fourth Term
Miss Wilson is serving her fourth term as president of the local chapter and is now the first vice president of the state chapter. This position has given her the opportunity to speak to several groups about the proposed changes in structure of the society.

The International Convention of Delta Kappa Gamma will be held August 6-11 in Philadelphia. There the members will vote on long range plans for the society. Miss Wilson's job is to acquaint the members with the exact nature of the proposed changes in order that they will know the purpose of the Convention.

Summer School Catalogue Issued

The new catalogs for the summer session are now available in the Public Relations Office.

Calendar Included
The catalog contains a calendar of events for the summer session and information on the graduate and undergraduate programs, the programs of study leading to degrees, and the courses offered by the various departments for the summer.

Approximately 6000 copies of the new catalog have been printed, and copies have been sent to all teachers in the area.

Copies in PKO
Any student who wishes a copy may secure it in the Public Relations Office. If there is anyone to whom a student wishes to have the catalog mailed, she should notify the Public Relations office and have them mail it for her.

eral does in the various academic ranks, how he is selected for appointment, what qualifications he must possess to gain tenure, and what he must do to be promoted from one rank to another. The report also stresses some desirable principles for making selection, retention, and advancement more judicious.

Ph.D. Necessary
The NCTE study observes "It is apparent that the Ph.D. degree is, as it should be, the one most important qualification for promotion in college English."

Promotion to the upper ranks should be made without the doctoral degree only when other accomplishments of equal magnitude have been clearly demonstrated. The prospective college teacher of English should not be led to believe by the presently rising student enrollments or by some predicted effects thereof that he is likely to progress far in the profession without the Ph.D. degree."

Promotion Important
Other factors regarding retention and promotion emphasized in the report are teaching effectiveness, scholarship and creative publication—"perhaps the best way of indicating intellectual growth and activity"—activity in professional societies, and institutional activity.

In that few detailed studies of this kind have been made, the NCTE hopes that most of these observations can be applied to fields other than English and that this publication will be of service to college administrators.

Meeker, Schlegel Attend Conclave

Dr. Richard K. Meeker, Associate Professor of English, and Dr. Marvin W. Schlegel, Professor of History and Social Sciences, attended the Virginia Conference of the American Association of University Professors at Randolph-Macon Woman's College, Lynchburg, on Saturday, March 10.

Students Elect YWCA Officers For Fiscal Year

(Continued from page 1)

chairman of the big sister-little sister committees. In other areas Elaine has served as a member of Student Government, Kappa Delta Pi, Lynchos Society, and Alpha Sigma Tau. Elaine said of her election, "Right now I feel very incapable, but it's a definite challenge."

The other officers chosen to lead the YWCA are Margaret Vaughn as vice-president, Betty Jean Russell as secretary, Mary Anne Lipford as treasurer, and Sandra Craig as freshman counselor.

Choir Gives Concert To Visiting Alumnae

Dr. John L. Molnar, head of the Music Department, will conduct the Longwood Choir in a concert on March 31 in the Jarman Auditorium. The concert, which will be presented in honor of visiting alumnae for Founder's Day, will begin at 8 p.m.

The first selection the Choir will present is "Sacerdotes Domini" by William Byrd. Translated, this means "Praise the Father."

Next the Choir will sing "Stabat Mater" by Pergolesi. Soloists will be Madeline MacNeil, Marilyn Anthony, Kathleen Shuber and Carol Pierce. The words to this song are taken from a poem written in the 15th Century. Pergolesi's tune is only one of many using these words. His is often sung on Good Friday.

Handel's Coronation Anthem will follow. This was written in the early 18th Century for the coronation of George II. This and Stabat Mater are both found in the Thomas Jefferson collection of music at the University of Virginia.

Singing Quartette
Accompanying the Choir in these two numbers will be the Wendt Singing Quartette. This is composed of members of the Richmond Symphony Artists.

Mr. Frank Wendt, assistant concert master, plays the 1st violin. Dorothy LeGrand plays the 2nd violin. Playing viola will be Alphonse Gagne, and Virginia Wendt will play the cello.

Dr. Joanne Curmitt of Longwood will play the harpsichord in this group.

On Sunday, April 8, the Choir will present this same program in Williamsburg at Bruton Parish Church.

Speaker Replies To Questions From Audience

(Continued from page 1)

truths. The question "Should we not fight for the eternal verities?" came from the audience and was answered simply by "Which ones?"

Enculturation is tied in with emotion. There are no people who do not think something in their environment is not fit for human consumption. Dr. Herskovits' suggestion that earthworms be eaten evoked laughter from the audience—an emotional response to something enculturation has instilled as repugnant.

Ethnocentrism Universal
Ethnocentrism—the idea that one's own culture is to be preferred to all others—is almost universal, but it is "benevolent" in that most people are willing to let other groups practice their own cultures, but with the firm belief that they are less desirable. Colonialism imposed European culture on weaker societies. This "social Darwinism"—domination by the superior civilization—which denies the validity of whole cultures, is very demoralizing.

Themes Chosen
The skit themes are: Alpha Gamma Delta, "A Western Sigma Alpha"; Alpha Sigma Alpha, "Sing Along with the Alpha Sigma"; Alpha Sigma Tau, "Across the Sea with AST's"; Delta Zeta, "Delta Zetas' Spring Fever"; Kappa Delta, "College Daze"; Phi Mu, "Songs of the Flowers"; Sigma Kappa, "Sigma Kappa Weekend"; Sigma Sigma Sigma, "Sigmans and Shamrocks"; Zeta Tau Alpha, "Zeta Mating Call."

The admission is free and the student body is invited.

Come In and See
The New
Longwood Chords

at
MARTIN
THE JEWELER

Handel's Coronation Anthem will follow. This was written in the early 18th Century for the coronation of George II. This and Stabat Mater are both found in the Thomas Jefferson collection of music at the University of Virginia.

Singing Quartette
Accompanying the Choir in these two numbers will be the Wendt Singing Quartette. This is composed of members of the Richmond Symphony Artists.

Mr. Frank Wendt, assistant concert master, plays the 1st violin. Dorothy LeGrand plays the 2nd violin. Playing viola will be Alphonse Gagne, and Virginia Wendt will play the cello.

Dr. Joanne Curmitt of Longwood will play the harpsichord in this group.

On Sunday, April 8, the Choir will present this same program in Williamsburg at Bruton Parish Church.

East Tennessee State College recently entered a new era of scholastic emphasis with the installation of two academic honor societies on the campus. Chapters of Scroll and Scribe were installed in a special assembly program. The purpose of the societies is to encourage and recognize high scholastic attainment among freshman students and to set an intellectual tone on the campus. Both are open to all freshmen who earn a grade average of 3.5 or an A for the first two quarters of the freshman year.

Scroll is the petitioning group for Alpha Lambda Delta, national honorary academic society for women and Scribe is the petitioning group for Phi Eta Sigma, national honorary academic society for men.

Scroll activities include sponsoring a tea or reception for freshmen women who, during the first quarter of the school year, have been outstanding in scholarship and have shown promise of meeting chapter requirements for membership upon completion of two quarters of academic work; serving as freshman advisers in the freshman orientation program; and sponsoring lectures, forums and panels of an educational nature.

Sororities Reveal Panhellenic Plans

The annual Panhellenic Sing will be held in Jarman Auditorium on March 29 at 7 p.m. This is a "tart toward Greek Week, a new understanding of the Panhellenic organization which will begin two weeks later.

All Participate
Longwood's nine social sororities will be taking part, each one presenting a 10 minute skit.

Each sorority has picked a chairman or co-chairman to take care of the organization of the skits. Scenery and costumes have been left to the discretion of the individual sorority. The Junior Panhellenic is taking care of all publicity.

Themes Chosen
The skit themes are: Alpha Gamma Delta, "A Western Sigma Alpha"; Alpha Sigma Alpha, "Sing Along with the Alpha Sigma"; Alpha Sigma Tau, "Across the Sea with AST's"; Delta Zeta, "Delta Zetas' Spring Fever"; Kappa Delta, "College Daze"; Phi Mu, "Songs of the Flowers"; Sigma Kappa, "Sigma Kappa Weekend"; Sigma Sigma Sigma, "Sigmans and Shamrocks"; Zeta Tau Alpha, "Zeta Mating Call."

The admission is free and the student body is invited.

Come In and See
The New
Longwood Chords

at
MARTIN
THE JEWELER

Come In and See
The New
Longwood Chords

at
MARTIN
THE JEWELER

Come In and See
The New
Longwood Chords

at
MARTIN
THE JEWELER

Come In and See
The New
Longwood Chords

at
MARTIN
THE JEWELER

Come In and See
The New
Longwood Chords

at
MARTIN
THE JEWELER

Come In and See
The New
Longwood Chords

at
MARTIN
THE JEWELER

Surprise
In This Issue

Also Read
'Richard III' Review

The Rotunda

VOLUME XVI

Longwood College, Farmville, Va., April 4, 1962

No. 16

Lankfords To Leave Longwood For Advisory Post In Pakistan

By Doris Smith

Dacca, East Pakistan, is the destination of President and Mrs. Lankford when they leave Longwood in the second week of June. Dr. Lankford has been granted a twelve month leave of absence to serve as chairman of the Dacca Advisory Team.

Replaced By Wyzal

Mr. Fred O. Wyzal, State Coordinator of Teacher Education from Richmond, will take Dr. Lankford's place as president of Longwood for next year. Mr. Wyzal has much knowledge about Longwood and knows many of the faculty members. He is an Emory and Henry undergraduate and a University of Virginia graduate.

Duties Varied

Some of Dr. Lankford's duties in East Pakistan will be to serve as a liaison between Chicago advisors and the government of East Pakistan, to represent Chicago advisors in Dacca in relations with the general chairman of the University of Chicago advisors in Pakistan, and to coordinate the work of the Chicago Dacca team. He will also serve as chief advisor to the Director of the Education Extension Center in Dacca, to the Director of Public Instruction and to other officials in government and education in East Pakistan. He will provide leadership for the development of the programs for in-service education of teachers and school officials and for development of twenty pilot schools in that wing.

First Trip Ahead

Dr. Lankford said he was looking forward to this trip especially since it will be his first trip out of the United States, although he has visited Canada.

On the way to Dacca, the Lankfords are traveling through the Orient and on their return trip they want to travel through the Middle East and Europe. President Lankford also expressed a desire to see India on a brief vacation from his post in East Pakistan.

The Ford Foundation sponsors this group from the University of Chicago. They also have similar arrangements with Harvard in the field of government, Michigan State in agriculture, and with the University of Oklahoma in home economics. They also bring over people from Pakistan to study our way of life.

Pakistan Divided

President Lankford will be living in a country that has been divided into two geographical units, separated from each other by India. In East Pakistan there is heavy rainfall that makes this area green and rich in sub-tropical products. Eighty-six per cent of the people of Pakistan are Moslems, with Hindus, Christians, Buddhists and others comprising the rest of the population.

The main languages are Urdu in West Pakistan and Bengali in East Pakistan. Dr. Lankford said he should not have any trouble with language as English is used extensively in all official and commercial circles, in courts of law and as the medium of instruction for higher education.

Objectives Varied

Dr. Lankford will be working under the second five-year plan drawn up by the Planning Commission. The broad objectives of the Plan are to promote the welfare of the people and to raise the standard of living of the common man by developing natural resources, by making adequate provisions for the basic necessities of life and insuring opportunities for employment by providing increased educational facilities, which is Dr. Lankford's responsibility.

Noted Authors Lecture To LC English Classes

During the past week, three noted literary artists have visited and lectured at Longwood College. Curtis Hamrick and his wife, who writes under the name of Hortense Callisher, spoke on prose writing March 29 and 30. Stanley Kunitz, a Pulitzer Prize-winner, was published early this year, was presided by THE WORK OF AN ANCIENT HAND.

Hortense Callisher has taught at literary workshops at State University of Iowa. Although primarily a short story writer, she has published one novel, FALSE ENTRY.

Kunitz Harvard Graduate

Mr. Kunitz, after graduating summa cum laude from Harvard University, taught at Bennington College, the Potsdam, N. Y., State Teachers College, the New School in New York City and is now teaching in New York's famous Poetry Center. Internationally, he has also been visiting poet and professor at University of Washington, at Queens College, and at Brandeis University.

In 1959, Mr. Kunitz received a Pulitzer Prize for his "Selected Poems, 1928-1958." Besides his volumes of poetry, "Intellectual Things" and "Passport to the War," he has also edited several standard works of literary reference, including "Twentieth Century Authors."

Receives Awards

Some of his many honors include a two-year grant from the Ford Foundation, the Oscar Blumenthal Prize, a Guggenheim Fellowship, the Amy Lowell Poetry Travelling Fellowship, the Levinson Prize of Poetry Magazine, a National Institute of Arts and Letters grant and others.

STANLEY KUNITZ

winning poet lectured here April 2 and 3.

Hamrick Teaching

Mr. Hamrick received his AB degree from Grinnell College and his MA degree from Columbia University. He has taught at Grinnell College, State University of Iowa, University of Tabriz, Iran, and is presently teaching at Sarah Lawrence College.

Several of Mr. Hamrick's short stories have appeared in "Prospective" and in "Antioch Review." LOVE AND BE SILENT, Mr. Hamrick's latest nov-

Rotunda

This week's six-page Rotunda is the result of an experiment. The expansion in size will not be instituted permanently, but is part of an attempt to give Longwood students a high-quality newspaper.

Wilburn Writes Poem Published In Anthology

Rebecca S. Wilburn, junior English major from Ripplemead, is one of 52 college poets represented in Riverside Poet 4, an anthology representing the winners of the fourth biennial poetry contest sponsored by the Riverside Church in New York City. Miss Wilburn's "Temple to my Idol" is one of 13 selections by writers from 43 colleges included in the volume.

Longwood is the only Virginia college represented in the volume and one of five Southern colleges.

Thousand Enter

Over 1000 entries from 167 colleges were selected and edited by Horace Gregory of Sarah Lawrence College, Josephine Miles of the University of California, and Howard Nemerov of Bennington College.

According to the introduction to the book, these Riverside poems were "skipped off the top of undergraduate poetry all over the United States." The editors go on to say that "One assumes that many of these poets have had good teaching, and that most have had good learning, that process whereby

Singer Dyer-Bennet To Entertain Here

By Diana Upshur

Thursday, April 5 in Lyceum, Longwood students will hear Richard Dyer-Bennet and his Spanish guitar.

Dyer-Bennet 'Unique'

"Unique" is a word that describes few artists, but all who have heard him know that it perfectly describes Richard Dyer-Bennet. Far more than a singer of folk songs, he is, indeed, a fine artist. Probably no one on the concert stage today has to a greater degree his extraordinary gift of communication. To spend an evening with Dyer-Bennet is to experience a wide range of emotions and to get to know a whole gallery of human beings—delightful, romantic, wicked, tragic and weird, but always fascinating.

Makes Records

He has made nine record albums to date, and his recording a poet acquires his craft without formal instruction simply by reading poetry and endlessly writing it. There is an impressive amount of talent visible in these poems, and a good deal of promise."

Wilburn Contributes

Rebecca Wilburn has been a frequent contributor of poetry and essays to the Colonnade, a Longwood student literary magazine, and was chosen editor of this publication for next year.

DYER-BENNET

of folk songs are outsold only by Burl Ives.

In addition to being a singer,

McCullers Book Subject Of Film

"Member of the Wedding," a movie based on a book and play by Carson McCullers, will be the second of the art films to be presented at Longwood. Students, dates, faculty and their families are invited to attend the showing of this film on Saturday, April 7 at 7:30 in Jarmar Auditorium. Admission is free.

The film is a lyric tragic-comedy about an adolescent tomboy, troubled by loneliness and rejection. The author, McCullers, says of her work, "The funniness and the grief are often co-existent in a single line..."

Actors in this movie of many moods are Julie Harris, Ethel Waters and Brandon deWilde. Fred Zinnemann directs and the producer is Stanley Kramer.

A review of the film made by the Berkeley Cinema Guild describes it as "... sharp and full of wit, yet with a lyricism rarely found on the screen..." No work has ever come so close to being the definitive work of the human comedy, Junior Division.

Two more films have been scheduled for showing here in the future.

Alpha Kappa Gamma Tapping Service Brings Six Members Into Joan Circle

By Ann Carroll

Alpha Kappa Gamma, national honorary leadership fraternity, tapped six new members on March 27 in Jarmar Auditorium. Those recognized were Ginnia Chapman, a senior, and Joann Pam Bullen, Sandra Freedman, Sherrill Hudlow, Elaine Lohr and Betty Stack.

Chapman Tapped

Ginnia Chapman is a senior math-English major from Salem. She is currently serving as president of Alpha Psi Omega, national honorary drama fraternity. She has served as treasurer, assistant director and technical director of Longwood Players. Last year Ginnia directed the one-act play, "Man of Destiny." She is president of Zeta Tau Alpha social sorority and is past president of Panhellenic. This year she was recognized in Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities.

Bullen Serves

Pam Bullen is from Coronado, California. Her major is art, in the field of secondary education. She is art editor for the Virginian, has served as treasurer for House Council this year, and as a sophomore, she was co-chairman for the Circus float. Presently she is serving as one of three publicity chairmen for May Day. Pam is vice president of Kappa Delta sorority. She was social service chairman during her sophomore year, and will hold the position of president for her senior year.

Freedman Active

Sandra Freedman is a math major from Norfolk. As a freshman, she was selected as a Top

Rat. She has membership in the Longwood Players and Lynchons, local honorary science society. She has served as treasurer of her junior class, and will hold this position for her senior class, also. As a member of Sigma Kappa sorority, she holds the position of treasurer.

Hudlow Tapped

Sherrill Hudlow of Salem is an English major. Her activities include past membership in the Spanish Club, a member of House Council, and as a sophomore, co-chairman of the Circus float. She is first vice-president of Alpha Sigma Alpha sorority. She has served as scrapbook chairman also. This year she was vice-president of Panhellenic and will be installed soon as president of treasurer.

Dean's List Student

Elaine Lohr is a math major from Ashland. Since her freshman year she has been a consistent Dean's List student. In her first year, she was on Freshman Commission. As a sophomore she was Animal Trainer for Circus. Elaine is a member of Longwood Players, S. E. A., Lynchons, Kappa Delta and Wesley Foundation. This year she was a junior representative to Student Government.

As a member of Alpha Sigma Tau sorority she is serving as assistant recording secretary. As a senior, she will preside over the YWCA.

Stack Serves

Betty Stack, an elementary education major, is from Hampton. Among her activities are work with the Screened Board, treasurer for two years of the Newman Club, and membership in Zeta Tau Alpha. She will be president of ZTA for the 1962-1963 school year. Betty has been on the Panhellenic Council two years. This year she served as chairman for the Greek Sing. Recently she was elected to serve as vice-president of Student Government.

(Continued on page 4)

Dormitory Construction Included In Plans For Future LC Budget

By Nancy Mowrey

The Longwood budget construction plans for 1962-1964, as announced recently by Dr. Lankford, include the building of a new dormitory. Also included is an increase in college operating costs. This will make possible a student and faculty salary increase.

Named for Cox

The new dormitory is to be named for Mary White Cox. Miss Cox was a Dean of Women here for many years. Dr. Lankford stated that this dormitory will house 200 students and will be located south of Wheeler. To be ready in February, 1964, Cox Hall will be designed similar to Wheeler.

'Ree' Becomes Dining Hall
Construction plans also include the conversion of the Main Rec into a dining hall. According to Dr. Lankford this will prevent eating in shifts. Until an activities building is possible, this area will serve a dual purpose. By taking down the tables, space will be provided for parties and dances. This change will be ready in the summer of 1963.

Other Changes Made

Other projects to be made under the two-year construction program include the conversion of the training school to college use, plus the addition of a new boiler, a smoke control system and the enclosure of the coal shed with grillwork. There is to be a new shop building. The cost of this existing shop will be used for parking.

Student Salaries Rise

A $200,000 increase in operating expenses this year will make possible a raise in the faculty salary scale. The student wage raise is yet undecided, but Dr. Lankford is hopeful that it will be a substantial one. Also, approximately five new members will be added to the faculty.

A $30 increase in tuition will become effective next year. Twenty-five dollars of this will be a graduation fee. Music fees are to be abolished. These charges will be absorbed into the tuition costs, as laboratory fees were in the past. According to Dr. Lankford, this is being done on the assumption that everyone will eventually take a course entailing such a fee.

Opinions Encouraged

The critique of Antigone and The Bald Soprano which appeared in the last issue of the Rotunda was the result of an editorial policy which the Rotunda will follow in the year to come.

The critique was controversial, but what critique is not? Is any form of expression of opinion ever acceptable to the whole audience? The Rotunda had three choices: to publish only lauding reviews, to present both sides of the picture, or to publish no reviews at all. We have chosen to face the issue by printing the only kind of review which is worthy of printing and reading — the review in which the critic can express her opinion.

The authors of the letters in this issue concerning the critique have a right to their own opinions and a right to express them in the paper because freedom of the press and freedom of thought guarantee this right. But the author of the critique had the same freedom of opinion and press. By pointing out this, we are not discouraging letters to the editor, by any means, because this is a most important way in which anyone in the college — be they students, faculty, administration — can represent themselves in the newspaper. As we have said many times in the past, the paper belongs to the college, not to a staff of a few. We do not want to give the impression that the staff represents letters which control material published in the Rotunda. We invite letters, because this is fulfilling the very purpose for which the newspaper exists and supporting an issue we are striving to promote — to get the student body to think about things that go on around campus, and not only to think, but to act. Actually, what pleases the staff the most is the knowledge that the students are reading the Rotunda, thinking about what they read, and reacting in an intelligent, mature, way.

Academics Vs. Activities

Please read letter by Sophomores, first. Dear Sophomores:

We believe there are many such students as you at Longwood. Listen to others talking around you, and you might be surprised to find that many others are interested in intellectual pursuits. These are the people who can help you. The students are the ones who must make the initial move and sustain the drive, making it known that the problem demands solution, if this is what they want.

That there are too many organizations and activities demanding our attention, is an often-discussed problem. Even the so-called people who do not have academic interests add their voices to the Gripe Against Too Many Activities, so they will help you in your crusade.

However, there is another side to the question. It may be the opinion of some that the decision to join or not to join in should be up to the individual student. She bears the responsibility of weeding out the organizations in which she will not participate, rather than making it an administration or student committee responsibility.

And there is yet another side to the question. Often-times those who, as a matter of principle, do not wish to participate in school activities, are unfairly begged, ordered, fussed out, pressured, generally beleaguered, by those who do, and who do not understand why others don't participate. In general, if one fails to conform in this area at Longwood, she is considered, "Out of it" and is not offered an understanding, an "open-minded ear," so to speak.

These are some of the facets of the problem to be faced. At this time, the Rotunda will not voice its opinion, for in doing so, we hope to leave the issue more open to student comment in forthcoming issues. We commend you for your interest in the problem, for the action taken by you in your letter, and for your determination to sustain your cause. We now await their comment.

The Rotunda

ESTABLISHED NOVEMBER 20, 1920

Published each week during the college year except during holidays and examination period by the students of Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia, Box 190.

Ann Age	Editor-in-Chief
Donna Humphreys	Managing Editor
Ann Carroll	Business Manager
Pat Rose	Feature Editor
Clayton Gilmore	Sports Editor
Lewisa Hopper	Desk Editor
Letty Jean Mouser	Art Editor
Phyllis Barnard	Photography
Ann Peters	Circulation Manager
Mary Ellen Duncan	Advertising Manager
Mary P. Nichols	Faculty Advisor

(Unmarked editorially written by the editor)

Members: Virginia Intercollegiate Press (Rating First Class), Columbia Scholarship Press Association (Rating First Place), Intercollegiate Press.

NEWS STAFF: Barbara Agee, Betty Ann Atkinson, Ellen Hixon, Leslie Purdie, Ann Carroll, Donna Gilmore, Maria Grant, Assistant Feature Editor; Pam Goodson, Donna Humphreys, Sandra Jamison, Jane Lacy, Mary Ann Landford, Joan Land, Mary Beth Olson, Virginia Price, Barbara Pulaski, Pat Rose, Lewisa Hopper, Ann Smith, Donna Smith, Letty Hopper, Assistant Sports Editor, Sue Thompson, Desk Editor, Assistant News Editor, Barbara Wilber.

CONTRIBUTORS: Barbara Agee, Betty Ann Atkinson, Ellen Hixon, Leslie Purdie, Ann Carroll, Donna Gilmore, Maria Grant, Assistant Feature Editor; Pam Goodson, Donna Humphreys, Sandra Jamison, Jane Lacy, Mary Ann Landford, Joan Land, Mary Beth Olson, Virginia Price, Barbara Pulaski, Pat Rose, Lewisa Hopper, Ann Smith, Donna Smith, Letty Hopper, Assistant Sports Editor, Sue Thompson, Desk Editor, Assistant News Editor, Barbara Wilber.

ADVERTISING STAFF: Elaine Hare, Joan Castello, Diana Deik, Ann Gaudin, Judith Haskins, Leslie Marshall, Verna Moore, Don Womack.

Entered as second class matter at the Post Office at Farmville, Virginia, under the Act of Congress on March 3, 1959. Represented for national advertising by the National Advertising Service. Printed by the Farmville Herald.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

"LEMONADE!!" WHAT A THOUGHTFUL SURPRISE, WORNAL, ON SUCH A HOT AFTERNOON!

Sophomores Question Scholastic Atmosphere

Dear Editor:

College, our high school guidance counselors promised, would entail many big and baffling decisions. Decisions? Well, in our two years here at this institute of higher learning, and we are being generous in our usage of this term—numerous decisions have been ours to make: Should we attend the Longwood Forum at 4 p.m.—or class volleyball practice? Should we "loyally" sign up to be a capering cult in Production—or save a bit of evening study time for that upcoming Greek Sing practice—or should we abandon the hope of studying for our math and Spanish tests tomorrow morning? Such dire decisions as these beset and bother us. A glance at our grades or at a one-sided intellectual conversation with a scholarly student from another school will readily indicate which side of our question usually wins.

All right! So one night with our future responsibilities as college graduates pricking our consciences, we firmly resolve to do some serious studying. Intellectually inspired, we refuse the offer to see the movie downtown, and head toward our room. Armed with books, notes, pencils, and determination, we find one important "something" missing. Where is the academic atmosphere? Certainly not in the smell of pizzas and popcorn cooking, or Johnny Mathis' voice singing! During study hour—ed, note!

We have given this matter serious consideration and are anxious to do much more than merely write a letter to the Rotunda, only to have it read, discussed, and dismissed by our fellow students, many of whom share our sentiments. We would like to know where to begin. Whom should we see? The class president? A student government representative? The Dean? Or Dr. Lankford?

Perhaps some other agitated students have some constructive suggestions on this problem. How Longwood could attain an academic atmosphere via a better balance of activities and studies.

We think this problem MAY, indeed, require one of the big decisions our counselors promised us two years ago in high school.

Ginny Sturm and Mary Ann Lipford.

Editor, Rotunda:

Re: Dr. Adler's lecture and the review of comments by Ann Smith in the Rotunda on March 14, 1962.

According to Misses Smith, Telleon, Brooks, and Leavitt, Dr. Adler was "trying to prove the existence of God" through logical reasoning. I suggest that this was not the case. While Mrs. Savage introduced his topic as, "Proof for the Existence of God," Dr. Adler himself said that he preferred that we think of his talk as "The Problem of Man's Efforts to Prove the Existence of God." The words "problem" and "efforts," I believe, dissipate any suggestion that Dr. Adler was "trying to prove anything."

As for contradicting himself, it also appears that this was not the case. As you will recall, Dr. Adler presented five propositions, drew a logically valid conclusion that "a necessary being does exist," then discussed the "problem," or irreconcilability of propositions four and five with the Christian concept of God. The conclusion he drew was that the nature and existence of the Christian God cannot be proved.

(Continued on page 4)

authors of the review did not seem to be those of the majority of the student body. Of course, the writers of this letter are in favor of free journalism, but not free slander.

Three Students
Ed Note: See editorial

Epistolary Excitement

Witnessed By Black Box

By Maria Grant

I am a black box. I live on the wall by the wires. Only one time in my whole life have I been really excited over some thing they'd found inside me.

One night some girls were bopping through the halls when they first noticed me. One of them said, "I wonder if any reporters accidentally put their articles in here, instead of in the 'Herald' box."

"Well, I don't know. Let's find out."

With that, they all trooped around the corner. A few minutes later they returned with a weapon, and proceeded to jam my lock. A grubby little hand reached in and pulled out my contents.

What it was wasn't what they were looking for at all. As a matter of fact, they all broke up over the articles they found. I could have told them all about it, but decided to keep my lid shut, and let them have some fun. Besides, it made me feel good to know people were at last taking a real interest in me, other than just dropping things in carelessly.

With the goodies they had just confiscated, the group dashed off. I figured I knew what they were up to — they were going to mail the year-old letters they'd found inside me.

Sure enough, a few weeks later, I heard it straight from the drink machine. He said that some girl received a letter and was rather confused — mainly because she had written the letter herself. It was originally sent to a boy at Fort Lee—last year. But the postmark was up-to-date. The girl couldn't figure out what was going on. Since the boy is now stationed in Germany, she found Lee, and since

(Continued on page 4)

Critic Reviews Play

By Betty Ann Atkinson

Once again, the Longwood student body had the pleasure of viewing the remarkable works of one of the finest classical repertory companies in the world. On March 15 in Jarman Hall, the University Players, Inc. presented to their enthralled audience, Shakespeare's Machiavellian hero, Richard III.

Without using the Stanford out edition, the company presented the masterpiece with only sixteen people. This in itself is amazing because the play calls for at least thirty speaking parts of some importance.

Starrs Plays "Richard" The character of Richard III was portrayed by John Starrs in a Romantic rhetorician style. Flamboyant of nature, Mr. Starrs acted as the first-and-brimstone DeSartrean tradition. His Richard was a first-class conniving devil played with cunning humor and the sudden earth-shattering screams traditional in the Richard convention.

Mr. Starrs reached a peak in humor with the outstanding bit of comic business of nonchalantly, yet grandly, crossing the upside-down Bible. The last scene showed Richard as his true character. Mr. Starrs, in the grandest manner, raved through the difficult passages showing the real tragedy of the play and evoking the emotion for tragedy of the highest form.

Except for a bit of a frog in his throat, which he handled very capably, his performance was indeed superb.

Emshoff Acts

The fascinating web of Romantic acting was furthered by Carol Emshoff in the part of Margaret, the actress and on-freelad lady. In many acting editions today, Margaret is omitted and only referred to. It is interesting that Players Inc. kept her and several other characters of the same circumstance and cut those which are usually left in. Miss Emshoff made a complete change of character later and played very convincingly the young Edward.

Amoroso Duke Portrayed George, Duke of Clarence was played by David Little. Using a more subjective approach to his characterization than Mr. Starrs, he delivered an outstanding reading of the arduous part. The dramatic sequence was, of course, his best; but it was also one of the highest, if not the highest peak in the play.

His style was unusual because it really rather underlined the heroic with a small amount of the grand manner and yet deeply subjective. At any rate, the results of his combination were superb. Mr. Little also played the Bishop of Ely. The most outstanding aspect of his characterization was his magnificent mannerisms: slight twitching of fingers and gentle shading, like that of a crochety old man. Mr. Little is a remarkably convincing actor.

Anne Portrayed Susan Walker, playing Lady Anne, was moving in her opening scene, but as the play developed, she did not. A capable actress technically, she failed to control her raspy inhalation of breath which broke whatever aesthetic distance she had established. In contrast, Carol Keefe, playing Elizabeth kept up a most impressive performance. Her voice, magnificent of force and melodic of nature was perfect for her royal characterization.

Knights Shakespearean The part of the First Murderer, played by John Knight, was handled in the flamboyant romantic tradition which is indeed an effective way of playing Shakespearean low comedy. Mr. Knight, as Richmond, was the handsome, dashing, hero, but that was all.

As a whole, Richard III had its brilliant spots, but it also had its low points. All the men employed traditional "Shakespearean voices," which after a fashion detracted from character, and made for too much uniformity. Lacking aesthetic distance, The applied Romantic acting styles on the parts of several of the actors were a refreshing change from the more subjective contemporary styles. It was inspiring to view the grand manner in a free and flowing sense. A word could be said about the comedy of Richard. Except for the last act, the Players perhaps depended a little too heavily on the comedy aspects of the characterization, but all such humorous allusions to Richard were dispelled in the final tragic act.

We, of Longwood, are fortunate, indeed, to have seen this memorable production, and it was of the highest merit. Certainly, it is good now and then to see a play and players of this much quality.

Article By Neveu

Printed In Journal

Dr. Maurice C. Neveu, assistant professor of natural sciences at Longwood, is the co-author of an article in the October, 1962, issue of the Journal of the American Chemical Society. The article is entitled "Deuterium Oxide Solvent Isotope Effects in the Radiochemical Reactions of Phenyl Esters."

Dr. Neveu came to the Longwood College faculty in September, 1960.

NBA Playoffs Continue, 'Stilt' Receives Trophy

As the National Basketball Association Eastern Playoffs continue between the Boston Celtics and the Philadelphia Warriors, Wil, "the Stilt," Chamberlain, of the Warriors received the trophy as the most Valuable Player in the N. B. A. Golf enthusiasts will be following two of golf's mightiest players, Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus, in the 38th Masters Tournament which opens Thursday in Augusta, Georgia.

The world's most famous jumping race, The Grand National Steeplechase, was won by Kilmore, a British entry, in a ten length victory. The winner was the first 2-year-old horse to capture the famed victory in 39 years. Back in the United States, racing fans will be able to watch the finest steeplechasers in America run next Saturday in the Deep Run Hunt Races held at the Atlantic Exposition Grounds in Richmond.

With the arrival of the baseball season comes the renewed interest in home run hitting. The personalities of two of the greatest sluggers, Roger Maris and Mickey Mantle, have been revealed by the Associated Press. Maris, who hit 61 homers last season, is "suspicious of strangers, loyal to his friends, and rather inarticulate." His teammate Mantle, who slugged 54 big ones, is "a fierce competitor and not given to philosophical dissertations."

In college sports, the University of Virginia's varsity won a 142 decision over the Alumni in the annual football game played last Saturday, and Randolph-Macon's baseball nine won their third out of four starts as the Yellow Jackets blanked Massachusetts 11-0.

Wilson To Attend Counselors' Meet

Dr. Ruth B. Wilson, professor of education and Dean of Women at Longwood, will be among the 1800 deans and advisors attending the convention of the National Association of Women Deans and Counselors to be held April 10-15 in Chicago. The theme of the convention will be "Creative Approaches to the World of Today."

Three Girls Judge 4-H Club Contest

Last Friday night three Longwood girls, Patsy Tolleson, Judy Tytus, and Barbara Poland, judged the Prince Edward County 4-H Public Speaking Contest. They were assisted by the Reverend Wilbur Maxwell of the Rice Presbyterian Church.

The contest is held annually by 4-H Clubs all over the nation to stimulate interest in and emphasize the importance of good public speaking. The winners on the county level are each awarded a trip to 4-H camp and they will compete in the district contest on April 30 to be held at Longwood.

Bailey, Phlegar Represent LC At Conference

Amnic Bailey and Sandra Phlegar will fly from Richmond Thursday to attend the 47th annual conference of the SIAAG.

The Southern Interscholastic Association of Student Government is designed to give leaders an opportunity to discuss various problems facing colleges to-day. This year's conference will be held at Mississippi State College for Women at Columbus, Mississippi. The theme is, "He who would govern others must first be master of himself."

The highlights of the conference will include a special concert by New Orleans' Patsy Fontaine and speeches by internationally known speakers. Both girls feel that this year's conference will be particularly advantageous in view of the recent legislative addition to our Student Government.

Girls schools from all parts of the South will be represented at the conference. Amnic and Sandra will return Sunday.

Visit Your COLLEGE BOOK STORE

for your
Art Supplies and Paperback Books

LONGWOOD JEWELERS

Come in and See
Our Longwood Charms
and
Ukes for $4.95

ARCHERY MANAGER C. LONGSTREET AND M. SAUNDERS, ready equipment for matches.

Longstreet Sets Season's Plans As Varsity Archery Teams Form

By Lewan Rippey

Chris Longstreet, a sophomore physical education major from Colonial Heights, is now serving as manager of archery on the 1962-63 Athletic Association council. An assistant manager will be chosen at a later date. Practice for varsity archery is now being held at 4 p.m. on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays. Anyone who has shot before is urged to come to the practices.

Meets Scheduled
Meets have been arranged with Randolph-Macon Women's College and Westhampton. Tentative plans for a meet with William and Mary are now under way.

In past years, Longwood has had a strong archery team, and the same should be true of this year's team. The return of some of the old members and the addition of many new ones should contribute toward making this a successful year.

Chris is also managing color archery, this year. A victory in archery will give ten points toward the Color Cup to the winning class color. Archery is played on a color basis, rather than on a class basis. The five green and whites and five red and whites with the highest scores at practices will make the two teams. Last year, the red and whites won archery competition.

Anyone can come to the practices, but those students enrolled in archery classes must have permission from Miss "B." Practice times for color archery have not been arranged, as yet, but they will be on the weekend. When final plans as to time and day are made, they will be announced.

Longwood Sweatshirts

For Spring!
Get Yours Now
On Sale At
LANSCOTT'S

NEWMAN'S
MEN'S SHOP
Traditional Styles
111 Main Street
Farmville, Va.

See Our
Ladies' Sportswear

facturing plants. The 24th underground nuclear test blast announced in the United States testing series was set off Saturday at the Atomic Energy Commission's test site in Nevada. This blast had a low equivalent, containing less than 20,000 tons of TNT.

Donald Slayton is being considered by the astronauts for the next human to orbit around the earth. Due to his symptoms of heart weakness, criticism has been developed over his being considered. Some officials see in this position a danger that the astronauts are starting to place personality ahead of project. When asked what would be done if Slayton's heart began to fibrillate before the launch, the astronaut answered that the flight would be postponed.

President Goulart of Brazil is planning a visit to Washington next week. He is expected to propose an expropriation by his government of all United States owned utilities in Brazil with cash indemnities to be repaid out of U. S. aid funds.

Series Includes Future Movies

(Continued from page 1)

In addition to "Member of the Wedding," These are "Forbidden Games," to be shown at 7:30 on April 14, and "Ballad of a Soldier," to be presented May 19.

Burger Views Meet On Trip To England

By Donna Humphreys

"It was fast," says Miss Elizabeth Burger of her recent week end trip to London. She left New York and seven and a half hours later, she was in London.

Two Purposes Revealed

Miss Burger had two purposes for making the trip. First, she wanted to see the hockey match between the women's teams of the United States and England March 10 at Wembley Stadium. Second, plans had to be made for the international hockey conference at Goucher College in Baltimore in the fall of 1963.

The trip began Thursday, March 8 when Miss Burger and a professor from Sweet Briar left Virginia for New York. In New York the two joined four others who flew with them to London for the match. While in London, Miss Burger was the official guest of the Arlington Women's Hockey Association for the game and festivities.

Visits Applebee

During her free time, Miss Burger rode around the England countryside, and visited Miss Applebee at her home in New Forest. Miss Applebee introduced hockey in the United States in 1901. Most of the American players in the game have attended Miss Applebee's summer hockey camp in Pennsylvania.

Miss Burger said that when she walked into the stadium, it was as though she were seeing everyone she had ever known. During her nine years of playing on the United States team, Miss Burger represented this country in South Africa, the British Isles, Australia, and New Zealand. She has played in over 100 international matches for the United States.

No Favoritism Shown

There were as many supporters for the American team at the game as there were American players on the field—eleven. But the support given by the 7,000 spectators was not for one team individually; good play by either team was applauded.

The game resulted in a 3-3 tie. This was the first time an English hockey team has been tied in Wembley Stadium. Miss Burger said that the credit must be given to British coaching for the American tie. She said, "Whatever standard we have attained is due to British coaching."

It was an experience, Miss Burger said, to sit beside Miss Applebee during the game and watch her see her American players tie England. It has taken the Americans sixty years to reach this standard of play.

Sportsmanship Unrival'd
The best thing about hockey Miss Burger says is the unrivaled sportsmanship of both its players and the spectators. Another good thing, she says, are the friendships one forms with the players one meets in the game.

During the game, Miss Applebee noted the friendly spirit between the American and British players. She said that she had not expected to live to see the break-down in British reserve, and added that perhaps they should start playing the Russians.

Amateur Game
Finally, Miss Burger said that hockey is a completely amateur game in the sense that every player pays her own expenses. It is an insult to an experienced hockey player to be called professional.

Patronize
The Rotunda
Advertisers

BETWEEN FRIENDS...
There's nothing like a Coke!

Get that refreshing new feeling with Coke!

Bottled under authority of
The Coca-Cola Company

LYNCHBURG BOTTLING WORKS, Lynchburg, Va.

Philosopher's Discussion Results In Controversy

(Continued from page 2)

proved through logical means, and that those Christian philosophers who have attempted to do so have been deceiving themselves. Further, had Dr. Adler proved even to his own satisfaction, let alone ours, that the God of Christianity does exist, albeit in philosophical terms, he would have had no need for the phrase "rational persuasion." His definition and use of this term demonstrate to me that he was speaking of the Christian God, and that he was encountering problems in his effort to prove the existence thereof; and, if we can believe Dr. Adler's opening statement, this is precisely what he set out to do.

The complaints of Miss Cannon and "the many students who cannot feel his feelings" are legitimate to a degree. Granted that background in philosophy is helpful in any situation, since Dr. Adler defined and explained his terms and concepts so elementarily, and since his lecture was exceptionally clear in outline, I fail to see this as a handicap to a concentrated listener.

A Graduate Student

Ed. Note: We wonder why, if Mr. Adler was not trying to prove anything, he took the trouble to come here to speak, and we wonder why he consented to speak on that subject. Mr. Adler is a famous philosopher. He admitted having difficulty with his fourth and fifth premises, but he also said that for himself, he had sufficiently proved his premises.

Mrs. Savage introduced the talk as Mr. Adler instructed, and a Smith, in her review, correctly reoriented the topic as he gave it in assembly.

"The Problem of Man's Efforts to Prove the Existence of God" which you quoted was actually the subject of some historical background on the attempts to prove God's existence through the ages, which Mr. Adler included, but not as part of his actual premises and proofs.

Lychnos Society Hears Scientist From Oak Ridge

The Lychnos Society had as its guest Dr. Richard Kimball, a noted scientist from Oak Ridge, Tennessee. Dr. Kimball spoke to an open audience in Stevens Hall Wednesday night, March 28. His topic was "Biochemical and Cell Physiological Aspects of Mutation Induction."

Attends Johns Hopkins Dr. Kimball attended Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, Maryland, went to Yale for a year as a Sterling Fellow, and returned to Johns Hopkins in 1939 as an instructor of Zoology. He is now the assistant director of the Biology Division at the Oak Ridge research center. His main field is in the genetics of ciliate protozoa.

Mr. White has had other stories and essays appear in New Stars Magazine, BEST SHORT STORIES OF 1961, Sewane Review, and Provincial.

White Publishes Bonefish Story Sports Feature

J. Ellington White, assistant professor of English at Longwood College, has had a feature story, "The Sample at White Bay," included in the March 26, 1962, issue of Sports Illustrated. The story describes the excitement and thrills found in the art of landing the unusually game bonefish.

LAUGHTER OVERCOMES P. Thorpe and P. Whittaker as they read waylaid letters.

Drink Box Breaks Up Over Friend's Plight

(Continued from page 2)

she had almost been engaged to him, it would have been bad news if he got the letter now. (Those interested people had their fun all right. The letter contained her first schedule and other little goodies — very inappropriate now, I'm sure.)

At about the same time, another girl also received a letter. It was from a friend who said after two days he still couldn't understand her last letter. First of all, it was dated last year and contained a freshman schedule and all sorts of comments on how wonderful college life was.

The unfortunate victim suddenly remembered that she had received many letters last year asking for her schedule, and that she had written back and insisted she had sent it. Drink machine really broke up over that.

Fourteen Initiated In Science Society

On March 14, 1962, the Lychnos Society initiated fourteen mathematics and science majors.

Among those being initiated were June Costello, Phyllis Covington, Ellen DuPuy, Donna Franzen, Sandra Freedman, Linda Hatch, Susan Lane, and Elizabeth Lee. Elaine Lohr, Shirley Moody, Lucy Swink, Norma Wahl, Alice White, Betsy Wilson, and Margaret Vaughan were also initiated.

The Lychnos Society is an honorary organization for juniors and seniors who have maintained an above-average scholastic record in one of the fields of science or mathematics.

Whenever those interested girls walk by me, I kind of smile, even though they don't actually see me.

One of the other boxes told me the other day that a girl was overheard in her room saying: "I take all my letters outside now — to the mailbox."

—Staff Photo

RECENTLY TAPPED FOR AKG membership are, back row, Betty Slack, Sherrill Hudson, Pam Bullen, front row, Ginnia Chapman, Elaine Lohr, Sandra Freedman.

AKG

(Continued from page 1) Membership Requisites A strong character is one of

Theatricals Dispatch Bids Of Membership

On March 28, forty-three bids for membership in Longwood Players were issued and those received last week were initiated that night at seven o'clock in Jarman. Bids are given on merit of work done in two major productions, or one production and one semester of play production classes, or two semesters of play production class.

'Highly Tights' Play In Concert On Friday Night

The Lynchburg Club will play host to The Virginia Regimental Band, better known as the "Highly Tights," on Friday, April 6. The concert, under the direction of Thomas M. Dobyns, will be in Jarman Auditorium at 8:00 p.m. There will be no admission fee.

The "Highly Tights" concert here is one of their appearances on an annual tour. They began in 1883 with ten pieces as the "Glade Coronet Band." Today they have the distinction of being the winners of three consecutive first place honors in the presidential inaugural parade in Washington, D.C.

"The Thunderbirds" from Hampden-Sydney will provide music for the informal reception after the concert, from 9 to 12. The admission fee for this will be $1 per couple and 75 cents stag.

Officers Elected

At the short business meeting following the initiation ceremony, the slate of officers for the coming year was presented by the nominations committee and was accepted by the members. The new officers are president, Melinda Walker; vice-president, Jean Bristow; secretary, Betty Ann Atkinson; treasurer, Barbara Fields; and technical director, Barbara Gray Martin.

Spring Play Announced

Mr. Wiles announced that the third major production of the year would be Ben Levy's The Rape of the Heil, which is a farce comedy about the Greeks and the Amazons. One other major point of business was an assembly to be presented to the student body on May 1. Included in the program will be a one-act, Hot and Cox which is a comedy by J. M. Morton. Ginnia Chapman will direct the one-act, which will be partially sponsored by Alpha Psi Omega. Members of the cast are Patsy Shellie, Ed Baker, and Mike Couchman. Oscar awards for the best actor, actress, and backstage worker, as determined by the votes of the Longwood Players, will be presented at this assembly.

Choir, Quartet, Render Concert For LC Visitors

Dr. John W. Molnar, chairman of the music department, conducted the Longwood Choir in a concert given in Jarman Auditorium, Saturday, March 31, at 8:00 p.m. The concert was open to the public and in honor of the alumnae of the college who were on the campus in celebration of Founder's Day.

Four Solo

There were four soloists in the performance. They were: Madeline Macomber, a senior from Richmond, Carol Ann Pierce, a junior from Occoquan, Marilyn Anthony, a sophomore from Arlington, and Kathleen Slusher, a freshman from Blacksburg. These girls, who are majoring in music, sang solo parts in STABAT MATER by Pergolesi.

Cumtut Plays

SACERDOTES DOMINI by Byrd, STABAT MATER by Pergolesi, and Handel's CORONATION ANTHEM were the selections included in the program. Miss Joanne Cumtut, assistant professor of music, playing the harpsichord, and the Wendt String Quartet of Richmond accompanied the latter two numbers. The quartet was made up of several members of the Richmond Symphony Orchestra: Frank Wendt, first violin, Dorothy LeGrand, second violin, Alphonse Gagne, viola, and Virginia Wendt, cello.

See The Scarab Bracelets and Watchbands and the latest Charms & Charm Bracelets Now At

MARTIN THE JEWELER

Need a Break! Visit The

"Main Rec"

or

"Senior Rec"

Get Your Denim Dresses and Shoes to Match at the DOROTHY MAY STORE

—Staff

Around The Campi

Here's the weather report published as a public service for the benefit of those who are "roofing it." "Partly cloudy and cold tomorrow with mountain snow flurries. Highest in the fifties except forties in the mountains." Better get out the man-tan.

A suggestion for the suggestion box, wherever it is: Why not have Spring Vacation after mid-semester tests? It is felt that the students need the rest now, after being a part of the professors' race to see who can give the most tests at the last possible minute. We're tired! (Next week, the professors will have their rebuttal—but not in the Rotunda, unfortunately.)

Suddenly, every Longwood girl has become a Koret, of California, and a seamstress, all in one. It's all the fad, now, to design and sew your own "ivy" wrap-around skirt. Great-grandmother would be proud.

Chances are, you know that Greyhound fares are less than any other form of public transportation. What you probably don't realize is how much less. For a pleasant surprise, check the money-saving Greyhound fares below. You'll see at a glance why it always pays to insist on exclusive Greyhound Scenicrider Service...and leave the driving to us!

RICHMOND One way $ 2.42 Round trip $ 4.80	ROANOKE One way $ 4.02 Round trip $ 7.26
WASHINGTON D.C. One way $ 6.02 Round trip $10.04	LEXINGTON One way $ 3.63 Round trip $ 6.55
NEW YORK CITY One way $11.11 Round trip $25.47	RALEIGH N.C. One way $ 4.14 Round trip $ 7.54
NEWPORT NEWS One way $ 5.23 Round trip $ 9.41	WINSTON SALEM N.C. One way $ 5.04 Round trip $10.82
LYNCHBURG One way $ 1.98 Round trip $ 3.58

THE JITTERBUG—Marjorie Twilley is wearing a pink Cotton Dress by Bobbie Brooks, $9.99. Stuart Shelton—McGregor Sport Coat $29.95, Cotton Poplin Pants $5.99.

THE CHA-CHA-CHA—Barbara Ennis is wearing a 3-Pc. Coordinate, Plaid Skirt with matching Vest and Blouse, $16.97. Harry Pollard is wearing a Loden Green wash 'n wear dacron and cotton Suit, $29.95.

WELCOME LONGWOOD & HAMPDEN- SYDNEY STUDENTS

To College Night at Davidson's

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 11th at 7:00 P.M.

THE CHARLESTON, JITTERBUG, CHA-CHA-CHA, THE TWIST — It's something to dance about . . . This wonderful fashion year, 1962. See swinging fashions with that young junior beat, by Bobbie Brooks, Jantzen, McGregor and many other name brands, modeled by our own college students . . . a 10% discount will be given on all purchases. Refreshments will be served, and a door prize of $19.95 will be given to the lucky girl and boy.

THE CHARLESTON—Betty Wright is wearing Loden Green pleated Skirt, $7.99, by Russ Togs and Blouse to match, $3.99. Lew Everett is wearing dacron and polyester plaid Sport Coat $19.95.

THE TWIST—Alice White is wearing a Madras Dress by Betty Winston, $12.99. Tim Butler is wearing dacron and polyester plaid Sport Coat, $19.95.

Reporter Previews Styles

Mr. Chairman: Mr. Nardis, will you (choke) please (gasp) proceed (pant). Delegate D: Howdy to each and everyone of you . . . and colleagues, you see here before you right this minute now a lovely Miss — not Mrs. — (followed by a loud Hardy-har-har). She is wearing that every well dressed woman of the future later on — not now — (ha, ha, ha) . . . will include in her fall-out shelter under-the-round wardrobe. It is constructed of ptyofam, styrafoam, polychelone, unsaturated, rustresistant cast iron. It is tailored to fit — in case of a severe weight loss the waist is adjustable (he, he, he). You will note the stylish modern up-to-date patent leather combat boots with eagles on the buck. The helmet is designed to be worn at a rakish angle . . . a jaunty angle . . . covering the right eye, the left nostril, and the lower lip . . . to offer (ho, ho, ho) maximum (tee hee) protection . . . Ha, ho, hee. With these last words ever uttered by Delegate D as he collapsed in cataplectic fits of laughter upon the enormous mahogany table, the chairman — after downing three more glasses of water calmly called upon Delegate E.

Mr. Chairman: Mr. Dallas, will you proceed? Delegate E: Uh . . . ah . . . er . . . and colleagues. This is it . . . in glowing color, vista-vision . . . I call it Pillsberry's Best . . . you will note the coarse, heavy duty fabric, the simple line, the nipped in waist-line . . . accomplished with a fine grain of binder twine. The pelka dots are carefully arranged and eye-catching . . . they remain in place thanks to Duco cement. The sleeves and hem are intricately fringed and frayed . . . The cow collar is of heavy duty construction paper and may be removed to dress-up the vestment. As Delegate E continued to speak, the audience watched in rapt attention as the powdery white substance drifted silently to the floor at the model's feet . . . it created large mounds which moved to allow the building of larger and larger and larger and LARGER mounds of flour. Soon the magnificent hall was empty.

I sat perched on the largest mound enthralled by all I had seen . . . overwhelmed by the momentous event . . . awed by the splendor of the occasion. . . Women of the world, never fear, fashions will improve!

Hi, How You?

Ode To April Fools

By Sandra Freedman

Ed. Note: Miss Freedman is a little-known poet, but one of great merit. She is most famous for her sustained alliteration effected by the very loose construction of her poems, using word substitutions, inverse word order, and other poetic devices.

Those who know her poetry have grown to love it, and in this selection we attempt to introduce her to the world, that she may receive the fame that her kind of talent deserves.

On day of April at last you're come
And all little chickens* will now have fun
The jokes they'll play on each and all
Only to find they will all fail the other way
On this fool's day
And all will say
"Back you I'll pay"
(Inverse word order).
But mean it not, these girls of tricks
These pranks they play is for the bricks.
For April brings the day of tricks.
It must be known this day's the first
The day that no one does the twist**
May does not have it
July does not have it
December does not have it
April does not have it
(I lied—April has it)
repetition used for emphasis
It's here this-day has been observed far it goes from things of nerve (double inverse word order)
To give this day its proper praise
Is beyond me—
(Truism)

On and on and on and on and on and on I could write
But this I know world bring you fright riddles.
I guess.
Oh, yes
So now I'll end this poe-try

In hopes that now the importance you'll see —changing verse—
This is a new effort in poe-try—Take it for what you will

*word substitution for Longwood Ladies
**word substitution for amusement
***Old Eng-ish for "twist"

By Mary Belle Neuman

Another strenuous day has passed . . . I have at last found a moment to relax and contemplate my notes. The briefcase is overflowing . . . Alphabetical order . . . "F" for Fashions of the Future.

Under Paris skies I witnessed history in the making . . . the illustrious group of bearded gentlemen have been conferring for several weeks on the controversial subject of fashions for the future.

Delegate A: Ladies, gentlemen and colleagues, I submit for your approval this masterpiece . . . constructed of featherweight pink paper towels . . . a simple boat-neck for yachting enthusiasts . . .

Notice the hem-line! This was achieved through a blend of crepe paper and confetti created by a master craftsman. The sleeves are of two-ply bath-room tissue. With this ensemble is worn the multi-colored tenni-pumps — without laces of course! The entire outfit is disposable . . .

Delegate F: Mr. Diorful, I have a question. Is this fraction water repellent? San- forized? Wrinkle shed? Crease resistant?

Delegate A: Well, no . . . but it's disposable. Mr. Chairman: Thank you for your submission, Mr. Diorful. Mr. Bridgette I turn the floor over to you.

There was a murmur of excitement as Delegate A rose from his seat and angrily strode from the room . . . His pink sport jacket was noted to have a large tear at the lapel. As he passed Delegate F he ceremoniously deposited a handful of skillfully created confetti on the distinguished gentleman's left ear.

Delegate B: Devoted fans, ardent admirers . . . and colleagues, you see before you a revolutionary creation from the House of Bardot . . . It is of terrycloth, with bold stripes, a non-existent hemline, no sleeves . . . the casual look at its peak! Delegate D: (speaking through clenched teeth) I looked everywhere for it this morning . . . I knew I had hung it on the towel rod . . . I recognize those hideous scarlet stripes! 'slowly he rose . . . and in a nasally constrained tone he said: Mr. Chairman I ask you to disqualify Mr. Bridgette. He has committed an unforgivable breach of etiquette . . . and I had to forego my morning shower!

The silence hung heavy upon the room . . . all eyes were directed toward the chairman . . . Mr. Chairman: Mr. Bridgette you are disqualified! With a flourish Delegate B rose and as he left he directed a left scarlet-striped blow to Delegate D's prominent nose.

is to be head resident. The epitome of tyranny was displayed when they attempted to give each other call downs.

Waitresses Ration Food
The student waitresses are heading bread lines. The government has dropped pizzas and McMeal by parachute. Longwood girls are now receiving three three-ounce rations per day, which is a two-ounce increase since before the tornado. One student made a typically American remark concerning the increase in food, "Neatsey," she said.

Ironically, Dr. Lankford was in Richmond attempting to acquire state funds to build another dorm. Dean Wilson, who has had much experience in this area, has taken over as president of the college, temporarily.

Classes are to be held on the hockey field and the incomplete mall. The science building pond is the new area for swimming classes. The regular Tuesday assemblies will be held on the roof of Wheeler instead of demolished Jarman auditorium.

"Men" Upset

Hampden - Sydney, a college for men, has postponed all parties for lack of dates. The fraternalists beseeched the President to cite Longwood for federal aid. As a result, the women's college was again named a disaster area. Government troops will soon reach Farmville and clear the rubble which the physical education majors have already begun to clean out.

Taste Good As A Free-be Should COOL As A Tropic Breeze

Smoking More, But Enjoying It Less? — Get Tropic Of Cancer

Longwood nuts

The Postunda

VOLUME XLI

Longwood College, Farmville, Va., April 11, 1962

No. 17

Romer Addresses Student Body On Evolution Of Homo Sapiens

Alfred S. Romer, professor of zoology at Harvard University, will speak on "Climbing the Primate Family Tree — Origin of Man" on April 16 at 10 a.m. in Jarman Auditorium.

Studies Evolution

Romer is one of the most outstanding paleontologists in the United States. He is an authority on the 500 million years of history of the back-boned animals on earth. By comparing both fossil remains and living representatives, he has traced some of the major events in this long evolution.

Varied Background

Mr. Romer served in the U. S. Army from 1917 to 1919. He has served as president of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. From 1956-1961 he directed one of the largest natural history museums in the world, the Museum of Comparative Zoology founded by Louis Agassiz. This museum is used by scholars to study the evolution, classification and distribution of animal life.

Receives Awards

Professor Romer received the Mary Clark Thompson Medal in 1954 for distinguished services to zoology or paleontology, and the Daniel G. Elliot Medal of the National Academy of Sciences.

Simonini, Gresham Represent College In Charlottesville

March 31, Dr. Rinaldo C. Simonini, Jr., chairman of the department of English, and Mr. Foster B. Gresham, assistant professor of English at Longwood attended the Conference of Teachers of English at the University of Virginia in Charlottesville.

The program for the day consisted of speeches and discussions concerning new developments in the teaching of English.

Simonini Editor

Dr. Simonini attended as editor of "The Virginia English Bulletin," and Mr. Gresham, as Executive Secretary of the Virginia Association of Teachers of English.

Others Attend

Those who also attended were junior and senior students from Longwood who are preparing to teach English. They are Elaine Bane, Carolyn Clopton, Betty Rice Dawson, Debbie Dove, Nikki Fallis, Callie Folsell, Carole Ferrell, Pauline Brightwell, Janice Harris, and Nancy Huffaker.

Others are Barbara Loth, Mollie Lambert, Gloria Newton, Judy Purcell, Mary Catherine Rice, Susan Stalnaker, Page Tolleson, Melinda Walker, Rebecca Williams, Kay Willis, and Jo Ann Young.

No Double Cuts

The office of the Dean has announced that because there will be no Easter vacation, classes will be held on Friday and Saturday of that week end; consequently, double cuts will not be imposed.

Audience Reacts In Varied Ways To Kunitz Visit

By Barbara Pollard

The recent visit of modern poet Stanley Kunitz to our campus brought varied reactions from both professors and students. Sharon Coulter, who spent a great deal of time with Mr. Kunitz, had this to say about him: "When I first met him, it was obvious that he was a man of great intelligence and skill. However, I found him rather aloof. But after talking with Mr. Kunitz and hearing him speak several times, I realized that he was not only intelligent and talented, but also had the ability to perceive character."

Mrs. Davis: "I thought he was best when discussing his own poetry. He reads beautifully and his discussion and analysis of his poetry was excellent. He was particularly interesting when contrasting various modern writers. He pointed out how Wallace Stevens more accurately represented the modern age than Robert Frost; Gerard Manley Hopkins was more modern than the Victorian poets; Dickinson was more modern than 'Longfellow.'"

Kay Godwin: "I thought his assembly speech was interesting and informative but it became rather unmethodical toward the end."

Dr. Simonini: "He was effective in the individual contacts that he had with students where he criticized their own work and discussed informally various questions they raised about poetry and literature in general. He was perhaps less effective for a general audience in his public presentations because a general audience would not have the background to appreciate his particular point of view about poetry as a 'private voice and as an art in 'process.' But for those people who had some previous experience with any of the creative arts, his thesis was a compelling one."

Jean Pollard: "I was most

AKG Spring Auction Features Privileges

REHEARSING JOB of crying for sale Monday night is auctioneer Merrill.

Scholarships

Applications for financial assistance for the 1962-63 session must be in by May 1. Forms can be obtained from the Admissions Office. Applications for assistance must be renewed each year.

impressed with his reading of his own poetry because he did it with so much feeling and expression; whereas, so many poets read their own work in such a dull monotonous way."

Dr. Meeker: "I think that he succeeded in reviving our interest in writing and reading poetry because he presented evidence that poets are the only sane, orderly people we have left in the world."

Gavie Kay: "I thought he proved himself a truly educated man through his statements regarding science and his detailed information on art and artists, all coupled with his awareness of everyday happenings."

French Cinema Plays Saturday In Jarman Hall

By Dee Watkins

The French film, "Forbidden Games," will be shown on Saturday, April 14 at 7:30 p.m. in Jarman Auditorium. Admission is free.

This film has French dialogue with English subtitles. The stars of the film are Brigitte Fossey and George Poujouly. It is directed by Rene Clement with screenplay by Jean Aurenche and Pierre Boit.

"Forbidden Games" has won various awards. It was awarded the Grand Prize at the Venice Film Festival, the U. S. Academy Award, and the New York Film Critics Award. It is a story concerning the effect of war and death on the minds of children.

According to the New York Times, "... It glows with the heat of the human heart." This film, to be the third one presented at Longwood, was chosen by Dr. Neveu of the science department and the Film Committee. This committee is composed of Dr. Patterson of the psychology department, Mrs. Erroff of the language department, and students Sandy Little, Mary Lou Plunkett, and Peggy Hughes.

"Ballad" Presented Next
"Ballad of a Soldier" will be the next film presented. It will be shown on May 19 at 7:30 p.m. in Jarman Auditorium.

For all the films, students and their dates are invited to attend. The faculty and their families are also invited.

Merritt To Attend Summer Institute

Mr. Robert E. Merritt, associate professor of natural sciences at Longwood, has been selected to attend a summer institute for college teachers of biology. The institute, which is supported by the National Science Foundation, will be held June 25-August 4, 1962, at Arizona State University in Tempe, Arizona. Mr. Merritt will receive a stipend for the institute.

Fun, Surprises Await Audience In Ruffner Rec

On Monday, April 16, at 7 p.m., Alpha Kappa Gamma will present an auction in the Main Rec. For a price of ten cents students and faculty members will be admitted to witness, and participate in, the auctioning off of services, privileges, and objects of all sorts by Mr. James Helms, Mr. Bob Merritt, and Mr. Jake Wamsley.

Among the objects to be sold will be "mystery packages" contributed by downtown merchants. Services to be bought for prices starting as low as one dime include room service for breakfast, or lunch on the roof, car washes, babysitting, auditing for golfers at the Estate, bed making, substituting for waitresses, and on and on.

There are many privileges to be auctioned off too. For a nominal fee you may buy the right to skip assembly, or dictate the color of Charlie Hop's tie, or ring the college bell, or eat at the College Shoppe escorted by Mr. Bailow and Dr. Simkins. You may win a private twist demonstration as shown by four Longwood professors. Perhaps you will win a trip to the Taste-Free with Dr. Moss, or an invitation to dessert with the Schlegels. These items and many more will be auctioned off for prices starting as low as a dime or twenty-five cents when the auctioneer's savel bangs and the Alpha Kappa Gamma Auction begins. So come to watch. Bring your money too — objects, services and privileges can be yours for a song.

Proceeds from the auction will go to the Longwood College Endowment Fund.

Professor Edits Norfolk History For Duke Press

Dr. Marvin Wilson Schlegel, professor of history and social sciences at Longwood, has completed editing "Norfolk: Historic Southern Port," a history of Norfolk, Virginia. Duke University Press will publish this second edition on April 27.

Completes Work

American historian, Thomas J. Westcott, of Princeton University, completed much of the research and writing of the new chapters before ill health forced him to abandon the task. At his suggestion Dr. Schlegel, author of "Conscript City," the story of Norfolk in World War II, and "Cavalier Commonwealth," a history of Virginia, brought the work to completion.

Active Historian

Dr. Schlegel is a member of the American Association of University Professors, Virginia Education Association, and the American, Southern, Virginia, and Mississippi Valley Historical Associations. He is listed in Who's Who in American Education, Directory of American Scholars, and Who's Who in the South.

Photo By Paris

RECENTLY SELECTED BEAUTY contest winners of Nelson county are L. Deane, maid of honor, G. Summers, queen, and M. V. Langran, Miss Congeniality.

Music Department To Feature Series Of Recitals By Students

The Longwood music department is presenting a series of programs featuring outstanding music students this spring.

Nancy Oldfield and Jane Pennington will present a joint organ recital Sunday, April 15, at 4 p.m. in Jarman Auditorium.

Directs Girls' Choir

Nancy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John William Oldfield of Newport News. She is a junior music education major, with organ as her applied music concentration area. She is director of the Girls' Choir of the Farmville Methodist Church and serves as organist for the Baptist Student Union at Longwood. Nancy was elected to membership in Sigma Alpha Iota during her freshman year.

Pennington To Graduate

Jane's parents are Doctors William and Margaret Pennington of Buckingham. In June, she will graduate from Longwood with a Bachelor of Science degree in Music Education. She is a member of Sigma Alpha Iota and has served as president of Gamma Kappa Chapter on the Longwood Campus.

Both girls are students of Dr. Joanne Currutt, assistant professor of organ and harpsichord at Longwood.

Sophomores' Recital First

Betty Ann Rex and Carol Combs presented the first program, a two-piano recital, April 1.

Betty Ann is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George L. Rex of Charlottesville. Carol is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Combs of Grundy. Carol and Betty Ann, both sophomores, are members of Sigma Alpha Iota, Student Education Association, Choir, and the Grandaughters' Club. Also, both girls are students of Sterling Adams.

No Comment

Last week, the Rotunda carried a letter to the editor deploring the lack of an academic atmosphere here at Longwood. Comment of any sort was invited.

This week, we received and printed one letter offering suggestions in support of the original letter. The students who disagree on the subject have not let their opinions be known.

Those who disagree had best express their points of view, because this is an issue that has been under study for the past few years by various campus organizations and the administration, and it's time something was done about it.

The Rotunda is joining those two sophomores in their campaign against too many activities. We are adding our voices, not as those of a pressure group, but as a group interested in the welfare of the college.

The fact that we received one letter was a disappointment, in a sense, but not so, in view of the fact that the majority of the audience who read the first letter was an apathetic one, not concerned enough about any school problem to take action. Dr. Simkins tells of the girls at Hunter College in New York who stamp their feet or walk out on a performance or a talk if it is not satisfactory to them. In contrast, Northerners think Longwood girls are polite because they don't express their distaste. Actually, it is a mixture of politeness and apathy, for if such an idea did occur to us, the fact that a performance was being given would mean so little to us that a reaction would not seem worth the trouble.

We are not inciting riots or advocating that students walk out on every performance they do not like, for few of us are competent to judge. What we are advocating is an awakening from intellectual apathy, which is the greatest ally of "activities."

Never At Longwood?

Several weeks ago, we received a "newspaper" in the mail. It was opened with the rest and read quickly. It looked no different from the rest, except for the fact that it was published by the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, which sounds harmless enough.

The front page carried stories written by an American and a Soviet exchange student, and the inside gave news of exchange programs, Soviet youth programs, and Friendship University. However, upon reading the articles by the two students, it became obvious that the stories were slanted in favor of the Soviet Union and against the U. S.

The Russian student made statements to the effect that the Soviet press was presenting all aspects of life in the U. S., whereas the American press presented only one side of Soviet life. He continued, praising insignificant things such as our highways, supermarkets, and street marking systems. But he condemned our economic system, saying there is a great difference between rich and poor, implying that we do not have a large, powerful, middle class, much unemployment, and race discrimination, present in the North as well as in the South. The American student found that the Soviet people were not afraid to criticize the Kremlin, and that the youth were progressive and happy, unlike the way they are pictured in the American press.

A check with a list of subversive organizations operating in America found the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship numbered among them. What we had received here at Longwood, in Farmville, Virginia, was Communist propaganda. This is the way the Communists operate. This is proof of the way they place their ideas in the minds of America's college youth. Herbert Philbrick's talk is brought home to us.

The Rotunda

ESTABLISHED NOVEMBER 20, 1960

Published each week during the college year except during holidays and examination period by the students of Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia. Box 168.

Ann Aze	Editor-in-Chief
Donna Humphlett	Managing Editor
Ann Carroll	Business Manager
Pat Hax	News Editor
Ginny Gilmore	Feature Editor
Lewann Rippey, Doris Smith	Sports Editor
Betty Jean Munser	Desk Editors
Flavie Bernard, Linda Paris	Art Editor
Ann Peters	Photography
Mary Ellen Duncan, Mary Reynolds	Circulation Manager
Mary P. Nichols	Advertising Managers
	Faculty Advisor

(Unassigned editorials written by the editor)

Member: Virginia Intercollegiate Press (Rating First Class), Columbia Scholastic Press Association (Rating First Class), Intercollegiate Press.

NEWS STAFF: Barbara Agnew, Betty Ann Atkinson, Ellie Hogan, Leslie Harris, Ann Carroll, Ginny Gilmore, Maria Grant, Assistant Feature Editor: Pam Gustafson, Donna Humphlett, Sandra Jamison, Janet Lacy, Mary Anne Lipford, Joan Lord, Mary Beth Olson, Virginia Peets, Barbara Poland, Pat Rex, Lewann Rippey, Ann Smith, Doris Smith, Letty Snyder, Assistant Sports Editor: Sue Thompson, Diana Upshaw, Assistant News Editor: Barbara Wheeler.

CIRCULATION STAFF: Delores Antoine, Penny Blackburn, Ellie Hogan, Susan Bettinhausen, Sandra Friedman, Anne Garrett, Cindy Gay, Carol Grogan, Nan Hovorking, Sue Maxwell, Mary Ann Phelan, Ellen Powell, Joyce Powell, Luby Presmore, Eleanor Richardson, Betty Wall, Diane Whitely, Toni Young.

ADVERTISING STAFF: Elaine Bane, Jane Costello, Diana Dolk, Ann Gordon, Judith Haskins, Dottie Marshall, Faye Stone, Dot Womack.

Entered as second class matter at the Post Office at Farmville, Virginia, under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879. Represented for national advertising by the National Advertising Service. Printed by the Farmville Herald.

Concert, April 29

The Longwood Choir and the choir of Randolph-Macon College at Ashland will give a joint concert in Jarman Auditorium, April 29, at 3 p.m.

Letters To Editor

Three Students Ask For Stress On Achievement

Dear Editor,

We hereby join the ranks of those voicing the need for an academic atmosphere on this campus. In the next few weeks we will offer constructive suggestions on this problem via this student newspaper. In placing these suggestions before the student body, we would like to ask that any individual or organization that has definite views on this subject to reply in this paper.

We would like to suggest that the Rotunda and the Virginian emphasize academic life by publicizing those students and organizations of outstanding and meritorious academic work. Too often we hear about the social personalities and their antics around campus and never do we hear of the person in the top one-fifth of the class, academically. We further propose that the newspaper feature a monthly article on the academic achievements of a person in one of the major fields taught at Longwood.

We realize that publicity of these aspects of academic life is not only a necessary gesture of the student yearbook and newspaper, but we feel the heads and members of the academic honor societies should reactivate their organizations and make it more of a privilege and honor to belong. If no one knows about your organization, how can they strive to meet the requirements for membership? An evaluation of each organization's purposes and fulfillment of those purposes is a most necessary endeavor.

Sincerely,
Pam Tolleson
Lewann Rippey
Betty Anne Wall

Banquet Planned For Panhellenic

The annual Panhellenic Banquet will be held on Wednesday, April 18, at 7:30 p.m. The banquet is to be in the college dining hall.

Members of all nine social sororities will participate, and included will be sorority advisors and special guests.

Guest speaker for this year's Panhellenic Banquet is Mrs. H. W. Jackson from Charlottesville, Virginia. Mrs. Jackson's topic will be "Waste Responsibility Lies in Service."

ARTIST'S CONCEPTION OF every Longwood girl's "dream dorm." It has telephones and air conditioning in each room.

'Best' School Plans Dormitory

By Barbara Poland

The State Board of Education has finally awakened to the fact that this college is potentially the best college in the state of Virginia. To help Longwood cultivate her potentiality, the Board recently voted to appropriate a very substantial amount of money for desirable changes. The school administration has decided that instead of constructing a new academic building which would eventually require a time-consuming search for new professors, they will build a new dormitory which will eventually involve a time-consuming search for a new dorm mother.

To Vite With Wheeler

This new dorm will vie with Wheeler for the position of "most beautiful dorm on campus." Neuman Hall, as it will be called (after Alfred E. of course), will house the intellectuals of Longwood College.

All extra rooms will be turned into guest rooms for the benefit of visiting alumnus.

Each hall in Neuman will be equipped with its own hair dryer, juke box, coke machine, washing machine, and bridge tables. The rooms will each have a plush carpet, two bulletin boards, a special shelf to display bourbon bottles, and a private bath.

Recreational facilities have certainly not been forgotten. The basement of Neuman Hall will be installed with a lovely 24 lane bowling alley complete with automatic pin-setters. For the benefit of non-bowlers, a penny arcade will be established in one corner of the basement.

General Changes Made

The remainder of the money granted to Longwood will be used to make general but necessary changes around the campus. As soon as the new laundry is completed, the old one will be turned into a Villager blouse shop. Bobbie Brooks blouses will be sold on the side if enough girls want them.

Other changes directed at the convenience of the girls will include fully air-conditioned classrooms, chaise longue on the sun roofs, go-carts to facilitate across-campus travel and even private telephones in each room.

Mail Delivered

Professors will also benefit by the new grant to Longwood. Special mail delivery service will be established so that they will no longer have to interrupt their busy schedules to go to the mailbox. Additions to each professor's office will include a coffee-maker, a pencil sharpener, and a volume of "Peanuts" to read for escape. One professor of the English Department has requested that new shelves be added to the library to accommodate as many back issues of "Mad" magazine as can be secured. We feel certain that this request will receive an affirmative vote from the administration.

Staffs To Benefit

Last but certainly not least, the service staff of Longwood will receive various significant benefits from the appropriated money. All maids will be given a set of four light blue uniforms with white organdy aprons to wear while on duty. To the new laundry will be added ten hand lotion dispensers to lessen the problem of detergent hands.

No classes will be held on these days in order that students and professors may attend the meeting if they should have suggestions to offer.

Artist Leitch Shows New Sculptural Work

By Mary Anne Lipford

Descending the dusty stairs, this reporter peered about the dim basement room. Only a few tables, apparently not up-to-par as furnishings for the new library rejected remained to remind us that the temporary library had been housed here in the basement of the Training School. At the far end of the depressingly dark room, a door stood ajar, and upon entering, a flood of bright sunshine caused a squinted salutation.

All Hears

"Why, Miss Leitch! Are all of these yours?" was the surprised query, for scattered about the sun-drenched studio were wooden figures, aluminum sculptures, slate reliefs, and even huge mahogany beams not yet transformed by the tools and talent of Longwood's art instructor and sculptress-on-the-side, Miss Nancy Leitch. With a proud sweep of her hand,

Miss Leitch indicated that "everything in here's mine except for the fixtures."

Tells Experience

It was with difficulty that this reporter kept her eyes on her notebook, for scattered from one interesting object to another as the creator of the sculptures told of her beginnings in art. "I guess it started when I was born!" she smiled. "I've always been directed toward art but it was at thirteen that I began lessons." The Pittsburgh native confessed that there are no other artists in her family; her father was a banker, and his home town being Charlottesville eventually drew her to Virginia. Miss Leitch graduated from Carnegie Institute of Technology and was granted her Master's Degree by Cranbrook Academy, Michigan. "Then I was a free lance sculptress for a while and taught in Newport News for

(Continued on page 4)

WORKING ON LOG of Brazilian mahogany is the art department's Miss Leitch.

Timely Topics

Test Ban Foreseen As Data Decreases

By Barbara Wiltner

Experts in Geneva stated last Sunday night that a new round of nuclear testing might make a test ban agreement more probable. They based their conclusions on the fact that while scientists learn more from each new test, the amount of information gained from each test decreases as the number of tests increases. Thus, the experts believe that the leading nations in the testing might be satisfied with their knowledge after another test.

Lankford Visits Alabama College For Conference

President Lankford returned to Farmville tonight from Florence State Teachers College in Florence, Alabama. He left on April 8 to serve as a member of the Committee of the Commission on Colleges of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

Purposes Stated
The assignment of this committee was to analyze the program and mission of Florence College as periodical evaluation for renewal of its accreditation with the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. Self studies of the institution to be evaluated are considered by the committee members before arrival. The purpose of this is to make them somewhat familiar with the situation and better carry out their assignment while on the campus.

Makes Second Trip
This is the second such trip for Dr. Lankford this session. He also went to Lenoir-Rhyne College in Hickory, North Carolina.

Education Group Ejects Officers

Kappa Delta Pi, national honor society of education, composed of juniors and seniors in the upper quintile of the student body, elected their officers for next year March 14. Those elected were Susan Lane, president; Jean Pollard, vice-president; Fran Webster, secretary; Lucy Swink, treasurer; and Gloria Newton, historian-reporter.

Seven girls accepted invitations to become members of Kappa Delta Pi on March 27. These were Jerry Clark, Nancy Huffaker, Shelby Lucy, Peggy Pond, Raye Turner, Mrs. Charlotte Weinberg, and Kay Willis.

The maritime strike in Hawaii is causing a shortage of food in that state. Some foods are now being rationed to the people. The striking groups are being observed by the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union.

Syrian leaders have requested re-entrance into the United Arab Republic. Syria withdrew from this same organization last September 28. The first country Syria has made a step to regain friendly relations with has been Egypt. There also seems to be a chance that Syria, Egypt and other Arab nations may organize a new federation instead of a republic such as the United Arab Republic.

A tornado in Milton, Florida left behind it 1.5 million dollars worth of property damage and 15 dead. Relief workers entered to help remove the debris. The tornado hit an area 400 feet wide and seven miles long.

The Senate is now debating whether or not to approve a loan of up to 100 million dollars to the United Nations.

A group of 15 of the Secret Army Organization of Algiers spread gunfire through a hospital there last Thursday. This was one of the most brutal efforts to block Algeria's movement for independence.

TRYING HAND AT WISKET are L. Burris, J. Walker, and L. Guerin.

Wisket Confusing, Say Most Freshmen

By Gleny Glimore

With the coming of spring, wisket once again makes its appearance on the Longwood hockey field. This game, played on a baseball diamond with rackets which are used both to catch and throw the ball, is somewhat like baseball in that the ball is batted and the batter must run the bases. The object of the game is for the team in the field to throw the ball to each base before the runner tags it.

Game Evokes Opinions

Although the two games have their similarities, they are different enough not to be confused. Because they have been exposed to baseball and softball all their lives, freshmen, learning this game for the first time to complete their requirement for Physical Education 112, have varied opinions about it.

Game Well Liked

According to a cross-sectional study, most freshmen seem to like the game, but almost all find it confusing and frustrating. "I didn't understand it at first," said one sophomore, looking back on last year. "But after Mrs. Landrum said I was good, I liked it."

Fielders Gain Points

Scoring seemed to be the one problem most of the freshmen had in common. One girl told of a teammate who quit running once she saw the first baseman had caught the ball as she would have in softball.

Another told of a member of the opposing team who ran from third to home base so fast, she had to jump over the tee. "It's discouraging not to get any points for a homer," another lamented.

Battling Hard

Battling a stationary ball from a waist-high tee, easy as it may look, proves embarrassing to most beginners. They should make the ball bigger," said one disillusioned player who struck out her first time at bat. One girl remarked that when she finally hit the ball, she was so excited she forgot to catch it.

Racket Play's Difficult

Handling the ball with a racket is one of the main problems in fielding. The ball must be caught, thrown, and scooped up off the ground by means of a long, thin racket with a wire cage at the bottom.

Because of the excitement of the game and the need to keep the ball in motion, the newly acquired skill of handling the ball with the racket is lost. One girl told of her problem of

Photo By Bernard
READY FOR HER DUTIES as AA sponsor is Miss "B."

Brockenbrough Sponsor Of Athletic Association

Miss Rebecca Brockenbrough will be the new sponsor of the Athletic Association for the 1962-63 session, replacing Miss Olive Iler, sponsor in past years.

Works With Sports
"Miss B." as she is more familiarly known, has always been closely associated with the group, working with archery, baseball and hockey.

"Miss B." has been here at Longwood for the past twelve years. She says she has "enjoyed her past work with the Association" and is "looking forward to sharing their fun and activities as advisor."

Brockenbrough Comments
When asked for a comment to the student body, "Miss B." had this to say: "Whereas the Council works together very closely, the Athletic Association is composed of the whole student body, and I hope that the whole student body will feel a part of it."

"Miss B." is from Richmond, and was a math major graduate of Westhampton College. She later did work at Columbia University, where she received her M.A. degree, and the University of Oregon.

Managers Announce

Class Softball Schedule

Class softball managers, Barbara Gray Martin and Rusty Stephenson, have announced that softball practices will take place Monday, Wednesday, and Friday afternoons at five o'clock beginning last Monday.

Cornmanagers Serve
Barbara Gray is a junior physical education major from Car

resville. Besides holding the position of softball co-manager this year, she is also co-chairman of the swim meet. Last year Barbara Gray served as ways and means co-chairman for the Athletic Association. She has played on the varsity hockey team for two years and has participated in class volleyball, basketball and tennis doubles.

Rusty, a freshman from New York, is majoring in physical education. She participated in class volleyball this year.

Participation Urged
Both these members of all classes to participate in these practices since the result of this competition could be the deciding factor in which sister classes are awarded the Custer Cup.

Faculty Game
Also announced this week was the faculty-student softball game to be played on April 18. The game will start at 5:00 and will last either five innings or forty-five minutes in order to be completed before dinner that night.

Photo By Bernard
FRIDAY'S FIRE rages through vacant house on corner of Ely and Madison.

throwing the ball behind her instead of forward.

Many stated that picking the ball up by rolling it towards them and catching it up in the net was the most difficult part of the game, especially under the pressure of speed. Still others, caught up in the excitement of the game, would forget the racket and pick the ball up in their hand, violating one of the most basic rules.

Disliked By Few

Of all the girls questioned, only three expressed a dislike for wisket. One girl, who was questioned after returning from a day's visit to the infirmary as a result of the game, had very little enthusiasm for it. After falling over the catcher's extended racket on her trip from third to home base, she did a double somersault and landed on her head. She was still suffering from a headache when questioned.

In general, most students who play wisket like the game.

Landrum Serves On Committee At Conference

Mrs. Emily K. Landrum, Associate Professor of Physical Education, served as recorder for the Committee on Professional Health and Physical Education Courses of the College Conference of Health and Physical Educators held at Natural Bridge, Virginia, March 22 and 23.

Dr. Solon B. Suduth, Head, Physical Education Department, George Peabody College for Teachers, Nashville, Tennessee, was guest speaker and consultant for the Conference. The theme of the conference was "Today's Challenges."

In the final evaluation meeting, Mrs. Landrum made a report for the Committee on Professional Health and Physical Education Courses.

Pan-Hel Council Holds Workshop For Greek Week

This year, Pan-hellenic will sponsor Greek Week, April 16-19, the highlight of which will be a sorority workshop. Through discussion groups, representatives will contribute and receive suggestions pertaining to sorority organization.

The workshop schedule will be, Monday, April 16, at 4:50 pm, a meeting of rush chairmen, social chairmen, and scholarship chairmen. On Tuesday, April 17, at 4:00 pm, recommendations and standards chairman will meet. Tuesday at 7 pm, old and new members of Pan-hellenic will meet.

Around The Campi

What's this about tape recorders taking over faculty positions temporarily? Will you be replaced by a machine?

That hole in Joan's arm is getting bigger and bigger

Seems the laundry has taken to cleaning fish—and it didn't even have a laundry number. A certain freshman had a fish put in her bed, and accidentally sent him to the laundry, creating the most excitement there in years!

Three new honorary organizations have been added to the many around the campi. They are Beta Stigma Upsilon, Iota Tappa Keg, and Sigma Phi Nothing. Welcome, new organizations

Staff

Lanscott's

FREE GIFT

Find Your Picture

at

LANSCOTT'S

MARTIN
THE JEWELERCulling Cards
Engraved
$4.45 Up
ReliefographedLONGWOOD
JEWELERSCome in and See
Our Longwood Charms
and
Ukes for $4.95

We Have For Sale

TO KILL A

MOCKINGBIRD

COLLEGE

BOOK STORE

Longwood Scene Of Installation Of Kappa Omicron Phi Chapter

Alpha Upsilon chapter of Kappa Omicron Phi will be installed at Longwood Friday and Saturday, April 13-14. Fifteen charter members will be initiated in this chapter of the national professional fraternity for home economics. Alpha Upsilon will be the first chapter to be established in Virginia.

New Members

Those being initiated will be faculty members Mrs. Neil H. Griffin and Miss Lora Bernard; seniors Sue Acee, Evelyn Ford, Helen Fox, Judy Giles and Cape Summ; Juniors Nell Martin, Signe Young, Shelby Lucy and Friends Boykin. Sophomore members will be Jean Cox, Rebecca Lane, Ann Sneed and Jean Still. Mrs. Griffin will serve as sponsor of this chapter.

Membership Requirements

To be eligible for membership into Kappa Omicron Phi, a candidate must have completed at least nine semester hours in her major, with a C-plus general college average and a B average in home economics.

The pledging service will begin the installation processes on Friday. The pledge test, initiation service and installation of officers will take place Saturday. A luncheon will be given for guests on Saturday at the Weynake Hotel.

Officers Present

Mrs. Elizabeth Morales, national president, and Miss Mildred Dransfield, vice-president, will attend the installation. Eight students from Upsilon chapter at Concord College in West Virginia will install the local chapter. Accompanying this group will be Mrs. Arvenia Shutt, sponsor.

Purposes Stated

The purposes of Kappa Omicron Phi as stated in the handbook are to further the best interest of home economics in four-year colleges; to develop women with high ideals of the same living and with deep appreciation of the sanctity of the American home; to provide opportunities of broad social and high intellectual and cultural attainments; and to stimulate members to attain intellectual, spiritual, ethical and aesthetic poise.

Simkins To Speak To National Group

Dr. Francis B. Simkins has been asked to speak before the Civil War Round Table of the District of Columbia. Dr. Simkins will travel to Washington, D. C. on April 17 to speak on "The Women of the Confederacy" for the National Press Group for the Golden Cup Award meeting.

On April 6, Dr. Simkins and Dr. Donald Wesley motored to Norfolk to take part in a round-table discussion for the Spring Conference of the Department of Teacher Education.

MAKING PLANS FOR EUROPEAN TOUR are J. Detrich, J. Cartwright, H. Hunt, S. Beardmore, M. L. Elmore, L. Peters, M. Morris, J. McKenna.

Photo By Bernard

Scuptress Relates Range Of Interests

(Continued from page 2)

eight years." Having also become avidly interested in weaving (because it brought back color not used since her 13-year old paintings), Miss Leitch left behind a fine weaving department when she left Newport News.

Variety Fascinating

The artist's discerning eyes noticed the reporter's wandering ones, and invited her to look around. The variety of subjects, media, and methods employed by Miss Leitch was fascinating. There was, for example, the clay hippopotamus. When asked why a smaller hippo was straddling its back, while another playfully held onto its neck, Miss Leitch explained, "Oh, didn't you know that's how a mother hippo teaches her offspring to swim?" Asked the name of this sculpture, she philosophically replied, "Names don't matter much — just the materials."

Wire Objects Displayed

Elsewhere around the room were displayed aluminum wire sculptures: a bear, an elephant, and a mule ("That's a symbol of Farmville," Miss Leitch joked).

The heavy weight room of hammered aluminum would be equally eye-catching in a studio or on a roof. It features an avocet which is a water bird common to the Tidewater area, and represents an entire summer's work. Patting the cool aluminum, Miss Leitch chatted, "I don't force an idea into a material... well, it's like writing: an idea is either best expressed by poetry or by prose. I get an idea and then decide how to express it. Aluminum was an obvious choice for this one." Where does one get ideas for art work in the first place? "Go out and look!" urges Miss Leitch. "Get ideas from observing people. Or... I grew up near a zoo and spent days there looking for ideas." Perhaps the green clay rabbit that the reporter found so interesting was inspired by a zoo trip. One of the most beautiful of her sculptures was a walnut relief which hung on the wall. It depicted two centaurs at the foot of Jesus' cross, and the raised words, "Behold the King of the Jews." It also raised a feeling of reverence in the viewer. Miss Leitch was obviously an artist of many interests.

Philosopher, Too

This reporter detected something more than an artist in Miss Leitch, however. Philosophical remarks, though rendered but casually during the interview, rang true. "Not just anybody can be a sculptor. It's specialized, just like writing. But we all have a talent for something; we all have some sort of creativity. I generally take one material and stick with it until I understand it. This is true in any field. One poem doesn't make a poet."

Fewer Sculptors

"There are not as many sculptors as painters. For one thing, sculpture is more physically exerting. Besides, you can't stack up statues like you can canvases."

Miss Leitch has displayed her work at Randolph-Macon Woman's College and plans a fall show "or Hollins. She is anxious to share her work with Longwood students as soon as the library exhibit room is equipped.

SOUTHSIDE SUNDRY CO., INC.

Come in and See Our Complete Line of Helena Rubinstein Products

On Your Way To The Roof
Stop At The "Rec" and Get a Tasty Treat

DOROTHY MAY
Just Arrived!
New Selection of HATS and BAGS

Longwood Girls To Tour Europe During Summer

Twenty Longwood students will travel to Europe for the summer via Scandinavian Air Lines. They will leave New York June 8 for Spain, where several girls will remain until classes begin at The Sorbonne in Paris July 1.

Twelve Attend Sorbonne

Those who plan to attend the Sorbonne or some other European school include: Cookie Blackstone, Betsy Grant, Jo Ann Cartwright, Alice Boggs, Glendon Merchant, Harriet Hunt, Ann Friedman, Gloria Newton, Priscilla Salle, Peggy Green, Susan Criesman and Helen Gene Taylor. Mary Morris and Joan McKenna, who visited Mexico and Puerto Rico, respectively, last summer, will study at the Sorbonne, also.

After the four-week summer school session, the girls will tour other points of interest before returning to the United States September 8.

Others Take Time

Those who are going neither to study nor to tour, but to "bum around" are seniors Judy Dietrich, Lois Peters, Sue Beardmore, Pat Hickey, and Mary Leach Elmore. On their list of places to go are England, Denmark, Germany, Switzerland, Scotland, the Vatican in Rome, the bullfights in Spain, and Notre Dame in France. And "Don't forget Ireland," says Pat. "We might even go to Russia to see if we can find the key to the Iron Curtain." Lois added.

All Eager

All the girls indicated that they were eager to be on their way. The only thing that they seem to dislike about going to Europe is "the 50 shots" they have to have. Actually there are only about 10, Hickey exaggerates. And they "make us walk around like cripples," Leach exaggerates, too.

Incidentally, Sue Beardmore will celebrate her 22nd birthday in Europe, maybe with one of those 50-cent bottles of champagne they sell in Spain.

Radio Programs

The radio program, "Longwood Speaks" will be carried by radio station WRFK-FM in Richmond. A series of eight programs will be presented beginning April 19. They will be heard at 10 p.m. each Thursday.

The program will be produced under the direction of Dr. Suzanne Barnett, assistant professor of speech.

Patronize
The Rotunda
Advertisers

ENTERTAINING FOR LYNCHBURG CLUB dance were the Thunderetts, S. Silver, S. Saura, Rosa Doyle.

Photo By Bernard

LITTLE MAN CAMPUS

COPYRIGHT © 1961, THE COCA-COLA COMPANY. COCA-COLA AND COKE ARE REGISTERED TRADEMARKS

Bottled under authority of The Coca-Cola Company by

LYNCHBURG BOTTLING WORKS, Lynchburg, Va.

The Rotunda

VOLUME XII

Longwood College, Farmville, Va., April 18, 1962

No. 18

Class Heads Elected To Serve Next Year

By Sandra Jamison

Within the last few weeks, each of the classes has been busy electing officers for next year.

Alice White was elected president of the senior class; Joyce Powell, vice - president; Scottie MacGregor, secretary; and Sandra Freedman, treasurer. Next week the class will hold an election for Circus chairman.

Twiley Elected

Margie Twiley will be the junior class president next year. With her will be Evelyn Gray, vice - president; Jeanne Kafer, secretary; and Rhona Weld, treasurer. The class has elected Betty Atkinson and Sandy Waugh to serve as Circus chairmen.

The up - coming sophomores have chosen Betty Wright to serve as president; Sally Hall as vice - president; Ruby Doherty as secretary; and Wunne Walker as treasurer. They have no, as yet elected their Circus chairmen.

White To Serve

Alice White, the senior class president, is a biology major. Alice served as vice - president of her freshman class, president of her junior class, and social chairman of Alpha Sigma Alpha Sorority in 1960-61. She is also a member of Alpha Kappa Gamma and the Longwood Players.

The senior vice - president, Joyce Powell, is a social science major. She has served on the YWCA and the Rotunda circulation staff, and is a member of Pi Gamma Mu.

MacGregor Secretary

Scottie MacGregor, a biology major, will serve as secretary of the senior class. Scottie is serving as social director of the BSU.

and is also Y-Com chairman this year. She is a member of the Longwood Players as well as the YWCA.

A math major, Sandra Freedman, will serve as treasurer of the senior class. Sandra was recently tapped into Alpha Kappa Gamma. She was treasurer of her class last year, also.

Photo By Bernard

NEW CLASS OFFICERS B. Wright, M. Twiley, A. White are pleased about election, as evidenced by big smiles.

Margie Twiley, the junior class president, is a Spanish major. Margie served as president of the Freshman Commission and vice - president of the sophomore class. She is also a member of the Spanish Club. Evelyn Gray will serve as the junior class vice - president. She

Summer School

Pre-registration for Summer School has been completed. However, registration is not closed, altogether. Registration for students who will attend and have not pre-registered will not be closed until after the first day of Summer School.

Photo By Bernard

NEW CLASS OFFICERS B. Wright, M. Twiley, A. White are pleased about election, as evidenced by big smiles.

served as treasurer of her freshman class and is a member of Alpha Sigma Alpha sorority.

Kafer Elected Secretary

Serving as the junior class secretary, Jeanne Kafer is a business major. She served as secretary of the class in 1961-62. She is also a member of Phi Mu sorority. Rhona Weld, a history major, will be the treasurer of the junior class next year. Rhona, a "Top Rat", is also a member of the YWCA and the Spanish Club.

Betty Atkinson will be one of the junior chairmen for Circus. She is a member of the Longwood Players. Sandy Waugh, also a junior chairman for Circus, was a "Top Rat". Sandy was a (Continued on page 3)

'Sprig Of Rosemary' Theme For May Day

By Ann Smith

Longwood will present the 1962 May Day headed by Keaton Holland on May 5th. The theme for this year's May Day will be "Merriment for Her Majesty"—merriment presented to her majesty, Jeannine McKenzie, in the "merrillie olde England" style. A Court Jester, played by Janice Harris presents entertainment that he has found to the queen. There was a Scottish Dance, a Court Jester's Dance and a Joustier's Dance. Then the peasants will present to the queen a story in dance—A Sprig of Rosemary.

Dancers Enact Story

The story concerns a beautiful young maiden who was picking some Rosemary when a handsome prince suddenly appeared. They fell in love and were married. Soon after the wedding the prince left—leaving with the maiden some key—one of which she was warned not to use. Her curiosity got the best of her; she used the forbidden key and her palace fell and she lost her lover. The maiden went in search of the prince—approaching the sun, moon, and wind. Each one gave her a nut but the wind knew where the prince was. The maiden, discovering he was under a spell and about to marry a wicked, ugly princess, begged the wind to delay the wedding. The wind did so by tearing the ugly princess's wedding flattery to pieces.

The maiden arrived at the palace and from the first nut produced a mantle which the wicked princess bought for a large sum of gold. From the second nut came petticoats for the princess, and from the third nut came a beautiful wedding dress. The price asked and granted or the wedding dress was a look at the bridegroom. The maiden touched the prince with a sprig of Rosemary—he was released from the spell and they were reunited. Mary G. Fields will play the maiden, and there will be eleven dances.

Committee Heads Active

The various committee heads are: Props, Patti O'Neill; Costumes, Ann Sneed and Jean Still; Scenery, Brenda Isbel; Court, Donna Prantzen; May Dance, Sandra Waugh and Sandra Freedman; Transportation, Betty Wright; Technical Director, Barbara Stewart; Theme and Script, Dibby Moore; Publicity and Programs, Pam Bullock, Jean Brown, and Joyce Lake and Music, Ann Peters. Betty Howard, Betty Ann Rex, Carol Pierce, Raye Turner, and Joan Ivy, Business Manager of May Day is Mary Leach Elmore.

Practices Attendance Urged

Keaton urges all those in dances to make an effort to be there for practices. She states, "May Day is a school affair and we are dependent on the cooperation of the student body to make it a success."

Literary Works For 'Colonnade' Receive Awards

The results of the annual Colonnade literary contest were announced yesterday in assembly. Prizes were given in two categories, short story and poetry.

Gray Place's First

"Mere on Sower," the first place short story was written by Evelyn Gray, a sophomore elementary major from Portsmouth. Susan Crisman a Spanish and English major from Winchester, wrote "Miss Holloway's Garden," the second place short story. The third place story, "The Same Color As Snow," was written by Donna Humphreys, a sophomore English major from Petersburg.

Ray Takes Poetry Prize

First place in poetry was won by Gayle Ray for "I Am." Gayle is a sophomore pre-pressing student from Scottsville. Peggy Pond won second place in poetry for "Summer Idyll." Peggy is a junior English major from Portsmouth. Alice Joy Peule won third place for "Verma." Alice Joy is a Spanish major from Petersburg.

Special Prize Given

A special prize was given to Betty Ann Atkinson, a sophomore English major from Arlington. Betty Ann wrote "A Parable."

'Higher Education' Theme Of Lectures

The spring lectures of the Institute of Southern Culture will be held April 27. The lecturers include Dr. Althea Hotel, Dr. Francis B. Simkins, and Dr. Gladys Boone.

The lectures will be held at 11 am in Jarman Hall, and at 4 pm and 8 pm in the Student Building Lounge. All three lectures are open to the public.

Dr. Althea Hotel at 11 am will speak on "Quality Education for the Southern Woman." Dr. Hotel received the B.S. degree in education and the M.A. and Ph.D. degrees in sociology from the University of Pennsylvania.

Experience Varied

Dr. Hotel's experience in the field of education is varied. She has held the position of dean of instruction and professor of education at Queens College, and dean of women and lecturer of sociology at the University of Pennsylvania.

She was director of the Commission on the Education of Women of the American Council on Education, and representative of the United States on the Social Commission of the Economic and Social Council of the United Nations.

She has served as national president of the American Association of University Women.

and is presently chairman of the Standards of the International Federation of University Women. Dr. Hotel is the author of "Prosecutions and Treatment of Women Offenders and the Economic Crisis and How Fare American Women?"

Simkins Speaks

The 4 pm lecturer, Dr. Francis B. Simkins, will speak on "Higher Education and the Nature of the Southern Woman." Dr. Simkins is chairman of the department of history and social sciences at Longwood.

Dr. Simkins received the A.B. degree from the University of South Carolina and the M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from Columbia University. He has taught at Randolph-Macon Woman's College, University of North Carolina, Emory University, Louisiana State University, Memphis State College, and Princeton University.

Dr. Simkins was president of the Southern Historical Association and is a member of the Virginia Historical Society, and the American Association of University Professors. He is the author of "The History of the South."

Dr. Gladys Boone will speak at 8 pm on "The Twentieth Century Revolution and the Higher Education of Southern Women."

Dr. Boone received the B.A. and M.A. degrees in history from Birmingham University, England, and the Ph.D. degree in economics from Columbia University. She has taught industrial relations at Bryn Mawr College and economics at Sweet Briar College.

Boone Active

Dr. Boone was vice-president of the Southern Economics Association and public panel member of the National War Labor Board, Atlanta Region. She is the author of "The Women's Trade Union Leagues in Great Britain and the U.S.A. and Labor Laws in Virginia."

The Institute of Southern Culture was established at Longwood in 1956. The purpose of the Institute is to promote the study of traditional aspects of Southern civilization through academic course work, special lectures, and through the publication of research in the field. Financial support for the institute has been provided by the Longwood College Alumnae Association.

The faculty committee for the current Institute is Miss Virginia Bedford, chairman; Dr. Francis B. Simkins, Dr. R. C. Simmon, Dr. Ruth Wilson, and Mr. John Allen.

Eight Students Acknowledged For Achievement In Academics

By Nancy Mowrey

Who are the students who have the highest grade averages? In answer to one of last week's student letters, the ROTUNDA recognizes for their academic excellence, the top students in each class.

NEDDIE CHAPMAN

These girls are Louise Manka, Neddie Chapman, Mary Catherine Lancaster, Elaine Lohr, Charlotte McClung, Betty Ann Rex, Martha Bergeron, and Ann Cordie.

The senior students with the highest academic averages are Neddie Chapman and Louise Manka. Neddie, with a 2.88 accumulative average, is a math major from Blacksburg. During her years at Longwood she has been active in the Wesley Foundation, serving as president this year, and vice president last year. Neddie is a member of Alpha Kappa Gamma, national honorary leadership society. She is treasurer of the YWCA last year. She is also in the newly organized Lutheran student group, and is a member of Kappa Delta Pi.

She is also a member of Kappa Delta Pi, national honor society. Music and art are her main interests, as shown through her piano and organ playing and oil painting.

In the junior class, Mary Catherine Lancaster and Elaine Lohr have achieved the highest academic averages. Mary Catherine, a day student from Farmville, has an average of 2.90. She is a history and math major in an accelerated three-year program. Her activities include membership in the Granddaughters' club, Pi Gamma Mu, and the French Club. Mary Catherine is interested in politics and enjoys reading novels, but finds little time for pleasure reading. She enjoys almost all kinds of music and swimming. She hopes to do graduate work in math after graduation from Longwood. As a math student, she states that she finds study at home to be quiet and conducive to good work.

Elaine Lohr, a math major from Ashland, has an average of 2.75. She is the new president of the YWCA, and active in the

(Continued on page 4)

LOUISE MANKA

and the Longwood education. Music and art are her main interests, as shown through her piano and organ playing and oil painting.

In the junior class, Mary Catherine Lancaster and Elaine Lohr have achieved the highest academic averages. Mary Catherine, a day student from Farmville, has an average of 2.90. She is a history and math major in an accelerated three-year program. Her activities include membership in the Granddaughters' club, Pi Gamma Mu, and the French Club. Mary Catherine is interested in politics and enjoys reading novels, but finds little time for pleasure reading. She enjoys almost all kinds of music and swimming. She hopes to do graduate work in math after graduation from Longwood. As a math student, she states that she finds study at home to be quiet and conducive to good work.

Elaine Lohr, a math major from Ashland, has an average of 2.75. She is the new president of the YWCA, and active in the

MARY LANCASTER

Hiked Steel Prices Drop As Firms Stop Support

By Joan Lord

Friday afternoon Bethlehem Steel, the No. 2 producer of steel, announced that it was canceling the higher prices it had made effective the day before. This announcement came after Inland and Kaiser said they would not follow the 60-cent increase started by United States Steel Corporation, on Tuesday night. A few hours later U. S. Steel rescinded its increase. President Kennedy had denounced the original increase bitterly and used his entire administration to bring about the rollback. Senator Gore (D-Tenn.) is preparing to introduce three bills that are supposedly designed to protect against unjustified prices and profits in monopoly-controlled industries.

The present outlook on the administration's medical care for the aged bill is for modified approval by the House Ways and Means Committee next month. After passing this obstacle, the measure is expected to move rather easily through the House and Senate.

Last Saturday, sixty wounded and ailing survivors of the Cuban invasion were returned to their families in Miami. Thousands of exiled Cubans filled the airport to greet the men who are the first men liberated from Castro had the invaders rounded up nearly a year ago. These prisoners were released on credit. So far, no money has changed hands, but the Cuban prime minister demands 62 million dollars in ransom for the 1,179 prisoners. Unless a way is found to free the remaining prisoners, the sixty returned men have pledged that they will return voluntarily to Havana's Principe Prison. Eric is sentenced thirty years of hard labor unless the ransom is paid.

AAHPER Meet Draws Landrum

Mrs. Emily K. Landrum, Associate Professor of Physical Education at Longwood College attended the legislative board meetings of the National Section on Dance of the American Association of Health, Physical Education, and Recreation at its annual AAHPER National Convention which was held at Cincinnati, Ohio, April 6-10.

Heard Meetings Held. At the board meetings, procedures were clarified for development and organization of division status of the National Section on Dance which will give the group a vice president of dance on the national executive council and will enlarge the scope of dance to include all forms—folk, ethnic, square, social, ball and modern. Plans were made for a second nationwide conference on dance which will be held in 1965.

Landrum Conferences. Mrs. Landrum conferred with Dr. Eleanor Metheny, Professor of Education and Physical Education, University of Southern California, outstanding researcher and specialist in movement education, regarding her study in creativity. The greater part of one day was spent analyzing the findings of relationships of movement in physical education as it cuts across and through creativity as a basic approach to teaching in physical education through all dance forms. When questioned about the conferences Mrs. Landrum remarked that it was "one of the most thrilling experiences of my professional career, and it was satisfying and encouraging personally to know that which we are searching for is right."

SOPHOMORE "BUTCH" MCDANIEL gets "in the swing" as he practices for the upcoming class tennis doubles.

Photo By Bernard

Red-Whites Lead 20-15

With Three Events Left

By Ginny Gilmore

With three events remaining in Color Cup competition, points now stand with the Red and Whites leading the Green and Whites by an accumulated average of twenty to fifteen.

Full Games Count. Competition opened in the fall with the traditional Thanksgiving hockey games and the tennis singles tournament.

The Green and Whites started with a five point lead by winning the tennis singles. The Red and Whites proved victorious in hockey, however, giving them a five point lead.

Red-Whites Lead

The winter sports brought the score to twenty - fifteen, still favoring the red and whites. Ten points went to the Green and Whites for winning the basketball games, while the ten points for volleyball went to the Red and Whites.

Remaining Events

Softball, tennis doubles, and the swimming meet yet remain to complete the Color Cup Competition. April 26 is the date set for "Fall Out" or "Internals" doubles are now in progress with the first round already completed. All classes have been urged to get their practices in for the softball games, for this could be the deciding event this year.

Sophomores Elect Heads For Circus

(Continued from page 1)

sophomore assistant this year. Wright To Head Sophs.

Betty Wright, president of the sophomore class, served as vice-president of the freshman class. Betty is a physical education major, participating in class basketball and volleyball. Betty is a member of Zeta Tau Alpha sorority and house council.

Serving as vice - president of the sophomore class will be Sally Hall. Sally, an elementary education major, will be secretary of Kappa Delta sorority next year.

Dodge Elected Secretary. For the second consecutive year, Kathy Dodge will serve as secretary for her class. Kathy, an elementary education major, is a member of Zeta Tau Alpha sorority.

Winnie Walker, an art major, will serve as treasurer of the sophomore class. Winnie won the banner for Kuffner in the Color Rush, and she also participated in class basketball. In addition, she is a member of the French Club.

Permanent Class Possible In Future

(Continued from page 2)

morous fables and adventurous legends.

If enough students would be interested in taking a course in German next year, there is a possibility that a credited course would be started. You don't even have to be of German descent to enjoy taking such a class. And just think - when you and your radiating classmates plan a trip to Europe, you'll be able to impress the Germans by speaking their language. And don't forget foreign diplomacy either: who knows you just might marry a future president. Sure, if Jackie Kennedy can learn to speak other languages, you can, too. . . . u . . . u . . . u . . . can't you? Well, good luck, anyway. The class will still welcome new members or visitors.

Dancers In Annual Orchestris Concert

Portray Scents, Art, Fallout Scene

Orchestris conjointly with the modern dance class will sponsor their annual concert of dance, which will be given at 1 p.m., April 26 in Jarman Hall. Orchestris will present two works - "Fall Out" or "Internals of Eternity" and an extravaganza of "Dancing Scents," relating perfumes, music and movement. Students from the second semester dance class, which emphasizes projecting in movement or dance, taking it out of the gym or studio and putting it on stage, will present two compositions relating the abstract paintings of Paul Klee to music especially composed for his works by contemporary composers of the dance, and an extended group work around the theme of a city or group divided as in present day Berlin.

Dance Reflects Paintings. "Little World" from the painting, "In the Grass" by Paul Klee will open the concert. A side of the abstract painting describing little, insignificant people lost among overshadowing greenery will be projected on a screen prior to the dance.

Various states of apathy are disturbed by an arrow, which is symbolic of all of the artists' works, will be danced by Joan Lord. A clock danced by Naomi Golladay and Barbara Agee jars people into existence. Time is more or less punctuated by aimless wandering of lost people, who are Linda Davenport, Diana Delk, Judith Hackney, Harriet Hunt, Libby Predmore, Elizabeth Quaintance, Shelby Webb, Elizabeth Wright.

"Girl Possessed" Portrayed. The second Klee work, "Girl Possessed," to Howard

Giants Defeat Reds, H-S Wins Over RPI

By Dee Watkins

The baseball season is getting well underway. So far in the National League San Francisco has top standing with five wins and no losses. New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, and Washington head the American League. Each team has two wins and one loss.

In National League baseball the San Francisco Giants beat the Cincinnati Reds 13-8 at San Francisco. This fifth consecutive win for the Giants brought the fifth loss out of six games for Cincinnati. Also, in the National League, Philadelphia won over Houston 3-0. Pittsburgh defeated New York 6-2, and St. Louis had a 7-4 victory over Chicago.

In the American League the New York Yankees defeated the Detroit Tigers at Detroit 11-5. Johnny Blanchard of the Yankees brought in four runs with a home run and a single. Detroit started moving up in the seventh, but Mickey Mantle put a stop to it as he caught Chico Fernandez' line.

Other scores in the American League are Cleveland over Washington 6-4, Baltimore with a 3-0 win over Boston, and Los Angeles defeated Minnesota 12-5.

Moving down to the International League, the Jacksonville Suns at Jacksonville defeated the Richmond Vees 11-2. Jacksonville had previously lost two straight games to Richmond.

On the college scene John Hopkins gave Virginia its first loss of the season, 12-8.

Closer to home, Hamden-Sydney at Byrd Park in Richmond finished with a seven-run inning to defeat R. P. I. 19-6. The game was called after the seventh inning by mutual agreement of the two teams.

Other news in the world of sports brings to attention the greater Greensboro Open golf tournament. The defending champion Mike Souchak and Billy Casper took a 54-hole lead in the tournament Saturday. As they went into Sunday's final they had only a two-stroke edge over Sam Snead and Jerry Steel-smith.

Horse - racing news is the victory of Capt. J. L. B. Bentley's "Rus", in the 38th running of the Middleburg (Va.) Hrus Cup. He won by about half a length. "Rus" was ridden by Frank Chapot, a member of the United States equestrian team. The Sorrento International 3 mile tournament took place Saturday. Neale Fraser and Fred Stolle of Australia were in the men's singles finals. Stolle beat the Italian champion, Fausto Gardini, and Fraser was victorious over Warren Woodcock of Austria.

Fourteen Girls Attend Meeting, Watch Gymnast

Fourteen physical education majors went to Roanoke, to participate in the spring workshop of the Division of Girls and Women's Sports, which was held at William Fleming High School. Over 50 high school leaders from all parts of the state attended.

A Swedish gymnast in residence at Woman's College, Greensboro, North Carolina was one of three assisting in teaching apparatus. A gymnast from the New England area, who is a freshman at Woman's College performed on the uneven parallel bars.

The following attended: Flor-erdine Barns, Sarah Jane Ruston, Marcia Caloe, Susan Cox, Chris Longstreet, Joy Moore, Lois Obenshain, Lurline Robertson, Melody Saunders, Sharon Sawyer, Sally Sims, Barbara Stewart, Carrie Lee Wilson, and Judith Leigh Wilson.

Mrs. Emily K. Landrum, Associate Professor of Physical Education accompanied the group.

TO KILL A MOCKINGBIRD

On Sale

at the

COLLEGE BOOK STORE

Visit The DOROTHY MAY STORE

and

See The Newest
In Sportswear

Need A Study Break?

Visit Your

COLLEGE SNACK BAR

for a

Special Treat

Social Sororities Select Leaders For Next Year

By Ann Carroll

Officers for the nine social sororities on campus have been elected for the 1962-1963 school year.

Chosen to lead Alpha Gamma Delta were Mary Wyatt, president; Jean Pollard, first vice president; Mary Warren, second vice president; Marlene Keen, corresponding secretary; Anna White, recording secretary; Katherine Shelton, treasurer; and Dona Seabrough, Panhellenic delegate.

Owen Heads ASA

Charlene Owen was elected president of Alpha Sigma Alpha. Sherill Hudlow will serve as first vice president; Evelyn Gray will be second vice president. Bobbi Loth was chosen recording secretary and Shirley Moody will be corresponding secretary. Treasurer will be Pam Gustafson and Sherill Hudlow will be Panhellenic delegate.

Alpha Sigma Tau officers will be Carol Nye, president; Janice Harris, first vice president; Betty Jean Russell, second vice president; Sandy Little, recording secretary; Barbara Fields, corresponding secretary; Joyce Snyder, treasurer; and Mary Ann Lipford, Panhellenic delegate.

Officers for Delta Zeta will be Barbara Gray Martin, president; Shirley Dumanvant, first vice president; Rosilyn Wright, second vice president; Margaret McMullen, recording secretary; Judy Purcell, corresponding secretary; Frances Daniel, treasurer; and Norah Elliot, Panhellenic delegate.

Bullen To Preside

Kappa Delta will be led by Pam Bullen, president; Ann Carroll, vice president; Sally Hall, secretary; Joan Perry, treasurer; Lovey Glichrst, assistant treasurer; and Carol Doak, Panhellenic delegate.

Ivy President

Joan Ivy will serve as Phi

Mu president. Other officers will be Carol Tew, vice president; Joan Brown, recording secretary; Dolly Miller, corresponding secretary; Ellen Brady, treasurer; Percy Hughes, Panhellenic delegate.

Sigma Kappa president will be Judy Tytus; first vice president will be Beth Goodwyn; second vice president, Gail Crawford; recording secretary, Charlotte Craig; corresponding secretary, Marilyn Hobbs; treasurer, Carol Benton; and Panhellenic delegate, Sue Mosely.

Elected president of Sigma Sigma Sigma was Virginia Summers. Others chosen were Kay Nottingham, vice president; Betty Boyd, recording secretary; Vicki Johnson, corresponding secretary; Jo Leslie Andrews, treasurer; Verna Holden, Panhellenic delegate.

LEADER OF "TROOPS" Kay Godwin coaches incongruous amazons for role in spring play, "Rape of the Belt."

PROFESSOR HAS PUPS. "Lambchop," a Dachshund familiar on campus, owned by Dr. Carolyn Wells, nonchalantly shows off new offspring.

Zeta Tau Alpha officers for next year are Betty Stack, president; Margaret Vaughan, first vice president; Jerry Clarke, second vice president; Fran Webster, recording secretary; Terry Watson, corresponding secretary; Kathy Laing, treasurer; and Dot Pretz, Panhellenic delegate.

Baptist Colleges Tally Per Cents Of Total Grads

Mississippi College ranks fourth in the country among Southern Baptist colleges and universities in total number of 1961 graduates. According to a recent report compiled by the Education Commission of the Southern Baptist Convention in cooperation with the Southern Association of Baptist Colleges and Schools.

Of the thirty-one senior colleges operated under Baptist control, only Baylor University, Wake Forest College and the University of Richmond turned out more graduates than did Mississippi College. The report showed Baylor University with 1,814 graduates, Wake Forest with 484, University of Richmond with 456 and Mississippi College with 427.

Of the 477 graduates receiving degrees from Mississippi College, 79 students received the master of arts or master of education degree while 348 received one of the five bachelor degrees offered by the college.

The Education Commission also showed that Mississippi College was seventh in net enrollment among Baptist colleges and universities as of October 1, 1962. Heading the list was Baylor with an enrollment of 6,077. Following in order were Wake Forest with 2,889, Howard College with 2,188, University of Richmond with 2,169, Stetson University with 1,762, Hardin-Simmons University with 1,714, and Mississippi College with 1,670.

Biologists Meet, Elect Brumfield Vice-President

Dr. Robert T. Brumfield, chairman of the Science Department, was elected vice-president of the Association of Southeastern Biologists at the 25th anniversary meeting on April 12, 13, and 14. The meeting was held at Wake Forest College in Winston Salem, North Carolina.

Other faculty members attending the meeting were Dr. Carolyn Wells, assistant professor of natural sciences; Dr. George W. Jeffers, professor of natural sciences; Mr. Robert E. Merritt, associate professor of natural sciences and Dr. Brumfield's assistant, Marvin Scott.

Students attending were Mary Lee Warriner, Barclay Woodward, Donna Franzen, Judi Tucker, Jackie Poole, Lindy Hatch, and Sandra Weaver.

Can of Wilson's Tennis Balls.....$2.75

Longwood Students

$2.25

at

SOUTHSIDE SUNDRY CO., INC.

NEWMAN'S

MEN'S SHOP

Traditional Styles

111 Main Street

Farmville, Va.

See Our

Ladies' Sportswear

Sophs Present Annual Banquet To Senior Class

May 14, the Sophomore class will hold banquet in honor of its sister class, the Seniors, in the college dining hall.

Guests Invited

Invited guests are Dr. and Mrs. Lankford, Dean Wilson, the seniors and sophomore class sponsors, Mrs. Rex and Mr. French. Also sitting at the head table will be Becky Tuck, senior president, and Margie Twilley, sophomore president.

Wilkes, Woodward Heads Meland Wilkes and Judy Woodward are chairmen of the banquet committee, which will take a different twist this year by using "We'll Be Seeing You" (a look into the seniors' future) as an idea, instead of their past experiences. The sophomores will present skits imitating members of their sister class, as part of the entertainment. The main theme will not be disclosed until the night of the banquet.

Come In and See

Our

New Longwood

Key Charms

Sterling Silver &

Gold Filled

at

MARTIN

THE JEWELER

Top Students Relate Stories Of Success

Continued from page 1

Wesley Foundation. She is a member of Alpha Kappa Gamma and Kappa Delta Pi. She was a senior representative to Student Government. Elaine is in Alpha Sigma Tau sorority and the Lambda Society. As a sophomore, she was animal trainer in Circus. In her freshman year, she had parts in two plays. She also worked on her freshman class production. Elaine enjoys music, dramas and golf. She enjoys work in crafts, but finds little time to spend on this hobby.

Charlotte McClung and Betty Ann Rex are the sophomores with the highest cumulative grade averages. Charlotte is an English and Spanish major from Farmville. Her average is 2.92. Last year she was the day student representative to Student Government. This year she is a representative to the Judicial Board. She has served as class and also the freshman counselor for the YVCA. Betty Ann's other interests include sewing, knitting, playing tennis and swimming. Betty Ann warns that it is very easy to be carried away with the many activities, because there is always something to make demands on one's time.

BETTY ANN REX

Loading the freshman class academically are Martha Bergeron and Ann Cordle. Martha year she was president of her English major from Richmond. Her average is 3.0. She is a member of Alpha Gamma Delta social sorority and served on the Handbook Evaluation Committee. Next year she will be a Panhellenic alternate and reporter for the Spanish Club. She is participating in a May Day dance. The interests are tennis and horseback riding. She is very enthusiastic about water skiing and enjoys reading novels. An interest in arts and crafts has been stimulated by a course she is now taking. Martha also enjoys music, especially progressive jazz. Going president of the Baptist Student Union and will be chairman next year. Charlotte is a member of the Spanish Club and Granddaughters Club. She is an assistant in a Developmental Reading class in the English Department. She likes most sports, especially tennis and swimming. Her other interests include reading and sewing when she has time.

ELAINE LOHR

Betty Ann Rex, with a 2.66 average, is a music major from Charlottesville. She is a member of the Longwood choir and Sigma Alpha Iota, national music fraternity for women. Betty Ann is also in the Granddaughters' Club, Westminster Fellowship and Alpha Sigma Alpha social sorority. Her interests center around music. For her home every week end provides an opportunity for her to visit museums.

MARTHA BERGERON

Ann Cordle's average is 2.94. She is a history and social science major from Victoria. Ann was the valedictorian of her graduating class in high school. She is active in the Wesley Foundation, serving as assistant secretary. Membership in the French club and on the publicity committee for freshman production are activities in which she has participated. She enjoys vocal music, especially singing around singing to a uke with the girls on the hall. Ann likes art, with poster-making her specialty. She also likes to dance the twist. Her summer hobbies are "do-it-yourself" instruction courses in typing, shorthand and sewing. "Studying in itself is a hobby!" says Ann.

ANN CORDLE

The range of interests of all these students is wide and varied. Each of them agree that it is of utmost importance to be discerning in the choice of activities.

BETWEEN BITES...
get that refreshing new feeling with Coke!

Bottled under authority of The Coca-Cola Company by

LYNCHBURG BOTTLING WORKS, Lynchburg, Va.

The Hotunda

VOLUME XLI

Longwood College, Farmville, Va., May 2, 1962

No. 19

CHECKING FINAL PLANS are May Day Dance heads, S. Waugh and S. Freedman.

VMI 'Commanders' Play For May Dance

May Day Dance will be on May 5, from 8 to 12 o'clock in the Main Rec. "Merriment for Her Majesty" is to be the theme. The "VMI Commanders" will provide the music, and attire for the dance is semi-formal.

Co-Chairmen Prepare
Sandra Freedman and Sandy Waugh are co-chairmen in charge of the preparations for the May Day Dance. Barbara Stewart is working with lights. Pegi Evans, Gari Dickson, and Harriet Hunt are making special art effects.

The dancers will be transported back to the days when knighthood was in flower. Decorations will center around a tent effect as the Main Rec becomes Her Majesty's royal jousting tent. There will also be a knight in shining armor and his horses. Shields and swords will deck the royal tent which is to be of blue and yellow. Tickets will be available before the dance as well as at the door. Tickets will be $2.40 per couple.

Before the intermission the May Court will do a figure. The May Queen and her court will reign over the May Day Dance.

PRACTICING UNIQUE TWIST for this year's May Day are G. Taylor, E. McDaniel, S. Metcalf.

Hottle, Simkins, Boone Talk At Institute On Higher Education Of Women In South

By Sharon Coulter

Friday, April 27, the spring series of lectures in the Institute of Southern Culture was presented.

Dr. Althea Hottle, of Bryn Mawr, Pa., spoke in Jarman Auditorium at 11:00. Her topic was "Quality Education for the Southern Woman." Dr. Hottle prefaced the main body of her address with an explanation of the development of the Southern Association of Southern College Women into the American Association of College Women and of the part played in this development by women such as Elizabeth Avery Cole.

Explains Differences
Dr. Hottle then emphasized the fact that the differences in abilities between men and women are less important than the motivational differences among individuals. She stated that in contrast with the one adjustment a boy has to make to his chosen career, a girl must make two major orientations: biological and career fulfillment. She stressed the importance of a liberal arts background with varied programs. The woman would always be able to draw on this liberal arts component. Dr. Hottle stated that the women of the South should look for six things in a college or university: academic climate, the finest faculty possible, quality and preparation among the students, the correct administrative role (not one of dictating to faculty the manner in which they should teach), a good library, and a good curriculum.

Simkins Speaks
At 4:00 Dr. Francis B. Simkins, of Longwood, spoke in the Student Lounge. Dr. Simkins' topic was "Higher Education and the Nature of the Southern Woman." He chose as his thesis his belief that custom and tradition prevent the Southern woman from entering any field other than that of wife and mother. Using as examples Ellen Glasgow, Varina Howell Davis, Julia Peterkin, Mary B. Chestnut, and other famous Southern women, Dr. Simkins showed the fear and suspicion most Southerners entertain for the "intellectual" woman. He stated that the woman most universally disliked in the South is Eleanor Roosevelt.

Dr. Simkins pointed out the reluctance of Southern women to join the suffragettes, to use the power of the vote, or to seek office. The charm of the Southern woman was not neglected. Dr. Simkins quoted Count Keyserling, a German critic of American things as saying that the region below the Potomac possessed the type that "was truly responsible for America's true greatness in the past. It is the type of Southern gentlemen with the corresponding type of women. For these are the only types of 'complete souls' that the United States has ever produced."

Boone Talks on 'Revolution'
The 8:00 lecture was delivered by Dr. Gladys Boone of Sweet Briar College. Dr. Boone spoke on "The Twentieth Century Revolution and Higher Education of Southern Women." Dr. Boone stated that education should offer opportunity for critical comprehension and should encourage use of talent and imagination. She feels that there are five things educators should strive to achieve: to teach a sense of history, to impart knowledge of the biological and social nature of man, to help the student communicate his ideas, and to develop in the student a sense of discrimination.

Dr. Boone asked only that women not be excluded from any field of endeavor on the basis of sex alone. The general problems of the Southern woman are her agrarian past which continues to influence the present, conservatism, jealousy, and the mistaken idea that the end of life is living itself. She did, however, state that certain amounts of awareness of tradition would add balance to twentieth century life.

English - Drama Award Nomination Now Open

A scholarship in memory of Miss Leola Wheeler, former professor of speech and drama at Longwood, will be awarded this month. The Leola Wheeler Scholarship is awarded to a student majoring in English who has demonstrated a particular interest and ability in the field of speech and drama.

Faculty and students are urged to submit nominations for the scholarship to the committee by May 15.

College Pays Tribute
Miss Wheeler retired in 1949 after teaching at Longwood since 1911 except for a few brief "aves of absence. Following her death in 1954, the faculty of Longwood issued the following statement in tribute:

"Leola Wheeler brought to Longwood College the twin stimuli of sound scholarship and broad culture. Her dynamic teaching has endowed a full generation of Virginia girls with enthusiasm for literature and drama. Through them and their teaching, that enthusiasm will live and multiply."

Miss Wheeler was also subsequently honored in the naming of Leola Wheeler Dormitory.

Varied Background

Born in 1884 in Golden, Missouri, Miss Wheeler attended Smith College where she received her A.B. degree. She also studied speech and drama at Emerson College and completed an M.A. degree at Columbia University. She left teaching at Longwood briefly during World War I to serve with the Red Cross in France and again in 1921 when she served with the YWCA in Panama and China. May 15.

College Catalogs For Next Year Now Available

Catalogues for the 1962-63 session are now available in the Public Relations office.

Among the changes included in this issue are the new four-point system, which will become effective with next year's freshman class, and the new summer reading program.

Due to curriculum changes, the music department is not included in this publication. A supplement has been published, which will arrive approximately May 20.

Her Majesty, Queen of the May, Jeanine Mackenzie will begin her reign over merrie olde England as depicted in the Dell on Saturday, May 5, at 3 p.m. Her reign will continue until the conclusion of the May Day dance that night. Nan McLaughlin will serve as Maid of Honor.

Queen Ascends Throne
May Day merriment will commence with the ascension of Her Majesty to an Old English throne. This will be in the center of a platform in the Dell surrounded by periwinkle on lattice work. She will be joined by her Court following their dance to "The Lusty Month of May."

Jeanine will wear a full length white gown. As maid of honor Nan will be dressed in a matching gown of yellow. Dresses for members of May Court are also of the same pattern made in different pastel colors.

Chairman for the May Court committee is Donna Frantzen.

VPI Escorts
Escorts for the May Court, the Maid of Honor and the Queen, are members of the Arnold Air Society of Virginia Polytechnic Institute. This is a senior honorary military society for Air Force cadets. Those on the tentative list of escorts are George Riddle, Bill Anderson, Rick Renne, Aubrey Tarkington, Marshall Noy, Swanson Angle, and Bill Overby.

Others on the list are Johnny Johnson, Lee Hooper, Gene Fife, Vance Hardwick, Larry Baumgardner, Walt Weiss and Don Henshaw.

Court Elected
Jeanine and the members of her court were selected by the student body for their beauty. Jeanine, from Portsmouth, is an Art and French major. She has served as Freshman Counselor and Worship chairman for the Y.W.C.A. This year she was chosen as Madonna for the Christmas present. She has served as treasurer of the Student Education Association, is a member of the H2O Club, and Alpha Sigma Tau social sorority.

Maid of Honor Chosen
Nan McLaughlin was chosen Maid of Honor. An elementary education major from Woodberry Forest, she is a member of Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority, and has been on May Court four years. Zee Tapp will appear for the third year on May Court. She is from Versailles, Kentucky, and is an elementary education major. She has served as vice president of the Madrigal Singers, is a member of the Student Education Association and Alpha Sigma Tau sorority.

Betty Rice Dawson, from Calico, is an English major. She has served as corresponding secretary for Zeta Tau Alpha sorority, vice president and reporter for the French Club, and vice president of the Northern Neck Club. She has also been on the Hotunda staff.

Pretty Active
Nancy Pretty is an elementary education major from Danville. She served as treasurer for Freshman Commission, secretary to her sophomore class, and president of the Y.W.C.A. (Continued on page 6)

Harrison Slated To Give Address For Graduation

Governor Albert S. Harrison, Jr., will be the commencement speaker for the class of 1962.

Holds Other Offices
Governor Harrison, also a lawyer, has held other official positions in the state. He was Commonwealth's Attorney in Brunswick county from 1932 to 1948, and Attorney-general of Virginia from 1958 to 1962. He is a member of the Judicial Conference of Virginia and of the Judicial Council of Virginia.

Senate Member
Governor Harrison was a member of the Commonwealth's Attorneys Association of Virginia, and was president in 1943. He is also a member of the American Bar Association and the Virginia State Bar Association.

Topic Not Announced
The topic of Governor Harrison's address has not been announced.

SIX STUDENTS prepare for big day in dell as they perfect sun dance.

Need For A Counselor

The desire for all Longwood "Ladies" to be happy and well-adjusted is quite strong and, therefore, the spiritual and mental well-being of the individual student is often taken for granted. Recent occurrences, however, have proven in a most regrettable manner that there are at least a few girls here at Longwood who are not completely happy and well-adjusted. But is this distress peculiar only to a few, unfortunate individuals; or is it a more common, more prevalent thing?

The typical college student is between the teenage and adulthood and has attained, perhaps for the first time, the right to make her own decisions. Although this decision-making right is usually welcomed it frequently creates problems which are very difficult for the student alone to solve. The topics of religion, sex, and grades seem to cause the most concern among students of all colleges and universities and, of course, among Longwood "Ladies." On many campuses there are trained individuals to whom the student may take his or her particular problem. However, here at Longwood the girl who has religious or moral doubts, who is having trouble "adjusting," who needs academic advice, will soon find that there is either no one who is properly trained to administer guidance or that the one person she may find to help her is preoccupied with classes or administrative procedure.

This girl may be fortunate in that her problem is not as serious as she thought, that the decision she makes will not have a long range effect on her life, or that she, herself, is capable of eventually solving the problem in an adequate fashion. On the other hand, the girl may, in desperation, act rashly and do permanent damage to herself and to the reputation of Longwood College. Either way the girl will experience lengthy periods of "Depression" and tension which will affect her well-being and that of her friends.

Other colleges and universities have acknowledged the need for professional help for the individual student. The enrollment at Longwood is approximately 1100, and the school is growing. The need for trained assistance increases each time a new student is admitted.

It is past time that the possibility of employing a Student Advisor was investigated. This advisor should be schooled and experienced in either the field of psychiatry, psychology, or sociology, should have no other duty than to be available to any student having need of his service, and should not be obligated to reveal information given in confidence to the Student Government or to the administration except in life or death instances. With this facility, it will be possible to prevent many tragedies, both those affecting Longwood as a whole and those which are personal in nature.

—Sharon Coulter

Intellectual Curiosity?

The annual Institute of Southern Culture lectures which were held here at the end of last week provided, as always, an opportunity for a revivification of one's intellectual outlook. Those in charge of the program are to be commended for their efforts on our behalf.

The Institute lectures, backed financially by our Alumnae Association, provide for us an excellent means of broadening our learning beyond that which we can get in the classroom. But we don't take advantage of this opportunity.

At the lecture held Friday night, Dr. Boone had some advice for the students that she anticipated would be in her audience. She called attention to the fact that there were, regrettably, few students present. It then became evident that there were only seven students in the audience, the remainder of the group of approximately fifty persons being made up of faculty and administration.

It seems that the blame for a lack of academic atmosphere falls mainly on us, the students. We are confronted with academic stimulation and we show our intellectual maturity by avoiding it. What is lacking is an intellectual curiosity on the part of the student body. Anything outside of classes, which we attend because we are made to, could not possibly be more important than sleeping, lying on the roof, watching TV, playing bridge, or just "mickeying."

Another illustration of the many opportunities, that are ours can be found in the many other speakers and educational programs that the college has brought this year. To point up this, the Rotunda on page two, has run a resume of the beneficial programs we have had.

How many of these programs did we attend? Attendance was required for some of them, and for the others, the small number of students who did care to attend is evidence of our almost universal dearth of intellectual curiosity. How many of us have experienced the exhilarating, confidence-inspiring feeling of being in an intellectual argument or discussion, making a good point or two and learning to think for ourselves? If we haven't experienced this, we have missed what is perhaps the most important single thing college has to offer.

LITTLE MAN CAMPUS

Warm Weather Apparel Brings Welcome Change

By Diana Upshur

Spring has finally wobbled its way past winter; the sun occasionally staggers through the clouds, only to retreat hurriedly, giving way to April showers the next day.

With spring come new fashions—bright cheerful colors—a welcome change. One gets tired of wearing wool for seven months. Skirts and blouses seem to take first in wardrobes this spring—they are more practical; dresses are too hard to iron!

Skirt Universal

The wrap-around skirt has appeared universally around the campus. And since the pattern companies usually don't produce patterns of a "fad" until about a year later, many industrious Longwood Ladies have solved the problem by making their own patterns. What do they make them from? Newspaper, of course. (The Rotunda, may be). It is very simple to trace one panel of someone's $13.95 wrap-around skirt, and produce four or five similar panels, for only $2 or $3.

Materials Varied

Materials used to make these "one-day wonders" are unusual and varied: pillow ticking, batik, feed bags (disguised by such names as "printed burlap," "homespun," etc.), and denim

(otherwise known as "bluejean stuff"), are commonly used by these industrious, frustrated, discouraged, or grossly disgusted seamstresses.

Culottes are almost as popular as the wrap-around skirts, and the hemlines are getting shorter and shorter.

Villager Still "In"

Round-collared Villager blouses are still going strong, with the collarless round-neck blouses running a close second, and white, green, and red gym suits tying for third place.

It seems that batik fabric has finally taken over the madras fad, however, madras head scarves are still a campus favorite—for one of two reasons: 1) protection during damp, rainy weather, 2) to cover up hair that did not get rolled in the night before.

Roof Wear

Spring fashions can be seen everywhere—even on the roof tops, where one can see groups of soft, pink bodies stretched out flat on rough gray gravel, toes pointed towards the sun. One style has appeared to dominate the bathing suits this year—the two-piece gym-scarf combination.

As for the new spring styles in pocketbooks, one can only ask, "What are pocketbooks?"

DISPLAYING SPRING APPAREL for classes are Carol Nye and S. Ogilvie.

Review Of Year Reveals Cultural Opportunities Available For Students

By Donna Humphlett and Barbara Poland

In view of the movement on campus to create a more academic atmosphere the Rotunda staff points out what has been available to the Longwood student body during this academic year. Few take full advantage of what the college offers.

Longwood has had a variety of guest speakers and cultural opportunities this year. The speakers' topics have ranged from poetry to evolution; the programs, from ballet to ballad singing. Highlighting the year were two Danforth scholars, Dr. Harold Shapley and Stanley Kunitz.

Shapley Lectures

Dr. Shapley, eminent astronomer, was on campus November 21 and 22. While on campus, Dr. Shapley gave a public lecture on "Galaxies and Man's Place in the Universe," and an assembly address on "Science Ponders Religion." In two informal meetings with students and faculty he discussed "The Origin and Development of Life."

HERBERT PHILBRICK

and "Probing Interplanetary Space."

Kunitz Speaks

Stanley Kunitz, poet and teacher, visited Longwood April 1-3. While on campus, he delivered one assembly lecture, and one lecture in Student Building Reception Room. He also gave a reading of his own poetry. Mr. Kunitz met with student poets and criticized their work.

"Amahl and the Night Visitors" was presented by the Columbus Boy's Choir November 21. This group also sang religious songs and ballads.

(Continued on page 4)

DR. HARLOW SHAPLEY

To The Editor

Dean Cites Changes In Academic Status

Dear Madam:

I have read with excitement the several letters and editorials which have appeared in your paper concerned with the academic quality of our beloved college. They warm the fires of an old heart.

Intrusion into the discussion of this issue would be the last thing I would want to do. Maybe, however, I can add a little fuel to the fire.

Therefore, allow me to call to your attention some of the things which in recent years have been done to make Longwood a more academically demanding college. I am sure the listing will be incomplete, if for no other reason than lack of space.

I would begin with our selective admissions system. This has been in operation for years. It is constantly being revised upward. The latest instance of such revision is our new preferential standing for students who have studied algebra and plane geometry.

I consider faculty appointments a matter of great, even though not observable, importance. The college is spending a great deal of time to assure the fact that we add the most highly qualified scholars to our faculty. The faculty is constantly studying its grading procedures toward more uniformity and higher levels of performance. Another continuing study of real significance is in relation to dropouts, primarily as to their courses. Every department in the college is being urged to make a penetrating study of its offerings—both as to courses, and the content of existing courses—toward the end of creation of a greater intellectual challenge.

The adoption of the four point system for the calculation of academic averages is more than merely a mechanical device. It differentiates between D's and F's. The retention of all D's and F's on a student's record for the determination of her average prevents the luxury of being lazy at times. This will also warn against lapses which produce academic probation. The higher academic requirement for remaining in good academic standing is a justifiably demanding one.

Longwood's Honors Program is a somewhat dormant factor in our academic world. I see, however, some possibilities that it could undergo a real awakening, and arouse robust academic enthusiasm amongst many students.

The above specifics constitute a partial picture of our efforts toward improving our intellectual environment. They may be too pedestrian. Let me conclude with a small item, but one which in its potentialities could produce greater steps. I refer to the summer reading practice by which a student at home can read in a selected field and earn two semester hours of credit. This could open many windows of the mind not measurable in credits.

Yours sincerely,

C. G. Gordon Moss

Ed. Note: The summer reading program referred to by Dr. Moss is new this year. More information can be obtained from the respective heads of departments.

Timely Topics

Summit Talks Put Off
As Nuclear Tests Begin

By Doris Smith

President Kennedy and Prime Minister Macmillan have agreed not to ask for an early summit conference with Premier Khrushchev. They want to wait until a meeting of this kind would produce an agreement rather than straining conditions more. It was acknowledged that it would be impossible to make a new attempt at banning nuclear tests until after the United States has completed the present test series and the Soviet Union has finished an expected new series.

South Viet Nam's guerilla war grew in intensity this last week with more than 200 Viet Cong Communists being killed, United States special forces are arming, training and organizing the Rhade tribesmen into an effective anti-guerilla army.

A difference on how to make a Berlin settlement without recognizing the East German Communist regime seems to focus a United States proposal to create an international body to supervise access routes to West Berlin, East Germans as well as West Germans would be sitting in. Foreign Minister Gerhard Schröder felt that West Germany is prepared to accept the United States formula provided there is no interference of the East Germans with the access routes and that there is no implied recognition of the East German regime.

Plans for a special NATO nuclear committee are to be offered to allies of the United States. The plans include the extensive information on the number, location, and capacities of the nuclear warheads stationed in Europe for the common defense.

Horace E. Henderson was elected to the office of Republican state chairman. He asked for GOP to "conduct political warfare constantly, between as well as during election campaigns."

The proposal to cut foreign aid to neutral nations critical of United States policies and nuclear testing will be opposed by Senate leaders. Senator Humphrey said he doesn't believe foreign aid should be granted on the basis of whether or not we like the attitudes of these countries. Foreign aid should be judged on the basis of promoting economic progress in the world and thus serve our national interests.

The Shenandoah Apple Blossom Festival will be held this weekend, May 3-5. Queen of the festival this year is Miss Patricia Anne Godfrey, daughter of television and radio performer Arthur Godfrey.

Sports Program
Great Success
In Past Season

By Ginny Gilmore

The 1961-62 year proved to be a good one for Longwood as far as sports were concerned. The varsity basketball and hockey teams came through the season with honors, while Longwood played host to the Tidewater Hockey Tournament and to Miss Constance Applebee.

Two Hockey Losses
Serving as varsity hockey captain was Trina Childress, a senior physical education major from Princess Anne, Virginia. Parker, a senior physical education major from Saluda, and Gay Taylor, a sophomore physical education major from Gretna held the positions of co-managers.

The hockey squad finished their season with six wins, two ties and two losses. The Richmond Club, a semi-professional team, tied Longwood in their annual game here this year.

Members of the varsity team were Flossie Barnard, Ellen Brady, Trina Childress, Susan Ooe, Betty Lou Dunn, Janice Harris, Lindy Hatch, Cheramy Howe, Brenda Isabel, Earlene Lang, Barbara Gray Martin, Shirley Metcalf and Joy Moore. Also on the team were Morag Nocher, Lois Obenshain, Virginia Parker, Sandra Phlegar, Faye Ripley, Sharon Sarver, Jo Savage, Joyce Snyder, Barbara Stewart, Gay Taylor, Peg Waldo, Susie Waters, and Judy Wilson.

Applebee Visits
Miss Constance Applebee, field hockey expert from England, visited ited Longwood and addressed the student body on November 3. Her topic was "How to Keep Fit By Playing Hockey." Miss Applebee introduced field hockey to the United States in 1901. At present she is director of the Pocono Hockey Conference located at Mount Pocono, Penn., which she organized in 1922.

LONGWOOD'S SPORTS PROGRAM boasts (above left) winning basketball and (above right) hockey teams, also, hosting Tidewater Hockey Tournament.

Tidewater Tourney
Another event during the hockey season was the Tidewater Tournament held at Longwood this year. Barbara Stewart, a junior physical education major from Roanoke, served as student chairman.

The purpose of the tournament was to choose the first and second Tidewater Teams to travel to the Southeastern Hockey Tournament. This was the first in a series leading to the National Tournament, where the first and reserve teams were chosen for the United States hockey team.

Those representing Longwood in the Tidewater Tournament were Flossie Barnard, Ellen Brady, Trina Childress, Betty Lou Dunn, Janice Harris, Lindy Hatch, Cheramy Howe, Morag Nocher, Virginia Parker, Sandra Phlegar, Faye Ripley, Jo Savage, Barbara Stewart, and Peg Waldo.

Longwood players representing the Tidewater area in the Southeastern Tournament were Trina Childress, Lindy Hatch, Peg Waldo, Janice Harris, and Virginia Parker.

One Basketball Loss

The varsity basketball squad came through the season with a thirteen-one record, losing their only game to Westhampton, but retaining to win the next.

Co-managers of the team were Flossie Barnard, a junior physical education major from Richmond, and Norma Eudy, a sophomore elementary education major from Randolph. Team co-captains this year were Lindy Hatch, a junior biology major from Falls Church Annandale and Sandra Phlegar, a junior physical education major from Forest.

Members of the team were Sandra Ashworth, Shirley Carr, Kathy Dean, Norma Eudy, Doris Harrison, Lindy Hatch, Brenda Isabel, Lois Obenshain, Sandra Phlegar, Earlene Robertson, Sharon Sarver, Melody Saunders, Ann Sneed, Jean Sull, Linda Sudduth, Gay Taylor, and Carrie Lee Wilson.

VMI Downs Virginia
In Big Five Events

By Joan Lord

VMI's Keydets were victorious over Virginia's Cavaliers in a Big Five track meet on Saturday. The final event, the mile relay, was the deciding factor as either team could have won the meet. By winning the mile relay, the Keydets overpowered the Cavaliers by 69 1/4 to 61 1/4.

Even in overall defeat, two Virginia stars made records with Dave Graham breaking the school record in the shot put and Fred Stubbfield running the 880 in a time not attained since 1916 at the University of Virginia.

In baseball, winning 4-0 over Virginia Tech, VMI now has an

LC Downs RPI
In Competition
As Games Begin

The varsity tennis team won their two doubles against Richmond Professional Institute in their first games of the spring season on April 25.

Two Doubles Played

The two doubles games won were played by Ann Green and Henrietta Gilliam, and Anne Downey and Shearer Ebert.

Captain of the tennis team this year is Ann Egerton, a senior English major from Farmville. Serving as manager is Lindy Hatch, a junior biology major from Annandale.

Seven Members

Team members are A. Downey, S. Ebert, A. Egerton, H. Gilliam, A. Green, L. Hatch, and L. Obenshain.

Other games scheduled for the spring are Lynchburg, May 1; Westhampton, May 9; and Williams and Mary, May 17.

overall record of 4-4.

At Virginia look first place in the Southern Conference Saturday by defeating Furman 3-2. West Virginia is the defending Conference champion and now has a 7-1 conference record and 12-3 overall mark for this year.

In Atlantic Coast Conference play Duke beat Virginia 9-2. The Blue Devils built an early lead and held it throughout the game, adding runs in the fifth inning.

Hamden-Sydney lost to Randolph-Macon 10-1 on Saturday as Randolph - Macon's Yellow Jackets move closer to the Little Eight League lead.

Losing 10-3 to the New York Yankees the Washington Senators went down for their eleventh consecutive defeat. Hitting home runs for New York were Lopez, Boyer, and Maris.

Pitching three scoreless innings Roger Craig, fourth pitcher for the New York Mets, led his team to victory over the Philadelphia Phillies, 8-6.

Kent University
Cuts Admissions

Faced with a shortage of housing, classroom space, and operating funds, Kent State University (in Ohio) will restrict new freshman enrollment next fall by expanding its deferred admission policy. Registrar Charles E. Atkinson said recently that Kent now is approving unconditionally only applications of high school seniors with grade averages of 2.5 (B-minus) or better for seven semesters of work.

"Admission practices are being tightened because of the lack of campus housing, classroom and laboratory space and finances to hire additional faculty," Mr. Atkinson explained.

Photo By Bernard

PRACTICING CLASS SOFTBALL are B. Aage and G. Taylor. Class softball this year pits sister classes against each other in competition.

Southside Sundry Co.

Film Developed And Printed Oversize

8 Exposures ..... .39
12 Exposures ..... .55

Can of Wilson's Tennis

Balls.....$2.75

Longwood Students
$2.25

Helene Rubinstein

SHAMPOO

$2.50 Value
On Sale For Once
A Year
SPECIAL $1.50

NEWMAN'S
MEN'S SHOP

Traditional Styles
111 Main Street
Farmville, Va.

See Our
Ladies' Sportswear

Longwood Rings

Black Onyx ..... $5.50

at

LONGWOOD
JEWELERS

For Art Supplies
and
Books Visit
The
COLLEGE
BOOK STORE

Warming up for class tennis, P. O'Neill "sends one across net."

Come in and See Our
Ballerina Length
Formals and Floor
Length Formals
at the
DOROTHY MAY
STORE

BETWEEN CLASSES... get that refreshing new feeling
with Coke!

Bottled under authority of
The Coca-Cola Company by

LYNCHBURG BOTTLING WORKS, Lynchburg, Va.

Players Present Oscar Awards To Atkinson, Couchman, Godwin

As the movie world acknowledged its outstanding performers by way of the annual Oscar Awards, the Longwood Players also recognize the best of the year by their own Oscars. At assembly yesterday, Mike Couchman, Betty Ann Atkinson, and Kaye Godwin were presented the top awards given by the players. The awards were for Best Actor, Actress, and a Special Award.

Couchman, a member of the Hampton-Sydney Jungs, has been working in productions for a year and a half. Last fall he played Lord Lean, a typical member of English high society, in "The Admirable Crichton." In "Antigone," which earned him a good review and won him the Oscar, he had the demanding role of Creon, a Greek king and Antigone's uncle.

Atkinson Best Actress

Since her freshman year, Betty Ann Atkinson has had a part in every play put on by the Longwood Players. In "The Admirable Crichton" this year she played Twicken, one of the major roles. Her Oscar Award was for her performance as Mrs. Smith in "The Bald Soprano." Betty Ann is also the new secretary of the Longwood Players and has received a bid from Alpha Psi Omega, honorary dramatic fraternity.

Godwin Takes Oscar

The 1962 Special Award was presented to sophomore Kaye Godwin for her "jack-of-all-trades" work behind stage. Her official title is Stage Manager, but Kaye has helped in anything from hammering to curtain pulling and everything in between, as the other backstage workers say of her. Kaye has worked on both fall and spring plays, plus many other school productions not sponsored by the Players.

These awards were presented to the winners by Mr. Richard Wiles, director and coach for the plays.

Standards for Selection

In order to win the titles, the students were required to pass a test on business fundamentals and general information on subjects such as spelling, plurals, grammar, expression, general information, judgment, arithmetic, and memory. The candidates making the three highest scores were then interviewed by judges composed of successful business executives and outstanding business teachers who rated the candidates on personal appearance, personality, conduct during the interview, evidence of career planning, academic average, participation and leadership in college activities, and evidences of potential executive or teaching ability, depending on the contest in which the contestant was competing.

Dr. M. L. Landrum, Chairman of the Business Education Department said that this adds two more outstanding achievements to the list already made by the business education students and staff members.

NOVEMBER PLAY, "Admirable Crichton," included E. Baker, C. McNair, and B. A. Atkinson in cast.

DR. MORTIMER ADLER addresses the student body on "The Existence of God."

Student Body Active In Culture Programs

(Continued from page 2)

The French Club sponsored the French film "Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme" in January. Herbert A. Philbrick spoke to the student body January 16. Philbrick is noted for the years he spent as a counterparty for the FBI. He is the author of "I Led Three Lives."

During the months of April and March, two authors visited Longwood to speak to the creative writing class taught by Mr. Ellington White. Curtis Harnack, novelist, was on campus March 28. David Jenkins spoke to the class in April.

Romer Visits

Dr. Alfred S. Romer spoke to the student body April 6. His topic was "Climbing the Prime Family Tree - Origin of Man." Dr. Romer is one of the most outstanding paleontologists in the United States.

Richard Dyer-Bennet, appearing here last month, received the acclaim of the student body. This year also marked the advent of art films on the Longwood campus. Initiated by the student body, the movement to get art films was aided by Dr. Neuve. The first movie "Riffifi" was presented March 10 in Jarman Hall.

Bringing the academic year to close was the annual Institute of Southern Culture. The theme of the lectures centered around the education of the southern woman. Guest speakers were Dr. Althea Hotel, Dr. Francis B. Simkins, and Dr. Gladys Boone.

Students Contribute

Longwood students also contributed greatly to the school's cultural programs. The first student production of the year was the play, "The Admirable Crichton," by James M. Barrie. Good casting and excellent scenery made the presentation a success.

Throughout the year, student concerts were given by members of Sigma Alpha Iota, honorary music fraternity.

The Longwood Players presented "Antigone" by Anouilh, and "The Bald Soprano" by Eugene Ionesco in March.

Leonard To Talk On Mission Life

Barbara Leonard will be at the Methodist Student Center today and tomorrow to report on the situation in the Philippines today, the life and mission of the church in the Philippines, and the opportunities in missionary service.

Works in Philippines

Barbara Leonard has recently returned from a special-term period of service in San Mateo, Philippines, where she has been youth director of the Cagayan Valley.

RICHARD DYER-BENNET

Graduate Study Abroad Available Through IEA

More than 800 American students will have an opportunity to pursue graduate study or research in 46 countries in the academic year 1963-64 through scholarships made available under the Fulbright-Hays Act of 1961, the Institute of International Education announced today. IIE administers the graduate student scholarship program for the Department of State.

Three types of grants are available. A full U. S. Government Grant provides round-trip transportation, maintenance, tuition and books. These awards are available for study in Argentina, Australia, Austria, Burma, Ceylon, Chile, China (Republic of), Denmark, Ecuador, Finland, France, Germany (Federal Republic of), Greece, Iceland, India, Iran, Ireland, Italy, Japan, Korea, Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Pakistan, Peru, Philippines, Portugal, Spain, Sweden, Turkey, United Arab Republic and the United Kingdom (including overseas territories).

A joint U. S. and other Government Grant provides a travel award from the U. S. Government in conjunction with foreign government grants which provide tuition and full or partial maintenance. These joint awards are available for study in Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Costa Rica, Ecuador, Guatemala, Haiti, Honduras, Mexico, Nicaragua, Poland, Rumania, Panama, Paraguay, Peru, and Venezuela.

Travel Grants

The third type of award, Travel-Only Grants, supplements a scholarship received from a foreign government, university or private donor. Travel - Only awards are available for study in Austria, Denmark, France, Germany, Israel, Italy and The Netherlands.

General eligibility requirements for all types of grants are: 1) U. S. citizenship at time of application; 2) a Bachelor's degree or its equivalent before the beginning date of the grant; 3) language proficiency sufficient to carry out the proposed study and to communicate with the people of the host country; 4) good health. A good academic record and a demonstrated capacity for independent study are also necessary. Preference is given to applicants under 35 years of age who have not previously lived or studied abroad.

November Deadline

Applicants for scholarships for 1963-64 will be accepted until November 1, 1962. Requests for applications must be postmarked by October 15. Students enrolled at a college or university should consult their campus Fulbright Program Advisers. Others who are interested may write to the Information and Counseling Division, Institute of International Education, 800 Second Avenue, New York 17, New York, or to any of IIE's regional offices.

Since the academic year 1948-49, approximately 10,000 American graduate students have studied abroad under the programs which are now covered by the new Fulbright-Hays Act.

Institute Purpose

The Institute of International Education, founded in 1919, seeks to encourage international understanding and foster educational development abroad through programs of international education. It administers exchange programs which annually involve over 5,000 students, teachers, specialists and leaders between the United States and more than 85 countries, and is an information center on all aspects of international education.

Patronize

The Rotunda

Advertisers

For A Tasty Treat

Visit Your

College

"Rec"

Examination Schedule

Second Semester

1961-62 Session

Examination Day and Date	Morning 8:05-11:05	Afternoon 1:05-4:05
Thursday, May 24	Reading Period	Reading Period
Friday, May 25	10:05 TTS Classes TTH Classes TUS Classes THS Classes	2:05 MWF Classes MW & WF Classes MTWTF Classes
Saturday, May 26	9:05 TTS Classes TTH Classes TUS Classes THS Classes
Monday, May 28	11:05 TTH Classes 2:05 TTH Classes	1:05 MWF Classes MW Classes WF Classes MTWTF Classes
Tuesday, May 29	9:05 MWF Classes MW & WF Classes MTWTF Classes	11:05 MWF Classes MW & WF Classes MTWTF Classes
Wednesday, May 30	8:05 MWF Classes MW Classes WF Classes MTWTF Classes TWTHS Classes	3:05 4:05 MWF Classes MTWTF Classes TTH Classes MW & WF Classes
Thursday, May 31	8:05 TTS Classes TTH Classes THS Classes	10:05 MWF Classes MW & WF Classes MTWTF Classes

Monday, May 28, 7:00-10:00 P.M. - CONFLICTS, Room 21

Any student with an examination conflict should notify the professor responsible for administering one of the examinations in conflict. The professor will deliver the examination for the student to the Dean of the College before the Monday evening examination conflict period.

Any deviation from the above schedule must be approved in advance by the Dean of the College.

Examinations for evening classes will be scheduled on the evening of the regular class meeting during the examination period.

Little Sister and Graduation Gifts!
The New English Bible
Leaves of Gold
Friendship Ideas
Poetry Collections
Beyond Ourselves
WEYANOK
BOOK SHOP

Get Your Shower
and Bride's Gift
at
LANSCOTT'S

The Best In
Flowers Waits
For You
at
COLLIN'S FLORIST

EX 2-4154

Martin's Jewelers
Wishes to Extend
Their Appreciation
For the Business
They Received From Longwood College
This Year

HOLLYWOOD
BEAUTY COLLEGE

We want to Thank all of the Girls for patronizing us and extend an invitation to the summer students to

Shampoo & Sets .... $1.00
Cut ..... $1.00
Permanent ..... $5.00

Committee Displays 30 Hattorf Paintings

The Longwood Committee for the Purchase of Paintings by Virginia Artists is presenting a Mr. and Mrs. exhibition.

Thirty paintings by Mr. Alvin Hattorf and Mrs. Helen King Hattorf, of Richmond, have been on display since April 18 and may be seen until May 13 in the library exhibition room and Jarman Auditorium lobby. They include Along Broad Street, Traffic Lights, Election Rally, and After The Swim by Mrs. Hattorf and Clowns and Tar-Paper Shack by Mr. Hattorf.

Mr. Hattorf studied with Morris Kantor and Vytasell in the Art Students' League at Provincetown, Massachusetts, and the Colorado Springs Fine Arts Center under Hans Hoffman and Henry Hensche. His work has been exhibited in the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts, the Valentine Museum, the Butler Art Institute and other out-of-state galleries. Mr. Hattorf was given the Trustees Award at the Valentine Museum in 1960.

Has Similar Experience

Mrs. Helen King Hattorf earned a B. A. degree at Northwestern University and an M. A. degree at the Art Institute of Chicago and Columbia University Teachers College. She also studied with Hans Hoffman and the Art Students' League with Morris Kantor and Vytasell. Her work has been exhibited in the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts, Valentine Museum, Corcoran Gallery, Pennsylvania Museum and other out-of-state galleries. Mrs. Hattorf was awarded the Purchase Prize at the Valentine Museum in 1960, and she has had the distinction of being featured in a one-man show at the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts in 1960.

One Selected

From the Hattorf exhibit the Longwood Committee for the Purchase of Paintings by living Virginia Artists will select one painting as this year's addition to the Longwood Collection. In 1951 the committee was formed and now is made up of Mrs. Janice Lemen, chairman, Miss Virginia Bedford, Miss Annie Lee Ross, Miss Emily Barkshire, and Dr. Charles Patterson.

First Purchase

The first purchase by this committee was a painting by Edith DeFord and is titled I Started Early in the Morning. It may be seen at present in the Rotunda at the right side of the entrance to the dining room. The 1952 purchase Kathy with Pearls by Greta Matson is now in the Home Office. Cydliaman in White Seated Chair, last year's addition, by Julien Binford is in the Virginia Room. The Hattorf painting to be purchased will be the ninth such purchase.

Catholic Come

The Longwood Newman Club will be host to Father Shaun McCarty of Father Judge Mission Seminary, Monroe, Va., on Sunday May 13. There will be talks and discussions on topics such as:

Birth Control
Mixed Marriages
Evolution

The Non-Catholics are invited to come - St. Therese's Catholic Church, 9:15 a.m.

Newman Clubs Attend Meeting, Elect Officers

Three members of the Longwood Newman Club, B. J. Camp, Mary Glenn Falls, and Ginny Sturm, attended a conference of Newman Clubs of the Piedmont Province in Roanoke April 7 and 8. This province includes such colleges as William and Mary, VPI, Lynchburg College, and U. Va.

Elections Held

In elections held at the conference, Ginny was elected treasurer of the province and B. J. is the new chairman of the central region.

Father Shaun McCarty, of Father Judge Mission Seminary, gave the keynote address, "Love in Service" which explained the work of Newman Clubs in the lay apostolate.

New officers of the club on

Curnutt, Adams Direct Seminars In Music Fields

The Department of Music at Longwood will hold a piano seminar this summer from June 18-June 29. Mr. Sterling Adams is the director of this seminar for piano teachers, high school and college pianists, and soloists.

During this two weeks of concentrated music, graduates and undergraduates may receive two hours of college credit. It will include a piano recital by Walter Roberts, visiting artist, and a piano recital by Mr. Sterling Adams.

For church organists, pianists, and church choir directors, a church music seminar will be held from July 1-July 14, to be directed by Dr. Joanne Curnutt. Two hours credit may be earned from this seminar also. During this period of study, students will have daily instruction with Professors Adams, Curnutt, and Olson, choir concerts, and organ recitals.

Total charges to Virginia students for each seminar, including room, board, and tuition will be $62.00. Application blanks may be obtained from the directors of both music seminars.

Longwood's campus are Ginny Sturm, president; Amy Haley, vice - president; B. J. Camp, treasurer; and Janet Siod, secretary.

Father Carl B. Reikowsky, pastor of the Catholic Church in Farmville, is the local club's sponsor.

Photo By Bernard

STUDENTS VIEW Hattorf painting on display in Jarman Hall. The remainder of the paintings are on display in the library.

Review Of 'Institute' Lectures Published In 'Virginia Magazine'

The first full-length book review in a scholarly journal of The Dilemma of the South: Institute of Southern Culture Lectures at Longwood College, 1961, appears in the April issue of the Virginia Magazine of History and Biography.

Edited By Meeker
The Longwood publication, edited by Dr. Richard K. Meeker, associate professor of English, is called a "valuable little book . . . indeed excellent essays, on an important topic." The reviewer, Dr. Louis D. Rubin, Jr. of Hollins College, says, "It is high time that Longwood's Institute of Southern Culture received the recognition it deserves. There is no more meritorious an intellectual venture going on in the Commonwealth of Virginia. The alumnae of Longwood College who sponsor the Institute can be very proud of their college's initiative and imagination."

Schlegel, Meeker Contributor
Dr. Meeker and Dr. Dorothy B. Schlegel, both of Longwood's English department, are contributors to the volume. Dr. Meeker's essay on The Shadowy Stories of Ellen Glasgow is termed "a sensible, perceptive evaluation of Miss Glasgow's labors in this form . . . Perhaps a collected edition of Miss Glasgow's short stories is in order. I suspect Mr. Meeker has designs along that line, and I hope so."

Book Reviewed
The reviewer calls Mrs. Schlegel gel's essay on "Cabell and his Critics" "one of the most interesting and clear-sighted essays in this book . . . No one is doing better work on this often overlooked Virginia author than Mrs. Schlegel. If this essay is to be a part of a larger study, then I hope that the full work will soon become available. There is an urgent need for intelligent, imaginative criticism of Cabell's fiction, and Mrs. Schlegel's is all of that and more."

In looking over the five volumes published so far in the Institute of Southern Culture series, Dr. Rubin agrees with the editor, Dr. Meeker, who "very properly finds it hard to resist boasting that we have the best volume in the series" in The Dilemma of the Southern Writer.

Music Students Present Recital Of Organ, Voice

The Longwood College Music Department presented Doris Harwell, Marilyn Anthony, and Patricia Spies in an organ and voice recital on Monday, April 30, in Jarman Auditorium.

Not All Music Majors
Doris Harwell is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Harwell of Petersburg. She is a freshman Music Education major.

Marilyn Anthony is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ned D. Anthony of Arlington. At Longwood she is a sophomore piano major.

Pat Spies is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey A. Spies of Baltimore, Maryland. She is a freshman pre-nursing major. Before coming to Longwood she was organist and choir director at St. Paul's Reformed Church in Baltimore.

Program Varied
Doris Harwell opened the program with Noel X by Louis Claude Daquin. Ich ruf' zu dir, Herr Jesu Christ and Prelude and Fugue in C Major by J. S. Bach. Marilyn Anthony sang Should He Upbraid by Henry Rowley Bishop, Solveig's Song by Edvard Grieg, and O Mio Babbino Caro from the opera Gianni Schicchi by Giacomo Puccini. Pat Spies closed the program with Wir danken dir, Herr Jesu Christ and Jesus, meine Freude by J. S. Bach, and In Dulci Jubilo and Prælium, Fugue and Ciaccona by Diderik Buxtehude.

Music Students
Miss Harwell and Miss Spies are students of Dr. Joanne Curnutt, assistant professor of organ and harpsichord at Longwood. Miss Anthony is the student of Mr. James McCombs, assistant professor of music here.

Wells, Brumfield Present Papers At Biology Meet

Dr. Carolyn Wells and Dr. Robert T. Brumfield presented papers at the 23rd Annual Meeting of the Association of Southern Biologists held April 12-14 at Wake Forest College in Winston-Salem, North Carolina.

Possible Breeding Systems for the Study of Recessive Mutations in Tetrahymena pyriformis was explained by Dr. Wells. The research and writing of this paper was conducted by Dr. Wells and her assistant, Lindy Hatch.

Dr. Brumfield explained and demonstrated "A Photographic Instrument for Determining Cellular Growth Rates in Roots of Small - Seeded Grasses." The photographic instrument is a special camera that records the whole length of the growing point on one 38-cm. length of 35 mm. film at a magnification of 175x.

Exhibits, paper sessions, business meetings, a banquet, and a general session commemorating the 25th anniversary of the Association of Southern Biologists highlighted the conference.

You're in Beautiful Shape

for a spectacular splash . . . 8.99

What super form . . . you in a 'Joyce Lane' knit maillor or skirted swim sheath. Deep scoop backs, lined nylon mesh bras. Sleek Orlon/acrylic-rubber-nylon. $2 to $8.

- A. Black, Capri blue or orange
- B. Black, Capri blue or real red
- C. Black, Capri blue or cocoa
- D. Black, Capri blue or lime

Styled by Celmy Swimsuits

W. T. GRANT CO. Your Friendly Family Stores
1000 stores, coast to coast

UVa-LC Speech Course Topic Of Burr Speech

Dr. Helen Burr, Director of the Speech and Hearing Center at the University of Virginia will be at Longwood on May 10 in West Wing 108 from 3 to 5 p.m.

To Discuss Speech

The purpose of her visit is to discuss with interested students the new Cooperative Program between Longwood and the University of Virginia in Speech Correction and Audiology. Also she will speak to those students interested in graduate work in this field.

Speech Major Provided

The new Cooperative Program sets up a curriculum where students from Longwood may major in Speech Correction and Audiology. Students would attend Longwood for three years and take a special curriculum. In their senior year students would attend the University of Virginia and take courses concerned with speech and hearing. They would graduate from Longwood with either a Bachelor of Science degree in Secondary Education or a Bachelor of Arts degree in Secondary Education with a major in Speech Correction and Audiology.

Professors Cooperate

Dr. James M. Mullendore, formerly Director of the Speech and Hearing Center at the University of Virginia, and Dr. Simonini, the head of Longwood's English Department, worked together to set up the curriculum for this Cooperative Program. Dr. Mullendore, for a number of years, has visited Longwood to talk with students interested in doing graduate work in Speech Correction and Audiology. After recognizing the Longwood students' increased interest in this field he suggested a Cooperative Program. The plan was approved on February 4, 1961 by the Academic Policies Committee of Longwood.

3 Attend Meeting Of History Group

Dr. Marvin W. Schlegel, Mr. James Helms and Mr. David Vieira attended the annual meeting of the Virginia Social Sciences Association at the University of Richmond on Saturday, April 21. The meeting was held in the new business administration building.

At the Association meeting, papers were read in the various fields of social science. One such paper was entitled "The Common Market." Mr. Helms summarized up the meeting by saying, "We had some good sessions."

MacNeil To Give Senior Recital In Jarman May 6

Madeline MacNeil, soprano, will be presented in her senior recital by the Music Department of Longwood College on Sunday, May 6, at 4 p.m. in Jarman auditorium. Miss MacNeil is a pupil of James McCombs and is a candidate for the Bachelor of Music Education degree.

Choir, Madrigal Member

At Longwood, Madeline is a member of the choir, Madrigal Singers, Sigma Alpha Iota, national honorary music fraternity for women, and is listed in the 1962 edition of Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities.

Program Varied

The program includes four early Italian arias, the song cycle Frauenleben Und Leben by Robert Schumann, the "Til est-Doux, il est bon" from the opera Herodias by Massenet, and five contemporary songs in English.

Pennington Accompanies

Her accompanist for the program is Jane Pennington from Washington, also a senior music major.

The family and student body are invited to attend.

wood. It was also approved by the Director of the Speech and Hearing Center and the Dean of the School of Education of the University of Virginia.

Warren Participates

Currently, Wendy Warren, a student of Longwood, is participating in this program. She is the first Longwood student to take this curriculum and is now completing her senior year at the University of Virginia. She will graduate from Longwood at the June commencement.

In a letter to Dr. Simonini, Wendy made the following comment, "This year at the Speech and Hearing Center has been quite an academic challenge as well as a highly inspiring experience. Dr. Burr and her staff have been very hospitable and encouraging in our several activities at the clinic — an atmosphere which has made me feel very much a part of the established group from the beginning of the semester. My work includes course work and observations and practice at the University Hospital and in the local Rehabilitation Center, as well as in the Speech and Hearing Clinic."

Faculty Artists Present Works In UVa Exhibit

Two Longwood faculty artists are represented in the Third Annual Virginia Printmakers Exhibition in Newcomb Hall at the University of Virginia (Apr. 1-May 11). They are Mrs. Janice Speer Lemen and Miss Annie Lee Ross, associate professors of art.

Mr. Lemen has "Golden in Summer" and "Dual Duet," both serigraphs, on display. Miss Ross has the block prints as "Rocky Mountain Burro," "Chipmunks," and "The Flight into Egypt," included.

Broad Study

Mrs. Lemen received her B.S. degree from State College, Cape Girardeau, Missouri, and her M.A. degree from Peabody College at Nashville. She is past president of the Art Department of Virginia Education Association and of the Virginia Art Alliance. Her work has been displayed in Studio Gallery, Alexandria; Pyramid, Richmond; Artists' Gallery, Virginia Beach; and Twentieth Century Gallery, Williamsburg.

Holds One-man Show

Miss Ross received her B.F.A. degree from Bethany College and her M.A. degree from Ohio State University. She is a member of the Southeastern Art Association and American Association of University Women. She has had a one-man show at the Salina (Kansas) Art Association and exhibitions at University of Kansas and in Omaha, Nebraska. Miss Ross's research paper, "Domestic Architecture in Virginia" was presented at the Institute of Southern Culture in 1960.

Around The Campi

A freshman's reflections on wicket: "Playing softball in high school I wanted the ball to stand still so I could hit it, then I came to college and found one that does and I still can't hit it."

It's about that mass evacuation over Easter week end . . .

Anyone see a yellow pot-bellied sop sucker on the biology bird watching excursion?

I'm number 400 on the waiting list! I have a tent at home and maybe if you could get one we could have suitcases.

For teachers: try Mrs. Cover's exciting new way to keep students awake and interested (she got a water gun for Easter)

—Staff

THE GRASS from a "Longwood Lady's" point of view looks quite different than it does . . .

PBL Members Attend Meeting, Capture Honors

(Continued from Page 4)

addition, two Longwood students have won the National Little. Last year, Katie Mae Bolt of Farmville was the recipient of this National Award. This is the first year that the "Miss Future Business Teacher" contest has been offered.

Consistent Winner

Mr. Hollis Guy, Executive Director of the National office in Washington stated that he did not know of any other college chapter in the nation that has so consistently won state honors and, in addition, has also had national winners.

Others attending the convention from Longwood were Mr. Alfred Patrick of the business education staff, Gail Jones, President-elect of Longwood Phi Beta Lambda, and Jean Kester of the Longwood Chapter. All of the above college state winners are eligible to compete at the National Convention to be held June 10-12 in Cincinnati, Ohio.

The Longwood Region is one of the smallest regions, yet it had a total of seven first-place winners which is more than any other region in the State.

Contest Winners Appear On WLVA In Local Program

Three Longwood College beauty contest winners appeared on WLVA-TV in Lynchburg, April 15, on a local program called "Springtime in Virginia."

Appearing in this special show along with many other beauty contest winners throughout Virginia, were Jeanine MacKenzie, Longwood's May Court Queen; Ginny Summers, Miss Nelson County; and Linda Dean, runner-up for Miss Nelson County.

Each contest winner, escorted by students from the University of Virginia, Virginia Military Institute, and Randolph-Macon, answered questions concerning the contests she represented.

May Court Members In Campus Activities

(Continued from page 1)

She is a member of the Student Education Association and Alpha Sigma Tau sorority.

Dibby Mohr, an elementary education major from Lynchburg, was selected Miss Longwood in 1961. She was chosen Circus Queen the same year. She was co-chairman for Sophomore Production, a narrator for May Day, 1961, a member of Pi Gamma Mu and Boerc Eh Thorn. She is a member of Alpha Gamma Delta sorority, and served this year as president of Panhellenic. Dibby was recognized for membership in Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities. In addition to being on the Court for May Day, she is also chairman of the theme and script committee.

Junior Little Selected

Sandy Little is a junior from Norfolk. Her major is Business Education. Her activities include social chairman, secretary and publicity chairman for the Y.W.C.A., chaplain and recommendations chairman for Alpha Sigma Tau sorority, and membership in the Baptist Student Union.

Alice White, junior from Suffolk, is a biology major. She is president of her junior class, and was recently elected to serve as president of her senior class. She was vice president of her freshman class. She is a member of the Longwood Play-ers, social chairman for Alpha Sigma Alpha sorority, and was tapped for membership into Alpha Kappa Gamma.

Kay Nottingham is a sociology major from Norfolk. She has served as Keeper of the Grades for Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority and held membership in the Athletic Association, in the Y.W.C.A. She is also a member of the Granddaughters' Club.

Blows Selected

Janice Blows is a sophomore representative to May Court. She is an elementary education major from Portsmouth, and is a member of Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority.

Bobbie Cadow is another sophomore Court member. She is from Fredericksburg, and an elementary education major. She is a member of Delta Zeta sorority.

The third sophomore is Diane Carrington. She is also from Fredericksburg, and is an elementary education major. This year she participated in Sophomore Production.

Freshmen Represented

Freshman Suzanne Ballard is an elementary education major from Willis Wharf. She is a member of the Eastern Shore Club and the Rotunda staff.

Joyce Lunsford, of Roanoke, is the other freshman representative. She is an elementary education major, and served as an Usherette for Circus, was selected an Orchids to You during Rat Week, and will be co-social chairman for the Y.W.C.A.

many student groups in the U.S. are totally unaware of the extent to which they can be victimized and exploited by the Communists who twist idealistic concepts to snare young college students who find it hard to resist fighting for a "cause."

Communists Reported As Gaining In Subversion Of American Youth

"The Communist Party is making important gains on college campuses in the United States." This statement was made by Communist leaders at a recent national convention that concluded with this declaration: "Our participation in (young Americans') struggles will help unite youth against the enemy of all — monopoly capital."

Youth A Target

In "Red Revival on Campus," in the May issue of Campus illustrated, the national magazine for collegians, the F.B.I. says declaration and ensuing activities of the American Communist Party constitute a Red revival at colleges. Catha DeLoach, assistant director of the F.B.I. states, "Since the convention, the Communists have been increasingly ambitious in their designs on youth. DeLoach lists the following as specific Communist programs directed toward the campus: 1) An intensive speech campaign. 2) A new national publication, "New Horizons for Youth," printed under the auspices of the National Communist Party Youth Director. 3) A special youth committee — one organized to win support for Communist causes among broad segments of our college population.

Ensnare Students

The F.B.I. draws a moral from this Communist campaign which also includes promoting student uprisings in the form of

New Internships Now Instituted In Dearborn U.M.

The Dearborn Center of the University of Michigan recently announced the initiation of a pilot program which may result in the state's first senior college cooperative education program for liberal arts students. "We feel that great good can come of broadening the concept of a liberal education to include experience, even though it may be against tradition," commented William E. Burton, director of the Center and University vice president.

You notice how they always talk about women drivers, but it's the men who have all the accidents."

Drive Safely!

Courtesy—Travelers Insurance Co.

THE ROTUNDA

VOLUME XLII

Longwood College, Farmville, Va., September 26, 1962

No. 1

Wygall Serves Longwood As Interim President

By Donna Humphlett

Mr. Fred O. Wygall, director of the division of teacher education of the State Board of Education is now serving as acting president of Longwood. He is replacing Dr. Francis G. Lanford during the latter's leave of absence.

FRED O. WYGALL

Mr. Wygall was born in Dryden located in Lee County. He received the A. B. degree from Emory and Henry College and the M. A. degree from the University of Virginia.

Serves As Principal

Since his graduation from college, Mr. Wygall has been active in the field of education. He began his career as a classroom teacher. From 1927-1939 he served as the principal of several high schools including Mendota, Greendale, Abingdon and Galax. He was division superintendent of schools of Radford from 1939-1942.

Joins State Board

He began his affiliation with the State Board of Education in 1942. Since then he has served as supervisor of adult and secondary education, director of the division of guidance and adult education, director of the division of related institutional services, assistant director of instruction and director of the division of teacher education. Since his arrival at Longwood, Mr. Wygall has been advising the faculty as they prepare for the regional and national accreditation teams which will visit the college in two years.

Acts As National Director

Active in related professional activities, Mr. Wygall has served as first vice-president of the Virginia Association of Parents and Teachers. He was director of the national workshop for State Department of Education Directors of Health and Physical Education.

Active Methodist

Mr. Wygall has served the Methodist church actively. He is a member of the Virginia Methodist Conference Board of Education and has served as a member of the board of trustees of Ferrum College.

Mr. Wygall says he has no consuming outside interest, but is interested in a variety of things "especially in out of doors activities." He is fond of fishing and likes all sports. Because he was a first baseman for the Emory and Henry Wasp, he follows baseball "more closely than the other sports."

History Student

He likes to read that which is primarily concerned with historical matter. This includes historical novels.

The Wygalls have one son, Fred O. Wygall, Jr., who is choir director in Fairfax County. He has performed in many operatic productions in the Washington area. Mr. Wygall adds that his son once sang under the direction of Stravinsky, but says, "That's a story in itself."

Mr. Wygall has this to say to the student body, "A college must have its objective the development of the personality. Through self-management comes the richness of experience which matures the individual. Experience prepares one for the future." He also states, "I'm delighted to see in your program an honor code based on beliefs and values. Through an honor code the student body is constantly redefining values and seeking out truths."

LC Employs Head Residents For Tabb, Main

Longwood College welcomes two new housemothers to the campus this year. Mrs. Katherine Pilley, head resident of Tabb and Student Dorms, and Mrs. Marion Barrett, head resident of Main Cunningham.

Barrett In Main

Mrs. Barrett is replacing Mrs. Antoinette Goodman, who moved to South Cunningham to take the place of Mrs. Betty P. Rex. Mrs. Pilley is replacing Mrs. Sammon, formerly the housemother for Tabb and Student.

Mrs. Pilley comes to Farmville from Norfolk where she taught school for a few years. Then she was offered a job with the government and has worked there until retiring last year.

Pilley Teaches

While teaching school, Mrs. Pilley decided that she liked to work with girls of college age, and when she was in college, Mrs. Pilley said that someday she would like to be a housemother.

Mrs. Marion Barrett has lived in Pennsylvania all her life, and came to Virginia to be near her sister.

This is Mrs. Barrett's ninth year of doing this type of work. She was head resident in a girls' dorm at Penn State University for six years, and for the past two years has worked in St. Catherine's School in Richmond.

Both Like Friendliness

Both of Longwood's new housemothers seem to agree on one thing: They both have been "most impressed with the friendly atmosphere on the campus."

'Players' To Give Freshman Party

The Longwood Players will hold a reception Thursday, September 27, from 7:00 to 8:00 for all freshmen and transfer students who are interested in dramatics or backstage work. The fall play will be presented November 16, 17, and 18, and new students are eligible to participate.

Tryouts will be announced at the general meeting, at which time students may sign up for any backstage crew: lighting, scenery, publicity, props, make-up, or sound. No experience is needed.

Refreshments will be served, and the purpose and function of the Longwood Players will be discussed.

Top Rats

On the lawn in front of Wheeler dorm Monday night the new Top Rats for 1966 were capped. They are: Bobbi Allen Head Top Rat, Pat Dugger (Assistant Head), Ann Coleman, Lee Criss, Dee Dee Diederick, Nancy Gordy, Becky Knight, Marcy Lemons, "Pudd" Murdoch, "Bird" Poyser, Ginger Steele, and Sue Sweeney.

The six Orchids-To-You are: Kay Catron, "Tinker" Cleary, Bonnie Globa, Connie Perkins, Allison Stoteman, and Claudia Storminger.

Twelve Members Join Faculty As New Semester Commences

By Nancy Mowrey

Twelve new teachers join the Longwood faculty this fall. Richard W. Barron, Associate Professor of Political Science, comes to Longwood from the faculties of Sweet Briar College and the University of Virginia. Dr. Barron received the A. B. degree from Knox College and the Ph. D. degree from the University of Virginia. His other work includes service as a visiting lecturer at the University of South Carolina and Washington and Lee University.

de los Reyes

Ben W. de los Reyes is assistant professor of natural sciences (physics). He has taught at Levittown High School for two years; at Nassau College, New York, for two years; and for the past two years he taught at Blauvelt State College in New Jersey. Mr. de los Reyes is from Louisiana and received the B. S. degree from the United States Merchant Marine Academy. He earned the B. E. degree from the University of California and the M. S. degree from Hofstra College. Mr. de los Reyes is presently nearing completion of his work for the Ph. D. degree at New York University.

Elliott In Education

A new instructor in Education is George P. Elliott. Mr. Elliott has taught in the Hampton City Schools for four years and served for one year as Elementary Supervisor in Cumberland County. He earned the B. S. and M. S. degrees here at Longwood College.

S. degrees here at Longwood College.

Mademoiselle Colette Hardy, the new Instructor in Foreign Languages, is from Belgium. She holds the bachelor's degree, and has studied at the University of Liege, working toward the master's degree.

Biologist Holman

Teaching biology will be Assistant Professor Leta Jane Holman. Dr. Holman comes recently from the University of Maryland faculty. For eleven years she was on the faculty of Texas Technological College. Also she spent two years as a graduate teaching assistant at the University of Maryland. Dr. Holman has had experience as a medical technologist and a research assistant. She received the B. S. degree from Texas Technological College, the M. S. degree from the University of Michigan, and the Ph.D. degree from the University of Maryland.

Sowder Teaches English

In the Department of English, William J. Sowder will be a new Associate Professor of English. Dr. Sowder was recently a member of the faculty of High Point College in North Carolina. He has also taught at Virginia Polytechnic Institute, the University of Georgia, Mississippi Southern College, and the Tennessee Polytechnic Institute. Dr. Sowder received the B. S. degree from the University of Virginia and the Ph.D. degree from the University of Kentucky.

Muse Dedications

Mr. Leonard G. Muse, chairman of the State Board of Education, will give the dedicatory address for the Lancaster library. The response to this dedication will be given by Dr. Lancaster.

Mrs. J. M. Watkins of Farmville will present the dedication for Wheeler dormitory. Mrs. Watkins is a Longwood alumna and friend of Miss Wheeler. Dr. C. G. Gordon Moss, dean of the college, will respond to this speech.

The Reverend J. Hoge Smith of the Farmville Presbyterian Church will deliver the invocation and benediction.

Musicals A Go-Round

Open House will be held in the library from 2-5 p.m. Refreshments will be served following a musicale to be held at 3 p.m. in Wheeler dormitory.

The library is being named in honor of President Emeritus Dabney Stewart Lancaster. He served as fifteenth president of Longwood from 1946-1955. He and Mrs. Lancaster are now living in Bath County.

Wheeler Honored

Wheeler dormitory is to be dedicated in memory of Miss Leola Wheeler, a former faculty member. She taught speech at Longwood from 1911 until her retirement in 1949. Miss Wheeler remained in Farmville until her death in 1954.

Alumnae To Hold Annual Meet October 5

The Longwood Alumnae Association will hold the annual Fall council meeting next weekend, October 5, 6, to plan the coming year's business.

Schedule Busy

Beginning with a dinner in the Snack Bar, the expected 35 or 40 alumnae and guests will hear Mr. Fred O. Wygall, Acting President of Longwood, speak. Business meetings are planned for Friday night and Saturday morning, followed by a coffee reception at the President's home from 11 o'clock to noon. Other activities will include a talk from Mr. John E. Allen, Director of Public Relations at Longwood; chapter reports, and possibly a tour of the library if time allows.

Officers Attend

Attending the Fall council meeting will be Mrs. Ruth B. Wilson, Dean of Women; Dr. C. G. Gordon Moss, Dean; four elected faculty members, chapter officers, and the National Board members: Mrs. Carter Hanes of Lexington, president; Mrs. Evelyn Traill Mason of Lynchburg, first vice-president and chairman of the fund campaign; Mrs. Rosemary Pritchard of Hopewell, second vice-president, and the alumnae secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Elizabeth Shippett Jones.

Bishop Shows Art In Roanoke

Miss Barbara Bishop, a 1960 graduate of Longwood, is taking part in an art show at the Exhibition Gallery of the Roanoke Public Library. The exhibition will continue until October 12.

Miss Bishop received her Master's Degree from the Warren's Division of the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

She is now an instructor in art at Southern Seminary.

NEW FACULTY MEMBERS William Barron, Sprague, Coleman, Humphlett, Elliott, discuss plans after meeting in Virginia room.

Sports Feature

Hockey Players' Camp
Found Fun, Enlightening

By Betty Lou Dunn

September 5 at 5:00 a.m. we arose and packed our cars and headed toward the Hockey Camp in the Pocono Mountains of Pennsylvania. After hours of car trouble, food stops, and getting lost, we found our destination and settled down for what turned out to be a cold winter's evening. The temperature, (too cold to swim, it rained two days) dropped so far that for the remainder of our stay we had to sleep in sweat shirts and sweat pants and sleep three to a bed sharing each other's blankets.

Pleasure Becomes Pain

The next day we went out to play hockey and by evening our eagerness had turned into cries of pain and desires that the end of the week would soon come. However, after the first few days our sore muscles had stopped aching and we began to enjoy ourselves.

Slick work was taught for two hours each day, and later match games were played for two hours. The coaches were members and past members of various teams such as the English, Australian, and U. S. Field Hockey teams. There were nightly lectures with Miss Constance Applebee, who brought hockey to the U. S. in 1901, and who is still teaching, active at the age of 89.

Ethnic Exchange

We soon made friends with the girls of Southern Connecticut State Teachers College who learned that "you all" wasn't such a bad word after all and we thought that "you guys" might indeed be a good expression to carry back to Virginia with us.

Making the trip this year were Flossie Barnard, Barbara Stewart, Betty Lou Dunn, Peggy Waldo, Chris Longstreet, Melody Saunders, Judy Wilson, Arlene Steiner, Earlene Lang, Lurline Robertson, Carrie Lee Wilson, and Peggy Gill. Joining us for the fun were Miss "B." Mrs. Harris, and Miss Smith who is new at Longwood this year. After returning to Longwood everyone feels that they learned much about hockey, met interesting new people, and gained new "Yankee" friends.

—Staff Photo
HOCKEY BEGINS FOR FRESHMAN, as Miss Bryce demonstrates forward pass.

Scottish Coach Visits,
Gives Hockey Pointers

Miss May Bryce of Aberdeen, Scotland has been visiting the Longwood campus this week giving instructions and demonstrations in field hockey techniques. Originally from Aberdeen, Miss Bryce has been playing hockey since she was in high school. She attended the Dunfermline College of Physical Education where she now lectures and teaches games, gymnastics, track, and field hockey.

Tours Six Weeks
Miss Bryce has been on a six-week tour sponsored by the United States Coaching Extension Scheme. Most of her tour has taken her to day camps.

Miss Bryce commented that the American girls seem more eager to learn hockey "possibly because it is so new here." She thought that the girls in Scotland were better players, though; for there, hockey is played for about six months rather than for the six months that it is played here. However, she added, "there is more spirit here, and that may in some way compensate for the lack of better stick work."

On September 22 Miss Bryce flew back to Scotland to the approximately 900 girls and 18 faculty members waiting to hear of her tour.

Leaves Advice

She left advice for all girls, and especially those new at the game of field hockey. According to her the position of the ball in relation to the feet is most important. When it is even, or nearly so, with the left foot, drives are improved and there is less topping of the ball. To the goalie, she says to be able to move the feet quickly and have "terrific concentration. You have got to be quick!"

Choice
Sirloin Steak

French Fries
Hot Rolls
$1.35

at

THE COLLEGE
SHOPPE
Farmville, Va.

—Staff Photo
NEW PHYSICAL EDUCATION department head Miss Mary A. Heintz and Miss Barbara Smith discuss future plans.

New Head, Teacher
Join Department

A courteous student body and friendly atmosphere were the first impressions of Longwood as expressed by the two newest members of the physical education department, Miss Mary A. Heintz and Miss Barbara Smith.

Works on Doctorate

Miss Heintz, the new chairman of the physical education department, is a native of Manchester, Massachusetts. She took her Bachelor of Science degree at Sargent College, Boston, and her Master's Degree at the University of Tennessee. At present, she is working on her Doctorate at the State University of Iowa, where she had done research in the field of physical education.

Directs Camp

Prior to coming to Longwood, she taught at the University of Tennessee. She has also worked in public schools in Connecticut and has spent many years as a camp director, working with various age groups.

Impressed By Alumnae

She first heard of Longwood through alumnae members who had worked in physical education. She says she was impressed with their quality and with that of faculty members and students whom she met when she came to be interviewed last year.

Miss Heintz's interests lie in research in physical education. Although she is fond of all sports, she reveals that she finds personal satisfaction in golf and skiing.

Academic Atmosphere

She expressed pleasure with the friendly and helpful attitudes of faculty members, students, and townspeople of Farmville, and the wholesome academic atmosphere at Longwood.

South Carolina Native

Although a native South Carolinian, Miss Barbara Smith came to Longwood from Norton, Massachusetts, where she taught at Wheaton College. She has also taught at the University of North Carolina and in Savannah High School. Miss Smith took her Bachelor's Degree at Limestone College in Gaffney, South Carolina, and her Master's Degree at the University of North Carolina. She lists synchronized swimming and golf as her favorite sports and expressed an interest in music and photography.

Thinks Courtesy Genuine

When she came to Longwood to be interviewed, she was pleased to find the friendliness which pervades Longwood. She expressed particular pleasure at the courtesy extended to her by Longwood girls. "Their courtesy is genuine," she says.

Hockey Camp

This summer, Miss Smith attended hockey camp where she met several girls from Longwood and watched them play. She feels confident that Longwood has a winning team.

For Gifts That Are Different
visit

Lanscott Gift Shop
opposite
Longwood Auditorium

DOROTHY MAY
SHOP

For The Latest In Styles See Our
BOBBIE BROOKS
Sportswear ..... $4.99 up

NEWMEN'S

MEN SHOP

Traditional Styles

See Our

Ladies' Sportswear

Annual AA Display
Set For Thursday

The Athletic Association, sponsored by Miss Rebecca Breckenbrough, will hold its annual demonstration and picnic Thursday, September 27. Betty Lou Dunn, a senior Physical Education major from Lynchburg, has led the A.A. Council in organizing the event. Under the guidance of Miss "B." Betty Lou, who is vice-president of the Athletic Association, has organized the program so that both new and old students will recognize the wide variety of activities offered at Longwood College.

Blazers Awarded

The demonstration will begin at 4:00 p.m. in the gymnasium. At this time, blazers will be awarded to those Seniors who have been outstanding in athletics and sportsmanship throughout their college years. Following will be short demonstrations of each of the sports offered on campus. Brief five minute games of basketball and volleyball will be held in the gym, accompanied by a demonstration of modern dance. The program will then move to the pool, where members of the H2O Club will perform. Afterwards, tennis, hockey, golf, archery, and basketball will be demonstrated on the athletic field.

B. L. DUNN

Picnic Featured

The final event of the program will be a picnic supper served outside in the area behind Tabb Hall. All Freshman and transfer students as well as former students are urged to attend the program.

National Sports

Cavaliers Defeat W And M 19-7,
Tech Downs George Washington

The University of Virginia Cavaliers opened the season with a 19-7 victory over the William and Mary Indians this Saturday. Although held back by penalties and pass interceptions, Virginia showed greater strength than in previous years.

Also in the Southern Conference, Virginia Tech defeated George Washington in a close game of 15-14.

Week end Scores

Other scores for the week end were Washington and Lee 15 Hampton-Sydney 6; Randolph-Macon 22, Millsville 0; North Carolina State 7, University of North Carolina 6; and Western Maryland 14, Bridgewater 0.

Yacht Weatherly Wins
A crowd of 2,000 including President Kennedy, watched the American yacht Weatherly beat Australia's Gretel. The race, run on a triangular 24-mile course in Newport, Rhode Island, was the closest in America's Cup history. The margin was 26 seconds, representing 75 yards of open water.

Stengel Resigns

Seventy-two-year old Casey Stengel signed a renewal contract to manage the defunct New York Mets again in 1962. In a more serious vein than usual, he told reporters that he realizes this team has a great future and that he intends to stick with it.

Patronize
Rotunda
Advertisers

"I told you you were following too close."
Drive Safely . . . .

Martin The Jeweler

Longwood Charms

$1.75 up

Initial Pins

By Trifari .... $2.20 each

For Your School

Supplies Visit

the

COLLEGE BOOKSTORE

Bedford Collection In Gallery Display

Now on display in the gallery of the College Art Department is a 32-piece collection of pottery and enamel on copper, which is the work of Miss Virginia E. Bedford, chairman of the department. The showing will continue until October 10.

In revealing the processes used in ceramics and enameling, Miss Bedford explains that a piece of pottery is shaped and sized from a mass of wet clay, then dried, trimmed, and fired to 1700 degrees which takes about eight hours. It is glazed and refired to 1950 degrees, this, also, taking about eight hours.

Enameling Explained
Enameling on copper is a delicate art which must be carried out with great care. The copper surface is carefully cleaned with Miss Bedford says she became interested in enamels on copper through reading, seeing lovely pieces, and because of the natural desire of a craftsman to learn of an unknown art. Most of the pieces in the gallery were made by Miss Bedford in college graduate summer school sessions. However, on some occasions, they are the result of a demonstration for a class. Since the craft is very delicate, Miss Bedford states she tries to finish every piece according to plan which is not always possible. Miss Bedford says that her favorite piece was one of abstract design, which had come out exactly according to plan through every process.

Pleasure Her motive
When asked about her motive

CHAIRMAN OF THE ART DEPARTMENT Miss Virginia E. Bedford, explains processes used in her pottery and enamel on copper display.

nitric acid until foreign matter has been removed. The copper is then covered with an even coat of dry powdered enamel. When thoroughly dry, it is inserted into a kiln, which registers about 1500 degrees, where it is fired from three to five minutes or until the surface is glossy, whereupon it is removed and cooled. This process may be repeated as many times as the desired color combination requires.

Enameling, of oriental origin, dates back to the earliest Japanese and Chinese dynasties. The Egyptians fashioned utilitarian and decorative enameled items, also, such as head and hair ornaments.

Cloisonne Displayed
Another facet of enamels on display is cloisonne, also an ancient art, which was found on the outside walls of oriental vases and on jewelry. Cloisonne is a tedious process of fashioning tiny areas of enamel separated by fine silver wire, so that the effect achieved is of deep pools of color that can be small and dainty.

Two particular craft, Miss Bedford said, "Pleasure—

Newest Faculty Begin Fall Term

(Continued from page 1)

degrees from Southwestern at Memphis and the M. A. degree from Columbia University.

James E. Williams, instructor in Mathematics, is a native of North Carolina. He comes to Longwood from the Greensboro Division of Guilford College in North Carolina, where he was a member of the faculty during the past season. He served as a graduate assistant for one year at East Carolina College. Mr. Williams received the B. S. and M. A. degrees from East Carolina College.

The informants in the Department of Foreign Languages are: Mathematics—Nancy Charron, for French; and Sonoma Maria Isabel Loeffler, for Spanish.

the creation of design and color and textural surfaces." She added, however, that the final product was of importance, also. Miss Bedford received her Bachelor of Science degree from the University of Missouri and her Master of Arts degree from the Teacher's College of Columbia University. Her summer studies include Ohio State University, University of New Hampshire, University of Tennessee, Harvard University and the extension of the University of Arizona at Guadalajara, Mexico.

Columbia Hosts Convention Of AKG

Clara Barton Circle of Alpha Kappa Gamma at Columbia College will play host October 5-7 for the annual national convention of Alpha Kappa Gamma, national honorary fraternity for leadership in womanly service.

Allen, Spear, To Attend
Two advisors and four members of Longwood's Joan Circle will attend the convention in Columbia, South Carolina. Those going are Miss Merry Lewis Allen and Miss Jennelle Spear, Margaret Vaughn, Sandra Freedman, Elaine Lohr, and Alice White.

Vaughan To Speak
The program theme has not yet been announced, but the schedule includes circle reports on the past year's activities. Margaret Vaughn, president of Joan Circle, will speak for Longwood.

A program concerning the patron saints is also on the agenda. The circle will trade ideas on how to emphasize patronage on campus. Joan of Arc is the Longwood chapter's saint. Her statue is in the Rotunda and on the colonnade; the poem by John Keats is stressed to all students here; and the college song is reminiscent of her. Also in the Alpha Kappa Gamma taping

LABOR ON NEW GYM CONTINUES, as workmen hurry to meet November completion.

College Continues Film Series In Jarman

Again this year, Longwood College is presenting a series of outstanding films in Jarman Auditorium. These films are full length feature open to Longwood students, their dates, the faculty, and their families at no charge. In an attempt to select a variety of movies, the film committee has chosen films ranging from satirical American comedy to tense German drama. First in the series was "Solid Gold Cadillac," starring Judy Holiday and Paul Douglas, shown September 15.

"Waterfront Next"
Next in the series is a 1954 winner of eight Academy Awards. Starring Marlon Brando, Lee J. Cobb and Eva Marie Saint, "On the Waterfront" is a taut drama of corruption in waterfront unions. In producing this movie, Elia Kazan explored the surface of the theme of the story. This film, considered to be one of Marlon Brando's best performances, will be shown at 7:30 P. M. on September 29.

Hitler Depleted
"Last Ten Days" with Oscar

Werner and Albin Skoda will be shown on October 13. This movie tells of the collapse of discipline and final disintegration of the last ten days in Hitler's headquarters based on the book "10 Days to Live by Justice M. A. Mussmanno. Time Magazine says this film is perhaps the best picture produced in Central Europe since the war. The dialogue is German with English subtitles.

Also coming this fall is "Duel in the Sun," a story of the era across the hands of the Texas cattle kings. It stars Jennifer Cotton, Lionel Barrymore, and Lillian Gish.

Milanov To Perform In Jarman Hall

Zinka Milanov, leading soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, will give a performance October 18 at 7:30 p. m. in Jarman Auditorium.

Sings In Vienna
Miss Milanov has sung "Aida" at the Vienna Opera. A Toscanini presented her at the Salzburg Festival of 1937. Miss Milanov, in 1950, returned to the Metropolitan Opera and opened the "Met" season three successive times.

Receives Critics' Praise
It is said by Jay S. Harrison of the New York Herald Tribune that "Miss Milanov produced a score of piano tones in all such as no other living soprano could fairly duplicate. . . . Felix Borsowski of the Chicago Sun Times said, "In the grand manner. Her voice rose easily above the great sonorities from the orchestra pit, but there was subtlety as well as power . . . stirring poignance and true eloquence."

Anderson, Scherman Next
Later in the year Thomas Scherman and The Little Orchestra of New York will appear at the college, and also, Judith Anderson.

HOLLYWOOD
BEAUTY COLLEGE
102 N. Main St.
Phone EX 2-9019

Welcome back to College
We enjoy your patronage
Consult us for your

Shampoo & Sets .... $1.25
Cuts & Haircuts .... $1.00
Permanent Wave .... $5.00
Tipping Frosting .... $5.00
& Set

As we are eager to please
you.

New Laundry Finished, Gym Nears Completion

Construction began on the new laundry and gym on September 30, 1961. The laundry was completed and ready for use with the beginning of the 1962-63 session. It is located behind the training school.

Laundry More Efficient
Mrs. Virginia Lindsay, laundry supervisor since 1941, said the new laundry is more convenient, more modern and more efficient. She is using essentially the same personnel and equipment as used in the old building which is now used for storage.

The front of the new building contains the supervisor's office, laundry check-in and pick-up. To the rear of these is a large room containing necessary equipment and working space for the employees.

November Completion Date
Other construction work includes the new physical education building diagonally across from South Cunningham. This building, started in September, 1961 also, is expected to be completed in November and ready for classes in the spring semester. The building will have a main gym floor, classrooms, and office space. The old gymnasium will continue to be the center of Longwood sports since the new gym will not have spectator facilities. The new building will be used primarily for educational purposes. The combined cost of the 2 buildings is approximately $240,000. Ben R. Johns Jr. of Richmond was architect for both buildings. The Farmville Manufacturing Company received the construction contract.

Timely Topics

Negro Rejected By 'Ole Miss' In Application Attempt

James H. Meredith, 29 year old Negro veteran of Korea rejected last week by "Ole Miss," is expected to testify in a contempt of court hearing against university officials. The entire United States Board of Appeals has been summoned to hear the case.

Foreign Aid Best
President Kennedy in a filmed television interview told the nation Monday that foreign aid was "the best, the cheapest, the safest way" to fight Communism. He said of undeveloped nations now receiving United States aid, "If we stop helping them, they will become ripe for internal subversion and a Communist takeover."

Kennedy Speaks
Adlai E. Stevenson, Archibald McLeish and other American notables gathered in Washington

Saturday to commemorate the centennial of the Emancipation Proclamation. President Kennedy spoke for the occasion by a recorded message.

Republican leaders in Syracuse have announced that ex-president Eisenhower will appear there October 29. He has promised Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller his assistance in Rockefeller's reelection campaign.

The opening of Philharmonic Hall Sunday night in New York marked the beginning of a new epoch in the city's concert life. The auditorium is the first unit of the Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts. It is also the first symphonic hall with its own building to be opened since the Brooklyn Academy of Music in 1908.

COPYRIGHT © 1961, THE COCA-COLA COMPANY. COCA-COLA AND COKE ARE REGISTERED TRADEMARKS

CONCRETE & GARDEN
MODERN ENGLISH
HANDBOOK
SECOND EDITION
PRACTICE

Coca-Cola

Algebra and Trigonometry

BETWEEN CLASSES... get that refreshing new feeling
with Coke!

Bottled under authority of
The Coca-Cola Company by BOTTLE'S NAME HERE

LYNCHBURG BOTTLING WORKS, Lynchburg, Va.

Little To Attend Harvest Festivities

Sandy Little will represent Longwood College as Princess at the Harvest Festival activities in Roanoke, October 6.

Activities Numerous
The activities to take place will be dinner at Miller and Rhoads' Tea Room followed by an informal party, brunch at Hotel Roanoke, a parade at 1:30 p.m. during which she will wear a white formal, and a formal ball at Roanoke Country Club followed by a midnight breakfast there. The princesses are to be escorted by University of Virginia and Virginia Polytechnic Institute students.

Sandy is a senior this year and comes from Norfolk.
Active At Longwood
Since she has been at Longwood, she has been active in the Y, serving as secretary her junior year, and Committee co-chairman for the Big Sister-

Little Sister activities. She is a member of the Baptist Student Union; Phi Beta Lambda; Student Education Association; and chaplain and secretary of Alpha Sigma Tau. She has acted as co-chairman for the junior dance, and is a member of the Rotunda and the Colonnade staffs. Sand has been elected to May Court for two years.

Award Offered For Outstanding Biological Essay

The Natural Sciences department of Longwood College announces the establishment of the Walker Reed Prize in Biology which will be awarded to a Longwood undergraduate who submits the most outstanding biological essay.

All Eligible
All undergraduates of the college are eligible for the competition. Each spring in Senior assembly, the final assembly of the school year, the $100 prize, given by an anonymous donor, will be presented.

The submitted paper may be written on any subject of independent research, review, original biography or the historical account of some phase of biology. However, students may not enter honors papers or required work completed in Science 460.

May 15 Deadline
Typewritten entries must be presented to Dr. James Helms, associate professor of history and social sciences, by May 15 1963. The judging committee will be presented to Dr. James Helms, chairman, and other members of the biology faculty.

Any students wishing further information should contact Dr. Wells or Dr. Helms.

Only Juniors Eligible
The "Das Deutsche Semester" program at the University of Freiburg is intended only for juniors. It will stress political science, German language instruction, regular university courses taught in German for those competent in that language, and supplementary lectures and seminars. Previous knowledge of German is not required.

Tours Planned
Officials said students will be led by academic guides on field-study trips in western Europe. Students in the Vienna program will visit England, France, Belgium, Luxembourg, Switzerland, Austria, Germany, Italy and Spain, while those in the Freiburg program will travel in Germany, Switzerland and Italy.

It is pointed out, however, that the study trips are not mere tours. They are strictly subordinate to classroom work and are planned as integral parts of the overall educational program.

The Institute said that more than 200 U. S. colleges and universities have accepted credits earned by their students on Institute programs.

VOLUME XLII

Longwood College, Farmville, Va., October 3, 1962

No. 2

Play Tryouts

"The Taming of the Shrew" by William Shakespeare will be presented in Jarman Auditorium November 15, 16, and 17.

BETH GOODWYN

Senior Goodwyn Becomes Council Vice-President

Senior Beth Goodwyn was elected vice-president of House Council on September 26, 1962. Beth is from Chester.

As vice-president of House Council Beth will be the official hostess of the dining hall. She will be in charge of the conduct and seating arrangements. Also, she will be called upon for other duties connected with being an officer of House Council.

Beth is majoring in English and Spanish. In her freshman year she was the president of her dorm, and in her sophomore year she was president of her class. Last year she served as treasurer of Student Government and president of Sigma Kappa sorority. This year she is first vice-president of her sorority.

Freedman To Serve As Circus Chairman

Sandra Freedman, a senior major and member of Alpha Kappa Gamma from Norfolk, will serve as general chairman of the 1962 Circus to be held October 27.

Sandra has a long list of services to Longwood to her credit. In her freshman year she served as transportation chairman for May Day, and worked on the script committee for Freshman Production.

In her sophomore year, Sandra helped write the script for the Senior Banquet.

The holder of many offices, she has acted as treasurer for Sigma Kappa sorority, for her junior and senior classes, and for Lynchons society.

In her junior year, Sandra undertook the co-chairmanship of May Day Dance. A member of Longwood Players, she has been in charge of costumes for several plays.

An active participant in sports, Sandra has played class hockey, archery, and volleyball. She has also participated in her class skills for Circuses and Productions.

AKG chairmen for the various aspects of Circus have been announced. Alice White and Betty Stack will serve as stunt co-chairman, Sandy Phlegar will serve as parade chairman, and Pam Bullen will act as publicity chairman.

Elaine Lohr will be in charge of the animals and clowns, Sherill Hudlow in charge of the midway booths, and Margaret Vaughan will manage the queen and her court.

All members of Alpha Kappa Gamma will serve in an advisory capacity to the classes in preparation of their skills.

SANDRA FREEDMAN

Forum Seeks To Keep Abreast Of Current News

To create an awareness of public affairs and to develop an interest in reading more of the newspaper than the society or the comic sections are the purpose of the Longwood Forum. This non-departmental club, which meets every third Monday at 4 o'clock in the Student Lounge, is open to everyone in the student body. Items of interest, from the Cuban situation to the college student's place on the campus today, are reviewed and discussed by both students and faculty.

Council Governs
The Forum is governed by a council composed of two representatives from each class and three faculty advisors. Jean Lowry and Susan Lane are chairmen of the Forum, and are assisted by Rae Ferguson, Barbara Jeanne Curran, and Nancy Mowrey. Dr. Sneller, Mr. Bidinger, and Miss Reilly are faculty sponsors. Other members are to be elected in the future.

"College Bowl" Planned
The October 8 program of the Forum is "Innocents Abroad," a program given by those college students who went to Europe this summer. Plans are being made now to present "Longwood's own College Bowl" soon, and the Forum is hoping to start a correspondence with Dr. and Mrs. Lindbergh while they are in Pakistan. Suggestions for future programs are welcomed, and may be given to any member of the Forum.

son, has chosen as her hostess for this year Martha Moore and Kay Cobb. The typists for the VIRGINIAN will be Anna White, Joyce Waltherger, Marcy Hines, Barbara Mager, Marlene Arner, Gennie Patton, and Anne Hoska.

Announcements will go on sale starting October 13. Staff members will be on second floor Rotunda after dinner every night, as well as in the dormitories, to take subscriptions. This year the yearbook subscription toll will be five dollars. Again this year, there will be no fee for having students' pictures taken.

Local Company Makes Low Bid For New Dorm

Apparent low bidder for the Mary White Cox Dormitory is Motley Construction Company of Farmville. Bid openings September 25 revealed $574,800 as the apparent low bid.

N. C. Monroe Construction Company of Greensboro, North Carolina, was apparent second low bidder with $593,255. Construction is expected to begin at the end of October. The dormitory is scheduled for occupancy in November, 1963.

The dorm will be known as the Mary White Cox Dormitory in memory of a former dean of women of the college. It will be located on the corner of Ely and Madison Streets adjacent to Wheeler Dormitory. It is intended to be a structure slightly larger than, but duplicating, Wheeler.

Architects for the three-story building are Thompson and Payne of Roanoke, who were also architects for Wheeler Dorm.

This addition to the Longwood campus is anticipated to increase the enrollment of the college to over 1300 students. Four more dormitories are projected for the next ten years, raising the student-body total to an estimated 2000 by 1970.

Three other contractors making bids for the construction of this building were Andrews, Large and Whidden, Inc., of Farmville, C. V. Hancock and Sons, of Lynchburg, and J. W. Daniel and Company, Inc., of Danville.

Virginia Editor Announces New Staff Members

Cissie Griggs has chosen the staff for the 1963 VIRGINIAN. Serving as assistant editor is Lurline Robertson. The following people comprise the literary staff: Literary editor, Lewin Rippey, with her assistant, Julia Lookabill; Art editor, Peggy Whitaker and her assistant, Peggy Page Taylor; Co-sports editors this year are Cindy Gay and June Wilson, and copy editors are Mary Ann Lipford and Lynn McCutcheon.

Section Editors
Rusty Septenson has as her photography assistants: Kathy Patterson, Jo Ann Stack, Betty Shepherd, E. V. Locker, and Ginger Steele. Three seniors, Ann Greene, Sandra Freedman, and Lefty Snyder, will be in charge of the senior class section while Joan Lord, Doris Holland, and Sue Pearce will be in charge of the junior class. Ann Garrett, Linda Spimer, and Allison Steneman will head sophomore class section while Susan Shepherd, Mary Kay Richardson, Sara Pearson, and Carrie Ann Hoffer will handle the freshman section.

The literary organizations will be handled by Guss Williams and Sarah Jane Lynch, with activities editors being Eleanor Richardson and Anne Chappell. In charge of social organizations are Natalie Miller and Ginny McCoy. Sue Mowley and Harriet Anderson will be in charge of features.

Business Staff
Business manager, Carol Ben-

Three Of Faculty Receive Doctorates

Three Longwood professors returned to the campus this fall bringing with them a great deal of achievement in the form of doctor's degrees. Dr. Sterling C. Adams and Dr. James M. Helms both received their doctorates this summer, while Mr. Carson Gibb completed the necessary requirements for his Ph.D. and will receive his official title in December.

Grad Work Taken At U. Va.
Doctor Helms, associate professor in the history department, did undergraduate work at Emory University and received a B.D. Degree in Economics from Clemson University. He began graduate work at the University of Virginia in 1953 during his spare time and this summer completed work on his thesis, which consisted of a biographical sketch of Nathaniel Macon.

Studies Learning Theories
(Continued on page 3)

Three recipients of doctor's degrees, Adams, Helms, Gibb discuss theses.

Look - - -

Before You Leap

Silence.

A hush falls over the college in the small town. No one speaks by order of the Established Rule.

For weeks the students have been busily rushing around, pronouncing, talking fast and long, sweet nothings, pleasantries, the weather—but oh, so interesting to all—and funny. Never knew that a beautiful day could be so funny.

This is the plan of Society . . . of people everywhere. Everything is taken for what it seems. Samuel did not pause to test his trust. Like the sheep, he did not question, and was shorn.

The students are busily herding a new bunch of willing sheep. Must hurry—market day is October 12. Can rest after that. There won't be another market day 'til next year.

Some have broken away from the fold to investigate. Fortunate ones—they shook the wool from their eyes the better to see, to contemplate They were not ready for market.

From their hilltop vantage point they can see the others running, now—confused, darting under the most convenient rock for sanctuary, allowing themselves to be pushed onward by the young shepherds until they are herded into their separate pens. The possibility of having a choice never occurring to them; never looking to future consequences.

Forum

Few students are aware of the fact that an organized forum has been in existence at Longwood for almost a year.

This forum seeks to provide a medium for the expression of students' ideas and a method for becoming informed about current events, as the story on page one states.

In our own little world of the college community we tend to shut ourselves off from the important events which happen in the "outside world."

The Forum offers an excellent opportunity for getting in our two cents' worth on public affairs. Or, it can serve as an interesting discussion to attend as a non-participant in order to learn about current events.

Whichever role you prefer to play, the Forum can be an important factor in broadening your knowledge.

I came to college to find myself, to ascertain the truth, to prepare myself for making a better world, to find new frontiers for democracy.

I wanted to know the why and wherefore, the basic reason why the world is in the stupid mess it's in.

So I studied sociology, biology, history, government, psychology and religion.

From my studies in psych I concluded that Khrushchev is basically insecure, but from my studying in government I'm not so sure it's due to a lack of fulfillment of a basic need.

Now I need a platform for my opinions, a sounding board for my ideas . . .

a testing ground to try my arguments.

What this school needs is a good old-fashioned FORUM.

Indubitably, I feel called to initiate one such forum.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

Students Combine Fun, Study In European Tour

By Nancy Mowrey

Summer is traditionally a time for travel and eleven Longwood girls teamed study with travel in Europe in a most enjoyable way this past season. Mrs. Ennoui, French and Spanish instructor, arranged the trip to Europe. In the group were Cookie Blackstone, Alice Boggs, JoAnn Cartwright, Ann Friedman, and Harriet Hunt. Joan McKenna, Glendon Merchant, Mary Morris, Gloria Newton, Peggy Pond, and Priscilla Salle also went. Mrs. Ennoui, enthusiastic about the "blast" the girls had, emphasized the fact that many of the girls accomplished serious study. For example, Mary Morris studied at the Sorbonne in Paris for a month, then went to the University of Valencia in Spain for a month of study. She passed the examination at each of the Universities.

Capping Begins Final Activities For Seniors

The eightieth graduating class of Longwood College officially became the Senior Class in a traditional ceremony held Monday, October 2 in Jarman Auditorium.

The Seniors marched into Jarman followed by their little sisters who were dressed in white. After the invocation, given by the Reverend Mr. Charles Fishburn, the class officers led the procession up to the stage, each accompanied by her little sister who carried her big sister's cap. Mr. Fred O. Wygal then capped the kneeling senior. It was at this time that a four-year dream came true for each girl as she became a SENIOR.

President Wygal adjusts cap of new senior in Monday night's capping ceremony.

Sister Sets Attend LC, Give Opposing Views

By Diana Upshur

This year there are fifteen pairs of sisters attending Longwood, not including twins. Upon interviewing several sisters, it was found that the main gripe about having an older member of the family at the same college were being introduced as "so-and-so's" little sister, and having to live up to her sister's reputation — or living it down, whichever it may be.

Sisters Room Together
Sisters Janie and Katie Connolly are both freshmen from Petersburg, rooming together in Post Office. Katie plans to teach, and Janie wants to go into nursing. When asked what they thought of sisters going to the same college and also living together, the double reply was, "It's cheaper!" This, they explained to a somewhat confused reporter, is because they can wear each other's clothes. "We are used to rooming together at home and so we know what the other thinks and feels about certain things," they said. "Therefore we don't have many arguments!"

Bryans Trade Clothes

Then there is sophomore Patty Bryan, you know—Jane Bryan's little sister. "People often mistake me for Jane," she says. "Someone will start talking to me in the hall and then realize that I'm not Jane at all — only a smaller reproduction . . . she sneaks my clothes, too." Her friends say that Patty is always trying to find someone to go with her over to Cunningham to get her clothes back! However, having a big sister is a help in many ways, the younger sisters say. "It is nice to have someone to sort of look out for you and help you meet friends." "It is also economical," says Patty. "Jane will buy a skirt or something and then I get a sweater or blouse to go with it and we take turns wearing the set. Who- ever can sneak it first, that is."

Rattling Separates Gibsons

Carole and Olivia Gibson are also both freshmen. Olivia, living in Ruffner, comments: "It was hard trying to see each other during rattling because we had to go through Tabbi!"

Freshman Mary Jane Blackburn has an ideal opinion of her older sister, Penny. "It's wonderful having an older sister at Longwood. I can ask her all the dumb little things that I would be too embarrassed to ask any other upperclassman."

"Little Slack" Biggest

Senior Betty Slack says it is most convenient having Jo Ann around because she can borrow money from her. "Jo Ann has been nicknamed 'Little Slack,'" (Continued on page 4)

tion at each of the Universities.

Dorm Rules Unique
During their period of study in Paris, the students lived in a building much like a dormitory. One of the "house rules" was interesting: the doors were locked at 1:00 am and opened at 7:00 am. If they were late coming in, they were very late. July 14, Basille Day or the French Independence Day is a time of great celebration, including dancing in the streets, but the fun does not begin until about the time the doors are locked. Who would miss the celebration? They stayed up all night!

Students See Real Paris
Almost everyone loved Paris; (Continued on page 4)

Moss Finds Registration Smoother In '62

Registration day — hardly a day to look forward to during those first few days back on campus. With last minute unpacking still hanging over your head, you rush to get in line before all the classes on your list are closed.

Schedule Planned
Your tentative schedule has already been carefully planned—no Saturday or 8:00 classes, the correct number of required subjects listed, interesting and helpful electives, all under the right professors.

Lengthy Line
Already a mile-long line. I thought you were going to be one of the first there. What happened?

Where does that girl think she's going? Looking for her roommate? Is it your fault your roommate didn't save you a place up front?

Classes Closed
Well, at least you're in the "rec" now. Oh, oh. Another list of closed classes. Only two from your list? You're lucky. Well, (Continued on page 4)

Older sisters pose behind younger sisters. Above, P. M. J. Blackburn, O. C. Gibson, B. J. A. Slack. Below, B. P. Parks, M. M. Warren, R. K. Pettit, D. Humphreys, L. Aldridge, J. Harris.

The Rotunda

ESTABLISHED NOVEMBER 20, 1920

Published each week during the college year except during holidays and examination period by the students of Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia Box 185.

Ann Agre			Editor-in-Chief
Diana Humphreys	Managing Editor	Bobbi Mast	Business Manager
Ann Carroll			News Editor
Gina Gilmore			Feature Editor
Lefty Snyder			Sports Editor
Lewann Ripper	Doris Smith		Desk Editors
Betty Taylor			Art Editor
Flonzie Barnard	Linda Paris		Photography
Ann Peters			Circulation Manager
Mary Reynolds			Advertising Manager
Mary P. Nichols			Faculty Advisor

(Unsigned editorials written by the editor)

Member: Virginia Intercollegiate Press (Hating First Class), Columbia Scholarship Press Association (Hating First Place).

REPORTING STAFF: Barbara Agre, Theresa Albright, Leslie Aldridge, Suzanne Ballard, Paula Blackstone, Margaret Cooks, Lee Criss, Dee Dioderich, Jane Eddy, Beverly Gooch, Judi Hackney, Judy Ivy, Sandra Jamison, Janet Lacy, Susan Lane, Mary Anne Liptford, Joan Lord, Beata Mann, Charlotte McClure, Gwynne Phillips, Barbara Poland, Karen Rader, Marcia Steigler, Doris Smith, Lois Sullivan, Betty Taylor, Allison Tuggle, Barbara Turner, Linda Turner, Pat Wallace, Dee Watkins, Annette Wenger.

Entered as second class matter at the Post Office at Farmville, Virginia under the Act of Congress on March 3, 1947. Represented for national advertising by the National Advertising Service. Printed by the Farmville Herald.

Timely Topics

Representatives Vote
On Postal Increase

By Judi Hackney
Postage Increase
The House of Representatives is the destination of the Postal Bill that was passed by the Senate on September 27. Three

Bobbitt Receives
Scholarship
From DKG

Mrs. Eleanor Bobbitt, former assistant professor of physical and health education, has been awarded the Delta Kappa Gamma State Scholarship. Mrs. Bobbitt, the first woman in Virginia to receive this scholarship, will put it to use in the pursuit of her doctorate in physical education. Mrs. Bobbitt will minor in health and recreation. After the completion of her studies, Mrs. Bobbitt plans to resume her teaching here at Longwood.

Delta Kappa Gamma, the education honor society, presented Mrs. Bobbitt with scholarship. One of the purposes of the society is to endow scholarships on outstanding teachers in graduate study. The Virginia Iota State organization chose Mrs. Bobbitt as recipient. The Scholarship Committee, headed by Mrs. Nell Griffin, consisted of representatives from throughout the state.

Visit the New

LEESE'S PASTRY

SHOP

votes were cast against it and 72 for it. Senators Byrd and Robertson from Virginia were two of the "no" voters.

In the House, the bill will either be passed or compromised between the two different versions. The efforts by President Kennedy to reduce the $900,000,000 a year postal deficit will be successful if the House passes this bill.

Provided the bill passes, the postal increase will become effective on January 7. Letters will be 5 cents; postcards will be 4 cents; and air mail, 8 cents. Pay raises in the Postal Department will become effective next month.

Drug Control

Federal control over the manufacture and sale of drugs will be tighter, as the result of the House's action Thursday, September 28, in a vote vote. Drug makers are now urged to publish in summary the possible bad effects of their drugs along with the good effects.

The provisions include: giving the Food and Drug Administration officials the right to inspect the drug factories; new drugs must be proven both effective and safe; authority to suspend a new drug that shows danger to the user; and antibiotics must be tested on a batch-by-batch basis. Simplified naming and adequate labeling of drugs are also provided for.

The Thalidomide tragedy spurred this action, although the main outlines of the bill were in hand before.

Hand Holding In Church

Hand holding in the Church of England has been sanctioned by Canon Francis Wright of Saint Edward's Church. He feels that young people's friendships should be brought into the presence of God. Canon Wright's remarks came after another vicar criticized teenagers and their customs of affection.

Nine seniors gather after being awarded blazers at AA Demonstration last Thursday. Front row left to right are L. Hatch, J. Harris, R. L. Dunn, B. Stewart, S. Phlegar; back row l. to r. are L. Snyder, F. Barnard, J. Moore, C. Nye.

College Blazers Awarded Seniors
Outstanding In Athletics

This year nine girls were awarded college blazers. Presentation was made at the annual Athletic Association Demonstration held last Thursday. These are awarded to girls who have accumulated a total of twenty or thirty points by participating in various activities on campus. A blue blazer is awarded for twenty points and a white blazer for thirty points.

Barnard Versatile

Florence Barnard, a senior, received a white blazer. She is a physical education major from Richmond. Upon graduation, she will also be certified in Biology and History. Her activities include all class sports in addition to varsity hockey and archery. She belongs to Psi Delta Epsilon, the Monogram Club, and is the Rotunda staff photographer.

Dunn Active

Senior Betty Lou Dunn also received a white blazer. She is a physical education major from Lynchburg. Betty Lou has played varsity hockey and has managed the archery team for two years. She has been a member of the Athletic Association Council for four years and is now vice-president. This year she was in charge of the annual demonstration. Betty Lou is a member of the Lynchburg Club

(treasurer) and the Monogram Club.

Phlegar Awarded Blazer

Sandra Phlegar, another senior, is a physical education-social science major also from Lynchburg. She has played class sports and varsity hockey, basketball, and tennis. She is president of the judicial board of student government, is a member of the A. A. Council and of Alpha Kappa Gamma. A white blazer was awarded to Sandra.

Snyder In All Sports

Joyce "Lefty" Snyder is a senior physical education major from Annandale. She has participated in all class sports and has been a member of the varsity hockey team for four years. She belongs to the A. A. Council, H2O club, Longwood players and the Rotunda staff (sports editor). "Lefty" received a white blazer, also.

Blue Blazers Awarded

Blue blazers were awarded to Janice Harris, Joy Moore, Carol Nye, Lindy Hatch, and Barbara Stewart. Janice Harris is an English-Spanish major from Roanoke. She has played varsity hockey, basketball, tennis, softball, and volleyball. Janice served as secretary of the Athletic Association Council in her junior year. She is a member of Alpha Sigma Tau sorority, this year serving as first vice-president; a member of the H2O Club, and Orchestras dance honorary.

Joy Moore is a Physical education major from Bassett. She, upon graduation, will also be certified in History and Biology. She has participated in class sports and has played varsity hockey and basketball. Joy is president of the Monogram Club.

Nye, Hatch Active
Carol Nye, a physical education major from Fort Ritchie, Maryland, received a white blazer for her participation in varsity hockey, basketball, tennis, softball, and volleyball. She

Three Teachers
Receive Ph. D.

(Continued from page 1)

Dr. Sterling C. Adams did both undergraduate and graduate work at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music; both the Masters of Music Degree and Muscology Work on his doctorate was done at Indiana University in Bloomington, Indiana. The application of learning theories to piano teaching was the general theme of his thesis.

Writes On Comedy

Mr. Carson Gibb, assistant professor in the English Department, attended Wesleyan University in Middletown, Connecticut, as an undergraduate student and worked on his doctorate at the University of Pennsylvania. His thesis was on the subject, "Figurative Instruction in Restoration Comedy."

Coaches Select
Varsity Hockey Team

Miss Her and Miss Brockenbrough have announced the varsity hockey squad for the 1962 season. Florence Barnard, goalie, has been elected as the team captain. Flossie, a senior majoring in physical education, is from Richmond.

These members composing the varsity squad are: Janice Harris, left wing; Lindy Hatch, left inner; Sandy Phlegar, center forward; Barbara Gray Martin, right inner; Chris Longstreet, right wing; Peg Waldo, left halfback; Barbara Stewart, center halfback; Betty Lou Dunn, left halfback; Judy Wilson, left fullback; Earlene Lang, right fullback.

Also included on the team are the following: Lucene Robertson, left wing; Jan Claybough, left inner; Barbara Rayland,

center forward; and Melody Saunders, right inner.

Powers will play right wing; Frances Stewart, left center halfback; Phyllis Collins, center forward; Lee Putney, goalie; Gay Taylor, left fullback; Joyce Snyder, right fullback; and Cherramy Howe, goalie.

Nevils Born will play left inner; Carolyn Cline, right inner; Brenda Lebel, right fullback; and Carol Nye, right wing. Peg Waldo and Judy Wilson have been appointed as the varsity hockey managers.

The varsity hockey team has scheduled five games for the season, two of which are to be played at Longwood.

Wilson Attends
DKG Meet

Dr. Ruth Wilson, Dean of Women, and Mrs. Nell Griffin attended a state board meeting of Delta Kappa Gamma at the Mark Manor Motor Hotel in Richmond on September 29. Delta Kappa Gamma is an honorary educational society for women.

Meets Annually

This yearly meeting is attended by district presidents and state organizational officers. Dean Wilson is the first vice president of the state organization and Mrs. Griffin is the state scholarship chairman and also the newly elected president of the Farmville chapter.

Bobbitt Gets Scholarship

Delta Kappa Gamma offered their first scholarship this year. Mrs. Eleanor W. Bobbitt, who was a member of Longwood's physical education department last year, was the first recipient of the scholarship. Mrs. Bobbitt is now working on her doctorate at the University of Maryland.

The Farmville chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma, the Psi chapter, is a relatively new chapter, organized in 1956. Cumberland and Prince Edward counties and the towns of Dillwyn and Prospect compose the Psi chapter.

Richmond Club Wins
Over Longwood Varsity

With autumn in the air and a new season of games in line, the Longwood varsity hockey squad took to the field September 29 to play their first match against the semi-professional Richmond Club.

Club Wins 3-0

The game was played at Westhampton College in Richmond and it proved to be a good day for the natives. The LC girls returned with a 3-0 loss.

Good Longwood Defense

Until the second half, the blue and whites held the Richmond

Club with a good defensive wall, but the club came back on offense and scored the three goals.

Alumna Plays Alma Mater

It was a fast game with both teams favoring the long pass and showing an especially strong defense. Jeanette Talbott, a Longwood alumna, played for the Richmond club.

Westhampton will again be the scene of battle on October 13, when Longwood meets the Little Colonels. Circus day will be the first home game of the year against Old Dominion, formerly, the Norfolk division.

Varsity hockey teams warm up in pre-game scrimmage at Westhampton College.

SHOP OWEN-SANFORD
DRUG CO.(In The Farmville Shopping Center)

Complete Lines of Cos-

metics:

Chanel No. 5

Lanvin Perfumes
(My Sin & Arpege)

Faberge

Rubinstein

Revlon

Dorothy Gray

Tussy

Du Barry

Bonne Bell

Fountain Service

Hallmark Cards

Whitman's Candy

Magazines

BETWEEN BITES... get that refreshing new feeling
with Coke!

Bottled under authority of
The Coca-Cola Company

LYNCHBURG BOTTLING WORKS, Lynchburg, Va.

Look - - -

Before You Leap

Silence.

A hush falls over the college in the small town. No one speaks by order of the Established Rule.

For weeks the students have been busily rushing around, propagandizing, talking fast and long, and saying nothing, pleasant, the weather—but oh, so interesting to all—and funny. Never knew that a beautiful day could be so funny.

This is the plan of Society . . . of people everywhere. Everything is taken for what it seems. Samuel did not pause to test his trust. Like the sheep, he did not question, and was shorn.

The students are busily herding a new bunch of willing sheep. Must hurry—market day is October 12. Can rest after that. There won't be another market day 'til next year.

Some have broken away from the fold to investigate. Fortunate ones—they shook the wool from their eyes the better to see, to contemplate They were not ready for market.

From their hilltop vantage point they can see the others running, now—confused, darting under the most convenient rock for sanctuary, allowing themselves to be pushed onward by the young shepherds until they are herded into their separate pens. The possibility of having a choice never occurring to them; never looking to future consequences.

Forum

Few students are aware of the fact that an organized forum has been in existence at Longwood for almost a year.

This forum seeks to provide a medium for the expression of students' ideas and a method for becoming informed about current events, as the story on page one states.

In our own little world of the college community we tend to shut ourselves off from the important events which happen in the "outside world."

The Forum offers an excellent opportunity for getting in our two cents' worth on public affairs. Or, it can serve as an interesting discussion to attend as a non-participant in order to learn about current events.

Whichever role you prefer to play, the Forum can be an important factor in broadening your knowledge.

I come to college to find myself, to ascertain the truth, to prepare myself for making a better world, to find new frontiers for democracy.

I want to know the why and wherefore, the basic reason why the world is in the stupid mess it's in.

So I studied sociology, biology, history, government, psychology and religion.

From my studies in psychology I concluded that Khrushchev is basically insecure, but from my studies in government I'm not so sure it's due to a lack of fulfillment of a basic need.

Now I need a platform for my opinions, a sounding board for my ideas . . .

A testing ground to try my arguments. What this school needs is a good old-fashioned FORUM. Indubitably, I feel called to initiate one such forum.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

LOUISE TELLS US YOU'RE ON THE FOOTBALL TEAM.

Students Combine Fun, Study In European Tour

By Nancy Mowrey

Summer is traditionally a time for travel and eleven Longwood girls teamed study with travel in Europe in a most enjoyable way this past season. Mrs. Ernouf, French and Spanish instructor, arranged the trip to Europe. In the group were Cookie Blackstone, Alice Boggs, JoAnn Cartwright, Ann Friedman, and Harriet Hunt. Joan McKenna, Glendon Merchant, Mary Morris, Gloria Newton, Peggy Pond, and Priscilla Salle also went. Mrs. Ernouf, enthusiastic about the "blast" the girls had, emphasized the fact that many of the girls accomplished serious study. For example, Mary Morris studied at the Sorbonne in Paris for a month, then went to the University of Valencia in Spain for a month of study. She passed the examination at each of the Universities.

Capping Begins Final Activities For Seniors

The eightieth graduating class of Longwood College officially became the Senior Class in a traditional ceremony held Monday, October 2 in Jarman Auditorium.

The Seniors marched into Jarman followed by their little sisters who were dressed in white. After the invocation, given by the Reverend Mr. Charles Fishburn, the class officers led the procession up to the stage, each accompanied by her little sister who carried her big sister's cap. Mr. Fred O. Wyzal then capped the kneeling senior. It was at this time that a four-year dream came true for each girl as she became a SENIOR.

Dorm Rules Unique
During their period of study in Paris, the students lived in a building much like a dormitory.

One of the "house rules" was interesting: the doors were locked at 1:00 am and opened at 7:00 am. If they were late coming in, they were very late. July 14, Bastille Day or the French Independence Day is a time of great celebration, including dancing in

Moss Finds Registration Smoother In '62

Registration day — hardly a day to look forward to during those first few days back on campus. With last minute unpacking still hanging over your head, you rush to get in line before all the classes on your list are closed.

Schedule Planned
Your tentative schedule has already been carefully planned—no Saturday or 8:00 classes, the correct number of required subjects listed, interesting and helpful electives, all under the right professors.

Lengthy Line
Already a mile-long line, I thought you were going to be one of the first there. What happened?

Where does that girl think she's going? Looking for her roommate? Is it your fault your roommate didn't save you a place up front?

Classes Closed
Well, at least you're in the 'rec' now. Oh, oh. Another list of closed classes. Only two from your list! You're lucky. Well, (Continued on page 4)

Sister Sets Attend LC, Give Opposing Views

By Dianna Upshur

This year there are fifteen pairs of sisters attending Longwood, not including twins. Upon interviewing several sisters, it was found that the main gripe about having an older member of the family at the same college were being introduced as "so-and-so's" little sister, and having to live up to her sister's reputation — or living it down, whichever it may be!

Sisters Room Together

Sisters Janis and Katie Connolly are both freshmen from Petersburg, rooming together in Post Office. Katie plans to teach, and Janie wants to go into nursing. When asked what they thought of sisters going to the same college and also living together, the double reply was, "It's cheaper!" This, they explained to a somewhat confused reporter, is because they can wear each other's clothes. "We are used to rooming together at home and so we know what the other thinks and feels about certain things," they said. "Therefore we don't have many arguments!"

Bryans Trade Clothes

Then there is sophomore Patty Bryan you know—Jane Bryan's little sister . . . "People often mistake me for Jane," she says. "Someone will start talking to me in the hall and then realize that I'm not Jane at all — only a smaller reproduction . . . she sneaks my clothes, too." Her friends say that Patty is always trying to find someone to go with her over to Cunningham to get her clothes back! However, having a big sister is a help in many ways, the younger sisters say. "It is nice to have someone to sort of look out for you and help you meet friends." "It is also economical," says Patty. "Jane will buy a skirt or something and then I buy a sweater or blouse to go with it and we take turns wearing the set. Whoever can speak it first, that is."

Rattling Separates Gibsons

Carole and Olivia Gibson are also both freshmen. Olivia, living in Ruffner, comments: "It was hard trying to see each other during rattling because we had to go through Tabby!" Freshman Mary Jane Blackburn has an ideal opinion of her older sister, Penny. "It's wonderful having an older sister at Longwood. I can ask her all the dumb little things that I would be too embarrassed to ask any other upperclassman."

'Little Black' Biggest

Senior Betty Stack says it is most convenient having Jo Ann around because she can borrow money from her. "Jo Ann has been nicknamed 'Little Black'." (Continued on page 4)

Older sisters pose behind younger sisters. Above, P. M. J. Blackburn, O. C. Gibson, B. J. A. Stack. Below, B. P. Parks, M. M. Warren, R. K. Pettit, D. Humphlett, L. Aldridge, J. Harris.

The Rotunda

ESTABLISHED NOVEMBER 20, 1950

Published each week during the college year except during holidays and examination period by the students of Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia. Box 105.

Editor-in-Chief
Dianna Humphlett	Managing Editor	Hobbi Mast	Business Manager
Ann Carroll	News Editor
Gwen Gilmore	Feature Editor
Lefty Snyder	Sports Editor
Lewann Hippey	Doris Smith		Desk Editors
Hetty Taylor			Art Editor
Phyllis Harward	Linda Paris		Photography
Ann Peters			Circulation Manager
Mary Reynolds			Advertising Manager
Mary P. Nichols			Faculty Advisor

(Unsigned editorials written by the editor)

Member: Virginia Intercollegiate Press (Rating First Class), Columbia Scholastic Press Association (Rating First Place).

REPORTING STAFF: Barbara Ace, Theresa Albright, Leslie Aldridge, Suzanne Ballard, Paula Blackstone, Margaret Cooke, Lee Criss, Dee Dee Dierich, Jane Eddy, Beverly Gooden, Judi Hackney, Judy Ivy, Sandra Jamison, Janet Lacy, Susan Lane, Mary Anne Lipford, Joan Lord, Bessie Mann, Charlotte McClung, Coyne Phillips, Barbara Polard, Karen Rader, Marcia Stagner, Doris Smith, Lois Sullivan, Hetty Taylor, Allison Tuggle, Barbara Turner, Linda Turner, Pat Wallace, Dee Watkins, Annette Wenger.

Entered as second class matter at the Post Office at Farmville, Virginia under Act of Congress of March 3, 1879. Represented for national advertising by the National Advertising Service. Printed by the Farmville Herald.

President Wyzal adjusts cap of new senior in Monday night's capping ceremony.

Timely Topics

Representatives Vote
On Postal Increase

By Judi Hackney

Postal Increase

The House of Representatives is the destination of the Postal Bill that was passed by the Senate on September 27. Three

Bobbitt Receives
Scholarship
From DKG

Mrs. Eleanor Bobbitt, former assistant professor of physical and health education, has been awarded the Delta Kappa Gamma State Scholarship. Mrs. Bobbitt is the first woman in Virginia to receive this scholarship, will put it to use in the pursuit of her doctorate in physical education. Mrs. Bobbitt will minor in health and recreation. After the completion of her studies, Mrs. Bobbitt plans to resume her teaching here at Longwood.

Delta Kappa Gamma, the education honor society, presented Mrs. Bobbitt with scholarship. One of the purposes of the society is to endow scholarships on outstanding teachers in graduate study. The Virginia Iota State organization chose Mrs. Bobbitt as recipient. The Scholarship Committee, headed by Mrs. Nell Griffin, consisted of representatives from throughout the state.

Visit the New

LEESE'S PASTRY

SHOP

votes were cast against it and 72 for it. Senators Byrd and Robertson from Virginia were two of the "no" voters.

In the House, the bill will either be passed or compromised between the two different versions. The efforts by President Kennedy to reduce the $800,000,000 a year postal deficit will be successful if the House passes this bill.

Provided the bill passes, the postal increase will become effective on January 7. Letters will be 4 cents; postcards will be 1 cent; and air mail, 8 cents. Pay raises in the Postal Department will become effective next month.

Drug Control

Federal control over the manufacture and sale of drugs will be tighter as the result of the House's action Thursday, September 28, in a voice vote. Drug makers are now urged to publish in summary the possible bad effects of their drugs along with the good effects.

The provisions include: giving the Food and Drug Administration officials the right to inspect the drug factories; new drugs must be proven both effective and safe; authority to suspend a new drug that shows danger to the user; and antibiotics must be tested on a batch-by-batch basis. Simplified naming and adequate labeling of drugs are also provided for.

The Thalidomide tragedy spurred this action, although the main outlines of the bill were in hand before.

Hand Holding in Church

Hand holding in the Church of England has been sanctioned by Canon Francis Wright of Saint Edward's Church. He feels that young people's friendships should be brought into the presence of God. Canon Wright's remarks came after another vicar criticized teenagers and their customs of affection.

Nine seniors gather after being awarded blazers at AA Demonstration last Thursday. Front row left to right are L. Hatch, J. Harris, E. L. Dunn, B. Stewart, S. Phlegar; back row l. to r. are L. Snyder, F. Barnard, J. Moore, C. Nye.

College Blazers Awarded Seniors
Outstanding In Athletics

This year nine girls were awarded college blazers. Presentation was made at the annual Athletic Association Demonstration held last Thursday. These are awarded to girls who have accumulated a total of twenty or thirty points by participation in various activities on campus. A blue blazer is awarded for twenty points and a white blazer for thirty points.

Barnard Versatile

Florence Barnard, a senior, received a white blazer. She is a physical education major from Richmond. Upon graduation, she will also be certified in Biology and History. Her activities include all class sports in addition to varsity hockey and archery. She belongs to Pi Delta Epsilon, the Monogram Club, and is the Rotunda staff photographer.

Dunn Active

Senior Betty Lou Dunn also received a white blazer. She, too, is a physical education major. From Lynchburg, Betty Lou has played varsity hockey and has managed the archery team for two years. She has been a member of the Athletic Association Council for four years and is now vice-president. This year she was in charge of the annual demonstration. Betty Lou is a member of the Lynchburg Club

(treasurer) and the Monogram Club.

Phlegar Awarded Blazer

Sandra Phlegar, another senior, is a physical education, social science major also from Lynchburg. She has played class sports and varsity hockey, basketball, and tennis. She is president of the Judicial board of student government, is a member of the A. A. Council and of Alpha Kappa Gamma. A white blazer was awarded to Sandra.

Snyder In All Sports

Joyce ("Lefty") Snyder is a senior physical education major from Annandale. She has participated in all class sports and has been a member of the varsity hockey team for four years. She belongs to the A. A. Council, H2O club, Longwood Players and the Rotunda staff (sports editor). "Lefty" received a white blazer, also.

Blue Blazers Awarded

Blue blazers were awarded to Janice Harris, Joy Moore, Carol Nye, Linda Hatch, and Barbara Stewart. Janice Harris is an English-Spanish major from Roanoke. She has played varsity hockey, basketball, tennis, softball, and volleyball. Janice served as secretary of the Athletic Association Council in her junior year. She is a member of Alpha Sigma Tau sorority, this year serving as first vice-president; a member of the H2O Club, and Orchestra dance honorary.

Joy Moore is a Physical Education major from Bas-ett. She, upon graduation, will also be certified in History and Biology. She has participated in class sports and has played varsity hockey and basketball. Joy is president of the Monogram Club.

Nye, Hatch Active
Carol Nye, a physical education major from Fort Ritchie, Maryland, received a white blazer for her participation in varsity hockey, basketball, tennis, softball, and volleyball. She

Coaches Select
Varsity Hockey Team

Miss Iler and Miss Brockenbrough have announced the varsity hockey squad for the 1962 season. Florence Barnard, goalie, has been elected as the team captain. Flossie, a senior majoring in physical education, is from Richmond.

These members composing the varsity squad are: Janice Harris, left wing; Linda Hatch, left inner Sandy Phlegar, center forward; Barbara Gray Martin, right inner; Chris Longstreet, right wing; Peg Waldo, left halfback; Barbara Stewart, center halfback; Betty Lou Dunn, right halfback; Judy Wilson, left halfback; Earlene Lang, right fullback.

Also included on the team are the following: Lurline Robertson, left wing; Jan Claybough, left inner; Barbara Rayland,

center forward; and Melody Saunders, right inner.

Peggy Gill will play right wing; Frances Stewart, left center halfback; Phyllis Collins, center forward; Lee Putney, center forward in physical education; Joyce Snyder, right fullback; and Cheramy Howe, goalie.

Nevis Born will play left inner; Carolyn Cline, right inner; Brenda Iabel, right fullback; and Carol Nye, right wing. Peg Waldo and Judy Wilson have been appointed as the varsity hockey managers.

The varsity hockey team has scheduled five games for the season, two of which are to be played at Longwood.

Wilson Attends
DKG Meet

Dr. Ruth Wilson, Dean of Women, and Mrs. Nell Griffin attended a state board meeting of Delta Kappa Gamma at the Mark Manor Motor Hotel in Richmond on September 29. Delta Kappa Gamma is an honorary educational society for women.

Meets Annually

This yearly meeting is attended by district presidents and state organizational officers. Dean Wilson is the first vice president of the state organization and Mrs. Griffin is the state scholarship chairman and also the newly elected president of the Farmville chapter.

Bobbitt Gets Scholarship

Delta Kappa Gamma offered their first scholarship this year. Mrs. Eleanor W. Bobbitt, who was a member of Longwood's physical education department last year was the first recipient of the scholarship. Mrs. Bobbitt is now working on her doctorate at the University of Maryland.

The Farmville chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma, the Pal chapter, is a relatively new chapter, organized in 1966. Cumberland, and Prince Edward counties, and the towns of Culpeper and Prospect compose the Pal chapter.

Richmond Club Wins
Over Longwood Varsity

With autumn in the air and a new season of games in line, the Longwood varsity hockey squad took to the field September 26 to play their first match against the semi-professional Richmond Club.

Club Wins 3-0

The game was played at Westhampton College in Richmond and it proved to be a good day for the natives. The LC girls returned with a 3-0 loss.

Good Longwood Defense

Until the second half, the blue and whites held the Richmond

Club with a good defensive wall, but the club came back on offense and scored the three goals.

Alhanna Plays Alma Mater
It was a fast game with both teams favoring the long pass and showing an especially strong defense. Jeannette Talbott, a Longwood alumna, played for the Richmond club.

Westhampton will again be the scene of battle on October 13, when Longwood meets the Little Colonels. Circus day will be the first home game of the year against Old Dominion, formerly, the Norfolk division.

Varsity hockey teams warm up in pre-game scrimmage at Westhampton College.

SHOP OWEN-SANFORD
DRUG CO.

(In The Farmville
Shopping Center)

Complete Lines of Cosmetics:

Chanel No. 5

Janvin Perfumes
(My Sin & Arpeggio)

Faberge

Rubinstein

Revlon

Dorothy Gray

Tussy

Du Barry

Bonne Bell

Fountain Service

Hallmark Cards

Whitman's Candy

Magazines

BETWEEN BITES... get that refreshing new feeling
with Coke!

Bottled under authority of
The Coca-Cola Company by

LYNCHBURG BOTTLING WORKS, Lynchburg, Va.

Japanese Collections On Display In Gallery

On display in the gallery of the Art Department are a group of Japanese calligraphies. This ancient and intricate art is represented by some of Japan's finest contemporary artists. There are examples of seals, fan paper, Buddhist scripture, and hanging scrolls containing some of Japan's most beautiful poetry. Among this collection there are two illustrations of abstract, yet readable forms of modern Japanese calligraphy. One is the abstraction of "Horse," the other "Nonbeing."

Fremanship An Art
Today, the written word is not often thought of as an art. In

Freshman Class Chooses Helms As Advisor

As the newly chosen advisor of this year's red-and-white freshman class of 1966, Mr. James M. Helms, one of Longwood's history professors, indicates he is quite pleased and enthusiastic.

"Big Honor"
"This is one of the biggest honors any faculty member could have. I can't begin to describe the wonderful feeling it is to be included in the class's spirited cheers at their class meetings," Mr. Helms' red-and-white can be noted also in the red striped tie he always wears, and, of course, in the red and white costume he will wear as Farmville's Santa Claus.

Has Serious Side
Among his more serious activities, Mr. Helms is advisor to

MR. JAMES HELMS

PI Gamma Mu, national social science fraternity, and is interested in forming an organization to increase student interest in politics and current events.

Mr. Helms is looking forward to working with and helping his freshman class. As he says, "There is something bright and alive about a freshman class. Their sincere enthusiasm is inspirational to teaching as well as advising and I hope to help them to retain this much-admired quality all through their four years here at Longwood."

the Orient, especially Japan, writing has long been a demanding and disciplined form of art. The Japanese first studied calligraphy and then adapted it to their own ideas and language.

Before the invention of the writing brush by Meng T'ien in 215 B.C. the symbols for the Japanese language had been pictographic, and it was not until the fourth century A.D. that the written characters assumed their present form.

Mastery Difficult
The placement, width, and relationships of intersecting lines is extremely important because any deviation could alter the meaning of the word. Color, too, is of major importance. Shades range from black to gray, usually becoming lighter toward the end of the stroke.

The brush is cumbersome and toilsome to use and is considered more of a hindrance than a help to the artist. The written language of Japan demands a mastery of the brush comparable to a highly skilled painter and is equal to or above the art of painting in the Orient.

Because of the difficulty in using the brush and the absorbency of the paper, the strokes must be quick, sweeping, and finished. If a mistake occurs, correction is practically impossible; therefore, many years of training and hard work go into the making of a professional calligrapher.

Sisters At Longwood State Opinions

(Continued from page 2)

says Betty, "and actually she's bigger than I am!" Donna Humphlett has one major problem with her younger sister Leslie. "She leaves a trail like a little pack rat wherever she goes. She comes up to my room, takes one of my skirts and leaves one of hers! But actually, it's really great to have her here."

Harris Feels "At Home"
Judy Harris-Janice Harris' little sister — is a sophomore transfer from Averett College in Danville. Judy agrees with almost everyone else that there is a definite advantage in having an older sister. "It just makes you feel more at home."

Other pairs of sisters on the campus include Rosa and Kitty Pettit, Mary Ann and Fran Lipford, Barbara and Carol Moyer, and Susan and Mary Jane Brittingham. Also, Frances and Barbara Jean Turner, Beverly Jane and Carolyn Hargrove, and Stacy and Sandra Jackson.

Around The Campi

Well, now that the Rotunda office has new fluorescent lighting, maybe there won't be as many mistakes in the paper. * *

Freshman overheard commenting on Longwood life: Don't things ever let up around here? I think they're trying to flunk us out because they're so overcrowded. * *

Joan certainly does look better now that the hole in her arm is patched. * *

Thought for the week: What's the difference between a flogpole?

Dean's List For Spring Made By 79 Students

The names of the 1962 graduates who appeared on the Dean's List for the Spring Session of 1962 are: Sue Agee, Carol Lee Brooks, Sara Buxton, Neddie Chapman, Susan Cisman, Betty Rice Dawson, Ellen DuPuy, and Winnie Egolf.

Others are Frances Carolyn Elliot, Evelyn Ford, Judy Giles, Shirley Harwood, Virginia Kemp, Madeline MacNeil, Louise Manka, Mary Byrd Mout, Joyce Porter, Anne Taylor Rowell, Jo Savage, and Emily Smith.

Undergraduates Listed

Other classmates included are: Cathy Atkins, Martha Bergeron, Alice Boggs, Beverly Butler, Jo-Ann Cartwright, Jo Anne Cohen, Margaret Conlan, Anne Cordle, Charlotte Craig, Cynthia Davenport, Pauline DeFew, Rebecca Evans, Betty Farley, Donna Franzen, Dorothy Goodman, Doris Harwell, Betty Howard, Sandra Jamison, Mary Agnes Jester, Gloria Kafer, Mary Catherine Lancaster, Jean Leary, Elaine Lohr, Laura McClenny, Charlotte McClung, and Elaine Mancl.

Others Named

Also included on the Dean's List are the following: Martha Mills, Shirley Moody, Eva Moore, Ewell Morgan, Nancy Mowrey, Marie Murphy, Gloria Newton, Wanda Old, Nancy Oldfield, Charlene Owen, Janet Palmer, and Dixie Perkins.

Mary Lou Plunkett, Mary Polard, Virginia Puckett, Jean Catherine Pulley, Betty Ann Rex, Lewann Rippey, Lurline Robertson, Melody Saunders, Neida Shields, Lois Sullivan, Rosemary Thomas, Frances Turner, Nancy Via, Herbert Wherry, and Melaine Wilkes were also on the Spring semester dean's list.

LC Fellow Study, See Europe

(Continued from page 2)

the city, the opera, and the "Comedie Francaise." The Louvre and monuments were found enchanting. "The people of Paris are just plain rude," said one student. The Parisians were usually cold, but unfriendly—all business. They are very materialistic, the shopkeepers discourage browsing with "ne touchez pas!" The girls said that because they were American, they were always overcharged in Paris. Even the waiters would make it clear if they thought the tip was not sufficient. Speculating on the reasons behind the unfriendliness, the girls said they thought that Paris is so international that they are tired of tourists. All the travelers agreed that all the Parisians were not this unfriendly, especially in the home of Nicole Charron, who is Longwood's French exchange student. "Nicole's home was like heaven," the group said.

Parted To Tour
From their study in Paris, the girls split up into smaller groups and toured as they liked. Some of the girls went to Germany and the Scandinavian countries, others traveled mostly in Spain. The most popular people were the Longwood girls were the Italians and Spanish. "They are so hospitable, all they want to do is help you," said Harriet Hunt. "The Spanish men are so chivalrous," exclaimed Jo-Ann Cartwright.

Hitch-Hiking Accepted
The customs often differed greatly with the American way of doing things. Because students are not wealthy, they travel by hitch-hiking. In Europe it is the way students are able to travel on limited budgets. Two Longwood students hitchhiked for 1,100 miles in Spain and found that they were treated most royally. "One man even offered us the use of his car," said one non-driver. "When our driver stopped to eat, he was insulted if we would not let him pay for our meal," she said. "When we tried to pay, he said 'Maybe in America, but not here.'" In Spain the hours, one eats are much different. The large meal of the day is at 3:00 and supper is from 10:30-11:00 p.m.

The Bavarians were found very interesting to the travelers because they "remain so warm and provincial." Their folk costumes are the daily dress. Many

New Rotunda Staff Chosen For Fiscal Year

The 1962-63 Rotunda now has a staff of sixty working in various capacities this year.

The Editorial Staff includes Ann Carroll, News Editor; Diana Upshur, Assistant News Editor; Donna Humphlett, Managing Editor; Lefty Snyder, Sports Editor; Ginny Gilmore, Feature Editor; Maria Grant, Assistant Feature Editor; and Lewann Rippey and Doris Smith, Desk Editors.

New Members Added

Working as Reporters are Susan Lane, Leslie Aldridge, Barbara Poland, Paula Blackstone, Linda Turner, Theresa Albright, Karen Ruder, Pat Wallace, Judy Ivy, Gwen Phillips, Beverly Goodes, Margaret Cooke, Dee Watkins, and Annette Wenger. Lois Sullivan, Sandra Jamison, Judy Hackney, Nancy Mowrey, Helen Weeks, Leslie Aldridge and Olivia Gibson helping her.

Business Staff

Bobbie Mast, head of the business staff, has new staff members Helen Weeks, Leslie Aldridge and Olivia Gibson helping her.

The advertising staff, with Mary Reynolds as head, includes

Mary Bradford, Judi Hackney, and Dottie Marshall.

Florence Barnard is the head of the photography staff, with Linda Paris as her assistant. Mary Evelyn Compton, Nancy Robertson, Dottie Marshall, and Betty Wright are working with them.

Circulation Staff

Ann Peters is head of the circulation staff. Working with her are Delores Antoine, Penny Blackburn, Ellie Bogan, Susan Brittingham, Sandra Freedman, Anne Garrett, Cindy Gay, Carol Gregory, Nan Hovey-King, Sue Mowrey, Mary Lou Plunkett, Joyce Powell, Libby Predmore, Eleanor Richardson, Betty Wall, Diane Whitley, Toni Young, Jackie Leath, Suzanne Briel, Guy Stump, Cabell Montgomery, Betty Lee Neal, Marian Russ, and Cheramy Howe.

Registration Line-Up Proves Success-Almost

(Continued from page 2)

the only alternative is 8:00 classes. Start Saturday, Oct. 6.

Registration Smoother
Actually, as bad as it all seems, registration day only comes twice a year. Looking at it from the administrative point of view, registration went more smoothly this semester than in the past.

Fewer Changes
According to Dr. Moss, fewer requests for schedule changes have been made than in previous years. In the past, his office has been deluged with requests during the two weeks in which these changes can be made. Often as many as two thirds of the student body has found some sort of a change necessary.

One reason which accounts for the decline in schedule changes, according to Dr. Moss, is due to the allotted time previous to registration during which upperclassmen consulted with their advisors. In this way, students were assured that the classes that they would sign up for would meet the requirements for their particular major.

Traffic Control
More stringent traffic control helped alleviate some of the confusion of previous registration days. By allowing only fifty students in the registration area at a time, much of the congestion was avoided.

Future Methods
In the future, new methods will be tried to meet the demands of a rapidly increasing student body. Our present method is used almost nationally by colleges approximately the same size as Longwood.

Dr. Moss says he is open to any suggestions which might improve the present system by saving the faculty, administration, and student body time.

SHOP

Visit

SOUTHSIDE SUNDRY

Today!

Visit The
DOROTHY MAY
SHOP

For A Nice Selection of Car Coats and Suede and Leather Jackets
For $10.99 up.
(All Colors and Sizes)

State Theatre FARMVILLE, VA.

SHOW TIMES:

Sun: 2:30-7:15 & 9:15
Mon thru Fri: 2:15-7:00 & 9:00
Sat: 1:15-3:15-7:00 & 9:00

ENDS TUES., - OCT. 2
"ADVISE and CONSENT"

WED. THUR. SAT. - OCT. 3-4-5-6

SUN-MON-TUES.-OCT. 7-8-9
EDGAR ALLAN POE'S
"TALES OF TERROR"

WEYANOKE BOOK SHOP

(Ground Floor Hotel Weyanoke)

Welcome Longwood
Students!

We have books for all OCCASIONS.

Bibles, Commentaries

Dictionaries,

Encyclopedias

Poetry Collections

Inspirational Books

Cook Books New and Old

Historical Collections

Best Sellers

Children's Books

Martin The Jeweler

Longwood Charms

$1.75 up

Initial Pins

By Trifari ... $2.20 each

Get Your

LONGWOOD CHARMS

at the

LANSCOTT GIFT

'Grease Paint And Baggy Pants' AKG Circus Theme

Ringmaster Revealed

In Coming Weeks

With the theme of "Grease Paint And Baggy Pants" Alpha Kappa Gamma launches Circus for another year — 1962. The theme was chosen to depict the realities of a circus which are concealed, changed into the glittering appearances effected by circus makeup.

Theme Activities

The theme will be carried out through publicity, Circus assembly, and various aspects of Circus day.

Next week, the Animal Trainer will be revealed. She is a sophomore, chosen by AKG, who will lead the animal act which precedes the skits.

Alpha Kappa Gamma also chooses an outstanding junior as Ringmaster. This person, revealed the week before Circus, will serve as mistress of ceremonies. She will introduce the class representatives and each class' skit with rhyming verse. At the conclusion of the program in Jarman she will announce the judges' decision and direct the audience to the Midway.

Parade Saturday

Circus day will begin with a parade Saturday afternoon at 4 p.m. Each class enters a float which carries out the theme of their skit to be presented that night. Winners of the float competition will be announced Saturday night along with the winning skits.

Introductory Acts

The Circus program will be introduced by an array of ushers, clowns, and wild beasts, each presenting an original act. The presentation of the class skits will be followed by the announcement of the winning skit and float and the awarding of a $10.00 first prize. Following the activities in Jarman, the "Midway" in the main "tree" will be open. Entertainment and concessions of all kinds will be sold to benefit various organizations.

Alpha Kappa Gamma members frolic on ladder backstage in Jarman after trying on clown costumes. Top to bottom, Betty Stack, Sandy Phlegar, Sandra Freedman, Alice White, Elaine Lehr, Sherill Hudlow, Margaret Vaughan, Pam Bullen.

Work Begins With Election Of Co-Chairmen

With the election of the freshman Circus co-chairmen, final preparations for Circus are now under way.

Freshman Chairmen

Freshman chairmen are Frances Heath and Harriet Anderson. Frances is a physical education major from Newport News, Harriet, from Radford is majoring in history.

Sophomore Heads

Upperclassmen heads were elected last Spring. The sophomore class elected Suzanne Ballard and Cheramy Howe to serve as co-chairmen. Suzanne has been elected to May Court, served as chairman of makeup for Freshman Production, and is a member of the Eastern Shore Club, coming from Willis Wharf. She is an English and elementary major.

Howe Elected

Cheramy Howe, from Richmond, is a member of the Longwood Players, Panhellenic Council, and Sigma Kappa sorority. She has played variety hockey for two years.

Atkinson, Waugh Active

Junior class co-chairmen are Betty Ann Atkinson and Sandy Waugh. Betty Ann is a member of Alpha Psi Omega and the Longwood Players, acting in various productions given by the Players.

Sandy Waugh, a biology major from Culpeper, was selected as a Top Rat her freshman year. She has played class sports in addition to varsity archery. She is a member of Alpha Psi Omega and the Longwood Players. Last year, she served as co-chairman for May Day Dance.

Senior Heads

Janice Harris and Barbara Gray Martin have been chosen to head Circus for the senior class. Janice is first vice-president of Alpha Sigma Tau sorority and was president of Orchestra. She has served as secretary of the Athletic Association Council and treasurer of the H20 Club. Janice is playing varsity hockey for her fourth year, has received the blazer award, and is a member of the Monogram Club. In her freshman year she served as co-chairman of Freshman Production.

Martin Active

Barbara Gray Martin, a physical education major from Cartersville, is president of Delta Zeta sorority, technical director of the Longwood Players, and a member of Alpha Psi Omega and the Athletic Association Council. She has played class sports and varsity hockey.

Fellowship Gives Study Grant To Grads

Competition for the 1963-64 awards of the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation has begun. Study awards will be given to 1,000 first-year graduates.

Purpose Outlined

The purpose and scope of the program is to attract more men and women into the profession of college teaching.

LC Student Wins Grant

The Foundation began its activities in 1945. To date, only one Longwood College student has been awarded a National Fellowship. Molly Workman did graduate work in English at Duke University in 1958-59 under the Foundation program.

All faculty members who wish to nominate candidates should do so by October 31, 1962. An information form will be sent to all nominees by the Foundation's regional chairman.

College Studies History Preparation

Certification in the teaching of history and social sciences is being studied by the state board of education. The study is being made in conjunction with representatives from the various colleges throughout the state.

Year-Long Review

During the past year the state wide group reviewed the content and range of preparation in the fields of history, economics, government, and geography. At the present time the individual colleges are reviewing the findings.

Newman Group Offers Students Theology Course

The Newman Club offers this year to all interested students, classes in the doctrines of the Church, Meeting weekly in the Y-Jounge, the club devotes the second Monday and the fourth Thursday in each month to the theology class.

Theology Course Offered

A twenty-hour course, the class is taught by Father Robert Patterson. As well as presenting a new study at each class meeting, Father Patterson gives a review of the preceding study and a preview of the following study.

Non-Catholics Invited

Although the Newman Club is a Catholic organization, non-Catholics are cordially invited to attend these informative classes. Under the direction of the Precious Blood Missionary priests of Saint Therese's Catholic Church, the Newman Club provides religious, educational, and social opportunities to Catholic students.

VOL. VLI

Longwood College, Farmville, Va., October 10, 1962

No. 3

THE ROTUNDA

Tryouts

Tryouts for "The Taming of the Shrew," The Fall play, will be concluded tonight. Final tryouts will be held from 7 to 9 p. m. in Jarman.

Colleges Require Graduate Exams Of Applicants

An announcement of dates for the administration of Graduate Record Examinations has been released from Princeton, N. J., by the Educational Testing Service. There will be five administrations in testing centers throughout the country for the coming year 1962-63 on the following Saturdays: November 17, January 19, March 2, April 27, and July 6.

Exam Now Requisite

The Graduate Record Examination is required not only of applicants to most graduate schools, but also by an increasing number of donors of graduate fellowships. More than 42,000 candidates took the GRE during 1961-62. Included in the examinations are advance level tests of achievement in seventeen different major fields of study as well as the general scholastic ability test.

November Deadline

Candidates may take one of the Achievement test, and/or the Aptitude test on any of the nationwide testing dates. The fall test (November 17) is often required of those seeking graduate school fellowships; and since different colleges require different exams, one should first inquire about the requirement of his graduate school for the correct examination (and its date) that he should take.

Milanov To Perform In Jarman October 18

Zinka Milanov, leading soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will perform here in Jarman Hall, October 18 at 7:30. Her visit will be the first of the Artist Series programs scheduled for this school year.

Native of Yugoslavia

Miss Milanov was born in Zagreb, Yugoslavia in 1906. She made her operatic debut in Zagreb with the role of Leonora in Il Trovatore. In 1937 she made her debut at the Metropolitan Opera in the same role. Since her return to the "Met" in 1959 Miss Milanov has had the honor of opening the season as the ranking prima donna three times.

Receives Critics' Praise

Many critics have praised (Continued on page 3)

Wilburn Chooses Colonnade Staff For '62-'63 Term

Editor-in-chief Rebecca Wilburn has announced the staff for the 1962-63 Colonnade. Helping her as Business Manager is Diane Whitley. Circulation Manager is Toni Young. Callie Foldesi is Head Typist, and this year's art editors are Melanie Wilkes and Judy Woodard.

Colonnade Heads Poetry

In charge of poetry is Sharon Coulter. While Joan Pollard heads the essay division and Donna Humphlett heads the short story division.

Serving on the Library Board this year are Betty Ann Atkinson, Judy Beck, Betty Farley, Donna Frantom, Pat Gillette, Evelyn Gray, Beth Marler, Alice Joy Pease, Barbara Poland, Penny Pond, Margie Turpin, and Mary Lou Whitehead.

Silver Anniversary

Since this year is the twenty-fifth anniversary for the Colonnade, the staff is hoping for an even more successful year. One of this year's plans includes publishing four issues instead of three as in the past.

Circus co-chairmen meet to discuss plans in Virginia Room. Back row, Janice Harris, Barbara Gray Martin, Cheramy Howe. Front, Sandy Waugh, Betty Ann Atkinson, Frances Heath, Harriet Anderson.

Time For Prayer

How many meetings do you have this week? Only eighty-five? In that case, how about going to the movies tonight? Oh, you have six tests tomorrow? Well, let's make it tomorrow night.

In all this hustle and bustle, we should not neglect a time for personal meditation. Rather BECAUSE of the hurry and scurry of college life, we should be sure to set aside a few moments of each day to ask for advice and help from the Almighty and to give thanks. Such a time may be right after supper at "Prayers" or at night as you crawl into bed.

"Humble yourselves therefore under the mighty hand of God, that he may exalt you in due time; Casting all your care upon Him: for he careth for you."

1 Peter 5:6-7

Elaine Lohr

President, Y. W. C. A.

Circus Magic

A circus is made up of many parts. Perhaps most heartwarming is the delightful conglomeration of clowns and animals and the transforming power of makeup and costumes—their magic that changes mere mortals into mystifying spirits of joy and laughter and love.

This is the wonderful magic of "Grease Paint and Baggy Pants."

Another theme has been chosen and another Circus is on its way. This is not just another Circus, however. Each one is unique with itself, for it draws together new students and new classes and originality is at its height in creativity. This uniqueness lies within each participant and develops as she learns the true spirit of Circus.

As each class begins its steps toward the finished product, may each student, in the midst of all the scenery, practices, and meetings, be transformed by the mystical miracles of "Grease Paint and Baggy Pants."

—Alpha Kappa Gamma

In Reply

In reply to one of last week's editorials which dealt with sorority rush, this week Panhellenic Council has published a letter to the editor, found in column 5 of this page. The letter states in part, "Just like any other organization on campus, sororities strive for the highest of ideals . . . The girls work hard . . . If they did not, there would be no point in having such groups. . ."

These points are well taken, and it is up to the individual sorority girl to decide whether she and her sorority are living up to the ideals for which it was founded—not only to the letter, but in the same spirit. Perhaps many are making this evaluation, now, in the midst of the harrowing experiences of preparing parties, cutting lists and being cut, and patching up group disagreements.

" . . . and sororities must be worthwhile or they would have faded long ago from this campus."

Communism, also, has failed to fade over the decades, but this is hardly proof of its worth.

The Rotunda

ESTABLISHED NOVEMBER 20, 1920

Published each week during the college year except during holidays and examination period by the students of Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia Box 168.

Ann Agee	Managing Editor	Bubbi Mast	Business Manager
Ann Carroll	News Editor	Festera Editor	Sports Editor
Conny Collier	Lefts-Snyder	Lewen Rippy	Doris Smith
Betsy Taylor	Art Editor	Photography	Advertising Manager
Fluor Raymond	Linda Paris	Circulation Manager	Faculty Advisor
Ann Peters	Mary Reynolds
Mary P. Nichols

(Unassigned editorials written by the editor)

Member: Virginia Intercollegiate Press (Rating First Class), Columbia Scholastic Press Association (Rating First Place).

REPORTING STAFF: Barbara Agos, Theresa Albright, Leslie Aldridge, Kenneth Ballard, Paula Blakemore, Margaret Cooke, Lee Criss, Dee Diederich, Jane Edy, Beverly Gooden, Judi Hackney, Judy Ivy, Sandra Jamison, Janet Lacy, Susan Lane, Mary Anne Lipton, Joan Lord, Bonnie Mann, Charlotte McClung, Gwynne Phillips, Barbara Poland, Karen Rader, Marie Siegfried, Doris Smith, Toni Sullivan, Betsy Taylor, Allison Tuggle, Barbara Turner, Linda Turner, Pat Wallace, Dee Watkins, Annette Wenger.

CIRCULATION STAFF: Suzanne Briff, Sandra Freedman, Cindy Gray, Cherry Hays, Jackie Leach, Chelli Mangerson, Betty Lee Neal, Mary Lee Plunkett, Joyce Powell, Eleanor Richardson, Marlene Ross, Gay Stamp.

ADVERTISING STAFF: Mary Bradford, Diana Dell, Betty P. Gaines, Judi Hackney, Dottie Marshall, Sandra Parker, Kaye Stone, Gay Woolbert.

PHOTOGRAPHY STAFF: Mary Evelyn Conner, Gray Gribble, Dottie Marshall, Nancy Robinson.

BUSINESS STAFF: Leslie Aldridge, Olivia Gibson, Helen Weeks.

Entered as second-class matter at the Post Office at Farmville, Virginia under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1921. Represented for national advertising by the National Advertising Service, Inc., Farmville, Virginia.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

"POKER CHIPS, BONGOS DRUMS, JAZZ RECORDS, PORTABLE HIGH-KICKS, GOLF CLUBS, TRANSLATOR—SAY, ARE WE SENDIN' THIS KID TO A COLLEGE OR A COUNTRY CLUB?"

Student Employees See Kennedy, Others

By Glany Gilmore

Many Longwood students spent their summer months holding down temporary jobs this year. Those students working in government agencies in the Washington area found themselves a part of an experiment to make college students aware of the functions of the many federal agencies.

This program, the White House Seminar, was a series of lectures given by representatives of different branches of the government. Summer employees who planned to attend college in the fall heard such speakers as President Kennedy, Attorney General Robert Kennedy, Supreme Court Justice Douglas, and many other public officials.

Shuttle buses, taxis and private cars transported students from their offices to Constitution Hall every other week throughout the summer. Two sessions were held to take care of the large number of students involved.

Letter From President

In a letter of welcome, President Kennedy said, "I hope while you are here, some of the tired old myths which you may still believe will be exploded for you . . ."

"When you leave us next fall, I shall look to you to serve as missionaries, explaining the government service to those with whom you come in contact and attacking the cloud of suspicion which enshrouds so much of what goes on here . . . And I hope that some of you, at least, may be inspired to return when your studies are over to join us in carrying forward the public's business."

Hear President

The biggest impression made on the Longwood students was hearing and seeing the president at the opening of the Seminar in Constitution Hall, and at its close on the lawn of the White House.

Pat Burdette, a freshman who worked in the Department of Agriculture, missed the president's opening address, but stood on the White House lawn for forty-five minutes in the rain to see him. She caught only a glimpse of him after being lifted up to see over all the heads. However, Pat's biggest thrill was getting to shake Robert Kennedy's hand during the final session on the lawn. Her only objection was that the program was poorly organized. Many of the speakers who were promised at the beginning of the session did not come.

Betty Jane Camp, a sophomore who worked for the Army Signal Corps, felt that the Summer Seminar was an excellent opportunity for college students to become better acquainted with the inter-relationships of (Continued on page 4)

Barron New On Campus; Holds Varied Interests

First in a series of features on new professors.

By Nancy Mowrey

World traveler, political scientist, author, businessman, and practical politician—this is Dr. Richard W. Barron, Longwood's new associate professor of political science.

Knox Graduate

Dr. Barron received the A. B. degree from Knox College. He has been interested in practical politics since his college days. Originally a businessman, Dr. Barron is now a manufacturer. He has a light sheet metal specialty manufacturing firm in Aurora, Illinois. He has also served in the lower house of the Illinois legislature for three two-year terms.

Attends U. Va.

During World War II, Dr. Barron went to the University of Virginia to take graduate work. Because of his health, he was advised to take a less strenuous occupation. At the University, he earned the Ph. D. degree. As a political scientist, he has served as a visiting lecturer at the University of South Carolina and Washington and Lee University. Most recently, he comes to Longwood from the faculties of Sweet Briar College and the University of Virginia.

Dr. Barron's family includes a wife and son, both of whom are presently in Charlottesville. He expects his wife to join him here in the spring. Meanwhile, his thunderbolt flies to Charlottesville most weekends. His son is in his second year at the University of Virginia.

World Traveler

Traveling throughout the world, Dr. Barron is especially enthusiastic about his travels in Western Europe and the Middle East. He attributes this interest to his academic activities. Says Dr. Barron, "The most fun I have is when I'm on a project." He explains that he is then able to observe the political workings of the state and also be a tourist in his leisure time. One project was a nine-month stay in the Middle East. Here he was on a mission for the Dearborn Foundation, named the "Soviet Bloc Underdeveloped Centers of Trade and Economic Relations Project." During this stay, he was able to observe the Lebanese and Egyptian elections in the spring of 1956.

Writes Books

Another project was a 15- (Continued on page 4)

MR. RICHARD BARRON

Students Express Opinions In Letters

Three Deplore Campus Atheism

This letter is in reference to an article which appeared in the Sept. 26 issue of the Rotunda. Although the article was written in a humorous vein, one sentence cannot be taken quite so glibly. . . . She soon finds that she can sleep every Sunday without being called an atheist."

It is a sad fact that such an attitude should prevail on a campus in which each girl is a member of the YWCA, a campus which has a majority of its students affiliated with some church organization, and a campus which seeks to educate its women in all phases of life, not just academic and social.

Has it ever occurred to you that the very act of being able to choose whether to "stay in bed" or "go to church" is a privilege which is denied the majority of the world today. The student who fails to explore not only his own faith, but the religions of others is limiting himself in becoming the mature person he strives to be. Open-mindedness is one mark of a mature person, on the other hand, indifference, passiveness, have no place in the world of a "student."

We cannot expect to pick up where we left off; the child's faith we had upon entering college will not be sufficient enough to live in an adult world. College is not a four year vacation from religion!

By not taking a stand you take a stand, however subtle. For those who think this response is exaggerated, please refer to the following article printed in the Richmond Times Dispatch:

MOSCOW — The Soviet Communist party called yesterday for a more effective campaign against religion.

An editorial in Pravda, the leading party newspaper, demanded greater attention be paid to "training of qualified propagandists of atheism, to athe-c instruction of all our members, Communists and Komsomols (Communist youths) to make everyone into a militant anti-religionist."

In the absence of religious statistics, observers have found it difficult to assess the effectiveness of the party's constant drive against organized religion. Although the Communists claim some progress, there is evidence of vitality in the Russian Orthodox Church, by far the most important religious body in the Soviet Union.

Scott MacGregor
Elaine Bane
Faye Stone

Panhellenic Makes Reply On Sororities

Dear Editor:

I am writing in regard to last week's editorial entitled "Look-Before You Leap," which was obviously directed toward the nine social sororities at Longwood. Just like any of the other organizations on this campus, sororities strive for highest of ideals as well as high academic achievement, and the members in each group work hard to do their part. If they did not there would be no point in having such groups, and sororities must be worthwhile or they would have faded long ago from this campus.

No girl is forced to join a sorority, and she has every right to drop out of rush any time she pleases. This is made clear to each and every girl who indicates an interest in sorority rushing. The Panhellenic Council members act as advisors to all girls who have questions concerning sorority life on this campus, and they do their best to answer all questions fairly without prejudice.

Sororities are explained fully to new students during their orientation program. Great letter organizations are a phase of our campus life which cannot and should not be ignored. No (Continued on page 4)

Manners Annoy LC Waitresses

Dear Editor:

The weary waitress in Longwood College dining hall gets paid 42 cents an hour for hectic work. She has to get up at 6:00 three times a week and spend at least four hours a day in that rat race. She would be an even more cheerful, pleasing waitress if she didn't have to contend with some of the following girls:

Type A — Ida Idler who picks over her food when everyone else is finished. When she gets up to leave she blocks the aisles by standing and talking to her friend Isabella Idler. Her mistake is not realizing that she is putting the waitress behind in real time.

Type B — Greta Get-me who thinks she is someone special. She always asks for ice tea even when it is below freezing outdoors. Peanut butter she must have. Greta may even ask for catsup to put on her frozen peaches.

Type C — Susie Second-helping who asks for seconds in everything. The rest of her table didn't want more but Susie has to hand every plate and bowl back to her waitress to be refilled. The maddening thing is that the food is left and the waitress' walking is no nothing.

Type D — Helen Hey you who (Continued on page 4)

Letter Defends "Rush" Editorial

Dear Editor:

In reference to the Establishment Letter mentioned in last week's Rotunda, we would like to compliment and commend the Rotunda's editorial for its expression of an inward complaint that many of us foster. Perhaps you hit the crux of this campus concern when you hinted at the Insecurity of Society as it oversteers the paces of rush. We gratefully acknowledge a witty, well-written editorial.

Two Juniors

Classes Vie For Cup As Practice Begins

Soon the classes will battle for the ten points offered toward the color cup for class hockey. Brenda Isbel and Sarah Jane

P.E. Department Gets New Net Available To All

Longwood now has a new rebound net in the physical education department.

Net Portable
This rebound net can be used for a game involving a ball that a player wants returned to him. The length and speed of the ball rebound can be controlled by the tilt of the frame and the net tension.

The rebound net can be used in the gym or out of doors, since it is portable. The net is ten feet high and twenty feet long and cost about two hundred dollars.

Available To All
Anyone who knows how to handle the net may use it or one may ask a varsity tennis player to help them with the net. At the present time some of the physical education classes are learning to use it.

The net was invented by Judy Baris. Mrs. Harris commented that it is a big aid in tennis practice. She is planning to start a beginning tennis class October 15 at 5 P. M. for non-credit.

LONGWOOD JEWELERS

Gifts

216 North Main St.

EX 2-5149

Lynch are the co-captains for hockey. They urge everyone interested to come to the practices and become eligible for the team.

Practices Announced
Practices are held on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 4 p.m. to 5 p.m. and on Fridays from 3 p.m. to 4 p.m.

To be eligible for the teams a specified number of practices is required. Upperclassmen need eight practices; freshmen taking regular gym classes need only four; and girls enrolled in the seasonal sports class of hockey need no additional ones. Accumulation of the required practices does not guarantee selection for the team.

Games: Not Scheduled
The dates for the games have not yet been scheduled; however, they will all take place before November 13, when the second nine weeks session of the semester begins.

Practices started on October 2 and will continue until the games begin. Brenda and Sarah Jane have reported a good turnout so far, but more are needed to make up the teams.

Critics Acclaim Singer Milanov For Skill, Charm

(Continued from page 1)

Zinka Milanov for her interpretative skill as well as her personal charm. Claudia Cassidy, of the Chicago Tribune, said of her performance: "Altogether lovely." Another critic, Olin Downes of the New York Times, said: "Utterly magnificent, . . . grand in manner, gesture, vocal sweep and glory of tone." Harriett Johnson, of the New York Post, said of Miss Milanov: "Singing of such a superb order cannot be too highly praised."

Four o'clock Thursday hockey practice finds red and whites and green and whites pitted against classmates to accumulate practices for class hockey eligibility.

Gobblers Scratch U.Va. Gridmen; Giants, Yankees Play In Series

By Marcella Siegfried

Sportswise, this past weekend was a busy one, with the college football games and the World Series dominating most of the sports picture.

Tech Defeats Uva

At the biggest Virginia game Saturday, the Harvest Bowl in Roanoke's Victory Stadium, the Virginia Tech Gobblers downed the University of Virginia Cavaliers 20-15. Virginia was leading at halftime by one point, but lost their lead in the third quarter. When Tech scored two touchdowns in the last quarter, but their last attempt to score was foiled by a fumble and a Tech interception on the Cavaliers 11 yard line in the last few minutes of the game.

IS Losses

In our own area of Virginia, Hampden-Sydney suffered a 22-7 defeat to Sewanee University in Tennessee after leading at halftime 7-6. In the last half, Sewanee jumped back with two touchdowns of 84 yards and 38 yards, respectively, and two successful runs for the extra points, giving Sewanee 16 points and the victory.

Other games of interest were also battled out Saturday: William and Mary 29-Clemson 23; Emory and Henry 38-Washington and Lee 33; Western Maryland 6-Randolph-Macon 0; Duke 28-Florida 21; and Boston College 18-VMI 0.

Major games this coming weekend will be Virginia Tech vs. Richmond; Virginia vs. VMI; Randolph-Macon vs. Washington and Lee; Western Maryland vs. Hampden-Sydney; and Davidson vs. William and Mary.

World Series
In baseball, the seven game playoff for the World Series pennant is underway. After winning over the Los Angeles Dodgers in a three-game playoff last week, the San Francisco Giants clinched the National League pennant. This week, the Giants are facing the seemingly perennial American League pennant winners, the New York Yankees. Needless to say, the Yankees are predicted to win the World Series pennant.

Graduates Work For Master's At U. T.

By Margaret Cooke

Five recent Longwood graduates began their work toward Master's Degrees in Physical Education at the University of Tennessee this fall.

Nancy Andrews of Roanoke and "Willie" Taylor of Gretna left teaching positions at Roanoke Lewis High School in Roanoke County to begin their graduate studies. Both had taught there since their graduation from Longwood in 1960.

Faye Ripley of James City, Virginia Parker of Saluda, and

Orchesis Group Elects Officers For Fiscal Year

Last week, Orchesis, honorary dance group, elected officers for the coming year. Junior Joyce Waldburger was elected to serve as president, Gaynelle Taylor as vice-president, Brenda Johnson as secretary, and Gail Jones as honorary treasurer.

The membership requirement is a year of apprenticeship in the club. During this year, the apprentice must dance in two of Orchesis' programs. Those serving as apprentices for the coming year are Ellen Barnes, Sue Durham, Joan Lord, and Sarah Jane Lynch. Orchesis meets every Thursday at 4 p.m.

The club's sponsor, Mrs. Emily Landrum, and the new officers urge all interested students to help make 1962-63 a year of dance at Longwood.

Timely Topics

Schirra Orbits Earth In Successful Mission

By Allene Tuggle

Walter M. Schirra, Jr., a 39-year-old naval commander, orbited the earth six times, October 3. The 170,000 mile trip lasted nine hours and thirteen minutes.

The mission was termed "successful from beginning to end" as all operations went smoothly. The only delay in the blast-off time lasted 15 minutes. The only malfunction Schirra encountered during the flight was slightly abnormal suit temperature. He corrected this situation during his second orbit.

Schirra's capsule, the Sigma 7, landed right on target in the Pacific Ocean. The USS Kearsarge spotted the astronaut's capsule at 4:38 p.m., four minutes before impact. Forty-two minutes later, Schirra was on board the ship.

Since Schirra executed his tasks so smoothly, many tense moments were eliminated. The only evident lesson shown by the viewers was during blast-off.

For three days after the flight Schirra underwent medical examinations and debriefing periods aboard the Kearsarge. Then he was flown to Hickam Air Force Base and from there to Houston, Texas.

United States District Judge, Claude Clayton, ordered, on October 2, that former Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker should undergo psychiatric examinations. In a federal prison, Walker is a key figure in the battling over admission of a Negro to the University of Mississippi.

His attorneys announced that they plan to fight the order and they have instructed Walker to resist the prison physicians. They will ask United States district judge John W. Oliver for a writ of habeas corpus or an injunction against any treatment on Walker unless by a physician approved by his counsel.

At his arraignment on October 1, Walker was placed under a $100,000 bond. However, the court order issued by Clayton prevents his getting a release.

hospital for the mentally ill and Faye at a school for the deaf, both in Knoxville. Miss Tier, professor of physical and health education at Longwood, remarked that Faye began learning sign language early last spring in preparation for her assignment.

Virginia, Nancy, and Willie will teach in the undergraduate department of the University.

Reeptive Blazers

While at Longwood each of the five graduates now attending the University received the Blazer award in recognition of their good sportsmanship, variety of athletic participation, and scholarship.

Orchesis president Joyce Waldburger and secretary Brenda Johnson practice numbers for coming programs.

Alumnae Council Holds Meeting, Wygal Speaks

The Fall Council of the Longwood Alumnae Association held the annual meeting October 5-6. Thirty-one alumnae members attended representing chapters throughout Virginia and surrounding areas.

A dinner was held in the snack bar Friday night. Mr. Fred O. Wygal, Acting President of Longwood, was the speaker. This was followed by business meetings at the Alumnae House Friday night and Saturday morning. From 10:00 a.m. to 11:00 a.m. Saturday, a coffee reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wygal. During the dinner meeting, Mrs. Elizabeth Shiplett Jones, secretary-treasurer of the association, presented a silver bowl to Mrs. Frances Farmer. Mrs. Farmer recently retired as manager of the "Snack Bar" after fourteen years of service.

BETWEEN HALVES...
get that refreshing new feeling with Coke!

Bottled under authority of
The Coca-Cola Company by

LYNCHBURG BOTTLING WORKS, Lynchburg, Va.

DAVIDSON'S BEAUTY SALON

Dial EX 2-3111 for appointment
Open every Friday nite 'til 9 P.M.

For Students only:
Contour Cuts ..... $1.00
Cut & Set ..... $2.50

Special Frosts, Tips, and Streaks

Permanent Waves

"For You," your roommate or your friend.

Two for the price of one with

This Coupon ..... From $7.50 up.

SOUTHSIDE SUNDRY CO., INC.

SPECIAL!

Thursday, Oct. 11, Farmville Day

12 exposures of black & white film developed and printed for ..... 45c
Regular Price ..... 55c
8 black and white exposures developed and printed for ..... 29c
Regular Price ..... 39c

Visit The

COLLEGE BOOKSTORE

See The New

Selection of Paperbacks

MARTIN THE JEWELER

Initial Pins

By Trifari ..... $2.20 ea.

Longwood Charms

$1.75 Up

Visit them today!

Four Represent LC At Tobacco Festival

Cheering fans, a cool crisp day for football, and a personal meeting with Governor and Mrs. Harrison are only a few memories of four Longwood girls who represented their respective counties in the 14th annual Tobacco Festival. The annual festival was held September 27-29, in Richmond. Linda Holman, Miss Nottingham County, and Margaret Poole, Miss Sussex County, both freshmen at Longwood, and Betty Ruth Simpson, Miss Cumberland County, and Ginnie Summers, Miss Nelson County, a junior, competed for the title of queen. Competition was held during the week before the football game and the Coronation Ball.

Full Schedule

A full, exciting schedule of luncheons, talent practices, television and radio interviews, photography posing, and introductions to famous personalities composed a large part of each princess's week, with all these activities culminating on Friday night in an eight mile long parade. The parade was composed of 118 marching units and floats with Raymond Burr, television's Perry Mason, acting as grand marshal.

Saturday's events included a football game between VPI and West Virginia at City Stadium, the crowning of the queen of the Tobacco Bowl during half-time ceremonies at the football game, and a coronation ball Saturday night.

Girls Lose Sleep

Lack of sleep and an absence of free time seemed quite prevalent in all the girls' schedules, but each girl had certain enjoyable experiences that she felt were unique. Linda Holman remembers the entrance of the princesses at the ball as the most beautiful thing she had ever seen. Margaret Poole spoke of the friendliness of everyone and of the efficient help of the chaperons. Ginnie Summers, whose roommate at the hotel, Sandra Dwyer, became queen, expressed her feelings, "I had a fabulous time. . . I enjoyed meeting the girls most of all. Some of them were really exceptional and so talented. I made one wonderful friend - we're all planning a 'reunion' next year."

All the girls easily summed up their feelings with a unanimous, "the whole week was marvelous."

Newcomers Club Of Farmville

The Newcomers Club of Farmville went on a tour of Longwood last Wednesday night. Amy Haley and Mrs. Betty Stoddard of the public relations office took the group to Tabb and Wheeler dormitories, the new library and other buildings on campus.

3-Year Membership

The Newcomers Club consists of new residents of Farmville. They can be members of the organization for three years after moving to Farmville. Mrs. W. K. Carter, of Carter's Florist is a sponsor for the club and also heads the Welcome Wagon committee. Mrs. Carter is informed of all newcomers in town and visits them to extend a cordial welcome to Farmville. She also presents gift certificates from many of the merchants in town.

The club is composed only of women. Some are teachers and others are wives of Longwood faculty. The group is very heterogeneous as far as backgrounds are concerned, but Mrs. John Allen commented that they all had something in common and the monthly meetings along with activities was enjoyable for them.

Mrs. Allen, who was program chairman last year, said that occasionally they will have a speaker or have a bridge party or some other form of entertainment.

Mrs. Sally Hardorf is president of the Newcomers club which meets on the first Wednesday of every month.

secretary of the Baptist Student Union, on the business board of the Colonnade, and a member of Pi Omega Pi. Treasurer "Cindy" Davenport, also treasurer of Pi Omega Pi. Reporter Harriet Brooks, president of the Northern Neck Club, and Public Relations Chairman of YWCA; and Historian Hilda Reeves.

Department Introduced

The freshmen were introduced to Dr. Landrum, the head of the business education department and the other professors in the department.

—Staff Photo
Finnish farm youth exchange Omerva Ala-Karonen shows slides of native country to Longwood geography class.

Tours Longwood Finnish Student Visits Campus, Attends Geography Classes

By Jayne Eddy

A Finnish exchange student visited the Longwood campus last Friday. She attended the geography classes here in which she discussed life in Finland and her impressions of the United States. Omerva Ala-Karonen is spending six months in this country under the International Farm Student Youth Exchange program.

Agriculture Major

Miss Ala-Karonen is a third year student at the agricultural school of the University of Finland where she is majoring in animal husbandry. She is one of ten girls out of 600 enrolled in this agricultural school.

The students in Mr. Magnusson's geography class gained a lot of information concerning life in Finland. Miss Ala-Karonen first showed slides of her native country - scenes of the countryside, churches, colleges, cities, and also of the people. She then gave an informal lecture in which she discussed Finnish customs, dating life, recreation, and religious practices.

Gained Wrong Concept

Mr. Magnusson, commenting upon the exchange, said "Her conception of the United States had been gained through movies that she had seen in Finland. She's found that her concepts were entirely wrong. Young people in Finland are pretty much interested in what young people in the United States are interested in - school, dating, and recreation. Girls in Finland generally do not begin to date until they're eighteen."

Finland Behind

Miss Ala-Karonen also mentioned that Finland was behind the U. S. from the material point of view. But in making progress, the main basis of wealth comes from their forests. She wishes to obtain a thorough knowledge about the different methods of farming in the United States. Omerva Ala-Karonen spent three months in Minnesota where she lived on a farm with a family, and is now spending her remaining time with a family in Kenbridge.

Miss Ala-Karonen was delighted with this country, and found it to be progressive, but preferred living in Finland. She is planning to return to her country next month.

Poetry Press Announces Contest

THE NATIONAL POETRY PRESS announces its poetry competition. The annual closing date for the submission of the manuscripts by College Students is November 5.

Any student attending either junior or senior college is eligible to submit his verse. There is no limitation as to form or theme, however, shorter works are preferred by the publishers because of space limitations. Each poem must be typed or printed on a separate sheet, and must bear the name and home address of the student, as well as the name of the college attended.

All manuscripts should be sent to the Offices of the National Poetry Press, 3210 Selby Avenue, Los Angeles 34, Calif.

New Professor Makes Study Of Elections

(Continued from page 2)

month sojourn in France. The result of the study was two books published in 1959, titled Parties and Politics in Modern France, and Study of French Colonial Policy. Dr. Barron is now completing work on his latest book. It is a comparative study of the electoral process in the countries in which he has observed elections: England, France, Italy, Turkey, Lebanon, and Egypt.

Multilingual Barron
French, Italian, Spanish, and a bit of Arabic are the languages Dr. Barron speaks. Modestly he says, "I speak none of them fluently." International relations and international law are topics which he would like to introduce at Longwood. He also mentioned interest in teaching a course in the foreign policy of the great powers. "When there is sufficient demand for such courses," in the international relations field, he specializes in American foreign policy, and that of the Middle East and Western Europe. Dr. Barron is available for lectures and talks on Political Science and International Relations to interested groups. This is an excellent opportunity for various groups to become acquainted with one of Longwood's newest scholars.

LC Students Hold Government Jobs

(Continued from page 2)

the various government agencies.

Another Department of Agriculture employee, Betty Ann Atkinson, thoroughly enjoyed the lecture series, especially Adlai Stevenson. "He is a grand speaker," she said, "and spoke to us in a less serious manner than the others." The incompetence of the government is often played up, she believes, which tends to make young people ridicule government work. Through this program she gained more respect for government service work and was able to see the dedication of the speakers.

Humphrey Impressive

Nancy Mowrey, an Air Force employee, was "most impressed with Humphrey whose enthusiasm," she said, "made him an effective speaker." She found Newton Minow of the Federal Communications Commission very informative, giving her a new insight to many of the problems the government faces.

Jazz Festival Held

The Jazz Festival held one night for those who attended the Seminar. Nancy Mowrey, performing for the students were Tony Bennett, the Dave Brubeck Quartet, and the founders of the Newport Jazz Festival. The concert was held in the Sykes Auditorium at the base of the Washington Monument. Impressive as it was, she believes that a social event was unnecessary and expensive for the government.

Program Scale "Too Large"

Nancy feels that the program was run on too large a scale. She suggested that if the program is to continue next summer, each student should be given a choice of a few speakers that interest him in particular.

Although liberal ideas were expressed, she believes that the speakers were careful not to bring politics to the fore.

Aim To Change Views

Disagreeing with this view is Frances Campbell, a Bureau of Mines employee. She feels that such a program should not have been given on government time. "It's aim," she believes, "was to change our attitudes toward the present administration." "They can't ram a thing like this down our throats. Students can read the papers, visit Congress, and make their own decisions."

Benefits Outside Students

Both Meredith Cate who worked for the Forest Service and Danette Blundell of the Public Health Service felt that the program was more of a benefit to those who had not lived most of their lives in the Washington area. Those who have, they say, are more in contact with current events.

Freshman Kathleen Erickson, who worked for the Marine Corps, enjoyed the question and answer periods following the lectures. "Most of the questions were good," she observed, "but the answers were too general."

Panhel Makes Proclamation Of Purposes

(Continued from page 2)

student is given the impression, however, that sororities are the most important thing in a person's college career. This is not the feeling of Panhellenic, nor should it be the feeling of anyone on this campus. There is always room for improvement in every organization, and this should certainly be true of the way in which sorority rushing is handled at Longwood College.

The sheep can certainly question and shake the wool from their eyes. They are given every opportunity to stay away from the market if they so desire, but most of the sheep are quite happy with their separate pens, and if they are wise sheep, they DO look before they leap.

Sincerely,

Sherrill Hudlow, President
Panhellenic Council Association
Longwood College

Boerc Eh Thorn Sponsors Picnic For Freshmen

Boerc Eh Thorn, honorary English society, held its annual picnic for freshman English majors Oct. 3 at Longwood Estate. Nineteen freshmen attended.

Officers Introduced

The Boerc Eh Thorn officers and members were introduced. They are President, Betty Farley; Vice-President, Jean Polard; Secretary, Debbie Dove; Treasurer, Kay Willis; and Historian, Rebecca Wilburn. Other members are: Callie Foldes, Sherrill Hudlow, Gloria Newton, and Becky Reamy.

Skit Presented

A skit was presented during which Betty Farley explained the purposes of the society and Rebecca Wilburn discussed the Colonnade, the college literary magazine.

Faculty members attending were Mrs. Dorothy Schlegel, advisor; Dr. Simoni, Mr. Gresham, Dr. Gibb, Mr. White, Dr. Barnett, Dr. Sprague, and Mr. Umphlett.

Waitresses Reveal Pests Of Refectory

(Continued from page 2)

never bothers to find out her waitress' name. She calls out a "yes" when she wants anything. Another thing that she usually forgets to say, "thank you."

If the girls would just realize how inconsiderate they can be things would be much more pleasant for the waitresses. Every little bit counts. When someone at her tables stacks dessert plates the waitress feels more than appreciative. If a person asks a favor with a smile, the waitress will try her best.

Three Weary Waitresses

PBL Gives Tea For Freshmen

Phi Beta Lambda, the national college organization of the Future Business Leaders of America, gave a tea for Freshmen last Friday, October 5. The tea was held at 4 p.m. in the Student Lounge.

Jones Welcomes Group

President of Phi Beta Lambda, Gail Jones, who is a member of Pi Omega Pi, treasurer of Orchestr, a member of the Student Education Association, and a member of Phi Mu sorority, was there to meet the freshmen.

Talley, Others, Assist

Assisting her were Vice-President Mierle Talley, a member of the Longwood Players, and the Wesley Foundation. Secretary Mary Louise Merricks, who is

—Staff Photo
Phi Beta Lambda members Harriet Brooks and Gail Jones, standing, serve freshmen at introductory tea Friday.

From the Rotunda Files

5 Years Ago—1957

The Four Freshmen appeared on campus to benefit the Dabney S. Lancaster Scholarship Fund.

Camella Otis Skinner, actress and author, presented a group of personal sketches for the first time.

The total registration was reported as being 904. Of these 334 were Freshmen.

15 Years Ago—1947

Miss Leola Wheeler had selected "Death Takes A Holiday" for the Fall Play.

Dr. Brumfield was chosen sponsor for the Freshman Class.

25 Years Ago—1937

The total reported enrollment was 780 students.

"Love Under Fire" with Don Ameche and Tippi Hedren was playing at the Enco Theater. Admission 25 cents-35 cents.

For 50 cents at Baldwin's Beauty Shop students could get a shampoo and finger wave.

Brittingham To Lead Parade As Animal Trainer

THE ROTUNDA

VOL. VII

Longwood College, Farmville, Va., October 17, 1962

No. 4

Singer Milanov Appears In Program Tomorrow

Jarman Hall will be the scene of a performance by Zinka Milanov, renowned leading soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, tomorrow night at 7:30. Famous for her brilliant mastery of vocal technique, Miss Milanov was chosen to sing "Aida" at the Vienna Opera, and was presented to an international audience by Toscanini at the Salzburg Festival of 1957. Miss Milanov has performed for and delighted many audiences throughout the United States as a soloist with orchestras and as a recitalist. Her interpretive skill and depth of genuine feeling has been highly praised by critics. This performance will mark the beginning of the Artist Series programs scheduled for this year.

Series Features 'Little Orchestra' Here October 31

The Little Orchestra, directed by Thomas Scherman, will perform in Jarman Auditorium October 31 at 7:30 p.m.

Go On Tour

Scherman and The Little Orchestra have been giving concerts in New York for 15 years. However, this is the first time they have offered similar programs to audiences throughout the country.

Selections will be presented by the orchestra as a whole, as well as by smaller virtuoso groups and by the piano soloist Frank Glazer.

Admission will be $2.00 for adults and $1.00 for students.

Alumnae Decide To Publish, Sell Book By Gleave

The Longwood Alumnae Association voted at their Fall Council meeting to publish and sell a cookbook written by Miss Ruth Gleave.

Miss Gleave, former Dean of Women and chairman of the Home Economics Department at Longwood, has compiled the Blue and White Cookbook from recipes she has received from alumnae and from her international travels. Alumnae have also written jingles to go along with the recipes in the illustrated book.

Experience and travel have convinced Miss Gleave that "good cooking is good cooking regardless of where one goes." Mrs. Evelyn Traylor Macdon has appointed Mrs. J. H. Wamsley as chairman of the cookbook committee. Appointed to work with her are Mrs. Elizabeth Morring Smith, Mrs. Frances Jones, and Mrs. Elizabeth Shipley.

The Blue and White Cookbook will be available through Alumnae Chapters and will be sold at Longwood. Those who wish to order by mail may do so. The Alumnae Association also voted to set aside a part of the Alumnae House for those alumnae who come back to the college for Circus weekend. There will be a social get-together Saturday afternoon before the Circus parade.

AAUW Holds Meet At Sweet Briar

The American Association of University Women will hold their State Convention at Sweet Briar College on October 20, 1962.

The president of Sweet Briar, Mrs. Anne Gary Pannell, has invited all members in attendance to a tea in the afternoon. Later that afternoon Miss Joanne Currutt, president of the local chapter, Miss J. E. Sear, vice president, and Miss Joan Spencer, Baptist Student Union leader, will be in charge of certain discussions or "buzz" sessions.

The topic of the convention this year will be "International Understanding." All members of the local AAUW are invited to attend.

—Staff Photo
ANIMAL TRAINER, M. J. Brittingham tries costume for role in '62 Circus.

Y, SGA To Sponsor Local Bloodmobile

Under the joint sponsorship of the YWCA and the Student Government Association the Appalachian Region of the American National Red Cross will bring to Longwood a bloodmobile in the early part of February. Lewis Heads Drive Eunice Lewis, a Junior from Norfolk, is chairman of the program. She became interested in the program when the blood-mobile visited Farmville earlier this month. After visiting the infirmary and the public relations office, she presented the program to the Student Government and the YWCA who agreed to take on the project. No quota has been set for Longwood, but Eunice says that such a program will require the backing of the entire student body to be a success.

Any person in good health between the ages of 18 and 59 may donate blood. Those between the ages of 18 and 21, unless married, will need parental permission.

Takes 45 Minutes

Each donor is given a brief physical examination including temperature, pulse count, blood pressure, and hemoglobin check. Refreshments are served to the donor both before and after he or she gives blood. The entire process, including registration, physical check, donation, and refreshments, takes only 45 minutes to an hour. The actual donation time is only five to seven minutes. Student volunteers will assist the doctor and the trained nurse with the program.

After a blood donation, the donor's body replaces the fluid lost in a matter of hours. The cells are replaced from body reserves within several days, and the reserve depots are replenished in several weeks.

No Blood Wasted

No blood donated is wasted. Blood can be kept under refrigeration for 21 days and used in whole blood for transfusions. After that it can be made into blood fractions or derivatives, which multiply its usefulness. From these derivatives come such medicines as gamma globulin, vaccine immune globulin, serum albumin, and fibrinogen.

Parade To Launch Circus Festivities

By Sherrill Hudlow

Circus is in the Autumn air, and along with the fun and fantasy of clowns in grease paint and baggy pants, the animals stomp their feet impatiently waiting to perform. Their cries resound through the air, and Mary Jane Brittingham officially becomes Animal Trainer for Circus, 1962.

Surprised Reaction

Mary Jane's reaction to being chosen was that of complete surprise. When told that she was to be Animal Trainer, Mary Jane didn't know what the AKG member was talking about, and did not know for several minutes just what were the implications of what she had been told.

Mary Jane is an elementary major from Portsmouth. She is a member of Sigma Kappa social sorority, of which she serves as assistant treasurer. She was a member of Freshman Commission and now serves on the "Y" Cabinet. Last year, Mary Jane had a leading role in the Freshman class skit and participated in their class production. This year, she is co-chairman for the class of '65 midway booth.

As Animal Trainer, Mary Jane will lead the parade which officially marks the beginning of the Circus festivities on October 27. As director of the parade, Mary Jane will lead the students dressed in their class colors as they march behind their class floats and animals, clowns, and Circus enthusiasts.

Seven-block Parade

The parade will move down Pine Street to route 60 and proceed along Main Street, circling back to the campus via High Street.

In addition to her duties in the parade, the Animal Trainer will conduct the show featuring the animals prior to the presentation of class skits in Jarman Hall beginning at 8:00 p.m. The evening Circus program will also climax the afternoon festivities as the Ringmaster announces the prize-winning float of the parade.

100 Per Cent Solicited

As Circus time draws near,

Boushall Succeeds Lankford As Head Of Longwood Foundation

Mr. Thomas C. Boushall of Richmond was elected president of the Longwood College Foundation at its annual meeting in Richmond. He succeeds to this post Dr. F. G. Lankford, Jr., president of Longwood, who is currently on leave of absence to serve as head of a group of educational advisors to the government of Pakistan.

Large Vice-President

Elected to serve as vice-president of the Board is Mr. Maurice R. Larze of Farmville. Mr. J. H. Wamsley of Farmville was re-elected to the office of secretary-treasurer.

Longwood College Foundation was established to secure and administer funds for the improvement of the College. Current value of the Foundation is over $43,000.

Four On Board

Other members of the Foundation Board include Dr. Elizabeth Burger of Farmville, Mr. Henry W. Decker of Richmond, Mr. Leonard G. Muse of Roanoke and Mr. G. Harrison Mann, Jr., of Arlington.

Mr. Boushall is chairman of the Board of Directors of the Bank of Virginia. Prior to holding this position, he was president of the Bank from 1922-59. Mr. Larze is secretary of Andrews, Larze and Whidden, Inc., of Farmville and Mr. Wamsley is business manager of Longwood.

Since graduating from Longwood, she has taught and studied at the Woman's Division of the University of North Carolina where she received the Master's Degree. She is an instructor at art at Southern Seminary at the present time.

Her paintings have been exhibited throughout the state. Last year her paintings were exhibited here. Earlier this month she took part in an art showing at the Exhibition Gallery of the Roanoke Public Library.

Participate In Sports

The first class games of the year will begin with the hockey games to be played the first week of November. Throughout the year, students are encouraged to benefit their respective classes and themselves by playing a class sport. Everyone knows that sports provide vital exercise, especially for students who rarely get sufficient exercise and on whom mental pressure is great.

Support your class with your presence at class games or by playing on the team.

Sounds

Sounds of enthusiasm, freshmen during a full week of rattling echoes against the songs of cheering Circus revelers; crowded senior dances; active regional club, a student body of 650, the day of "100% participation." Shades of 1942.

Sounds of fierce class rivalry, Cotillion club dances, plentiful and spontaneous "sings." Spirit, rah, rah. The "good old days" 1952.

Wake up now to sounds of bulldozers, hammering, building, a college expanding, growing so it's hard to remember when it all began. Sounds of tightened restrictions announced—bewilderment—heaven forbid change. Adjustment, a new respect. Sounds of a changing college.

A new freshman class enters, a new outlook, a changing student, four point system. Don't compromise goals, don't be spoiled. Keep the rah, rah to remember Longwood by.

We Get Letters . . .

With the beginning of another year, it is important that all students know our policy concerning letters to the editor. So, let us reiterate our policy.

The editor traditionally reserves the right to print all letters at her discretion, however, there is not a single incident in the last few years, to our knowledge, in which a letter was refused. As long as letters are mature and show careful thought, such as the ones we have been fortunate in having in the past, we will print them.

If so desired, the author's name will be withheld, however, her identity must be known to the editor. As a rule, signed letters command more respect for one's cause.

So, keep writing—we like to get mail.

LITTLE MAN CAMPUS "BRIBER"

"SOME OF THESE FRESHMEN COME HERE WITH THE IDEA THAT COLLEGE IS JUST ONE GIANT PARTY."

The Rotunda

ESTABLISHED NOVEMBER 29, 1920

Published each week during the college year except during holidays and examination period by the students of Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia.

Ann Age	Managing Editor	Hobbi Mast	Business Manager
Dorcas Humphreys
Ann Carroll
Ginny Gilmore
Lefty Snyder
Lewann Ripper
Henry Taylor
Flonnie Bernard
Linda Paris
Ann Price
Mary Reynolds
Mary F. Nichols

(Unpublished editions written by the editor)

Member, Virginia Intercollegiate Press (Rating First Class), Columbia Scholastic Press Association (Rating First Place).

Entered as second class matter at the Post Office at Farmville, Virginia under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1901. Represented for national advertising by the National Advertising Service. Printed by the Farmville Press.

FRENCH INFORMANT, Nicole Charron and Spanish Informant Isabelle Loeffler Braniff ready the language lab for coming year.

Braniff, Charron Assist In Language Instruction

On the Longwood campus this year are Isabelle Loeffler Braniff and Nicole Charron—the Spanish and French informants. Assisting the foreign language professors in Spanish and French is only part of the reason they are here. Both Isabel and Nicky, as Nicole is known to the students, feel they are fortunate to have the opportunity to learn more about America, its people and the English language.

Have Common Bonds

One of the common bonds between Nicky and Isabel is the fact that each speaks the other's language as well as her own, in addition to English. Another thing common to both girls is that each has one younger brother. Also, both are here because of friends who told them about Longwood's informant program.

Nineteen year old Isabel is from Mexico City where her father is a doctor. Isabel spent six years in a primary school, studied one year in an English school at her mother's request, went to a secondary school for three years, and in 1960 finished her two preparatory years. During the time in preparatory school, Isabel taught English to little children. Last year from May to November Isabel traveled and studied in Europe. She spent three months each in Paris and Switzerland, and then stayed in Rome for a month.

Studies Business

Upon return to Mexico City, Isabel studied at a business school where she plans to re-enter and finish when she returns home after her year here. At the business school she taught a little French.

Aside from helping Miss Barksdale and Mrs. Emouf, Isabel finds time to take classes in shorthand, typing, English, and French. Her hobbies are playing the accordion and piano and painting portraits.

Likes Longwood

Isabel feels that friendliness is common with the American people and when asked about Longwood, she said, "Oh, I love it, I'm so happy here."

Paris is the home of twenty-two year old Nicole. She attended a secondary school from the age of eleven to seventeen. Then she passed the exam for the Baccalaureat in philosophy. Later she attended a secretarial school in Paris for two years and worked for a month as a secretary before coming to America.

Charron Takes Classes

Nicky is studying English composition, comparative literature, and Spanish this year as well as helping Miss Draper's classes learn more about France and her language.

Being with her friends is one of Nicky's most enjoyable pastimes. She enjoys going to the theater and to movies, but especially so with friends. Water skiing and swimming are favorites with Nicky, as well as all winter sports. One of her ambitions while in this country is to travel as much as she can so she may learn more about America.

Nicky is impressed by the friendliness of everyone at Longwood and although it is so different from Paris she says that she "likes Longwood College very much."

Both Isabel and Nicky want to work when they return to their respective homes. Isabel hopes to become an English-Spanish secretary when she finishes business school and Nicky's plans include working in an American firm as a secretary and eventually working in the United Nations in Paris.

Elevator Artist Frowned Upon By Students

Dear Editor,

I find it hard to believe that any Longwood student has enough idle time to stand around and deface signs as well as state property, especially after the many complaints from students that there isn't enough time for their academic studies; and yet there are those who still persist in writing on elevator walls and drawing on signs placed throughout the campus.

Perhaps these people have forgotten about the time-honored traits of common courtesy and consideration. Think of those who have spent valuable time making signs to advertise Circus, or the Fall Play or other notices which are put up for our convenience. Must we appreciate their work by "doodling" on them, or tearing them down? Consider the extra burden placed upon the maids who must add to their long list of chores, the need to clean, and clean, and reclean the walls. Perhaps I am being too dramatic, but I believe that common courtesies such as these are necessary for becoming a mature person.

Lefty Snyder

Letter States Noise In Dorms Inconsiderate

Dear Editor,

When will people start being a little bit more thoughtful and considerate when it comes to disturbing others in the dormitories?

I feel that for the most part, Longwood students are considerate of others. This is generally evident from their consideration of college guests, professors and fellow students in the many activities here at Longwood. However it appears that many students forget this consideration when they go to their dormitories. If common courtesies are observed outside of the dormitory in almost every aspect of college life, why can they not be carried over into the dorms?

I am, of course, referring to the unnecessary noise which exists in the dorms especially during study hour and late at night.

(Continued on page 4)

Novelist - Instructor Joins English Staff

By Diana Upshur

Dr. Rosemary Sprague has recently joined the Longwood English faculty as professor of English literature.

Dr. Sprague was born in New York City, "A real Manhattanite," she says, but as of now retains residency in Cleveland, Ohio, "in order to vote in the hot election in November."

She received her B. A. degree from Bryn Mawr College in Pennsylvania, doing undergraduate study on the Renaissance Period and Chaucer. At Western Reserve University she earned her M. A. and Ph. D., doing graduate studies on the Victorian Age.

Teaches Dramatics

As her first teaching job, Dr. Sprague was director of dramatics at Notre Dame College outside of Cleveland, where she was the "only protestant in the college." While there, she staged the North American premier of Satan Slipped.

Visiting Lecturer

Lecturing occupies a great deal of her time, as Dr. Sprague has lectured at Columbia University and the University of London Western Reserve University and Penn College. In 1955 she was the American delegate to the Conference on Contemporary Literature held at Oxford University in London. Delegates from 17 other countries were present at this conference. This past August before coming to Longwood, Dr. Sprague had the honor of being the only American to lecture at the Stratford Ontario Shakespearean Conference.

Because of her creative writing abilities, she was asked to lecture to students at the Cleveland Institute of Art. "But," Dr. Sprague adds, "I didn't let them get away without a word about Chaucer and Shakespeare!"

Visits Clarence House

Dr. Sprague has written seven historical novels, and her research for these has taken her to all parts of the world. One novel even found her doing research in the basement of Clarence House, the Queen Mother's residence! She has traveled in all parts of England, but she has also been to France, Belgium, the Netherlands, and many other countries.

Novels written by this talented professor include Northward to Albion, which deals with Brutus and the discovery of England by the Trojans, A Kingdom to Win, Heroes of the White Shield, Heir of Kiloran, and Conquerors of Time, which tells of the English clockmakers.

Dancer for a Diamond Star is a novel written about a famous ballet dancer in the Paris Opera. In May 1961 her novel Life and Fandango was published. This is based on fact, as are all her novels, and it deals with the marriage of a fifteen-year-old girl to a young British major during war time. "My novels are written without the overblown love interest that characterizes so many books today," Dr. Sprague emphasizes.

As for avocations—playing the piano, dancing and gardening are enjoyed by Longwood's versatile new English professor.

NEW ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR OF ENGLISH, Dr. Rosemary Sprague, readies office for day of work.

Summer Reading Survey Reveals Popular Books

In the midst of summer jobs, trips, and sleeping many Longwood girls found time to indulge in at least a little summer reading. A recent survey taken to determine what types of books were most popular revealed the following information:

Best-Sellers Favored

First of all, most girls read novels that they could not find time to read during the school year. Clearly the most popular book was Harper Lee's To Kill A Mockingbird. More than three-fourths of the girls interviewed had read this book. Hawald and Advice and Consent tied for second place in popularity, and surprisingly, Salinger's Catcher In The Rye occupies third place. Other very popular books include The Internals, Light In The Piazza, and the current best-seller Youngblood Hawk.

'Reich' Popular

At least three girls undertook the long but enjoyable task of reading The Rise and Fall of the Third Reich. All three enjoyed the book immensely, and one girl exclaimed, "I'd recommend that book to anyone."

Several students deviated a bit from the more popular trends and read short stories and plays. The three most widely read short story authors are Katherine Anne Porter, William Faulkner, and Truman Capote, respectively. The short novels of Henry James are also popular around the campus. Isen and Tennessee Williams provided enjoyment for those girls who like to read plays.

Forget Fandango! Only a few really energetic girls used their summer freedom to store up parallel for future use, especially in history courses and Bible Literature.

Correction . . .

The title of last week's "letter to the editor" should have been titled not "Three Deplore Campus Atheism," but "Three Deplore Campus Apathy"—there is obviously, a big difference.

I and I refer you to the following quotation from that article: "Openmindedness is one mark of the mature person . . . indifference, passiveness, have no place in the world of the 'Bis deist'."

Thank you, and I might add a word of appreciation to the Rotunda for allowing the students to express their opinions.

—Scott MacGregor

World Series Dominates Sports Scene For Week

By Sandra Jamison

From the point of view of sports fans, this week's events were fast-moving and eventful. Along with the all-important World Series came the college football line-up.

The World Series dominated the scene throughout the entire week. The fifth game, postponed because of rain, put baseball fans and baseball Commissioner Ford Frick in a frenzy. Both the New York Yankees and the San Francisco Giants had won two games, and this was a tie-breaking bout. On Wednesday, Tom Tresh, the Yankees' rookie-of-the-year in 1962, belted the winning homer and brought the New Yorkers a 5-3 victory. To add to the suspense, the sixth game was also delayed because of rain.

In the football line-up, Virginia Tech's favored Gobblers came through with a 13-7 victory over the Spiders of the University of Richmond. This, Tech's homecoming game, was their third victory, which makes their overall record three and two.

Hampden-Sydney fell at the hands of Western Maryland with a score of 17-14.

The University of Virginia defeated V.M.I. in a hard-fought battle that ended with the score of 28-6.

Washington and Lee came out on top in its clash with Randolph Macon. The final score was 18-13.

In the game between William and Mary and Davidson, the two teams tied with a score of 7-7.

Next week V.P.I. will travel to West Point to meet Army. Hampden-Sydney will meet Emory and Henry at their homecoming here.

Dr. Joe Boydstone of Bakersfield, California, did the almost impossible when he shot three holes-in-one in a nine-hole round. This feat, witnessed by three other golfers, was accomplished on the Bakersfield public golf course last Wednesday.

Timely Topics

Catholic Heads Meet In Home For Council

The 21st Roman Catholic Ecumenical Council convened this week with representatives from all over the world forming "the greatest religious gathering of modern times." It was announced that two Russian Orthodox clergymen would be present for the first time in nine centuries. There were also many non-Catholics invited to attend the meetings. The purpose of the Council as stated by Pope John XXIII is "to renew, reinvigorate and purify the church and begin a long labor toward Christian unity."

With the signing of the trade-expansion bill, President Kennedy has launched "a vital new weapon for freedom." This bill has made it possible to reduce or repeal certain tariffs and will bring the United States closer to the Common Market of Europe.

Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker who had been charged with "inciting an insurrection . . . at the University of Mississippi," has been released on a $50,000 bond from the U. S. Medical Center. Walker had been placed in the center to undergo a thorough psychiatric examination. He has returned to his home in Texas. Leftover bills have kept Congress in session for the longest term in eleven years.

It seems "Ole Miss" has quieted down for good? After two weeks of classes, Meredith has been accepted by at least a part of the student body.

The subject of Bible-reading and recitation of the Lord's Prayer in public schools will come before the attention of the Supreme Court. The court will make decisions on two laws that deal with church-state relations.

The Christmas SUNDAY Morning

Subscribe Now at Half Price

Distributed from BOSTON
LOS ANGELES
LONDON
CHICAGO

- Objective
- News Reports
- Constructive Background Material
- Literary and Entertainment News
- Penetrating Editorials

Clip this advertisement and return it with your check or money order to:
The Christian Science Monitor
One Mercury St., Boston 15, Mass.

1 Year $11 6 mos. $5.50
This special offer available to college students. Faculty members and college libraries also eligible, when subscribing themselves. P-CN

—Staff Photo
TENNIS SINGLES COMPETITORS, Barbara Stewart and Peg Waldo congratulate each other over the net at end of game.

Harriss Conducts Class For Tennis Beginners

Mrs. Phyllis Harriss, physical education instructor, will conduct a noncredit tennis class in the gym each Monday at 5 p.m. The first session was held October 15. This class is open to beginners and persons who have played, but wish to improve their skill.

If a sufficient number of advanced players are interested, Mrs. Harriss plans to separate those girls into a class concerning the theory of playing tennis. She may also hold similar classes at other times if this class becomes too large.

ETS Tests For Teachers Administered

The National Teacher Examinations, prepared and administered annually by Educational Testing Service, will be given at more than 300 testing centers throughout the United States on Saturday, February 16, 1963.

Test Board Area

At the one-day testing session a candidate may take the Common Examinations which include tests in Professional Information, General Culture, English Expression, and Nonverbal Reasoning, as well as one or two of thirteen Optional Examinations designed to demonstrate mastery of subject matter to be taught. The college which a candidate is attending or the school system in which he is seeking employment will advise him whether he should take the National Teacher Examinations and which of the Optional Examinations to select.

Bulletin Available

A Bulletin of Information containing an application and describing registration procedures may be obtained from college officials, school superintendents, or directly from the National Teacher Examinations, Educational Testing Service, Princeton, New Jersey. Completed applications, accompanied by proper examination fees, will be accepted by Educational Testing Service from November 1, 1962, but in any case must be received at Educational Testing Service not later than January 15, 1963.

Around The Campi

About the leftover citrus fruit in the mince-meat pie . . .

Once upon a time Sandra Freedman was sewing the hem of her academic gown. When she finished she exclaimed, "Oh, how beautiful I have sewn!" But heavens to Aristotle! the gown had been sewn to the bedspread.

Elevator art has its ups and downs.

Someone suggested having a contest between the green and whites and red and whites when the bloodmobile comes.

Thought for the week: Will the real pencil pushing wall, sign and elevator defacer please stand up.

Paul Walri rides again . . .

Varsity Hockey Team Suffers Second Loss

Longwood's varsity hockey team had a bad day Saturday, October 14, in every respect! The parade in Farmville delayed their trip to Westhampton College; and when they finally arrived, the first team suffered a loss of 5-0 to the Little Colonels, a semi-professional club team. However, the bad luck alleviated during the second game against St. Catherine's School of Richmond which was won by Longwood 1-0. The final blow of the day was a two-hour wait on the Westhampton campus for a bus to arrive to take the team back to Longwood.

In the first game, Longwood fought hard to keep their opponents from scoring, but the strong offensive play of the Little Colonels pushed in three goals during the first half of the game, and they returned in the second half to score two additional goals.

Playing for Longwood were Janice Harris, left wing; Lindy Hatch, left inner; Barbara Ragland, center forward; Barbara Gray Martin, right inner; Larlene Robertson, right wing. The defense consisted of Peg Waldo, left halfback; Barbara Stewart, center halfback; Betty Lou Dunn, right halfback; Judy Wilson, left fullback; Earlene Lang, right fullback; and Flossie Barnard, goal keeper.

The second team, playing the first game of the season, met a strong St. Catherine's squad, first half, the Blue N' Whites but after scoring one goal in the first half, they were unable to maintain their lead throughout the rest of the game to win 1-0.

Chris Loustreet, Jan Claybush, Melody Saunders, Peggy Gill, Frances Stewart, Phyllis Collins, Lee Putney, Joyce Snyder, Cheramy Howe, Nevis Born Carolyn Glane, and Carol Nye were those playing in the second game.

See Our Circus Clowns
at
THE LANSCOTT GIIFT SHOP

COLLEGE SHOP
Hamburger Delight
With French Fried
Onion Rings, Coke,
Tea, or Coffee
65c

MARTIN THE JEWELER
Initial Pins
By Trifari ..... $2.20 ea.
Longwood Charms
$1.75 Up
See Them Today!

Visit The
COLLEGE BOOKSTORE
See The New
Selection of Paperbacks

Patronize
Rotunda
Advertisers

With This Coupon
10% Off on Purchases
Thursday or Friday
at
SOUTHSIDE SUNDRY
CO. INC.
(Some items exempted)

BETWEEN FRIENDS...
There's nothing like a Coke!

Get that refreshing new feeling with Coke!

offered under authority of the Coca-Cola Company by

LYNCHBURG BOTTLING WORKS, Lynchburg, Va.

Formal Rush Ends As 141 Accept Bids

Fall Rush for the nine social sororities on campus ended Thursday, October 11. Bids were accepted by 141 students.

Pledging Alpha Gamma Delta were Mary Marjorie Barnard, Ruth Ann Baxter, Carolyn Lee Cline, Ann Cooley, Judith Ann Corson, Donna Marie Haynes, Nancy W. Hodges, Helen Virginia McCoy, Dorothy B. Marshall, Karen R. Moninger, Charlotte Jean Reffett, Mary Lee Rowe, Rose Mary Stone and Carrie Lee Wilson.

19 Pledge A.S.A.

Girls pledging Alpha Sigma Alpha were Faye L. Baldwin, Diane L. Berger, Linda Anderson, Brenda Allison Brown, Patricia C. Cassels, Judy O. Cundiff, Hylah Hall, Frances Heath, Lillian Louise Mapp, Edith Caroline Meekins, Mary S. Morton, Sue S. Nickels, Patricia P. Oden, Virginia Petty, Patricia Carol Robertson, Susan Shepherd, Sandra Jean Spencer, Judith A. Squires and Frances E. Stuart.

A.S.T. Pledges

Alpha Sigma Tau pledges are Barbara Allen, Della Anderson, Susanne Briel, Celia Beth Bohlander, Anne Chappell, Sandra Lee Coder, Lee Criss, Beverly Cuthrell, Sydney Fanshaw, Sally Ann Grayson, Elizabeth Lacy, Frances Lafford, Lookabill, Marilyn Reeves, Mary Kay Richeson and Judith Tate.

Accepting bids to Delta Zeta were Marlene Armour, Cheryl Beach, Fran Dalton, Janet Gorman, Diane Harrington, Jean Haynie, Lynda Howlett, Carol Janney, Mildred Johnson, Linda Moore, Connie Parkins, Sara Pearson, Carol Ann Peysaer, Rosemary Rudy, Barbara Shultz, Linda Spinner and Allison Stoneman.

Kappa Delta pledged Margaret Alrich, Suzanne Ballard, Jerry Ann Bullock, Patricia Burdette, Mary Lou Callis, Suzanne Dilchay, Bonnie Gloth, Caresa Hazelrigs, Linda Kepper, Jane Carol Maddox, Nancy Murdoch, and Rena Weld.

Phi Mu pledges include Donna Arnold, Nancy Barnes, Jo Bartlett, Gaynelle Beverly, Glenda Carol Booth, Jayne Eddy, Sally Fulton, Lynne Garner, Diana Graham, Mary Anne Hanken, Beverly Hargrove, Gwen Humphrey, Sandra Kilbourne, Ann King, Lorene Miller, Carolyn Munt, Sandra Jean Rhodes, Grace Elizabeth Rome, Janet Siodt and Elizabeth Sledge.

S.K. Pledges

Bids to Sigma Kappa were accepted by Linda Bassford, Sylvia Campbell, Jo Carter, Mary Lou Finch, Penny Good, Patricia Johnson, Jacqueline Leach, Ellen Lecker, Regina Marie McDonald, Carolyn Patricia Newton, Susan Sweeney, Civil Tati and Judith Yarroll.

Sigma Sigma Sigma pledges are Jane Brown, Mary Carlton Curling, Jane Daniel, Nancy Gordy, Carolyn Harrison, Carol Ann Hoffler, Linda Hollomon, Martha Lemon, Judith Moore, Kitty Pettit, Dorothy Daille Pritchard, Madelyn Roethke, Laura Soyars, Susanne Turnbull, Donna Weatherly, Mary Lewis Webb, Sharon Welton and June Willberger.

Zeta Pledges Eleven

Accepting bids to Zeta Tau Alpha were Bonnie Coleman, Anne Gordon, Doris Harrison, Elizabeth Howard, Elizabeth Carey Howell, Sandra Jackson, Beale Mann, Linda Overbey, Eleanor Grace Richardson, Claudia M. Storminger and Ann Waeche.

PRESIDENT, Fred O. Wygal, listens as students sing in traditional serenade.

—Staff Photo

Student Requests Consideration From Dormitory Noise Makers

(Continued from page 2)

I do not mean the natural noise which is to be expected when such a large group of girls are housed together, nor do I refer to the occasional "blowing off of steam" and expressions of that breaks out after study hour school spirit. Even the bedlam each night is understandable. It is the excessive yelling and loud is the taking and the constant blasting of record players that I am so concerned about.

We all make our share of noise, but some people carry it to extremes. Can't we all try to keep in mind that there is a time and a place for everything and just because we're not studying, doesn't mean that nobody else is studying; just because we're not sleeping, doesn't mean that nobody else is sleeping; and just because we want to party and raise a rumpus regardless of the time is no reason why we should inflict it on everybody else.

How about it? Put yourself in the other fellow's shoes and you decide if you are being as thoughtful and considerate of your fellow students in this respect as you should be.

Brenda Label

Starring in this drama of which Time magazine stated that "virtue emerged triumphant, but low-bodied vice seemed to have all the fun" are Gregory Peak, Jennifer Jones, Lillian Gish, Lionel Barrymore, and Joseph Cotten.

An adaptation of the Niven Busch novel, Duel in the Sun, brings to the screen all the roughness and "horseplay" of the typical "western" in its account of a Texas cattle king's determined opposition to a railroad which must cross his property.

Wilson Grants U.Va Dean Heads

DEAN I. B. CAUTHEN, JR.

CHAIRMAN of the Region V Selection Committee for the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation is Dean I. B. Cauthen, Jr. of the University of Virginia.

An associate professor of English and associate dean of the university's College of Arts and Sciences, Dean Cauthen has published in various journals in American and seventeenth century literature, American literature and textual bibliography.

Competition for the 1000 Woodrow Wilson Fellowship for 1963-64 is now under way. Any faculty member at any college or university in Delaware, U.S. District of Columbia, Maryland, North Carolina, Virginia or West Virginia may send nominations to Dean Cauthen between now and October 31.

All candidates must file the required credentials with Dean Cauthen by November 20.

LC Choir Announces 62-63 Membership

The Longwood Concert Choir now consists of 38 members for the 1962-63 season. First sopranos are Alice Joy Peete and Carole Pierre, seniors; Marilyn Anthony, Glendon Merchant, and Bonnie Underwood, juniors; Sharon Howell, Maria Konovloff, and Patricia Wallace, sophomores; and Carole Gibson, Helen Grisaby, Judith Hester, Karen Templeton, and Paige Mitchell, freshmen.

Second Sopranos

The second soprano section is composed of Joan Ivy (choir president) and Nancy Oldfield (secretary), both seniors; Carol Combs, Jeanette Elder, and Patricia Galloway, juniors; Kay Callison, Sandra Ferguson, Doris Harwell (assistant treasurer), Donna Kafka, and Kathleen Slusher, sophomores; Betty Alvis, Marie Barnard, Judith Bryant, Ann Chappell, Jesse Sledge, and Elizabeth Spicer, freshmen.

First Altos

Singing in the first alto section are Dianna Eukusuzian and Raye Turner, seniors; Sandra Larsh, Mary Ann Lipford, Frances Noland, Betty Ann Rex (treasurer), and Barbara Sours, juniors; Julie Caldwell and Linda Deming, sophomores; and Patricia Burdette, Sally Todd, Carole Powell, Carolyn Pruett, Brenda Skelton, and Ann Waeche, freshmen.

Second Altos

Second altos are Alice Boggs and Ann Peters, seniors; Rosa Doyle and Molly Freeman (secretary), juniors; Judy Ivy, sophomores; and Phyllis Boykin, Carol Faye Carter, Karen Roder, Carroll Seay, Betsy Stewart, and Judith Yarroll, freshmen.

Best Sellers For Sale!

Wook, Youngblood
Hawke ..... $5.95
Tuckman, Guns of August ..... $6.95
Guthner, A. Fragment of Autobiography .. $3.50
Porter, Ship of Fools ..... $6.50
Faulkner, The Reivers ..... $4.95
Weidman, The Sound of Bow Bells ..... $5.95
Lindberg, Dearly Beloved ..... $3.95

WEYANOKE BOOK SHOP
200 High Street
Farmville, Virginia

HOLLYWOOD BEAUTY COLLEGE

102 N. Main St.
Phone EX 2-9019

Consult us for your
Shampoo & Set ..... $1.25
Cuts & Haircuts ..... $1.00
Permanent Wave .. $5.00
Tippling & Frosting
$5.00 & Set

As we are eager to please YOU.

Professors Of English To Travel, Give Talks

Members of the Longwood English department are scheduled to participate in the activities of a number of professional organizations this fall on both state and national levels.

Barnett, Wiley Attend Meet
At a meeting of the Virginia Speech and Drama Association in Richmond on November 3, Mr. David Wiley, assistant professor of speech and drama, will participate in a panel discussion by high school and college teachers of "Content versus Skills: An Inquiry into our Teaching Approach." Dr. Suzanne Barnett, assistant professor of speech, will also attend this meeting.

VATE Draws Two
Also on November 3 in Richmond Dr. R. C. Simoni, Jr., chairman of the English department, and Mr. Foster B. Gresham, associate professor of English, will attend a meeting of the Virginia Association of Teachers of English. Mr. Gresham is executive secretary of the Association and Dr. Simoni edits its publication, the "Virginia English Bulletin."

Schlegel To Speak
Members of the South Atlantic Modern Language Association will hear a paper by Dr. Dorothy B. Schlegel, associate professor of English, on "A Case of Literary Piracy," relating to the Virginia writer James Cabell. SAMLA is meeting this year in Miami Beach on November 29-31.

Attends Miami Convention
During the convention of the National Council of Teachers of English in Miami Beach November 21-23, Dr. Simoni will be chairman of a program on "Linguistics Applied: Working Procedures for College, Secondary, and Elementary School." Dr. Simoni will also attend meetings of the Council's Commission on the English Language which is concerned with promoting theory and data of linguistic science in the classroom.

Davis in Poetry Society
Mrs. Mildred D. Davis, associate professor of English, is continuing her activity in the Poetry Society of Virginia and attended the fall meeting of the Society on October 13 in Lynchburg.

State Theatre FARMVILLE, VA.

ENDS WED. — OCT. 17

THE CHILDREN'S HOUR
Because of the mature nature of this theme — the production picture is recommended for adults only.

THURS. THRU WED.
OCTOBER IS THRU 24

LOOK
FOR OUR COLLEGE NIGHT
FOR LONGWOOD
AND HAMPDEN-SYDNEY STUDENTS
COMING TUESDAY, OCTOBER 30.

AT

227 N. Main St., Farmville, Va.

Refreshments Served — 10% Discount

THE ROTUNDA

VOL. VLLI

Longwood College, Farmville, Va., October 24, 1962

No. 5

Gray To Serve As Circus Ringmaster

Classes Choose Committee Chairmen To Carry Out Plans

Co-Chairmen Work On Skits Vie For Awards

As in the past, the four classes at Longwood College are carrying out their circus plans through the services of committee chairman.

Senior Committees
The seniors have chosen as their committee chairmen Libby Predmore, chairman of music; Peggy Hughes, chairman of dancing; Barbara Stevens, in charge of lighting; and Melinda Walker, chairman of props.

Kay Nottingham and Donna Prantzen are serving as co-chairmen of the makeup committee, while Scott MacGregor and June Costello are co-chairmen of publicity. Lani Robinson, Letty Snyder, and Cassie Griggs are working jointly as chairmen of scenery.

Juniors Elect Heads
Dana Brewer is the script chairman for the Junior Class. The juniors also chose Betty Ann Rex and Carol Combs as music chairmen, Peggy Pond and Peggy Waldo, as make-up chairmen, and Patti O'Neill, as chairman of props.

Brenda Isbel and Judy Melchor are serving as co-chairmen of scenery while Barbara Ramsey and Judy Hackney have charge of costumes. The dance routines are handled by Linda Woodall, Joan Lord, and Joyce Waldburger. Judy Brewer, Anne Downey, and Lois Obenshain handle the pep committee, while Marian Russ has charge of lighting, and Barbara Fields

Movie

The next Saturday movie in Jarman will be "The Sympathetic Pastorale," an adaptation of the Andre Gide novel, November 3 at 7:30.

heads the sound committee.

Soph's Heads Elected

The sophomores have chosen Nancy Via as their booth chairman, Angel Stephenson, as float chairman, and Ginny Petty and Marcia Siegfried as chairmen of the script committee. Amy Haley and Kay Callison are serving as make-up chairman, while Pat Wallace heads the music committee.

Other committee chairmen are Jackie Walker and Joyce Neal, in charge of scenery; Connie Birch, lighting chairman; Sue Scruggs, chairman of dance routines; Natalie Miller, stage manager, and Pat Spies, director of the play. Linda Gibbons and Ann Gordon head the costumes committee and Maria Costan and Bonnie Ramey are in charge of props.

Freshmen Chairmen

The freshmen chose Judy Moore and Nancy Gordy as costume chairmen; Kaye Katron and Carol Hague to head the dance committee, and Nancy Moorfield as props chairman. Bobbi Allen is head of lighting. Sally Grayson and Carol Gibson are music co-chairmen; Charlotte Reiff, makeup chairman; Pat Dugger and Libby Gibson, in charge of scenery, and Claudia Storminger, head of the acting committee.

—Staff Photo

Ringmaster Evelyn Gray tips ceremonial top hat in preparation for 1962 Circus.

Phi Beta Lambda Initiates 19 Into Local Chapter Membership

Friday October 19 Phi Beta Lambda initiated 19 members from the freshmen and sophomore classes. Phi Beta Lambda is the collegiate chapter of the Future Business Leaders of America.

Purpose Outlined

The primary purpose of Phi Beta Lambda is to train prospective teachers of business education in their duties as local advisors of FBLA and to give the business administration student a better insight into the world of business.

New Members

The new freshman members are Penny Good, Carolyn Strange, Linda Bassford, Jackie Leath, Ann Cooley, Pat Meekins.

SAI Sponsors Concert Trip October 29

Monday, October 29, Sigma Alpha Iota will sponsor a trip to Richmond to hear the Leningrad Philharmonic Orchestra.

This is the first time the Leningrad Philharmonic, formerly the St. Petersburg Symphony, has performed in the United States.

Sigma Alpha Iota, the honorary music fraternity on campus, will take a bus to the Mosque for the performance.

The program for the evening is not yet known, but it will be the same as the performance in New York.

About twenty-five students will leave at five o'clock and return at about one a.m. Supper will be served early in the dining hall for those taking the trip.

Judy Rice, Carol Robertson, Barbara Marr, Jane Williams, and Jane Louhoff.

The new sophomore members are Virginia Abernathy, Carolyn Hargrove, and Betty Ruth Stimpson.

Orchestra To Perform In Jarman Hall

The Little Orchestra under the direction of Thomas Scherman and featuring Frank Glazer, piano soloist, will appear in Jarman Auditorium, October 31, at 7:30 p.m.

Program Announced

Opening the program for the evening with Bach's Suite No. 1 in C Major for Orchestra, the group will continue with Schubert's Symphony No. 6 and "Le Tombeau de Couperin" by Ravel. Closing the program Frank Glazer will be the soloist for Piano Concerto No. 4 in G Major by Beethoven.

15 Years' Experience

Established 15 years ago by Thomas Scherman The Little Orchestra has given more than 600 concerts, in 50 world premieres of orchestral works.

Plays At Hunter

Since 1948 The Little Orchestra has presented a unique series of Young People's Concerts at Hunter College. Thus far upwards of 50,000 school children have participated.

Admission will be $2.00 for adults and $1.00 for non-Longwood students.

Ringmaster To Perform 'Emcee' Role Saturday

In the midst of "Grease Paint and Baggy Pants," the cry of "La-dies and gentlemen" will be heard, and Evelyn Gray, Ringmaster for Circus 1962, will give the characteristic invitation of this event to welcome alumnae and parents to Jarman Auditorium, October 27, at 8:00 p.m.

Evelyn, a junior elementary major, is this year Vice President of her class. She also served as Treasurer of her Freshman class, and is a member of Alpha Sigma Alpha social sorority serving as Second Vice President. She has been active throughout school participating in activities of the Longwood Forum, the Colonade staff, and she has written scripts for her class circus and productions as well as performing in them. She also won an award in the short story contest last year sponsored by the Colonade.

On Saturday afternoon, October 27, at 4:00 p.m. the annual parade will be held, headed by the Ringmaster and Animal Trainer, who will be followed by the class float entries, prizes for which are to be announced that night.

Beginning at 8 p.m. the theme of "Grease Paint and Baggy Pants" will pervade the atmosphere from the opening of the curtain for the skits, to the sale of the final hot dog on the midway.

After the Ringmaster's welcome, the clowns will perform comic gymnastics, and then the traditional circus animals will come out, subdued by their master, Mary Jane Brittingham. Things will get under way with the presentation of the various classes' skit offerings, each of which will last fifteen minutes, and will be judged on originality and class participation.

Following the announcement of the winning skit and float, Circus fans will be directed to the Midway, located in the Main Rec. The Midway will feature apple cider, hot dogs, peanuts, candy apples, popcorn, candy, and many other concessions including a Fortune Telling Booth sponsored by the Seniors. The profits from these concessions will go to the respective classes and organizations sponsoring the booths.

Tickets for students, parents and friends will be on sale every day prior to Circus. Admission is 25 cents. Students are urged to buy their tickets for family and friends before Sunday night.

The end of Saturday's activities will mark the end of two weeks or more work by each of the classes, and will be the climax of the feelings of Circus spirit and excitement, which this event brings about each year.

Frye Visits Campus, Speaks In Assembly

November 29, Longwood will be visited by one of the foremost critics in the field of English Literature, Mr. Northrop Frye. He is being brought to our campus through the Visiting Scholars Program set up by the University Center in Virginia. He is no stranger to campuses, however, having taught in many colleges and universities throughout the country.

Has Varied Interests

Mr. Frye is an author in his own right, and has had two of his original works published. Fearful Symmetry and Anatomy of Criticism. He is also an editor and has edited the Canadian Forum and Milton, Sound and Poetry. Because of his accomplishments he was chosen to become a member of the Royal Society of Canada, and was former chairman of the English Institute.

To Lecture on Poetry

The subject of his lecture will be "Structure and Imagery in Modern Poetry." Particular emphasis will be placed on certain poems of Eliot, Yeats, and Wallace Stevens.

Modern Poetry Specialty

Mr. Frye is one of the truly great minds of our day, and although he is, at times difficult to follow, he holds his audiences interested because of his very profound views. Being a specialist on modern poetry, Mr. Frye finds meaning in each of the various parts of the poems under study that leads to an overall understanding of the work as a whole.

Students interested in better preparing themselves on the subject of the lecture will find previous reading of the poets in question, plus the writings of Mr. Frye to be of help.

Annual Contest Offers Awards

Rules for the 1962 Philip Morris Wrapper Saving Contest have been announced. The contest is open to all school organizations and individuals.

Wrappers may be saved from Philip Morris, Marlboro, Alpine or Parliament cigarette packages. Each wrapper counts one point. Contestants are to turn the counted bundles of wrappers in to Pete Hatcher, area representative from Hampden-Sydney, by 4:00 p.m. November 29. He will be accepting entries in the Main Rec.

The organization or individual submitting the greatest number of wrappers will be awarded a stereo console. Second and third place winners will receive transistor radios. Further information can be obtained from Pete Hatcher, Box 388, Hampden-Sydney.

—Staff Photo

Picasso reproduction one of many examples of modern and traditional art to be loaned to seniors now on display in library exhibit room.

Dabney
Longwood College
Farmville, Virginia

Formal Rush Ends As 141 Accept Bids

Fall Rush for the nine social sororities on campus ended Thursday, October 11. Bids were accepted by 141 students. Pledging Alpha Gamma Delta pledged Alpha Gamma Delta were Mary Marjorie Barnard, Ruth Ann Baxter, Carolyn Lee Cline, Ann Cooley, Judith Ann Corson, Donna Marie Haynes, Nancy W. Hodges, Helen Virginia McCoy, Dorothy B. Marshall, Karen R. Monner, Charlotte Jean Ruffett, Mary Lee Rowe, Rose Mary Stone and Carrie Lee Wilson.

19 Pledge A.S.A.

Girls pledging Alpha Sigma Alpha were Faye L. Baldwin, Diane L. Berger, Linda A. Borsman, Brenda Allison Brown, Patricia C. Cassels, Judy O. Cundiff, Hylah Haile, Frances Heath, Lillian Louise Mapp, Edith Caroline Meehins, Mary S. Morton, Sue S. Nichols, Patricia P. Oden, Virginia Peity, Patricia Carol Robertson, Susan Shepherd, Sandra Jean Spencer, Judith A. Squires and Frances E. Stuart.

A.S.T. Pledges

Alpha Sigma Tau pledges are Barbara Allen, Della Anderson, Suzanne Briel, Celia Beth Bohlander, Anne Chappell, Sandra Lee Coder, Lee Criss, Beverly Guhrnell, Sydney Fanshaw, Sally Ann Grayson, Elizabeth Lacy, Frances Lipford, Julia Lookabill, Marilyn Reeves, Mary Kay Richeson and Judith Tate.

Accepting bids to Delta Zeta were Marlene Armour, Cheryl Beach, Frank Dalton, Janet Gormus, Diane Harrington, Jean Haynie, Lynda Howlett, Carol Janney, Mildred Johnson, Linda Moore, Connie Parkins, Sara Pearson, Carol Ann Peyer, Rosemary Rudy, Barbara Shultz, Linda Spinner and Allison Stoneman.

Kappa Delta pledged Margaret Alrich, Suzanne Ballard, Jerry Ann Bullock, Patricia Burdette, Mary Lou Callis, Suzanne Dillehay, Bonnie Gioer, Carress Hazliries, Lida Kephner, Jane Carol Maddox, Nancy Murdoch, and Rena Wold.

Phi Mu pledges include Donna Arnold, Nancy Barnes, Jo Bartlett, Gaynelle Beverly, Glenda Booth, Jayne Eddy, Sally Fulton, Lynne Garner, Diana Graham, Mary Anne Hanken, Beverly Hargrove, Gwen Humphrey, Sandra Kilbourne, Ann King, Lorene Miller, Carolyn Munt, Sandra Jean Rhodes, Elizabeth Elizabeth Rowe, Janet Sidoti and Elizabeth Sledge.

S.K. Pledges

Bids to Sigma Kappa were accepted by Linda Bassford, Sylvia Campbell, Jo Carter, Mary Lou Finch, Penny Good, Patricia Johnson, Jacqueline Leath, Ellen Locker, Regina Marie McDonald, Carolyn Patricia Newton, Susan Sweeney, Civil Tart and Judith Yarrowell.

Sigma Sigma pledges are Jane Brown, Mary Carolyn Curing, Jane Daniel, Nancy Gordy, Carolyn Harrison, Carole Ann Hoffer, Linda Holmon, Martha Lemons, Judith Moore, Kitty Pettit, Dorothy Daille Pritchard, Madelyn Rothke, Laura Soyars, Suzanne Turnbull, Donna Weatherly, Mary Lewis Webb, Sharon Welton and June Willberger.

Zeta Pledges Eleven

Accepting bids to Zeta Tau Alpha were Bonnie Coleman, Anne Gordon, Doris Harrison, Elizabeth Howard, Elizabeth Carey Howell, Sandra Jackson, Bessie Mann, Linda Overbey, Eleanor Grace Richardson, Claudia M. Storminger and Ann Waesche.

—Staff Photo
PRESIDENT. Fred O. Wygal, listens as students sing in traditional serenade.

Student Requests Consideration From Dormitory Noise Makers

(Continued from page 2)

I do not mean the natural noise which is to be expected when such a large group of girls are housed together, nor do I refer to the occasional "blowing off of steam" and expressions of that break out after study hour

Peek Stars In Adaptation Of Busch Novel

Anyone in the mood for a colorful drama of the "Old West" will enjoy "Duel in the Sun," the movie to be presented October 20 at 7:30 p.m. in Jarman Auditorium.

An adaptation of the Niven Busch novel, Duel in the Sun, brings to the screen all the roughness and "horseplay" of the typical "western" in its account of a Texas cattle king's determined opposition to a railroad which must cross his property.

Starring in this drama of which Time magazine stated that "virtue emerged triumphant, but low-bodiced vice seemed to have all the fun" are Gregory Peck, Jennifer Jones, Lillian Gish, Lionel Barrymore, and Joseph Cotten.

Wilson Grants U. Va Dean Heads

DEAN I. B. CAUTHEN, JR.

CHAIRMAN of the Region V Selection Committee for the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation is Dean I. B. Cauthen, Jr. of the University of Virginia.

An associate professor of English and associate dean of the university's College of Arts and Sciences, Dean Cauthen has been published in various journals in Elizabethan and seventeenth century literature, American literature and textual bibliography.

Competition for the 1,000 Woodrow Wilson Fellowships for 1963-64 is now under way. Any faculty member at any college or university in Delaware, District of Columbia, Maryland, North Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia may send nominations to Dean Cauthen between now and October 31.

All candidates must file the required credentials with Dean Cauthen by November 30.

LC Choir Announces 62-63 Membership

The Longwood Concert Choir now consists of 58 members for the 1962-63 season. First sopranos are Alice Joy Peele and Carole Pierce, seniors; Marilyn Anthony, Glendon Merchant, and Bonnie Underwood, juniors; Sharron Howell, Maria Konovall, and Patricia Wallace, sophomores; and Carole Gibson, Helen Griksby, Judith Hester, Mildred Johnson, Judith Tate, Karen Tompkins, and Paige Mitchell, freshmen.

Second Sopranos

The second soprano section is composed of Joan Ivy (choir president) and Nancy Oldfield (secretary), both seniors; Carol Combe, Jeanette Elder, and Patricia Galhahan, juniors; Kay Callison, Sandra Ferguson, Doris Harwell (assistant treasurer), Donna Kafka, and Kathleen Slusher, sophomores; and Betty Alvis, Marie Barnard, Judith Bryant, Ann Chappell, Jessie Sledge, and Elizabeth Spicer, freshmen.

First Altos

Singing in the first alto section are Diana Eusebian and Raze Turner, seniors; Sandra Larsh, Mary Ann Lipford, Frances Nolan, Betty Ann Rex (treasurer), and Barbara Sours, juniors; Julie Caldwell and Linda Deming, sophomores; and Patricia Burdette, Sally Tod Pottage, Eve Powell, Carolyn Pruett, Brenda Skelton, and Ann Waesche, freshmen.

Second Altos

Second altos are Alice Boggs and Ann Peters, seniors; Rosa Doyle and Molly Freeman (secretary), juniors; Judy Ivy, sophomores; and Phyllis Boykin, Carol Faye Carter, Karen Ruder, Carroll Seay, Betsy Stewart, and Judith Yarrowell, freshmen.

Best Sellers For Sale!

Wook, Youngblood Hawke ..... $5.95
Tuckman, Guns of August ..... $6.95
Gunther, A. Fragment of Autobiography .. $3.50
Porter, Ship of Fools ..... $6.50
Faulkner, The Reivers ..... $4.95
Weidman, The Sound of Bow Bells ..... $5.95
Lindberg, Dearly Beloved ..... $3.95

WEYANOKE BOOK SHOP
200 High Street
Farmville, Virginia

HOLLYWOOD

BEAUTY COLLEGE

102 N. Main St.
Phone EX 2-9019

Consult us for your

Shampoo & Set ..... $1.25
Cuts & Haircuts .... $1.00
Permanent Wave .. $5.00

Tipping & Frating
$5.00 & Set

As we are eager to please
YOU.

Professors Of English To Travel, Give Talks

Members of the Longwood English department are scheduled to participate in the activities of a number of professional organizations this fall on both state and national levels.

Barnett, Wiley Attend Meet
At a meeting of the Virginia Speech and Drama Association in Richmond on November 3 Mr. David Wiley, assistant professor of speech and drama, will participate in a panel discussion by high school and college teachers of "Content versus Skills: An Inquiry into our Teaching Approach." Dr. Suzanne Barnett, assistant professor of speech, will also attend this meeting.

VATE Draws Two
Also on November 3 in Richmond Dr. R. C. Simonini, Jr., chairman of the English department, and Mr. Foster B. Gresham, associate professor of English, will attend a meeting of the Virginia Association of Teachers of English. Dr. Gresham is executive secretary of the Association and Dr. Simonini edits its publication, the "Virginia English Bulletin."

Schlegel To Speak
Members of the South Atlantic Modern Language Association will hear a paper by Dr. Dorothy B. Schlegel, associate professor of English, on "A Case of Literary Piracy," relating to the Virginia writer James Cabell. SAMLA is meeting this year in Miami Beach on November 22-23.

Attends Miami Convention
During the convention of the National Council of Teachers of English in Miami, Beach, November 21-24, Dr. Simonini will be chairman of a program on "Linguistics Applied: Working Procedures for College, Secondary, and Elementary School." Dr. Simonini will also attend meetings of the Council's Commission on the English Language which is concerned with promoting theory and data of linguistic science in the classroom.

Davis in Poetry Society

Mrs. Mildred D. Davis, associate professor of English, is continuing her activity in the Poetry Society of Virginia and attended the fall meeting of the Society on October 13 in Lynchburg.

State Theatre FARMVILLE, VA.

ENDS WED. — OCT. 17

THE CHILDREN'S HOUR

Because of the mature nature of this theme—this is a play for adults only.

THURS. THRU WED.
OCTOBER 18 THRU 24

LOOK
FOR OUR COLLEGE NIGHT
FOR LONGWOOD
AND HAMPDEN-SYDNEY STUDENTS
COMING TUESDAY, OCTOBER 30.

AT

227 N. Main St., Farmville, Va.

Refreshments Served — 10% Discount

THE ROTUNDA

VOL. VII.

Longwood College, Farmville, Va., October 24, 1962

No. 5

Gray To Serve As Circus Ringmaster

Classes Choose Committee Chairmen To Carry Out Plans

Co-Chairmen Work On Skits Vie For Awards

As in the past, the four classes at Longwood College are carrying out their circus plans through the services of committee chairman.

Senior Committees
The seniors have chosen as their committee chairman Libby Predmore, chairman of music; Peggy Hughes, chairman of dancing; Barbara Stewart, in charge of lighting; and Melinda Walker, chairman of props.

Kay Nottingham and Donna Franzen are serving as co-chairmen of the makeup committee, while Scott MacGregor and June Costello are co-chairmen of publicity. Lani Robinson, Lefty Snyder, and Clete Griggs are working jointly as chairman of scenery.

Juniors Elect Heads
Dana Brewer is the script chairman for the Junior Class. The juniors also chose Betty Ann Rex and Carol Combs as music chairmen, Peggy Pond and Peggy Waldo, as make-up chairmen, and Patti O'Neill, as chairman of props. Brenda Isabel and Judy Melchor are serving as co-chairmen of scenery while Barbara Ramsey and Judy Hackney have charge of costumes. The dance routines are handled by Linda Woodall, Joan Lord, and Joyce Waldburger. Judy Brewer, Anne Downey, and Lols Obenshain head the pep committee, while Marian Russ has charge of lighting, and Barbara Fields

Movie

The next Saturday movie in Jarman will be "The Synphonic Pastoral," an adaptation of the Andre Glide novel, November 3 at 7:30.

heads the sound committee.

Soph's Heads Elected

The sophomores have chosen Nancy Via as their booth chairman, Angel Stephenson, as float chairman, and Ginny Petty and Marcia Siegfried as chairmen of the script committee. Amy Hailer and Kay Gailson are serving as make-up chairmen, while Pat Wallace heads the music committee.

Other committee chairmen are Jackie Walker and Joyce Neal, in charge of scenery; Connie Breh, lighting chairman; Bue Sprague, chairman of dance routines; Natalie Miller, stage manager, and Pat Spies, director of the play. Linda Gibbons and Ann Gordon head the costumes committee and Maria Costan and Bonnie Ramey are in charge of props.

Freshmen Chairmen

The freshmen chose Judy Moore and Nancy Gordy as costume chairmen, Kaye Katron and Carol Hague to head the dance committee, and Nancy Morefield as props chairman. Bobbi Allen is head of lighting. Sally Grayson and Carol Gibson are music co-chairmen; Charlotte Refitt, makeup chairman; Pat Dugger and Libby Gibson, in charge of scenery, and Claudia Storminger, head of the acting committee.

—Staff Photo

Ringmaster Evelyn Gray tips ceremonial top hat in preparation for 1962 Circus.

Phi Beta Lambda Initiates 19 Into Local Chapter Membership

Friday October 19 Phi Beta Lambda initiated 19 members from the freshmen and sophomore classes. Phi Beta Lambda is the collegiate chapter of the Future Business Leaders of America.

Purpose Outlined

The primary purpose of Phi Beta Lambda is to train prospective teachers of business education in their duties as local advisors of FBIA and to give the business administration student a better insight into the world of business.

New Members

The new freshman members are Penny Good, Carolyn Strange, Linda Bassford, Jackie Leath, Ann Cooley, Pat Meekins.

SAI Sponsors Concert Trip October 29

Monday, October 29, Sigma Alpha Iota will sponsor a trip to Richmond to hear the Leningrad Philharmonic Orchestra.

This is the first time the Leningrad Philharmonic, formerly the St. Petersburg Symphony, has performed in the United States.

Sigma Alpha Iota, the honorary music fraternity on campus, will take a bus to the Mosque for the performance.

The program for the evening is not yet known, but it will be the same as the performance in New York.

About twenty-five students will leave at five o'clock and return at about one a.m. Supper will be served early in the dining hall for those taking the trip.

Judy Rice, Carol Robinson, Barbara Marr, Jane Williams, and Jane Louche.

The new sophomores members are Virginia Abernathy, Carolyn Hargrove, and Betty Ruth Stimpson.

Orchestra To Perform In Jarman Hall

The Little Orchestra under the direction of Thomas Scherman and featuring Frank Glazer, piano soloist, will appear in Jarman Auditorium, October 31, at 7:30 p.m.

Program Announced

Opening the program for the evening with Bach's Suite No. 1 in C Major for Orchestra, the group will continue with Schubert's Symphony No. 6 and "Le Tombeau de Couperin" by Ravel. Closing the program Frank Glazer will be the soloist for Piano Concerto No. 4 in G Major by Beethoven.

15 Years' Experience

Established 15 years ago by Thomas Soberman The Little Orchestra has given more than 600 concerts, in 50 world premieres of orchestral works.

Plays At Hunter

Since 1948 The Little Orchestra has presented a unique series of Young People's Concerts at Hunter College. Thus far upwards of 50,000 school children have participated.

Admission will be $2.00 for adults and $1.00 for non-Longwood students.

Ringmaster To Perform

'Emcee' Role Saturday

In the midst of "Grease Paint and Baggy Pants," the cry of "La-dies and gentlemen" will be heard, and Evelyn Gray, Ringmaster for Circus 1962, will give the characteristic invitation of this event to welcome alumnae and parents to Jarman Auditorium, October 27, at 8:00 p.m.

Evelyn, a junior elementary major, is this year Vice President of her class. She also served as Treasurer of her Freshman class, and is a member of Alpha Sigma Alpha social sorority serving as Second Vice President. She has been active throughout school participating in activities of the Longwood Forum, the Colonnade staff, and she has written scripts for her class circus and productions as well as performing in them. She also won an award in the short story contest last year sponsored by the Colonnade.

After the Ringmaster's welcome, the clowns will perform comic gymnastics, and then the traditional circus animals will come out, subdued by their master, Mary Jane Brittingham. Things will get under way with the presentation of the various classes' skit offerings, each of which will last fifteen minutes, and will be judged on originality and class participation.

Following the announcement of the winning skit and float, Circus fans will be directed to the Midway, located in the Main Rec. The Midway will feature apple cider, hot dogs, peanuts, candy apples, popcorn, candy, and many other concessions including a Fortune Telling Booth sponsored by the Seniors. The profits from these concessions will go to the respective classes and organizations sponsoring the booths.

Tickets for students, parents and friends will be on sale every day prior to Circus. Admission is 25 cents. Students are urged to buy their tickets for family and friends before Saturday night.

The end of Saturday's activities will mark the end of two weeks or more work by each of the classes, and will be the climax of the feelings of Circus spirit and excitement, which this event brings about each year.

Frye Visits Campus, Speaks In Assembly

November 29, Longwood will be visited by one of the foremost critics in the field of English Literature, Mr. Northrop Frye. He is being brought to our campus through the Visiting Scholars program set up by the University Center in Virginia. He is no stranger to campus, however, having taught in many colleges and universities throughout the country.

Has Varied Interests

Mr. Frye is an author in his own right, and has had two of his original works published, Fearful Symmetry and Anatomy of Criticism. He is also an editor and has edited the Canadian Forum and Milton, Sound and Form. Because of his accomplishments he was chosen to become a member of the Royal Society of Canada, and was former chairman of the English Institute.

To Lecture on Poetry

The subject of his lecture will be "Structure and Imagery in Modern Poetry." Particular emphasis will be placed on certain poems of Eliot, Yeats, and Wallace Stevens.

Modern Poetry Specialty

Mr. Frye is one of the truly great minds of our day, and although he is, at times difficult to follow, he holds his audiences interest because of his very profound views. Being a specialist in modern poetry, Mr. Frye finds meaning in each of the various parts of the poems under study that leads to an overall understanding of the work as a whole.

Students interested in better preparing themselves on the subject of the lecture will find previous reading on the poets in question, plus the writings of Mr. Frye to be of help.

Annual Contest Offers Awards

Rules for the 1962 Philip Morris Wrapper Saving Contest have been announced. The contest is open to all school organizations and individuals.

Wrappers may be saved from Philip Morris, Marlboro, Alpine or Parliament cigarette packages. Each wrapper counts one point. Contestants are to turn the counted bundles of wrappers in to Pete Hatcher, area representative from Hampton-Sydney, by 4:00 p.m. November 29. He will be accepting entries in the Main Rec.

The organization or individual submitting the greatest number of wrappers will be awarded a stereo console. Second and third place winners will receive transistor radios.

Further information can be obtained from Pete Hatcher, Box 366, Hampton-Sydney.

—Staff Photo

Picasso reproduction one of many examples of modern and traditional art to be loaned to seniors now on display in library exhibit room.

Dabney
Longwood College
Farmville, Va., 1962

The Cuban Situation

True, it's easy to say "I told you so." But this is what America and all the rest of the world is saying to President Kennedy at this moment. Because the Soviets believed they could push "our man" up against the wall—because they had been given every indication that they could, they have succeeded in arming Cuba with powerful war materials. All the time, both nations have trusted the other to react as expected—we believing Russia to fear touching off a nuclear war and the U. S. playing into the Russian trap by our pacifist attitude.

Now, suddenly, Kennedy decides to make the aggressive move he declined to make in regard to Cuba after the revolution. But it is a little late to call a halt. Now, Khrushchev is in the impossible position of withdraw or fight. A less favorable diplomatic moment could not have been chosen, and we are faced with the very situation we have been so carefully avoiding.

In his seven-point speech to the nation, Kennedy said, "To halt this offensive buildup, a strict quarantine of offensive military equipment being shipped to Cuba is being initiated." Evidently, only ballistic missiles are regarded by the president as being of danger—not Communist infiltration of Cuba, not the arming of that country with conventional war materials which has been going on for some time with our full knowledge.

In the second point of his program, Kennedy stated that he has "directed the continued and increased close surveillance of Cuba and its military buildup." "I have directed the armed forces to prepare for any eventuality." He also said that "The foreign ministers of the OAS in a communique of October 6 rejected secrecy of such matters in this hemisphere."

Kennedy, now backed up against a wall, has come to the point where he must put on a stern voice and issue ultimatums which mean something to the Russians. The U. S. has been long overdue for a decisive step in the right direction on Cuba.

Stay Awake

Because of recent events in the world situation, Longwood has become abruptly aware of the fact that we live in a world community as well as the small one between these buildings.

The World Series and the Miss America beauty pageant together did not pull a crowd of interested people such as the ones found near campus televisions and radios in the past few days. It is regrettable that a national crisis is required to make most students here interested in current events.

Aroused by Cuban crisis, anxious students gather around television set in Senior "Rec".

The Rotunda

ESTABLISHED NOVEMBER 20, 1950

Published each week during the college year except during holidays and examination period by the students of Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia, No. 168.

Ann Age	Editor-in-Chief
Donna Humphreys	Managing Editor
Ann Carroll	Business Manager
Gleny Gilmore	News Editor
Lefty Snyder	Feature Editor
Lewin Kipper	Doris Smith
Betsy Taylor	Book Editors
Phoebe Barnard	Linda Paris
Ann Peters	Art Editor
Mary Reynolds	Photography
	Circulation Manager
	Advertising Manager

REPORTING STAFF: Barbara Agee, Theresa Albright, Leslie Aldridge, Susanne Ballard, Paula Blackstone, Margaret Cooke, Lee Cize, Dee Dee Diadrich, Jane Kade, Beverly Gonder, Judi Hackney, Judy Ivy, Sandra Jackson, Janet Lacy, Susan Lane, Mary Anne Lipford, Joan Lord, Beale Mann, Charlotte McClung, Gwynna Phillips, Barbara Poland, Karen Roder, Marsha Hagfried, Doris Smith, Lois Sullivan, Betty Taylor, Allison Tuggle, Barbara Turner, Linda Turner, Pat Wallace, Dee Welkie, Annette Wenger.

CIRCULATION STAFF: Susanne Briel, Sandra Freedman, Cindy Gay, Cherry Howe, Jackie Leath, Cabell Montgomery, Betty Lee Neal, Mary Lee Plunkett, Joyce Powell, Eleanor Richardson, Marian Russ, Gay Stump.

ADVERTISING STAFF: Mary Bradford, Diana Dink, Betty P. Gainer, Judi Hackney, Dottie Marshall, Sandra Parker, Faye Stone, Diana Woolley.

PHOTOGRAPHY STAFF: Mary Evelyn Compton, Gray Garhart, Dottie Marshall, Nancy Roberts.

BUSINESS STAFF: Leslie Aldridge, Olivia Gibson, Helen Wicks.

(Unsigned editorials written by the editor)

Member: Virginia Intercollegiate Press (Rating First Class), Columbia Scholarship Press Association (Rating First Place).

Entered as second class matter at the Post Office at Farmville, Virginia under the Act of Congress on March 3, 1934. Represented for national advertising by the National Advertising Service. Printed by the Farmville Herald.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

"I SAID YA BETTER CHECK THAT EXPERIMENT THOSE BOYS ARE WORKING ON BACK AT THE ENP TABLE."

Hatch Writes Paper, Tries For Honors

By Donna Humphreys

The honors program at Longwood was initiated in 1958. These courses are designed "for capable students who wish to pursue under individual instruction an intensive study of a subject of their choice." An instructor who has specialized in this field acts as her sponsor.

The candidate for honors must organize the results of her study into a formal paper. She then stands an oral examination by a panel of three specialists in the field. Upon the recommendation of this panel, the candidate receives honors.

The Honors Committee administers the program of honors and must approve all students enrolled in honors course, appoint the sponsors and the examining board. The members of the Honors Committee are Miss Emily Barkdale, Chairman, Dr. Robert Brumfield, Mr. Foster B. Gresham, Mrs. Josephine Magnifico, and Dr. Carolyn Wells.

Lindy Hatch, a senior biology major from Annandale, is enrolled in the honors course in biology. The subject of her paper is "A Cytological Study of Tripling Conjugation in the Tetrahymena pyriformis." The Tetrahymena pyriformis is a one-celled animal, protozoa, found in still waters.

Conjugation is the sexual reproduction in protozoa in which the nucleus undergoes reorganization. Tripling conjugation occurs when three protozoa instead of the usual two — come together and unite at the mouth to reproduce. One of the protozoa in tripling conjugation has two mouths — instead of the usual one — and a protozoa attaches itself to each of these mouths.

A cytological study involves staining the protozoa and observing it during the different phases of nuclear reorganization. Lindy's paper is a descriptive study of the nuclear events that take place when three protozoa — instead of the usual two — unite during conjugation. It is necessary to know how the nucleus reorganizes during tripling conjugation before this animal can be used to study inheritance.

Upon graduation from Longwood, Lindy hopes to attend graduate school and go into cellular biology. At the end of this interview she said that she would be glad to answer any questions students might have concerning her paper.

LINDY HATCH

From The Files

30 years ago — 1932

The Debate Club of State Teachers College had the following question for debate at a meeting: "Should smoking be permitted at S.T.C.?"

30 years ago —

Because of the depression, members of Theta Pi Alpha society at Ohio State took an oath not to eat more than 15 cents worth when out with boys. The Delta Gamma society of Missouri pledged themselves to a 5 cent soda fountain bill when eating a college man.

31 years ago —

Color cup competitions were held on Thanksgiving Day at S.T.C. The day was filled with activities including an alumni hockey game after Thanksgiving dinner.

13 years ago — 1949

The W.F.L.O. Radio Station of Farmville changed the radio program "S.T.C. Hour" to "The Voice of Longwood."

21 years ago — 1931

The Roanoke Club had its first organized meeting and officers were elected. The motto of the club was stated as "From scorn to oak; watch Roanoke."

Physicist de los Reyes Joins Science Faculty

By Gleny Gilmore

The newest member of the science department faculty is Dr. Ben de los Reyes, assistant professor of Natural Science and Physics.

From Louisiana

Mr. de los Reyes was born in Pear Island, Louisiana and was reared in New Orleans. He took his B. S. degree at the United States Merchant Marine Academy, Kings Point, New York; his B. E. degree at the University of California; and his masters degree at Hofstra College, Hempstead, New York.

"I was a poor boy and went through school during the depression," he explained. "I went to school where I could get a scholarship and where there were facilities for night physics." He defines astro physics as the study of physics as it concerns astronomy — a physics of an observable universe.

Studies in Berlin

Since then Mr. de los Reyes has studied at the Berlin Memorial University, Berlin, Germany, where he received his doctorate. He has just completed a doctorate at New York University.

Writes Column

Besides teaching, Mr. de los Reyes writes for eight newspapers and two magazines. He has just recently completed an article for the Astro Physical Journal, entitled "The Determination of Surface Structure Using Ultra-High Vacuum Reflection." Besides more technical articles, he writes a syndicated column on astronomy for popular consumption for such newspapers as The Atlantic City Press, The Camden Courier, The South Jersey Press, and The Shenandoah Press.

After teaching high school, Mr. de los Reyes taught at Nassau College, New York and Blassboro State College, New Jersey. He taught summer school at Madison College and there met several Longwood students. He accepted the teaching position at Longwood because he likes Virginia.

Lives in China

Besides his study in Berlin, Mr. de los Reyes has traveled around the world six times and has lived in China. During the Second World War he was a fleet navigator. Although he is still a licensed pilot, he hasn't flown for about ten years.

He is now engaged in private research in raising plants and vegetables in low vacuum. He explains that this is merely a hobby. "It has no scientific basis whatsoever," he admits, "and really isn't good for anything." Mr. de los Reyes has two children, a girl, fifteen-years-old, and a boy, ten.

Professor of Natural Science, Dr. de los Reyes, checks over equipment in Science Lab.

Distillation

September. College. At last.

Orientation, sings, rush. Circus. Weekends. Thanksgiving, Christmas. The pattern set by all previous classes reads itself for still another group of high school graduates. They come into the Rotunda and are impressed by the palid Joan. Excitement. Time hurries. The pattern lends itself readily to many weathers.

But what if the would-be-wearer demands alterations. "I don't know," someone will say, "that's the way it has always fitted. You'll get used to it."

Christmas. New Year's Eve. Resolutions, School, again. The one time protagonist now fits the pattern. Alterations are unnecessary. "Ask me no questions . . ." (and the inquirer won't be disappointed).

Change. The metamorphosis from the college girl comes quickly. Weeluns. Madras. Batik. Villager. Conversation. "What say?" Reuel. Reuel. Conversation. Oxford. In England? No, Mississippi. I don't think so.

Professors. Parallel. Sex. collection are wares used on ordinary occasions as well as individual decorative and functional pieces. The display illustrates rural. The display illustrates factory-made earthenware and porcelains.

Clothes. Boys . . .

Student government. Fifth Amendment. Something to do with prohibition, maybe?

React. React. Toes are stepped on. Fingers are mashed.

So? React. React.

That's the wrong word. Try conservative. Status quo.

Three years roll by. Senior year. Orientation. Sings. Rush. Thanksgiving. Weekends. Christmas. Easter. Graduation. Congratulations. September . . .

Good-byes. Bulletin boards, bikes, etc., hang from cars. September . . .

'Y' Speaks

At 4:00 p.m. Monday, October 21, Longwood College became aware of the outside world — a crisis has arisen — As rumors mingle with facts, fear spreads over the campus. It is a time like this that all else seems trivial. Yet, two days ago, all else was paramount and the outside world was trivial.

At this point two things are within our grasp through which we can help ourselves. These are information and prayer. Through being adequately informed and through personal prayers we can curb the fear and face the situation with a hopeful calmness, will pass.

Elsine Lohr

Harriet Brooks

Japanese Craft Now On Display At LC Library

An exhibition of contemporary Japanese ceramics is currently being featured in the Dabney S. Lancaster Library here.

Closes October 30

Thirty-six examples crafted by Japanese potters compose this exhibit on display until October 30 in the Exhibit Room of the library. The Exhibit Room of the library will be open Monday through Friday from 3 to 5 p.m.

Varied Examples

Included in the representative

Helicopters Aid South Viet Nam In Red Struggle

By Charlotte McClung

Viet Nam Fight: Four U. S. Army helicopters fired with rockets and machine guns last week, Tuesday, on Communist guerrillas in South Viet Nam. The helicopters were sent to aid in the struggle against the Communists who had downed two planes in two days, killing three American G.I.'s.

"Ranger" Falls: Space Agency officials, discouraged from the Ranger V failure on Thursday appointed a committee to find out what went wrong with the $15,000,000 spacecraft. The launching failure, the third Ranger failure in nine months, complicated plans for the more difficult Project Apollo designed to land a man on the moon. The Ranger was to take television pictures of the moon, explore its surface, and land an instrument package on the moon.

Hurricane Vfers from Coast: Hurricane Ella, after bringing heavy winds and high tides to the Virginia - North Carolina coastline last week, moved out to sea, remaining well away from the Virginia coast. The hurricane, with gusts of 120 miles per hour on Friday, was expected to change little in size or intensity.

Berlin Conference: Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko conferred with President Kennedy on Berlin last Thursday. He described the talks as "useful" but would not state whether or not Premier Khrushchev will visit the United States. It was reported Friday that President Kennedy informed the Soviet Premier that he is willing to discuss Berlin if Khrushchev comes to the United States.

Earlier last week West German Foreign Minister Schroeder in Washington to arrange Chancellor Adenauer's coming visit, talked with President Kennedy on Berlin and later stated that he and the President agree on Berlin strategy.

Two Congressmen Indicted: U. S. Representative Thomas F. Baykin (D-Ala.) and Frank W. Boykin (D-Ala.) were indicted last week for receiving money in exchange for their influence toward the dismissal of a federal indictment against Mary-Ann Adams and loan operator, J. Kenneth Eddin of Miami. The compensation involved included $24,918 received by Johnson, and real estate dealings of $3,200,000 involving both men.

Court Action in Mississippi: The United States Court of Ap-

—Staff Photo
Preparing for tennis match, Henrietta Gilliam practices with new rebound net.

Red N' Whites Ahead In Class Tennis Singles

The Red and Whites had an edge over the Green and Whites in the annual class tennis singles tournament of this week. Victors for the Red and Whites were Sharon Sarver, Chris Longstreet, Cecil Tart, Cary Howell, Ann Downey, Barbara Ragland, Mary Dominick, Gay Taylor, Bessie Mann, Shirley Metcalf and Lois Obenshain. Games won by forfeit were Sharon Sarver, Mary Dominick, Carol Nye and Shirley Metcalf.

Winners for the Green and Whites were Henrietta Gilliam, Earlene Lang, Lindy Hatch and Carol Nye. Class tennis games will continue through October.

peals enjoined Mississippi Friday against interfering with the attendance of James H. Meredith at the University of Mississippi. The court also deferred further action against Governor Ross Barnett and Lt. Gov. Paul H. Johnson, Jr., who have received contempt citations.

Virginia P-TA Takes Stand: The Virginia Congress of Parents and Teachers by an overwhelming majority vote, urged last Wednesday that Governor Harrison take the steps necessary to provide free public education to all children of Virginia.

Yankees Take Series: The New York Yankees defeated the San Francisco Giants, 1-0, at San Francisco last week in the seventh and final game of the World Series. The winning pitcher was Ralph Terry who gave up only four hits to the Giants.

Hockey Teams Vie For Honors At Westhampton

This year, the Tidewater hockey tournament will be held at Westhampton College in Richmond the weekend of November 3 and 4. Approximately fourteen members of the Varsity hockey team will be chosen to represent Longwood at the annual tournament; and they will compete against teams from Mary Washington College, William and Mary College, Old Dominion College, and Westhampton College. Also playing in the tourney will be club teams from Richmond and Petersburg.

The Tidewater tournament is the first in a series which will lead to a national tournament where the top field hockey players are to be selected to play on the United States Teams.

Feast of the Reformation
(Lutheran Loyalty Sunday)
Oct. 28, Worship
At 10:00 A.M.
Everyone Welcome!
SAINT JOHN'S LUTHERAN CHURCH
310 South Virginia St.

See Our
Circus Clowns
at
THE LANSCOTT GIFT SHOP

Longwood Victorious Over Two Colleges

By Lefty Snyder

Playing their first home game of the season Wednesday, October 17, L. C.'s varsity hockey team welcomed Madison College to the campus and then proceeded to send the visiting team back to Harrisonburg defeated in both the first and second games. While the first game climaxed a hard fought game with a 1-0 score, the second team ran over their Madison opponents with a successful 4-1 tally.

School Supports

Highlighting the games was the support of the student body cheering the Blue N' Whites on. The inability of the Madison girls to stay on their feet. . . and the rare penalty bully which was held in the second game. A penalty bully is given only when a sure goal is not scored because of a foul made by the attacking team.

L. C. vs. Westhampton
Saturday, October 20, the Hockey Team traveled to Richmond once again, this time to compete with the Westhampton College Team, which had recently bested Madison College 3-0 as compared with Longwood's 1-0 victory; however this did not dampen the spirit nor the playing of the Longwood eleven. Westhampton scored the first goal of the game; Longwood retaliated soon to tie the game 1-1 and although Westhampton's defense was strong, our defense prevented them from scoring during the remaining moments of the game.

Second Team Strong

In the second game, Longwood proved to be a much stronger team, dominating the opponents' half of the field during most of the contest. At the end of the first half, the score was 3-0 Longwood. Westhampton finally found a hole in L. C.'s defense to score their only goal, but they were soon squelched by having another goal scored against them giving Longwood a victory of 4-1.

"Homecoming" Game

The hockey team will play its

AA To Sponsor Annual Contest For Color Songs

The sound of myriad feminine voices will fill Jarmen Auditorium Tuesday, November 13, as the classes compete for honors in the A. A. contest.

Each year, the subject of the songs alternates between class, college, and color song. This year, color (red and white and green and white) songs will be submitted. As in the past, each class will write an original song and sing it in the assembly. Three faculty members will judge the songs on the basis of appropriateness to the color, pep, spirit, etc.

The winning class will receive a cash prize of five dollars. Besides helping to keep class spirit high, this contest is aimed to promote general school spirit and to boost interest in athletic activities.

final game of the season here on Circus Day at 2:00 p.m. against Old Dominion College (formerly Norfolk Division at the College of William and Mary).

DAVIDSON'S BEAUTY SALON
With This Coupon
Two Permanents
For The Price of One
Phone EX 2-3111

Visit The
COLLEGE BOOKSTORE
See The New
Selection of Paperbacks

With This Coupon
One Free Coke
Thursday or Friday
at
SOUTHSIDE SUNDRY CO., INC.

MARTIN THE JEWELER
Initial Pins
By Trifari ..... $2.20 ea.
Longwood Charms
$1.75 Up
Visit Them Today!

NEWMAN'S MEN SHOP
Traditional Styles
See Our
Ladies' Sportswear

State Theatre FARMVILLE, VA.

NOW PLAYING THRU WED.

"EL CID"
Prices and Show Times
Two Shows Daily
2:00 P.M. and 8 P.M.
Adults: Matinee ..... 75c
Evening ..... $1.00
Thurs.-Fri.-Sat.—Oct 25-26-27

OCTOBER 28 - 29 - 30
BURT LANCASTER
"BIRDMAN OF ALCATRAZ"

COPYRIGHT © 1961, THE COCA-COLA COMPANY. COCA-COLA AND C-O are REGISTERED TRADEMARKS

In over 100 countries people get that refreshing new feeling with Coke!

REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

Bottled under authority of
The Coca-Cola Company by
LYNCHBURG BOTTLING WORKS, Lynchburg, Va.

COLLEGE SHOP

Hamburger Delight
With French Fried
Onion Rings, Coke,
Tea, or Coffee
65c

HOLLYWOOD BEAUTY COLLEGE

Let the trophy winning school, that has taught many trophy winning students, design for you a synchronized hair design, soft, graceful yet durable, and in the latest trend for your busy campus activities.

Shampoo and Set .. $1.25
Cut ..... $1.00
Permanent ..... $5.00
Frosting, Tips, and
Streaks .... $5.00 & set

Newman Club Announces Theology Course Topics

The Newman Club is sponsoring a year-long study in theology. The second Monday and fourth Thursday meetings are devoted to this class to which all interested students are invited.

Programs Announced

The class will be conducted throughout the year. The coming topics include: "What Is God Like?" "Trinity and Unity," "History of Salvation," "Hope of Israel," "The Person of Christ: The Historical Christ," and "Passion and Redemption." Also to be discussed in coming months will be: "The Church in the New Testament: The Mystical Christ," "The Church in the World," "Life and the Sacraments," "Law and Morality," "Death of a Christian," and "Marriage in Christ."

Priest Speaks

Father Patterson, C.P.P.S. of St. John's Parish, Creve, presents these studies. He says, "Adult Christians often realize that the knowledge which they have of God and of the things pertaining to Him is little better than a remnant of their childhood training. Even if that is not the case with some, still there is no point in anyone's life where he or she can say that there is nothing more to learn. As a person matures in life all the phases of his or her knowledge must grow in proportion. Where the proportion is lacking, there also must be a degree of immaturity."

Purpose Stated

"The problem of gaining a richer and fuller knowledge of God and things revealed; it is not so much in recognizing the need for such growth as in having the opportunity to learn. It was with this idea in mind that the Newman Club at Longwood planned to devote two meetings each month . . . to the study of the science of Theology."

available to delegates during their stay.

Instruction Available

On Friday and Saturday, the three girls will attend workshops, short courses, talks and panel discussions. Subject matter will cover all aspects of

Around The Campi

It's about time the TV sets and radios on campus sounded off with something besides the late shows and country music. But it's bad news, now, and maybe everyone should go back to the late shows and country music.

Thought for the week: What's the Freshman Red Viper?

Circus is in the air—very thickly. Signs . . . rehearsals . . . singing in the Rotunda . . . Circus 1962.

Civil Service Exams Now Being Offered

Applications are now being accepted for the 1963 Federal Service Entrance Examination the United States Civil Service Commission has announced. This Commission, open to college juniors, seniors, and graduate students regardless of major study, as well as to persons who have had equivalent experience, offers the opportunity to begin a career in the Federal Service in one of some 60 different occupational fields. A written test is required.

Washington Jobs Offered

The positions to be filled from the FSSE are in various Federal agencies and are located in Washington, D. C., and throughout the United States. Depending on the qualifications of the candidate, starting salaries will be $4,345 or $5,355 a year. Management Internships with starting salaries of $5,355 or $6,485 a year, will also be filled from this examination.

Dates Announced

Applicants who applied by September 27, 1962, were scheduled for the written test held on October 13, 1962. Six additional tests have been scheduled during the year. The dates are: November 17, 1962, January 12, February 9, March 16, April 20, and May 11, 1963.

The closing date for acceptance of applications for Management Internships is January 24, 1963. For all other positions, the closing date is April 25, 1963.

Information Available

Details concerning the requirements, further information about the positions to be filled, and instructions on how to apply are given in civil service announcement No. 237. These announcements may be obtained from many post offices throughout the country, college placement offices, civil service regional offices, or from the U. S. Civil Service Commission, Washington 25, D. C.

IN THE COLLEGE BRAND ROUND-UP

PRIZES:

First—STEREO CONSOLE
Second—TRANSISTOR RADIO
Third—TRANSISTOR RADIO

RULES:

Contest open to all school organizations and individuals. Turn in wrappers in counted bundles at Longwood Rec. November 29. Entries must be registered with Pete Hatcher before 4:00.

WHO WINS:

Organizations or individual submitting greatest number of Philip Morris, Marlboro, Alpine, or Parliament wrappers. All wrappers count one point.

Get on the BRANDWAGON . . . it's lots of fun!

Welcome Longwood Students To College Night At Davidson's

OCTOBER 30th BEGINNING AT 6:30 P. M.

COME AND SEE THE NEWEST IN FALL FASHIONS IN OUR SPORTSWEAR, READY-TO-WEAR AND ACCESSORIES. SOME OF OUR NAME BRANDS ARE COUNTRY SHIRT, (NEW SHIPMENT JUST ARRIVED) SHIP-N-SHORE, BOBBIE BROOKS, GARLAND, NAGGS HEAD DRESSES, SHOES BY AMERICAN GIRL AND MOXEE'S.

10% DISCOUNT WILL BE GIVEN ON ALL PURCHASES

REFRESHMENTS WILL BE SERVED AND THERE WILL BE 24 DOOR PRIZES GIVEN THAT NIGHT.

HAMPDEN-SYDNEY BOYS HAVE BEEN INVITED

Lani Robinson is wearing an oxford cloth blouse by Ship-N-Shore that retails for $3.99 and a wrap skirt in camel by Cohen that retails for $10.99. Her sweater is by De Loux in brown of a blend of wool and alpaca retailing for $12.99.

Gari Dickson is wearing a red corduroy dress by Naggs Head which retails for $10.99.

Kay Nottingham is wearing a brown shetland sweater by Garland, which retails for $7.99. Also a beige Ship-N-Shore blouse, $3.99, and plaid kilt by Bobbie Brooks, $10.99.

Fall Scrapbook Issue

THE ROTUNDA

VOL. VLI

Longwood College, Farmville, Va., November 7, 1962

No. 6

14 Tapped As Members Of Alpha Kappa Gamma

Six of newly-tapped Alpha Kappa Gamma members gather in Virginia Room. Left to right are Betty Howard, Barbara Moyer, Jerry Clarke, Annice Bailey, Donna Frantzen, and Betty Ann Rex.

By Ann Carroll

Alpha Kappa Gamma, national honorary leadership fraternity, tapped new members Thursday, November 1 in Jarman Auditorium. Nine seniors and four juniors were honored.

Fourteen Tapped

Seniors tapped were Annice Bailey, Donna Frantzen, Janice Harris, Linda Hatch, Susan Lane, Barbara Gray Martin, Barbara Moyer, Mary Lou Plunkett and Louise Powell.

Juniors recognized were Jerry Clarke, Betty Howard, Mary Ann Lipford, Charlotte McClung and Betty Ann Rex.

Bailey Chosen

Annice Bailey, a math major from Norfolk, was the first senior tapped. In her freshman year, Annice was a Top Rat. She also served on the Freshman Commission. She was co-chairman of the sophomore Circus booth. As a junior, she was secretary of Student Government and this year holds the office of chairman of the Legislative Board of Student Government. She has represented Longwood at two conventions of S.I.A.S.G.

Annice is a member of Kappa Delta social sorority. In this she has held the positions of education chairman and membership chairman. Presently she is parliamentary.

Frantzen Active

Donna Frantzen is a senior from Portsmouth. Her majors are biology and chemistry. She was freshman skit chairman for Circus. In the Newman Club Donna has held the position of secretary. During her junior year, she was chairman of the May Court for May Day. She has also served as a reporter for the Rotunda. This year she is president of Lynchos and chairman of the Honors Council. Donna is a member of Alpha Gamma Delta social sorority. Her offices in this have been treasurer and rush chairman ship.

Harris Tapped

Janice Harris, senior from Danville, has a double major in Spanish and English. Her activities include membership in the Monogram Club, the Spanish Club, and Orchestra, of which she is past president. She is a member of the Varsity Hockey Team. This year, Janice was co-chairman of the senior Circus skit and was elected to reign as Queen of Circus 1962. Janice is vice-president this year of Alpha Sigma Tau social sorority.

Hatch Active

Linda Hatch, a senior from Annandale, is a biology major. She has been a member of the varsity tennis team and the varsity hockey team for four years. She has served as manager of the softball, volleyball and varsity tennis teams. She has also been co-captain of the basketball team. Linda is a member of the Monogram Club, Lynchos, and the Athletic Association.

This year she received a Blaser Award. For the third year, Linda has been a member of the second Tidewater Hockey team. Susan Lane, also a senior, is a chemistry - general science major from Roanoke. She has been a reporter for the Rotunda three years. She holds membership in Lynchos Student Education Association and Kappa Delta Pi. This year she is president of this honorary society. As a junior, she was a delegate to the National Kappa Delta Pi Convocation held in Chicago. For two years she has represented Longwood at state SEA conventions.

For the Longwood Forum, Susan has held the positions of treasurer and co-chairman. For three years she has been on the Executive Council of the YWCA.

Active in Sports
Barbara Gray Martin is a senior from Cartersville. Her major is physical education. She has participated in all the Circus, productions and water pageants. This year she served as co-chairman of senior Circus skit. She is a member of the HCO Club, the Monogram Club, and Longwood Players. Of this she is technical director. She has played on the varsity hockey team, and participated in class softball, volleyball, basketball and tennis. "B. G." is also a member of the Athletic Association council.

Barbara Gray is a member of

(Continued on page 7)

LC Library Announces Students Art Loan Plans

The Longwood library is now lending art reproductions to the senior class. The library has invested in a collection of twenty reproductions including Picasso's "The Lovers," Van Gogh's "The Cafe, evening," and other well known works of art by famous artists. These pictures were acquired in the past two months and were on display in the library for two weeks.

Lending Begins Tomorrow
The framed pictures will go on display again November 7, in the library exhibit room. The actual borrowing of the pictures will begin on Thursday, November 8, from 3 to 5 p.m. in the afternoon. Pictures may be reserved by students earlier on Thursday to insure a special choice. A one dollar fee will be charged for the borrowing of a picture for one semester to cover cost of eventual replacement costs. The pictures taken out November 7 must be returned at the end of this semester, however.

Four Projects Now Under Way As School Grows

Four new building projects are underway at Longwood this year.

A new dormitory is now under construction next to Wheeler. The new dorm will be an exact duplicate of Wheeler in design. The only difference is that the new dorm will accommodate 200 girls where as Wheeler accommodates 184 girls. This new building, which will cost $574,000 will open sometime next fall.

February 1, the remodeling of the dining hall and the education building will begin. The dining hall will be expanded by taking up the main rec. An elevator for the transferring of food will be included in the plans. This project is expected to cost $102,000.

The remodeling of the education building will include completely re-doing the inside of the building. The new offices and classrooms in the building will be ready for use in September, 1963. $134,000 will be the cost of project.

Another project to begin on February 1 is the construction of a new maintenance building. These shop buildings will be built on the site of the present ones. The maintenance department is in need of space for equipment. The old building behind the dining hall will be torn down and a new one built in its place. The cost of this project is expected to be $83,000.

The total cost of the four projects is $882,000.

Sergio Visits

Miss Lisa Sergio, of Firenze, Italy, visited here Monday and Tuesday to give a series of lectures sponsored by the Longwood Forum. She spoke on Communism in the modern world.

Miss Sergio spent some time under fascist rule before coming to the U. S.

Players Present Shakespeare Drama, 'Shrew'

The cast for the Shakespearean comedy "The Taming of the Shrew," has been chosen and rehearsals are well under way.

The leading role of Katherine was given to Mary Lynn Lander, a sophomore from Staunton. Mary Lynn is a Biology major. The other leading female role of Bianca was given to Pat Newton. Pat is a freshman from Westover, Massachusetts and an English major. The male lead of Petruchio was given to John McNeil from Richmond. The other backing male role was given to Bill McGuire who will play Lucentio.

(Continued on Page 3)

Juniors Win Skit Competition, Seniors Take Float In Circus

Longwood's 1962 Circus ended October 27 with happiness for both the Red and White, and Green and White classes. The Senior Class won first place for its float and the juniors placed first with their skit. The seniors won second place in the skit competition.

Afternoon Parade

The Circus events began with representatives, and class floats. Class members, singing pop songs, marched behind their respective floats.

The evening program began at 8 p.m. in Jarman. The theme of "Grease Paint and Buzzy Pants" provided the atmosphere as the cabareters introduced Evelyn Gray, Ringmaster for the 1962 Circus. After welcoming the audience, Evelyn presented the class Circus representatives, chosen by their class on the basis of their contributions to the class during Circus. Harriet Anderson represented the Freshman Class; Pat Wallace, the sophomores; and Betty Ann Atkinson, the juniors. The senior representative, Queen Janice Harris, retired over the Circus festivities.

Classes Perform Antics
The first act of the evening was the clowns, who performed various stunts. Following their antics, Mary Jane Brittingham, Animal Trainer, skidded the traditional Circus animals through sundry tricks.

After these performances, the main part of the program began. Each class gave a 15-minute skit, each one filled with music, dance, and comedy.

Historic Theme
The theme for the freshman skit was "A History Mystery." The students gave their modern ideas of what happened to the Roanoke Island settlers. Their opinion was that the settlers

(Continued on page 7)

Babes Kay Nottingham and Anne Greene wave from winning senior float.

Ringmaster Evelyn Gray crowns Janice Harris Queen of Circus 1962.

a parade through downtown Farmville. Headed by the Ringmaster and Animal Trainer, the parade included four color guardmen, clowns, horses, wild animals, a fire engine, A.K.G. members, class sponsors and Scene from winning junior skit shows housewife Marilyn Kilgore planning new fallout shelter as policeman Rosa Doyle looks on.

Doctor Dudley Brooks discusses trials of pampered life with rebellious babies in senior's second place skit.

Freshmen act out their interpretation of "A History Mystery," a story depicting fate which befell colonists who landed on Roanoke Island to become the Lost Colony.

Sunset appears behind eskimo igloo in sophomore float.

CIRCUS COMES TO TOWN

Amid the Fun and Frolic of Circus night, the clowns perform difficult skills of precision and balance.

"Polar Bear" sells Eskimo Pies to benefit sophomore booth in Main "rec" Midway after Circus program.

Enthusiastic crowd views latest thing in fallout shelters in Junior skit of satire on "keeping up with the Joneses."

Slater Circus cake gets admiring glances from Lynn McCutcheon, a guest, and Angel Stephenson.

Seniors (left to right) Marty Wyatt, Harriet Brooks, Jay Moore, and Barbara Meyer sing seniors' lament, "We Need A Rest," as they prepare to turn over adult duties to babies in revolt.

Circus Ringmaster Evelyn Gray prepares to reveal 1962 Circus skit and float winners.

Junior class float features (left to right) Doris Harrison, Sue Moseley, and papier-mache dinosaur, all depicting skit theme revealed in program Saturday night.

AKG Thanks

The "Grease Paint and Baggy Pants" are now packed away and Jarman is silent once more. The tears of sadness and joy are dried and Circus 1962 is over.

Yes, Circus has come and gone again at Longwood, and again unfolded the true spirit of Longwood, but only through the enthusiasm and participation of each student.

Circus was a success, but only because you—the students—worked together to make it so. For CIRCUS IS YOU. It is to you that we wish to express our sincere appreciation for the work you put into Circus. You now can realize that it matters not which class took each prize, but that through their work, each class united to experience a feeling of kinship and to develop a deep love for our college.

To each person whose time and interest made Circus possible, we thank you.

Alpha Kappa Gamma

On Painting The Bell

Last week, President Wygal announced that continued painting of college property by students was prohibited. Conspicuous steps could be taken to make it impossible to reach the bell, but this does not prevent access to the roof, as there are innumerable ways of getting there. Rather, the President has appealed to our mature sensibilities by requesting that students do not go on the roof to paint anything.

In regard to this announcement, three students have published a letter which appears below. In it, they have referred to the "tradition" of painting the bell atop Post Office.

To this, two things must be said in reply; first, that painting of the bell is not a tradition, but merely a four-year precedent, and second, that anyone who has been on the roof of Ruffner must admit that the wires and pipes there create a fatal hazard. Darkness and the excitement caused by fear of detection increase this hazard.

Although the painting which has been done in the past has been done with good taste in that signs have been confined to the roofs of buildings and have not been considered obnoxious, our cooperation has been requested in this matter and we should comply.

But, the strong point in favor of the letter is that the need for doing mischievous things of this nature must find outlet elsewhere. Where, then?

We suggest that anyone who feels moved to paint the campus red (or green) can offer her services for making banners for Color Rush or for announcing victory in any class competition. Those who are attracted by the excitement, as we all are, can hang red and white Sally or Gangrene in effigy some night.

Letters To The Editor

Students Question Decision On Bell Painting And Tradition

Dear Editor,

Longwood is, and has been for many years, a school full of traditions. Among our cherished traditions are chat, rapping, Circus, color cup class competition, and, not the least of these, the tradition of painting the bell with class colors.

In the revoking of the tradition of painting the bell the beginning of the end of our beloved traditions?

We cannot help but admit that the defacing of other property is not in keeping with Longwood traditions or the school spirit.

Even though the administration may feel that painting the bell is childish and immature, we wonder what a school has left when its traditions are lost. Three "Green and Whites"

The Rotunda

ESTABLISHED NOVEMBER 29, 1926

Published each week during the college year except during holidays and examination period by the students of Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia, Class 196.

Ann Agee ..... Editor-in-Chief
Donna Humphlett ..... Managing Editor
Ann Carroll ..... Business Manager
Ginny Gilmore ..... News Editor
Lofty Snyder ..... Feature Editor
Leslie Smith ..... Sports Editor
Betsy Taylor ..... Desk Editor
Flonnie Bernard, Linda Paris ..... Art Editor
Ann Peters ..... Photography
Mary Reynolds ..... Circulation Manager
Advertising Manager

REPORTING STAFF: Barbara Agee, Theresa Albright, Leslie Aldridge, Suzanne Ballard, Paula Blackstone, Margaret Cook, Lee Criss, Dee Dindrich, Jane Eddy, Beverly Gooden, Judi Hackney, Judy Ivy, Sandra Jamison, Jewel Lutz, Susan Lane, Mary Anne Lipford, Jean Lord, Beale Mann, Charlotte McClung, Wynne Phillips, Barbara Poland, Karen Ruder, Marcia Rieffler, Doris Smith, Lois Sullivan, Betsy Taylor, Allene Turgie, Barbara Turner, Linda Turner, Pat Wallace, Dee Watkins, Annette Wenger.

CIRCULATION STAFF: Suzanne Brial, Sandra Freedman, Cindy Gay, Cheryl Howe, Jackie Leach, Cabell Montgomery, Betty Lee Neal, Mary Lee Phunkett, Joyce Powell, Eleanor Richardson, Marian Run, Gay Stump.

ADVERTISING STAFF: Mary Bradford, Diana Dell, Betty P. Galer, Judi Hackney, Dottie Marshall, Sandra Parker, Faye Stone, Diana Woolley.

PHOTOGRAPHY STAFF: Mary Evelyn Compton, Gray Garhart, Dottie Marshall, Nancy Robinson.

BUSINESS STAFF: Leslie Aldridge, Olivia Gibson, Helen Wozak.

(Unassigned editorials written by the editor)

Member: Virginia Intercollegiate Press (Rating First Class). Columbia Scholarship Press Association (Rating First Class). Entered as second class matter at the Post Office at Farmville, Virginia under the Act of Congress on March 3, 1921. Represented for national advertising by the National Advertising Bureau. Printed by the Farmville Herald.

Little Man On Campus

Three Journals Carry Reviews By LC Faculty

In three current professional journals, book reviews by three Longwood professors, Dr. Dorothy B. Schlegel, Mr. Ellington White, and Mr. David Wiley were printed.

Schlegel Reviews

Dr. Schlegel's review of Between Friends: Letters of James Branch Cabell and Others, edited by Padric Colum and Margaret Freeman Cabell, was contained in the July issue of Virginia Magazine of History and Biography. One of the finds in these letters detail Cabell's growing literary reputation between 1915-1922 and rural problems of his literary circle in fighting a bad on both their bourbon and their books at a time when they were bursting with creative activity.

Reviews Five Novels

In the autumn number of The Kenyon Review, Mr. White's review of five novels appeared. The Reivers by William Faulkner, The Golden Notebook by Doris Lessing, Letting Go by Philip Roth, The Slave by Isaac Bashevis Singer, and A Different Drummer by William Melvin Kelley were among those novels. In The Reivers Mr. White finds that this work has much in common with another last book, Huckleberry Finn—boys, journeys, Negroes, and the South.

Wiley in "Journal"

Mr. Wiley reviewed The Seven Ages of the Theatre by Richard Southern in the October issue of Quarterly Journal of Speech. Mr. Wiley states, "Rather than being a deeply researched theatre history of the from the Greeks to the present variety, Richard Southern's latest effort endeavors to review the forms of the theatre, as an environment for actor and audience, in seven phases."

Letter To Editor

Alumna Writes Letter In Praise Of Welcome

Dear Editor,

Please allow me to use the Rotunda to express to AKG, to the faculty and administration, to the student body as a whole, and especially to the Class of '63, the thanks we, the returning alumna, feel for the wonderful welcome we received Circus week end.

It was good to be back on the campus because we felt so at home. We enjoyed Circus and most of all, seeing each of you.

A member of the Class of '62

Peace Corps Worker Visits, Gives Talk

Longwood classes were visited by Miss Mitzi Mallina of the Peace Corps on Friday, November 2, 1962.

Miss Mallina has been affiliated with the Division of Research since July. She has been with the Peace Corps since its establishment in March 1961. Her posts include aiding in the setting up of the Peace Corps Representative Talent Search and acting as assistant to the Associate Director for Peace Corps Volunteers. In the latter position, she worked mainly in the Puerto Rico training camp. A social anthropology major,

Miss Mallina was graduated from the University of Michigan. She spent five months of 1960 in West Africa as a member of Operation Crossroads Africa in NIGERIA.

She studied at the University of Vienna in her junior year.

Other traveling was done extensively in Europe. In 1956 she took part in the Experiment in International Living in France.

Before joining the Peace Corps, Miss Mallina did public relations work with the Educational Electronics Division of Thompson, Ramo, Wooldridge, in Newtonville, Massachusetts.

Cuban Crisis In Retrospect Faculty Poll

By Ginny Gilmore

The presidential decision of October 22 on the enforcement of a Cuban blockade will go down as a milestone in 20th century history. The decision for many has strengthened previous opinions. For others, opinions have been reversed.

To better understand the significance of this move, four members of the Longwood history department have been questioned concerning their viewpoints. Those questioned were Dr. Marvin Schlegel, Dr. Alexander Berkis, Dr. James Helms and Mr. Morris Bittering.

Timing Advisable?

One of the major questions raised concerning the president's decision was whether or not the timing was advisable. "The president's decision is late, but great," is Dr. Helms' opinion. He believes this firm stand should have been taken any time within the last two years when it would have been possible to overthrow Castro. Dr. Berkis, taking the same viewpoint, believes that an aggressive policy by the United States should have been followed since World War Two.

In opposition to this view, Mr. Bittering believes that "the Cuban crisis seems to indicate that President Kennedy's action was accurately timed to catch Russia off stride and to gain the overwhelming support of world opinion." He feels that up until now we would not have gotten the support of many European nations who have not put prime importance on the Cuban situation.

Opinions Heard in UN

Mr. Bittering places the most significant aspect of the crisis on the work of the United Nations as an institution for the quick mobilization of world opinion.

Political Victory

Dr. Schlegel believes that Mr. Kennedy's decision was a "masterly political stroke from a legal standpoint." This victory, he feels, is not only important from the diplomatic viewpoint but also from the political standpoint.

"Happy Medium"

He feels that by enforcing the blockade, the president struck a happy medium. He came as close as he could to satisfying both extremes of political thought. Whereas, in the Bay of Pigs incident in April, 1961, the president reached an unhappy medium by reverting too closely to the idealistic leftist faction, and in doing so, reached no satisfactory end.

Major Criticism

The biggest criticism the president has received to date has been that he should have carried his hard core policy one step further and invaded Cuba. This, Dr. Schlegel believes, would have been too costly for the United States. The United States has accomplished its ends without the price of human lives. Through Castro's loss of power, he can no longer be a threat to the United States and will soon wither on the vine. By letting him remain Khrushchev's puppet, he will drain Russia of power by burdening her economy.

Must "Remain Firm"

Dr. Berkis believes that the firm stand on this matter was entirely necessary to our national security. He was glad to see the United States exercise leadership where leadership should be exercised. However, he believes that now that we have set forth this policy on this occasion, we must stick to it. This showdown, he feels, might possibly bring about a complete change in the communist bloc, provided that the United States keeps up this pressure.

Strength Overstressed

Dr. Berkis believes that the Soviet back-up of policy has given us reason to believe the military power of Russia has been overstressed. Those neutral nations who have been wavering up until now are now inclined to back us up.

Profitable Lesson

Dr. Helms hopes that Mr. Kennedy and the State Department profit from this lesson. He believes that the policy of backing up from Soviet threats in the Eisenhower and Kennedy Administration has been proven unsuccessful. We now see that through our firmness we have gained support.

He feels that if the Kennedy administration was to couple this new found firmness with a sense of economic responsibility, they might reverse an administration headed for disaster and turn it into a truly great one.

Student Poll

By Diana Upshur

Upon interviewing many of the students at Longwood concerning the recent world crisis, it was found that the majority agreed with the action taken by President Kennedy.

The following students expressed their views concerning different aspects of the Cuban situation.

Joan Leary, Sophomore.

"While it's impossible to contemplate the long-range effects, it appears now that the action was wise and well-timed. At present, I feel that we have lost nothing and have gained from the situation, if anything.

From the information now known, I do not feel that we should have entered the Cuban situation any sooner or employed stronger tactics."

Ginna Williams, Freshman.

"I agree with President Kennedy's action, but feels that he constantly kept in mind that any steps he took would have a great influence in the next political election."

Nancy Mowrey, Sophomore.

"The outstanding factor that evolved from this whole Cuban matter was the United States' admitted policy of manipulated public opinion through the newspapers."

She believes that we were inconsistent in our actions, because of the statement that our ship ship going through the U. S. blockade would be stopped or sunk. Recently, a Swedish ship passed through the blockade.

This, Nancy says, makes her question the fact that there were no political overtones behind Kennedy's action.

Frances Heath, Freshman.

"Not only was the action," was the reply of Frances Heath, who believes that measures should have been taken a long time ago, before this situation ever arose.

Sharon Coulter, Senior.

Sharon believes that our biggest mistake lies in calling this a crisis. It is in the spotlight, yes, she says, but everything going on today is critical. The people in the U. S. had relaxed their tension towards the happenings of world events, and that is the reason that the Cuban "crisis" was so shocking. She thinks that a constant awareness on the part of the individual would be protection for all.

FALL SPORTS IN PICTURES

Warming up before game with Little Colonels. Longwood players Peggy Waldo, Judy Wilson, Earlene Lang, Barbara Stewart, Sandra Phlegar, and Janice Harris practice penalty corner.

Taking short corner, Richmond Club left wing Jeanette Tabbutt, a Longwood alumna, makes a drive as Longwood players

Betty Lou Dunn, Earlene Lang, Barbara Stewart, and Flossie Barnard prepare to make defensive play.

Participating in the AA Demonstration held September 27, archery managers Sandy Waugh and Melody Saunders demonstrate correct technique for stringing a bow.

FLOSSIE BARNARD
Hockey Team Captain

Scottish physical education instructor Miss May Bryce demonstrates correct form for dribble to hockey classes.

Hockey players Peg Waldo and Lindy Hatch were chosen to play for the Tidewater team in the Southeast Tournament in Washington D. C.

Four o'clock Thursday hockey practice finds red and white and green and whites pitted against classmates to accumulate practices for class hockey eligibility.

Peg and Lindy "lose their heads" over being selected to play on the Tidewater team.

Longwood Team displays good stick work in tight spot during game with Westhampton. Sandy Phlegar, (second from left,) takes ball from opposing team.

Fall Sports Review

Varsity Hockey Season Ends
With Victories Over Norfolk

By Lefty Snyder

The Varsity Hockey team ended its season here, Circus Day, by completely overwhelming Old Dominion College of Norfolk, sending them home with a defeat of 6-0. Not to be outdone, Longwood's second team crushed Norfolk's second team easily, claiming for themselves a 6-0 victory also.

2-2-1 Record

The hockey team earned a record of two wins, two losses and one tie game. The semi-professional club teams, Little Colonels and Richmond Club succeeded in beating our varsity 5-0 and 3-0 respectively. However, in the college contests, Longwood retained to beat Madison College 1-0, and to triumph over Old Dominion 6-0; and in their match against Westhampton College, the Blue 'N Whites held their own for a 1-1 tie game decision.

First Team Positions

Playing in forward line positions for the first team were Janice Harris, Lindy Hatch, Barbara Ragland, Sandy Phlegar, Barbara Gray Martin and Lurline Robertson. Peg Waldo, Barbara Stewart, and Betty Lou Dunn held down the halfback positions. Defensive members of the first team were Earlene Lang, Judy Wilson and Flossie Barnard, goalkeeper and captain of the team.

Second Team Undejected

Longwood's second team retained to beat Madison College 1-0, and to triumph over Old Dominion 6-0; and in their Katherine's team 1-0, and then proceeded to triumph over Madison 4-1. Westhampton suffered a loss of 4-1 also to L. C. and in the final game of the season, Old Dominion failed to score while Longwood tallied six goals against the former Norfolk Division school.

Goalkeepers for the second team were Lee Putney and Cheryl Howe. Forwards Carol Nye, Melody Saunders, Phyllis Collins, Carolyn Cline, Chris Longstreet and Peggy Giff scored a season total of fifteen goals for the second team. Players in the backfield positions included Frances Stewart, Nancy Moorefield, Gay Taylor, Nevis Born and Lefty Snyder.

Timely Topics

Kennedy Reports Cuban
Dismantling In Progress

By Judi Hackney

President Dismantling In Cuba. President Kennedy reported by television November 2 that the Soviet rocket bases in Cuba were being dismantled. He said,

"... progress is now being made towards the restoration of peace in the Caribbean."

Until the dismantling is completed the United States intends to keep close watch over the operation. This will be done by aerial surveillance and other means. Surveillance will continue until some international method of verification is perfected.

The quarantine, at the time of this report by President Kennedy, remains in effect. It is hoped, however, that the International Red Cross will be instrumental in carrying out the purposes of the quarantine in some other way. They would have the authority to inspect ships going to and from Cuba.

The United States is now executing a round-the-clock air force of arms to India. The badly needed arms went with a message that "only the Indian army, in the end, could turn the tide against Communist Chinese aggressors."

Eight United States jet transporters carried infantry equipment from West Germany to Calcutta. Two other planes picked up light mountain artillery in Turkey made in the United States to be sent to India.

John K. Galbraith, United States ambassador to India, warned the Indian government not to expect magic with these United States arms. He said that this was only part of the problem.

Englishman
Gives Lecture
On Mathematics

"Beauty and Mathematics" was the topic of W. Warwick Sawyer, professor of mathematics at Wesleyan University. He gave a lecture in the Science Lecture Room on Tuesday, October 30, at 4:00 p.m. Born in St. Ives, Hunts, England in 1911, Dr. Sawyer received his B. A. and M. A. degrees from St. Johns College, Cambridge.

His books include Mathematics, Delight, Designing and Making, Prelude to Mathematics, Concrete Approach to Abstract Algebra, and What Is Calculus About? He edited the Mathematics Students' Journal, published by the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics, from 1958-1961.

Dr. Sawyer is a member of the American Mathematics Society and the Mathematics Association of America.

The Soviets have not sent arms to India, nor are they supporting the Indians against the Chinese as the Indians had hoped they would do.

Home in Virginia

The Kennedys are building a house in Virginia's Fauquier County. It will take the place of the presently rented one near Middleburg. The new house is to be built on a 36-acre mountain site 40 miles west of Washington. It will be a one-story masonry and stucco house with seven bedrooms, five and one-half baths, living room, dining room, and kitchen. Expected cost: $45,000.

Doctor Walks...

Thirty-two doctors in the capital city of Reykjavik, Iceland, walked out of the city's three main hospitals. A salary dispute left the hospitals with only half of their medical staffs. The dispute arose when they were unable to win pay comparable to that of private practitioners.

Non-Credit Class
Makes Progress
In Tennis Skills

At 5 p.m. Mondays the gym is usually dark and quiet; however, since a non-credit tennis class has been started by Mrs. Phyllis Harris, the scene is one of concentration and industrious practice.

Month of Basles

During the first four sessions of the class, Mrs. Harris taught her volunteer pupils how to hold a tennis racket correctly, the stance assumed while playing tennis, and the forehand drive.

New varied and interesting forms of equipment have been used in the class periods including stroke developers, the new rebound net, and a tennis racket with a hole in the center of it used to develop a correct stroke in which the ball is met in the center of the racket. Students have also been given drills to strengthen the wrist and arm muscles. All of the equipment used in class as well as an abundance of tennis balls is available to those who wish to practice when the gym is not in use.

Two Sections

Both beginners and novices have been attending the class which has now been divided into two sections. Beginners are being instructed at 5 p.m. on Mondays, while those girls who are more advanced are now meeting on Wednesdays at 5 p.m. Those who have attended the class regularly have commented that the informal class is one of fun as well as of learning.

Student Wins
4-H Club Trip
To Chicago

Doris Sadler, a member of the 4-H Club, has won a week-long, expense-paid trip to Chicago.

Doris has participated in 4-H work since she was in the fifth grade. Even then, she began working on projects, meal preparation being her first.

When she was in the eighth grade, Doris began work in frozen foods. It is this work that has made her a 4-H All Star and is taking her to Chicago.

One of 32

Doris is one of the 32 Virginia delegates to the forthcoming National 4-H Club Congress during the week of November 23-December 1. She will help represent 70,000 Virginia 4-Hers.

She submitted all her records for judging at the state level, with particular emphasis on frozen foods. All her 4-H career was put to a test, and Doris was one who came out on top.

Completes 29 Projects

A sample of Doris' work can be seen in a paragraph from her winning records "I have completed 29 projects in my 4-H work. These projects range from meal preparation, which I have taken for seven years, and frozen food, which I have taken for five years, to safety, health, and forestry. As a result of the work done in these projects I have received a county medal in frozen foods, leadership achievement recreation, dairy foods, home economics, canning, and meal preparation."

Feels "Honored"

"Everytime I think about it (the trip), I get excited. It's a once in a lifetime opportunity, and I feel honored to represent the Virginia 4-H Clubbers."

Her trip is sponsored and financed by Southern States Cooperative.

Cookbook By Former Dean
Nears Printing

On October 26 Mrs. Frances Gee attended a meeting in Roanoke to discuss with the printers the details of publishing the Blue and White Cookbook by Miss Ruth Gleaves, a former Dean of Women at Longwood. Mrs. Gee represented the Alumnae Association who is sponsoring the publishing and selling of this cookbook.

Published December 1. The expected publication date is December 1 and the sale price will be $2.00. The Blue and White Cookbook will be sold at Longwood and by all Alumnae Chapters. Mail orders will also be accepted with an additional charge of twenty-five cents to cover mailing expense.

Receives Honor

Miss Olive T. Iler was chosen to be an honorary member of the Tidewater Field Hockey Association at the Tidewater tournament which was held November 3 and 4. Miss Iler is one of the four persons ever to have held this honor.

Longwood Grads
Work At U.T.
For Masters

Five recent Longwood graduates began their work toward Master's Degrees in Physical Education at the University of Tennessee this fall.

Nancy Andrews of Roanoke, and "Willie" Taylor of Grimes, left teaching positions at Andrew Lewis High School in Roanoke County to begin their graduate studies. Both had taught there since their graduation from Longwood in 1960.

Faye Ripley of James City, Virginia Parker of Saluda, and Morag Nocher of Lynnhaven, will have on "teaching break." All 1962 graduates, they planned immediate enrollment in the University's graduate school.

None of the five, however, will lack teaching experience upon completion of their graduate work.

All participants of the University of Tennessee's teaching scholarship program, they

Two Chosen From LC
To Play For Tidewater

The Longwood hockey team defeated both of their tournament opponents, Petersburg 4-1 and William and Mary 4-2, in the Tidewater hockey tournament held at Westhampton College last week end.

Two Chosen

On the basis of their performance in the tournament, two Longwood players were selected to play in the Southeast tournament which will be held in Washington, D. C. They are Peg Waldo, chosen left halfback on the second team, and Lindy Hatch, selected as a substitute left inner. Miss Iler was chosen to serve on the selection committee which will choose the Southeast team next year.

Longwood Team Chosen

Fourteen girls were chosen from the Longwood Varsity hockey team to represent the college in the annual tournament. They are Lindy Hatch, left inner; Janice Harris, left wing; Barbara Ragland, center forward; Sandra Phlegar, right inner; Barbara Gray Martin, right wing; Peg Waldo, left halfback.

Morag and Faye will leave the immediate grounds of the school to teach at a hospital for the mentally ill.

Individuals Picked
The Tidewater tournament is held to choose outstanding individual players, rather than teams. A selection committee, consisting of Dolores Webb, chairman; Marge Arnold, Augusta Chapman, Gwen Donohue, and Mollie Fleet chose players to make up a Tidewater team to play in the Southeast tournament. Another group of players will be chosen from those participating in this tournament, and they will play in a national tournament where the members of the United States field hockey team will be selected. The National team will play in international tournaments.

New Officers Elected

The Tidewater tournament is sponsored by the Tidewater Hockey Association. Its officers are as follows: Harriet Walton, president; Helen Smith, vice-president; Miss Jane Shearn, secretary; Dolores Webb, treasurer; and Augusta Chapman, president of the Southeast Association and Tidewater representative to the Southeast association.

50 Pontiac Tempests FREE!

LE MANS
America's hottest new sports convertible!

L&M GRAND PRIX 50
Sweepstakes for colleges only

Your chances of winning are 50 times better than if open to the general public

You can win 50 flashing new '63 Pontiac Tempest Le Mans convertibles are up for grabs! They're easy to win and it's lots of fun! The big sweepstakes is starting now... keeps going and growing through the school year. There'll be drawings for 5, 10, then 15 and finally 20 new Tempest convertibles—four exciting laps—50 cars in all! Enter often... no limit on the number of entries per person!

Enter now! Here's all you do:

1. Pick up a free official L&M Grand Prix 50 entry blank. Look for them where cigarettes are sold—on and about campus. Fill it in.
2. Detach your serialized L&M Grand Prix 50 LICENSE PLATE from your entry blank. Save it! Tear off the bottom panels from 5 packs of L&M KING, L&M BOX, CHRISTIEBERG KING or CHESTERFIELD REGULAR. Monthly smokers can enter with Q&M 5 packs, or acceptable substitutes (see entry blank), must accompany each entry. Each entry must be mailed separately.

EXCLUSIVE FOR THE GIRLS!

If you win, you may choose instead of the Tempest a thrilling expense-paid 2-week holiday Europe—for Two! Plus $500 in cash!

3. Mail us the panels and your serialized entry blank... it matches your license plate. Your serial number may be one of the 50 that wins a '63 Tempest convertible!

Winners' Tempests will include: 3-speed floor shift, bucket seats, deluxe trim and special deck, radio and heater, deluxe wheel discs, windshield washers and white side-wall tires; with delivery, sales tax and registration all pre-paid! And, choice of body, trim and top colors as well as choice of differential gear ratio!

Important: As your entries are received they become eligible for all subsequent drawings. So enter often and enter early—before the drawing for the first five Tempests (right after Thanksgiving). Entries received by Thanksgiving weekend will be eligible in drawings for all 50 Tempests!

Remember: The more entries you submit, the more chances you have to win!

Get with the winners...
far ahead in smoking satisfaction!

See the Pontiac Tempest at your nearby Pontiac Dealer!

Alpha Kappa Gamma Adds To Membership

(Continued from page 1)

Alpha Psi Omega honorary dramatics society. This year she is president of Delta Zeta social society.

Mayer Versatile
Barbara Mayer is a senior business education major from Staunton. She has participated in Circus every year she has been here. As a junior she was co-chairman of the float. For four years Barbara has been on House Council. This year she is dorm president of South Cunningham. Barbara is a member of Pi Omega Pi, honorary business education society. She is magazine chairman for Zeta Tau Alpha social society.

Mary Lou Flunkett is a senior from Lynchburg. Her major is English. Mary Lou has participated in all productions and Circuses during her four years and is vice-president of student government. She is on the circulation staff of the Rotunda. This year she was chairman of Freshman Orientation. She is a member of Beta Beta Beta, local honorary society in English. She is serving as chaplain of Alpha Sigma Tau social society.

Powell Active
The last senior tapped by Alpha Kappa Gamma was Louise Powell. At present she is student teaching in Danville. Her major is elementary education and she is from Newport News. She has participated in all productions and Circuses during her four years. "Weegee" was editor of the 1961 Student Handbook. She is a member of Alpha Kappa Delta social society.

Juniors Tapped
Jerry Clarke, from Lawrenceville, is an accelerated junior, majoring in business education. As a sophomore, she was co-chairman of the sophomore production. She is president this year of the Wesleyan Foundation. She is past treasurer of this organization. Jerry is a junior class representative to the Legislative Board of Student Government, a member of the YWCA Cabinet, and a member of Pi Omega Pi, honorary business education society.

Howard Active
Betty Howard, also a junior, is a music major from Arlington. She is a junior class representative to Student Government, a member of the Student Education Association and a member of the Madrigal Singers. Betty is vice president of the choir and in the Sigma Alpha Iota music fraternity. She is a pledge of Zeta Tau Alpha social society.

Mary Ann Lipford, a junior from Bassett, is majoring in English. Since her freshman year she has been in the choir and in the Madrigals. This year she serves as president of this group. She was co-chairman of sophomore production. Currently she is vice president of the Wesleyan Foundation. She is past editor of the Wesleyan. Mary Ann is treasurer of the YWCA this year. She is copy editor of the "Voice of Art" song which won the Round Contest.

McClung Versatile
The fourth junior tapped was Charlotte McClung. She is a Spanish and English major from Farmville. As a freshman, she was recognized by Kappa Delta Pi for being the freshman with the highest scholastic average. During her sophomore year she was day student representative to Student Government, reporter of the Spanish Club, and on the Executive Council of the Baptist Student Union, serving as president. This year she is co-chairman of this group. This year Charlotte is day student representative to the Judicial Board of Student Government. She is also a reporter for the Rotunda.

Rex Capable
Betty Ann Rex is a junior from Charlottesville, majoring in music education, in piano concentration. As a freshman she was vice president and president of the YWCA.

Other new AKG members are Charlotte McClung, Susan Lane, Janice Harris, Barbara Gray Martin, Mary Lou Flunkett, and Mary Anne Lipford.

of her class. She wrote the "Voice of Art" song which won the Round Contest.

During her sophomore year, Betty Ann was Freshman Counselor for the YWCA and secretary of the Granddaughters' Club. This year she is treasurer of the Choir, a member of the Madrigal Singers and vice president of Sigma Alpha Iota. She has participated in water pageants, is a member of the Westminster Fellowship, the Student Education Association and the Music Educators National Conference. Betty Ann is a member of Alpha Sigma Alpha social society.

Alpha Kappa Gamma selected these girls on the basis of their leadership abilities and promise of future usefulness to the school in various areas of college life.

Colonial Dames Offer Award To Students

The National Society of the Colonial Dames of America is offering to Virginia students a $200 award for the best essay submitted dealing with colonial Virginia.

The paper must be written about some person or phase of colonial history and submitted between April 15 and June 15, 1963.

All entries must be between 2500 and 4000 words in length, accompanied by bibliography and footnotes. They must be typed, double spaced, on one side of a sheet, only, and enclosed in a folder. The author's name must not appear in any way on the essay, but should be attached in a separate sealed envelope. If the paper is to be returned, sufficient postage should be enclosed with correct address.

Style, originality of thought, accuracy of data and references, neatness, punctuation and spelling, will be considered in making the award. The Society reserves the right to withhold the prize if no paper of sufficient merit is submitted.

This award has been offered by the Colonial Dames for more than fifty years to stimulate interest in American colonial history. Last year, the award was won by Cadet J. Frank Froesch of VMI for his paper on the colonial theatre entitled, "The Curtain Goes Up On the American Stage."

The winning paper becomes the property of the Colonial Dames. Entries should be mailed to Mrs. Edwin Cox, Chairman, Aylett, Va.

For Your School Supplies

Visit

YOUR COLLEGE

BOOKSTORE

Seniors Depict Baby Battle In Circus

(Continued from Page 4)

were lost while playing hide-and-seek with the Indian natives.

"Wahri and Isloah" was the title of the sophomore skit about Eskimos. It served to prove that sometimes the old ways are the best ways.

The winning skit, "Fallout Shelter!" given by the juniors centered around the timely subject of fallout shelters. The cast depicted what they believed to be the origin of "keeping up with the Joneses."

Seniors Become Babies

The final skit, given by the seniors, featured a baby rebellion in which babies, tired of their simple life, decided to take their place in the adult world. The rebellion was abandoned when the babies discovered that there were many disadvantages to adult life. They happily agreed to return to "the good old days."

Highlighting of the evening's performance was the announcement of the winning skit and float. Following the program in Jarman, the audience was invited to visit the Midway, located in the Main Rec. The Midway featured popcorn, soft drinks, apple cider, candy, cookies, peanuts, hot dogs, candy apples, and many other things. In addition, visitors enjoyed a huge Circus cake prepared by the dining hall.

DOROTHY MAY

See Our New Shipment of Suede Wrap-around
Skirts and Sweaters to Match

Distillation

By Donna Humphlett

State teachers college. Teachers college. Emphasize the word teacher. Say it loudly, and it bounces back-an echo. Empty—imitation of a sound. Why? Listen.

Teachers. Student teachers. Learn to teach. Learn. Emphasize the word learn. Are you learning?

What is teaching, learning? Experience plus a few other things? What are you experiencing? It's hard to get the word out. Lodged in the throat for such a long time. Bigotry. Seeing bigotry. Surrounding on four sides by it. The campus is a rectangular figure in the middle of it.

Inhumanity the result of bigotry. I think, "Man's inhumanity to man" to quote somebody. And?

COLLEGE SHOP

Hamburger Delight
With French Fried
Onion Rings, Coke,
Tee, or Coffee
65c

MARTIN THE JEWELER

Come In And See Us

Initial Pins ..... $2.20 ea.

Longwood Charms
$1.75 up

Lander Chosen For Lead Role In Fall Play

(Continued from page 1)

Also cast in various roles are Mike Couchman from Wytheville, as Baptista; Bill McClarence from Roanoke, as Vincentio; Tom McDaniel from Herndon, as Gremio; Dave Relyea from Towson, Maryland, as Horatio; Ed Baker from Randolph, as Grunio; Betty Ann Atkinson from Arlington, as Blanche; Rosetta Burns from Monterey, as Curio; Peggy Pond from Portsmouth, as Nathaniel; Margaret Wright from Lynchburg, as Gregory; Barbara Aase from Richmond, as Phillip; Karen Ruder from Arlington, as the Haberdasher; and Dottie Cox from Richmond, as the Tailor.

Director is Mr. David Wiley, Assistant director is Jean Lorry, and Stage Manager is Pat Spies.

Mr. Wiley says he is "well pleased with the progress of the players since the choice of the cast." Three weeks of rehearsal have already been underway. Performances will be given on the 15th, 16th, and 17th of November. Mr. Wiley also announced that students have paid school fees which give them the privilege of attending these plays.

SOUTHSIDE SUNDRY

3 Rolls Black and White.

FILM

For

88c

NEWMAN'S

MEN SHOP

Traditional Styles

See Our

Ladies' Sportswear

WEYANKOE

BOOK SHOP

Contemporary Cards

Christmas Cards

Greeting Booklets

Stationary

Wide Selection!

COPYRIGHT © 1961, THE COCA-COLA COMPANY. COCA-COLA AND COLE ARE REGISTERED TRADEMARKS.

6 · 10<sup>7</sup> · 365¼*

* 60 million times a day people get that refreshing new feeling with ice-cold Coca-Cola!

LYNCHBURG BOTTLING WORKS, Lynchburg, Va.

LC Students Attend State SEA Convention

Madison College, Harrisonburg, Virginia, was the scene of the Student Virginia Education Association Convention on Saturday, October 20. Dana Brewer, president of the Longwood SEA, Mr. George Elliot, sponsor, Diana Delk; Pat Hudson; and Susan Lane represented Longwood at the convention. The theme, "Teachers of Tomorrow—Today," was carried through the convention by the keynote address by Dr. O. L. Davis, Professor of Education, Kent State University, Kent, Ohio.

Activities during the convention included a report on the Student NEA Convention in Colorado by Clifford Burdette of Randolph Macon College, president of the State SEA; election of state executive officers; an address on "Aim for Excellence" by Dr. G. Tyler Miller, president of Madison College; and informal discussion groups on such subjects as "Marriage and Teaching," "Chancing Ideas in Teaching" and "Opportunities for Graduate Study." Entertainment included a musical program by the Men's Chorus, Eastern Mennonite College; a luncheon at the Anthony Seeger Campus School at Madison; and a "Pennsylvania Dutch

Barbara Bishop Wins Art Award

Miss Barbara Bishop, an alumna of Longwood, has recently won second prize of $500 in the Southeastern Annual Art Exhibit.

This exhibit, held in Atlanta, Georgia, in September, was composed of nine southeastern states. Out of 1500 entries, 53 were chosen for the show.

Barbara is now teaching art at Southern Seminary College. After her painting was exhibited, she sold it to an Atlanta resident.

Prolific sponsored by Madison College. There are fifteen chapters in the Virginia area.

DR. LETA J. HOLMAN

Biologist Holman Does Research, Enjoys Reading

From the mesquite and Great Plains country of Texas to the forests and rolling hills of Virginia is a big hop, but Dr. Leta J. Holman, one of the new members of the science department, says "there's not much difference between Texans and Virginians except maybe accents."

Back in her home town of Seymour, Texas (160 miles west of Dallas and Fort Worth) Dr. Holman was a typical Texan, with cowboy boots and all — except she never saw much action on a horse.

Attends Texas Tech

Of course, that was before college. She got her B. S. at Texas Technological College and immediately went into medical technology at Baylor Hospital in Dallas and for about six months she worked at Wichita Falls Clinic Hospital. This was during the war. Afterward, there was not a large enough college staff for the returning veterans, so Dr. Holman was asked to teach at her alma mater. She had never intended to go into teaching, but through this post-war need she found it better than she had expected.

Teaches Three Subjects

At Tech she taught anatomy, physiology, and bacteriology for eleven years. Four summers were spent at the University of Michigan biological station.

For her doctorate, she attended the University of Maryland where she also taught introductory zoology full time for a year.

Concerning her decision to go through graduate school, Dr. Holman feels that two things affected it — she had a job and had to break away from it, which took getting used to, and "if I had it to do over I'd start it 15 years sooner." Her graduate paper was on the biology of reproduction of chipmunks.

Because she's not a product of a big city and likes the atmosphere of a small place and because through a friend she received a letter from Dr. Brumfield asking her to join the Longwood staff, Dr. Holman finally found her way to the Longwood campus.

Has "Good Impressions"

Her first impressions of this college have been good ones. She has found the students to be interested in their work, which is a boost to the professor. Where the larger colleges and universities tend to have a melting pot type of society, the smaller ones have a friendlier atmosphere. This one reason why the position here attracted her.

At the present, she is doing research on mites, in between teaching biology and bacteriology. Besides reading and "unambitious painting" (refinishing furniture, etc) Dr. Holman likes hiking in connection with nature studies "as long as I can set my own pace." Besides this, she also goes for music — anything in between rock and roll and grand opera.

Faculty Attends AAUW Meeting At Sweet Briar

By Marcella Siegfried

Several Longwood faculty members attending the American Association of University Women meeting at Sweet Briar College Saturday, October 20, had the opportunity to hear speeches given by members representing several colleges throughout the state.

Mrs. Jack deHart of Lynchburg, keynote speaker, stressed the responsibility of an individual in a democracy. Dr. Muncy from Sweet Briar College, explained the significance of an interdependent relationship between Western Europe and the United States and the problems created by the threatening pressure of Communism in Europe on the world common market, nuclear weapons manufacture, and the European opinion of our country.

W. T. GRANT CO.

Friday Nite 'Til 8:00

9:00 to 6:00 Daily

Fitting and proportioned
CORDUROY & CHINO CAPRIS...

• Petite 8-16
• Average 10-18
• Tall 12-20

2<sup>99</sup> pair

Corduroy cotton classic that belongs in every wardrobe, in washable black, loden green or brown. Or popular chino, Dan River Wrinkl-shed® combed cotton, wash'n wear, in black only. Made with matching belt and one pocket. Great value!

The look of an expensive knit
ORLON® CLASSIC CARDIGAN

• Colors that wash beautifully, dry fast
• Shoulders rack stitched... misses 34-40

Easy-care Orion® acrylic that looks like Shetland, never needs blocking. White, grey heather, black, camel, red, blue, green, dark brown. New big buttons.

3<sup>99</sup>

The American way... living in
WASH 'N WEAR SHIRTS

1<sup>99</sup> each

A. Dacron®-Cotton Classic, 65% polyester, 35% cotton. Roll-up sleeves. White, blue, beige, green or toast. Misses' 30-40.

B. Embroidery Motifs on Cotton. New designs in red, blue, green, beige or black on white blouse. Misses' 32-38.

C. Sanforized Oxford Cloth, barrel cuff, button-down collar. White, black, blue, rust, red cotton. Misses' 32 to 38.

D. Arnel® Triacetate and cotton, Johnny or Bermuda collar styles. Long sleeves, 2 way barrel cuffs. Sizes 32 to 38.

Washable abstract print
DESIGNER ACRYLIC

• Color-full and color-fast cardigan
• Artfully styled, newly exciting

Natural ground with three artist color combinations... camel/brown/loden; grey/black/blue; or red/grey/charcoal. Fine acrylic for easy care. Misses 34 to 40.

5<sup>99</sup>

W.T. GRANT CO.

Your Friendly Family Store

In The New Farmville Shopping Center

Read Opinions
Students Express
On Sergio
Column 5 This Page

See Changes
In Activities
Requirements
Page One Below

THE ROTUNDA

VOL. VLI

Longwood College, Farmville, Va., November 14, 1962

No. 7

Committee Names 19 To 'Who's Who Among Students'

Frye Lectures Here In Coming Assembly

Northrop Frye, famed Canadian critic-author and Professor of English Literature at Victoria College, Toronto, will be on the Longwood campus November 29. The topic of his talk will be "The Structure of Imagery in Modern Poetry with Particular Reference to Certain Poems of Eliot, Yeats, and Wallace Stevens."

Background Varied

Mr. Frye is a native of Sherbrooke, Quebec, Canada. After receiving his B. A. from Toronto in 1933, he attended Emmanuel College in Ontario and later received his M. A. from Oxford in 1940. Professor Frye joined the Victoria faculty in 1947. From 1950-51 he worked under a Guggenheim Memorial Foundation Fellowship, several of which are granted each year to scholars and artists who have demonstrated unusual ability for scholarship or the fine arts in order that they might continue with their work.

Perhaps best known as a critic, Mr. Frye is also the author of several books, "Anatomy of Criticism" and "A Study of Criticism" (Continued on page 3)

'Bud And Travis' To Play At LC Senior Weekend

By Joan Lord

From International Talent Associates, Inc. come Bud and Travis, the talented young entertainers who will perform during Senior Weekend, December 8. According to the nation's disk jockeys, Bud and Travis were "the most promising singing duo of last year." They record for Liberty Records, "Bon Soir Dame" and "Truly Do" being their first releases.

It is hard to fit these two young singers into any musical "niche" as they maintain such a free - swinging repertoire of songs. Bud and Travis both play guitars for accompaniment for their folk songs as well as for their successful instrumentals. Many of the songs on their programs are their own, as they have written over 400 original songs between them.

Lives in Virginia

Bud Dashiell is of American and English parents. Bud's mother was a member of the famed Folies Bergere and his father worked free lance for American periodicals as well as being a foreign correspondent. Although born in Paris, France, Bud grew up on a Virginia farm and enlisted in the Army when 18 years old.

Despite his 7 year beginning on an Army life, Bud decided on a career in advertising illustration when he enrolled in Los Angeles Art Center School. To support himself while in school, he used his guitar playing hobby by playing club dates.

Becomes Yacht

Travis Edmonson was born in Long Beach, California, and grew up in Nogales, Arizona. He was an anthropology major at the University of Arizona and as his thesis he undertook writing a dictionary of the Yaqui Indian language. Travis was made a member of the tribe and is the only white man to have been awarded this honor.

During his college years, Travis began playing the guitar and vocalizing, and upon graduation, he started performing in various clubs all over the United States. Travis also served in the Army where he was assigned to Special Services and flew to bases throughout the world to entertain troops. After serving his enlistment, he again took to the road, performing in such spots as the "Purple Onion" and the "Hungry I." For a short time he joined the Gateway Singers and recorded with them on the Decca label.

Team Up In '58

In 1958 Bud and Travis were both playing in San Francisco—Bud at the "Purple Onion" and Travis at the "Hungry I." Although they had met previously, it was not until then that they decided to team up. During their discussions of music they evolved a new approach to folk singing. Len Grant, their manager, calls it "using counter melodic movements against folk melodies."

As to their hobbies — both are interested in songwriting and both have written many folk songs. Travis is also interested in writing outside of the music field, mostly in the area of modern poetry.

WHO TAMETH WHOM?

"Kate, the Shrew" as played by Mary Lynn Lander, and Petruchio, played by John McNeill, rehearse scene from Players-Jongleurs production Of Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew."

'Taming Of The Shrew' To Premiere Tomorrow

The Longwood Players and Hampden-Sydney Jongleurs will present William Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew" starting tomorrow night and continuing through Saturday. The play, to be given in Jarman Auditorium, will begin each night at 8 p.m. The famous story deals with a father's not wanting his younger daughter to marry before the older one. Katherine, the older daughter and called Kate the Shrew, in appearance is not as beautiful as her sister Bianca. Woosers of Bianca, fearing that Kate will never wed, arrange an introduction of a certain Petruchio to Kate.

Petruchio is willing to marry anyone as long as money is a by-product. Since he wants to "tame it wealthy" he marries Kate.

The remainder of the production tells of his changing the shrew Kate into a tame and domestic Kate. The question asked is whether she still wins out, though by womanly ways instead of shrewish ways.

John McNeill will play the role of Petruchio and Katherine is being portrayed by Mary Lynn Lander. Other characters are Baptista, the father, played by Mike Couchman; Bianca, by Pat Newton; Vincentio by Bill McClarence; Gremio by Tom McDaniel; Hortensio, by Dave Relis; and Gremio by Ed Baker.

Characters Many Bill McGuire will portray Lucentio; Betty Ann Atkins, Bianca; Maria Konovloff, Curtis; Rosetta Burns, Widow; Dotie Cox, Tailor; and Karen Ruder, Habersasher.

Pages are Peggy Pond, Margaret Wright and Barbara Agee, playing Nathaniel, Gregory and Ruder, Habersasher.

An Intimate Shakespearean stage setting is being used for (Continued on page 3)

Book To Include Seniors Chosen For 1962 Issue

Nineteen seniors have been elected to be included in "Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities. Dean Moss announced yesterday in assembly the students to be included. They are, Annice Bailey, Pam Bullen, Jerri Clarke, Donna Frantzen, Beth Goodwyn, Cissie Griggs, Janice Harris, Sherrill Hudlow, and Peggy Hughes.

Sergio Creates Varied Opinions On Campus

By Nancy Mowrey

Lisa Sergio, Danforth lecturer and news analyst made a definite impression during her three-day stay on the Longwood campus.

The students' general reaction to Miss Sergio was one of amazement that a woman could speak with such enthusiasm and authority on a subject such as world affairs. Judy Hester, a freshman who heard Miss Sergio speak in a history class about the fall of the Roman Empire speaks for most of Longwood. Judy says, "I was very impressed by her, with what she knew, and the people with whom she had been personally acquainted. She knew something about every question that was asked." Her lectures in various classes tended to prove this: she spoke about everything from art to education.

Disagreement Silent

Her impressive ability as a lecturer was agreed to by everyone but a senior added, "She was very opinionated. You could agree or disagree with her. But if you disagreed, you disagreed silently." Miss Sergio's consistency was questioned by some perceptive thinkers. Scott MacGregor said, "Any (Continued on page 3)

Others named were Susan Lane, Sandra Phlegar, Mary Lou Plunkett, Louise Powell, Rebecca Roamy, Betty Stack, Barbara Stewart, Margaret Vaughan, and Alice White.

Students were selected from a quota based on enrollment of this college.

Annice Bailey, from Norfolk, is serving as president of the legislative branch of Student Government Pam Bullen, president of Kappa Delta, is from Charleston, S. C. Jerri Clarke is from Lawrenceville and an active member of the "Y" Council. Donna Frantzen, from Portsmouth, is president of Lychnos and head of the Honor Societies committee. Beth Goodwyn, from Chester, is vice-president of House Council. Cissie Griggs, editor of the Virginian, is from Danville. Janice Harris, also from Danville, is active in sorority and athletic activities. Sherrill Hudlow whose name was inadvertently omitted from the list read in assembly, is serving as president of Panhellenic Council and comes from Salem. Peggy Hughes who is from Roanoke, is president of House Council.

Susan Lane, active in the "Y" comes from Norfolk. Elaine Lohr, now president of the "Y," is from Ashland. Sandra Phlegar, of Lynchburg, is president of the judicial branch of Student Government. Mary Lou Plunkett, vice-president of the legislative branch, served as (Continued on page 3)

Committee Proposes Change Concerning Student Activities

Tomorrow, there will be a compulsory assembly presented by the Activities Committee. The purpose of the assembly will be to present to the student body the new regulations concerning student activities.

The rules, composed by the committee, are as follows:

1. No student may be a member of more than three college organizations. No student may be a member of more than one college organization without having a cumulative average of 1.0 (3.0 system) or 2.0 (4.0 system). Excluded from this rule are the automatic memberships in the Student Government Association, Y.W.C.A., Athletic Association, class, French club, Spanish club; also the chorus (when taken for credit), Granddaughters Club, Sectional clubs, Church groups, and Honor Societies.

Officers, members of councils, cabinets or committees, Student Government, Y.W.C.A., A.A., and church groups, must count membership in that specific group. This membership will count against the total of three college organizations allowed.

2. A student may hold office in a maximum of two organizations at any one time and may be the head of only one organization.

3. In order to be eligible for any of the following organizations, one must have a cumulative average of 1.5 (3.0 system) or 2.5 (4.0 system). The heads involved are:

- President of Legislative Body of Student Government Association
- Chairman of Judicial Body of Student Government Association
- President of Y.W.C.A.
- President of House Council
- President of Athletic Association
- Presidents of all classes (except freshmen because they are considered by the college to have an academic average of 2.0 (4.0 system))
- Editor of The Virginian
- Editor of The Colonade
- Editor of The Rotunda
- Any other officers, representatives, managers, committee chairmen, and committee members which come under the above organizations, except the class committees, must have a cumulative average of 1.2 (3.0 system) or 2.2 (4.0 system).

4. In order to be eligible for any of the following heads of organizations or activities, one must have a cumulative average of 1.3 (3.0 system) or 2.3 (4.0 system). The heads involved are, Presidents of:

- Alpha Kappa Gamma
- Alpha Psi Omega
- Phi Beta Lambda
- Chor
- Class Sororities
- Orchestra
- Pan-Hellenic Council
- H2O Club
- Longwood Players
- Monogram Club
- French Circle
- Spanish Club
- Granddaughters Club
- Sectional Clubs
- Church groups
- Honor Economics Club
- Chairman of the Longwood Forum
- Chairman of Major/Minor Elections
- Chairman of Circus
- Chairman of May Day
- Class Chairman (or Co-Chairman)

(Continued on page 3)

Comedy, Folk Singing Performers, Bud And Travis

Late 'Rush' Proposed

Informal rush began last Friday, and once again "Sorority" has been revived as a topic of conversation. But now the situation is hardly recognizable as the same as that of two months ago. It is not the same. Now rushees (and many pledges, too), can view the situation at hand with objective eyes. Impressions formed are now based on stronger ground, and emotion plays little part, since freshmen have become more adjusted.

Why could this mature, sane, approach not have prevailed during formal rush? The answer is simple—Time and Numbers. When rushees are given time to consider the many ramifications of the decisions they make, when they are given time to know the people with whom they are to be "congenial," then, and only then, can they honestly give their pledge to a group. The greater portion of girls to be involved in rush have already gone through, and during informals, a more leisurely pace is set—so that the term "rush" is hardly applicable.

A better method of handling sorority rush must be found. Panhellenic is contemplating a change and is considering many methods in order to select one which will suit the particular needs of this campus. One of these methods proposes the delay of rush until first semester of the sophomore year.

Under this system, much of the undue importance attributed to rush by unsuspecting freshmen would be eliminated. Without the crutch of emotional impact, the real worth and purposes of sororities will be challenged in offering something substantial to a more discerning rushee. Reluctance to meet this challenge will be an admission of the weaknesses of sororities.

Sophomore Production:

To Have Or Not To Have

Tonight at 7 p. m. there will be a meeting of the sophomore class to discuss the question of giving a Sophomore Production or not giving one.

Since the decision to be made may possibly set a precedent, and since the idea may never have occurred to many, our purpose here is to present the pros and cons so that serious consideration may be given of the issue and maximum attendance at the meeting be achieved. Whatever the outcome, those concerned must make an evaluation. If Production is found by the class to be worth while, then it should be more dear to its supporters for the evaluation. If not, an unhappy mistake has been avoided.

The issue arose out of the questioning by many sophomores of the worth of Production compared to the amount of work put into it. So the question is being brought before the class for discussion, as seldom happens with traditional class projects of this kind. Some of the pros and cons are as follows:

Pro: (1) Production is a means of making money. (2) It brings a class together in cooperative effort. (3) Both freshmen and sophomore productions last year were unusually successful. (4) It brings out leadership qualities which might go unnoticed in some people.

Con: (1) There are less time-consuming ways of making money. (2) Rarely does a majority of a class support Productions. (3) Much of the preparation would take place during exams. (4) Many of the same people carry the burden of work for all class projects.

There is, undoubtedly, much more to be said for both sides. Choose with your conscience. If Productions are here to stay, support what you say you will support.

The Rotunda

ESTABLISHED NOVEMBER 28, 1928

Published each week during the college year except during holidays and examination period by the students of Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia, Box 108.

Ann Goss Editor-in-Chief

Donna Humphlett Managing Editor Bobbi Mast Business Manager
Ann Carroll News Editor
Ginny Gilmore Feature Editor
Lefty Snyder Sports Editor
Lewen Stippes Desk Editor
Betty Taylor Art Editor
Florence Barnard, Linda Parke Photography
Ann Peters Circulation Manager
Mary Reynolds Advertising Manager

REPORTING STAFF: Barbara Agee, Theresa Albright, Leslie Aldridge, Susanne Ballard, Paula Blackstone, Margaret Cooke, Lee Criss, Dee Dee Dierich, Jane Eddy, Beverly Gooden, Judi Hackney, Judy Ivy, Sandra Jamison, Janet Lark, Susan Lane, Mary Ann Liptford, Joan Lord, Bonnie Mann, Charlotte McHugh, Cynthia Phillips, Barbara Poland, Karen Ruder, Marcia Steinfeld, Doris Smith, Lela Sullivan, Betty Taylor, Allison Taggart, Barbara Turner, Linda Turner, Pat Wallace, Dee Watkins, Annette Wenger.

CIRCULATION STAFF: Susanne Briel, Sandra Freedman, Cindy Gray, Cheramy Howe, Jackie Leath, Cabell Montgomery, Betty Lee Neal, Mary Lou Plunkett, Joyce Powell, Eleanor Richardson, Marian Ross, Gay Stump.

ADVERTISING STAFF: Mary Bradford, Diane Doherty, Betty P. Gainer, Judi Hackney, Doris Marshall, Sandra Parker, Faye Stone, Diane Walker.

PHOTOGRAPHY STAFF: Mary Evelyn Compton, Gray Gerhart, Dottie Marshall, Nancy Neuhoff.

BUSINESS STAFF: Leslie Aldridge, Olivia Gibson, Helen Weeks.

(Unassigned editorialists written by the editor)

Member: Virginia Intercollegiate Press (Rating First Class), Columbia Scholarship Press Association (Rating First Place), National College Press Society.

Entered as second class matter at the Post Office at Farmville, Virginia, under the Act of Congress on March 3, 1921. Registered for national advertising by the National Advertising Service. Printed by the Farmville Herald.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS BY BAKER

Typical Student Types Ready For 9-Week Jobs

By Maria Grant

I am going to be a student teacher. These are my friends. They are also going to be student teachers. We are scared. Well, almost all of us. Say hello, friends.

"Hi."

The most common question asked is, "What do you think about student teaching?" The most common answer is, "Yikes!"

Would you like to know how my friends feel about the situation? Well, all right.

Types Vary

This is Polly Petrified. She is petrified she is not sure who is going to be teaching whom. Then there are the spitballs. In a fit of sudden intellectualism, she speaks in Latin. "Oh, no, I will reach a new realm! I am going to be hard. I will not be spastic."

Here is Sally Scared. She is afraid of the big high school creatures, but at least she will be on the other side of the desk from now on, and she can give out exams instead of taking them. This is her consolation.

Teaches Bridge

Oh, meet Freida Fun. She will enjoy fixing bulletin boards. This makes up for the afternoon nap she can no longer take, and the automobiles with whom she can no longer cut up. Also she will teach the children to play bridge. This stimulates their minds and it is also the only thing she can do well. She will let the children teach her.

Say something, Freida.

"I hope it snows. Then I will close the school. Then I can wear my brown and white Spalding snowshoes. I wonder how they will go with hose."

Here is Nelda Nervous. She must face the cold, cruel world. But she has one consolation also. She will be independent.

Wanda Worry is packing her suitcase, but she is worried. She will have to walk three blocks for her meals. Perhaps she will starve. She must wear heels to class. But she does not like heels. Also she wonders where she will sleep. Maybe they don't have enough room there. Then there is the problem of having to teach things she has never had before. And what will she do with the naughty children? And the advanced children? And the slow children? She hopes they will not send her to Cuba, since she speaks Spanish.

Dora Depressed is sad because she must leave Longwood. She is happy to be on her own, but she must leave Longwood.

Some "Prepared"

Before you go, come and meet Penny Prepared. She is very smart. If the little boy in the back of the room begins to eat his lunch in class, she will go and get the lunch and eat it herself. And she is ready for Wesley. He is the ring leader. He is also a smart aleck. He is the type who thinks he knows every thing, but really doesn't. He causes a general disturbance.

(Continued on page 4)

Instructor Williams Joins Math Faculty

By Judy Woodyard

Mr. Dennis Williams, the new Instructor in Longwood's Math Department this year, is a North Carolinian and a graduate of North Carolina State College. He received his B.S. and his M.A. degrees from East Carolina and also served one year as a graduate assistant there.

Teaches at Guilford

During the past season, he was a member of the Greensboro Division of Guilford College, which is the oldest co-ed college in the South. It is a church college, supported by the Quakers or the Society of Friends.

Graduate Work Planned

Although he has no definite choice as to where he will continue his graduate work, Mr. Williams plans to go on with his study and to remain in the profession as a college teacher. He has "always wanted to teach," and feels that even though the temptations of higher salaries for mathematicians in other fields are great, he will stay with teaching.

Mr. Williams likes Longwood very much; he finds the faculty "interesting, friendly" and the students "friendly." He has no qualms about teaching in an all girls' school and says that if he had to choose between teaching in an all girls' or all boys' school, he would certainly like the former much better.

Impressed With 'Spirit'

After attending one of the assemblies, he was "very impressed with the spirit of the girls at Longwood." He feels that a small college helps to promote this spirit as it is much easier to get to know people. He believes, however, that he could not compare small colleges to larger ones, for both have advantages and disadvantages that cannot be weighed in terms of equality.

Collects Coins

When asked if he felt that boys are more mathematically inclined than girls, Mr. Williams replied that he felt this to be untrue, and that the probable reason for a greater number of men in the field of mathematics is more likely due to interest rather than mental ability.

Varied Interests

Mr. Williams' "interests" range from classical and semi-classical music to jaunts to Richmond. He finds Farmville "dull," but added that "a little dullness can be a relief sometimes." However, the Longwood Artist Series, which he termed "very good," provides interesting and worthwhile entertainment.

Since he has been here, Mr. Williams has had no exciting experiences "like going down the wrong hall or anything." He enjoys teaching all his classes, and after breakfasting with Miss Ross in the Tea Room, he has taken an interest in coin collecting and is at present persuing old pennies.

DOES  $x^2 + 5x + 4$  REALLY = 0?

Math professor Williams is caught by Rotunda photographer as he prepares a test for one of his classes.

Distillation

By Donna Humphlett

Three blind mice. Or eleven hundred blind mice. None of them can see.

What's there to see? A few acres of land surrounded by a small town, that's all.

And?

You trying to tell me something?

Maybe I'm trying to hear myself say it. Maybe I want to prove I can say it. What's there to see?

You tell me.

A college campus. You're standing on it.

So what?

On it. For it. There's a difference.

What's the it?

It's sort of hard to say. You know how to read. When did you learn to read?

When I was six.

When are your children going to learn to read?

At the age of six, I hope.

Provided . . .

Provided they have enough sense to learn to read.

Provided . . .

have the bell tower — and we can cleverly sneak up and paint that.

No, we don't think you're childish and immature. We join you in placing that bell tower high above the towers of knowledge. That multi-colored bell represents one of Longwood's traditions, and for goodness' sake, let's don't change a thing. After all, it's ALWAYS been this way!

Two Juniors

Around The Campi

See the Student teachers?

See their funny faces?

They have been teaching for two whole days!

See their funny faces?

The student teachers look scared,

Why do student teachers have funny faces?

Will the real Wheeler phantom elevator operator, door opener, and night walker please stand up?

About the Freshman in Student who uses nose spray on her face.

The only thing that draws a bigger crowd than "mail on the hall" is "male on the hall".

Thought for the week: Only 36 more shopping days until Christmas!

Familiar cry around Jarman — Arg-g-g-g-g-g! Everybody croud — here comes another gel down from the ceiling!

Congratulations, Seniors, on your fine show of College Spirit in winning the AA Song Contest.

Red 'N' Whites Lead In Hockey Competition

The sister class games led the rivalry for the traditional class games here on November 1. The Sophomores and the Juniors were the winning teams as they defeated the seniors, 1-0, and the Freshmen, 2-0, respectively. Those who received the required number of practices and participated on the Senior teams were: Laurie Hamlet, Donna Prantzen, Cindy Gay, Betty Stack, Ann Agee, Dona Scarborough, Susan Udo, Sandra Freedman, Jay Moore, Anne Greene, Cissie Griggs, and Judi Pradel.

Junior Team

Those on the junior team were: Merv Thomas, Marian Russ, Sandy Waugh, Doris Harrison, Norma Eady, Jane Carol Maddox, Shirley Metcalf, "Butch" McDaniel, Rena Weld, Lois Obenshain, Lynne Osteen, Joan Perry, and Brenda Ibel. Those Sophomores who participated were: Henrietta Gilliam, Susan Hawk, Leslie Burris, Barbara Fletcher, Leslie Gilchrist, Joanne Otto, Carolyn Hargrave, Jackie Walker, Judy Sealy, Lynn Guerin, Rusty Stephenson, Betty Wright, Donna Grant, Sarah Jane Lynch, Corrie Birch, Jane Wilson, Marcia Hynes, Jean Harrell and Martha Garrett.

Freshmen Many

Playing on the Freshman team were: Helena Hall, Anna Garta, Harriet Anderson, Carol Holmberg, Ginny Turner, Karen Ruden, Norma Davis, Bobbie Allen, Linda Huffman, Sherrie Wellton, Eliza Cobbs, Claudia Storninger, Philip Lasley, Bess Mann, Lori Erickson, Frances Heath, Jayne Eddy, Judy Squires, Lee Criss, and Pat Dugger.

Brenda Ibel and Sarah Jane Lynch are the managers of the class hockey teams.

The class hockey games continued last week, as the Seniors pitted their skill against the Freshmen on Tuesday, and the Juniors on Wednesday. In the Senior-Fresh game, the Class of '66 proved to be the victors leaving the Seniors with a 2-0 loss; however, the aging Seniors put up a good fight, playing with only ten players and with many saves by goalkeeper, Cissie Griggs.

The Juniors dribbled away with Wednesday's game, scoring five goals to the Senior's tally of several attempts, but no goals scored.

Banners Hang As Color Rush Results In Tie

The finals for Color Rush were up on November 6. Twelve runners participated in the event. Merv Thomas, Bess Mann and Eliza Cobbs were the Red and White runners. Janice Harris, Sandra Phlegar, and Anne Greene equalized the feat for the Green and Whites.

Bess Mann, Merv Thomas and Eliza Cobbs outran Nancy Via, Sarah Jane Lynch, and Jackie Walker, making Student Building, Wheeler, and North Cunningham, respectively, Red and White. Janice Harris, Sandra Phlegar, and Anne Greene defeated Patti O'Neill, Barbara Ragland, and Eliza Cobbs, capturing the honors for South Cunningham, Main Cunningham, and the Rotunda.

The six winners displayed their banners in front of their respective dormitories.

Sergio Creates Varied Opinions On Campus

(Continued from page 1)

Student who took Miss Sergio's view as law only because of her background, without being honestly critical is falling into the trap of poor thinking that she herself warned us against. Scott, in a discussion with June Costello and Mary Reynolds brought out the fact that some of Miss Sergio's statements were erroneous. She used as an example the lecturer's statement that long fiber cotton grows only in Egypt as being inconsistent with her current studies in American history. It was also brought out that Miss Sergio, in taking a situation out of the context, tended to create misconceptions. Dr. Sneller questioned Miss Sergio's facts and inferences in saying that the "free world" has lost the Middle East because Senator George of Georgia would not vote if it were put to him to appropriate $90 million to make surveys in Egypt for the Aswan Dam. Dr. Gibb commented, "She is a fraud." Mary Reynolds said, "She stressed the 'vital role' that the United Nations played in the Cuban crisis; however, she never defined this role. I question that the role it played was vital at all."

Costello Speaks

"Miss Sergio stated that Americans ask, 'What can my country do for me?' Instead of 'What can I do for my country?' I do not believe that this is the American feeling. The work of the Peace Corps is one example that shows quite plainly that Americans are interested and quite willing to work for their country," stated June Costello. A discussion among freshmen revealed that they did not agree with Miss Sergio's insistence that one should give to one's country and expect nothing in return. Nancy (Moe) Morefield, looking backward into American history said, "If we hadn't expected something from the government, we wouldn't have seen a free nation." To illustrate, she recalled that our Constitution was drawn up because there was a demand for something from the government which it was not providing under the Articles of Confederation.

Green Wins

The Green 'N' Whites clinched the class tennis competition, collecting five points towards winning the color cup. In the final match of the tournament, Sophomore Henrietta Gilliam defeated Lois Obenshain.

Rrye Suggests Reference List For Coming Talk

(Continued from page 1)

of William Blake" are among his well-known works.

Lecture References

In his lecture, Northrop Frye is likely to refer to some of the following works by Eliot, Yeats, and Stevens. For this reason, these are listed below for student reference:

ELIOT: "The Waste Land," "Quarrels," and "Marina." YEATS: "Vaccillation," "Dialogue of Self and Soul," "Among School Children," "Leda and the Swan," "The Two Trees," "Sailing to Byzantium," "The Tower," "Phases of the Moon," and "Ego Dominus Tuus." STEVENS: "Poker Game at the Casino," "The Idea of Order at Key West," "Mrs. Alfred Urquhart," "Asides on the Oboe," "The Motive for Metaphor," "The Pure Good of Poetry," "Description Without Place."

Curtain Rises On Fall Play In Jarman

(Continued from page 1)

the play. Action will be on the apron and forestage as well as on different levels of platforms and arches on the stage. Mr. David Wiley, director, is stressing the educational advantages of giving a Shakespearean play by using such a setting.

Subplot Omitted

The only major change in this presentation and Shakespeare's original play is the omission of the subplot. In this version, the wooing of Katherine's sister Bianca is not being presented.

Backstage workers for the production are Barbara Gray Martin, technical director; Sandy Waugh and Natalie Miller, scenery chairmen; Barbara Fletcher, costumes; Pat O'Neil, propmaster; Barbara Phillips, sound; Elaine Bane, publicity; and Rusty Stevenson, lights. Light designer is Barbara Stewart.

Pat Spies is stage manager and Scott McGregor is in charge of the House and Box Office committee. Assistant director is Jean Lowrey.

"domestic tranquility."

Miller Has Views

Madeline Miller, contributing to the discussion said, "You give to the government by supporting and participating in it; thus you become a part of it. Therefore, the government is us, existing for us."

Miss Sergio expressed conviction that the United States' problems of integration are a little which is held against us by the uncommitted, non-white nations, and used against us by the communists. J. M. Butler, a junior disagreed, saying that our regional problems are exaggerated by the Communists and are of no real significance to the U. S.'s world leadership. Her solution to the problem of such propaganda is to abolish communist affiliated organizations.

John B. Mary Francis Hall, a freshman, questioned Miss Sergio's understanding of the problems Southerners face in integration. Mary Bradford, another member of the freshmen class, agrees with the lectures questioned, "If we can't live up to our doctrines with our own people, how can we expect other peoples to have any faith in our ideals?"

Miss Sergio acknowledged her purpose only if every student at Longwood College said, "She may possibly be wrong in some points . . ." for only then has she stimulated critical thinking.

H2O Club Chairman Select Committees For Annual Pageant

POKER OR BRIDGE?

AA Council members enjoy annual picnic and cabin party at Longwood Estate, accompanied by Miss Rebecca Brockenbrough, Council advisor, and other members of physical education department.

Sports Review

Football Teams Vie For Honors In Weekend Conference Games

In the football spotlight, Maryland and Duke, the two top teams in the Atlantic Coast Conference, met Saturday, November 10, at Durham. This game determined the ACC title race. Duke's Blue Devils have won this contest for the past two years. Maryland's Terps (5-2, 4-0), were predicted to defeat the Blue Devils (5-2, 3-0). Duke won with a score of 10-7.

The University of Virginia's Cavaliers (4-2, 1-1) met the Tarheels of the University of North Carolina (2-5, 2-3) at Charlottesville. The Cavaliers are having their first winning season since 1952 and they hoped to trounce U.N.C. This game was a part of Commonwealth Day. North Carolina won over Virginia, 10 to 7.

Elsewhere around the state, William and Mary (3-1, 3-2) met George Washington (3-5, 1-4) at Williamsburg. Southern Conference action pitted the University of Richmond (4-3, 1-2) against Davidson (3-4, 1, 0-3-1) at Blacksburg. VPI (4) was a slight favorite in their game with Wake Forest (0-7) VMI (5-6) went to Worcester, Massachusetts, to meet Holy Cross.

Small college action saw Washington ½ Lee (6-1) play host to Sewanee (4-1-1). The College Athletic Conference championship hangs on this game. Hampden-Sydney (4) met Center College (0-5-1) at Danville.

College Edition Of 'Who's Who' Honors Seniors

(Continued from page 1)

chairman of orientation this fall. She is from Lynchburg.

Louise Powell, of Newport News, served as editor of the college handbook. Rebecca Reamy, from Ashland, has been active in activities of her class and the "Y." Betty Slack is now serving as vice-president of the judicial branch of Government. She is from New York. Barbara Stewart is president of the Athletic Association and comes from Roanoke. Margaret Vaughan is president of Alpha Kappa Gamma and is from Ashland. Alice White, from Suffolk, is serving as president of the senior class.

See The New Selection of

Pajamas & Robes 3.66 up

At The

DOROTHY MAY

SHOP

The annual Christmas water pageant will be presented on the nights of December 6 and 7, from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Admission will be fifty cents and everyone is urged to attend. The theme, which is new and different from past years, will not be revealed until the next issue of the Rotunda.

Co-chairmen are Carol Nye, and Chris Longstreet. The girls who are leaching and writing the various numbers are Peg Waldo, Dudley Brooks, Shirley Metcalf, Sharon Sarver, Diane Turner, Dona Scarborough, Geri Gerhardt, and Lee Criss. Others are working on the many committees of which the heads are Brenda Ibel and Butch McDaniel, Music; Sharon Sarver, Ushers; Lefty Snyder, Publicity; Barbara Stewart, Lights; Lois Obenshain, Cape; Shirley Metcalf, Costumes; Peg Waldo, Make-up; and Ann Downey, Party. Sponsoring the pageant is Miss Barbara Smith from the Physical Education Department.

CAROL NYE

Newman Club Holds Banquet, Hears Publisher

Two Newman Club members, Ginny Burn and Amy Haley, attended a Catholic Book Club banquet in Richmond, November 7, with Father Patterson, one of the club's sponsors.

The speaker after the banquet was Frank J. Sheed, one of the outstanding lay Catholic theologians in the country, who spoke on "Reading and Sanity." Mr. Sheed established the London publishing house of Sheed and Ward and is the author of several books: "A Map of Life," "Theology for Beginners," and "Theology and Sanity."

In the speech he pointed out that reading is "feeding your mind on a mind richer than your own."

CHRIS LONGSTREET

SOUTHSIDE SUNDRY

3 Rolls Black and White.

FILM

For

89c

For Your Christmas Gifts,

Order Books, and Have

Them Gift Wrapped

At Your

COLLEGE BOOKSTORE

Select Your Christmas

Gift Now!

Christmas

Books ..... 50c - $1.50

Catherine Marshall's

Books ..... $3.95

The New English

Bible ..... $4.95

Cookbooks — All Prices

Historical Collections

Inspirational Books

Best Sellers

WEYANCO BOOK

SHOP

200 High Street

HOLLYWOOD

BEAUTY COLLEGE

102 N. Main St.

Phone EX 2-9019

Consult us for your

Shampoo & Set $1.25

Cuts & Haircuts .... $1.00

Permanent Wave .. $5.00

Tipping & Frosting

$5.00 & Set

As we are eager to please

YOU.

Board Presents Activities Rules To Student Body

(Continued from page 1)

men) of Circus

Class Chairman (or Co-Chairmen) of Freshman and Sophomore Productions

Class Chairman (or Co-Chairmen) of Junior and Senior Dances

Any other officers, chairmen of committees, and committee members which come under the above organizations or activities must have a cumulative average of 1.1 (3.0 system) or 2.1 (4.0 system).

All grade averages mentioned above must be maintained throughout the term of office.

The Activities Committee will handle any questions pertaining to the preceding regulations concerning student activities.

Anyone being considered for any of the above positions must be checked through the Activities Committee which concerns grade requirements only.

It is the responsibility of all heads of organizations to submit a list of their officers, standing committees (chairmen and members, and members to the Activities Committee within one week of their election or appointment.

Those organizations whose academic requirements are above those set up by this committee are excluded from these scholastic regulations.

The Activities Committee, headed by Lois Obenshain, is made up of representatives of all the classes. Beth Goodwyn is the senior representative; Anne Downey, junior representative; and Melody Saunders, sophomore representative. The freshman representative has not yet been elected.

Sorority Women State Opinions Of Early Rush

Informal rush is now underway at Longwood. It began November 9 and will last until November 19. Every sorority except Alpha Sigma Alpha and Alpha Gamma Delta will take part. There will be no formal or invitational rush parties; however the individual sororities may have parties for the rush-ees. Each sorority has a three day cover period which they pick any time during the ten days. The three days start when the sororities turn in the names of the girls they wish to bid.

System Changed

The rush system was changed in the fall of 1961 when formal rush was carried on in the fall instead of second semester. Several sorority girls have been polled for their opinions on which system they prefer or if they have a new suggestion to make. The opinions are as follows:

Carol Nye - Carol thinks that it puts too much of a rush on both the freshmen and the sorority girls. She would like to see rush carried on between Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Harriet Hunt - Harriet is opposed to second semester rush. She likes the new system better but would like to see an even newer system started. She thinks that it would be good to get all rushing done before classes start by having all sorority girls and interested freshmen come back to school one or two weeks before classes start, and to devote this time to rush. If this system cannot be carried out Harriet would like to see early rush take place between Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Sally Shims - Sally likes the new system better than any other but would like one small change. She would like to take place between Circus week and Thanksgiving because both the freshmen and the sorority girls are too rushed during the first two weeks of school.

Evelyn Gray - Evelyn dislikes early rush. She would like to have the girls wait and pledge at the beginning of the sophomore year. All interested sophomores would return to school during orientation week and pledging would take place before classes begin. She feels that in this way the girls would have a year to get to know each other and it would allow both sides to choose wisely.

Barbara Gray Martin - Barbara Gray likes the present system except for one thing. She would like the rushing to be changed to just before Thanksgiving. This will do away with so much rushing because orientation and Circus and other activities are all taking place at the same time. Her next choice would be to have the girls come to school a week early for rush.

Betty Stack - Betty likes the new system. She feels that the sororities can concentrate a semester's work of sometimes piddling around into three weeks. This of course means that the sorority must be prepared by making plans before rush starts. She feels that it is easier for the freshmen to settle down after early rush and that the sorority girls can help the pledges make their grades.

Carole Muntz - Carole feels that the new system is good for upper classmen, but it is not always good for the freshmen. She thinks that the freshmen should wait until second semester because there is not enough time for the girls to get to know each other.

Marty Wyatt - Marty says that she doesn't like February rush. She likes the new system with an additional week on it as last year.

Janice Harris - Janice dislikes the new system in both the sorority girls and the freshmen. She feels that it is hard to tell if the right choices are always made when there are only two weeks of rush. She does not feel that the old system is the best choice either. She would like for rush to take place between Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Virginia Summers - "I can see certain advantages in early rush, but I personally prefer the old way - waiting until second semester to pledge. There's just too much going on at the beginning of the school year. With orientation, the nervousness of everything and getting adjusted as well as ridding, I don't think a girl can really think clearly and seriously about what she should do. In addition, with all these other activities and pressures, it's hard to really get to know a person or a group in less than a month's time. In February things have quieted down new students don't feel quite so "new" and they know whether they can do the school work and make their grades, and everybody knows everybody else and each has seen the other in different situations... then is the time for sorority pledging, I think."

Judy Tytus - Judy likes the new system better than the old because she feels that rush for a whole semester takes too much time away from studies. It causes a bigger strain on both the freshmen and the sorority girls and often the freshmen don't make their grades because they are too busy rushed. By pledging early she feels that the sorority girls can work with the pledges and help them make their grades, and they can also be careful not to give them too many extra curricular activities.

Judy also has a new idea in mind which is to do away with all visiting and pre formal rush parties. There would be no contact between sorority women and freshmen before formal rush parties on a sorority basis. All interested freshmen would go through two formal parties and the sororities would then invite girls back to additional parties as is presently carried on.

Lynne Osborn - Lynne thinks that early rush is easier for both the freshmen and the sorority girls because it doesn't drag out over a whole semester; however, she feels that second semester rush insures better choices for both sides because they have a semester to be sure of their decision.

Student Teachers Face Many Types

(Continued from page 2)

But she has been plotting so perhaps Wesley will not be the ringleader for long.

Did you like my friends? I hope so. I'll bet you would like to know how I feel about the situation (student teaching, that is). Well, I lied. I'm not going to be a student teacher at all. Thank goodness. Good luck, girls.

This has been a true story. Only the names were changed to protect the guilty.

LONGWOOD JEWELERS
216 N. Main
Longwood Jewellery

30% Off
All Charms
50% Off
During Our Storewide Sale

Come In And See The Longwood Charms
at
MARTIN THE JEWELER

GOING SOMEWHERE?

Much activity prevailed around South Cunningham as student teachers packed for Roanoke, Danville, and Richmond and returning seniors unpacked.

Council Studies Operating Costs Of College, Makes Comparisons

Dr. James W. Bailey and Mr. John Green, two members of the State Council of Higher Education visited Longwood November 9.

This Council, which makes recommendations to the General Assembly for appropriations of funds has been directed by the state legislature to conduct a thorough and complete study of the costs of operating the state colleges. Since state assistance is based only upon educational needs, the costs per student for operating auxiliary enterprises such as the laundry, infirmary, etc., must be determined.

Committee Comparisons
The Council is working with a committee made up of representatives of all the colleges to find some basis of comparison among them. This comparison will be based on comparable per-student costs. Longwood will participate in a pilot study which will determine the simplest method of deciding individual tuition.

Courses Studied
The Council is interested in how the business accounts are kept, how the administration is organized, how students are selected, and how the college is progressing. Another interest of the Council is to initiate a study of the courses offered in various colleges and the response of these courses. It will strive to offer means of increasing the number of preparatory teachers in state-supported colleges.

Northern Neckers Act As Hostesses High School Day

High School Day will be held November 17, at Longwood. On this day high school students who are interested in attending this college will be given the opportunity to visit the campus. The members of the Northern Neck Club will serve as hostesses.

The visiting students will be registered in the Rotunda from 9 a.m.-12 noon. After registering, they may attend classes if they wish. For lunch, there will be a picnic lunch in the Main Rec. From 1 p.m. to 2 p.m., the students will meet with the Administrators in the Small Auditorium. Tours of the campus will meet in the Rotunda and be conducted during the afternoon.

Approximately sixty students, representing more than 25 school plan to attend.

State Theatre FARMVILLE, VA.

ENDS TUES. - NOV. 13

Month of Music! THE MUSIC MAN
"THE MUSIC MAN" HAS NEVER BEEN HATED!
"THE MUSIC MAN" HAS NEVER BEEN HATED!
"THE MUSIC MAN" HAS NEVER BEEN HATED!

WEDNESDAY - NOV. 14

Jeanette MacDonald NELSON EDDY
"MAYTIME"
NOVEMBER 15 - 18

Elvis Presley "KID GALAHAD"
COLOR
MON.-TUES.-NOV. 19-20

La Belle Americaine
THEATRE

Stipends Aid Faculty In Individual Studies

Upon questioning ten students about faculty research on our campus, and receiving ten vague answers, we can conclude that we as a student body are not very well versed on our faculty's activities. The faculty research program began here in 1959 to stimulate and encourage research among the faculty in discovering something new and good for teaching. The general problems were drawn up and a questionnaire sent to the faculty members; the results reported the lack of time and money as hindering their interest. Last year, Dr. Landford secured partial grants from the University Center in Richmond. By this agreement the college pays two-thirds of the grant and they provide the remaining one-third.

Schlegel Chairman

This year, Dr. Marvin W. Schlegel is acting as chairman of the committee on faculty research, with a committee as follows: Dr. Carolyn Wells, Dr. M. C. Neveu, and Mrs. Anita Er-nouf.

Six members of our faculty are involved in this program at present. They are as follows: Dr. Dorothy Schlegel studying Diderot, the Transmitter of Shaftesbury's Romanticism, Dr. Mary Joanne Curran studying the translation, Danish-English

"The Organ; Its Tonal Design Architecturally and Historically," Dr. V. Berdis studying microfilms on the "Archives at Goettingen" and working on the "History of the Duchy of Courland," Dr. M. C. Neveu studying "A Polarimetric Determination of Reaction Rates," Dr. John W. Molnar studying Art Music in Colonial Virginia and the Colonial South and Mr. Ivan Olson studying The Shape Note Heritage in Rural Virginia.

Service Offers Employment In Europe

The American Student Information Service, an organization placing American college students in summer jobs in Europe on a large scale, is celebrating its sixth anniversary by offering travel grants and cash scholarships from $10 to $175 to the first 1,000 students applying for summer jobs in Europe.

Summer jobs in Europe include factory work, resort-hotel work, farm work, construction work, office work, hospital work, child care and camp counseling positions. Three thousand jobs are available throughout Europe and wages range from $175 a month for the highest paying positions in Germany to only room and board in Spain. The jobs are offered in conjunction with package arrangements costing from $150 to $750. Among other things, each applicant is provided with an album of language records of the country in which he will be working, a student pass allowing the bearer discounts throughout Europe, complete health and accident insurance coverage and a choice of tours ranging from 6 to 24 days.

Although ASIS offers complete arrangements with a round-trip scheduled jet flight, students are free to make their own travel arrangements. ASIS expects that many students participating in college charter flights will also want summer jobs in Europe.

For a complete 30 page prospectus and a European job application, contact either the Director of the Student Union, the Placement Officer, or write directly to ASIS, 22 Avenue de la Liberte, Luxembourg City, Grand Duchy of Luxembourg. Enclose 20 cents for air mail reply.

COPYRIGHT © 1961, THE COCA-COLA COMPANY. COCA-COLA AND COKE ARE REGISTERED TRADEMARKS

GREAT BETWEEN COURSES!

Get that refreshing new feeling with Coke!

Bottled under authority of The Coca-Cola Company by BOTTLER'S NAME HERE

LYNCHBURG BOTTLING WORKS, Lynchburg, Va.

THE ROTUNDA

VOL. VLI.

Longwood College, Farmville, Va., December 5, 1962

No. 8

College Faculty Receive Grants

By Judi Hackney
Six members of our faculty are being sponsored by the Committee on Faculty Research at Longwood. They are each doing research work in their own fields.

The grants are provided by the college and the University Center in Richmond. These six awards are the first to be made by this committee which was established last year. The committee resulted from the discovery that lack of time and money hindered faculty research. Its members are: Dr. Marvin W. Schlegel, chairman, Dr. M. C. Neveu, Mrs. Anita Hinnott, Miss Mary Lewis Allen, and Dr. Suzanne Barnett.

Six Receive Grants
The aided researchers are Dr. Alexander V. Berkis, Dr. Joanne Curmatt, Dr. Maurice Neveu, Dr. John W. Molnar, Mr. Ivan W. Olson, and Dr. Dorothy B. Schlegel.

Dr. Berkis, who is an Associate Professor of History, will continue his work into the history of the Duchy of Courland, or Latvia. For this he has purchased microfilms of the Koenigsberg Archives, now at Goettingen, Germany. He plans to show how "The Duchy of Courland played an historical role and exerted influence far beyond her boundaries."

Translates Danish Book
Dr. Curmatt will use her assistance to further her work on the translation from Danish to English of the book, "The Organ: Its Tonal Design, Architecture, and History" by Paul Gerhardt. Dr. Curmatt, who is an Assistant Professor of Music, feels that the music world needs such a translation, as nothing of this kind now exists in the English language. She is also working with the ideas of Alexander Sjoefregren's "Piano Techniques" is the condensed text for possible publication in a paperback form.

(Continued on page 3)

Assembly Speaker

Youghill Kank, world famous author, lecturer, and scholar will speak Thursday at 1 p. m. in Jarmar. The lecture is on the Psychology of East and West. Mr. Kank has an extensive background in Oriental and occidental fields of study.

Choir Presents Christmas Concert

The Annual Christmas Concert will be presented by the Music Department on Sunday afternoon, December 9, at 3:30 p. m., in Jarmar Hall. The groups to participate are the Concert Choir, conducted by Dr. John W. Molnar, the Madrigal Singers, under the direction of Mr. James McCombs, and the Chorus, conducted by Miss Patricia Reilly. Several organ pupils of Dr. Joanne Curmatt will play a group of selections as a prologue.

Concert "Different"
The concert will be presented in a form different from any done before at Longwood. The performance will follow the traditional pattern of the Ceremony of Lessons and Carols as it is presented at King's College Chapel, Cambridge University, England. Following a procession of all the singers, passages from the Bible will be read, interspersed with selections by the performing groups. The order of the readers is: a member of the choir; an undergraduate of the College; an alumna; a scholar in the Humanities; a Scholar in the Sciences; a Scholar in the Arts; the Dean of Women; the Dean of the College, and the President of the College. The concert closes with a recessional and a final number sung from the rear of the auditorium.

Seniors Sponsor Dance, Concert; Bud And Travis, Divots Perform

New to the Longwood campus is the idea of Senior weekend which will be Saturday, December 8. Instead of the usual annual formal Christmas dance, this year's senior class, headed by dance co-chairmen Dot Frez and Cindy Gay, is sponsoring a concert Saturday afternoon and a combo dance that evening. As Dot emphasized, "Both activities are informal and open to everyone."

Bud And Travis To Perform
Featuring Bud and Travis, the concert will be held in Jarman auditorium from 2 to 4. Bud and Travis, a relatively new duo, are folk singers who are extremely popular on the West Coast. They record for Liberty records and have appeared in such places as the "Purple Onion," "Hungry 13" nightclubs in San Francisco, and on the Jack Paar show. This is their first eastern tour, and during this tour they will be featured on the Ed Sullivan program. According to a consensus of the nation's disk jockeys last year, Bud and Travis are expected to be the year's most promising singing duo.

"Divots" To Play For Dance
The Divots, an eight piece combo from Roanoke, will play for the dance Saturday night from 8 to 12. Already known to many of the students, the Divots have played for various parties in Roanoke and for dances on the Longwood campus in previous years. A new singer has been added since the Divots' last appearance here, and their spokesman, Bobby Hess, states that "the program is better than ever."

This weekend will be a change from previous years, and the seniors hope for the support of everyone in attendance of both the concert and the dance. Dot and Cindy stated, "This type of weekend is thought by many students to be more popular than the formal dance, but it must be well supported before it can be considered as a project for future years."

Prices for the concert are $3.00 per couple, $1 for Longwood students and $2 for all others. The tickets for the combo dance are $2 per couple. Tickets will be on sale after supper each evening and everyone is encouraged to buy tickets in advance.

Chairmen Dot Frez (left) and Cindy Gay (right) make plans for informal Senior Dance, Saturday from 8-12. The event will feature "The Divots" combo of Roanoke.

Lankford Tells Of Pakistan In Letter

"Pakistan represents United States arms aid to India," says Dr. Francis Lankford in a letter to Jean Lowery. He went on to say that Pakistan doesn't trust the leaders of India because they fear that India is acquiring arms which ultimately will be used against Pakistan. He continued by saying that while the Pakistanis generally supported President Kennedy's Cuban move, they were unhappy at the request of President Kennedy and Prime Minister Macmillan for Pakistan not to press the Kashmir issue.

Dr. Lankford included in the letter clippings from several Pakistani newspapers. The letter and the clippings are on a bulletin board on the ground floor of the library. Dr. Lankford is to continue sending reports which will be posted on the board.

New Cook Book Includes Recipes Of Graduates

Dr. Ruth Gleaves' Blue and White Cook Book, including the cherished recipes of many Longwood graduates, is now on sale. The cook book is sold for $2.00, (mailed for $2.25) and may be purchased in the Tea Room, college book store, and in the Alumnae House from 9-12 a. m.

Bishop Illustrates
Dr. Gleaves, who compiled the book, is a former Dean of Women at Longwood. An alumna of the college, Barbara Bishop, did the illustrations. The Blue and White Cook Book is beautifully bound, making an excellent Christmas gift for a Longwood student or alumna.

AKG Sponsors Annual Contest

It has been a tradition for many years at Longwood to decorate doors and halls of the dormitory during the college Christmas season with some type of scene representing the Christmas spirit.

Again this year, Alpha Kappa Gamma will sponsor the "Door and Hall Decoration Contest." Prizes will be awarded in Ruffner Student and Tabitha Cunningham and Wheeler for the most unique commercial doors and the prettiest religious theme doors. A prize will also be given for the best hall decorations in all dormitories.

The doors and hall will be judged by students and faculty on neatness, design, artistic quality, and originality. In order for a door to be eligible in the contest, decorations must not scar or deface any school property and materials should be used for the decoration must not cost over $12.5. If greenery is used, it must be fire-proofed. Winners of the AKG Door and Hall Decoration Contest will be announced at the Christmas banquet. The faculty will be invited to tour the doors to see the decorations.

President Wygal Attends Texas Meet

Mr. Fred O. Wygal, Longwood's acting president, attended the annual meeting of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools in Dallas, Texas. Mr. Wygal went as a representative of Longwood.

The meeting, held November 25-29, was for the Regional Accredited Agency. Longwood is now in preparation for a re-evaluation which will be made in 1964 by this Agency.

Graduate Appointed Representative

The Virginia Easter Seal Society has appointed a new field representative. She is Doris Kesling, who graduated from Longwood in 1960.

Doris is a secondary education and physical education major while at Longwood. She was a member of Alpha Kappa Gamma, was on the A. A. Council, belonged to the Monogram Club and is her senior year.

Since graduation, Doris, who comes from Hartsford, has been an instructor in physical education at the Virginia School for the Deaf and Blind in Staunton. During the past four summers, she worked as a program director, counselor, and assistant director of Camp Easter Seal Summer Treatment.

Blakemore To Hold Wesley Bible Study

Tomorrow and Friday, the Wesley Foundation will hold a Bible Study with Dr. John H. Blakemore, who is executive secretary of the Virginia Conference Board of Education for the Methodist Church.

Dr. John Blakemore

There will be three meetings. At the first meeting on Thursday, December 6, Dr. Blakemore will show slides which he took recently in England. The subjects for the three sessions will be "Our Methodist Heritage," and "The Gospel Prelude." The last two sessions will be on Friday afternoon and evening, December 7.

Was College Director
Dr. Blakemore, who is from Mississippi, held his first ministerial assignment in the capacity of Wesley Foundation Director at the University of Mississippi. Before becoming the Executive Secretary of the Board of Education last June, he served as Minister of Centenary Methodist Church in Lynchburg. Previously, he had served Trinity in Alexandria and First Church in Hampton, Virginia.

Dr. Blakemore has also served as Vice-President and then President of the Board of Education.

Preaches In England
In the summer of 1961, he was appointed by the World Methodist Conference to exchange pulp with an English Methodist minister and during the month of August, 1961, he preached in Trinity Church, Harrogate, Yorkshire.

Everyone is invited to attend the Bible Study on December 6 and 7. The night meetings will begin at 7:30 and the Friday afternoon meeting will be at 4:30.

Freshmen Elect Class Leaders

Claudia Storminger has been elected president of the Class of 1968. The other officers are: Bobbie Allen, vice president; Harriet Anderson, secretary; and Judy Cundiff, treasurer. Sally Grayson and Bess Mann will represent the freshmen on the judicial board of Student Government, and Pat Dagger and Karen (Dee Dee) Diederich were elected to the legislative board. Jean Hayne was chosen president of Ruffner dormitory.

Class president Claudia Storminger directed the freshman Circus skit. She was a member of the class hockey team, and is an Orchestrator-You for 1966. Claudia's hobbies are sewing and bookkeeping.

Bobbie Allen, who is head top rat for 1963, is an art major. Her interest in sports is evident, as she has participated in class hockey, basketball, and the water pageant.

Harriet Anderson served as Circus class co-chairman, and was the freshman representative to Circus court. She enjoys "swimming, hockey, and talking."

A graduate of Andrew Lewis high school in Salem, Judy Cundiff is the class treasurer. Judy's time is divided among her job as dining hall waitress, her major in art, and her hall presidency.

A political science major, Bess Mann comes from Williamsburg. She was on the Circus float and dancing committee, ran in Color Rush, and was co-captain of her class hockey team. She plans to play class basketball, and is also on Junior Football team.

Dee Dee Diederich is a Spanish and art major from Richmond. She is a top rat for 1966, was a clown in Circus, and is serving on various class committees.

Also on the legislative board is Pat Dagger, an elementary major from Holy Cross High School in Lynchburg. Pat was a goalie for her class hockey team, and is assistant top rat for next year. She participated in Circus and plans to help with Freshman Production.

Business Groups Sponsor Speaker

Delta Rho Chapter of Phi Omega Psi and Gamma Epsilon Chapter of Phi Beta Lambda, the national business education fraternities of the Business Education Department, sponsored programs on the subject of "How Social Security Benefits You." Both sessions were held on Wednesday, November 28, at 10:00 a. m. and 11:00 a. m. Members were informed in regard to social security benefits to which all are entitled. The speaker was Mr. William J. Vinson, District Manager, Social Security Administration, Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

Why No Production?

The Class of 1965 is not going to give a sophomore production. Longwood should understand why. The sophomores have been some thinking; the decision to forego production is the result.

Productions, new students are told, are the traditional way for classes to make money. The sophomores asked a basic question; why does a class need money? To those people who contrived an answer to that, the question of production's being the most efficient method of raising money was put. Writing, staging and executing an hour program is an expensive enterprise: expensive in terms of money, but more important, expensive in precious time.

The sophomores have taken a progressive step. They have realized that the courses are becoming harder because of higher standards set by our college. In order to keep abreast with the quicker pace, the class felt that there should be more time to devote to academic work: time free from social pressures to work on class activities. One sophomore, in giving her reason for a vote against production said, "I'd like to stay in school." Others mentioned the heavy study load as a reason for their vote against production. The very poor schedule the class had to work with was a great drawback. It was necessitated by a date set for five days after the return from semester break, and riddled with periods in which of no work could be done, such as exams, Thanksgiving and Christmas vacations. Lack of time was the reason given by most girls who voted against production. Of the entire sophomore class, 24 voted to give a production.

In a school which offers such numerous activities, the sophomores felt that production was one which they must pass up. In so doing the Class of 1965 has set a precedent. If other classes and groups will follow this precedent, by evaluating the purposes of their "traditional" activities, they, too, will be able to eliminate superfluous activities if they find this necessary.

The following reason written on a vote against production is probably an explanation of the way most sophomores feel about their decision. "I will be sorry not to have a production and will help if I am in the minority, but the academic pressures are too great now."

—Nancy Mowrey, '65

Sororities:

What's The Rush?

Alpha Gamma Delta took the lead last week in voting affirmatively for the Panhellenic proposal to delay formal rush until first semester of the sophomore year. If other groups are hesitating because of reluctance to "hasten" to a decision which might later be regretted, they are wise. But if some are holding back to consider all the aspects of the many versions of suggested compromise proposals which are floating around, we offer answers to their queries, tranquilizers for their anxieties, and promise of immortality.

The present system, adopted as an attempt to better the old one, has proved inferior to the old. The advantage it was supposed to create, and did—that of getting formal rush finished early to make room for studies—was overpowered by the disadvantages which we have enumerated in past editorials. So, obviously, what is needed now is a system whereby this important advantage can be retained and the defects of the present plan can be eliminated. If exclusive rushing of sophomores were adopted, timing the parties to be held before classes begin, this could be achieved.

According to one of the several digressing suggestions, rush should be held in the lull between Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays. We, being in the midst of this period, now, can attest that this "lull" does not exist! Also, under this suggestion classes would have to compete with rush, and this is undesirable.

One of the most prevalent arguments against rushing of sophomores is that it might sound the death knell of sororities on this campus. This arises from anxiety caused by belief that one's sorority will not be able to attract older and wiser sophomores who will see through the "happy and united" front, which has always sufficed in years past, deep into the inadequacies which this person imagines the sorority to possess. But never fear, for the key to sorority immortality which we promised lies in the need for security, the herd instinct, which will always exist. And because Longwood can claim the nickname, "mother of sororities," they will surely endure here so long as the walls of the Rotunda remain standing.

The Rotunda

ESTABLISHED NOVEMBER 26, 1959

Published each week during the college year except during holidays and examination period by the students of Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia Box 148.

Ann Argo Editor-in-Chief
Donna Humphlett Managing Editor
Ann Carroll News Editor
Gleny Gilmore Features Editor
LeRoy Snyder Sports Editor
Lowry Hopper Daria Smith
Betsy Taylor Book Editor
Flonzie Bernard Linda Fairle
Ann Peters Art Editor
Mary Reynolds Photographer
Donna Humphlett Business Manager
Bobbi Mast News Editor
LeRoy Snyder Features Editor
Lowry Hopper Sports Editor
Betsy Taylor Book Editor
Flonzie Bernard Linda Fairle
Ann Peters Art Editor
Mary Reynolds Photographer
Donna Humphlett Business Manager
Bobbi Mast News Editor
LeRoy Snyder Features Editor
Lowry Hopper Sports Editor
Betsy Taylor Book Editor
Flonzie Bernard Linda Fairle
Ann Peters Art Editor
Mary Reynolds Photographer

Entered as second class matter at the Post Office at Farmville, Virginia under the Act of Congress of October 3, 1917. Accepted for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917, authorized by the National Advertising Service. Printed by the Farmville Herald.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

Structure Of Imagery Subject Of Frye's Talk

By Sharon Coulter

Mr. Northrop Frye's lecture was entitled "The Structure of Imagery in Modern Poetry." The eminent critic's thesis was that the poet is not an entity in himself, but is governed by a poetic grammar or the laws of poetic expression.

Poets may differ in ideas concerning religious, political, or philosophical, but these are sub-poetic factors. Poets differ less in the way they put poems together.

Poetry Has Functions

The function of poetry, according to Frye, is to associate the non-human world with the human. There are two basic devices used in making these associations: the simile and the metaphor. The simile shows a likeness or analogy between man and his physical environment, the metaphor makes an identity between them. These are primitive, archaic devices. To modern, discursive thought differences are more important than similarities. The poet is also likely to favor the primitive, cruder theories of politics, science, and religion. Using Dante as his example, Frye pointed out that the universe of the Divine Comedy is one of correspondences. These were seen on known planets; these created the seven basic temperaments of man and grew in the soil the seven basic metals. Belief in the objective reality of the poetic universe waned with the acceptance of the Copernican universe.

Occult Affects Poet

But the poet did not assimilate the new science. The occult has had more influence on the poet than any modern science. Astrology and alchemy have wielded more influence than astronomy and chemistry. In Eliot's Quixotes the four basic elements are, as they always have been in poetic expression, earth, air, fire, and water. (Aid, said Frye, for poets these always will be the basic components.)

(Continued on page 4)

Week's Thought

Sponsored by Y.W.C.A.

If you have built castles in the air, your work need not be lost; that is where they should be. Now put the foundations under them.

—Theocritus

Emotion Must Not Rule

Perhaps the most significant question which came out of yesterday's assembly concerning tightening of restrictions on extra-curricular activities was that of, "Why can't the student body vote on this issue?"

We feel that the only answer to this is that after student opinions are expressed and weighed, the final decision must be made by a representative body free of emotionality and personal involvements.

The masses, when ruled by emotion, ply a heavy weapon. They relegate Reason to the realm of afterthought. But Reason belongs not only to the present, but to the future. The proposal which finally passes the legislative body will affect not only the present, but the long-term future. We have an obligation of unselfishness to see this proposal in the long view, to see it not so much as it affects us and those we know, but as it will benefit those coming to take our places.

A peaceful revolution is not achieved without pain. And adjustment will not come without pain for a few generations of our students. But this will be followed by normalcy and a higher standard, in whose formation one will be proud to say one had a part.

Aesthetics, Jazz Interest Umphlett

New this year to the Longwood faculty is Mr. Wiley Umphlett of Norfolk County, Virginia. Mr. Umphlett was born in Norfolk, attended Norfolk public school and was graduated from Maura High School. He received his Bachelor of Arts degree from Southwestern College in Memphis, Tennessee and his Master of Arts degree from Columbia University. While at Columbia, Mr. Umphlett had a class under Mr. Northrop Frye who visited the campus last week. Mr. Umphlett has completed a week's study toward his doctoral degree at the University of Virginia.

During his three years in the army, Mr. Umphlett spent two and a half years in Germany. He managed to travel through a dozen countries; his favorites were Denmark, Germany and Spain.

Mr. Umphlett is interested in the aesthetic movement of the late nineteenth century. A favorite subject of his is also the relation of art to literature and the connection of the aesthetic theories of this period to modern art and literature.

Mr. Umphlett in his reading prefers the young Southern novelists such as Reynolds Price and Joan Williams. He also expressed an interest in John Updike, the author of Rabbit, Ran. "In spite of his youth," Mr. Umphlett says, "Updike is one of the up and coming novelists."

Other than reading, which he considers a part of his life, Mr. Umphlett's most consuming interests are music and sports. In music he prefers modern jazz—the Dave Brubeck Quartet and the Modern Jazz— and "long hair" music—Beethoven and Brahms. Mr. Umphlett says he likes to sit down and play the piano; then added he was sorry his playing was confined to "pop." He enjoys team sports—basketball and football, especially.

Before coming to Longwood, Mr. Umphlett taught high school for three years. Last year he heard that a position was going to be open at Longwood and "Here I am," he said.

Mr. Umphlett says that he enjoys teaching. "I love getting a reaction from the students in the classroom," Longwood students feel, are quite consistent in their work and in what they want out of their work.

Lake many newcomers to Longwood, Mr. Umphlett was impressed by the friendly atmosphere which he says is more prevalent on the campuses of private schools.

English Prof

New member of the English Department, Mr. Wiley Umphlett, pauses to chat with a student in his office.

Commercials Unbearable Professes T. V. Viewer

Editor's Note: The following was submitted first as a requirement for "Rotunda's" advice. Mr. Ellington White's freshman English course.

By Michael Forbes
 Television has proved itself to be a boon—that is, a boon for the advertising game. Commercials are peppered into almost every show; the shows without commercials are either special programs or programs as unbearable as the commercials.

Finds Ads "Disturbing"
 I predict to commercials because they are generally disturbing. Surveys have shown that the bulk of them are as much as 70 per cent louder than their programs. The Madison Avenue seems to pick the quietest shows for the loudest commercials. The human body has just become accustomed to a fairly decent level of sound when on comes the commercial, with a subterranean athlete shouting the merits of a certain breakfast cereal. An unpleasant aspect of the disturbing influence of ads is their placement; the most revolting ones come at mealtime. In time, unless the feeding schedule is rearranged, the American people will waste away, being unable to stomach any food while they are being told of all their intimate digestive maladies.

Invades Privacy
 This leads to another phase, invasion of privacy. Let me have my tired blood and hair and eleven o'clock droop privacy; don't air my problems to millions of television viewers; it makes me feel conspicuous. I can feel the burning of eyes of people who are thinking, "Does he or doesn't he?"

Commercials make me wonder, too. If nine out of ten doctors themselves take a spin, (Continued on page 4)

Gratitude Expressed By Veterans

Ed. Note: The following letter was written by a veteran in the Veterans Administration Hospital where Longwood students entertained.

November 15, 1962

Dear Editor:

This letter is to say how much I enjoyed last night's show, which was put on by the students of Longwood in the Theatre here. I think it is very excellent, to say the least, that the girls are willing to take the time and effort to make the long trip up to Richmond to perform for us Veterans.

I think the talent displayed was very good. I can say, in behalf of my buddies and myself, that the girls did a nice job of entertaining. We always welcome such activity as it is good for morale. Thank you, Longwood, come again!

Sincerely,
 Moses Le Gare

Longstreet, Nye Direct Annual Pageant "Kaleidoscope"

Water Ballet

"Kaleidoscope Kids" practice a number from the H2O Water pageant to be held December 6, 7. After a week and a half of rehearsal, the swimmers are ready for the Kaleidoscope of color, theme of this year's show.

harsals, the swimmers are ready for the Kaleidoscope of color, theme of this year's show.

Timely Topics

Senator Mitts Presents Resolution To Congress For Kennedy Impeaching

By Lois Sullivan

A resolution for the impeachment of President Kennedy was introduced to Congress's last Thursday by Mississippi's Senator Billy Mitter. In this resolution Kennedy was accused of "inciting insurrection at the University of Mississippi," withholding information concerning the Cuban crisis, "betrayal of trust to the citizens of the U. S.," and "overriding Congress with an act, and superseding its powers by an act of proclamation during vacation and invoking pretended administrative rules and regulations to act to enforce integration in regard to the federal housing law."

In his Thanksgiving message, President Kennedy said, concerning the recent Cuban crisis, "There is much for which we can be grateful as we look back to where we stood only four weeks ago. Yet, there are still pending questions to be answered."

No genuine progress was made in the lengthy conference between President Kennedy and Soviet Deputy Premier Mikoyan. Although representatives from both sides will continue to negotiate in New York about the settlement of the Cuban problem, the White House is not too optimistic about any final, complete agreement.

Note on Cuba: To deal with the recent Communist threat in Cuba, the U. S. mustered about 40,000 fighting men, thousands of war planes, and hundreds of navy ships. Some of the machines sent to Guantanamo at the outset of the crisis, as announced by the Pentagon, will be sent to leave this week.

During the U. S. quarantine, which was in effect from dawn, October 24 until the evening of November 20, fifty-five merchant ships passed through after they were found to contain no prohibited materials. No ships were found to be carrying any offensive weapons, and none were turned back.

The week with economy these days is up. This rise can be seen in a variety of fields. Recovering from a deep slide in September, when housing rose 1 per cent in October. The biggest boost, as outlined, seems to be the "down" for new automobiles, and the trend is expected to continue for some time. Personal income climbed 3.1 billion in October to record its largest increase since April, and remains four per cent ahead of last year's department store sales have risen for four weeks straight.

After real estate that also sales during the first third of November had risen 11 per cent to an all-time high for that period, U. S. automobiles have declined to boost production schedules for the coming quarter better than ever before.

In labor vs. management, Jimmy has won again. The latest anti-labor effort came last week when a group of rank-and-file rebels sought, among other things, to win a National Labor Relations Board election. Hoffa and his teamsters, pursuing their usual tactics, came through victorious by a close margin.

Seaside, the state redistricting act passed by Virginia's General Assembly were killed by a 2-1 federal court ruling in Alexandria last Thursday. Two alternatives, appeal to the Supreme Court of the U. S. or a special session of the General Assembly, were given to Governor Harrison. If neither is accepted, the redistricting may be done by the three-judge court itself.

Sparked by a rainbow of color, and a fascinating rhyma, the H2O Club will present its annual water pageant, "Kaleidoscope," December 6 and 7, under the direction of Chris Longstreet and Carol Nye.

The "pageant has deviated from its usual Christmas theme to present a kaleidoscope of color as well as many varying musical themes. Following the introduction in which all of the swimmers will participate, numbers representing the colors yellow, purple, black, blue, green, gold, red and white will be presented. Ending the pageant will be a multicolored finale written by co-chairman Chris Longstreet and Carol Nye.

Musical Varied

Some of the music to be heard at the Longwood Pool Thursday and Friday night will be "Glaugher on Texas Avenue," "Moonlight," "Can't Help Loving That Man of Mine," "Deep Purple," the theme from "King of Kings," "Greenfields," "It's A Grand Night for Singing," and "Ceremonial War Dance."

Co-chairman of the pageant are Chris Longstreet and Carol Nye. Chris is a Junior physical education major from Petersburg. She has been active in all class sports as well as Varsity chess and hockey. The H2O Club, and she has served on the A. A. Council for two years.

Carol, also a physical education major, is a Senior from Fort Belvoir, Maryland. Carol has taken an active part in athletics including varsity basketball, tennis and hockey. She is a member of the H2O Club, The Monogram Club, and is presently serving as president of Alpha Sigma Tau sorority.

Smith Sponsors Club Working closely with Miss Barbara Smith, sponsor of the H2O Club, Chris and Carol are putting the finishing touches on plans which were made the latter part of October. The numbers will include such synchronized swimming stunts as the ballet leg, the kip, Marlins, back dolphins, chain dolphins, and a catfish. The numbers will be highlighted by lighting effects created by Barbara Stewart. The swimmers have been involved in music rehearsals for a week and a half a sign that the actual performances should be excellent entertainment.

The student body is urged to attend the pageant Thursday night since many parents and guests are expected to attend Friday evening. Admission for all is 50 cents. There will be two performances nightly at 7:30 p.m. and 9:00 p.m. The H2O Club extends an invitation to everyone to come to see their "Kaleidoscope!"

Give A Book For Christmas!

"A Lasting Gift"

Leaves of Gold

$3.95—$10.00

Rainbows

Beyond Ourselves

$4.95

Christmas Ideals

50c—$1.50

The New English Bible

$4.95

Boone, The Real

Christmas

$1.50

My Son Jesus

$2.00

Flowers of the Holy Land

$2.00

Cook Books, Wide

Selection

Virginia & Civil War

Books

Poetry Collections

Best Sellers

Children's Books

(Gifts Wrapped Free)

WEYANOKO BOOK

SHOP

New Research Grant Committee Subsidizes Faculty Members

(Continued from page 1)

The chairman of the Music Department, Dr. Molnar, is doing his research in colonial art music in the area of the colonial South. He is considering the music, performance, performers and the environment of our heritage.

Many to Buy Equipment Equipment and chemicals will be purchased by Dr. Neveu with his funds from the Longwood fund and those from The National Science Foundation. His work is in the field of physical organic chemistry; the topic is The Polarimetric Determination of Reaction Rates. Dr. Neveu is an assistant Professor of Natural Sciences.

Assistant Professor of Music Olson will consider the work of Aldine Kieffer and Ephraim Ruebush and their activities with the shape note method of music teaching in Virginia. His product will be "The Shape Note

Heritage in Rural Virginia."

Schlegel Studies Diderot "Diderot, the Transmitter of Shaftesbury's Romanticism" is under the study of Dr. Dorothy B. Schlegel. This Associate Professor of English will "set forth the steps whereby Shaftesbury's Classicism became converted in Diderot's mind into the complex of ideas which was later termed 'Romanticism.'"

SOUTHSIDE SUNDRY

CO., INC.

8 Exposures of Film

Processed and Developed

39c

DOROTHY MAY

SHOP

Come In And See Our

Pretty New Shipment

of Party Dresses and

Evening Bags

$14.99 up

COLLEGE SHOPPE

Visit The Re-modeled

College Shoppe!

Come In And

See If You Like It!

NEWMAN'S

MEN'S SHOP

Traditional Styles

See Our

Ladies' Sportswear

Sports Review

Pigskin Rivalries Surprise Fans Over Holiday

ON THANKSGIVING DAY V. M. I. upset Virginia Tech in a 14-9 score to win the Southern Conference title. This was the 58th renewal of the rivalry and the fans in Roanoke little expected such a score.

UNIVERSITY OF RICHMOND'S HOME COMING ON Thanksgiving Day was a success for the defeated William and Mary 15-3. The Indians had outplayed the Spiders for 54 minutes, but in the final minutes of the last quarter the Spiders made a music possession.

NORTH CAROLINA 49-14 Wake Forest the hand of the 10th straight loss with the score 27-3. The victory was clinched before the opening quarter was over.

NAVY HAILED THE ARRIVAL of December by crushing the cadets of Army by 34-14. For their 3rd meeting, 200-600 spectators watched Roger Staubach, a sophomore midshipman, lead his team to glory.

THE CAVALIERS OF U. Va. made Rutgers' fans look on with awe as they slumped the New Brunswick men in a 41-0 victory.

V. M. I.'S JOHN McKENNA has been named Southern Conference football coach of the year for the third time in six years.

MARTIN THE

JEWELER

Farmville, Va.

Scarab Bracelets . . $13.75

Watch Bands . . $9.00 up

Flying sorcery!

The Jet Trail Set by LADY BUXTON

Lady Buxton launches a cosmic idea: rhinestones blazing a trail across richly textured leather. If you won't have your fashion any way but out of this world, The Jet Trail Set is for you. In a whole spectrum of colors: French Purple $6.00, Old, Cigar $2.95, Lighter $2.95, Navy Tailor $2.00, Prism, Plus Tax.

Owen-Sanford Drug Co.

"In The New Farmville Shopping Center"

Phone EX 2-3167

Farmville, Va.

60,000,000 times a day people get that refreshing new feeling with Coke!

Bottled under authority of The Coca-Cola Company by

LYNCHBURG BOTTLING WORKS, Lynchburg, Va.

Why No Production?

The Class of 1965 is not going to give a sophomore production. Longwood should understand why. The sophomores have done some thinking; the decision to forego production is the result.

Productions, new students are told, are the traditional way for classes to make money. The sophomores asked a basic question; why does a class need money? To those people who contrived an answer to that, the question of production's being the most efficient method of raising money was put. Writing, staging and executing an hour program is an expensive enterprise: expensive in terms of money, but more important, expensive in precious time.

The sophomores have taken a progressive step. They have realized that the courses are becoming harder because of higher standards set by our college. In order to keep abreast with the quicker pace, the class felt that there should be more time to devote to academic work: time free from social pressures to work on class activities. One sophomore, in giving her reason for a vote against production said, "I'd like to stay in school." Others mentioned the heavy study load as a reason for their vote against production. The very poor schedule the class had to work with was a great drawback. It was necessitated by a date set for five days after the return from semester break, and riddled with periods in which of no work could be done, such as exams, Thanksgiving and Christmas vacations. Lack of time was the reason given by most girls who voted against production. Of the entire sophomore class, 24 voted to give a production.

In a school which offers such numerous activities, the sophomores felt that production was one which they must pass up. In so doing the Class of 1965 has set a precedent. If other classes and groups will follow this precedent, by evaluating the purposes of their "traditional" activities, they, too, will be able to eliminate superfluous activities if they find this necessary.

The following reason written on a vote against production is probably an explanation of the way most sophomores feel about their decision. "I will be sorry not to have a production and will help if I am in the minority, but the academic pressures are too great now."

—Nancy Mowrey, '65

Sororities:

What's The Rush?

Alpha Gamma Delta took the lead last week in voting affirmatively for the Panhellenic proposal to delay formal rush until first semester of the sophomore year. If other groups are hesitating because of reluctance to "hasten" to a decision which might later be regretted, they are wise. But if some are holding back to consider all the aspects of the many versions of suggested compromise proposals, which are floating around, we offer answers to their queries, tranquilizers for their anxieties, and promise of immortality.

The present system, adopted as an attempt to better the old one, has proved inferior to the old. The advantage it was supposed to create, and did—that of getting formal rush finished early to make room for studies—was overpowered by the disadvantages which we have enumerated in past editorials. So, obviously, what is needed now is a system whereby this important advantage can be retained and the defects of the present plan be eliminated. If exclusive rushing of sophomores were adopted, timing the parties to be held before classes begin, this could be achieved.

According to one of the several digressing suggestions, rush should be held in the lull between the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays. We, being in the midst of this period, now, can attest that this "lull" does not exist! Also, under this suggestion classes would have to compete with rush, and this is undesirable.

One of the most prevalent arguments against rushing of sophomores is that it might sound the death knell of sororities on this campus. This arises from anxiety caused by belief that one's sorority will not be able to attract older and wiser sophomores who will see through the "happy and united" front, which has always sufficed in years past, deep into the inadequacies which this person imagines the sorority to possess. But never fear, for the key to sorority immortality which we promised lies in the need for security, the herd instinct, which will always exist. And because Longwood can claim the nickname, "mother of sororities," they will surely endure here so long as the walls of the Rotunda remain standing.

The Rotunda

ESTABLISHED NOVEMBER 20, 1959

Published each week during the college year except during holidays and examination period by the students of Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia. Box 148.

Ann Argo	Editor-in-Chief
Donna Humphlett	Managing Editor
Ann Carroll	Business Manager
Glenn Gilmore	News Editor
LeRoy Snyder	Feature Editor
Lewin Ripper	Sports Editor
Betsy Taylor	Desk Editors
Flonora Barnard	Art Editor
Ann Peters	Photography
Mary Reynolds	Circulation Manager
	Advertising Manager

Entered as second class matter at the Post Office at Farmville, Virginia under the Act of Congress March 3, 1925. Represented by National Advertising Service. Printed by the Farmville Herald.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS BY BIBER

Structure Of Imagery Subject Of Frye's Talk

By Sharon Coulter

Mr. Northrup Frye's lecture was entitled "The Structure of Imagery in Modern Poetry." The eminent critic's thesis was that the poet is not an entity in himself, but is governed by a poetic grammar or the laws of poetic expression.

Poets may differ in ideas concerning religion, politics, or philosophy, but these are sub-poetic factors. Poets differ less in the way they put poems to paper.

Poetry Has Functions

The function of poetry, according to Frye, is to associate the non-human world with the human. There are two basic devices used in making these associations: the simile and the metaphor. The simile shows a likeness or analogy between man and his physical environment, the metaphor makes an identity between them. These are primitive, archaic devices.

To modern, discursive thought differences are more important than similarities. The poet is also likely to favor the primitive, cruder theories of politics, science, and religion. Using Dante as his example, Frye pointed out that the universe of the Divine Comedy is one of correspondences. There were seven known planets; these created the seven basic temperaments of man and great in the soul the seven basic metals. Belief in the objective reality of the poetic universe waned with the acceptance of the Copernican universe.

Occult Affects Poet

But the poet did not assimilate the new science. The occult has had more influence on the poet than any modern science. Astrology and alchemy have wielded more influence than astronomy and chemistry. In Eliot's Quatrains the four basic elements are, as they always have been in poetic expression, earth, air, fire, and water. And, said Frye, for poets these always will be the basic components.

—Continued on page 4—

Week's Thought

Sponsored By Y.W.C.A.

If you have built castles in the air, your work need not be lost; that is where they should be. Now put the foundations under them.

—Thoreau

Emotion Must Not Rule

Perhaps the most significant question which came out of yesterday's assembly concerning tightening of restrictions on extra-curricular activities was that of, "Why can't the student body vote on this issue?"

We feel that the only answer to this is that after student opinions are expressed and weighed, the final decision must be made by a representative body free of emotionalism and personal involvement.

The masses, when ruled by emotion, ply a heavy weapon. They relegate Reason to the realm of afterthought. But Reason belongs not only to the present, but to the future. The proposal which finally passes the legislative board will affect not only the present, but the long-term future. We have an obligation of usefulness to see this proposal in the long view, to see it not so much as it affects us and those we know, but as it will benefit those coming to take our places.

A peaceful revolution is not achieved without pain. And adjustment will not come without pain for a few generations of our students. But this will be followed by normalcy and a higher standard, in whose formation one will be proud to say one had a part.

Aesthetics, Jazz Interest Umphlett

New this year to the Longwood faculty is Mr. Wiley Umphlett of Norfolk County, Virginia. Mr. Umphlett was born in Norfolk attended Norfolk public school and was graduated from Marine High School.

He received his Bachelor of Arts degree from Southwest Tennessee in Memphis, Tennessee and his Master of Arts degree from Columbia University. While at Columbia, Mr. Umphlett had a class under Mr. Northrup Frye who visited the campus last year. Mr. Umphlett has completed a year's work toward his doctoral degree at the University of Virginia.

During his three years in the army, Mr. Umphlett spent two and a half years in Germany. He managed to travel through a dozen countries; his favorites were Denmark, Germany and Spain.

Mr. Umphlett is interested in the aesthetic movement of the late nineteenth century. A favorite subject of his is also the relation of art to literature and the connection of the aesthetic theories of his period to modern art and literature.

Mr. Umphlett in his reading prefers the young Southern novelists such as Reynolds Price and Joan Williams. He also expressed an interest in John Updike, the author of Rabbit, Ram. "In spite of his youth," Mr. Umphlett says, "Updike is one of the up-a-d coming novelists."

Other than reading, which he considers a part of his life, Mr. Umphlett's most consuming interests are music and sports. In music he prefers modern jazz—the Dave Brubeck Quartet and the Modern Jazz Quartet—and "long hair" music—Beethoven and Brahms. Mr. Umphlett says he likes to sit down and play the piano; then added he was sorry his playing was confined to "pop." He enjoys his team sports—basketball and football, especially.

Before coming to Longwood, Mr. Umphlett taught high school for three years. Last year he heard that a position was going to be open at Longwood and "Here I am," he said.

Mr. Umphlett says that he enjoys teaching. "I love getting a reaction from the students in the classroom," Longwood students he feels, are quite conscientious in their work and in what they want out of their work.

Like many newcomers to Longwood, Mr. Umphlett was impressed by the friendly atmosphere which he says is more prevalent on the campuses of private schools.

English Prof

New member of the Wiley Department, Mr. Umphlett pauses to chat with a student in his office.

Commercials Unbearable Professes T. V. Viewer

Editor's Note: The following was submitted first as a requirement for "Rotunda" adviser, Mr. Ellington White's freshman English course.

By Michael Forbes

Television has proved itself to be a boon—that is, a boon for the advertising game. Commercials are peppered into almost every show; the shows without commercials are either special programs or programs as unbearable as the commercials.

Finds Ads "Disturbing"

I object to commercials because they are generally disturbing. Surveys have shown that the bulk of them are as much as 70 per cent louder than their programs. The Madison Avenues seem to pick the quickest slots for the loudest commercials. The human body has just become accustomed to a fairly decent level of sound when on comes the commercial, with a subterranean athlete shouting the merits of a certain breakfast cereal. An unhealthy aspect of the disturbing influence of ads is their placement; the most revolting ones come at mealtime. In time, unless the feeding schedule is rearranged, the American people will waste away, being unable to stomach any food while they are being told of their intimate digestive malaises.

Invades Privacy

This leads to another phase, invasion of privacy. Let me have my tired blood and hair and eleven o'clock droop privately; don't air my problems to millions of television viewers; it makes me feel conspicuous. I can feel the burning of my eyes; people who are thinking, "Does he or doesn't he?"

Commercials make me wonder, too. If nine out of ten doctors themselves take aspirin,

(Continued on page 4)

Gratitude Expressed By Veterans

Ed. Note: The following letter was written by a veteran in the Veterans Administration Hospital where Longwood students entertained.

November 15, 1962

Dear Editor:

This letter is to say how much I enjoyed last night's show, which was put on by the students of Longwood in the Theatre here. I think it is very excellent, to say the least, that the girls are willing to take the time and effort to make the long trip up to Richmond to perform for us Veterans.

I think the talent displayed was very good. I can say, in behalf of my buddies and myself, that the girls did a nice job of entertaining. We always welcome such activity as it is good for morale. Thank you, Longwood, come again!

Sincerely,
Motic Le Gare

Longstreet, Nye Direct Annual Pageant "Kaleidoscope"

Water Ballet

"Kaleidoscope Kids" practice a number from the H2O Water pageant to be held December 6, 7. After a week and a half of rehearsals, the swimmers are ready for the Kaleidoscope of color, theme of this year's show.

Timely Topics

Senator Mitts Presents Resolution To Congress For Kennedy Impeaching

By Lois Sullivan

A resolution for the impeachment of President Kennedy was introduced to Congress last Thursday by Mississippi's Senator Billy Mitts. In this resolution Kennedy was accused of "inciting insurrection at the University of Mississippi," withholding information concerning the Cuban crisis, "betrayal of trust to the citizens of the U. S.," and "overriding Congress with an act, and superseding its powers by an act of proclamation during vacation, and invoking pretended administrative rules and regulations to act to enforce integration in regards to the federal housing law."

In his Thanksgiving message, President Kennedy said, concerning the recent Cuban crisis, "There is much for which we can be grateful as we look back to where we stood only four weeks ago." Yet, there are still pending questions to be answered.

Sports Review

Pigskin Rivalries Surprise Fans Over Holiday

ON THANKSGIVING DAY V. M. I. upset Virginia Tech in a 14-9 score to win the Southern Conference title. This was the 58th renewal of the rivalry and the fans in Roanoke likely expected such a score.

UNIVERSITY OF RICHMOND'S HOMECOMING on Thanksgiving Day was a success for they defeated William and Mary 14-3. The Indians had outplayed the Spiders for 54 minutes, but in the final minutes of the last quarter the Spiders made a quick comeback.

NORTH CAROLINA defeated Wake Forest the hand of the 10th straight loss with the score 27-3. The victory was clinched before the opening quarter was over.

NAVY HAILED THE ARRIVAL of December by crushing the cadets of Army by 34-14. For their third meeting, 200-600 spectators watched, Roger Staubach, a sophomore midshipman, led his team to glory.

THE CAVALIERS OF U. VA. made Rutgers' fans look on with awe as they stomped the New Brunswick men in a 41-0 victory.

V. M. I.'S JOHN MCKENNA has been named Southern Conference football coach of the year for the third time in six years.

ed. No genuine progress was made in the lengthy conference between President Kennedy and Soviet Deputy Premier Mikoyan. Although representatives from both sides will continue to negotiate in New York about the settlement of the Cuban problem, the White House is not too optimistic about any final, complete agreement.

Note on Cuba: To deal with the recent Communist threat in Cuba, the U. S. mustered about 50,000 fighting men, thousands of war planes, and hundreds of navy ships. Some of the machines sent to Guantanamo at the outset of the crisis, as announced by the Pentagon, will begin to leave this week.

During the U. S. quarantine, which was in effect from last October 24 until the evening of November 20, fifty-five merchant ships passed through after they were found to contain no prohibited materials. No ships were found to be carrying any offensive weapons, and none were turned back.

The word with economy these days is U. P. This new car has been in a number of fields: Recovering from a dress slide in September, urban housing rose 17 percent in October. The biggest box in outdoors seems to be the demand for new apartments, and the trend is expected to continue for some time. Personal income climbed $1.4 billion in October to record its largest increase since April, and remains four per cent ahead of last year, department store sales have risen for four weeks straight.

After realizing that a rate sale during the first third of November had risen 11 per cent to an all-time high for that period, U. S. automakers have decided to boost production schedules for the coming quarter higher than ever before.

In labor vs. management, Jimmy has won again. The latest anti-labor effort came last week when a group of railroad file rebels sought, among other things, to win a National Labor Relations Board election. Hoffa and his teamsters, pursuing their usual tactics, came through victorious by a close margin.

Seaweed, the state redistricting acts passed by Virginia's General Assembly were killed by a 2-1 federal court ruling in Alexandria last Thursday. Two alternatives, appeal to the Supreme Court of the U. S. or a special session of the General Assembly, were given to Governor Harrison. If neither is accepted, the redistricting may be done by the three-judge court itself.

Sparked by a rainbow of color and fascinating rhythms, the H2O Club will present its annual water pageant, "Kaleidoscope," December 6 and 7 under the direction of Chris Longstreet and Carol Nye.

The pageant has deviated from its usual Christmas theme to present a kaleidoscope of color as well as many varying musical themes. Following the introduction in which all of the swimmers will participate, numbers representing the colors yellow, purple, black, blue, green, gold, red and white will be presented. Ending the pageant will be a multicolored finale written by co-chairman Chris Longstreet and Carol Nye.

Music Varied
Some of the music to be heard at the Longwood Pool Thursday and Friday night will be "Slaughter on Tenth Avenue," "Moonlight," "Can't Help Loving That Man of Mine," "Deep Purple," the theme from "King of Kings," "Greenfields," "It's A Grand Night for Singing," and "Ceremonial War Dance."

Co-chairman of the pageant are Chris Longstreet and Carol Nye. Chris is a Junior physical education major from Petersburg. She has been active in all class sports as well as Varsity Archery and hockey, the H2O Club, and she has served on the A. A. Council for two years.

Carol, also a physical education major, is a Senior from Fort Belvoir, Maryland. Carol has taken an active part in athletics including varsity basketball, tennis and hockey. She is a member of the H2O Club, The Monogram Club, and is presently serving as president of Alpha Sigma Tau sorority.

Smith Sponsors Club
Working closely with Miss Barbara Smith, sponsor of the H2O Club, Chris and Carol are putting the finishing touches on plans which were made the latter part of October. The numbers will include such synchronized swimming stunts as the ballet leg, the kip, Marlins, back dolphins, chain dolphins, and a catwalk. The numbers will be highlighted by lighting effects created by Barbara Stewart. The swimmers have been involved in mass rehearsals for a week and a half a sign that the actual performances should be excellent.

The student body is urged to attend the pageant Thursday night since many parents and guests are expected to attend Friday evening. Admission for all is 50 cents. There will be two performances nightly at 7:30 p.m. and 9:00 p.m. The H2O Club extends an invitation to everyone to come to see their "Kaleidoscope."

New Research Grant Committee Subsidizes Faculty Members

(Continued from page 1)

The chairman of the Music Department, Dr. Molnar, is doing his research in colonial art music in the area of the colonial South. He is considering the music performance, performers and the environment of our heritage.

Money To Buy Equipment
Equipment and chemicals will be purchased by Dr. Neveu with his funds from the Longwood fund and those from The National Science Foundation. His work is in the field of physical-organic chemistry; the topic is The Polymetric Determination of Reaction Rates. Dr. Neveu is an assistant Professor of Natural Sciences.

Assistant Professor of Music Osters will consider the work of Aldine Kieffer and Ephraim Ruebush and their activities with the shape note method of music teaching in Virginia. His product will be "The Shape Note

Heritage in Rural Virginia." Schlegel Studies Diderot
"Diderot, the Transmitter of Shaftesbury's Romanticism" is under the study of Dr. Dorothy B. Schlegel. This Associate Professor of English will "set forth the steps whereby Shaftesbury's Classicism became converted in Diderot's mind into the complex of ideas which was later termed 'Romanticism.'"

SOUTHSIDE SUNDRY CO., INC.

8 Exposures of Film
Processed and Developed
39c

DOROTHY MAY SHOP

Come In And See Our Pretty New Shipment
of Party Dresses and
Evening Bags
$14.99 up

COLLEGE SHOPPE

Visit The Re-modeled
College Shoppe!
Come In And
See If You Like It!

NEWMAN'S MEN'S SHOP

Traditional Styles
See Our
Ladies' Sportswear

MARTIN THE
JEWELER
Farmville, Va.

Scarab Bracelets .. $13.75

Watch Bands .. $9.00 up

Flying sorcery!

The Jet Trail Set by LADY BUXTON

Lady Buxton launches a comic idea: rhinestones blazing a trail across richly textured leather. If you won't have your fashions any way but out of this world, the Jet Trail Set is for you. In a whole spectrum of colors, French Purple $6.00, Clap Case $3.95, Lighter $2.95, Key Tailor $2.95. Prices, Plus Tax.

Owen-Sanford Drug Co.

"In The New Farmville Shopping Center"
Phone EX 2-3167 Farmville, Va.

Bottled under authority of
The Coca-Cola Company
LYNCHBURG BOTTLING WORKS, Lynchburg, Va.

Seniors Spend Block Student Teaching

By Ann Hoska

Many seniors, prospective teachers, are spending the next nine weeks student teaching locally and in Danville, Richmond and Roanoke at the elementary, junior and senior high school levels.

Joyce Outland is student teaching fourth grade; Betty Stuck, fifth; Faye Stone, seventh; and Mary Warren, second, at Appomattox Elementary School. Beth Goodwyn is teaching Spanish and English and Margaret Vaughan is teaching math at Appomattox High School. Seniors assigned to student teach at Randolph - Henry High School at Charlotte Court House include: Annice Bullock, math; Pam Bullen, art; Betty Farley, Spanish and English; Elaine Lohr, math; Sandra Pihlgren, health and physical education; Joyce Powell, history and government; and Becky Reamy, English. Lucy Swink is student teaching math at Cumberland High School.

Judy Frye is student teaching the third grade at Johnson Elementary School in Danville. Deborah Dove has been assigned to student teach English; Ann Greene, history; and Gloria Newton, English, at Robert E. Lee Junior High School in Danville. Seniors assigned to student teach at George Washington Senior High School include Susan Coe who is teaching health and physical education; Elizabeth Barber, English; Catherine Foulds, English; Nancy Johnson, history; Mary Merriks, business; Barbara Moyer, business; Alice Peele, Spanish and English; and Kay Willis, English.

Seniors who are teaching in Richmond include Barbara Lohr who is at Albert Hill Elementary School, Melinda Walker and Jo Ann Young at Bellemeade Elementary School, Lettie Dawson and Sarah Decker at Ginter Park Elementary School, Barbara Malone at Mary Munford Elementary School, Margaret McCue and Jeannette Thompson at Patrick Henry Elementary School, Susan Harwood at Robert E. Lee Elementary School and Sue Wilhelm at Summer Hill Elementary School.

Sandra Little is teaching general business, bookkeeping and typing and Jean Pollard is teaching English at George Wythe High School. Dianna Kuskusian is teaching general business, shorthand and typing and Mary Morris is teaching Spanish at John Marshall High School. Ray Ferguson is student teaching math and Janice Harris, Spanish and English at Thomas Jefferson High School in Richmond.

Lani Robinson is teaching fifth grade; Suzanne Sloan, second; Lillian Turner, first; and Martha Warren, second, at Virginia Heights Elementary School in Roanoke. Prospective secondary teachers who will spend the second block in Roanoke include Frieda Boykin, teaching home economics at Lee High School;

Shelby Lucy, home economics at William Fleming High School; Gari Dickson, art, Barbara G. Martin, health and physical education and Elizabeth Printz, home economics, at Monroe High School; and Sandra Friedman who is teaching math, Anne Friedman, French and English, Laurie Hamlet, home economics, Harriet Hunt, art, Susan Lane, chemistry and general science, Kay McKean, shorthand, bookkeeping and typing, and Dianne Whitley who is also teaching shorthand, bookkeeping and typing, all at Patrick Henry High School in Roanoke.

Commercials Invade Privacy Of Fan's Life

(Continued from page 3)

who is that tenth doctor? Is he that fortunate one who prescribes the stuff to the other miserable men. If so, there is still some individual life in America.

Commercials breed dark thoughts. For instance, when the monstrous white dog with the unlikely name of Siegfried bounds joyfully over clean clothes and floors, an overpowering urge wells up in me. I can even feel the shotgun in my hands.

Commercials "Unrealistic" Finally, commercials are unrealistic. They would have one believe that all athletic deficiencies come from using "greasy kid stuff." Of course, this couldn't be true; these deficiencies are the result of too little GL-70 in the system. Another example: Who would want to be a member of a fully-uniformed band marching through a field of gummy tobacco? There certainly seems to be little future in that.

But, for all my objections, I certainly do not advocate banishment of commercials. Every civilization has to have some form of epic. Perhaps the Pepsi-Cola song will be ours. I maintain, in fact, that all the commercials should remain with us.

Advocates Commercial Show Let every commercial be televised in the space of one convenient hour, such as four o'clock in the morning. During that hour let brigades of starlets of whom nobody has ever heard come across the camera range, driving open cars, sailing boats, trying on dresses all morning, and marveling at the numbers of girls who are disatisfied with their present shampoo. Let squadrons of literate Brooklynese repairmen diagnose the trouble with washing machines. A few legions of bespectacled announcers tossing detergent tablets this way and that will no doubt help matters. It will be absolute cacophony, a circus of horror. Let the commercials live—just so long as I don't have to watch them.

Around The Campi

Once upon a time a student teacher was watching as her physical education class did bicycles with their legs. At least 44 of the 45 in the class were bicycles. The student teacher dared to ask why Betty just had her legs straight in the air. The reply: "It's coasting."

Freshman: "Hey, I got an ideal!"
Sophomore: "Beginner's luck."
(Names are withheld to protect the guilty.)

Thought for the week: Did you hear about the manio-clepto? She looks around and when nobody's watching she leaves things:

Supply the right tune:
"We've got the spirit of red and white . . ."
"You can call us 'Gangreen' by name . . ."
"When you see those red and whites . . ."
"Our peppy spirit fills the air . . ."
"For memories we will cherish — our whole lives through . . ."

Christmas In Spain

Spanish Club members present program depicting Christmas as celebrated in Spanish-speaking countries.

Innovation introduced this year is uke combo rendering popular folk songs in Spanish.

'Felices Navidades' Theme Of Fiesta

With a Felices Navidades (Merry Christmas) to all, the annual Spanish Fiesta was begun by Senorita Isabel Loeffler, exchange student from Mexico City.

The festival was held November 30 in the main "ring," and began at 8:00 p.m. with the crowning of the queen of the fiesta. This year, Joan McKean, president of El Club Espanol, reigned as queen.

The rec was decorated in the colors of Mexico and Spain, and colorful pinatas made by each Spanish class hung from the ceiling.

First and second year Spanish classes of Mrs. Barksdale and Mrs. Enouff began the Christmas festival with the presentation of "Las Posadas," a Spanish Christmas custom, and the story of the Three Wise Men and the birth of Christ. Then Senorita Loeffler played an original rendition of "Autumn Leaves" on her accordion, after which a group of dancers performed the Cha-Cha-Cha.

Ukes, Singers Perform A nine-girl combo sang folk songs typical of the Kingston Trio, such as "Maria," and "Three Jolly Coachmen," all in Spanish. An additional attraction to the group's repertoire was their version of "Pancho Lopez," alias "Davy Crockett."

All of these songs had been ingeniously translated from the English into Spanish.

As a celebration of the new year in Spain, twelve grapes were given each spectator, and at each song of the twelve strokes of midnight, a grape had to be eaten.

The highlight of the evening was the breaking of the pinatas. Judges gave a prize to the Spanish class making the best pinata. Blindfolded students hit at the candy-filled pinatas with long poles, and as each one broke, they were showered with all sorts of goodies. Finally came the free-for-all rush for the candy on the floor. And this year, as in the past, everyone went away with stuffed pockets, overflowing sombreros, and most of all, the memory of a wonderful Spanish Fiesta.

World Of Ballet Subject Of Film Seen In Jarman

(Continued from page 2)

stop dancing so the ballerina's love for her career will not give way to her love for the composer.

Returns to Ballet This conflict does not end for the ballerina even after she decides to give up the ballet in favor of marriage. While traveling to Monte Carlo, she meets the director who urges her to dance The Red Shoes again.

However, before the performance, her husband comes to beg her to give up the ballet. While wearing the red shoes for the performance, she decides to continue with the performance and her dejected husband leaves.

Falls to Death As her entrance nears she realizes that she can't go on and run to find her husband. In her frenzy she falls from the outer balcony of the theater into the path of an on-rushing train. The performance goes on without her, with a spotlight following the path she would have taken, while she finds peace with herself as death nears. Just as Karen died when the red shoes were removed from her feet by the minister, so the ballerina dies as her husband removes hers.

Starring in the production were Maïra Shearer, Anton Walbrook, Martin Gough, Leonide Maslne, Ludmilla Tcherina, and Robert Helpman.

This was one of a series of films shown free of charge to Longwood students, their dates, faculty members and their families on Saturday night in Jarman Auditorium.

Film Review

Two Dance Films Shown On Longwood Campus

By Joyce Waldburger

Dance was brought to the campus last week in the form of two movies — the new, modern abstract dance and the old, traditional classic ballet. The two movies presented sharp contrasts in the dance. One had the flowing beauty of grace and tradition handed down from hundreds of years and one had the sharp, sometimes difficult to understand, movement that shows one's innermost emotions and feelings.

"Invention in Dance," the modern dance film, was fairly well done. The narrator, Martha Myers, assistant professor of dance at Smith College, explained modern dance and gave a brief history of this art beginning with Isadora Duncan. Alvin Nickolaus and the Henry Street Playhouse Dance Company demonstrated the art of motion and showed how motions can communicate and convey meaning. The dancers showed the various emotions — sadness, anger, embarrassment, anguish, laughter, and fear.

Dancer instructs Nickolaus took the audience by the hand and explained the different types of movement showing how man is basically primitive and how his body movements are sometimes arcade (three dimensional), and, perhaps, at times, somewhat medieval in concept. He describes a dancer as a magician, a poet of motion, and a mirror of one's inner eyes. Nickolaus is especially interested in forms and shapes in motion. He uses his dancers as live instruments of designs often going beyond one's consciousness. In all three of his dances, Webb — designs manipulated by the dancer. Fixation — confinement to a small space, and Disc — circular shapes that move constantly with the dancer. Nickolaus shows the dance in the different abstract shapes. The use of electronic music may have made this movie a little strange and beyond one's grasp.

Classical Ballet Again, Martha Myers narrates in the film, "Classical Ballet." She explains the history of ballet and its costumes, plus taking the viewer to a dance studio where various ballet steps were danced by Maria Tallchief and Andre Gilevsky danced a portion of the ballet, "Sylvia." During an interview, the dancers explained the importance of intense and daily training, and the importance of balance and pantomime in the ballet.

Both films represented a very clear concept of the dance, and explanations of what each meant and what each was attempting to do added to the spectator's gratification. In this case, the students had understanding in the place of the previous giggles and laughter that have prevailed in past years.

Various States, Countries Order Institute Books

Four publications of Longwood faculty members, published through the Institute of Southern Culture, have received nationwide attention. These are, Eden in the South and The South in Perspective, by Dr. R. C. Simons, chairman of the English Department; Art and Music in the South, edited by Dr. F. B. Simons, head of the history department; and The Dilemma of the Southern Writer edited by Dr. Richard K. Meeker, former associate professor of English here. These publications have been requested through letters from various parts of the United States. Orders have also been received from Italy, Canada, and Hawaii.

Popular Out of State Out-of-state orders far outnumber the Virginian orders. These orders have come from cities from Florida to New York and from New York to California. School and college libraries have been the most frequent customers.

The Institute of Southern Culture is an annual program, initiated by R. C. Simons, which brings together persons interested in the culture of the South. Well-known critics and writers are invited to attend and add their ideas to those of the Longwood faculty who participate.

Needs Financing This organization is almost unique in the South. In the past, its publications have been financed by Longwood alumni; however, the costs have been over-whelming. There is some chance that the Institute will be forced to discontinue its achievement if a new method of financing it is not found.

Frye Emphasizes Patterns In Poetry Structure

(Continued from page 2)

ponents of the universe until science decrees that they really are the four basic elements.

Poets are inveterate doodlers and schematic thinkers; therefore, it is possible to reduce the structure of their imagery to diagrams. A pattern which stretches across the entire history of poetry is that of making an analogy between the process of human life, i.e., birth, death, rebirth with the similar process of nature.

Utilizes Symbols In the following diagram Frye demonstrated the various symbols used by poets to make this analogy:

Life cycle: Age, Death, Rebirth.
(Seasonal cycle): Autumn, Winter, Spring.
(Solar cycle): Evening, Darkness, Dawn.
(Water cycle): River, Sea, Rain.

This symbolism found its way into religion thousands of years before Christianity. The Mediterranean peoples commonly held these festivals in honor of a fertility god. His emblem was often a red or purple flower supposedly fed by his blood. This flower is often used as a symbol in modern poetry; Walt Whitman used it in "When Lilacs Last in the Dooryard Bloomed" and Eliot used it in the "Waste Land" where it was a hyacinth. From the Christian symbolism yet another series may be added to the above list: Good Friday (death), Holy Saturday (Disappearance), and Easter Sunday (Rebirth).

Uses "Inferno" Example A frequent theme related to this system, is the descent to the underworld. In Dante's Inferno the underworld is pictured as a huge cone with its base near the surface of the earth. As Dante descends further and further into the cone, conditions grow worse and worse. The apex of the cone is at the center of the earth, and there is Lucifer. Dante emerges on the other side of the world. There is a cone-shaped mountain with a winding stair-case at the top of which is the Garden of Eden. All seeds of life go to the Garden, die there, and are reborn, all but the human. The process of Dante's descent and ascent takes three days, beginning on Good Friday, ending on Easter Sunday.

In Eliot's "Ash Wednesday" similar imagery is employed. The winding stair connects wider ness, (at the bottom) with Eden, (at the top). Yeats is also fascinated by the winding stair, cone, or spiral.

Although Eliot and Yeats employ the same structure of imagery, their attitudes are reversed. Eliot, the orthodox Christian, desires to reach the top of the stairs; Yeats, a man much preoccupied with the occult, wants to stop mid-way and appraise his situation.

Conflicts Depicted In a poem entitled "Soul and Self," the conflict between the two concepts of rebirth presented in Yeats is revealed. The soul looks up toward heaven and sanctification, but the self wants to remain in the world, and "Among the School Children" also displays this argument.

Wallace Stevens holds an advantage over both Eliot and Yeats. Stevens uses the same structure of imagery, but he does not project them into a religious, political, or philosophical point of view. He is pure poetry. In a poem called "The Motive for Metaphysics" Stevens shows that the sub-human world does not converse with the human and that nothing in it responds to humanity. The motive for metaphor, thus, is to give the physical world human form.

THE ROTUNDA

VOL. VLI

Longwood College, Farmville, Va., December 12, 1962

No. 9

FBLA Groups To Compete For Award

Mr. F. W. Sarford, President of the First National Bank of Farmville has offered a $25 government bond to the winner of the public speaking contest to take place during the annual regional meeting of the Future Business Leaders of America, to be held March 9, 1963, in the Student Building here. Dr. M. L. Landrum, Advisor said that this was the eleventh consecutive year that the First National Bank has given a $25 bond.

The winner of this contest will be eligible to compete in April at the State finals to be held in Richmond. The State winner will be eligible to compete during the National Convention to be held at Dallas, Texas, in June.

Representatives from FBLA chapters are expected to attend from Appomattox High School, Appomattox; Cumberland High School, Cumberland; Crowe High School, Crowe; Dan River High School, Ringgold; E. C. Glass High School, Lynchburg; George Washington High School, Danville; George Wythe High School, Richmond; Halifax County High School, South Boston; and Manchester High School, Richmond.

Also represented will be Midlothian High School, Midlothian; Midway High School, Church Road; Montvale High School, Montvale; Nelson County High School, Lovingsburg; Powhatan High School, Powhatan; Prince George High School, Prince George; Renan High School, Gresham; and Sunnyside-McKenney High School, McKenney.

Spring Play

Monday, December 10, 1962, the Longwood Players chose Leo Nickolayevich Tolstoy's The Power of Darkness for their spring production. The production will be presented the 14, 15, and 16th of March.

Arnold Selected For Editorship Of LC Handbook

Junior Donna Arnold was nominated and accepted by the student body as editor of the 1963-64 handbook.

As editor, Donna must see that the handbook is ready for distribution to the Freshmen in the late summer. Donna plans to appoint a committee to aid her in compiling the book.

Donna is majoring in French and Spanish and is planning to teach upon graduation.

DONNA ARNOLD

AKG Door Decoration Contest Presents Prizes In Competition

Winners of the annual door decoration contest have been announced by the judges. This contest is sponsored by Alpha Kappa Gamma, and awards are given for the most original and the most beautiful religious doors in Ruffner, Tabb and Student, Post Office, the Cummings, and Wheeler. First, second, and honorable mention prizes are given for the most outstanding halls. Judges this year were Miss Leitch, Miss Draper, Donna Frantzen, and Linda Hahn.

Winning doors in Ruffner belong to Karen Morris, Mary Hale and Jeannie Harmon (Ruffner 84) and to Faye Carter, Mamie Harrell, and Kathy Harrell (Ruffner 139). Tabb 44 and Tabb 101 won awards for Lynn Schaefer, and Ann Douglas, Judy Cooper, and Marsha Spitzer. Post Office winners were Royce Rankin and Nancy Barnes in room number 66.

Best decorators in the Cummings were Beth Goodwin and Carol Robertson in South Cunningham 323 and Harriet Brooks and Virginia Sturgis in South Cunningham 103. Shirley Fleming and Lucy Ferrell (Wheeler 329) and Shirley Harrison and Lurline Robertson (Wheeler 103) won in Wheeler. Hall awards went to Third Floor Student, South Cunningham Basement, and West End of Second Floor South Cunningham.

Double Door Decoration

Longwood doors come alive with Santa's workshop, the Christmas story, and varied designs.

Freshman Beverly Margrove decorates doors of Ruffner "K" and "L" for Christmas.

Students Portray Christmas Spirit In Story 'As The Prophet Foretold'

By Theresa Albright

Week of rehearsing and planning will be rewarded tomorrow night at 10 p. m. in Jarman when the Christmas pageant, As the Prophet Foretold, will be presented. This year, the pageant promises to be slightly different from those in the past.

There will be no narrator for this pageant, the entire production being in play form. It presents the story of Christmas from the viewpoint of the prophet Reuben, who foretells the birth of Christ. When he realizes that the day has come, he travels to Bethlehem to worship the child.

For the first time in about five years, a member of the Hampden-Sydney Jongleurs will be part in the pageant. Dave Rejesus will play the leading role of Reuben.

Cast Announced

Other members of the cast include Mary Lynn Lander as Joseph and Anne Ferrell Smith as the boy. Also taking part will be Kay Calron, Lynn McCutchen, Mary Caahon, Mary Ann Hankin, Margaret Wright, Sandra Ashworth as shepherds and Carol Gibson, Dottie Cox, and Dana Brewer as the wise men.

Miss Reilly's chorus class will provide the musical background featuring a solo by Maria Konovaloff.

Supervising from behind the scenes will be Betty Ann Atkinson, director; Pat Spies, stage manager; Marcia Segfried, assistant stage manager; and Sandy Waugh, technical director.

A very important part of the pageant is the tableau for which secures the Madonna will have a new robe. The robe itself is of rose dusterproof taffeta and the head covering is of blue taffeta. Blue was chosen to represent purity and rose to represent Mary's premonition of Christ's life.

Today students voted for the girl they felt most worthy to portray the Madonna. Students may have questioned why there were more names on the ballot than usual. The Y-Cabinet decided that it was better not to limit the number of candidates. Therefore, each member of the Cabinet was asked to submit a list of the girls she thought deserved of the honor. In order to get other viewpoints, the Cabinet also requested that each officer of the senior class turn in a similar list. The compiled list of these names appeared on the ballot.

To get everyone into the spirit of Christmas, the YWCA will sponsor carolling Thursday night after dinner, as in the past, the carollers will visit the hospital and the homes of faculty members. Betty Ann Rex will lead the group and everyone is invited to join in.

'Y' Christmas Pageant

Tomorrow night's Christmas Pageant director Betty Ann Atkinson prepares directions for final rehearsal.

Scholar-Author Kang Speaks In Assembly

By Nancy Mowrey

Dr. Younghill Kang, eminent lecturer, scholar, and author spoke to a Longwood audience in Jarman Hall on December 6. Dr. Kang's lecture topic was "The Psychology of East and West."

In his lecture Dr. Kang compared the arts of the Orient with those of the West. He attributed America's greatness to the classics of literature which it produced, not American politics. Western culture got a great deal from Hellenistic and Roman cultures; likewise, the Oriental cultures are traceable to Chinese origins. Confucius was not an original thinker, said Dr. Kang, but a transmitter of ancient ideas.

Describes Orient

Dr. Kang gave examples describing the husband-wife relationship. Chinese law, and justice. To illustrate the difference in the Oriental mind, he used a short tale from Confucius. An emperor is both an Emperor and a son to his father. If his father committed murder, the emperor would have to order his father's arrest. Then the son would discard his robe of office and take his father away to safety.

Commercial intercourse between the East and West was not at all common at the time of Alexander, but it was always on an economic level. The exchanges were material—never intellectual. One adaptation Dr. Kang mentioned was that of "Cinderella." Originally the story was Chinese. The French borrowed the original story; the English version is a translation from the French.

Like Wolfe

Dr. Kang considers Thomas Wolfe to be the most vital, vigorous of American writers, even though he never learned to organize his works well or to use perfect English. Hemingway though he used structurally perfect English, had nothing to say, feels Dr. Kang.

Dr. Kang, a Korean by birth, was educated not only in his native Orient, but in Europe and the Americas as well. In his background Dr. Kang has held positions on the faculties of several universities here and in the Orient including the presidency of Tsinghua University College in Peking, and professor of English at Oyster Bay's Long Island University. Dr. Kang has also served on the staff of the Encyclopedia Britannica, Metropolitan Museum of Art, and Yale University Library.

A recipient of the Guggenheim Award in creative literature and several European literary prizes Dr. Kang has written many books. Among them are The Grass Root, East Goes West and The Happy Grove.

Humor, Songs, Highlight Bub And Travis Concert

Bud and Travis appeared here for Senior Weekend last Saturday, giving the audience a two-hour concert of folk music and surprises.

The surprises were outgrowths of the personalities, themselves, whose stage manner was as natural as that exhibited off stage. During the performance, they were straightforward, enjoying themselves, and yet totally professional. Backstage, they smashed the show-business image students had preconceived of them. Both were considerate, understanding, and appreciative of their technical assistance.

They had a refreshing brightness about them as they asked interested questions concerning the school, calling the student body "friendly" after meeting several girls. Staying to give autographs and to discuss their travels and the college, the singers headed — an hour after their planned departure — for a 9 p.m. performance in Washington, D. C.

The quality of the performance was unquestionably top-notch, both singers' voices blending well to complement each other, and the harmony was perfect. The audience also saw and heard some excellent instrumental accompaniment from the Spanish guitars they played.

Regis Purchases Works By Ross

Eight woodblock prints, the work of Miss Annie Lee Ross, Associate Professor of Art at Longwood, have been purchased and presented to Regis College in Denver, Col.

The prints were purchased by Miss Mary Browne, of Norton, Kan., a personal friend of Miss Ross's, whom she met while she was teaching art there.

They were presented jointly in Miss Ross's and Miss Browne's names to Father Ryan, President of the College.

The eight prints are of various subjects and are on permanent display in the recently completed library at Regis. Regis is a Jesuit School for undergraduate men.

TRAVIS EDMONDSON

BOB DASHIELL

We Want Letters

Taking into consideration the probability that many of the student body may feel as does the author of the first letter in column six of this page, we hope that the outcome of the proposal concerning the change of rush seasons will not necessitate further hushing of the question, here. We would like to reply, not only the above-mentioned letter, but to the one which appears below it in column six.

First, the justification for our devoting of editorial space to this question for a series of weeks is based on our desire to see rectified a problem caused by the system of which we have advocated change. We can cover any issue pertaining to the college, whether it affects as small a group as a club or as large a body as the Y. W. C. A., encompassing all the students. We did this, recently, in regard to Sophomore Production, which involved one class. In this case, the question was the concern of the whole student body, if they were so inclined. Too often students are not so inclined about any issue.

Second, at the beginning of this academic year, we published a statement of policy which included an invitation to students to write letters. To reiterate, we welcome—not only welcome, but encourage letters, regardless of their viewpoint. When we can be shown another aspect of an issue, we are the happier for being enlightened. When students do not voice their views, their silence is yet another blow against their cause.

Third, we have the right and the duty to publish our opinion, be it on a mimeographed sheet or freedom of the press in this question. But contrary to popular conception, this is not the newspaper of the staff, alone. We share it jointly with the rest of the college. We each have space to have our say. While quibbling about denial of rights, most of the student body is failing to take advantage of one of their very obvious rights—the right to expression of opinion.

Stop, Look, And Think

Before you finish reading this, if you do when you realize it concerns highway safety, your mind probably will have begun to wander to some other topic. And in little more than the time required to read this, another motorist or pedestrian will be killed or injured somewhere in the U. S. because his mind wandered, for one of the many reasons that people have traffic accidents.

During the holidays, you will see many reminders from the Governor's Highway Safety Committee urging you to drive safely. The state is constantly exhorting its people to be careful with their own lives. Why? It is not because the 856 traffic deaths in Virginia last year made any big dent in the tax collector's coffers, but because these who were killed and the 29,235 who were injured, were a tremendous loss in terms of contributions they may have made to human worth and progress.

Students are considered to be citizens who have yet much to give to their communities. If this potential lies untapped—six fit under—due to careless driving during the holidays when we all rush out to take over the family car, the state will lose, and so will the families.

We will be asked not to be a statistic, admonished that "careless driving is kid stuff," and warned by various other catchy phrases that, somehow, aren't easily remembered when behind the wheel of a car. Instead, we can make up our own jokes, determine to fulfill the purpose for our being, and most important of all, enumerate while driving a car our own individual reasons for wanting to live.

Class President Writes Opinions Concerning Activities Proposals

Dear Editor,

I feel that enough was not said by the senior class as a class concerning the student activities proposal. The senior class as for the proposal as it was presented in the assembly, so because we are apathetic some we are leaving, but because we have seen the hard-earned suffered by people in our class. There were those who were elected officers of important organizations, even though they had low-grade averages. In some cases, the burden of these responsibilities dropped their grades even lower. It was actually selfish of our class to ask these people to accept these positions under such circumstances.

There are also those who are struggling towards graduation, now because they are trying to fulfill their obligations to numerous organizations, some of which they would not have been able to join if this system had been in force during their stay at Longwood.

It is a shame that the junior class has to suffer the change from one system to another, but the change must be made, for Longwood to have standards which will be respected. If there are people who have come this far and do not have a fairly good grade average, then they should be given the chance to keep their grades suitable for graduation and not be burdened down with extra responsibilities.

The seniors are by no means apathetic! They are anxious to see Longwood improved, and perhaps feel that though they are not yet women of the world, they have learned from experience. They hope that the rest of the student body will take this chance to act with the maturity and emotional stability that they ought to display as college women.

Sincerely,
Alice White

Entered as second class matter at the Post Office at Farmville, Virginia under the Act of Congress on March 3, 1931. Represented for national advertising by the National Advertising Service, Printed by the Farmville Herald.

Distillation

By Donna Humphlett

Study hour. Relatively quiet halls. Phone rings. Piercing scream. Noise buzzing from the phone booth. Quiet again. Hours pass. Start begins to blur. A break. Perhaps, a walk around the block. Dashed in a wait. He has waited a long time. Twenty minutes won't matter.

Outside. Black Cold. A band plays somewhere west of the dorm. Good sound. Walk in its direction. Just close enough to hear.

Buzz of collective chatter. Loud talk. Music. Repetition. Like the dawn. Always. The dorm. Return. Studies must be completed. Thought of tomorrow. Back to studies.

Tomorrow. What will they do? Not they. The others, the younger ones at home. Tomorrow. Repetition of all preceding days.

Tomorrow. Clean room. Attend class. Return books to library.

Now back to the books. Good thing it's not too long before Christmas vacation.

DR. ROSE F. SPICOLA

Spicola Joins Education Staff As Instructor, Supervisor

By Marcia Stedried

A new professor in the education department has joined Longwood's faculty this year. Dr. Rose Spicola, a native of Florida, is teaching Language Arts, and Principles of Elementary Education; next semester she hopes to be teaching a course in reading methods for seniors. Dr. Spicola is also a supervisor for the student teachers in Roanoke, a new experience for her and one which she finds "very interesting."

She attended Sophie Newcomb

College in New Orleans where she majored in psychology, and from there she attended Florida State College where she obtained her Master's degree and eventually her doctorate. Her specialty being Language Arts, Elementary Education, and Reading. Dr. Spicola is certified in many divisions of Education. Her past experiences are evidences of this versatility. She has taught in public schools in Michigan, has held the position of Reading Supervisor in one of its counties and has taught English and Basic Education at the University of Southern Florida in Tampa for two years. In addition, this past summer she supervised a reading workshop in Michigan where she "saw more of Michigan than most of the natives had."

Beside education, traveling is her primary interest. Having traveled in almost all the states, in France, in Mexico, and in Cuba "before Castro came," she has set as her next goal a visit to those few remaining unvisited states, then Europe, and eventually even a trip around the world. Mrs. Spicola speaks three foreign languages—Spanish, Italian, and "some" French.

Strangely enough, it was her interest in traveling which indirectly resulted in her coming to Longwood. When she was traveling through Virginia last year and "admiring what a beautiful state it was," she remarked how she would like to teach in this state, besides "it would be a change from teaching in Florida." "I heard about a position offered here at Longwood which interested me: I applied, was accepted and here I am."

Dr. Spicola is especially fascinated by the distinct difference in the seasons, the leaves changing color the snow, and "this cold weather," all being practically unknown to her in Florida where she has spent most of her life.

A true advocate of Education, Dr. Spicola considers teaching as the most responsible and challenging profession, yet also the most rewarding. She is a member of the National Education Association, considers Longwood as an excellent institution for teacher-preparation and is quite excited about being a part of it.

Paper Stresses Minority Groups, Letter States

Dear Editor,

I feel that the Rotunda, as the school paper, should be used as a medium for the expression of the minority groups. The Rotunda is only a minority group. I think that the editorial section should not be used week after week fighting for or against them. There are certainly other subjects that should be explained that would be of interest to the school as a whole.

Flora Bessard

Student Urges More Letters To 'Rotunda'

Dear Editor,

It seems that many members of the student body are in quite a hurry to appear in the editorials published in the Rotunda and letters to the editor. Perhaps this feeling is justified.

However, I feel that the Rotunda is to function as the voice of the students. Since only a limited number of students take advantage of their opportunity to voice their opinions in the Rotunda, it becomes the duty of the Editor and her staff not only to keep the student body informed but to arouse the student interest in major issues. Granted, accomplishing this end sometimes necessitates resorting to what may appear as unbecoming sarcasm or cutting remarks, but actually people pay more attention and respond more actively to something when it's not so flat or "out and dried." Therefore, I would consider such tactics as necessary evils employed in an effort to

(Continued on page 4)

Lankford Offers Letter With Views Of Pakistan

November 20, 1962
We left Farmville last June 11 and have had many exciting experiences these past five months. We flew to Los Angeles, and then on to Honolulu, Tokyo, Manila, Hong Kong and Bangkok. We reached Karachi, West Pakistan on June 29. While there we went with friends to their cottage on the Arabian Sea and had a camel ride along the beach and bought fresh lobsters for dinner. After three days, we flew back across India to Dacca in East Pakistan, which has been home for us since.

We arrived during the monsoon. It rained almost every day—not just showers, but heavy rains. This continued through September. By August, much of East Pakistan was under water, and millions of people were forced from their homes by the floods. We saw many of these unfortunate people and they were a tragic sight indeed. The United States sent a lot of wheat and the Pakistan Government distributed rice stored for such an emergency. Floods come every monsoon, but this year they were worse than usual.

During August I flew to Sylhet in the northeast area of East Pakistan to visit two of the 20 pilot secondary schools which are one of our projects. This is near the border with India in Assam Province where there is the heaviest rainfall of any place in the world. In Sylhet they have 16 inches a year, and nearly all of this falls in the five monsoon months. Sylhet is the region of tea gardens—beautifully green slopes where hundreds of women "pluck" the tea leaves by hand every day, whether it is raining or not.

Early in August we went to Murree, a resort in the foothills of the Himalayan Mountains of West Pakistan to attend a conference of heads of Ford Foundation projects.

(Continued on Page 4)

Brittle Submits Yuletide Story In English Class

The following story was submitted to Dr. Carson Gibb as course work in Freshman English.

By Cheryl Brittle

It is Xmas Eve all over the town of Pagonia, and a light snow has frosted the countryside. Now it is a silent night. The little houses are quiet and no lights shine. The children are asleep snug in their beds and their stockings are hung by the chimney. Cookies and milk for Santa and carrots for the holy reindeer have been set out on the sacrificial table. All is in readiness for the arrival of Santa.

As quietly as the holy reindeer, the parents tip-toe outside and gather in front of the clausula to complete the Xmas festivities. The clausula, a replica of Santa's workshop is painted red and green. Each man removes his hat as he enters the holy place, and he kneels as Santa's helper offers him a piece of Xmas pudding and a sip of eggnog in remembrance

(Continued on page 4)

Jeffers Praises 'No Production' Justification

Editor, The Rotunda,

Nancy Mowrey's explanation of why the Sophomore Class is giving up its customary "Production" Rotunda, Dec. 5, deserves comment. To kill an out-worn custom by ballot instead of permitting it to die a natural death is something rarely encountered; to run the risk of losing that illusory something called "Class Spirit," and to have the courage to buck tradition (any fool thing repeated three times) are more remarkable. But when they offer as reason for such action the necessity for more time for study—how will they ever live it down!

I think the sophomores are to be commended for giving us this evidence of corporate sanity among our students. Is it too much to hope that this tiny cloud, no bigger than a man's hand, will spread and that ultimately it may come to encompass our equally-enclaved faculty?

Geo. Jeffers

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

STUDY ASSIGNMENTS FOR FINALS

Classes To Compete In Volleyball, Basketball

By Lefty Snyder

Sounds of "side out" and "Traveling, Blue" will soon be heard in both our old and new gyms as practices for the class old gym on Tuesday and Thursday at 4 p.m. After Christmas, there will be four practices a week: Monday and Wednesday at 4 p.m. in the new gym and Tuesday and Thursday at 4 p.m. in the old gym.

Managers Active

Both "Bouch" and Melody are physical education majors. A junior from Rust, "Butch" has served on the A. A. Council for two years, and has participated in all class sports. Melody, a Dean's List student from Danville, has also been active in the Athletic Association. She has played varsity hockey, basketball and archery and is now serving on the A. A. Council.

Directing the class basketball competition are junior physical education majors Shirley Metcalf and Sharon Sarver. A volleyball practice has been scheduled for Tuesday and Thursday at 2 p.m. in the old gym. Additions to this practice schedule will be posted on the A. A. bulletin board.

EMMA MCDANIEL

volleyball and basketball games begin this week.

Class basketball managers Emma "Butch" McDaniel and Melody Saunders have announced that practices will begin this week. They will be held in the

MELODY SAUNDERS

Sports Review

World's Record, Basketball Head Sports News

By Sandra Jamison

Basketball dominated the news of the sports world with collegiate games throughout the state.

Favored Virginia Tech came through with a 76-68 victory over the University of Richmond. Sports Tech's Frank Alvis led both teams in scoring with a total of eighteen points.

William and Mary defeated Hampden-Sydney in the final twelve minutes of the game with a score of 77-64. The Tigers turned the tables Thursday with a Mason-Dixon Conference victory over Bridgewater. The final score was 127-74, the second highest score ever recorded by a Tiger team.

In a Little Eight and Mason-Dixon Conference game, Randolph-Macon's Yellow Jackets took a 90-51 victory over Lynchburg's Hornets. The score was tied three times before ten points were made, but then Randolph-Macon pulled away for the ultimate victory.

On Thursday, Bill Murray, coach of Duke's Atlantic Coast Conference champions, was named ACC coach of the year. This is the third time Coach Murray has been named for this honor.

Emory and Henry, Washington and Lee, and Hampden-Sydney each won three spots on a 1962 Virginia All-Small College football team. The squad was chosen by the Associated Press after conferences with the coaches of the state's six small college clubs. These players chosen from Hampden-Sydney were Otis Bradley, tackle, Fred Mitchell, back, and Lewis Everett, back. Honorable mention went to Joey Vary and Ken Pritchett.

A new world's record was set when Maurice Chamberland, champion woman distance runner from New Zealand, ran the mile in 4 minutes, 41 seconds.

SHIRLEY METCALF

Basketball Heads

Shirley and Sharon have been active members of the A. A. council since their Sophomore year, and both are members of the H2O Club. Shirley has also been a member of the varsity hockey team. Sharon, who comes from Roanoke, has played varsity hockey and basketball.

Want to win the color cup this year? Support your class teams!

SHARON SARVER

French Movie

"Le Rouge et le Noir," a French movie with English subtitles, will be shown in Jarman Hall January 4 at 7:30 p. m. Tickets may be purchased from any member of the French Club or at the door for 30c.

Timely Topics

India To Fight Until China Withdraws

By Karen Rader

The conflict between India and China is still undecided. Although China has withdrawn from some of India's northeast territory, India says she will fight China until her land is completely cleared of Chinese troops.

Photographs taken of the Soviet ship, Okhotsk, revealed that the first three Russian jet bombers have been removed from Cuba. It had been announced that Russia had sent Cuba thirty. Also, later reports have been received that dismantling of the rest of the jets on Cuba has begun.

Last Sunday, a highly confidential meeting was held in Chicago to discuss the possible nomination of Senator Barry S. Goldwater of Arizona for President. Their objective was quoted to be "to get an honest-to-God conservative Republican candidate for President."

The Defense Department has proposed a reorganization of reserve and National Guard units. This is the plan: four reserve and four National Guard divisions, plus 731 smaller units would be dropped. Here in Virginia, they propose to inactivate 94 reserve units, activate 10, reorganize four and relocate 26. The governors of the affected states refused to comment on the proposal until they had studied the details further.

At the seventy-one nation disarmament conference held last Tuesday, Soviet delegate Semeyon Tsarapkin killed all hopes for an emergency nuclear test ban agreement for 1962. Tsarapkin told the committee that "there will never be any agreement" until the West stopped demanding inspections of suspicious underground disturbances.

London's death toll reached 106 as the end of a poisonous fog which had covered it since last Tuesday, approached. Hospitals in London have been on alert constantly. The only people enjoying the smog are the criminals who, taking advantage of inability to see, smashed into everything and stole thousands of pounds worth of jewelry, furs, and radios.

Governor Harrison has given the OK sign for the project to avert Virginia's 1962 General Assembly redistricting acts. He announced that he hoped to get a "day and reversal of the nullification of the acts handed down by the United States Supreme Court."

CHRISTMAS GIFTS!

Bibles-Revised, King James

The New English Bible ..... $4.95

Leaves of Gold ..... $3.95-$7.50

Christmas Ideals ..... 50c-$1.50

Prayers for Peace ..... $1.00

Prayers of Jesus, Cushman ..... $1.75

Marshall, C., Beyond Ourselves ..... $4.95

Hoover, The Study of Communism ..... $3.95

You Can't Win, Charlie Brown ..... $1.00

Angels in Pinofores ..... $2.25

Heaven in My Hand ..... $2.25

Wide Collection Civil War Books All Prices

The New Joy of Cooking ..... $4.95

Best Sellers, Poetry Collections

Children's Books and Games

Webster's New Collegiate Dictionary ..... $5.00 up

Christmas Cards, Stationery

(Gifts Wrapped Free)

WEYANOKE BOOK SHOP

Ground Floor Hotel Weyanoke

LC Varsity Basketball Team Elects Co-Captains For '62 - '63

By Barbara Agee

The 1962-63 Varsity Basketball team has been chosen after try-outs during the past two weeks. Twelve new players will join six returning team members in playing for the blue and white.

Managerial duties for the team have been given to sophomores, Lurline Robertson and Carrie Lee Wilson. Both girls are physical education majors and both have had many years of basketball experience. Lurline said that "each member of the team has shown enthusiasm and willingness to work. I believe the prospects for a successful season are favorable."

Those returning are: Shirley Carr, Norma Eudy, Doris Harrison, Lurline Robertson, Melody Saunders, and Carrie Lee Wilson.

New players selected for the team are: Lynn Baker, Margie Barnard, Nevis Born, Lisa Cobbs, Phyllis Collins, Earlene Lang, and Sarah Jane Lynch. Also playing will be Nancy Moorefield, Barbara Ragland, Judy Squires, Frances Stewart, and Betsy Page Taylor.

It is interesting to note that practically half of the team is composed of freshmen. This fresh new enthusiasm, combined with the experience of the returning players should make this year's Longwood team spark. Student support of the team is asked by all its members. One girl has said, "It's a wonderful feeling to be out on the court and know that somebody out there is for us."

LURLINE ROBERTSON

CARRIE LEE WILSON

COLLEGE SHOPPE

Visit The Re-modeled

College Shoppe!

Come In And

See If You Like It!

Did you win a Tempest?

HERE ARE THE FIRST
5
WINNING NUMBERS
↓
(EQ CONSOLATION PRIZES, TOO!)

IMPORTANT! If you hold any of the 5 winning numbers, claim your Pontiac Tempest LeMans Convertible in accordance with the rules on the reverse of your license plate.

*All claims for Tempests and Consolation Prizes must be sent via registered mail, postmarked by Dec. 26, 1962 and received by the judges no later than December 31, 1962.

If you hold a consolation prize number, you win a 4-speed Portable Hi-Fi Stereo Set, "The Waiter" by RCA Victor. Or, you may still win a Tempest! See official claiming rules on reverse of your license plate, and observe claiming dates given above.)

CONSOLATION PRIZE NUMBERS

1. B159345
2. A063168
3. C625641
4. B898060
5. C479646
6. C233412
7. C375972
8. B398344
9. A487788
10. A121605

L&M GRAND PRIX 50

Sweepstakes for colleges only

More than 50 times the chance to win than if open to the general public.

45 Tempests to go!

Get set for the next lap... 10 more Tempests and 15 more consolation prizes! Pick up an entry blank where you buy cigarettes. Enter now—enter often. Any entry received by January 18th can win one of the 45 Tempests still to go! Of course, entries you've already submitted are still in the running!

EXCLUSIVE FOR THE GIRLS!

If you win a Tempest you may choose instead a thrilling escape—paid 2 week Holiday in Europe—for two! Plus $500 in cash!

Get with the winners... far ahead in smoking satisfaction!

See the Pontiac Tempest at your nearby Pontiac Dealer!

Freshman Views 'Santa' Tradition In Xmas Allegory

(Continued from page 2)

of the first Xmas. Then the crowd moves across town to the main square where a tremendous Xmas tree stands. It is magnificently decorated with red and green lights and the very top of the tree has no star. The townsfolk kneel before this holy tree and pray in unison. 'Twas the night before Xmas when all through the house...

The crowd rises as Santa's helper arrives and drags to the platform a man who professes to be a Christian. The people become excited by this hated sight and begin to chant: You'd better watch out, You'd better not cry, You'd better not pout, I'm telling you why, Santa Claus is coming to town.

The Christian is dressed in rage and is exhausted. The Pagonians caught him up in the mountains the night before while he was building something called a creche for some sacred religious ceremony. His trial begins as Santa's helper questions the man.

"Do you believe in Xmas?" "I believe in Christmas, which celebrates the birth of Christ." "Will you recite our prayer on your knees?"

"No." "Do you believe that Santa is the giver of all perfect gifts?" "I believe that God is the giver of such gifts."

"Will you worship Santa as we do and celebrate his coming?" "I await the coming of Christ, then will I rejoice."

"Will you help decorate the holy tree?"

"No," replied the Christian. But this poor Christian does help decorate the Xmas tree in Pagonia. They nail him to boards, paint him silver, and begin to hoist him to the top of the tree. "And a new star arose in the east..."

SOUTHSIDE SUNDRY CO., INC.

8 Exposures of Film
Processed and Developed

39c

Christmas Spirit Prevails

Christmas preparations evident on all parts of campus. Upper left, tree in Rotunda sparkles under blinking lights. Right, Three candles decorate typical dorm door. Bottom.

Gathered around tree singing Christmas carols are L. to R. Carol Combs, Dottie Kaiser, Barbara Sears and Lynn McCutcheon.

Seasonal Spirit Prevails Here During Similar Celebrations

(Continued from page 2)

1920 — NATIVISM SWEEPS COUNTRY — But on the campus of the State Normal School for Women, students are buzzing around, busily making plans for Christmas Week, December 13-18.

On Monday night, the girls will listen to Miss Minnie Rice read "The Other Wise Man." Tuesday night the program will center around "The Celebration of Christmas in Other Lands."

The talk planned for Wednesday night is entitled "Dust of the Road." Also planned is a program telling about the "Hanging of the Greens." Special morning watches will be held the last three days of the week. And finally, the Social Service Committee of the YWCA will visit a needy family at the end of the week.

1921 — YOUTH REBEL AGAINST OLD MORAL CODE — Christmas Week this year runs from December 12 to December 20. Besides a program on Christmas in other lands and the "Hanging of the Greens," a miracle play will be given. The girls are also looking forward to caroling the faculty. Again, Miss Minnie Rice will read "The Other Wise Man."

1922 — BOOM UNDERWAY — In addition to the traditional caroling and hanging of the green, a glee club program of Christmas music has been planned this year. And a talk will be given on "Christ's Ideals for Children in Industry."

1923 — COOLIDGE ASSUMES PRESIDENCY — Tradition will prevail in the Normal School's celebration of Christmas. Miss Rice will read "The Other Wise Man," and of course, there will be the hanging of the green and caroling and story telling.

1924 — KU KLUX KLAN AT PEAK OF POWER — Again, Miss Rice will read the story of "The Other Wise Man." A Rotunda reporter has said, "Miss Rice tells this story with much feeling and expression. You can almost see Artisan as he tells his friends of his belief in the coming of a new light and truth."

Another tradition is the hanging of the green. This year Miss Shelton will tell how The Spirit of Joy bade all to follow her in the distribution of the green.

1925 — LAND CHEAP IN FLORIDA — The lead for the December 19 issue of the Rotunda is Miss Rice's telling of "The Other Wise Man." Caroling the faculty and the hanging of the green will also be part of the State Teachers College celebration of Christmas.

1926 — MELLON IN REPEAL OF GIFT TAX — Again, Miss Rice's story and caroling will be among the Christmas festivities. Amidst the festivities, STC students are busily making plans for their holiday at home.

1927 — SACCO, VENZETTI EXECUTED — This year a December Circus seems almost to take precedence over the traditional festivities. But there is a Christmas week. Money will be donated by the various campus organizations for the Crippled Children's Hospital in Richmond. A pageant, "Why the Chimes Rang," will also be given.

1928 — HOOVER ELECTED — Caroling, hanging of the green, and a Christmas play are planned for the celebration of Christmas. In addition, there will also be a White Christmas gift.

1929 — MARKET FAILS — While Christmas, a program given by the school orchestra, and a pageant are planned. There will also be special Morning Watches for STC students.

Now back to the present and the London fog, the China-India conflict and infatuation. A college campus even today seems oblivious to the world at Christmas time.

Lankford Describes Pakistani Politics

(Continued from page 2)

has appeared almost overnight. The Pakistanis are very sensitive over the Kashmir issue. They think the U. S. should have insisted, as a condition of arms aid, that India agree to a plebiscite in Kashmir. They don't trust India and fear that she is really building military strength, with the help of the West, to use against Pakistan. They say the conflict with China is merely a border clash, but that India is magnifying the gravity of the situation in order to frighten the West into sending her military aid.

And so it goes. It is an exciting time we are having, but we get terribly homesick for Longwood and eagerly look forward to the time we will be back with you. This afternoon, twenty-two of the women students from Dacca University came over for tea. They live across the street from us in a house the University rented. We showed them some slides of Longwood and answered their many questions about our college and life in the United States. This made us feel more at home than anything we have done here. If any of you have time to write us the Longwood news, our address is: 717-D Dhanmandi Dacca 2, East Pakistan Sincerely, Frank Lankford

In September we took a week end visit to Calcutta. We were unfortunate in having especially heavy rains, but we enjoyed shopping again. Mrs. Lankford bought some saris which you must have seen in the window when we get back home; and I bargained for a hand-carved Kashmiri walnut coffee table.

In October I began visiting pilot schools again; for now the rains had stopped almost completely — and the weather was much cooler. One of my trips was by boat on the Maghna River which runs south from Dacca to the Bay of Bengal. This was a beautiful trip on a cloudless day with a gentle breeze blowing — just enough to fill the sails of the boats loaded with jute and headed for market. Village life along the river was fascinating to see.

You can imagine that we will have many tales to tell about our experiences when we get back to Longwood. Most of them have been quite pleasant, but a few have been very disturbing. For example, there were student strikes all through July, August and September protesting against the recommendations of a National Education Commission. The chief subject of complaint was the increase in the requirement for the A. B. degree from two years to three. Primary school covers grades 1-5; secondary 6-10; and then comes intermediate grades 11 and 12 taken in the colleges. After two more years a student may secure a Bachelor's degree. Finally, on September 17, there was a general strike, accompanied by some violence and bloodshed. Shortly after this, the Government granted the student requests for the lower requirements — a tragic continuation of distressingly low standards.

More recently, demonstrations have started protesting arms aid to India given by the United States and Great Britain to be used in the conflict with China. Much anti-American sentiment

Student Asks 'Rotunda' Staff For Statements

(Continued from page 2)

attract attention to the issue and reduce what often appears as a passive attitude among some students. Is this correct? I feel like many students are not aware of the fact that they are entitled to voice their opinions in the Rotunda. As I understand it, this is a privilege which is not restricted to the Editor and her staff alone. Is this not so?

Recently, we all have been made aware of the force an expression of opinion can have. The thing that we as students must do is to encourage the expression of opinion on both sides of an issue in a manner which is conducive to sound thinking and clear reasoning rather than emotional appeal, alone.

This is easily accomplished by taking advantage of our opportunity to voice our opinions by writing letters to the editor rather than discussing issues among ourselves, where our voice is heard only in small groups.

If possible, would you and your staff please comment on the questions which I have posed above?

Brenda Isabel

Plans For Campus Fallout Shelters Under Proposals Of Committee

(Continued from page 2)

the pit of the stomach. Day students went home right after the first signal. For them, as well as the others, there was an hour at least an hour.

Go Into Shelter In a matter of minutes everyone was quietly walking to the shelter in the building. The fire marshals became Civil Defense marshals, and a faculty volunteer joined those in the shelter. There were no trained people — that is, no one person was responsible for everything, but everyone knew about everything that had to be done. One of the first to reach the shelter cut off the valve of the water supply to keep any radiation from seeping in.

In that one hour there were many things to do. All the necessary equipment was checked out — the 15-day food water supply (assuming that all radiation would fall by then, but depending on what kind of bomb and where it hit), air-filter system, toilet facilities, battery-operated radios, diesel-operated generators for light. First aid equipment, intercom, campus communications, cooking units and utensils, a radiation detector, sealing materials for doors and windows — and for later on, entertainment — to keep everyone occupied was taken.

Think Of Families Perhaps the same thoughts were going through every girl's mind — what about my family? But after the initial shock of the siren and first hour, it was time to really think clearly. Families wouldn't worry knowing things were taken care of here, and there was no panic.

Later on, as the days went by, most girls couldn't remember very well how it was the day "it" happened. Only that it was just like any other.

Next semester will probably see the student body actually going through the above actions. It is all part of a detailed proposal on what would take place on this campus should there be an enemy attack on the U. S. It is not far-fetched, but realistic, and those working on the proposal plan to carry it to almost perfection. Naturally problems will arise, but these are problems that are unforeseen to the human mind.

Longwood To Pioneer When such a proposal actually becomes a reality, it will be a model plan for all other colleges in the state. Longwood will be the pioneer.

Who are those responsible for this plan? Mr. Allen of the public relations office is at the head of the planning group. Mr. Wambsgans and Mr. Henderson are in charge of shelter areas and related plans. Mr. Clark is responsible for the food supply and Dr. Brooks is serving as psychologist.

Pioneer must make the right choice. After thinking about this proposal which is underway, any suggestions, no matter how trivial they seem at present, will not be overlooked by this planning group.

OPEN WIDE and SAY A-H-H-H!
Get that refreshing new feeling with Cokes!

Bottled under authority of The Coca-Cola Company by

LYNCHBURG BOTTLING WORKS, Lynchburg, Va.

Help

Support Drive -

Give Blood

See

Proposed Changes

In Constitution

Page 4; Cols. 3, 4

THE ROTUNDA

VOL. VLI

Longwood College, Farmville, Va., January 9, 1963

No. 10

SUPPORT BLOODMOBILE

One of committee heads, Eunice Lewis, points to Bloodmobile poster encouraging students to sign up for donations.

Y, SGA Request Donors For Campus Bloodmobile

A Bloodmobile is being sponsored by the YWCA and the legislative branch of student government. The Red Cross will be on our campus February 8th, from 12 to 6 p.m. in the sophomore "tree" to take donations. The mobile is open to Longwood and Hampden-Sydney students, faculty and staff.

The "Y" and the legislative branch will not receive any profit. The Red Cross will give

Lippincott Gives Dance Lecture, Demonstration

Gertrude Lippincott, a nationally known dancer, choreographer, lecturer and educator presented a lecture - demonstration here yesterday.

Orecheis, honorary modern dance organization, sponsored Miss Lippincott. According to Joyce Waldburger, President of Orecheis, this is an event that has been in the making for three years. From money saved from other events held by the club, the project has been made possible.

Completes Tour
Miss Lippincott has just completed a Fall tour of the Pacific Northwest where she performed concerts and lecture-demonstrations and taught master classes for the Northwest Dance Symposium. Central Washington State College, the University of Washington, the Marsha Nash Studio in Seattle, the University of Idaho and the Jewish Community Center of Vancouver, British Columbia, Canada. She was in residence at the University of Idaho for two days where she was consultant for the student dance program held in December.

Miss Lippincott is a charter member of the Board of Directors of the NDAE. She is also an Executive Associate of the Dance Teachers Guild.

Dance Consultant
Miss Lippincott is presently consultant for the National Section on Dance in the area of Program Planning and Performance. She has consulted recently to Focus-on-Dance, III and was Editor of Focus-on-Dance, I, 1960. For two years she was Editor of the Dance Section (1958-1960). She is currently Director of the Dance Repertory Group of Minneapolis, in addition to being one of the members of the Dance Duo which will perform in North Dakota in April, 1963.

State Board Appropriates Funds For Closed-Circuit Television Unit

Progress on the renovation of the former Farmville Elementary School into a new education department building can already be noted.

Workmen can be seen leaving and entering the school with saws and building materials. Pulleys have for some time been lowering old lumber and discarded objects from second story windows.

Temporary Removal
Faculty offices have been temporarily moved to the basement of Lancaster Library. Many of the classes have been moved to other available classrooms; the large lecture classes to the Small Auditorium.

The date for the completion of this project has been set for August, 1963 in hopes that it will be ready for use during the fall semester.

Television Studio
The full extent of the project was fully realized in mid-December, when the State Board of Education made a $25,000 authorization for the installment of a closed circuit television system.

The money was authorized to the school for this purpose after a faculty committee presented a list of six areas of proposed use to be met with the installation of the unit. Chairman of the committee was Dr. Elizabeth Burger Jackson and the committee consisted of Miss Barksdale, Miss Allen, Dr. Johnson, and Dr. Patterson.

Studio Provisions
Provisions for a studio, control room, wiring for intercommunication between the studio and classrooms within the building and an air conditioning unit, necessary for the maintenance of this equipment, have been made and included in the estimated cost.

The teaching of junior education classes will be made more realistic through actual observation of classroom procedures via television. Both secondary and elementary classes will be brought to the building and taught in a specially constructed classroom.

Adjoining the room will be another classroom, separated from it by a one-way vision window. The other classroom will be used for observation. Television cameras set up in the room will televise the classroom to other rooms in the building.

Team Teaching
Sophomore psychology classes will experience team teaching, aided by the television system. For the large lecture classes, students will view their professor over television and the smaller discussion classes will meet with other instructors.

Demonstrations of testing procedures, clinical procedures in developmental reading and other individual group techniques will be made possible by the new system. Selected students will be prepared to teach using television as a medium.

Evaluation
Evaluation and the use of programs now available for classroom use in public schools from Richmond, Norfolk, Washington, and North Carolina can be made by prospective teachers. The system will also prove useful for developing basic skills in television teaching by faculty members.

In the future, the college may be able to train educational television specialists in speech and dramatics, and to broadcast educational programs and information to public schools in the area. Statewide facilities for an educational network are already being anticipated.

Also included in plans for the (Continued on page 3)

BAD HOUSEKEEPING?

No, the above is result of changes being made in the old Elementary School building.

The renovations will be completed by September, 1963.

Longwood Plans Self-Evaluation To Precede Reaccreditation

Since Longwood is a member of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, it is among the colleges which are this year undergoing a self-evaluation for reaccreditation. This self-evaluation occurs every ten years with every member of the faculty and most of the administration of the college aiding in some capacity.

The evaluation is a composite of what has been done in the last ten years, what the college is doing at the present, and what it hopes to accomplish in the next ten years.

The Southern Association studies the reports made by the group to see that Longwood meets the standards for accreditation. In addition, at some time during the current year representatives of the Association will visit Longwood's campus.

The purpose of the Southern Association is to improve education in southern colleges and secondary schools.

Members of the Steering Committee of the self-study group are: Mr. Magnusson, Chairman; Dr. Badger, Miss Bedford, Dr. Brooks, Mr. Leeper, Dr. Moss, and Dr. Simmon.

Students Make Tentative Plans To See 'Hamlet'

Hamlet, a Shakespearean tragedy, will be made available to Longwood students. A trip to Washington, D. C. Arena Stage is being tentatively planned for Saturday, April 20. All students interested should contact Nancy Mowrey.

Efforts are being made to secure enough tickets at the special student rate of one dollar. If sufficient special tickets are available and students wish to go, the Longwood bus will be taken for the trip.

Total cost will be small. Because it is still in the planning stage, the complete cost is as yet undetermined. Transportation will not cost more than three dollars. If the special tickets are no longer available, the price of the tickets will be $1.70 or two dollars at a reduced rate for groups. Boxed lunches are planned, making the evening meal the only additional expense. The bus will leave early Saturday morning in time for the matinee performance.

The theatre is the new Arena Stage, a theatre on the road. Hamlet will be directed by Alan Schneider with set man by Harry Weiss, the Arena Stage architect. More definite plans will be announced in the near future.

Freshmen Choose Cast, Crew For February 22 Production

The 1963 Freshman Production has been scheduled for February 22 at 9 p.m. in Jannan Auditorium. Heading up the class event are co-chairmen "Tinkle" Cleary and Sally Grayson. Directing the side is Carol Gibson and serving as stage manager is Nancy Monrofield. Olivia Gibson will serve as business manager. Tickets to Production are .50 for students and .75 for adults.

Committees have been set up and have begun work. Heading scenery are Pat Dugger and Ann Coleman; lights, Karen Ruder; music, Leif Erickson; sound, Della Anderson; and courtesy, Fran Lipford.

Ushers chairman is Jean Haynie; Prop, Frances Stewart; Costumes, Claudia Bormann; Makeup, Judy Tate and Linda Overbee; and Tickets, Martha Myster. Helen Weeks will serve as programs chairman, while Carol Hogg will head the Dance committee and Betty Garner will head props.

Acting parts have been assigned to Marcy Lemmons, Becky Knight, Nan Gregory, Kay Karon, Harriet Anderson, and Frances Stewart. Others in acting parts are Carrie Howell, Mary Ann Hankin, Jenny Turner, and Ann Ferrell Smith.

PRODUCTION HEADS

Discussing plans for the February 22 Freshman Production are Sally Grayson, co-chairman, Carol Gibson, director and "Tinkle" Cleary, co-chairman.

Producing the side is Carol Gibson and serving as stage manager is Nancy Monrofield. Olivia Gibson will serve as business manager. Tickets to Production are .50 for students and .75 for adults.

Registration

Due to the fact that students need more time to work out schedules and consult with advisors, registration has been postponed for a week. The new dates are January 14, 15, and 16.

Faculty Members Submit Articles To Publications

Three members of the English Department of Longwood College have contributed articles for reviews on subjects of interest in their respective fields. Dr. William J. Bowder has written "Emerson's Early Impact on English: A Study in British Periodicals" which appeared in the December issue of "Publications of the Modern Language Association."

The December issue of "The English Journal" included Mrs. Mildred Davis's article "A Note on Interpreting Emily Dickinson's Poetry." Mr. David W. Wiley's "Review of the Russian Theatre from the Empire to the Soviets" appeared in the December issue of the "Quarterly Journal of Speech."

Read Us, Read Books

Recently, in the course of a conversation, a student remarked that before coming to Longwood as a freshman she had planned to send for the list of recommended readings. Her not so naive assumption proved naive—there was no such list.

Another girl, in the same conversation, told of being involved in a discussion with students from her home town now attending various colleges. The topic turned to books, not the next party, college experiences, or "what-have-we-not-in-common-now?" They had much in common analyzing good novels and non-fiction they had read. The girl admits feeling stimulated and a little awed by the breadth and depth of the discussion.

Perhaps experiences similar to the two above have never happened to most of us. In the hope that students here may be moved to read something more than the required texts, we offer on this page, the first of a series of book reviews. For future reviews, in addition to staff material we solicit contributions from students who feel they want to interest others in a worthwhile book.

Reviews will not be limited to any particular field, such as English literature. We would like to see, in addition, material on philosophy, science, religion, and other areas. The staff would be excited to assist in any way anyone wanting to contribute.

Beauty In Stamps

It was with quiet submission, but not without suppressed psychological undertones that the nation, in this day of Big Business, Bigger Government, and vanishing Poll Tax, accepted a one-cent 'boost' in the cost of mailing a letter.

Regressing from the daring pink of the "old" four-cent stamp, the U. S. Post Office has adopted a more sober design to suit the times—an inspiring Gilbert pose of George Washington. The most striking feature of the new stamp is its individuality, its originality, much thought must have gone in to its selection. We wonder, after seeing the beautiful representation of a Winslow Homer painting on a four-cent stamp, whether this spark has died with the old old stamp, to be revived for use only on Christmas cards.

Perhaps the biggest objection to the five-cent stamp will be reflected in its failure to sell, not on the basis of its beauty, but on its psychological effects. Americans always groan when the price of stamps goes up, but we soon become reconciled to the fact that only a few pennies are involved. This may not be the case with the new stamp. People may think twice before using it. It weighs in at looks too much like a nickel to us.

From The Files

The Rotunda, 1923

"A fire destroyed the dining room wing, kitchen, pantries, cold storage, and dormitories for about 100 girls."

"Cheer up."

"The whole school might have burned, some of us might have burned."

—1924—Exam Time
"My problem I solved, for I have resolved each day all my work to prepare. Then test, tough it be, it will not worry me. I'll know it, so why should I care?"

—1929
"It has been suggested that the 'Rough Riders' orchestra (the college orchestra) play once a week in the 'rec' for the small sum of five cents. If this suggestion is adopted, the members plan to buy uniforms with the proceeds."

—1946
The Rotunda has been rated First Class, Excellent by the Associated Collegiate Press.

"Review and work hard but don't cram for examinations. We want to remember to be considerate of our fellow students during exam week by being quiet."

—1952
"A word to the weeping and the walling throughout Longwood College—the reason being examination week! We can avoid near-nervous breakdowns by a systematic and sensible schedule which will include adequate sleep."

The Rotunda

ESTABLISHED NOVEMBER 20, 1923

Published each week during the college year except during holidays and examination period by the students of Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia. No. 18.

Ann Age ..... Editor-in-Chief
Donna Humphlett ..... Managing Editor    Bobbi Mast ..... Business Manager
Ann Carroll ..... News Editor
Glory Gilmore ..... Feature Editor
Lafayette Snyder ..... Sports Editor
Lewen Rippy, Doris Smith ..... Desk Editors
Betty Taylor ..... Art Editor
Florence Bernard, Linda Paris ..... Photography
Ann Peters ..... Circulation Manager
Mary Reynolds ..... Advertising Manager

REPORTING STAFF: Barbara Age, Theresa Albright, Leslie Aldridge, Suzanne Ballard, Paula Blackstone, Margaret Cooke, Lee Criss, Dee Dee Diederich, Jane Eddy, Beverly Godwin, Judi Hockney, Judy Ivy, Sandra Jameson, Janet Lutz, Susan Lunn, Mary Ann Liptford, Jean Lord, Bessie Mann, Charlotte McIlwain, Gwynne Phillips, Barbara Polander, Karen Rader, Martin Steffred, Doris Smith, Lola Sullivan, Betty Taylor, Allison Tughe, Barbara Turner, Linda Turner, Pat Wallace, Dee Watkins, Annette Wenger.

CIRCULATION STAFF: Suzanne Briel, Sandra Pressman, Cindy Gay, Cheryl Hove, Jessie Leach, Cabell Montgomerie, Betty Lee Neal, Mary Lee Plunkett, Joyce Powell, Eleanor Richardson, Marian Ross, Gay Stamp.

ADVERTISING STAFF: Mary Bradford, Diana Dik, Betty F. Galner, Judi Hockney, Dottie Marshall, Sandra Parker, Faye Stone, Diane Woolley.

PHOTOGRAPHY STAFF: Mary Evelyn Compton, Gary Garhart, Dottie Marshall, Nancy Robinson.

BUSINESS STAFF: Leslie Aldridge, Olivia Gibson, Helen Wicks.

(Unassigned editorialists written by the editor)

Member: Virginia Intercollegiate Press (Rating First Class), Columbia Scholarship Press Association (Rating First Class), National College Press Service.

Entered as second class matter at the Post Office at Farmville, Virginia under the Act of Congress on March 3, 1924. Represented for national advertising by the National Advertising Service. Printed by the Farmville Herald.

SAVEZ-VOUS LA LECON

"Do you understand the lesson?" queries Miss Hardy, traveled French instructor who likes America's Metreel and frozen pies.

LC Students Review 'Lord Of The Flies'

By Betty Ann Rex and Evelyn Gray

Golding states his point quite clearly: "The theme is an attempt to trace the defects of society back to the defects of human nature. The moral is that the shape of a society must depend on the ethical nature of the individual and not on any political system however apparently logical or respectable."

The novel concerns a group of small boys, who are alone on an island. They are schoolboys with the stamp of civilization clearly upon them. Their reaction to their situation and what they become because of it is the subject of the plot. At first the island is a dream come true: "No grownups!" They develop a society of their own, very democratic at first. But into their paradise comes a fear of The Beast and a consuming desire to kill it before they lose their grip on civilization. They build a signal fire for rescue which is a symbol of this civilization, but they cannot keep it burning. The boys revert to savage tribal life of unbelievable horror and brutality.

"Lord of the Flies" or "Lord of the insects," is translated from a Hebrew colloquialism which refers to the Devil. This villain has always symbolized "decay, destruction, demoralization, hysteria, and panic." He does not appear in the book until the boys have completely given way to these forces. He is the beast that the children have been hunting, fearing, and trying to destroy before it killed them. They found instead, the beast in themselves.

Before climbing onto the crusher that would take them back to civilization and the world of adults, the children sobbed. They wept not from the relief of their "rescue," not for their escape from hell, but for their revelation of what few ever see. "They wept for the end of innocence and the darkness of man's heart."

Letter To Editor

Letter States Recreation Film More In Demand

Dear Editor,

We would like an explanation as to why the Saturday Night Movies in Jarman have been of such a poor caliber recently. We consider these movies as a break from studying—an opportunity for relaxation and recreation. Although these movies may be of some educational value we feel the interests of the majority of the student body lean more towards the recreational form of movies.

Other state supported schools have this kind of movie, why can't we?

"Frustrated Movie Goers"

Around The Campi

The green and whites were fortunate to have Father Time of 1962 and the perky baby of 1963 clad in diapers and green bonnet appear at their New Year's party.

Snow represents a prominent picture in the mind of a junior who unfortunately had a very usual wedding day because of nature's gift.

Longwood has its own Dr. Kildare. Make your appointments for splinter extractions and ice burns with Dr. Connie Birch, M.D.

Two sophomores were conversing on the case of elephants having flat feet and ducks having webbed feet, when another green and white replied, "Elephants have flat feet from jumping out of trees and ducks have webbed feet due to stamping out forest fires."

About the girl who accidentally picked up the wrong can and used spray net on the furniture, instead of "Pledge."

Patron Saint Joan of Arc would eat as many as five bowls of soup at one meal, according to research done by a Belgian health authority.

We are hoping that in remodeling the Training School Building, someone will think to install a clock.

Who are the innocents behind the mysterious happenings on third floor Student? Meow...

To those whom it may concern: The men's room in Wheeler is not upstairs.

Hardy Travels Across U. S. West; Starts Teaching Career At LC

New this year to Longwood campus and the teaching profession is Mademoiselle Hardy, a native of Lange, Belgium. She arrived in the United States in July of last and proceeded to drive across the country from St. Louis to California while in California Miss Hardy had the opportunity to visit Disneyland which impressed her very much.

Although expressing a liking for the West and Mid-West, Miss Hardy felt she would not enjoy living there because "it is too big and everything is too far apart." Of all the places she has visited in the U. S., her favorite was Charlottesville, particularly the campus of U. Va.

Until the age of 18, Miss Hardy attended a girl's school where she prepared for further study at the University of Liege. During high school a very tight schedule including Latin, Greek, French, and a great deal of literature was stressed, but in spite of this, Miss Hardy found time to work on the newspaper staff. Before coming to the United States, she studied English in London and at Cambridge. At the University the students were not required to attend classes, only to pass the final exams. More time was spent for cultural activities such as concerts, movies, and lectures than for student activities, however, Miss Hardy managed to work with the theatrical group and appeared in several plays.

During holidays Miss Hardy traveled extensively in Europe; visiting France, Scandinavia, Germany, Holland, Italy, and Switzerland.

Having just spent her first American Christmas in New York, Miss Hardy says that here Christmas has more meaning. In Belgium "Christmas has lost much of its beauty because it is full of separate little holidays."

Miss Hardy was already acquainted with many American customs because her roommate was from New England and another close friend was from California. She feels Americans "live to please society more than themselves." In European young people are more interested in comfort than appearance. They are happy with two skirts and a few jumpers, preferring to spend their money on books and records. She likes Americans, especially Longwood girls, because they are more friendly than Europeans.

A favorite pastime of Miss Hardy is music. She likes American jazz a great deal, but prefers folk singing and classical music. As a painter, she is interested in art and is moved most by colors. Her favorite artist is Matisse. Readings is her just consuming interest. Miss Hardy enjoys Southern and English Literature, and prefers the works of Truman Capote and Virginia Wolfe.

Miss Hardy will remain in America two or three years, during which time she will do post-graduate work in comparative literature.

By Donna Humphlett

Real poverty. What is it? Bumping. The way we bum Cigarettes.

Cigarettes? Is that all for the really poverty stricken person. No, of course not. It's everything for me. I think.

Total abjection? Yes, it's really bad. You know. Men almost cease to be men. All that counts is the appetite.

Yes, men are almost like animals. In fact, that's what they are. Animals when starvation is staring them in the face. I mean. Eat almost anything?

Yes, you know. I heard that during one siege the Dutch people were forced to eat rats to avoid starving to death.

People cease to be proud.

Pride is a luxury.

Is it?

Yes, I think.

Is ignorance?

What do you mean?

We pay a high price to avoid the sight of poverty, don't we?

What? How do we pay the price? What is the means of exchange. Don't be so oblique.

Let's see. The price isn't a monetary one. It's one that takes its toll in feelings. Like sympathy. You know.

Now I think I do. But I'm not sure.

We avoid the sight of poverty until it becomes so strange to us that we laugh at it.

Do we?

Didn't we?

LITTLE MAN CAMPUS "BARK"

"LET'S PLAN A LITTLE EARLIER NEXT TIME! I HATE THIS TRYING TO GET A DATE AT THE VERY LAST MINUTE!"

Timely Topics

Kennedy Plans Tax Cut, Anticipates Opposition

By Karen Ruder

The Communist avarices at the Mekong river delta, shot down at least eight United States helicopters, destroying five of them, while killing at least three Americans. This unusual incident shocked Americans. Usually, the Viet Cong disappeared upon the appearance of the government troops, but this time they refused to be budged.

President Kennedy has announced that his top-priority legislative item in 1963 would be a program of tax reduction and reform. His main objective is to reduce unemployment from 5.8 per cent to 5 per cent for the year by reducing the taxes. Kennedy states that without this tax cut, unemployment will rise to a level of 6 per cent. The President expects a hard fight from the 88th Congress.

Notable sources have revealed that the capture of Jeddah in the Congo was done either without the knowledge of or against the orders of Secretary General Thant. All orders are the responsibility of the Secretary General and views are being taken to assure that there will be no recurrence of anything of that sort.

Word has been received that Mao Tse-tung of China wants Premier Khrushchev ousted. He has called him a "hypocrite giving lip service only to Fidel Castro's demands on the United States." This barrage was contained in a 100,000 word editorial published in the People's Daily of Peking. It also said that Khrushchev is "selling the cause of violent revolution down the river because of his fear of an American paper tiger."

President Tshombe of Katanga has said that he is ready to negotiate with the United Nations or to fight his armies to the end. Tshombe's forces retreated in disorder to his war capital at Katanga where he is to make his last stand.

The British Isles, hard hit by blizzards and gales, is experiencing more storms. The big threat now to Great Britain is the possibility of nationwide milk shortage. The snow-blocked roads have cut off most milk supplies. Many families are already being rationed to a half-pint a head.

A new Polaris submarine, the Thomas Jefferson, has just been commissioned. The submarine was the result of a realization that strong sea power is one of the main strongholds of the American people. This was demonstrated recently at the Cuban blockade. Through our strength and determination, we showed Khrushchev that we could and would stand up to Russia and their tricks.

Board Approves Appropriations

(Continued from page 1)

department is space to be provided for the audio-visual department now housed in the basement of West Wing. A production laboratory for the preparation of teaching materials and a developmental reading clinic will also be included.

The Geology and Geography departments will be moved to the top floor along with the television studio. The art department will operate a sculpture laboratory in the building and the music department will use two of the classrooms. These classes will remain in the building until adequate space is provided for them elsewhere.

Sports Review

Spotlight On College Basketball, Post-Seasonal Gridiron Contests

By Beverly Goodes

Basketball was in the spotlight last weekend with sixteen games on top. To start off with a bang, U.Va. (2-8) met VPI (4-3) at Blacksburg Friday night. Tech won its fortieth consecutive home game and raised its Big Five standing to 3-0 by defeating U.Va. 71-53.

Saturday night found conference games flying fast and furious. In Southern Conference action, Richmond met William and Mary. W&M had won the Invitational tourney against the Spiders the week before 76-59, and U of R was out for revenge. Other conference games saw VMI meet the Citadel, East Carolina at Davidson, Georgetown at George Washington and Furman at West Virginia. W. Va. is SC's league leader with four wins and no losses.

The Atlantic Coast Conference highlight of the weekend was the contest between NC State (2-1) and Duke (4-0). Also in A.C.C. action, Clemson (0-3) met Wake Forest (3-0) and SC (0-2) played Maryland (1-3) at College Park.

Hampden-Sydney met Old Dominion in a "Little Eight" game. Randolph-Macon played Baltimore University, while Lynchburg College travelled to St. Andrews I Laurinburg, N.C.

Although the Rose Bowl game, played New Year's Day, may have seemed the end of football season, five more bowl games were played last weekend. Saturday saw sixty college All-Stars on North and South teams met at Mobile, Alabama for the Senior Bowl. The South's starting quarterback was Virginia's Gary Cuzzo. Also Saturday, a team of Southwestern players met a team from the rest of the nation in the Southwest Challenge Bowl at Corpus Christi, Texas.

Sunday, the National Football League's two second place teams, the Detroit Lions and the Pittsburgh Steelers met in the Pro Runner-up Bowl. In the Hula Bowl in Hawaii, the North had its stars Wisconsin players. Remember Ron Vander Kelen and Pat Richter from the Rose Bowl game? In Baltimore, some draft choices of the Eastern and Western Conferences of the NFL plus other collegians who weren't drafted vied in the Crusade Bowl.

Watch for VPI to meet Wake Forest Saturday, January 12.

Physical Education Department Offers Rhythmic Gymnastics

TEACHES NEW CLASS

Department Head, Miss Mary A. Heintz, explains fundamentals of new physical education course to Longwood Student. The purpose of the class is to develop body mechanics, body carriage, and posture.

A "new" physical Education elective is being offered second semester. Students may register for Physical Education 318 next week. The course has been found in the catalogue in past years under the title "gymnastics" and offered upon demand. This course was revamped to meet the requirements of students asking for a course in exercise.

Miss Mary A. Heintz, department head and instructor for the course, said, "This class arose out of student enthusiasm—they wanted a course which would improve efficiency and develop part of the body neglected through lack of proper activities and exercise." In the class, programs of improvement will be worked out by students in terms of their own individual needs. The class will meet at 4 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays in the Tabo "rec."

Miss Heintz announced that the exercises and other activities taking place in the class often will be performed to tape-recorded music to make the activities challenging and fun.

This course, which is aimed at improving body mechanics, posture, and carriage, was requested by students who knew of similar courses being taught at other colleges and who wanted to see such a course here. The class appeals strongest to upperclassmen who have completed the required two years of physical education and want activities to keep physically fit. The class offers one credit.

Science Council Aids Foundation In Fellow Choice

The National Academy of Sciences - National Research Council has been called upon again to advise the National Science Foundation in the selection of candidates for the Foundation's program of regular graduate and postdoctoral fellowships. Committees of outstanding scientists appointed by the Academy-Research Council will evaluate applications of all candidates. Final selection will be made by the Foundation, which awards to be announced on March 15, 1963.

Fields Varied

Fellowships will be awarded for study in the mathematical, physical, medical, biological, and engineering sciences; also in anthropology, psychology (excluding clinical psychology), geography, economics (excluding business administration), sociology (not including social work); and the history and philosophy of science. They are open to college seniors, graduate and postdoctoral students, and others with equivalent training and experience. All applicants must be citizens of the United States and will be judged solely on the basis of ability.

GRE Required

Applicants for the graduate awards will be required to take the Graduate Record Examination designed to test scientific aptitude and achievement. This examination, administered by the Educational Testing Service, will be given on January 16, 1963, at designated centers throughout the United States and certain foreign countries.

The annual stipends for graduate Fellows are as follows: $1800 for the first level; $2000 for the intermediate level; and $2200 for the terminal level. The annual stipend for postdoctoral Fellows is $5000. Limited allowances will also be provided to apply toward tuition, laboratory fees, and travel.

Further information and application materials may be obtained from the Fellowship Office, National Academy of Sciences - National Research Council, 2101 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington 25, D.C. The deadline for the receipt of applications for regular postdoctoral fellowships is December 17, 1962, and for graduate fellowships, January 4, 1963.

English Dept. Offers Variety Of Art Records

The English Department has a collection of recordings of poetry, prose drama, children's literature, and histories for use by the professors and students in their classes. These recordings are also available, by special permission, to those students who are student teaching in English.

Poetry recordings include "Robert Frost Reads His Poetry" and "The Poetry of Blake." Various works of Shakespeare, including Romeo and Juliet, Macbeth, Julius Caesar, and Hamlet, by several actors are available.

William Faulkner reads from The Sound and the Fury and Carson McCullers reads from "The Member of the Wedding" on two recordings. Two linguistics use are an 1800 Years of English Pronunciation and Changing English Language - Changing Literary Style.

NEWMAN'S

MEN SHOP

Traditional Styles

See Our

Ladies' Sportswear

Come In To

See The "New"

LONGWOOD BOOK

STORE

Come In And See

The New

COLLEGE SHOPPE

See If You Like It!

Happy New Year

From

SOUTHSIDE SUNDRY

CO., INC.

your best buy is

EATON'S Fine Letter Paper

Be heavy-wise, be budget-wise, choose Eaton's. Only the quality of these famous letter papers is extravagant.

The creative designing, the fashion flair, the exquisite packaging... add so much beauty to these lovely writing papers to be enjoyed by yourself or given as gifts. Moderately priced!

SEE THEM NOW!

Owen-Sanford Drug. Co.

(In The Shopping Center)

"Your Grandchildren will grow up under Communism!"

—see KATIA KRENSKY

Will the Soviet threat come true? Will your grandchildren live under Communism? Forget God! Salute the Soviet Reg?

"Never!" you say. But are you sure? What can you do to oppose Communism? There is one sure way. Help Radio Free Europe! What does it do? It broadcasts the news of freedom to 75 million captive people behind the Iron Curtain. It helps keep them from turning to Communism. It helps pose a major obstacle to the Russians starting a war. But Radio Free Europe needs help. It depends on individual Americans for its existence. Will you help? Give a dollar! Give $5 dollars... or more? Surely your heart tells you to give something—so that our children—and all children—shall live in freedom throughout the world.

Give Now To... RADIO FREE EUROPE

The American People's Center Voice to Communism

Mail your contribution to: Radio Free Europe Fund, P.O. Box 1961, Mt. Vernon 18, New York. Published as a public service in cooperation with The Advertising Council and the Newspaper Advertising Executives Association.

AD MAT NO. RF34-41—100 LINES

"Oh, oh, school's out... I guess I'd better get dinner in the oven."

College Students Form Seminars In Europe

"We have found through many years of experience that it is quite possible, even if you don't know a word of the language, to learn more than a year's worth of college German, French, Spanish, or Italian in the course of a summer," says Dr. Hirschbach, Director of Classroom Abroad, "provided that we get serious and mature students who are willing to mix business with pleasure."

Eleven groups, each containing twenty to thirty selected American college students, will form seminars in various European cities next summer to study the language, culture and civilization of these countries during a nine-week stay.

Seeks "Serious" Student
Designed for the serious student who does not plan to see all of Europe in a short summer. Classrooms Abroad tries to give him a more profound experience through a summer of living in one of the following cities: Berlin, Munich, or Tübingen in Germany; Vienna, Austria; Besançon, Grenoble, or Paris in France; Newcastle in Switzerland; Madrid or Santander in Spain; and Florence, Italy.

Graded classes in small sections of six to ten students, each under the supervision of American and native professors, will deal with the reading of classical and modern texts, the daily press, contemporary problems, conversation and composition, pronunciation and grammar.

To Hear Lectures
Students will also hear lectures on history and literature and meet with outstanding personalities. They will have full auditing privileges at the university in each of the selected towns and cities and will participate in all academic and social activities with German, Austrian, French, Swiss, Spanish and Italian students.

Members of Classrooms Abroad will live with private families in each city, eat many of their meals with their hosts and share the activities of their sons and daughters. They will have ample opportunities to meet young people from student, religious, and political organizations. Regular attendance at the arts, concerts, and movies as well as visits to museums, libraries, factories, youth centers, and other points of interest are included in the program.

Each group will follow its seven-week stay in a city or town with an optional two-week tour of German, French, Spanish, or Italian areas. Since most programs end in mid-August, participants have a chance to remain in Europe for private travel after the program.

Program Expands
Dr. Hirschbach, who also heads the German Language group, teaches at the University of Minnesota. The French and Spanish groups will be directed by John K. Simon and Robert E. Kelsey, members of the Romance Languages Department at Yale. The Italian group will be led by Charles Affron of Brandeis University. Classrooms Abroad, now in its seventh year, has grown from eleven students in 1952 to an anticipated three hundred in 1963. Its former students represent some two hundred American colleges.

Full information can be obtained by writing to Classrooms Abroad, Box 471, University Station, Minneapolis 14, Minnesota.

KD Sponsors Tea For Other Pledges

The pledges of Kappa Delta sorority held their annual Tea Thursday from 3:00 to 5 p.m. in the Student Lounge. Approximately 160 pledges, pledge trainers, presidents and sponsors of the other eight sororities on campus attended.

Each year the Kappa Delta pledges give the Tea in honor of the pledges of the other sororities as a means of getting to know each other better as future sorority women. Chairman for this year's Tea was Rena Weid.

Other committee members included Carole Haezler and Nancy Meade, food; Bonnie Glash and Lida Kepner, table; Jane Carol Maddox and Rena Weid, invitations; Pat Burdette and Margo Alrich, music; Jerry Ann Bullock and Suzanne Ballard, dishes; Pudd Murdoch and Suzanne Dilkey, art; and pledge treasurer Mary Lou Calis was chairman of the Money Committee.

Each girl was responsible for getting food for the Tea.

Examination Schedule

First Semester
1962-63 Session
Examination Day and Date	Morning 8:05-11:05	Afternoon 1:05-4:05
Saturday January 19	Reading Period
Monday January 21	2:05 MWF Classes MW & WF Classes MTWTFP Classes	9:05 TTH Classes TTH Classes TuS Classes TThS Classes
Tuesday January 22	11:05 TTH Classes 2:05 TTH Classes	1:05 MWF Classes MW Classes WF Classes MTWTFP Classes
Wednesday January 23	9:05 MWF Classes MW & WF Classes MTWTFP Classes	11:05 MWF Classes MW & WF Classes MTWTFP Classes
Thursday January 24	8:05 MWF Classes MW Classes WF Classes MTWTFP Classes TWTThS Classes	3:05, 4:05 MWF Classes TTH Classes TThS Classes
Friday January 25	8:45 TTH Classes TTH Classes TThS Classes	10:05 MWF Classes MW & WF Classes MTWTFP Classes
Saturday January 26	10:05 TTH Classes TTH Classes TThS Classes

Monday, January 21, 7:00-10:00 P.M.—CONFLICTS, Room 21

Any student with an examination conflict should notify the professor responsible for administering one of the examinations in conflict. The professor will deliver the examination for the student to the Dean of the College before the Monday evening examination conflict period.

Any deviation from the above schedule must be approved in advance by the Dean of the College.

Examinations for evening classes will be scheduled on the evening of the regular class meeting during the examination period.

ON EXHIBIT

One of pictures of Miss Nell Blaine on display in library exhibition room.

Longwood Features Art Work By Blaine

The works of Miss Nell Blaine, one of America's foremost women artists, are on display in the library's exhibition room. They will remain through January 31. The exhibit will be open 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and 7 to 10 p.m. weekdays, and from 2 to 4 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays.

Miss Blaine is a graduate of John Marshall High School in Richmond, Virginia. While a student there, she sold her classmates portraits for half a dollar each. She attended Richmond Professional Institute.

Upon completion of her study at R. P. I., Miss Blaine received a fellowship from the Virginia

Museum. This fellowship allowed her to go to New York where she entered Hans Hofmann's school. Also, while in New York, she studied etching with Stanley Hayter. In 1944 she became the youngest member of the American Abstract Artists.

Of her own work Miss Blaine writes, "In my paintings now, I'm interested in the kind of light that falls on a leaf. Some little aspect of a subject will start me setting up easel, laying out paints, etc., so that the motivation won't be lost. I feel a direct connection with the city, with plants, and everything around me."

Student Government Discusses Proposed Constitutional Revisions

By Ann Carroll

Proposed revisions for the present Constitution of the Women's Student Government Association were discussed at last night's meeting of the Legislative Board.

The proposed changes were submitted by a committee composed of two members of the Board, Karen Diederick and Virginia Abernathy, plus John E. Allen, Director of Public Relations and Development.

Revised Constitution

Most of the suggested changes and found in the wording of the present Constitution. One example is the change in Article II. The present wording, "The purpose . . . shall be to preserve student honor; to unite the students of the college for more efficient living; and to train them in personal responsibility, control and loyalty" would be changed to read "The purpose . . . shall be to enhance students' honor; to safeguard the rights of students; to unite the student through self-government for more efficient living and to aid in the development of personal responsibility, control and loyalty."

Define Honor, Right

Included in the planned revision of the preamble would be definitions of such words as honor or right. Neither of these is defined in the present Constitution.

The committee suggested adding such articles as one which would more clearly designate the Authority of Student Government. In the proposal, the President of Longwood would be officially given final authority on all matters pertaining to the Association and its members.

Use "Robert's Rules"

Other changes discussed were the addition of a definition of a quorum; the proposal to establish the use of "Robert's Rules of Order" as final authority on meeting procedures; the decision to post the agenda for a called meeting of the Association at least 24 hours prior to the meeting; and a clarification of the voting privilege of each undergraduate student. Through this change any possible disenfranchising would be prevented.

Board Adds By-Laws

One major addition to the Constitution discussed in last night's meeting concerned By-Laws. These, if added, would cover criteria for such organizations as House Council, The Athletic Association, Publications Board and the Handbook Committee. It would also include similar rules.

The possibility of replacing the present Major-Minor Elections Screening Board with an Elections Committee was also under discussion as a proposed revision. If accepted, the entire election system would possibly undergo change.

To Post Revisions

These are only a few of the proposed changes being considered by the Legislative Board. Two weeks before being submitted to the student body for adoption or refusal, the Board will post the changes, thus enabling each student to read and inform herself before voting. The Board hopes to present the revised Constitution to the students early in the second semester.

All students are reminded that Legislative Board meetings are open to everyone, and the members request and urge each suggestion. Meetings are held each Tuesday at 6:45 p.m. in the Colomade Room.

THE VANITY
BEAUTY SHOP
Phone EX 2-4460

New Year
Permanent Wave
News . . .

$2.00 OFF

On any permanent given on Monday or Tuesday during January.

Given with experience and "Know-How."

IDA SOUTHAL, Owner

Group Sponsors Award For Student Library

For the second year, the $1,000 AMY LOVEMAN NATIONAL AWARD is being offered to a college senior who has collected an outstanding personal library. Established in 1962, the annual Award is sponsored by "The Book-of-the-Month Club," the "Saturday Review," and the Women's National Book Association.

A distinguished panel of judges will soon decide the winner. The panel will include a "Saturday Review" editor, a "Book-of-the-Month Club" judge, a nationally known collector or university librarian, and a nationally known author, critic, or book collector.

Chairmen of Campus Library Award Committees, after selecting a local winner, are asked to submit nominations of senior students for the national award. The deadline for nomination is April 30th. The award will be made at the winner's commencement.

35 Minimum

For the purposes of the AMY LOVEMAN AWARD, a collection of not less than 35 books will be considered. The student must present an annotated bibliography of his present collection, and provide comments on three relevant points: "How I would start building a home library," "The next ten books I hope to add to my personal library and why," and "My ideas for a complete home library."

Collections will be judged on the basis of intelligent interest, scope and imagination shown in creating the collection, and knowledge of the books as revealed in the annotations. Collections of any type (excluding textbooks) are eligible whether centered in a subject or avocation, a single author or group of authors, or a general collection.

Editor Namesake

The Amy Loveman National Award was established in memory of the late associate editor of "Saturday Review," who was also a judge for the "Book-of-the-Month Club" as well as a member of The Women's National Book Association and winner of their Constance Lindsay Skinner Award. An active and respected figure in journalism, Miss Loveman was especially concerned with broadening the book horizons of young people.

Inquires regarding the 1963 award should be addressed to: Amy Loveman National Award, Box 553, Times Square Post Office, New York 36, New York.

LC Professors Attend Sessions In Washington

Three Longwood professors attended the Modern Language Association Convention in Washington, D. C. December 27-29. Dr. Carson Gibb, assistant professor of English, attended sessions on classical literature and English literature. Dr. Dorothy B. Schogel, associate professor of English, attended discussions on comparative literature and modern methods of teaching French.

Dr. R. C. Simonini, Jr., chairman of the Longwood English Department, was a member of the organizing committee of twelve college English Department chairmen who drew up objectives for launching an association of the English Department chairmen of colleges throughout the nation. The four hundred chairmen who attended the meeting approved these proposed objectives.

One objective is to facilitate communication between departments of English and provide means for collecting and disseminating information of importance to them. The second purpose is to serve as a forum for the discussion of basic issues relating to English as a discipline in the context of American education. Another one approved is to shape and implement measures for advancing the interests of the departments of English throughout the country. The final objective accepted is to provide means for making effective, through joint action, the opinions and aims of the profession.

State Theatre FARMVILLE, VA.

TUES.-WED.-JAN. 8-9

AUDREY HITCHCOCK'S
ALICE POLICE BUREAU CHIEF
JAMES
HART
REAR WINDOW
TECHNICOLOR
A Warner Bros. Release

THURS.-FRI.-SAT.
JAN 10-11-12

Jerry Lewis
It's ONLY MONEY
A WARNER BROS. RELEASE

SUN.-MON.-TUES.
JAN. 13-14-15

THE Chapman
Report

TECHNICOLOR with WARNER BROS.
No one under 16 will be admitted unless accompanied by an adult

WED.-THURS.-JAN. 16-17

CHARLTON HESTON
MARTINA
The Pigeon
That Took Flight
A Warner Bros. Release

Take A Break

During Exams

Visit

THE SNACK BAR

THE ROTUNDA

Carter Leads Religious Emphasis Week

CONCERT REVIEW

Helen Weeks, seated, Betty Ann Rex, and Sally Potage rehearse music for harpsichord concert. Program will begin at 4 p.m. Sunday, February 17, in Exhibition Room of Lancaster Library.

Program will begin at 4 p.m. Sunday, February 17, in Exhibition Room of Lancaster Library.

Players, Jongleurs Select Casts For Play

The cast has been announced by Longwood Players and the Hampden-Sydney Jongleurs for the spring play, The Power of Darkness. Also announced was the cast for The Chairs, which will be taken to the Virginia Drama Festival in Richmond on February 23.

Longwood girls cast in The Power of Darkness are Carla McVair as Antoinette, Harriet Hunt as Akulina, Margaret Wright as Anyutka, Phyllis Duncan as Matrena, and Mary Lynn Landel as Marina. Other roles will be played by Doty Cox, Judy Woodward, Maria Konovalev, and Pat Newton.

Jongleurs Take Part
The Hampden-Sydney Jongleurs are represented by Ed Baker as Nikita, Mike Couchman as Akim, John McNeal as Petr, and the Village Elder, Dave Reeves as Mitrich. Bill McGuire as the Husband and the Best Man, and Phil Anderson as the Policeman. The cast for The Chairs is Mike Couchman as the Old Man, Mary Lynn Landel as the Old Woman, and Dave Reeves as the Orator.

Lewis Judges Plays
The Chairs was written by Ionesco, a modern playwright of the so-called "theatre of the absurd." When taken to Richmond, the play will be judged, along with presentations from eight other Virginia colleges, by Robert Lewis, one of America's foremost directors. Robert Lewis has directed many successful Broadway shows including Tea and Sympathy, The Sound of Music, Brigadoon, and Witness for the Prosecution.

Written by Leo Tolstoy, the famous Russian author of such novels as War and Peace and Anna Karenina, The Power of Darkness is a tragedy about Russian peasants during the nineteenth century. The setting is quite elaborate and will be designed expressionistically.

Committee Evaluates Co-Curricular Activities

The report of a student-faculty committee, formed for the purpose of dividing student activities into the categories of co-curricular and extra-curricular, recently has been accepted by the policies committee of the college faculty.

The committee was formed to make those distinctions due to the heavy demands made upon the use of Jarman Auditorium by various organizations. Co-curricular activities will take precedence over extra-curricular activities in the scheduling of coming events and in acquiring the use of Jarman. The committee is composed of chairman Dr. Carolyn Wells, Dr. Richard B. Brooks, Mrs. Kathleen O. Cover, Dr. R. C. Simons, Jr., and students Sherrill Hildrow, Mary Lou Plunkett, Margaret Vaughan, and Alice White.

The recommendations which were passed, it is stressed by the committee, do not constitute a judgment of the relative value of activities and organizations involved.

The recommendations are as follows:

1. Regularly scheduled meetings of courses should have priority over any other student activity, specifically in reference to the following:

a) Scheduled classes, tests, and examinations should not be cancelled because they conflict with activities outside the curriculum.

(Continued on page 3)

Students Present Harpsichord Concerts

A concert of harpsichord music will be presented in the Exhibition Room of Lancaster Library on Sunday, February 17. This program will begin at 4 p.m. The same program will be given tonight at 8 p.m. at Hampden-Sydney.

Playing in this concert are Elizabeth Ann Rex, Nancy Oldfield, Helen Weeks, Patricia Spies, Sally Potage, Elizabeth Howard and Dr. Joanne Currutt.

Rex Opens Concert
Elizabeth Ann Rex will begin the concert with Sonata LI and Sonata LIV by D. Scarlatti. Nancy Oldfield will play Les Ombres Errantes and Les Triolets. Helen Weeks is to play Susanna III sur la chanson "Suzanne Un Jour."

Ach du Feiner Reiter (Canto Beligio) will be played by Patricia Spies. Sally Potage will follow with Les Fibres and La Gemme. Elizabeth Howard will present Pavana Hispanica.

Currutt Performs
Dr. Joanne Currutt, assistant professor of music, will close the harpsichord concert with Bach's Sonatas XI, XV, V, and VI.

The harpsichord is a keyboard instrument which belongs to the same family as the spinet. This instrument was prominent from the 16th to the 18th century. Only half a dozen schools of higher learning offer instruction in the use of this instrument, and it is believed that Longwood is the first Virginia college to offer such training.

Institute Names Speakers, Dates For ISC Talks

The Institute of Southern Culture lectures for this year will be given in Jarman Hall at 11:00 am and 8:00 pm on April 26. A lecture will also be given at 4:00 pm in the lounge of the Student Activities Building.

The lecturers will be Col. Francis P. Miller, Special Assistant, Department of State, Washington, D. C., who has chosen the topic "Has There Been Progress in Political Democracy in Virginia?" "Jefferson and the Art of Politics" is the subject to be presented by Dr. M. Boyd Coyner, Jr., Professor of History, Hampden-Sydney College. Mr. James J. Kilpatrick, Editor of the Richmond News Leader, will lecture on "Byrd: The Contemporary Leader in History."

The Institute, established at Longwood College in 1956, is aimed at promoting the study of traditional aspects of Southern civilization through academic courses, special lectures, and through the publication of research in the field. All lectures will be open to the public.

Bailey Selected As LC Princess For '63 Festival

Annie Bailey has been selected to represent Longwood at the 36th annual Apple Blossom Festival. The Festival will be held in Winchester May 1-4.

Each year, a faculty committee chooses a senior to represent Longwood at this event. The girl is selected on the basis of beauty, personality and poise. Annie is a math major from Norfolk. Presently she is serving as president of the Student Body and chairman of the Legislative Board. She is a member of Alpha Kappa Gamma national leadership fraternity and Kappa Delta social society.

Annie, along with representatives from other colleges and universities in Virginia will be entertained at the Apple Blossom Festival by ten dances, formal balls, informal receptions and by the pageant itself.

All students and their dates are invited to attend the semi-formal dance. Tickets sell for $2.00 apiece.

ANNIE BAILEY

Chairmen Plan Final Stage Of Dance

Susan Brittingham and Joan Meadows, co-chairmen of the Junior Dance, are busy preparing the final touches for the dance which will be held Saturday, February 16, from 8:00 to 12:00 in the Main Rec. The theme for this year's dance is "Old Man River" and the entertainment will be provided by The Chasers from Lynchburg.

Assisting Susan and Joan are Shirley Dunavan, Decorations; Jane Maddox, entertainment; Alla Stricklin, publicity; Betsy MacGibbie, tickets; Janet Leacy after dance party; Carol Marx, invitations; and Diana Delk, receiving line.

All students and their dates are invited to attend the semi-formal dance. Tickets sell for $2.00 apiece.

Arts Subject Of Trickett Lecture

Rachel Trickett, English lecturer and author, will speak in Jarman Auditorium on February 14 at 1:00. Her topic will be "Painting and Poetry in the Eighteenth Century."

Miss Trickett, who is visiting professor of English grammar and literature at Smith College in Massachusetts, was born in England and educated at Lady Margaret Hall, Oxford University. Her first position was that of an assistant to the Curator of

DISCUSS PLANS

Elaine Lohr, president of YWCA and Margaret Vaughan, chairman of this year's Religious Emphasis Week, discuss the week's program with the Reverend John P. Carter.

'Grant Us Light...' Theme During Week

"Grant us light that we may live." This is the theme for Religious Emphasis Week held annually at Longwood College and sponsored by the YWCA.

Beginning on Monday, February 11 and continuing through Thursday, February 14, Religious Emphasis Week is a combined effort of the members of the Y to bring to the students at Longwood a new and greater understanding of religion.

Carter Speaks
The Rev. John Paul Carter is the speaker for this occasion. Born in West Virginia, Mr. Carter graduated in 1944 from the College of William and Mary, and in 1947 from Virginia Seminary. In 1957 he received his S. T. M. from the University of the South.

College Work
Mr. Carter is now 39 years old; he is married and has six children. Being involved in many aspects of university life and dealing constantly with college young people has occupied a large part of his life. At the University of Texas he taught classes in the New Testament and was Episcopal Chaplain there for seven years.

He is a member of the national committee on Ecumenical Voluntary Service Projects and for two years now he has represented the Episcopal Church in negotiations on the level of College Work with the Anglican Church of Canada.

Serves On Commissions
He has served on the Diocesan Commission on College Work in the southern half of the Seventh Province. For three years he has had the privilege of serving as a preacher and summer staff member at the Washington Cathedral, and in the City Art Galleries in Manchester, England. After that she was named a lecturer in English at the University of Hull.

Miss Trickett, besides giving lectures, has written several novels. Return Home received the John Llewellyn Rhys Memorial Prize. Her new novel is A Changing Place and was published in England in November, 1962. Having just completed a book on Dryden, Pope, and Johnson, Miss Trickett plans to start work on a study of the comic novel during her stay in America.

1959 Mr. Carter was appointed Provincial Secretary for Collegiate Work in Washington, D. C.

For three years he has served as a board member of the Episcopal Council for Foreign Students and in 1953 organized and led a work camp in Mexico. In the summer of 1959 he led a similar one in Japan.

'Sing' Each Night
Each night of Religious Emphasis Week there is an inspirational hymn sung in Jarman Auditorium, (at 6:45 p.m.) then an address by the Rev. Carter at 7:00 p.m. And each night a new word is added to the theme "Grant us light that we may live."

Discussion groups led by Mr. Carter are held each night at 9:30 p.m. in the Y Lounge. Tomorrow night he will talk on his impressions of Longwood College and how the girls here think, e.g. during his visit at Longwood, Mr. Carter has spoken to several religion and philosophy classes, and he addressed the student body in assembly Tuesday. He is also available during the day for personal conferences.

14 LC Students Receive Degrees

Fourteen Longwood College students completed the requirements for their degrees at the end of this semester.

They are Josephine Frieda Bosker, a Home Economics major; Nancy Lee Burton, Elementary and Social Science major; Mrs. Francis G. Crowder, English major; Sara Frances Decker Johnson, Elementary Education major; Robin M. McClanahan, Elementary Education major; Betty Ann Hunt, Science major; Barbara Ruth Malone, Elementary Education major.

Also, Clara Ann Mayes, Elementary and Social Science major; Marjorie Ann Meigs, Business Education major; Mrs. Joyce Brodt, Elementary Education major; William D. Pleasant, Social Science major; Constance Mae Swenson, Elementary Education and English major.

Others are Ann Lucille Snow, Elementary Education major and Donna Jo Tucker, Business Education major.

Cessation Plea

THERE IS TOO MUCH NOISE IN THE DORMITORIES. Disturbances occur throughout the day and most of the night. Why is noise objectionable? What causes it, why does it continue? What are the solutions to this problem?

To answer why the noise is objectionable one must ask what are the purposes of a dorm? The dorm provides a place for sleep, study, and limited social activity. Excessive noise disturbs each of these purposes. Everyone must realize that there is someone asleep in the dorm at all hours of the day. Some sleep late in the morning, some catnap before dinner, others go to bed early. The times people study and visit are just as varied. (Visiting includes discussions and conversations of excessive noise? Party- ing (i. e., elevator packing, loud bridge games, and dancing.) is a main source of objectionable noise. Other unreasonable outbursts are yelling down the halls, and loud talking and laughing while using kitchens, utility rooms and other facilities. Other special problems are the noise on first floor and near exits in the dorms.

Such violations of "reasonable quiet in the dormitories at all times" continue because the rule is ignored. The members of House Council often do not enforce it.

The solution to the problem of lax enforcement is to elect officers to House Council who are aware that this serious problem exists and are willing to act. Elect people who are willing to enforce the rules!

— Nancy Mowrey and Donna Humphlett

Curiosity... Harmful?

Last Friday night in Cabell Hall at the University of Virginia, Gus Hall, top man in the American Communist Party, addressed students and faculty members. Tomorrow night George Lincoln Rockwell, self-styled leader of the American Nazi Party, will take his turn. Both speakers appear at the invitation of the John Randolph Society, a student organization.

The right or wrong of extending such an invitation has been questioned by many during the past two weeks. Some see in the issue the corruption of the minds of the "leaders of tomorrow." Others see in it a youthful rebellion of students against the precepts of the older generation.

Against this is the cry for freedom of speech; and where is there a more appropriate place to make such a demand than at Mr. Jefferson's own institution?

Hardly is it possible that a man, crusading under the symbol of a terrorism still vivid in the minds of those who will attend tomorrow's lecture, be expected to gain converts from this audience. But he will be heard. Attendance will be based more on curiosity and affront than on support. These minds will not be open to what Mr. Rockwell may have to offer, but will be intelligent and sophisticated minds that have already formed strong opinions of their own.

Curiosity, however, often can be more harmful than beneficial. Other minds, perhaps not quite so sophisticated or intelligent, and possibly even unbalanced, are open to Mr. Rockwell's ideology.

Mr. Hall and Mr. Rockwell will soon be continuing their tour of mass salesmanship, adding one more credit to their list—both have addressed, by request, the students and faculty members of the University of Virginia.

— Ginny Gilmore

GO! TIGERS!

Hampden-Sydney cheerleaders practice cheers for upcoming basketball games. They are (l. to r.) front row, Wanda Robertson and Henrietta Gilliam; back row, Sharon Howell, Toni Raymond, and Ginger Grooby.

LC Cheerleaders Boost Hampden-Sydney Tigers

Noticed anything new and different about the Hampden-Sydney football and basketball games this year? Well, look a little closer. See? Down there on the side of the field? Or on the court? Five Longwood girls. For the first time in history H-SC has a female cheering squad.

It all started when juniors Toni Raymond and Ginger Grooby decided to add a little color to the football games, by getting right out on the field and leading the cheers for the Tigers' maroon and gray.

The inhabitants at H-SC took a liking to their newly acquired cheering section and as a result, the Booster Club selected 2 other Longwood dwellers to complete the 5-girl group.

Juniors Sharon Howell and Wanda Robertson, and sophomore Henrietta Gilliam, plus Toni and Ginger lead the cheers for all the home basketball and football games now.

And they even have uniforms—gray sweaters with the school monogram, and white pleated skirts. Next year they hope to have burgundy skirts to replace the white ones.

The cheers are ones that the girls did back in their high school days, but at each game they add a new one or give a new "yell" to the old ones.

As far as favorites go, the Tigers seem to like a cheer called the "Cha Cha," especially the ending. And everyone likes the spectacular yell, as everybody gets in the act. By next year, the Longwood quintet hopes to have mimeographed copies of all the cheers to give out at the games.

If you're ever in the vicinity of South Cunningham "r.c." some afternoon and the rounds of "go, team, go" meet your ears, never fear, for the "Cha Cha" girls are near.

Neveu Remarks On Film Series

Dear Editor:

I would like to comment upon the recent letter criticizing the quality of the films which we have been showing. The criticism is based on the erroneous idea that what is worthwhile and enriching cannot be entertaining or enjoyable. The Film Committee does not subscribe to this viewpoint. We feel that what is of high cultural value will of necessity contain many elements of entertainment. Since these films are given under the auspices of the college, which is engaged in the activity of promoting excellence, the Film Committee believes that it should promote as much as possible films which have been universally acclaimed by the world's outstanding critics.

Maurice C. Neveu
Chairman,
Film Committee

Some Professors Thwart Search For Knowledge; Frustrate Students' Abilities, Potential In Class

By Maria Grant

Once upon a time there was a school located in or around the vicinity of Prince Edward County, Virginia. At this school were students of all types — those who played bridge most of the time, those who studied enough to get by and also those who had a great compulsion to learn and think for themselves.

This last group had the hardest time of all for also at the school were the teachers, and they, too, were of all types.

From one class to another the "hungry" students went in search of knowledge, only to be frustrated by one thing or another — either the teachers, or books which did not test ability or knowledge, or lack of interesting subject matter.

In the first class the students went to sleep. The teacher in front of the room continued to mumble about nothing important for an hour. There was no snoring, because that would be impolite, but the students were definitely asleep. When the bell finally rang it was almost like an alarm clock going off — time to get up.

In the nice airy room the students sat and listened to the air teacher airing his views on everything but the subject at hand. Pretty soon the students realized that there was a definite trend to the discussion — it was all one-sided. The teacher did not seem to like a certain religious group or a certain national group or a certain class of the country, etc., etc. (And he graded papers accordingly).

The day was over, and the students could now have their own discussions about a wide variety of subjects.

This lasted only a short time, however, because soon it was the next day and time for different classes. In the first one the students were very happy, because the teacher conveyed the idea that she wanted the students to learn, and she also acted as if she were ready to learn more by teaching the stu-

(Continued on page 4)

Around The Campi

Have you seen the freshman "Viper"? Remember the "Nexus '65"? Maybe a new tradition is in the making.

The Rotunda office has a new look with the same personality.

On third floor South is the only cuckoo clock in history to get a call down.

Some spirit was renewed in the Rotunda Thursday evening. For awhile it looked as though it was gone forever.

There was a unique chandelier in a certain room on second floor South.

A new competitor has demanded equal time with Dr. Birch. Dr. B. Agee is a massage expert, specializing in shoulder and neck aches.

Remark heard by one surprised student in the science department as she was being shown how to use a special microscope—"Just rick it on down."

Thought for the week: "Where is CHI?"

Letters To The Editor

Art Films Applauded By Culture Seeker

Editor:

Permit me the privilege of explaining to the "Frustrated Movie Goers" (sic) a few facts about the quality of the films currently being shown in Jarman Auditorium on Saturday nights.

If they will recall, it was the Spring semester of last year that the Rotunda, in an editorial, volunteered to sponsor the adoption of a program of art films to be shown to the student body free of cost. Gradually support in the form of letters to the editor grew. In each request students particularly asked that the series of films be art films.

Art films differ in many ways from the average, bland Hollywood animal productions. In this country, art films do not prove as financially successful as the gaudy, spectacular, meaningless but relaxing-delineately relating—film now being made which features such box-office attractions as Elvis Presley. Art films, therefore, are usually produced on a low budget. The leading actors and actresses are those with skills, not those with face, figure, and personality to sell. The purpose of the art film is not to make money off the middle-class-muddle-moralized faction of the national audience, but to artistically express a basic emotion, sentiment, or idea. Such a movie may be "plotless," or it may have a highly complex structure.

Makers of the art film attempt to make fullest use of all the technical advantages permitted them. Much of the beauty of these films relies upon a deft use of the camera. The score or "musical theme" also adds to the entire presentation of mood or message (which, by the way, is not a dirty word).

If there is a complaint to be made about the calibre of the films shown in Jarman this year, it is that a few of the films have been on a low level. These "recreational" films have been A Duel in the Sun and The Solid Gold Cadillac. The omission of these films relies upon a defective moviegoer.

There are many complaints to be made about the calibre of students attending these films. I am speaking of those unimpressive people who persist in tittering and giggling at that which

(Continued on page 4)

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

"WELL, I'LL TELL YOU WHY I'M DROPPING OUT OF SCHOOL—I'M DROPPING BECAUSE ALL THIS UNUSUAL EMPHASIS ON ACADEMIC SCHOLARSHIP HAS KILLED MY INCENTIVE TO LEARN."

Entered as second class matter at the Post Office at Farmville, Virginia under the Act of Congress, March 3, 1879, authorized for national advertising by the National Advertising Service. Printed by the Farmville Herald.

Distillation

By DONNA HUMPHLETT

Night after supper. A good time for a walk. Up the small toward Wheeler? Yes, that should be a nice walk before getting ready for study.

Look to the left of Wheeler. Orange steel beams jutting upwards into the air. Makes one think of the ruins of Greece.

Aren't you being corny, even a little fatigued? No, look at the way the orange reflects the light coming from Wheeler. It creates an eerie effect. To me it looks like the ruins of some ancient Greek temple.

That's sort of paradoxical. The effect it has on you, I mean. That a building in the process of being built should remind me of ruins. Yes, it's sort of like tearing down something before it gets built.

Now you're getting philosophical. How?

Lots of new ideas are torn down before they have a chance to be proved.

That's not always bad. I mean, not every new idea is good.

But many new ideas are torn apart merely because they are new. And that's neither right nor good.

You know, I think you're right. So we're convinced. Let's go study.

Timely Topics

Cuba Remains Problem,
Stamp Program Begins

Cuba continues to be a topic of anxiety for the United States. The question of a buildup of offensive military power in Cuba is being bootled around as a political football. The administration policy has been to keep a close control of information about Cuba. A recent diplomatic exchange on the topic took place between Secretary of State Rusk and Soviet Ambassador Dobrynin. The reports from Khrushchev say the troops in Cuba are there only for training purposes. It has been suggested that pressure as a result of public discussion of this problem would make the possibility of withdrawal of the troops more remote. But the discussion continues, especially in Congress. A Congressional focal point of the argument is between Senators Clark (D.) and Scott (R.) of Pennsylvania.

Food coupons which are a part of a federal food stamp program were given to 286 needy families in Wise county and the city of Norton. The $15,256 in food coupons were given to 1,300 people who were given a new purchasing power which is badly needed in this section of the state. Qualifying families buy coupons which are exchanged for food. The products are worth nearly three times what the stamps originally cost the buyer. This plan is expected to be extended soon to other counties in Virginia.

Lynchburg Wins
Over LC Team
On Saturday

The Longwood basketball team dropped both games on Saturday to Lynchburg College. The first game was very close throughout, ending with the narrow margin of 46-45. Starting as forwards in this game were Carrie Wilson, Lurline Robertson, and Eliza Cobbs. Melody Saunders, Shirley Carr, and Norma Eudy were the beginning guards.

In the second game the starting lineup was Barbara Ragland, Earlene Lang, and Frances Stewart as forwards and Mary Barnard, Lynn Baser, and Betsy Taylor as guards. This game ended with a 42-29 score.

This was Lynchburg College's sixth game. They are undefeated. Lynchburg was off on four shots and did not play as fast and rough a game as did Lynchburg.

Principals Meet
For Annual Visit
On February 14

The Sixth Annual Principal and Counselor Visitation Day will be held here on Thursday, February 14.

Approximately fifty principals and counselors from Virginia's high schools have accepted the invitation to meet with Longwood administration, faculty, and students to "promote, increase, and retain good relationships with the public schools of Virginia for which we exist," says Dr. Moss.

Discuss Preparation
From eleven to twelve o'clock, freshmen are requested to meet with the high school visitors from their schools for conferences at designated places. At this meeting they will discuss strengths and weaknesses of high school preparation and college experiences. Through these talks, the college has the opportunity of trying to help the schools better prepare students for college. Indirectly freshmen also give criticisms of the college.

Activities outside the curriculum have been separated according to the list below. Co-curricular activities are those activities related to the curriculum in at least one of the following categories:

a) Their content is of an academic nature.

b) Their organization stems from particular courses.

c) Their membership is determined by previous or current enrollment in particular courses.

All other activities have been designated extracurricular.

Activities designated as co-curricular include Alpha Psi Omega, Deane Eh Thorn, Choir, El Club Espanol, H2O Club, Home Economics Club, Kappa Delta Pi, Le Cercle Français, Longwood P. Team, Longwood Players and Lyceum.

Also listed under co-curricular activities are Lynchos, Madrigal Singers, Monogram Club, Music Recitals, Orchestra, Phi Beta Lambda, Phi Delta Epsilon, Phi Eta Epsilon, Pi Omega Pi, Pi Gamma Mu, Sigma Alpha Iota, Varsity Athletic Teams, and Visiting Lecturers.

Those listed as extracurricular are Alpha Kappa Gamma, Athletic Association, Baptist Student Union, Canterbury Club, Circus, Class meetings, projects and games, the College Party, Corn Shave Club, Granddaughters Club, House Council Lynchburg Club and May Day.

Also, movies, Music Education National Conference, Newman Club, Northern Neck Club, Panhellenic Council, the Rotunda, Social Sororities, Student Education Association, Student Government, Town Projects, the Virginia, the World Peace Foundation, Westminster Fellowship and the Young Women's Christian Association.

Varsity basketball co-captains Norma Eudy and Shirley Carr block shot by Carrie Lee Wilson during practice session.

MAKE THAT SHOT!

Modern Dancers
Attend Festival
On February 16

Orchestra members and students from modern dance classes will participate in the Fifth Annual Virginia Dance Festival, which will be held at the Museum Theater in Richmond on Saturday, February 16.

Joyce Waldburger will head the group representing Orchestra in a group work titled "Al-finity" which includes Ellen Barnes, Joan Lord and Glendon Merchant. Music by Evelyn Lo-hoefer defines the work as a psychological problem in movement and space patterns.

Students from the modern dance class, Carolyn Cline, Helena Hall and Caryl Hogg will join with the dance group in participating in the master class, which will be led by Jose Limon, an outstanding male dancer. He will be assisted by members of his company.

Participating colleges will perform after which Limon will act as critic of dance works.

Students from colleges throughout the state are expected to attend. Approximately 100 students are expected to take part in the master class. An average of three to five, sometimes seven students participate in the college group works.

Mrs. Emily K. Landrum, associate Professor of Physical Education and Advisor of Orchestra will accompany the group.

lege as they see it.

Wygall Speaks
In addition to meeting with the freshmen, the principals and counselors will have lunch in the dining hall, meet with the faculty, and hear summarizing remarks from Mr. Wygall.

This annual visitation day was initiated by Dr. Earl R. Boggs, former dean of the college. He is presently dean of the School of Education at West Virginia University, Morgantown, West Virginia.

HOLLYWOOD BEAUTY COLLEGE
102 N. Main St.
Phone EX 2-9019

Mr. Melvin Martin has joined our staff to introduce the new trend in Spring Hair Fashions.

Call Today For An APPOINTMENT

Shampoo & Sets ... $1.00

Body Wave ..... $5.00

Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday ONLY

Haircuts ..... 75c

Basketball Team Elects
Carr, Eudy Co-Captains

Norma Eudy and Shirley Carr have been named varsity basketball co-captains for this year. Norma, a Junior elementary major comes from Clover, Virginia. Shirley, a Junior from Holland, is also majoring in elementary education.

Roving Player
This year marks the first season that the "roving player" rule will go into effect. This, in essence, will mean that four roving players, a forward and her guard from each end of the court can cross the center line. Not more than four people, however can be on one side from each team.

According to Norma, this new rule makes both ball and game move faster, making it a more exciting event.

Future Games

Freshmen Down
Prince Edward Basketball Team

The freshmen members of the Varsity Basketball team defeated Prince Edward Academy 65-23. The game was played on the home court on February 6.

Members participating in the game were Nevis Born, Lisa Cobbs, Nancy Moorefield, Lynn Baker, and Frances Stewart. Also playing were Barbara Ragland, Phyllis Collins, Margie Barnard, and Judy Squires.

February 16 marks the second game at Madison. Others will be February 20 at William and Mary; March 2, to be played here against Westhampton, and March 8, with Richmond Polytechnic Institute and the Medical College of Virginia playing here.

Gilmore Serves
As Trial Editor
For 'Rotunda'

Virginia Gilmore served as editor-in-chief of this week's trial issue of the ROTUNDA. Ginny is currently serving as feature editor.

A Junior from Falls Church, Ginny is majoring in English and Speech Therapy. She is a member of Phi Delta Epsilon, honorary Journalism fraternity, and Longwood Players.

Working under Ginny for this issue were Nancy Mowrey, managing editor; Pat Wallace, news editor; Cookie Blackstone, assistant news editor; Dixie Grant, feature editor; Barbara Acres, sports editor; Jayne Eddy, assistant sports editor; and Karen Ruder and Mary Evelyn Compton, desk editors.

This issue of the ROTUNDA is the first of the three annual trial issues. The other two will be edited by Donna Humphlett and Ann Carroll, respectively.

Faculty Subjects
School Activities
To Group Study

(Continued from page 1)

b) Students should not receive class cuts to participate in other activities unless those activities are among those listed below as "co-curricular," and then only if the student is acting as a representative of the college.

2. Whenever possible, all organizations should schedule events for a given academic year by a deadline set in the spring semester of the previous academic year. Activities designated below as "co-curricular" should take precedence over those designated "extracurricular" within the limits of resources. Any event satisfactorily scheduled before the spring deadline should have priority over any event scheduled after the deadline, no matter what the status (co- or extracurricular) of the former event.

3. Activities outside the curriculum have been separated according to the list below. Co-curricular activities are those activities related to the curriculum in at least one of the following categories:

a) Their content is of an academic nature.

b) Their organization stems from particular courses.

c) Their membership is determined by previous or current enrollment in particular courses.

All other activities have been designated extracurricular.

Activities designated as co-curricular include Alpha Psi Omega, Deane Eh Thorn, Choir, El Club Espanol, H2O Club, Home Economics Club, Kappa Delta Pi, Le Cercle Français, Longwood P. Team, Longwood Players and Lyceum.

Also listed under co-curricular activities are Lynchos, Madrigal Singers, Monogram Club, Music Recitals, Orchestra, Phi Beta Lambda, Phi Delta Epsilon, Phi Eta Epsilon, Pi Omega Pi, Pi Gamma Mu, Sigma Alpha Iota, Varsity Athletic Teams, and Visiting Lecturers.

Those listed as extracurricular are Alpha Kappa Gamma, Athletic Association, Baptist Student Union, Canterbury Club, Circus, Class meetings, projects and games, the College Party, Corn Shave Club, Granddaughters Club, House Council Lynchburg Club and May Day.

Also, movies, Music Education National Conference, Newman Club, Northern Neck Club, Panhellenic Council, the Rotunda, Social Sororities, Student Education Association, Student Government, Town Projects, the Virginia, the World Peace Foundation, Westminster Fellowship and the Young Women's Christian Association.

Tempest Winners...Lap 1!

Did you win in Lap 2?

LAP 2...
10 WINNING NUMBERS!
15 CONSOLATION PRIZES TOO!

IMPORTANT! If you hold any of the 10 winning numbers, claim your Pontiac Tempest LeMans Convertible in accordance with the rules on the reverse of your license plate.

All claims for Tempests and Consolation Prizes must be made on registered mail, postmarked by February 23, 1963, and received by the holder no later than February 25, 1963.

If you hold a Consolation Prize number, you win a 4-speed Portable Hi-Fi Stereo Set, "The Waltz" by RCA Victor. Or, you may still win a Tempest! (See official claiming rules on reverse of your license plate, and observe claiming dates given above.)

L&M GRAND PRIZ 50
Sweepstakes for colleges only
More than 50 times the chance to win than if open to the general public.
35 Tempests to go!

Get set for the next lap... 15 more Tempests and 20 more Consolation Prizes! It's never been easier to win... no essays; no jingles; no slogans. Just pick up an entry blank where you buy your cigarettes. Enter now... enter often. Any entry received by March 1st, can win one of 35 Tempests still to go! Of course, entries you've already submitted are still in the running!

EXCLUSIVE FOR THE GIRLS!
If you win a Tempest you may choose instead a shopping expense part 2: even Holiday in Europe... for just $1000 in cash!

Get with the winners...

far ahead in smoking satisfaction!

SEE THE PONTIAC TEMPEST AT YOUR NEAREST PONTIAC DEALER.

GIVES BLOOD

Connie Burch takes part in Bloodmobile Program sponsored by Student Government Association and YWCA.

Longwood Donates To Local Bloodmobile

Prince Edward county residents are now eligible for free emergency transfusions at Red Cross affiliated hospitals. The Red Cross collected 251 pints of blood during its last two visits to this vicinity. (The quota was 250 pints.)

The last campaign, held here at Longwood College last week, saw 111 persons contribute 111 pints of blood. Most of the donors were from Longwood and Hampden-Sydney, while there were 11 people who came from the town to participate in the mobile. There was one administrative official and 29 students from H. S.

Faculty Contributors
Here at Longwood 69 students and the following faculty members and administrative officials contributed blood: Mr. Allen, Dr. and Mrs. Brooks, Mr. Elliot, Dr. Gibb, Mrs. Griffin, Mrs. Harris, and Mr. Umphlett.

About 80 Longwood students handled the administrative details. Overall chairman of the campaign was Eunice Lewis. Her two co-chairmen were Annice Bailey and Brenda Dunavant. The committees and heads were as follows: Hostess, Susan Lane; Typing, Anne White; and Canteen, Shirley Moody.

College Library Receives Books From Catholics

The Lancaster Library has received a one hundred fifty volume set of the Twentieth Century Encyclopedia of Catholicism. This work was presented to the library by St. Theresa's Mission, Farmville, and St. John's Parish, Crewe.

Because it includes information on all phases of modern life, the Encyclopedia of Catholicism has been hailed as the most complete work of its kind. As its publisher stated, it is "universal in scope, comprehensive in concept."

The volumes were donated for the use of Catholics on campus and non-Catholics who would like to know the Catholic viewpoint on any subject. They are located on the shelves according to subject matter.

"We hope the students will use these volumes often," commented Chase Sturm, president of the Newman Club.

Classes Select Screening Board Representatives

At each of the class meetings last week, two girls were elected to serve as representatives of the class as members of the screening board. These lucky team members are Jeanne Harris, seniors; Betty Jean Russell and Marie Murphy, juniors; Sandra Craig and Amy Haley, sophomores; Lee Criss and Nancy Snowfield, freshmen.

These girls, along with the present heads of the five major organizations and the chairman of the master-manner elections Susan Lane, will serve as the nominating committee for next year's organization leaders.

The screening board will organize the nominations made by each class and it will be the duty of the board representatives to gather opinions and comments on the nominees from members of their class.

The board then presents three candidates for each of the offices and the student body, in a preliminary election, decides upon the two nominees for the final ballot.

Batts, Hanson Teach In Science Department

Two members have been added to the teaching staff for the second semester. Both Mr. Raus M. Hanson and Mr. Billy S. Batts are connected with the science department.

Mr. Hanson, after thirty-one years at Madison College in Evansville, has come out of retirement to assume some of the classes in geography which will enable Mr. Magnusson to devote more of his efforts to the chairmanship of the evaluation committee.

After receiving his B. S. at Nebraska Wesleyan and his Masters at the University of Nebraska, Mr. Hanson taught both geography and science in high school before coming to Virginia to teach at Madison. He is now a resident of Harrisonburg.

Extensive Traveler
Aside from having traveled thirty-seven of our fifty states, England, and France, Mr. Hanson is also a writer. He has contributed various articles to the World Book Encyclopedia and is the author of Virginians At Work.

Mr. Batts comes to Longwood as a beginner in the teaching profession. He is conducting several courses in biology. He and his family are living in Farmville their first residency in Virginia.

Studies Fish
After receiving his B. S. at North Carolina State University, M. S. at the University of Washington in Seattle, Mr. Batts gained experience in his special field, a study of fish, by working as a teaching assistant at the Friday Harbor Laboratory of the University of Washington. In 1954, Mr. Batts went to Cuba where he collected fishes, reptiles and amphibians for marine study. While in Seattle, he spent two years doing research work for the Fisheries Research Institute of the University of Washington.

Mr. Batts, too, is an author of sorts, having had several publications in scientific journals on fishes and amphibians.

LSU To Publish Glasgow Study By Meeker

The Louisiana State University press has announced for publication in April, 1963, the collected stories of Ellen Glasgow, by Dr. Richard K. Meeker.

Dr. Meeker was professor of English at Longwood from 1953 to 1962. He is currently teaching at the State University College of New York in Potsdam.

Dr. Meeker's book is the first complete collection of Ellen Glasgow's short stories. It is also the first lengthy, scholarly analysis of her stories. In his edition, Dr. Meeker traces the influences on stories, provides biographical interpretations and places them in the context of the author's work as a whole.

Campus Teacher Types, Courses Cast In Satire

(Continued from page 2)

Students. So here, for awhile, the students' "hunger" was satisfied. But "hunger" can come more often.

The bell rang and there they were, listening to the teacher who knew very little about the students and their modern ideas. This teacher, among other things, liked to curse in class and always had an excuse for a confused grading system. The students sometimes felt like cursing back, but this would not be nice, so they did not curse.

One class of great interest was the one in which the teacher best around the bush and carried on until the end of the period. Then she began her lecture for the day, which lasted until time for the students' next class.

In the final one of the day the tired students could not look with great interest at the teacher who read from books like a bedtime story. And besides, the students did not care much for the stories anyway. And then there was the teacher's abstract concern for learning and the learner.

By the end of the week, the students were ready to stamp their feet with much vigor, but this might make the teacher angry, so the students did not. But they knew another week would come and with it more classes with the teacher who stereotyped students, the teacher who could not be reached through logic, the teacher who did not satisfy the "hunger."

And where did it end? Only the students know that. Ask them.

New Violin Class Possible Prelude For Orchestra

Dr. Molnar is interested in creating an orchestra on our campus in the coming years. In preparation for his plan, a violin class will be taught this semester, if he has volunteers to warrant such action.

Some previous experience in music and several hours of your time each week are the only requirements. He would prefer freshmen so that they will have time to develop the skills and for practice.

It will be a credit course and the violins and other materials will be supplied. The time of the class will be arranged to suit the members of the class. If you are interested, contact Dr. Molnar who will be glad to discuss his plans with anyone who desires to play the violin.

Mrs. Helen Savage, Dr. George W. Jeffers, and Miss Kate Treck, were given their particular signs of the Zodiac to wear throughout the entire evening.

The Social Committee, which was responsible for the plans of the banquet, had as its chairman Mrs. Magnifico.

NEW PROFS

Mr. Billy S. Batts (l.) and Mr. Raus M. Hanson (r.), new members of science faculty, acquaint themselves with specimens in science museum.

Student Airs Views On Campus Movies

(Continued from page 2)

is not "recreational." If the truth were told, they are laughing at that which their limited scope does not permit them to understand. These people are not ignorant — unless it is that they are ignorant of decent manners; they are merely close-minded. The "Frustrated Movie Goers" are but a manifestation of a typical, unfortunate Longwood attitude.

It may come to some people as a surprise that others find mental stimulation both recreational and relaxing. I strongly suggest that they attend art films with an open mind.

If they cannot appreciate or tolerate mental stimulation, I suggest they stop by the State Theatre. If they prefer to see a low calibre movie free, there is a television in each dormitory. Old, insipid "recreational" films are shown at all hours on three stations, daily.

With specific reference to Panther Panchall, the movie at which I assume the attack was leveled, to call it poor in calibre is to reveal a shocking lack of awareness of current standards of evaluation. The film enjoys the reputation of being one of the finest of the "new wave" films. When first released, it won not only the Cannes Film Award, but every other conceivable plaudit in the form of prizes and critical reviews. These ovations should be some indication of the film's worth.

There are those of us on campus who have come to college to broaden our experience and thereby learn lessons which cannot be found in texts or stuffy classrooms. Don't deny us and yourselves that privilege.

Sharon Coulter

Griffin Receives YHV Award

Mrs. Nell H. Griffin, head of the home economics department of Longwood College, was the recipient of one of two honorary degrees conferred by the Young Homemakers of Virginia. The award was presented at the organization's seventh annual meeting in Richmond, February 12.

Mrs. Griffin received the honor "in recognition of her contribution to education for enriched family living and the program of the Young Homemakers of Virginia."

NEWMAN'S MEN'S SHOP Traditional Styles See Our Ladies' Sportswear	MARTIN THE JEWELER Need A Gift? Come In And See Our New Gold &amp; Silver Charms!	English Leather Her shave... after shower... the ALL-PURPOSE MEN'S LOTION $2.00 $3.50 $6.50 plus tax
COLLEGE SHOP Completely Redone for your Comfort &amp; Satisfaction Come and See Us!	SPECIAL: DELICIOUS: CHERRY SUNDAES only 20c With Pet Ice Cream COLLEGE SNACK BAR	Owen-Sanford Drug Co. "In The Farmville Shopping Center" Phone EX 2-3167 FARMVILLE, VA.
Use This Coupon for ONE FREE COKE! Thursday—Friday and Saturday at SOUTHSIDE SUNDRY	For Your New Semester Supplies Visit The COLLEGE BOOKSTORE

THE ROTUNDA

VOL. VII

Longwood College, Farmville, Va., February 20, 1963

No. 12

College Offers Summer Catalog To LC Students

Catalogues for the 1963 Summer Session at Longwood have been received and are available upon request in the Office of the Dean and in the Public Relations Office.

Copies of the catalogue have been sent to colleges and secondary schools throughout Virginia and to many colleges in nearby states. Additional catalogues have been supplied to teachers and persons working toward masters degrees.

The eight-week session for undergraduates begins June 18; the three-week and five-week sessions for graduates and advanced undergraduates begin on June 18 and July 7, respectively. Provisions will be made for an activity program for children to enable mothers to attend the summer session.

Courses will be offered in the following departments: art, business education, education, psychology, philosophy, English, history, geography, sociology, home economics, library science, music, natural sciences, and physical and health education.

The traditional Institute of Southern Culture summer lecture series will be held on July 26 with visiting lectures and faculty members participating.

Any information desired on the summer session may be obtained by contacting C. G. Gordon Moss, Dean of the college.

'Hamlet' Trip

There will be a short meeting of the group going to Washington on April 20, tomorrow at 12:40 in the Virginia Room. The meeting will last only a few moments, but it is essential that everyone who has purchased a ticket be present.

Students Select Queen, Court For May Day

Gari Dickson, a senior art major from Richmond, is the 1963 Queen of the May for Longwood. Sandra Little of Norfolk will be her Maid of Honor. Other senior members of the court include Donna Frantzian, Bobbi Loh, and Lani Robinson. Junior members of the court are Lynn Osteen, Pam Crov, Jane Bryan, Janice Blowe and Bobbi Cadow.

Meredith Cate, Suzanne Ballard, and Wanda Old are the sophomore members.

Connie Perkins is the freshman member.

Attired in evening dresses, the girls were chosen February 15 in Jarman Auditorium. The preliminaries were held prior to that week.

May Day celebrations will be held May 4 at the dell. This year's theme is as yet incomplete.

Poland, Robertson To Edit Literary Magazine, Annual

LURLINE ROBERTSON

BARBARA POLAND

Publications Board Chooses New Editors

Editors of the Colonnade and the Virginian have been chosen by the publications board. Barbara Poland will edit the Colonnade, Longwood's literary magazine. Lurline Robertson will be the editor of the yearbook, the Virginian.

Art Department Displays Prints Of Eastern Art

On display in the college art department gallery is a collection of 33 contemporary Japanese prints. These were selected from a group of prints in a 1960 contest sponsored by James Michener and the Charles E. Tuttle Company.

A departure from classical Japanese prints, these present-day artists design their pictures, then work the design into blocks to which they lay on color. The Japanese do their own printing. These creative prints are called seiad hanga.

The subjects are largely abstract. Some of the artists seem to be interested in the "feel" of the wood, particularly the grain and its response to color laid on it and transferred to paper, while others are concerned with color, itself, or shapes of certain types. Still others are interested in space relationships.

LSU Publishes Simkins Work Regarding South

Dr. Francis B. Simkins, chairman of the history department, will soon add another book to his list of publications. The title of his new book is The Enduring South. It is to be published by the Louisiana State University press.

The book will contain Dr. Simkins' essays of opinion on the South, omitting the historical run-downs. There will be four main topics under discussion, they are: "The South as a Region," "The South's Democratic Pose," "The Enduring South's Past," and "The Rising Tide of Faith."

Added to one of his present works, The History of the South, a book used in college classrooms from Virginia to Hawaii, will be a chapter called "Into the 1960's." This chapter will include events in the South from 1952, when the book was first published, until 1963. Included in these events will be a section on the situation in Oxford, Mississippi.

Players, H-SC Jonglours Stage Tolstoy's 'Power Of Darkness'

"The Power of Darkness" by Leo Tolstoy will be presented by the Longwood Players and the Hampton-Sydney Jonglours. Performance dates will be March 14, 15, 16 in Jarman Auditorium. The play will be directed by Mr. David Wiley with Melinda Walker as student director and Pat Spies as stage manager.

The leading cast members will include Ed Baker as Nikita, Carla McVair as Anna, Barbara Poland is an English major from Hamilton. She graduated from Loudoun County High School where she worked on the newspaper, the yearbook, and the literary magazine. Her scholastic achievement won her the Business and Professional Women's Club Scholarship.

Forum Council Member Her freshman year Barbara was chosen as a member of the Longwood Forum Council of which she is now serving as secretary. She has been a reporter of the Rotunda for two years. During her sophomore year she began working on the literary board of the Colonnade.

This year Barbara is a member of the Student Government Evaluations Committee. She is an active member of the Westminster Fellowship; presently she is acting treasurer. She is the secretary of the Faith Commission. Barbara is also a member of the Student Education Association.

In the future Barbara plans to teach English in high school. She says that she hopes to coach debating, too. Other future plans include graduate study in English. She plans to specialize in the short story, a genre in which she became intensely interested as a result of the short story course.

Top Honor Student Lurline Robertson, of Chatham, is a physical education major. She graduated from Chatham High School as the top honor student. Lurline was the editor of her high school annual, the Demon, and sports editor of the school newspaper.

Since coming to Longwood last year, Lurline has been active in class as well as varsity sports. Her class sports include hockey, volleyball (of which she is co-captain), softball, and tennis. The varsity sports she plays are basketball, archery, and hockey. Now she is on the Athletic Association Council and is a basketball manager.

In college Lurline has been on the Dean's List for two semesters. Her plans for the future include graduate study. She hopes to get her master's degree in physical education. Lurline eventually wants to teach physical education on the college level.

and Phyllis Duncan as Matrena. A story of Russian peasants, the cast will also include: Harriet Hunt, Margaret Wright, Mike Couchman, Mary Lynn Lander, Doty Cox, and Martha Spitzer. Additional cast members will be David Reyles, Maria Konovolt, Pat Newton, Rick Crane and Phil Anderson. Two performers Billy McGuire and John McNeal will portray double roles.

ISC Speakers Talk On Virginia Politics

The Institute of Southern Culture, established at Longwood College in 1956 to study traditional aspects of Southern civilization, is sponsoring a series of lectures by visiting scholars and members of the faculty. This year the main theme of the Institute, which will be held April 26, 1963, is Virginia Politics.

Lecturers will be Col. Francis P. Miller, special assistant, Department of State; Mr. James J. Kilpatrick, Editor, Richmond News Leader; and Dr. M. Boyd Coyner, Jr., Professor of History, Hampden-Sydney College.

Colonel Miller, who will speak on "Has There Been Progress in Political Democracy in Virginia," received his A. B. degree from Washington and Lee University. As a Rhodes scholar he attended Oxford University, England, where he received his B. A. and his M. A. degrees. Col. Miller has been active in Virginia politics. In 1938-41 he was a representative of Fairfax County in the Virginia House of Delegates. In 1949 he was a runner-up in the Virginia gubernatorial contest and in 1952 he was defeated by Harry F. Byrd for the U. S. Senate.

Mr. Kilpatrick will lecture on "The Contemporary Leader in Virginia." He is a member of the House of Delegates. Dr. M. Boyd Coyner, Jr. will lecture on "The Contemporary Leader in Virginia." He is a member of the House of Delegates.

Sophomore Club Opens Contest For Bridge Fans

The Sophomore Club initiated a bridge tournament for interested classmates as a form of recreation and competition. As of now, 35 girls are in the midst of the tournament which began last Wednesday and will run through next week.

Maxey Hyman and Carol Moyer, Pep Club members, are in charge of scheduling and organizing the games. The first elimination was today, and eventually the last 2 partners will be announced by the sophomore bulletin board as the winners.

By matching people from different dorms and halls, Carol and Maxey hope to create a lot of fun and competition. It also gives many girls the opportunity to compete against people with whom they have never played.

Freshmen Write 'Hey, Granny!' For Traditional Class Production

"Hey, Granny!" the musical comedy written by the Freshman Class of 1966, will be presented as the freshman production for 1963. The show starts at 8:00 p.m., this Friday, February 22, in Jarman Auditorium.

Tickets will be sold after meals until Friday. The box office will be open the night of performance. The price of admission is 35 cents for students and 50 cents for adults. The play has three acts and the setting is New York, but because it might detract from the comedy of the performance, the freshmen have decided not to disclose the theme of the play.

The co-chairmen for production are Sally Grayson and "Tinkle" Cleary. Their director is Carole Gibson. Stage Manager is Nancy Moorefield with assistants Madeline Miller, Sydney Phelps, and Jean White. The committees and committee heads are as follows: scenery, Ann Coleman and Pat Dugger; costumes, Claudia Storminger; dance, Cary Hogg; music, Lelf Erickson; sound, Della Anderson; make-up, Linda Overbee and Judy Talc; pep, Frances Stewart; lights, Karen Ruder; tickets, Martha Misher; ushers, Jean Haynie; programs, Helen Weeks and Faye Anderson; courtesy, Fran Lipford; and business manager, Olivia Gibson.

The characters are: Marcy (Continued on page 3)

HEY, GRANNY!

During rehearsal of Freshman Production, "Hey, Granny!", Carey Howell as Miss Parker, Harriet Anderson as Boss, and Marel Lemons as Granny, enact scenes from forthcoming play. Performance begins at 8 p.m., February 23, in Jarman Auditorium.

Necessity Of Compulsion

Are compulsory assemblies really necessary? We hear this question resounding throughout the dining hall each Tuesday that an assembly is announced. This question is then followed by the expression, "I hope this one is better than the last one."

The weekly compulsory assemblies are often ill-prepared; sometimes they have poor speakers. In either of these cases, even if the program is potentially a good one, the desired effect is hopelessly lost, and the result is a restless audience.

Some compulsory assemblies insult the intelligence of the student body. Such assemblies offer upside-down slides and readings from an encyclopedia or movies on subjects which are only mentioned in the title of the film.

Why subject the student body to boring assemblies when interested students are more than anxious to attend stimulating lectures given by guest speakers. Professors often require their students to attend such lectures insuring an adequate, attentive audience.

We do not wish our fellow students to appear as stooges and bores before us; we do want this hour per week to be intellectually rewarding.

Election Duties

Knock, knock, knock. Your screening board representatives appear at your door, asking your opinion of the candidates for each of the major organizations. You give an impartial opinion to each girl, and your ideas, along with those opinions of other girls in your class, are compiled by your screening board representatives to be presented to the entire screening board. In this way, each of you becomes a voice on the screening board, and your thoughts and opinions will be considered carefully.

Within the next two weeks, major and minor elections will determine who will lead the five major organizations on campus for the coming year. Each of you has three responsibilities. First, you must continue to consider each girl who is running for an office, and you must discuss these girls with your screening board representatives. Second, you must consider the qualification and capabilities of each of the final candidates; then you must VOTE.

Susan Lane - Major-Minor Elections Chairman

Distillation

By DONNA HUMPHLETT

Time for a study break.
Someone's placing a long-distance call to Florida.
Quiet!
Screams. (Someone received a diamond.)
An angry sleeper has just been awakened.
More screams.
Quiet! I'm calling Florida.
An egghead slams her door.
The p.a. squawks.
Can't anyone sleep around here?
Another door slams.
A pizza pan rolls out of the kitchen and down the hall.

Squeals follow it.
Out comes the nocturnal jacks player. She's early—it's only four in the afternoon.
The t.v. echoes up and down the stair well.
"A fourth! A fourth! My kingdom for a fourth."
"The Secret Storm" is on t.v.
Bridge anyone?
Quiet!
Jacks?
I've finished my call. Noise everyone.
Ah . . .

The Rotunda

ESTABLISHED NOVEMBER 20, 1920

Published each week during the college year except during holidays and examination period by the students of Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia, Box 163.

Ann Azee ..... Editor-in-Chief
Donna Humphlett ..... Managing Editor
Bobbi Mast ..... Business Manager
Ann Carroll ..... News Editor
Gussy Gilmore ..... Feature Editor
Lefly Snyder ..... Sports Editor
Lewann Hopper, Doris Smith ..... Desk Editors
Betty Taylor ..... Art Editor
Finale Barnard, Linda Paris ..... Photography
Ann Davies ..... Circulation Manager
Mary Reynolds ..... Advertising Manager

REPORTING STAFF: Barbara Azee, Theresa Albright, Leslie Aldridge, Suzanne Ballard, Paula Blackstone, Margaret Cook, Lee Criss, Dee Dee Dindrich, Jane Edley, Beverly Gooden, Judi Hackney, Judy Ivy, Sandra Jamison, Janet Leary, Susan Lane, Mary Anne Lafford, Jean Lord, Beale Mann, Charlotte McCall, Wynne Phillips, Barbara Poland, Karen Rider, Marcia Rosfield, Doris Smith, Lois Sullivan, Betty Taylor, Allene Tuggle, Barbara Turner, Linda Towner, Pat Walker, Dee Watkins, Annette Wenger.

CIRCULATION STAFF: Suzanne Brief, Sandra Freedman, Cindy Gay, Cheramy Jones, Jackie Leach, Cabell Montgomery, Betty Lee Neal, Mary Lee Pinkett, Joyce Powell, Eleanor Richardson, Marian Ross, Gay Stamp.

ADVERTISING STAFF: Mary Bradford, Diana Dell, Betty P. Galner, Judi Hackney, Dottie Marshall, Sandra Parker, Faye Stone, Diana Woolley.

PHOTOGRAPHY STAFF: Mary Evelyn Compton, Gray Garhart, Dottie Marshall, Nancy Robinson.

BUSINESS STAFF: Leslie Aldridge, Olivia Gibson, Helen Wook.

(Unsigned editorials written by the editor)

Member: Virginia Intercollegiate Press (Rating First Class), Columbia Scholastic Press Association (Rating First Place), National College Press Service.

Entered as second class matter at the Post Office at Farmville, Virginia under the Act of Congress on March 3, 1920. Represented for national advertising by the National Advertising Service. Printed by the Farmville Herald.

"MR. MAC"

Science professor, Mr. Thomas McCorkle, makes himself at home in classroom after returning to Longwood faculty.

Former Professor Returns To Campus

Recently, a new member has been added to the Longwood College science department. He is a little white-haired man with a charming smile and if you should bump into him one day in the science building you will have just met Mr. Thomas A. McCorkle.

"Mr. Mac," as he is affectionately called by all his students, is taking the place of Mr. de los Reyes who he is to leave for the rest of the semester. He is teaching one physics class.

Lives in Farmville
"Mr. Mac" taught at Longwood thirty-eight years — from 1922 to 1960 — before retiring and has been living in Farmville since then. He added with a smile, that he has taught School only one day since his retirement in 1960, and that was a high school physics class.

While here at Longwood, "Mr. Mac" was advisor for the Virgilian from 1923 to 1959 and he taught classes in physics and chemistry. He also completed several survey jobs for the college, and served on numerous committees, including class schedules committees, summer school, commencements, policies and building committees.

Teaches Professors
He also taught Charlie Hop in high school chemistry and Dr. Elizabeth Burger Jackson in physics here at Longwood.

"Mr. Mac" claims that in his vacant time he just "kicks around, plays, and enjoys himself," but actually a large part of his spare time is devoted to being Treasurer of the Presbyterian Church in Farmville. He and his wife cultivate flowers in their back yard, and also travel a great deal. He has put 35,000 miles on his car since retiring.

This is the third time Mr. McCorkle has done a pinch-hit job for the college. "Actually all they are doing," says Mr. McCorkle, "is pulling out a has-been and putting him back into working order for a semester."

Judgments. She must be willing to accept the responsibility and in her hands and possess the qualities of poise, experience, patience, tolerance, and tact.

Present organizations leaders have suggested the following qualifications for good leadership in their various offices:

Annie Bailey, present chairman of the legislative board, points out that the person elected to this position will also serve as president of the student body. She will be serving to bring about better relations among the students, faculty, and administration. Because she and the other members of the legislative board will be making the rules by which you must live, it is necessary that the person be willing to work and accept the many responsibilities that pertain to the office. She must be someone who is understanding, impartial, and above all, devoted to the student body.

Betty Slack, serving as chairman of the judicial board in Sandra Philgar's absence, believes that the person elected for this office must be able to lead and guide — not dictate. She should possess tact and kindness, yet a firm manner. She should set high personal standards for herself and maintain an above average scholarship record. In her dealings with all situations, she must remain fair and unbiased.

(Continued on Page 4)

Around The Campi

Last week it was doubtful who the screening board would screen.

Sign seen in Cunningham—"You are now leaving South Cunningham—socialize."

We've heard of rolls, sandwiches, etc., leaving the dining hall, but whole dinners—man!

Guess what centennial this is.

About the people who thwarted a Colonnade walking last week.

Heard by a student while on a bus with several Farmville residents—"Farmville is the garden city of the world" (?)

"This is true" has been awarded the prize for the longest running phrase of the year.

Supply the right tune:

"Among the gleaming columns, along . . .
"Hail to thee, our Longwood sisters . . .
"Mary Margaret Truman was the daughter of . . .

How about the green and white valentine on the Sophomore bulletin board.

Get your writing arm and artistic touch ready for the coming weeks.

SUPPORT FRESHMAN PRODUCTION

Hear about the budding authors on third floor South? They even have a typist, promoter, publicity, and business manager (?)

The new disorganization on campus this year is SWORD. Last year the Sigma Phi Nothings were formed. Neither one has been evaluated yet.

Thought for the week: What ever happened to Longwood, our own Longwood?

See any new signs on campus? Looks like the Juniors' Circus skit got results.

Faulkner's Absalom Tells South's Story

By Dee Watkins

Quinton Compton of Harvard, the narrator in William Faulkner's Absalom! Absalom!, begins the story of the South in answer to his Canadian roommate's request to tell him about the South. Shreve McCannon, Quentin's roommate, says, "Tell about the South. What's it like there? What do they do there? Why do they live at all?" In trying to answer Shreve's questions, Quentin also hoped to find the answers to the questions, himself.

The story begins with Thomas Sutpen, a poor white of Scotch-English stock, coming from Tidewater Virginia to settle in the town of Jefferson. He came to Jefferson with a fixed design in mind. His design was to become a gentleman. To achieve this design he had to acquire with no alternative. Perhaps this does answer why the South failed. The South's own self-deception and inability to define itself made it believe it had no other alternative.

Sutpen fails
Sutpen did succeed in acquiring each of these things, but his design to become a gentleman still failed. Quentin and E-tipo both wanted to know why the design failed. Quentin believed that in finding the answer he would learn why the South, itself, had failed. There are two possible reasons for this failure. Quentin believed the failure was due to Sutpen's innocence, his belief that morality was simply a means to an end. A more logical explanation for the failure, however, was Sutpen's own inability to define himself, or his self-deception in not being able to accept the responsibility for his failure.

No Responsibility

Sutpen was married twice, his first marriage to a woman of Haiti who had Negro blood. As a result of this marriage a son was born. Sutpen was unable to accept the responsibility for this marriage, and he repudiated his son. He felt that, due to his wife's Negro blood, he was left with no alternative. Perhaps this does answer why the South failed. The South's own self-deception and inability to define itself made it believe it had no other alternative.

(Continued on page 4)

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

"I'D HAS EATEN HERE FOR TWO YEARS AN' Y'OUVE NEVER HEARD HIM COM' AN' ABOUT STUDENT UNION FOOD"

SPORTS CLASS

Seasonal sports class plays lively game of volleyball during recent session. As Spring approaches archery, golf, or tennis will be played.

Collegiate Basketball Captures Spotlight

By Sandra Jamison

Top in sports news for the past week was the rival game between Hampden-Sydney and Randolph-Macon. Before an overflowing crowd, Hampden-Sydney came back after being behind eleven points at the half to win the game 90-87. The score was tied several times in the final minutes of the game, but the precise shots of Bill Hardin put the Tigers ahead for a victory.

Basketball was also the big sport in other colleges throughout the South. The University of Richmond suffered a slumping defeat at the hands of the Wildcats of Davidson; the final score was 72-57.

Washington and Lee, who bowed to the Hampden-Sydney Tigers on February 9, also accepted defeat from the Maroons of Roanoke College. The score was 77-72.

An expected victory came through when Duke defeated the University of Virginia. The score, 79-74, was much closer than had been anticipated. The victory was the twelfth straight win for the Blue Devils.

William and Mary took the lead at the midpoint of the first half and was never threatened again by VMI. This 76-63 victory was William and Mary's seventh straight Southern Conference win.

VPI fell to the George Washington Colonials and gave the Colonials a 82-73 win. The Colonials came from behind at the half for the victory.

Saturday night the University of Virginia Cavaliers were victorious over the Terrapins of Maryland. After Virginia gained the lead, Maryland could not regain it. The Terps and the Cavaliers were now tied for sixth place in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

North Carolina State defeated South Carolina in a hard-fought game that ended 78-74. This tightened N. C. State's hold on third place in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Another game of interest was Randolph-Macon versus Richmond Professional Institute. The game, which was played Friday night, ended with a victory for Randolph-Macon. The score was 86-67.

In the baseball world, outfielder Al Smith has signed with the Baltimore Orioles for this coming season.

Basketball Changes Add Roving Players

By Jayne Eddy

Noted anything different about girls' basketball this year? The players crossing the division line are no longer committing a violation. For the first time in girls' basketball a roving player has been introduced which results in a full-court play. Each team has two roving players, a forward and a guard. A roving forward has the opportunity to play as a guard and likewise a guard may rove as a forward.

Commenting on the new method of playing Miss Heintz said, "I think that it speeds up the game. It calls for more endurance on the players that rove. I think that what most people object to is that the rules change every couple of years, as people do become accustomed to a certain style. These changes also make it necessary to change teaching technique, but we always hope that is for the best."

Lurline Robertson and Carrie Lee Wilson, the managers of the varsity squad, also commented on the new rules. Lurline said, "I like playing the position of roving player. Now one can play the whole game and not just half, as it has been before this year. The game is faster and much more interesting to watch. The spectators are enjoying the game more than in previous years. Since four people can shoot, one person no longer accumulates all the points. Everyone has the chance to be the forward, as well as the sharp shooting eye. The forwards aren't the only ones who receive publicity now. The guards, who have been slighted in the past, are now given recognition for their playing ability."

In addition to Lurline's statement, Carrie Lee added, "Personally, I like the new rules in most instances. Since the position of the roving player has been introduced, one must possess not only the ability to make goals or play defensively, but also combine the two positions and add speed, endurance, and mental alertness at all times because the game definitely moves faster this year. The only rule for which I do not care is the extreme possibility of intentional roughness entering into the game since the speed has increased to such a great extent. In our first game of competition this year our team met such a situation and found there are moments when the players lose their feminine behavior while on the court."

Slater System Offers Two Trophies For Year

Mr. A. H. Clarke, manager of the dining hall, has announced that the Slater Corporation wants to sponsor the awarding of two new trophies.

The Athletic Association was approached in regard to this. At the last meeting it was voted that they would co-sponsor one of the trophies.

One trophy, it was decided, would be awarded to a class sports team on the basis of sportsmanship displayed during class games.

Each class team in each sporting event will be judged by a panel of students and faculty members.

At the annual end-of-the-year outdoor picnic given by the Slater Corporation, the trophy will be awarded. For example the engraving might read: 1963 Class Softball Team—Class of 'XX' or 1962 Class Hockey Team—Class of 'ZZ'.

This trophy will be handed down from year to year.

Incumbent, family welfare, education, and health and physical fitness.

Governor Harrison defended Virginia's traditional pay-as-you-go fiscal policy this week in response to former Governor Darby's statement that the state could have saved at least $150 million in interest on bonds for highway construction if it had borrowed directly.

The crash was in the swamp where virtually all travel must be made by air boat. Investigation of the crash has not yet determined its cause. The craft lost radio contact with Miami International Airport traffic control only seven minutes after takeoff. The wreckage was sighted six and one half hours later by coast guard men who stated that the fuselage was consumed by fire.

The President sent to Congress a complete program which he feels should be enacted to aid the nation's youth. He asked Congress for legislation and financing on a broad scale. His program includes a "Youth Conservation Corps" to work in parks and forests, a domestic peace corps, and an expansion of the present Peace Corps. He emphasized the need for measures in the areas of juvenile delinquency, family welfare, education, and health and physical fitness.

United States Navy ships and planes joined in the South Caribbean search for the hijacked Venezuelan freighter Anzoategui late last week. Although it is believed that the ship has not reached Cuba, the navy does not know where the ship is. The Communists stated Wednesday that they had seized the ship to dramatize their war against President Kennedy.

The second trophy has yet to be spoken for. Mr. Clarke said that he would like for this trophy to go to one person and be kept by that person. A new trophy would be awarded annually.

"Any organization, group, or individual having an idea for a purpose for awarding the second trophy is invited to express their ideas," added Mr. Clarke.

Longwood Splits Winning Scores With Madison

Longwood won their first game with Madison last Saturday, taking an early lead and maintaining it despite determined opposition. The final score was 38-30. Madison led throughout the second game, defeating the Longwood team 43-30.

Playing as forwards for the first game were Lurline Robertson, Carrie Lee Wilson, and Lise Cobbe. Guards were Shirley Carr, Norma Eudy, and Margie Barnard.

Second game forwards were Earlene Lang, Barbara Rayland, and Nevis Born. Playing as guards were Lynn Baker, Betsy Taylor, and Judy Squires. Substituting was Nancy Moorefield.

PRAISE?

Physical Education Department institutes new exercise class for energetic students. Above girls demonstrate one of body strengthening exercises under direction of Miss Heintz.

New Exercise Class Gains Girls' Approval

Physical Education 318, which had not been requested by students in previous years, was in great demand at the beginning of this semester. Miss Heintz, who is instructing the girls in exercise, posture, and carriage, has 45 students in the class.

The girls in the class want to tone muscles which they do not ordinarily use and to better tone those that might be sagging. They feel that Miss Heintz is doing a good job of finding those muscles. The class usually begins with a "warm up" exercise which would probably be enough to wear out the average Longwood girl.

Keyed to Individual Miss Heintz has taught the girls exercises for the feet, ankles, waist, arms, abdomen, legs, hips, and for every other part of the body. After trying and perfecting many exercises the girls will choose a certain program of exercises based on their own personal needs. Weekly measurement charts will be kept by each girl in order to check any changes which may result from their individual programs. Miss Heintz plans for the girls to exercise to music; she also plans to instruct them in such things as walking and sitting properly, walking in heels and walking up and down stairs properly.

After talking to a number of girls in the class, it is easy to see that they consider the class enjoyable and beneficial.

Students Comment Sharon Coulter commented that she likes the class because it allows the girls to learn exercises for every muscle in the body.

Helps to Condition Judy Brewer and Alta Strickland both said that they enjoy the class because it is helping them to get in good condition and to use muscles which they feel they have never used before. They said that they felt some soreness after their first few exercise classes, but that they are feeling very little now. They went on to say that the exercises seem easier to them now that they have practiced.

The class will be offered again next year for any interested girls. One credit is offered. At present the class is meeting in the Tabb Rec from 4 to 5:20 on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Freshmen Anticipate Hit In 'Hey Granny!'

(Continued from page 1)

Lemone as Granny, Becky Knight as Prissy, Nan Gregory as Mrs. Hollingsworth, Kay Catron as Mr. Hollingsworth, Harriet Anderson as the Boss, Frances Stewart as Charlie, Jenny Turner as the Emcee, Carrie Howell as Miss Parker, Ann Farrell Smith as Jane.

Mary Ann Hankins plays Gita; Mary Lou Whitehead, Reporter; Sybil Elliot, the Office Boy; and Pat Dugger, the Office Worker and the Photographer. The extras are Mary Lynn Chabham, Ann Smith, Norma Johnson, Betty Jo Flora, Lee Criss, Mary Lee Shoulders, and Bobbi Allen.

Tonight and tomorrow night will be dress rehearsals, as the production is put through the last stages of polishing up. After long weeks of rehearsal and work through vacations, home-tour stops has all agreed that things have come along even better than expected and have great confidence in a smash hit!

State Theatre FARMVILLE, VA.

Now Playing True Wed.

TENNESSEE WILLIAMS' GREAT FIRST COMEDY! M-G-M PRESENTS Period of Adjustment

Thurs.-Fri.-Sat

Feb. 21-22-23

SODOM AND GOMORRAH

SHOWS TIMES:

2:45 6:30 9:04

Last Evening

Show Ends 11:40

Feb. 24-25-26-27

ROBERT SHIRLEY MICHAEL MALLANE TWO FOR THE SEESAW

Feb. 28-March 1-2

"40 Pounds Of Trouble"

NEW DORM

Construction progresses on Mary White Cox dormitory. Students can expect completion of new dorm, housing approximately 180 by November, 1963.

Student Comments On Speech By "Race And Reason" Author

By Pat Wallace

Several students from Longwood and Hampden - Sydney, along with interested townspeople, traveled to Washington to attend a Lincoln Day dinner sponsored by the Putnam Letterson Club.

The speaker, Mr. Carleton Putnam, is the author of Race and Reason. This book is supposedly written from the Yankee view, but it is doubtful if Mr. Putnam represents the majority of the North. He is, however, a

New Englander and attended both Princeton and Columbia. The subject of Mr. Putnam's speech dealt with the genetic and hereditary inferiority of the Negro. Frequently, throughout his address, Mr. Putnam quoted a number of experts on both sides of the issue.

To quote Mr. Putnam from Race and Reason, "It is true that anthropology is not an exact science . . . and that its propositions cannot be proved or disproved like mathematical formulae . . . To my mind, the point is academic. I fully agree that the point is academic, but how are we to prove which group of experts is academically correct?"

When asked in Race and Reason - Why do many church leaders support integration? Why has the doctrine of racial equality become so popular, even among many whites? — Mr. Putnam's answer to both questions is that a clique of Northern anthropologists, under the influence of the Boas theories, have, so to speak, pulled the wool over the eyes of these people. (It would seem improbable that a few Northern scholars could so determine the way of thinking of so great a number of people spread over so vast an area as the United States of America. There must be other reasons!)

Amateur Integrationists
In various sections of his book and in his speech Mr. Putnam attacks many "amateur integrationists" as being overly emotional, a charge he could well answer to himself. During his talk he often revealed his own purpose and disappointed many in his audience with a display of emotionalism that well equaled or surpassed his "amateur integrationists." A few examples might be appropriate here:

1) Mr. Putnam: "... and in many Northern cities, little white orphans are placed in colored orphanages."
General reaction of audience: SHOCK.

Reaction of woman at a Longwood student's table: "Oh my god! Those poor dears."
2) In a reference to one of the Harvard anthropologists who advanced the theory of race equality, Mr. Putnam felt compelled to mention that he had been arrested by the FBI and questioned about subversive activities. Among many of the less scholarly members of the audience this left the impression that many of these men were connected with communist activities — an opinion expressed by some of the townspeople on the return trip to Farmville.

3) Mr. Putnam was where in the Constitution does it mention that the Supreme Court has the right to force integration upon the children of the South against their will?

the will of Southern mothers! I'm sure from the expression on several of those present that this stirred the imagination to recall heroic Southern Womanhood.

Nonetheless, emphasis has been placed on this point but, as Mr. Putnam makes frequent references to emotionalism, I would suggest a closer examination of his own habits.

"Hidden Issue"
One of the main stays of his speech was a repeated warning that we must separate the religious, humanitarian, ethical, and moral influences from our minds and concentrate fully upon the "hidden issue," that of genetic and hereditary differences. This is one point where many people, myself included, disagree strongly with Mr. Putnam. Of course, each individual must decide for himself whether he can ignore all other influences and let science dominate his decision.

Mr. Putnam informs us that "... the Negro owes the white man a debt of gratitude that can never be repaid." Although I am sure that a man as learned as Mr. Putnam should have been able to list a number of tributes to the benevolent nature of the white man, he failed to do so at this time. He went on to say that the southern whites had developed "... a way of life where the Negro took his limitations into consideration with a minimum of friction and a maximum of kindness." One should congratulate the South on this truly big-hearted attitude!

I must agree, however, with Mr. Putnam's statement to the effect that many integration leaders have so aroused a "clap-on-the-shoulder" attitude in many of the Negroes that this attitude is lowering the Negro in the eyes of the whites.

Unfair Charges

I would also agree that many Northerners have been grossly unfair in their charges against the South. This is illustrated by the following quote by W. E. Debaun in which he answers an attack by Mrs. Roosevelt: "She joins in the great clique of holier-than-thou reformers that persist in painting the South as a backward land, peopled in the main by low browed hoodlums, smelling of lavender and old lace, and sniffing away on magnolia blossoms, and shuffling along the street with a mint julep in one hand and a bull whip in the other, going some place to lynch some Negro who, if he got his just deserts, would be elected governor."

Mr. Putnam's conviction that the South knows the answer to its own racial problem, not the problems of New York, Africa, or Utah, than anyone else would seem to be a substantial one.

LECTURE SERIES

University Series British lecturer, Rachel Trickett, speaks in Jarman Auditorium on "Poetry and Painting" during 18th century, English Department of Longwood College sponsored Miss Trickett.

Incumbent Officers Name Qualifications

(Continued from page 2)

Beth Goodwyn, acting as president of House Council in Peggy Hughes' absence, believes that the most important qualification for this office should be the ability to take the responsibility of guiding the hall residents and House Council Officers. She must be able to enforce the rules in a tactful manner. She believes that the president should be forceful, but understanding and patient. She must also learn and know all rules set up by House Council.

Elaine Lohr, president of the Young Women's Christian Association, believes that the person chosen for this office must be both independent and dependent. She must be independent enough to accept the responsibility of a major office, but more important, must depend constantly on the spiritual power that guides in all "Y" activities. She must also be one who can place faith and trust in her fellow workers, for they are even more important in carrying on the work of this organization.

Barbara Stewart, president of the Athletic Association, believes the person most qualified to fill this position should be both a true leader and a good "follower." She should have either participated or supported a variety of class or varsity athletic events and activities here on campus. In her participation or support, the qualities of good sportsmanship, temperance and enthusiasm should have been evident, she believes. In order for the next president to lead the Athletic Association Council she should be an experienced member of the Council, having performed her duties efficiently and willingly. "In short, the position of the president of the Athletic Association should be filled by an individual who possesses the qualities of a good leader and good judgment!"

March 1 is the deadline for entries to Mademoiselle's 1963-64 Art Contest and College Fiction Contest. The two annual competitions for women students of cash prizes, publication, and national recognition to the winners.

The two College Fiction Contest winners will receive $500 each and their work will be published in Mademoiselle. The two Art Contest winners will also receive $500 each and will illustrate the two winning Fiction Contest stories for MLLE publication.

Fine Arts Discoverer
Mademoiselle's Art Contest, which is open to students between eighteen and twenty-six, discovers imaginative students of the fine arts. At least five samples of the artist's work must be submitted for the judging, and work in any medium will be accepted. Judges for the 1963-64 Art Contest are E.M.119

THE COLLEGE SHOP
Completely Redone
For Your Comfort & Satisfaction
Come And See Us!

Genauer, Art Editor and critic of the New York Herald Tribune, Hedra Sterne, painter, and Roger Shoeing, Art Director of Mademoiselle.
Mademoiselle's College Fiction Contest is open to students enrolled in college or junior college. To enter the Contest, students must submit one or more manuscripts of any length to Mademoiselle. All stories must have fictitious characters and situations or they will be disqualified.

Address entries or queries to either Art Contest or College Fiction Contest, 420 Lexington Avenue, New York 17, New York.

DOROTHY MAY
STORE
Come In And See
Our New Spring
Shipment Of
BLOUSES
Solids, Prints, Madras, and Pin-Striped.
$3.99 and up

Humphlett Acts As Trial Editor For This Week

This week's issue of the Rotunda is the second of three trial issues. Donna Humphlett, an English major from Petersburg, is trial editor.

Assisting her on the editorial staff are Maria Grant, managing editor; Joan Long and Karen Ruder, news editor and assistant, respectively.

Diana Upshur is feature editor, with Nancy Mowrey and Pat Wallace assisting. Barbara Apee and Jayne Eddy are sports editors.

Regular desk editors are Le-wan Rippey and Doris Smith; in charge of photography is Linda Paris.

Press Extends "Kitten Contest" Entry Deadline

Grove Press, Inc. has extended the deadline for entries in the "Kitten Contest" until March 31, 1963. The contest, which features a $100 prize and is open only to college students, had been scheduled to end on January 31, 1963.

The $100 prize will be awarded to the college student writing the best letter of application by Kitten, heroine of Robert Grove's current novel, One Hundred Dollar Misunderstanding, for admission to a mythical southern university.

Entries must be no more than 100 words in length and must be written in Kitten's own style. The 100 runners-up in the contest will receive a full year's subscription to the bi-monthly magazine, Evergreen Review. Entries should be submitted to: Kitten Contest, Editor, Grove Press, Inc., 64 University Place, New York 3, N. Y.

"I Worry
for You"

Get Your Worry Wart
At LANSCOTT'S GIFT
SHOP
Come In Different Colors!

Visit The
COLLEGE BOOKSTORE
For Your SCHOOL SUPPLIES

George Washington's Birthdays Special!
February 22
1 Table Books ..... 22c
Reg. $3, $4 and $5 Books
Only ..... $2.22
Another Table Books
$1.22
The Gold Book
ENCYCLOPEDIA
$1.22 Per. Vol.
Typewriter Special $35.00
At WEYANOKO BOOK
SHOP

Directory Lists '63 Employment Opportunities

The 1963 "Summer Employment Directory" contains a comprehensive list of 1,485 openings throughout the United States which want to hire college students this summer. Specific jobs with salary, name of employing official, and suggested procedure for making application are given.

The jobs are found at summer camps, resorts, national parks, summer theatres, hospitals, ranches, restaurants, pools and beaches, various departments of the government, business and industry, and other places. There are jobs for all classesmen, freshmen through graduate; in addition, juniors, seniors, and graduate students can find summer jobs in their field of study.

Employers are included in the directory at their own request, and they invite students to make application directly to them. The new "Summer Employment Directory" may be obtained by sending $3 to National Directory Service, Dept. C, Box 29665, Cincinnati 32, Ohio. Mark "rush" for first-class mailing.

Faulkner Dwells Upon Variety Of Themes

(Continued from page 2)

Faulkner in Absalom, Absalom! has as much to offer in the way of themes. The destruction of the land by Suteen could have been the reason for his final destruction. Other themes deal with the endurance of women, defects in the code of chivalry, the bad effects of miscegenation on the South, and aristocracy gone to seed in the theme of what happens when one gets mixed up with poor white trash, the reader can see not only the disastrous results in the South, but how it applies to all mankind. The themes in Faulkner, however, do not have to be confined to the South, for they break away and become universal.

Reed, Barton Sponsor Contest; To Offer Various Scholarships

Reed & Barton Silvermiths are conducting a "Silver Opinion Competition" during February and March. Scholarships totaling $2000 are being offered to young students at a few select colleges and universities.

In the 1962 Competition Carol Hall was one of the major prize winners of a starter set in sterling silver, china and crystal for her entry form matching Reed & Barton sterling patterns and leading china and crystal patterns with certain design periods Carol is a Longwood senior.

The first Grand Award is a $800 cash scholarship in this year's Competition. Second Grand Award is a $300 scholarship; Third is $250; Fourth, Fifth and Sixth are $200 scholarships; and Seventh, Eighth, Ninth and Tenth are $100 scholarships.

Competition entry form illustrates twelve designs of sterling with eight designs of both china and crystal. The entrant is to list the three best combinations of sterling, china and crystal from the illustrated patterns. Awards will be made to those entries matching closest the unanimous selections of table-setting editors from three of the nation's leading magazines.

Student Representative
Anne Bradley is the Student Representative conducting this competition at Longwood. Further information and entry blanks may be obtained from her in South Cunningham B-4. She has samples of 12 of the most popular Reed & Barton designs so that entrants may see how these sterling patterns actually look.

Through the opinions of silver design expressed by college women competing for these scholarships, Reed & Barton hopes to compile a library of expressions of young American taste.

The 1963 "Silver Opinion

THE ROTUNDA

Think
Inquire Vote
In Minor Elections

VOL. VLI

Longwood College, Farmville, Va., February 27, 1963

No. 13

Lipford, Obenshain Fill Major Offices

KAY COBB

ANNA WHITE

Cobb, White Serve As 1963-64 Managers

Kay Cobb and Anna White have been chosen as business managers for the Virginian and the Colonade respectively for the coming year.

Anna, a business major, is from Merry Hill, N. C. She graduated from Windsor High School where she served on the business staff of her yearbook. She has been on the business staff of the Colonade since her freshman year. She is a member of the Virginian staff and Pi Beta Lambda. This year she is vice president of Pi Omega Pi.

Active in Sorority

Anna is also a member of Alpha Gamma Delta, for which she is recording secretary. She is an active member of the Baptist Student Union. She has previously served as Enrollment Chairman for this organization. Her plans for the future are either to teach business or enter some phase of the business world.

Cobb Business Major

Kay Cobb, a business major, is from Courtland. She graduated from Southampton High

Longwood Buys Blaine Painting For Collection

Sunlit Room and Figure by Nell Blaine was chosen as the work by a Virginia artist to be purchased by Longwood for 1963.

In Sunlit Room and Figure, light floods over a table cloth and the siller. The ribbon-like strokes rise like a vapor all about through with light. Colors are superimposed, the blue of the shirt over warm reds, brown over lavender, tan over brown. On the table the tea pot, glasses and cups, just barely depicted, add to the rich interplay of forms, color, and light.

Miss Blaine is a graduate of Thomas Jefferson High School and Richmond Professional Institute, Richmond. On a fellowship from the Virginia Museum of Art, she studied in New York and from there Miss Blaine traveled and studied in Europe.

Final Elections Provide New Government Heads

Officers for the two major campus positions have been chosen for the 1963-64 school year. Lois Obenshain was elected chairman of the judicial board of Student Government and Mary Anne Lipford was chosen chairman of the legislative board and president of the student body.

From Roanoke

Lois, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Obenshain of Roanoke, is a health and physical education major and a biology minor.

A graduate of Jefferson High School, Lois was president of the Girls Athletic Association. She is a member of the Melrose Baptist Church in Roanoke.

As a freshman at Longwood, Lois was selected as a top rat. She has participated in class sports as well as in varsity hockey, basketball and tennis. She has taken part in Cruises, May Day and Water Pageants.

Serves As Chairman

Presently, Lois is chairman of the Activities Committee of Student Government and treasurer of the Athletic Association. She is a member of the H2O Club and Kappa Delta Pi, honorary society of education.

Future plans for Lois include teaching and attending graduate school.

Lois' reaction to her election was "I am very surprised and honored to have the opportunity to serve the student body in this capacity."

Majors in English

Mary Anne is an English major from Bassett. Her parents are Dr. and Mrs. Sanford A. Lipford. Mary Anne is a graduate of J. D. Bassett High School where she was president of the SCA and of the chorus. She is a member of the Bassett Memorial Methodist Church.

She has been a member of the Longwood Choir and Madrigals since her freshman year. This year she is president of the Madrigals. She served as co-chairman for Sophomore Production last year. She is presently serving as treasurer of the YWCA and vice president of the Wesley Foundation. She is past editor of the Wesleyan.

Works on Yearbook

Mary Anne is copy editor for the 1963 Virginian and a member of Alpha Sigma Tau social sorority. She has been on the Pan-Hellenic Council for two years and is currently serving as vice president.

Mary Anne hopes to teach in college in the future.

When asked how she felt about her election, Mary Anne answered "I think meeting the challenge of this office will help me, and I hope I will be able to help the school in some way."

SAI To Present Spring Concert Sunday, March 3

The Annual Anniversary Musicales will be presented on Sunday, March 3 in Jarman Auditorium. The program will begin at 3 p.m. with a concert of organ and piano music presented by members of Sigma Alpha Iota, honorary music fraternity.

Dr. Joanne Curnutt of the Music Department, will follow with a Faculty Organ Concert. Dr. Curnutt's program will begin at 4 p.m.

Members of Sigma Alpha Iota participating in the musicale are Betty Ann Rex, Doris Harwell, Betty Howard, Nancy Oldfield, Pat Gallahan and Jeanette Elder.

Betty Howard will begin the program with organ selections by Bernhard Christensen. Doris Harwell will follow with a piano selection by Chopin; Mazurka, op. 17, no. 4.

In an organ presentation Nancy Oldfield will play Chromatic Study on the Name of Back by Walter Piston, and Land of Rest by Richard Donovan.

Betty Ann Rex will present on the piano Rush Hour in Hong Kong by Abram Chasins. A piano duet will follow. Jeanette Elder and Patricia Gallahan will play Schubert's Overture, op. 34.

Following Miss Curnutt's organ concert a reception will be held.

Curnutt Heads Hymn Contest For March 9

A hymn tournament will be held at Longwood College on March 9 in Jarman Auditorium. This is something new in the music department this year, and is being headed by Dr. Joanne Curnutt.

The tournament is open to pianists, organists, and the students of any private teachers of piano and organ. Several colleges around the state have been invited to participate in the hymn contest. There is a $1 registration fee.

Students will be asked to sight-read hymns chosen from the hymnals of the Presbyterians, Baptists, Lutherans, Methodists, and Episcopalians. There are titles in each for age groups 9 to 12, 13-17, and 18-22. Guest judges have been selected in order to give fair and unprejudiced judgment to all participants.

NEW HEADS

Newly elected legislative and judicial chairmen, Mary Ann Lipford and Lois Obenshain talk over responsibilities.

of their forthcoming offices. They will be installed during assembly on April 2.

Longwood Students To Attend Festival

Several Longwood students and faculty members will attend the third annual Literary Festival at Hollins College on March 2. This event is being sponsored by the Hollins English Department and the Graphon honorary literary society.

Four writers will be featured at this meeting. Howard Nemerov, Reed Whittemore, William Stryker and William Meredith will take part in the festival program which will include poetry readings, a fiction session and a luncheon.

Whittemore To Speak
In the morning session, which will begin at 11 a.m. Reed Whittemore, professor of English at Carleton College, Northfield, Minnesota will speak on fiction. He is also the author of several volumes of verse.

William Stryker, a native of Newport News, will speak at the luncheon. Stryker won widespread recognition for his first novel, Lie Down in Darkness, in 1951. His second full length work of fiction, Set This House on Fire, was one of the most controversial and widely read novels of the 1960 publishing season.

Authors Read Works

The afternoon session will begin at 2:15 p.m. and will be devoted to poetry. Howard Nemerov, this year's writer-in-residence at Hollins and author of a number of volumes of poetry and fiction, and William Meredith, a member of the Connecticut College faculty as well as author of two volumes of poetry, will read from their own works. Various student poets have submitted works which will be read and criticized at this time by the visiting speakers.

The purpose of the Literary Festival is to draw students with literary interests together from different colleges in this area.

LC Undergoes Self-Evaluation

The Self-Evaluation Committee for reaccreditation as a member of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools is currently working on preliminary reports. The project is directed by the Steering Committee headed by Mr. Magnusson.

Each faculty member and some of the administrators serve on at least one of the ten major committees. These committees cover finance, organization and administration, educational program, faculty, and library. The committees also reach student personnel, physical plant, special activities, graduate school, and research. In addition to the ten committee reports, each department is providing a study of its course for evaluation. As all final reports are collected the editorial committee will edit the work.

The over-all work covers what has been done in the past ten years, what the college is doing now, and its plans for the coming ten years. It will be submitted to the evaluating committee of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools as they investigate the college for reaccreditation next year. This committee will also visit the campus of Longwood.

School Names Founder's Day Guest Speaker

An alumna of Longwood Mrs. John A. Redhead of Greensboro, North Carolina will be the guest speaker here on March 15 in observance of Founder's Day.

Mrs. Redhead, the former Mary Virginia Polts, attended State Teachers College here where she majored in music. She was an outstanding student and was very active in the various college organizations. Among these activities were Alpha Delta Rho, Pi Gamma Mu, Sigma Sigma Sigma and the Panhellenic Council.

She was also president of the senior class, was on the Student Council, Student Senate, Student Standards Committee, the Dramatic Club, Musical Director. She was a member of Argus Literary Society, the Ole Club and the Choral Club.

BOBBI RICE

Keep Screening Board

Elections of the past week again have raised the question of the feasibility of a screening board for nominating candidates. The board, it has been charged, is undemocratic, limited in scope, and too powerful.

The screening board does not restrict popular suffrage in any way. The board, in selecting three candidates to run in the primary, merely makes a suggestion of candidates for whom one can vote. Write-in votes can be used by any student who likes to "think for herself" and draw up her own slate. In this aspect, the system is completely democratic.

The screening board is definitely limited. Fourteen people cannot possibly reach every student in the college to get her opinion, but the responsibility of suggesting candidates must not lie solely with them. The student body is obligated to make suggestions, also. We, the student body, must place more trust in the board than we admit to ourselves, otherwise, we don't care enough to make suggestions to the board, because very few students registered their opinions, unsolicited, with the board this year.

The screening board has very few powers. The greatest of these is simply the power of suggestion, and the strength of this is measured by the gullibility of the student body. The best checks on the "power" of the screening board are independent thinking and resistance to emotionalism. This election has shown three things: 1. Many students here do not think for themselves. 2. Many are easily influenced through "campaigning." 3. Many do accept the suggestions of the screening board, therefore, it serves the purpose for which it was created—to combat the apathy which often surrounds campus elections and to protect the college from emotionalism which can be equally as dangerous.

— Ann Agee

Use Your Power

The Screening Board is doing a conscientious job. It has withstood enormous criticism, mostly unjust. Why is the screening board so caustically criticized?

The method of a screening board is outdated and unsatisfactory. We are using it as a scapegoat to criticize when we shirk our duty, or when the board's choices are not satisfactory to us. We employ an archaic pre-primary "electoral-college" technique to make initial choices when our whole attitudes are steeped in the democratic process. True, we elect our representatives to the screening board, but in the secret meetings of that board is a paradox.

The paradox is in the way we are told candidates are chosen. We are told candidates are considered on their own qualifications by the judgment of our elected representatives. We are also told to express our preferences to these representatives. This would indicate that there are two ways candidates are chosen: by the judgment of the board, or the expression of following by the voters. Which is more important? Specifically, why is one candidate chosen above another? Because of the nature of Longwood, its intimate, friendly atmosphere, it is impossible for this to be divulged.

How can we resolve this problem of dissension and undue criticism of representatives who are working for us? There are two solutions; one we can use now, the other must be incorporated into our new constitution. Now, we must make a decision as to whom we want to fill each office. Then we should write down our preferences for the offices on a 3 x 5 card, a convenient size for our representatives to keep for reference. In this way there will be evidence of support for each nominee in the screening board discussions.

However, the ultimate solution lies in changing the methods of election. A possible plan would be to follow the example of politics. The nomination of a candidate should be by the potential nominee or her friends obtaining a petition with the signatures of 1/20 of the student body, thus indicating support. The potential nominees' names should then be screened in two places: the Registrar's Office to affirm that their grades meet the activities committee's standards, and the Dean of Women's Office. If these two basic qualifications are met, these names should be placed on the primary ballot.

A direct primary, like the non-partisan primary in national politics, should be employed. This would eliminate all but the two candidates with the most support. In this way, the whole responsibility of the election is on the electorate, not divided with a pre-primary "electoral college".

The national electoral college was set up in the Constitution to insure that the election of the president would not come from the uneducated masses. The screening board is an adaptation of that same principle by using it in the selection of candidates. The Longwood Student Body should not be treated like "political children". We can act as our own selectors.

Since the Longwood constitution is being rewritten, now is the time to solve this problem. If you wish to act as your own elector, tell your student government representative so that next year we can have a direct primary. Take advantage of your power of self-government!

— Nancy Mowrey

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS BY BAKER

AN DON'T TAKE A CLASS FROM PROF SNARE HERE HE LECTURES SO LOUD YOU CAN HARDLY SLEEP

Letters To The Editor

Student Expresses Thoughts About School Spirit, Traditions

Editor:

We hear a great deal said about the spirit of Longwood. Those who question Longwood's traditions are spoken of as not having and not appreciating this spirit. The critics of such long-revered institutions as Chi, Circus, May Day, and Production are condemned by their classmates as lacking a "school spirit." Might it be said that the spirit the defenders propound could be fast becoming less of a spirit and more of a ghost. At Longwood, school-spirit-ness is defined by loyalty to certain outmoded traditions. Longwood probably has more traditions than students. Some are healthy, some are funny, and some are worthless. But there is one tradition that is truly dangerous. I am referring to the traditional system of values.

Every school has a system of values. Achievements are evaluated according to the system. At Longwood, the scale is such that the girl who can spend the most time "contributing" to her school and class without failing in her academics wins the greatest acclaim. The girl who successfully completes the honors program is scarcely recognized.

There was a time when the student could afford to fill her hours outside of class supporting or participating in class rivalries in the form of Circus or Longwood spirit was not required to have an inquiring color cup competitions. This mind; she would allow herself to revere an organization which considered its purpose so profound that it could not be told. Class requirements for her were not stringent. This girl was preparing herself for a noncompetitive future. She lived in a tame world. But today the mark she left begins to resemble a scar. The life which satisfied her begins to look frazzled and old-fashioned. We should not forget that a rejection of the life she led is not the same as a rejection of her memory.

No Longwood girl of today would consider it improper to attend a college week end or to date without benefit of a chapter. No Longwood girl today would tolerate the presence of a chapter. How ironic that she should reject the tradition of the chapter for a date and not the tradition of a chapter for her extracurricular activities. The Longwood girl is trusted to date without supervision; yet, she must be supervised in her on-campus activities. She has no guilty feelings when she leaves alone for a week end at Virginia, but she feels dismay if she stands alone in not working for Circus. She is not condemned by her peers if she leaves alone for a week end at Virginia, but she is condemned if she studies alone instead of attending class hockey practice.

Requirements at Longwood are now more demanding. Outside the protective brick walls of the campus lies a cutthroat world. No longer can the conscientious student allow herself to sacrifice her time on the altar of tradition. This time is the time for founding new traditions. To continue to nourish the outmoded is to continue to perpetrate unpreparedness.

The term "new traditions" may cause some confusion. It would perhaps be more accurate to say "establish new precedents." Those who have quarreled with the questions on campus are those who are clinging to the old era. They are hiding from the present and ignoring the future. The quarrelers would settle for a ghost and condemn a spirit.

Slowly the questions are increasing in strength. This fact is in itself an indication that the student body is beginning to recognize a need for a new order. Why the majority chooses to deny the need is an inexplicable problem.

Every student should be interested in insuring that progress is made. She should care — not only out of loyalty to her alma mater, but also out of much more selfish motives. Wherever she goes, whatever she attempts, she will be judged first on the reputation of her school. Thus she should have a personal interest in bettering the school standards. If a prospective employer were to ask her what Longwood was most noted for, would she not blush to answer: "The friendly." If she were asked to name the area in which she excelled, would it not be embarrassing to her to reply: "It was an animal in Circus for four years."

The entire problem of loyalty merits discussion. The quarrelers claim that the questioners are a subversive group of traitors whose "spirit" of Longwood. But the questioners are valiantly fighting to create a spirit before the ghost expires and leaves the college entirely without a system of values. Thus it would appear that the questioners have a loyalty that transcends the vigorously declined loyalty that the quarrelers uphold. The quarrelers would retard the growth of the college. The questioners would give it a reason for being.

— A Student

Professor Analyzes Thwarted Intellectuals

Ed. Note: The following represents professors' replies to a student article which appeared in the February 13 issue of the Rotunda.

By Dr. Mens Absens

8:00 . . . time for my first class . . . wonder how late they sat up playing bridge last night . . . well, there they are, all settled down for their long winter's nap . . . maybe if I say something really shocking . . . "Russia just dropped a bomb on the Rotunda. What do you think of that, Miss Snooze?"

"What! What! Oh, yes sir, I agree with you entirely."

She at least raised her head for a few seconds . . . almost time for the bell . . . I'd better clear the area around the door . . . my foot still hasn't healed from yesterday . . . BUZZ!

Let's see . . . 9:00 Mondays

. . . yes . . . now for an hour of scathing criticism from Miss O'Harah . . . oh well, sticks and stones may break my bones, but words will never hurt me . . . I still can't believe they call their home "Tara" . . . I mean they only grow a few tomatoes outside the kitchen window . . .

"Religion was at the time of a strong influence in the lives of the Southerners, but it did not interfere with their slave owning."

"Yes sir, but all of us who REAR Y believe in God, know that the Southern whites were only caring for their black brothers etc."

I see she still fully believes I'm an atheist and will never forgive my being from the North . . . guess she hasn't recovered from reconstruction yet . . . but after almost 100 years! . . . anyhow, I won't have to teach this period, Scarlett will take care of the full hour I'm sure

THE BELL

"Yes, Miss O'Harah, I can see your point."

"Well, good by sss. Ah've got tah get to mah next class-ah-ah."

"Oh Miss Applepolish, Hello."

"Hello Dr. Mens Absens. Do you know I was talking with Mother last night and my greatest daughter's husband's sister's best friend lives in Intellectville; that's where you live, isn't it? And you know, the last time Mother was here she said you looked just like a writer. By-the-way—that's a beautiful red tie. You are writing a novel aren't you. Well, I'm sure it's going to be a best seller."

"Thank you Miss Applepolish, but I really must prepare for my next class now."

"Dr. Mens Absens that's really a lovely jacket you're wearing."

Thank heavens . . . the last class for the day . . .

"Your term papers are on the desk."

Term papers? . . . 20 pages of quotes and two lines of original thought. There goes Miss Watchclock with that second counting again . . . man, does that ever drive me insane . . . and Miss Widewe . . . alert and attentive as usual . . . the only person I know who can sleep with her eyes open . . .

"Oh, Dr. Mens Absens you know the most awful thing happened. I was on my way to take your make-up test yesterday, and this little old lady just fainted dead away right in front of me and of course I had to do my moral duty. So I just rushed her right to the hospital and there with her until she was able to tell the doctor she had dyspepsia castridis! Maybe I can take that test tomorrow."

Well, at least she gets something out of Ben Casey . . . THE BELL . . . at last the day is over . . . another day, another set of thwarted intellectuals . . .

Library Orders Book Requests

With 2,194 American-published titles to choose from, how does one decide which 2,386 to select for the library? Mr. Charles Butler, head librarian, and his staff are constantly trying to keep up with the year-by-year mass-publication of books and also remain within the boundaries of the budget. In the last fiscal year 2,383 volumes were purchased.

An effort is made to enrich the facilities of the various subject fields. To do this the staff is primarily dependent on the requests made by faculty members in their areas. All books requested by the faculty are secured. Requests may also be made by students.

At all times additions are being made. The staff has initiated a leaflet to keep the users of the library informed. It is now distributed monthly and provides a selected list of recent acquisitions. The February 1963 edition of this list may be found at the circulation desk. It is also sent to each member of the faculty.

Distillation

By DONNA HUMPHLETT

The men who opposed woman suffrage in the twenties might not have been wrong after all. What are you saying?

I'm saying that women (at least the women on this campus) don't make very good politicians.

How's that? Perhaps the word politician isn't the right word. But I can't think of a better one. Women just aren't very rational.

Come on, now. We're going to vote in a few years. Some are eligible to vote in the next election. And we're so emotional about it all.

So?

So suppose we go by the same personal criteria in state and national elections that we go by in school elections?

How?

All these emotional nothings. School elections should somehow pressure us for the serious voting that we do as adults.

You still haven't said anything!

All I'm trying to say is we shouldn't learn anything from our elections. We may be learning what not to do in state and national elections. You know — our criteria for voting. That sort of thing. Even our reasons for nominating our representatives are not adult.

Somehow I don't agree. Something else. Our procedure doesn't even approach a democratic method. In protecting the ignorant we create more ignorance.

Ignorant is a badly chosen word. I think so.

Is it? Do you know of a better one?

Timely Topics

Cuban Exile Speaks To House Committee

By Janet Lacy

Dr. Manuel de Varona, Cuban exile leader said that there are definitely 17,000 Soviet troops in Cuba and as many as 30,000. Dr. de Varona, former president of the Cuban Senate, went on to say that the Russians have established two secret military bases in Latin America, one in northwest Brazil, the other in the mountains of Paraguay.

de Varona spoke through an interpreter, Dr. Neizer Carbowell, before the House-Inter American affairs subcommittee. Later, Dr. Carbowell read this statement by de Varona, "Only joint military action from abroad, under the leadership of the United States, can liberate Cuba and restore peace to the hemisphere."

President Remilio Betancourt of Venezuela, described by President Kennedy as "target no. 1" for dictators and Communists alike, has resumed White House talks.

Before resuming these talks Betancourt will lay a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington National Cemetery.

He and Kennedy will ride in a motorcade from the White House to the press club, where he will address the National Press Club.

Betancourt will be host for a party for Kennedy at the Venezuelan Embassy.

President Kennedy sent a special message to Congress on the problems of elderly persons. The advisor's of the president have been conferring on details of a plan to provide health for the aged under the Social Security System. One of the chief problems is whether to include an optional provision for private health insurance.

However, Administration officials have been reported to be veering away from such a feature since it was included in last year's unsuccessful bill.

Astronaut John H. Glenn helped present his space capsule to the Smithsonian Institution in Washington. Along with the capsule went Glenn's space suit and the American flag that made the three orbit journey.

Dr. Hugh Dryden, deputy administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration made the formal presentation.

Glenn, speaking briefly said that he had left the name of the capsule up to his children, David IV and Lynn IV. He went on to say that the name was an expression of the desire that space be used for peaceful purposes.

Recently, over the issue of military government for the Arab minority in Israel, Premier David Ben-Gurion's government narrowly missed defeat.

57 to 56 was the vote on three key motions in the knesset (parliament) calling for abolition of military government. The fourth motion set forth by the Communist party was voted down 56 to 50.

The debates were generally calm until near the end when the exchange between Ben-Gurion and the opposition, particularly the Communists, became heated.

Military government is a carry-over from the British mandate days. It now affects the 200,000 Arabs who live in sensitive areas near Israel's frontiers with hostile Arab states.

Newman Club

The Newman Club will hold its annual Communion Breakfast and Day of Reflection this Sunday, March 3. This event is being held in recognition of National Cardinal Newman Week and the beginning of Lent. All Catholics and visitors are urged to attend.

NO FAIR SPIKING

Getting in last minute practice before Student-Faculty Volleyball game are Mr. Umphlett, Miss Wilson, and Mr. Bittlinger. Game took place Tuesday, February 26, at 7 p.m. in old gymnasium.

LC Students Attend UN Model Assembly

Dana Brewer, Sue Boatwright, and Mary Walker attended the ninth annual Model United Nations Assembly at Blacksburg February 23, 24, 25.

The Virginia Methodist Student Movement and the V. P. I. Wesley Foundation sponsored the three-day assembly.

Although the Longwood group attended the Model Assembly as observers, one of its group, Dana Brewer, received an invitation to fill in a vacancy in the U. S. S. R. membership on the Political Committee. The U. S. S. R. delegation was composed of students from Old Dominion College.

Dana said, "The political astuteness of the participating delegates provided a realistic facsimile of the United Nations. The only thing that interfered with the realism of the situation was the number of challenges made on points of order."

There were two deviations from the real United Nations. All the member countries were not represented; there were fewer neutral nations in the Model Assembly. The Model Assembly also more strictly enforced parliamentary procedure.

The keynote address was given by Mr. W. H. Ziehl, deputy director of international administration, Department of State. Mr. Ziehl has served with the United States delegation to the 17th General Assembly of the United Nations. He spoke on the current financial crisis of the United Nations.

Around The Campi

Remark made by a student coming into the "rec." "Here I come, the human garbage disposal."

About the Italian "wine" party last Friday night.

It seems CHI finally made it in and out of the dorm. Mrs. Goodman is doing a good job.

Some people like to relax over the weekend. Others live dangerously—and go skiing.

A certain senior may turn into a horse eventually. She even has a pocketbook that looks like a saddle.

Thought for the day: Since when have we had a thought for the day?

Funny thing about those ugly fifth graders . . .

Comment on fallout shelter signs: "I'll just stay in my room with a wisk broom and wipe off the dust."

Congratulations to the cast and behind-the-scenes characters in "Hey Granny!"

Funny thing about the cut list preceding the Dean's List.

The pen is mightier than the SWORD.

Bye, Bishop.

Longwood has two Rembrandts on third floor Tabby; they exhibited their paintings as celebration of their own Art Appreciation Day. Comments were requested, received, and then buried.

Thought for the week: I have this to say about that—poiss.

LC Vs. Westhampton

The Longwood basketball team will play Westhampton College on the Longwood courts March 2. Starting time for this game is 2 p. m. On March 8 Longwood's team will play host to Richmond Professional Institute.

Seniors, Faculty Clash In Annual Volleyball Game

The student-faculty volleyball game was played last night and ended in a victory for the faculty team.

Amid cheers echoing throughout the gym, both teams turned in some excellent playing. The cheers for the faculty team were led by Dean Moss.

Playing for the faculty were Dean Ruth Wilson, Miss Jennelle Spear, Miss Mary Heintz, Mrs. Phyllis Harris, and Miss Barbara Smith. The male strength of the team came from Dr. James Helms, Mr. M. Henry Bittlinger, Dr. Robert Brumfield, Mr. John Allen, and Mr. Wiley Umphlett.

Acting as general manager for the faculty team was Dr. Richard Barron.

On the senior team were B. G. Martin, Janice Harris, Sandra Friedman, Linda Hatch and Susan Cole.

Also, Ann Green, Donna Franzen, Laurie Hamlet, Cissie Griggs, and Ann Agee.

Farmville Bank Sponsors Bond For FBLA Meet

The First National Bank of Farmville has offered a $25 government bond to the winner of the public speaking contest to take place during the annual regional meeting of the Future Business Leaders of America. This event will be held March 8 in Student Building at Longwood.

The winner of this contest will be eligible to compete in the state finals later this year in Richmond.

Representatives will attend from FBLA chapters from Appomattox High School, Appomattox; Crewe High School, Crewe; Cumberland High School, Cumberland; Dan River High School, Ringgold; E. C. Glass High School, Lynchburg; George Washington High School, Danville; George Wythe High School, Richmond; Halifax County High School, South Boston; Huguenot High School, Richmond; and Manchester High School, Richmond.

Also represented will be Midlothian High School, Midlothian; Midway High School, Church Road; Montvale High School, Montvale; Nelson County High School, Lovingston; Powhatan High School, Powhatan; Prince George High School, Prince George; Renan High School, Gresham; and Sunnyside-McKenney High School, McKenney; and Hopewell High School, Hopewell.

$1.00 Off On Longwood Sweet Shirts At

LANSCOTT'S GIFT SHOP

LEESE'S PASTRY SHOP

Birthday Cakes

$1.20 and up

Phone

EXport 2-5154

Staff Attends PE Meetings In Knoxville

The Southern District of the American Association of Health, Physical Education and Recreation held its annual convention at Knoxville, Tennessee, during the week of February 21-25.

Miss Mary A. Heintz, head of Longwood's Physical Education Department, and Miss Barbara Smith, also of the Physical Education staff attended this meeting. The conferences they attended included those offered on research, aquatics, methods of teaching how to officiate in various sports, and demonstrations of various sports. The convention was held in order to acquaint those present with the latest developments in their fields.

Earlier last week Miss Heintz attended the convention of the Southern Association of Physical Education for College Women which was held in Knoxville immediately preceding the Southern District Convention.

Landrum Serves As Co-Chairman For Conference

Mrs. Emily K. Landrum, Associate Professor of Physical Education, will serve as co-chairman of the Committee on Immediate Courses in Health and Physical Education. The conference will be held at Natural Bridge on March 21 and 22. Serving with her will be Dr. Richard Humbert of the University of Richmond.

The theme "Fitness for the Space Age" has been chosen for the committee conference, as well as for the annual Virginia Association of Health, Physical Education and Recreation, which will follow the conference. Mrs. Landrum is now serving as current Dance Chairman of the committee, and is a member of the Resolutions Committee and of the Executive Committee of the Virginia Association.

CEDAR BROOK RESTAURANT

"Charcoal Steaks" 1½ Miles East Of Farmville On Route 460

State Theatre FARMVILLE, VA.

NOW THRU WEDNESDAY

ROBERT SHIRLEY MICHAEL MALLONE TWO FOR THE SEESAW

THURS. - FRI. - SAT. FEB. 28 - MAR. 1 - 2

TONY CURTIS 40 POUNDS OF TROUBLE

SUN. - MON. - TUES. MARCH 3 - 4 - 5

DERN MARTIN LAW TURNER WHO'S GOT THE ACTION?

MARCH 6-7 "REQUIEM FOR A HEAVY WEIGHT"

MARCH 8 THRU 14 "WESTSIDE STORY"

STRIKE?

Taking advantage of free bowling facilities at Farmville Recreation Center, Sarah Jane Lynch aims at ten pins. Bowling charges are paid by Campus Fees Committee.

BAY WINDOW VIEW

Progress in construction of Cox dormitory is shown through inside looking out bay window in parlor. Students can expect completion of new dorm, housing approximately 180, by November, 1963.

Extensive Plans For Expansion In Proposal Stage At College

By Marcia Siegfried

An extensive ten-year plan of construction and expansion is in the proposal stages at Longwood College. The eventual enrollment by 1970 will be about 260 students, according to state requirements. This makes it necessary for accommodations to be provided for these extra students, not only dormitories but also classrooms, activities rooms, and an expanded dining hall.

The changes actually being made at present include the Mary White Cox dormitory, renovation of the old Training School, and the installation of a dining hall in the Main Rec, which will accommodate about 200 students. The snack bar in the Main Rec, however, will remain for a few more years or until the enrollment requires the use of the entire area.

New Buildings By Fall

Both the dining hall and Education building should be completed by the beginning of the fall semester. Mr. Wyal says he expects the new Cox dormitory to be completed some time in October.

Cox dormitory will be similar to Wheeler in many respects and will be connected to it by a colonnade. One interesting difference between the two, however, is the placement of the parlor and recreation rooms. These rooms will be on the southern, or Madison Avenue side of the first floor. Along the side wall of the long group of parlor rooms will be a colonial-style rounded bay window facing Madison Avenue. The architect's drawing gives a general idea of the unique and attractive effect.

Meet Variety of Needs

According to Mr. Jacob Wansley, the proposed construction plans meet a variety of needs. The next project to be undertaken, if passed by the state, will include a students' activities building, an additional wing to Jarman Auditorium for music classes and practice rooms, and another new dormitory. This dormitory would probably be located on the corner of High Street between the northern end of Wheeler and Jarman Auditorium. Eventually, colonnades would be built as connecting walkways between the three dormitories.

The music wing would more than likely extend from the back of Jarman in the direction of Wheeler. The proposed students' activities building may be located across the street from the new gym, and will serve to hold the many necessary offices and space for Longwood's organizations, and activities.

Indefinite future plans to follow up this project include the construction of three more dormitories, each to accommodate from 160 to 200 students; and additional classroom buildings. An extension of the science building is also possible.

Placement Talk

Mrs. Martha Melvin from the office of the Dean of Admissions will speak to the S. E. A. Thursday at 4 p. m. in the Little Auditorium. The subject of her speech will be the Longwood Placement service. All interested students are invited to hear this talk.

Berkis Publishes Courland Story In Two Books

By Linda Turner

In addition to the busy schedules of our professors several find time for research work on their own. Dr. Alexander V. Berkis completed his first book, The Reign of Duke James in Courland, in 1961 before joining our faculty. For the past three years he has been working on The History of the Duchy of Courland — 1582-1795 which will be completed soon.

Documentation from German and English archives, multitudes from a large archive of Brandenburg, Prussia and Göttingen and the Scottish Society of History, supply him with research material. Both books have been written in English.

The first presents a picture of the life of the Duke of Courland who actually became ruler of Russia between 1715-1740 and the second describes the political history of the duchy, colonial and mercantile policies of the duke and the slave trade which began with the West Indies.

Dr. Berkis received his master's degree in law from the University of Latvia. As a result of World War II the Soviet Union annexed the Baltic states including Latvia. In continuation of publications by the University of Latvia's faculty now in exile, Dr. Berkis has supplied two articles to be released in the next month. One will be published in Sweden about the reigns of the dukes of Courland and England during the seventeenth century. The other, dealing with the foreign policy of Duke James, will be published in Latvia.

Dr. Berkis has also had an article published in the Historical Abstract, a magazine which is issued three or four times a year, and two will be released in the next additions.

Confederate Women Subject Of Articles

By Sandra Jamison

Dr. F. B. Simkins, chairman of the history department, has written a series of articles for The Dictionary of Notable American Women. These articles, which have not yet been published are concerned with important women of the American Civil War. These outstanding women include Mrs. Robert E. Lee, Mary Boykin Chesnut, Mrs. McGuire, Mrs. Roger Pryor, and Lucy Pickens.

Dr. Simkins stated that Mrs. Robert E. Lee was a very aristocratic lady from a wealthy family. She was the step-granddaughter of George Washington. Although it is believed that she had little or no formal education, Mrs. Lee gained much of her knowledge from reading the letters of Washington.

She and Lee were married when Lee was only a lieutenant, and she was forced to leave her wealthy home to live on an army post. Suffering from arthritis, Mrs. Lee spent most of her life in a wheelchair. Mrs. Lee was known for her knitting which she did for the Confederate soldiers. Another interesting item that Dr. Simkins related was the fact that Mrs. Lee felt General Lee should be governor of Virginia.

Mrs. Mary Boykin Chesnut was one of Mrs. Jefferson Davis' friends. Mrs. Chesnut, who was from New Jersey, enjoyed the gay life of Richmond during the time of the war. She is said to have said, "We will dance the quadrill tonight for tomorrow you may die." Mrs. Chesnut saw the inevitable defeat of the South.

Mrs. McGuire was the wife of the director of Episcopal High School in Arlington. Mrs. McGuire, who was a very religious woman, felt it was a service to the South to knit socks for the Confederate soldiers. Since she was such a religious person, she felt that God was on the side of the South and that they would be victorious.

Mrs. Lucy Pickens, who was the step-mother of Dr. Simkins' mother, shared the same interests as Mrs. Chesnut during the war. It was said that Mrs. Pickens was a very beautiful woman.

The last lady mentioned by Dr. Simkins was Mrs. Roger Pryor who was from the famous Civil War town of Petersburg.

Many Compete In Sophomore Bridge Contest

"Hey, I got a baby slam!" "I don't believe it." "Come on, partner, make a good bid."

"How's clubs?"

"I have this to say about that."

"Huh?"

The Sophomore Pep Club bridge tournament is progressing toward the final matches. In the first round of competition, not yet completed, the following teams have come out on top: Margaret Wright and Pat Spies; Martha Muir and Kay Cobb; Marcia Siegfried and Libby Bateman; Pam Gustafson and Amy Haley.

After this and another round the last two teams will battle it out for the championship title.

Carol Moyer and Marcy Hynes are in charge of organizing the tournament. Game progress is recorded on a chart on the Soph bulletin board.

FIVE DIAMONDS?

Bobbi Burrell, Kay Cobb, Nancy Ruckman, and Martha Muir concentrate on a hand of bridge in the Sophomore Pep Club sponsored tournament.

Griffin Represents LC At Homemakers Meet

Mrs. Nell H. Griffin, chairman of the Home Economics Department here at Longwood, has recently returned from a Washington meeting of the Southern Regional Conference. The meeting which lasted five days was composed of delegates from 18 southern states.

Mrs. Griffin, who has been on the program planning committee for the past four years and chairman for the last two, was among the 180 heads of home economic departments, teacher educators in home economics, and state and district supervisors that attended the convention.

Among the many nationally known speakers that appeared before the delegates, Mrs. Griffin felt the talk by Dr. Bernice Moore of the Home Foundation for Mental Health at the University of Texas, was among the most interesting and was one of the highlights of the convention. Dr. Moore spoke on the findings of the foundation in a recent study made of Texas youth in regard to requirements in education, emotional needs, and attitudes of youth.

Because of the impending publication of these findings, direct quotations are impossible. However, Mrs. Griffin says that one of the most outstanding findings—that today's youth is interested in becoming the best possible citizen and not only in making money and social climbing—is a statement she was happy to hear. Although most reports are of a contradictory nature, Mrs. Griffin feels that today's youth is much closer to the Hogg report.

The convention which meets every other year was held to obtain the following objectives:

1. To explore ways of using major concepts and generalizations in home economics curriculum in secondary schools.
2. To consider effective ways for helping home economics teachers in areas of home economics needing more emphasis for present-day living.
3. To stimulate research and experimental programs basic to the development of the secondary school curriculum.
4. To explore ways of expanding the home economics program for adults to give emphasis that will meet today's changing needs.

Newman Clubs Of Area Attend Richmond Meet

A conference of the Piedmont Province of Newman Clubs in all the colleges in Virginia, and some in West Virginia and North Carolina, has now moved with the Middle Atlantic Province, including Maryland, Delaware and Pennsylvania.

Dennis Gary, chairman of MAP, Mary Ellen Paradis, chairman of Piedmont, and Ginny, who was treasurer of Piedmont, all spoke at the conference.

The meetings were held in order to re-organize the merging provinces and to discuss ways of bettering the individual clubs. Some of the clubs represented were those from Old Dominion, RPI, University of Richmond, U. Va., Westhampton, Potomac, Shephard and Longwood.

Sororities Pledge 19 During Spring Rush

Entering the Greek World via February's Open Rush last week were nineteen Longwood girls.

At its February 11 meeting, Pan-Hellenic voted to begin the informal rush period on Wednesday.

At the termination of the ten days, the following girls had pledged these troops: Alpha Sigma Alpha, Mary Ann Debnam, Mildred Walker and Jo Anne Woods; Delta Zeta, Jane Bryan, Dale Marie Cannon, Betty Jo Flora and Gale Page.

Pledging Kappa Delta were Bettie Bowles, Karen Diederich and Patricia Rowe. Betty Gene Tate pledged Phi Mu. Sigma Kappa pledges were Carolyn Caldwell, Virginia Katherine Puckett and Charlotte Station.

Ann Scott anonymously pledged Sigma Sigma Sigma and pledging Zeta Tau Alpha were Judith Ashby, Madeline Miller, Charlene Moss and Frances Stewart.

It's A Good Thing

To Do
To Give Flowers
From
COLLINS FLORIST
Phone
EX 2-4154 or 2-3330

NEWMAN'S MEN'S SHOP

Traditional Styles
See Our
Ladies' Sportswear

Special:

Delicious:
CHERRY SUNDAES
only 20c
With Pet Ice Cream
COLLEGE SNACK BAR

SOUTHSIDE SUNDRY

Get 10% Off
On Cosmetics
with this
COUPON!
February 28,
March 1 and 2

MARTIN THE JEWELER

See Our Good
Selection of Sterling Silver
and
Gold Charms

THE ROTUNDA

VOL. VII

Longwood College, Farmville, Va., March 6, 1963

No. 14

Humphlett, Smith Head Rotunda For Next Year

The editor and business manager of the Rotunda for the coming year are Donna Humphlett and Mary Elizabeth Smith, respectively.

Schwarzenbach New Assistant For Dining Hall

Miss Hellone Schwarzenbach, a native of Mannheim, Germany, has been with the Longwood staff as assistant manager in the dining hall since February 16. Longwood is very fortunate in obtaining a manager of such training and experience. After completing her education in Germany, Miss Schwarzenbach spent three years in hotel training and then completed three semesters (in two semesters' time) of a hotel school course.

Afterwards, she spent two years working in hotels in Switzerland. She is, therefore, thoroughly trained in the food industry.

Miss Schwarzenbach lived at Mannheim until '43 when the house was destroyed during the Second World War. She then moved to Neu Ulm, where her parents still live.

It is interesting to note that Miss Schwarzenbach originally came to the States solely to visit some friends. Finding her first impression so favorable, she decided to stay.

Miss Schwarzenbach's first job in the United States was at the University of South Carolina. Before coming to Longwood, she was employed at Elton College, North Carolina, for 2 years.

When asked if she noticed any big difference in the students of Longwood and those of Elton, Miss Schwarzenbach replied: "Yes. The Longwood girls are more natural, whereas at Elton, a co-educational college, the students wear more make-up. Also, the Longwood students are more lady-like."

This is surely a compliment when one takes into consideration that most of Miss Schwarzenbach's contact with the Longwood students is during meals.

HELLONE SCHWARZENBACH

Representatives from FBLA chapters from Appomattox High School, Appomattox; Crews High School, Crews; Cumberland High School, Cumberland; Dan River High School, Ringgold; E. C. Glass High School, Lynchburg; George Washington High School, Danville; George Wythe High School, Richmond; Halifax County High School, South Boston; Huguenot High School, Richmond; and Manchester High School, Richmond, will attend.

Also represented will be Mid-

Donna is an English major from Petersburg. She is a member of Pi Delta Epsilon, Boerch Thorn, and is short story editor of the Columbian. Donna is also a member of the French Club, and the assembly committee. She has played class hockey and has participated in Circus and May Day.

During the three years that Donna has worked on the Rotunda, she has held the positions of news editor and managing editor.

Her favorite pastime activities include sports of all kinds and reading. John Updike and J. D. Salinger are among her favorite authors. Donna's plans for the future are teaching and then attending graduate school. Elizabeth (Betty), from Manassas, is majoring in French and art. She is a member of the French Club and has worked on the Rotunda for three years. She has participated in Circus and May Day.

Pastor hobbies for Betty are dancing and swimming. In the future Betty plans to teach.

Fall Dean's List Panegyricizes 90 For Scholarship

Ninety students have been recognized by the college for superior scholarship during the fall semester. These students have been placed on the Dean's List for having a 2.5 (3.00 system) or a 3.5 (4.00 system) average.

Of these, eight students held straight A averages. They are Beverly Butler, Jeanne Clabough, Mary Catherine Lannan, Elaine Lohr, Charlotte McClung, Sandra Phlegar, Lucy Swink and Martha Wyatt.

Other Dean's List students are Cynthia Ann Alcock, Betty Jane Alviss, Katherine Barker, Marie Bergeron, Betty Jane Berkley, Alice Boggs Dana Brewer, Nancy Burke, Nancy Lee Burton, JoAnn Cartwright, Anne Cordie, Charlotte Crais, Billie Crenshaw, Janet Cuipepper, Diane Curry, and Cynthia Davenport.

Others are Patricia Davis, Diana Delk, Dianna Eukusian, Janie Evans, Betty Farley, Rae Ferguson, Barbara Flinn, Callie Fuldest, Michael Forbes, Sandra Freedman, Alise Friedman, Lovey Ann Gilchrist, Dorothy Lee Goodman, Evelyn Gray, and Peggy Jean Grosch.

Also Dorothy Elsie Guthrie, Jean Haynie, Betty Howard, Linda Huffman, Ann Hutchinson, Joan Ivy, Sandra Jackson, Sandra Jamison, Audrey Lee Jarelle, Ann Gail Jones, Jean Kiefer, Brenda Lee King, Jean Lester, Frances Lee, LaNell Martin, Clara Ann Mayes, Mary Louise Merricks, Madeline Miller and Doris Montgomery.

In addition, Nancy Linn Moorefield, Mary Morris, Marie Murphy, Gloria Newton, Lois Oenshain, Patricia O'Brien, Charlene Owen, Alice Palmer, Elizabeth Perkins, Sandra Phelps, Sandra Phlegar, Mary Lou Plunkett, Jean Pollard and Joyce Fay Powell.

Also Elizabeth Predmore, Judy Purcell, Betty Ann Rex, Frances Shenal, Neils Shields, Barbara Stewart, Betty Ruth Simpson, Lois Sullivan, Marjorie Twilley, Barbara Wisner Tyner, Margaret Vaughan, Mary Waleick, Mary Warren, Dolores Watkins, Frances Webster, Willie Wells, Judy Whittemore, Rebecca Goodrich Wienchowski, and Signe Young.

MAY DAY

With May Day just around the corner, chairman Cindy Gray discusses forthcoming event with Evelyn Gray. Festivities will take place on May 4, at 3:00 p.m. at Longwood Estate. This year's theme is "From Fantasy to Future."

Talking over their responsibilities on the Rotunda staff are Donna Humphlett, new editor and Betty Smith, new Business Manager of The Rotunda.

New Dorm Creates Increase In Faculty

The Mary White Cox Dormitory which is now under construction is expected to open in the early fall. As a result, there will be an increase in enrollment for the 1963-64 session. Therefore, on the teaching staff for next year there will be many new faculty members.

John M. Austin, who will be with the Department of Natural Sciences, is a former student of Longwood, where he received his B. S. degree. He obtained his M. Ed. from the University of Virginia. Since 1960, Mr. Austin has been teaching at the Prince Edward Academy.

Theodore T. Beck, who will join the staff of the Foreign Language Department received his A. B. degree from Colgate University, his M. A. degree from the University of Georgia and his Ph.D. degree from Louisiana State University. Currently, Dr. Beck is a member of the faculty at Centenary College in Shreveport, Louisiana.

The Department of History and Social Sciences will get two new members next year, one of whom is L. Marshall Hall, Jr., who is currently studying for his Ph.D. degree at the University of North Carolina. Mr. Hall taught for two years at New York Mills High School and has served as a graduate assistant at the University of North Carolina. The other new professor is Earl A. Rubley, who is a candidate for the Ph.D. degree at the University of Tennessee. He received his B. S. degree from St. Ambrose College and his M. S. degree from the University of Kentucky.

Two new additions to the English Department are Clyde C. Clements, Jr., and Johannes Pastor. Mr. Clements is presently working toward his doctor's degree at Tulane University, where he is, also, a graduate assistant. Dr. Pastor holds the Drs. Litt. degree from the University of Nymegen. A native of The Netherlands, Dr. Pastor was a Fulbright exchange teacher at Prince William High School in Manassas, Virginia, for the 1958-59 session. George R. Chavasi who will join the Department of Art holds the B. F. A. degree from Richmond Professional Institute. At present he is working at the University of Georgia toward his M. F. A. degree.

Bank Offers $25 For FBLA Speech Contest Winner

The First National Bank of Farmville has offered a $25 optional bond to the winner of the public speaking contest to take place during the annual regional meeting of the Future Business Leaders of America, to be held March 9 in the Student Building at Longwood College.

The winner of this contest will be eligible to compete in the state finals later this year in Richmond. This is the eleventh regional meeting that has been held at Longwood. Delegates from 19 high schools are expected to attend. Following registration at 9:00 a.m., delegates will compete for the opportunity to enter the state and national competitions. Additional contests will be held in spelling, parliamentary law, Mr. and Miss FBLA yearbook exhibit, bulletin board, and essay. College students will compete for the titles: Miss Future Business Executive and Miss Future Business Teacher.

During the afternoon session new regional FBLA officers will be elected and installed. The Longwood Business Education Department will supervise the day's activities.

Representatives from FBLA chapters from Appomattox High School, Appomattox; Crews High School, Crews; Cumberland High School, Cumberland; Dan River High School, Ringgold; E. C. Glass High School, Lynchburg; George Washington High School, Danville; George Wythe High School, Richmond; Halifax County High School, South Boston; Huguenot High School, Richmond; and Manchester High School, Richmond, will attend.

Also represented will be Mid-

Fantasy - To Future Theme For May Day

"From Fantasy-to Future" is the theme for the 1963 May Day celebration. The festivities will take place at Longwood Estate on May 4 at 3 p.m.

The committees chosen for this year are as follows: theme and script, Donna Franken, Becky Reamy, Cindy Gray, Shirley Moody, Susan Rollins; May Court, Evelyn Gray; properties, Ann Persak and Lynn Guerin.

Also there is the May Day dance, which is to be held Saturday night. Carol Martin and Lynn Hancock are the dance committee chairman. Make-up is headed by Charlotte Ruffi and Peggy Waldo. Technical directors are Connie Birch, Natalie Miller and Barbara Fields. Brenda Label is in charge of scenery.

Other committees are publicity and programs, Joanne Slack and Maria Costan; costumes, Laurence Hamlet, Signe Young and Joyce Cundiff.

Boerch Thorn and Pi Delta Epsilon will jointly sponsor the visit of Oscar Williams to our campus. The poet and anthology will be here on April 10. He will speak at a tea given by the two groups for their organizations and guests as suggested by English faculty members.

Mr. Williams will also speak to various classes. He has edited a number of poetry anthologies of which our library has several. The volumes in the library include: New Poets, A Little Treasury of American Poetry, and The War Poets.

Boerch Thorn is a local honorary English society with Betty Farley as president. Their membership is twenty-two. Jean Pollard is president of Pi Delta Epsilon, national honorary journal fraternity.

Faculty members will include Dr. Soren Sorenson, head of the music department at Aarhus University; Organist Grethe Knuth Christensen, concert artist; Dr. Joanne Curritt of Longwood; Suzanne Kidd, professor of organ at University of Richmond, and possibly Mr. Herbert Tyner, minister of Music at the First Baptist Church in Kingston, North Carolina. Mr. Joyner may form and direct a chorale group of those organ students to present concerts of typically American songs, especially spirituals.

lely Moody, Susan Rollins; May Court, Evelyn Gray; properties, Ann Persak and Lynn Guerin.

Also there is the May Day dance, which is to be held Saturday night. Carol Martin and Lynn Hancock are the dance committee chairman. Make-up is headed by Charlotte Ruffi and Peggy Waldo. Technical directors are Connie Birch, Natalie Miller and Barbara Fields. Brenda Label is in charge of scenery.

Other committees are publicity and programs, Joanne Slack and Maria Costan; costumes, Laurence Hamlet, Signe Young and Joyce Cundiff.

Honor Societies Sponsor Visit By Williams

Boerch Thorn and Pi Delta Epsilon will jointly sponsor the visit of Oscar Williams to our campus. The poet and anthology will be here on April 10. He will speak at a tea given by the two groups for their organizations and guests as suggested by English faculty members.

Mr. Williams will also speak to various classes. He has edited a number of poetry anthologies of which our library has several. The volumes in the library include: New Poets, A Little Treasury of American Poetry, and The War Poets.

Boerch Thorn is a local honorary English society with Betty Farley as president. Their membership is twenty-two. Jean Pollard is president of Pi Delta Epsilon, national honorary journal fraternity.

Prospect - Or Retrospect?

Whether the two distinct groups of students on campus be called "questioners" and "quarrelers" as a student labeled them last week in a letter to the editor or "traditionalists" and "dissenters" as the Rotunda prefers to call them, is not important. What is important is that the student body be cognizant of an important change that is occurring. The Longwood student body is slowly maturing. It is changing to meet the demands of an exciting world.

Because the changes can not be made rapidly, the group of dissenters is small, but time is on their side. Opposing the changes are the traditionalists who have precedence on their side.

How does one distinguish one group from another? The older group, the traditional one, is characterized by a love for Circus, class productions, and May Day. Since the leading members of the traditionalist group form and head the committees of these activities, it is essential that its lesser members participate in them.

On the other hand, the dissenting group shows a marked disdain for the above activities. This group favors "art" movies over class productions and an academic atmosphere over May Day and Circus.

The traditionalists look to the past for guidance; the dissenters look to the future. Among the traditionalists there is a feeling of certainty, because the past has been established. There is no such feeling among the dissenters, because there is no certainty in the future, only hope.

The traditionalist group demands one thing from its members—belief in the tradition. In return, the group gives its members a set of values that has worked in the past, and for the moment, is continuing to work.

Since neither the tradition nor its set of values are valid for the dissenters, this group has been trying to establish new precedents. However, progress for them has been slow.

The traditionalists as well as dissenters must examine Longwood's conventions in their present context. Then only the traditions which the student body has outgrown should be discarded, for a society void of tradition is without foundations. On the other hand a society guided solely by traditions is stagnant.

Student Survey Reveals Diverse Thought On Various Phases Of Longwood Activity

By Maria Grant

Here is X College, a speck in the world. But the world is made of many specks.

On this campus are trees and grass and dorms and other buildings. But is this the college? Look further and there are people. They are the college, and the future inhabitants of the world.

Are their minds being trained to seek knowledge and are they waiting for knowledge to seek them?

This is a middle 20th century college, a changing, sometimes radical institution. At times clashing with the previous generation, today's college group seeks other things more suited to its growing form.

Herein lies the essence of a college today.

This is Longwood College, one of these changing institutions of learning. Why is it changing? Because its students are. They are becoming more aware of the world. They are demanding more from college, perhaps more than they should. Why? Because there is more to life than sitting in classrooms doing "busy work," and trying to belong to 10 different organizations at once.

Over 400 students on this campus were asked (in different words) how well Longwood was measuring up to the present trend of changing colleges, the colleges of the new generation. This is how they replied:

For as long as you've been here, have you been satisfied, in general, with your courses?

Approximately one-half of those questioned answered "yes," and the other half either said "no" or could not say. The answers were not without comment.

Of those who said "yes" it was clear that most felt there was much room for improvement. Some of their suggestions as to how to go about this will be mentioned later.

What do you think a student "owes" a teacher?

The most frequent answers for this were "respect, attention, and effort." Respect was meant either as a teacher, a person or both. Attention meant not causing disturbance in class. Effort was meant as at least trying to learn and understand even though the course may not be a good one.

Other replies which came up rather frequently were the 3 C's of courtesy, consideration, and cooperation.

Someone summed up the answers when she said a student owed a professor the same thing any young adult owed any adult.

What does a teacher "owe" a student?

This is the ideal teacher (the ideal, not real): One who puts as much as he possibly can into the course he is teaching — enthusiasm, knowledge, interest, organization, and preparation —

The freshmen had the most diversified comments on this question. Leading the list were history, language, math, education, and music (studied out under education).

Sophomores narrowed the field somewhat and included language and education as the weakest.

According to the junior interviewed, education (with psychology slung out frequently) is the worst.

Education again came out on the wrong side with the seniors' ratings.

What suggestions do you have concerning improving, changing or evaluating the academic and social atmosphere (conditions on campus)?

As someone said during the survey, "That's a loaded question." And there were replies to equal it.

By far the most frequently mentioned complaints had to do with courses and teachers.

In short, students seem to want more discussion in classes as opposed to "busy work," a wider choice of subjects (electives), more importance placed on individual knowledge rather than grades and also a chance to spend more time on one's major (without being so bogged down with other required courses).

As far as the teachers are concerned, the students would like to see some new faces with new ideas. This was a more positive rather than negative line of thought. On the same line, many stated that a professor's knowledge, enthusiasm, and methods were more important than their reputation as a well-known writer, speaker, etc.

Also receiving much controversial discussion was an unlimited cut system. The majority of those interviewed felt it would benefit the college. Others felt it should be for upperclassmen only, and still others thought it would simply increase the number of cuts already allowed.

Another improvement suggested by many was the installation of an IBM machine in the registrar's office and also an expansion of the business office.

Some further thoughts were expressed on whether or not to have a quarter system. It was felt that it would be worth looking into.

A good number of students (other than freshmen) felt there should be lesser restrictions on freshmen in regard to lights and places of study.

Also concerning freshmen was the idea of improving the orientation program — to make it more an introduction to academics and rules rather than announcing the date of Circus. At this time it would also be advisable to acquaint freshmen with voting, elections, and other procedures.

Completing the academic side were suggestions to increase the math requirements for entering Longwood and to keep the library opened longer.

Speaking on the social side, an overwhelming majority of students felt that the many clubs, organizations, class functions and other extracurricular activities at Longwood should be evaluated strictly. On the other hand, someone said that if one club or one activity benefited one person, it was worthwhile.

Compulsory assemblies were brought up many times — another thing which could be looked into seriously. Most said they wouldn't miss compulsory assemblies if it were worth the time.

Something which was mentioned often as a very definite drawback to the college was a whole was the lack of contact with other schools — men's women's, and coed. More concerts (open to other schools), informal dances, more exchanging of ideas in general with other campuses was suggested.

Many felt LC is not cosmo (polite) enough and needs the outside contact of other schools for a wider outlook on things.

(Continued on page 4)

Around The Campi

At the student-faculty volleyball game someone was sure Dean Moss was going to get out on the floor and say, "The following classes have been closed."

It's nice to hear music in the dining hall again.

"And what is your favorite tradition?"

About the merangue coat and wee-jun cowboy boots at Hollins Saturday.

Rosa's back from student teaching — "Woof, woof."

Charlie Brown says, "What do you mean you don't believe in House Council?" (See call down chart on second floor Tabb.)

Any friend of Zorro's is a friend of mine.

What sorority rushed a dog this year?

The Red Ram gang invaded the dining hall last Saturday night. House Council was unable to catch them.

Remember the girl who used spray net on the furniture? She's struck again—this time it was baby powder in the bath tub.

Heard about the new freshmen dolls? Wind them up and they be-bop.

Never know who you'll meet in an elevator.

Will the real BB please stand up.

Heard about the latest controversial best seller?

"I Was a Counterspy for House Council."

Thought for the week: What's your major maladjustment?

'Quarrelers' Respond To Student Letters

Dear Editor:

In reply to last week's letter to the editor from a student concerned with Longwood's "traditional system of values," we would like to present a different view of the situation.

This student seems to think that we should devote all our time to intellectual pursuits, from which our extra-curricular traditions are exempt. She fails to realize the advantages of a healthy balance between academic and extra-curricular activities.

We use the word "healthy" because the majority of extra-curricular activities supplement the curricula by providing the students with opportunities to expand and develop her particular academic talent. It is almost impossible for three class hours a week to be sufficient time for exploitation to the fullest of a student's talents.

Take for instance, the much revered yet much criticized tradition of Circus. Through the incentive of healthy competition, students are given a new outlet for their attempts to surpass their own abilities, whether it be dance, music, writing, acting, costume designing, or any other creative activity. The reward is a personal one of knowing you have strived to overreach your own abilities.

The desire for participation from as many students as possible is the expression of the so-called "sprinkled" student body. To share the knowledge of the personal rewards of such a tradition with their classmates. Although there are many students who do not allow themselves to realize this advantage, it would be interesting to note how many, if any, of these students actually feel that they are being "condemned by their peers" for not participating.

If the "questioners" would take the time to list their "out-moded" traditions beside those activities that are co-curricular and academically slanted, instead of going off onto tirades of over-generalizations and emotionalism, they will find that the so-called intellectual traditions are vastly outweighed. Perhaps the "questioners" would better spend their time enriching and improving those "intellectual" activities that are now present on campus.

The typical student of the majority group spoken of in last week's letter was explained as one who places friendliness as Longwood's most noted quality and "being an animal in Circus for four years" as the area in which she excelled. This type of girl is surely exceptional rather than typical. In talking to a prospective employer, most students would probably tell of the academic advantages. Advantages, you say? Well, why are you here if not for that reason?

Longwood offers a firm, educational basis for living and coping with the many aspects of the future. Room for improvement is found in any institution, but the very atmosphere in being able to express freely personal views is an indication of the worthwhileness of Longwood's system of values.

Pat Wallace
Marcia Siegfried

giving students an incentive to learn.

He respects a student not only as a student but as an individual.

He practices no prejudices but shows fairness in all phases of classroom activity.

The ideal teacher is one who also practices patience, understanding, and sincere interest thus creating an atmosphere more conducive to learning.

Finally, as in the student's case, the ideal teacher is one who shows the 3 C's of common courtesy, cooperation, and consideration. By this the ideal professor realizes his is not the only class the student has in her schedule; therefore, he tries to take into consideration the other classes a student takes.

Lastly, he (or she) knows what the 5-of bell means.

What, in general is the best department on campus, taking into consideration teachers, facilities, course material, and challenge to student?

Taking the replies to this question by classes, it seems that the freshmen, although not having the experience of seeing many departments in action, have somewhat definite ideas on the subject. The greatest majority "voiced" on the science department (biology at times singled out) as being the best department in general.

The sophomores were in agreement — science. Also receiving favorable comment was the English department.

Of the juniors interviewed it was the same story — science, with English also getting a good rating.

And science again came through with the seniors, giving it a large percentage of "votes."

What, in general, is the worst (weakest) department? (Taking into consideration course material, lack of facilities, and presentation)

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

The Rotunda

ESTABLISHED NOVEMBER 20, 1920

Published each week during the college year except during holidays and examination period by the students of Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia. Bus list.

Ann Age	Editor-in-Chief
Donna Humphlett	Managing Editor
Ann Carroll	Business Manager
Gleny Gilmore	New Editor
Lafay Snyder	Feature Editor
Lawson Hopper	Sports Editor
Doris Smith	Dash Editor
Betsy Taylor	Art Editor
Florence Barnard	Photography
Ann Peters	Advertising Manager
Mary Bernhardt

REPORTING STAFF: Barbara Agee, Theresa Albright, Lella Aldridge, Bernice Ballard, Paula Blackstone, Margaret Cooke, Lee Criss, Dee Dee Diamond, Jane Eddy, Beverly Gooden, Judi Hackney, Judy Ivy, Sandra Jamblon, Janet Lutz, Susan Lane, Mary Ann Liptford, Joan Lord, Bonnie Mann, Charlotte McGee, Gwynne Phillips, Barbara Poland, Karen Ruder, Marcia Siegfried, Doris Smith, Lois Sullivan, Betsy Taylor, Allison Tugler, Barbara Turner, Linda Turner, Pat Wallace, Dee Watkins, Annette Wenger.

CIRCULATION STAFF: Suzanne Biel, Sandra Friedman, Cindy Gray, Chesney Hove, Jackie Leach, Cabell Montemore, Betty Lou Neal, Mary Lee Phankett, Joyce Powell, Eleanor Richardson, Marion Sims, Gay Simon.

ADVERTISING STAFF: Mary Bradford, Diana Doh, Betty P. Galan, Judi Hackney, Dottie Marshall, Sandra Parker, Pats Stone, Diane Woolley.

PHOTOGRAPHY STAFF: Mary Evelyn Compton, Gray Garhart, Cottie Marshall, Nancy Robinson.

BUSINESS STAFF: Lella Aldridge, Olivia Gibson, Helen Weeks.

(Unassigned editorial written by the editor)

Member: Virginia Intercollegiate Press (Rating First Class), Columbia Schoolship Press Association (Rating First Place), National College Press Service.

Entered as second class matter at the Post Office at Farmville, Virginia under the Act of Congress on March 3, 1924. Registered for national advertising by the National Advertising Service. Printed by the Farmville Herald.

MODERN DANCE

Striking a basic pose in Advanced Modern Dance Class are front row, Joyce Waldburger and Shelby Webb, and back row, Dottie Cox and Ellen Barnes. Advanced Modern Dance Class is taught by Mrs. Landrum and meets once every week for 2 hours.

Advanced Modern Dance Finds Place In LC Physical Education Program

Through the concerted efforts of three students, Joyce Waldburger, Ellen Barnes and Gwendolyn Merchant, the Advanced Modern Dance Course has become an actuality on the Longwood campus this semester.

As an advanced course for the student who is interested in developing the creative aspect of dance in the theater, Advanced Modern Dance helps one to understand modern dance as an independent art form, comparable to other art forms. Previous experiences, as one semester in Physical Education 221 (Fundamentals of the Dance) and/or Physical Education 222 (Modern Dance) are prerequisites for entering the course. This course is one of two straight liberal arts courses for students in the physical education department. Advanced Modern Dance and Dance in Our Daily Lives are purely elective courses.

Basic experiences in ballet are helpful in that the body is disciplined for the dance, but alone it does not suffice for the course, as one has to learn that his own body is the instrument for meaning and understanding dance as an art form.

In this class individual and group problems are dependent upon the technical skills (modern dance skills and/or ballet training). This year's group will prove to be interesting according to Mrs. Landrum because two members of the class, Dottie Cox and Betty Ann Atkinson, have been groomed in the idiom of ballet. Dottie Cox states that for the first time, (and she took two semesters of modern dance), she has broken through ballet habit patterns into creating through movement and not technique alone.

Betty Ann Atkinson states, "This course suits my personal purpose because it is primarily a class in choreography. It will help develop or enhance my future, which relates to becoming a stage director. The study of body movement and dance choreography (making dances) will be exciting for me."

A problem solving approach will be developed in the advanced course as in all dance classes at Longwood. In looking at choreography as a problem of learning or understanding compared to learning in the Fundamentals of the Dance, first semester course, and Modern Dance, second semester course, the individual gets more personal attention than she had in the other courses. The emphasis shifts from the individual within a group to the individual as an entity unto himself.

Two members of the class have expressed their views regarding this personal attention to one's problems. In the first, double period session of the class, Diana Delk states, "It's a lot easier trying to do what you want, feel, sense in a small group rather than in a group where there are 40 or more people."

Shelby Webb reiterates the similar feeling of Diana, "I enjoy the class for there is more time for the individual to receive instruction."

The individual becomes the center, the crux of the total problem of learning to make dances. The student learns to develop a deeper meaning for the dance, to understand and develop his own creative potential, look at himself and others as all work together to learn the how, when and why of communication in dance.

The dancer - choreographer uses his body as the instrument or means for communication. Dance is likened to painting, sculpture, to musical composition, and to the structure of architectural form when dealing with large groups of people. Dance has basic structure, design and form comparable to all other art forms.

Beginnings

The first part of the course deals with understandings relative to basic problems of choreography as those relate to the individual as a personal entity and as a personality, who must develop some stage presence.

Basic techniques of the modern dance are explored as means of expression or understanding, which must become meaningful to the dancer and the onlooker or spectator. To the onlooker, dance appears to be a succession of movements, but to the dancer-artist, it is a series of sensory experiences or literally dissecting a technique or movement into component parts, then having to decide which part, of the technique or movement pattern one starts with, where he goes from there, what he is doing there, and what does it say to someone else.

The process of sequential form or learning to move in phrases relative to music's phrasing lead to developing the music materials for a total dance.

This is problem solving; this is organization of an experiment or of relationships; this is a creative problem, but to the student it is a problem in which his identity is lost within the problem. He becomes a part or the whole of it. The choreographer is at work.

Movement is a real problem on stage. Dancers like to create to lyrical and often, too often, to slow music without realizing that all movement on stage in dance form slows down for the onlooker. The choreographer must get to work.

Movement is explored as a problem which invariably always leads back to which techniques to use. In another sense, the quality of a work depends both upon total movement or movement patterns of the body as design in space as well as upon the techniques of the craft. Students are encouraged to develop their own habitual patterns of moving into and through space, manipulating techniques in the same manner that one can recognize in a highly skilled tennis player.

Creating

Starting from the concept that movements relative to everyday life may be visualized on stage, the dancer goes through a period where he will vacillate between techniques and movement to understand his own qualities of creativeness. Some days, one cannot create. One feels like a cigar store Indian figure - no pipe, no cigar, no smoke. Then, all of a sudden, or like a sneaky puff of wind, the creative urge is rampant. It goes everywhere. One is creating. Realization of this ebbs and flows of the creative impulse is a problem that all artists experience.

At this stage of learning, the student realizes that problem solving and one's creative potential are one and the same. One has to work hard, dig deep, and organize to compose a dance.

Staging Dances

Learning to direct others in moving into and out of space is a fascinating problem similar to finding the center of line at which the viewer looks at the work. This is one of the problems of the course, that the individual must rely upon others as his critic and guide.

To manage or manipulate bodies in one does techniques and movement, one must understand body design. In dance in the theater there are two problems which must be considered severely, but it can be readily used easily.

Asymmetry is the persistent problem that the choreographer must deal with. It makes for excitement in the dance. It leads into space. It defines focus or direction of movement. In dealing with this problem in class, Ellen Barnes, an art major, was the first to realize that she could not adhere basically to one pattern alone. Her experiences in art were helpful in pointing the way for other members of the class.

Assignments

Miss Jeanelle Spear will announce information concerning room assignments this month. Only those students who have paid the ten dollar room registration fee by March 15 will be allowed to draw for room numbers and register for rooms.

MSU Offers College Groups Language Study

Students at colleges and universities across the nation are invited to participate in a new language study program offered in Europe by Michigan State University during the summer of 1963.

Six-week intensive courses in French at Lausanne, Switzerland; in German at Cologne, Germany; in Italian at Florence, Italy; and in Spanish at Madrid, Spain are now open to students with some background in the language they wish to study.

At a low cost of approximately $500 to the student, the plan includes:

- (1) Air transportation from New York to Europe and return.
- (2) Tuition for the six-week language course.
- (3) Board and room with European families while participating in the program.

A period of approximately 15 days following completion of the course, allowed for travel at the student's discretion, costs of which are not covered by the $500.

Chartered planes will leave the United States for Europe during the second week in July. Courses begin on Monday, July 15. The return flight leaves Europe the second week in September.

Additional details on the program and application forms can be obtained by contacting Fredrick Mortimore, American Language and Education Center, Continuing Education Service, Michigan State University, East Lansing, Mich.

Duke Tops Virginia 89-70 In Atlantic Coast Play

In the basketball spotlight, Duke, scoring seventeen points in the opening minutes, whipped Virginia, 89-70, in the first round game of the Atlantic Coast Conference. Duke was 14-0 in regular season play.

A three-point play by sophomore Lennox Tabin enabled North Carolina State to dumb Clemson with six seconds remaining in the game.

West Virginia advanced in the second round of the tournament by defeating University of Richmond 75-46. Virginia Tech and Davidson are matched in another Southern semi-final game. Virginia Tech upset William and Mary 74-72, and Davidson's sophomores blasted Virginia Military, 106-71.

Small college action saw Loyola cut down Hampton-Sydney, 82-74, in the Mason-Dixon

On Stage

Habit patterns of dissecting techniques and developing movement in sequential fashion now merge with the problems of how many on stage? Where? When? How? One learns to manipulate levels of movement from graduations close to the floor, to midway and to standing or moving positions. One learns to manipulate the lines of body movement as in straight lines for strong qualities or emphatic movement, or in curved lines which follow the human way of moving easily and naturally in space.

The stage is alive! Dance is on stage, but the curtain is still drawn. The critics (other members of the class) become vultures relishing every error. This habit of dissection has become a group problem. The teacher rescues the victim by finding something redeeming to start the process over again to a more satisfying end.

Timely Topics

US Ship Near Azores Sights Russian Plane

Long range Russian reconnaissance planes have been flying over United States aircraft carriers in the Atlantic and the Pacific during the past month. Defense Secretary McNamara revealed in a news conference on Thursday. The latest incident took place on February 22 over the carrier Forrestal in the area of the Azores. Mr. McNamara said that the planes have not shown any hostile intent and have not crossed over the U. S. continent. He also stated that this is the first incidence of long-range aircraft flying over U. S. ships.

The State Department told the Associated Press Thursday that it had not received any notice from the Soviet government of its intention to leave some troops in Cuba indefinitely. The New York Times News Service reported earlier that the Soviet Union had informed the U. S. of the intention to keep a "residual" force of about 10,000 in Cuba. The Russians are expected to withdraw about 7,000 troops within the next few weeks and will eventually remove all troops, according to the State Department.

President Kennedy asked Congress for specific legislation in the field of civil rights in a special message last Thursday. The program primarily deals with voting, education, and the extension of the life and duties of the Civil Rights Commission. The President wants Congress to authorize the provision of federal know-how and funds to push desegregation in public schools, to extend the life of Civil Rights Commission for at least four years, and to grant voting suits in federal courts priority treatment.

Treasury Secretary Dillon said Wednesday that the administration still hopes for general tax reforms as well as a tax cut, and that he would do whatever was necessary to get this, even sacrifice his tax return.

form program. He emphasized that the cut should be at least 10 billion.

Premier Khrushchev said Wednesday night that the Soviet Union and China will settle their ideological dispute and "really even closer together." He also reaffirmed the Soviet commitment to assist Cuba or any other Communist country, should they be attacked.

Governor Harrison said Wednesday that Virginia's Democratic organization is "bound together by strands of steel," and he predicted an overwhelming victory for Senator Byrd if he should run for re-election. He stated that he does not believe College state's policy of non-support for the Democratic presidential ticket has weakened the Virginia Democratic Party.

Female Faculty Form Team To Bowl

Different members of the faculty have formed a bowling team to play in the Monday night's Women's League at the Farmville Sports Center. Six teams, consisting of four players each, form the league.

The faculty members composing the Longwood College team are: Miss Curmish, Miss Barnett, Miss Smith, Mrs. Griffin, Dean Wilson, Miss Spear and Miss Reiley.

Commenting on the pleasure of bowling, Miss Spear said, "It's nice to be able to throw something every now and then, constructively, that is, it's fun to be able to get exercise."

USE THIS COUPON

FOR
ONE FREE COKE!
THURSDAY, FRIDAY AND SATURDAY
AT
SOUTHSIDE SUNDRY

LONGWOOD JEWELERS

NEED A GIFT?
Come in and see our new gold and Silver Charms.
Also
Silver Charms At REDUCED PRICES!

FARMVILLE

TASTEE FREEZE
PROSPECT ROAD

OPEN

ALL WINTER!

DOROTHY MAY
STORE

SPRING BLOUSES,
SKIRTS, BERMUDAS, AND JACKETS.
$3.99 Up

Longwood Takes Win From Richmond

In a rough and tumble game of basketball the Longwood Blue and White emerged victorious over Westhampton of Richmond 44-33 on Saturday.

Longwood led throughout most of the game with Westhampton threatening a few times toward the end. From the first whistle starting the game, until the final buzzer, there was much action.

Westhampton kept up a steady pace of shooting and guarding. It took the Longwood team a little while to get started, but by the second quarter they found the mark.

The entire game was more or less a defensive battle, with good ball-handling and guarding by both teams.

In a second game, the home team came out on the wrong end of a one-point difference. Westhampton tallied the win 33-32.

PRSA Holds Seminar For Public Relations

A one-day education seminar for college students interested in public relations in business and government today, will be held Saturday, April 20, at the University of Virginia's Main Hall Auditorium in Charlottesville.

The seminar will be co-sponsored by the McIntire School of Commerce of the University of Virginia and the Old Dominion Chapter, Public Relations Society of America, Inc.

First in Series

James W. Russett, president of the Old Dominion Chapter and assistant to the President, Tidewater Construction Corporation, Norfolk, said, "We plan for this seminar to be the first of an annual series which will provide students of colleges and universities throughout Virginia with up-to-date information on what is going on in the field of public relations, some professional instruction on basic public relations techniques and an idea of what the employment opportunities are."

Plans Important Role

"Because public relations is taking an increasingly important role in modern business management, students studying the social sciences, business administration, commerce and economics — as well as journalism or public relations — should find the seminar extremely informative."

Details of the program will be announced at a later date but it will include a panel on employment opportunities, a description of how an award-winning public relations program is planned and carried out, and the problems of launching a new product nationally.

Two Years' Service

The Old Dominion Chapter of the PRSA was founded just two years ago. Its most recent activity was the presentation of the first annual Thomas Jefferson Public Service Citation to Winthrop Rockefeller, Chairman of the Board of Colonial Williamsburg, for his outstanding contributions to the Commonwealth.

The McIntire School of Commerce, formally established as a school of the University of Virginia in 1932, offers a course of study which deals with the fundamental disciplines which underlie business administration and practice. In addition to its business program, the school also serves various elements of the student body through seminars, management programs and sundry meetings.

Japanese students, suffering from TB, being treated at first World University Service ward at Murayama Sanatorium. This ward was built through WUS funds in 1958.

TB PATIENTS

European Studies Group Issues Admission Policy

The Institute of European Studies has announced new admissions procedures and application deadlines for its academic year programs in Vienna, Paris, and Freiburg, West Germany.

Application periods for all three programs opened officially on Monday, March 4.

Moves Deadline

Deadlines for applications have been moved from June 15 to June 5 for the programs, beginning next August and September. The Institute's admissions committee will review all applications simultaneously after the deadline and mail notices of acceptance or rejection June 15.

Institute officials said the changes were made because applications from qualified students have climbed beyond the capacities of the programs. To continue accepting qualified students as applications are received would entail rejecting some better qualified students who applied closer to the deadline date, they said.

However, students with good reasons for seeking advance notice may petition the admissions committee for a decision before June 15.

No Language Requirement
The Institute's program at the University of Vienna combines English-taught liberal arts and general studies courses, intensive German language instruction, regular German - taught university courses for those competent in German, and supplementary lectures and seminars. It is open to juniors and sophomores. There is no language requirement.

The "Das Deutsche Jahr" program is conducted for students only at the University of Freiburg. It stresses political science, philosophy, literature, history and German. All courses are taught in German. Tutorials have been added to aid U. S. students in preparing for classes and examinations.

Study in Paris

The Paris Honors program admits outstanding juniors and a few sophomores. It emphasizes contemporary European studies and offers qualified students opportunities for study at the University of Paris and other Paris schools. All classes are taught in French.

Each program includes two field-study trips in Western Europe with Institute lecturers. A folder describing the programs and listing requirements is available from the Institute of European Studies, 35 E. Wacker Drive, Chicago 1, Ill.

Survey Shows Trend In Student Thought

(Continued from page 2)

Having a guidance staff with possibly a psychiatrist on it was brought up frequently. People felt that the student body ought to have the help of someone (not on the faculty and completely impartial) in the case of serious problems, and for help in planning courses and future employment.

On traditions—someone asked why we have them. No one answered.

Other references were made concerning House Council and Student Government — in essence, they should be more closely in touch with the student body.

Whenever you leave Longwood what will you remember most about it?
According to all four classes, they'll remember their friends and the characters they've met more than anything else. Along with these memories work down life and the spirit of Longwood.

From the seniors came several other mixed answers — Charlie Hop, the Lantern Parade and spring.

The juniors added more—the bell tower, getting through math, eccentric professors, the dining hall, and mistakes.
A variety of things were contributed by the sophomores — socializing, lack of sleep, sentimental things, Sunday night supper (?), frustration, "man on the ball," pranks, and holidays.

The freshmen came up with still more — mickeying, orientation, rattling, growing up, the infirmary, lonely week ends, sororities, the Slater System, traditions, and bad social life.

(Yet a few said, "knowledge.")

And what is your favorite Longwood tradition?

The four traditions most mentioned by the freshmen interviewed were CHI, slings in the Rotunda, Circus and rattling. Only one complaint — "CHI should walk more often."

Rotunda slings, CHI, Circus, Christmas at Longwood, and rattling were about equal according to the sophomores.

And the juniors answered the same way.

Besides CHI, rattling, and Circus, the seniors stated that Charlie Hop was still their favorite.

To summarize the essence of this survey in a few lines is impossible, but a few key words might help: thought, mature action, and look to the future.

Many people helped make this survey possible: Linda Bossmann, Bobbi Burrell, Kay Callison, Sandy Coker, Linda Deming, Donna Franzen, Sally Grayson, and Cheramy Howe.

Also Terry Hynes, Sarah Jane Lynch, Cabell Montgomery, Mary Morton, Betty Lee Neal, Sue Nichols, Bobbi Rice, Sisile Shute, Marcia Siegfried and Pat Spee.

And Leary Lu Steiner, Angel Stephenson, Sue Sweeney, Tot Sykes, Pat Wallace, and Millie Woodward.

World University Plan Offers Aid To Students

W.U.S. stands for World University Service — an international student service organization that helps bring about higher education in under-developed countries. It is the cooperative effort of students and professors in 41 countries.

WUS believes that today's students are tomorrow's leaders — the future of one affects the future of all, no matter how far away he may be.

University students all over the world need the help of more fortunate students. In their quest for education, some of these students are willing to endure what we would consider intolerable conditions. Needs differ in different parts of the world university community.

Needs Contributions

For example, students in India lack health services, Middle East students need housing, in Indonesia, text books and lab supplies are rare items. To be more specific, 25 cents will provide three meals a day at Florida College in Greece, $2.50 will provide a room for one month in a co-op hostel in Madrid, India, $5.00 will maintain an Algerian student for one month in a refugee camp while he continues his studies. These are only a few examples that give an idea where a contribution will go.

Students Share Responsibility
WUS works entirely with university students and the basic budget to help these students comes from students on campuses such as Longwood where the students are more fortunate. Those who are more fortunate must share the responsibility of helping to alleviate the needs of other students less fortunate. The channel through which we are able to help these students is WUS.

Beginning March 12, Longwood will hold their annual Campus Chest Drive. This year, the Campus Chest has chosen World University Service as their campaign objective.

English Schools Direct Studies During Summer

The University of Birmingham will hold its 17th annual summer session on Shakespeare and Elizabethan Drama at Stratford-upon-Avon from July 8 to August 16. This summer school provides a unique opportunity for college graduates and undergraduates in their last two years of college or university work to study Shakespeare and Elizabethan Drama in an incomparable setting.

A distinguished faculty has been assembled from the University of Birmingham and several other British universities for the summer school. In addition to the regular lecture, students will be able to pursue their specialized interests in small groups supervised by university tutors. The academic program will be supplemented by visits to performances of modern and Elizabethan plays in the vicinity, as well as attendance at performances of Festival plays at the Shakespeare Memorial Theatre.

Most American colleges and universities will give credit for the summer's work. However, it is recommended that a student consult the authorities at his college or university in advance if he wishes to obtain credit.

The deadline for scholarship applications is March 1; for regular admission, March 11. Further information and application form may be obtained from the Counseling Division of the Institute at the above address or from any of the Institute's Regional Offices listed below.

The regional offices are located at 116 South Michigan Avenue, Chicago 3, Illinois; 1605 Pennsylvania Street, Denver 3, Colorado; 315 World Trade Center, 1520 Texas Avenue, Houston 2, Texas; 1630 Crescent Place, N.W., Washington 9, D. C.; 291 Geary Street, San Francisco 2, California.

Bridge Tourney Nears Finish Of Round 1

All over sophomore dormitories cards are being shuffled in preparation for the Sophomore Pop Culture Tournament. The first round is almost completed. The two top teams are Margaret Wright and Pat Spies, and Martha Muire and Kay Cobb. These two teams will compete against each other to determine the winner of the first round.

Two more rounds will be held before the top two teams are decided. These two teams will battle it out to determine the championship.

Marcy Hynes and Carol Meyer are in charge of the tournament and progress is recorded on the Sophomore Bulletin Board in Ruffner.

SELECT YOUR EASTER GIFTS NOW!

EASTER IDEALS
Beyond Ourselves
by Catherine Marshall

The Prophet
The Life Of Christ
by Charles Allen
God's Masterpieces
by Grace N. Crowell
Bibles—King James and Revised

The
New English Bible

WEYANOKA BOOK SHOP
200 High Street

MARTIN THE
JEWELER

ROUND AND OVAL PINS
$3.30 Up
Easily Monogrammed

State Theatre FARMVILLE, VA.

WED.-THURS.—MAR. 6-7

COLUMBIA PICTURES
PRESENTS DAVID L. LUSKMAN PRODUCES

ANTHONY QUINN JACKIE GLEASON
MICKY JULIE ROONEY HARRIS
REQUIEM FOR A HEAVYWEIGHT

OPENS FRI. — MARCH 8
"BEST PICTURE!"
Winner of 10 Academy Awards

WEST SIDE STORY

Show Times:
3 6:45 9:15
Admission:
ADULTS ..... $1.00

SNOW

Taking advantage of last week's heavy snow, Freshmen Karen Engdahl and Sue Sh-ley start on the beginnings of snowman

Cast Votes

For Minor Officers

Tomorrow

THE ROTUNDA

Welcome

Back

Alumnae

VOL. VLI

Longwood College, Farmville, Va., March 13, 1963

No. 15

Longwood To See 'Power Of Darkness'

Student Body Elects Osteen, Rex, Taylor To Major Offices

New Presidents To Take Office After Vacation

Presidents for House Council, Y. W. C. A., and the Athletic Association have been selected by the student body. They are, respectively, Cecilia Lynne Osteen, Elizabeth Ann Rex, and Gaynelle Thomas Taylor. They will be installed in office April 2 during assembly.

Osteen Active

Lynne, of Norfolk, is a history-French major. After graduation from Longwood, she hopes to teach in high school.

While at Granby High School, Lynne was vice-president of her freshman and junior classes, Secretary of her sophomore class, and Treasurer of the Student Government her senior year.

Other activities included membership in the Junior Y-Teen, Welking Tri-Hi-Y, and King Daughter's Circle, and participating in the annual comic

Panel Discussion

The March meeting of Boere Eta Theta, English honor society, will be held tonight at 7 p. m. in the Small Auditorium. The program will be a panel discussion of selected poems by Howard Nemerov.

shows, somewhat similar to our productions.

Since coming to Longwood, Lynne has been a regular participant in Circus and May Day. She is a member of Kappa Delta Sorority. Her sophomore year she was chosen President of Tab and Student. Her activities this year have included Secretary of House Council, member of Y-cabinet, and May Court representative.

Rex Majors in Music
Betty Ann is a graduate of Lane High School, Charlottesville. A music major, she plans to teach in public schools after graduation from Longwood.

While in high school, Betty (Continued on page 3)

RELAX, KIDS!

During pause in rehearsal of Spring play, "The Power of Darkness," Longwood Players and Hampden-Sydney Jongleurs ease tension of last

Actors Present Play March 14, 15, 16

This week end, the Longwood Players and the Hampden-Sydney Jongleurs, under the direction of Mr. David Wiley, will present The Power of Darkness by Leo Tolstoy. The three performances, which will take place in Jarman Auditorium, will begin at 8 p. m. on the nights of March 14, 15, and 16.

Redhead Speaks At Annual Meet Of LC Alumnae

Mrs. Virginia Potts Redhead will speak to the returning alumnae at the annual Founders Day celebration. Registration for the two-day conference will begin on Friday afternoon, March 15 and continue through Saturday morning in the Rounda. As is the custom the Granddaughters Club will be hostesses.

The Saturday morning schedule includes an 11:00 program in Jarman Hall. Rev. W. Otis McClung, pastor of the Farmville Baptist Church, will give the invocation, and Annie Bailey and Mrs. J. Carter Hanes, President of the Association of Alumnae will follow with greetings for the guests.

Miss Mary Nichols will introduce Mrs. Virginia Potts Redhead who will address the group. Her topic will be "On Living Up to Our Legacies." Mrs. Redhead is presently from Greensboro, North Carolina, and was a 1927 graduate of Longwood. She composed the music for the college alma mater and was assistant Dean of Women to Miss Mary White Cox, former Dean of Women.

Other activities include a Reunion Dinner for the class of 1913 the following on Friday evening. On Saturday, the class of 1958 will have their Reunion Luncheon.

The Farmville Alumnae Chapter will welcome the alumnae back with a tea at the Alumnae House on Saturday morning from 9:00 to 10:30.

The Annual Association of Alumnae business meeting will be held on Saturday from 12:00 to 1:10. Mrs. J. Carter Hanes, President of the group, will preside.

On Friday and Saturday nights at 8:00 the Longwood Players and the Hampden-Sydney Jongleurs will present the annual Spring play. This year's play is "The Power of Darkness."

This play of three acts, divided by two intermissions, has as its setting nineteenth century Russia. It concerns the tragic and realistic conflicts among the Russian peasant folk. This tragedy is further made effective by unique sound devices, an unusual lighting design, and an imaginative scene set design. The most distinctive feature is a revolving circular stage which was built by the scenery crew and the Play Production class. The revolving stage was built so as to be a permanent addition to Jarman's scenery collection. The set is designed expressively, creating a weird background for the tragic theme and somber mood of The Power of Darkness.

Walker Assists

Assistant director to Mr. Wiley is Melinda Walker, Melinda, a senior English major, has worked on the plays presented in Jarman Auditorium for all her four years at Longwood. She has also held the position of stage manager in several plays in the past and is a member of Alpha Psi Omega, national honorary drama fraternity.

Pat Spies, the stage manager, is a sophomore pre-nursing major. She assisted with the plays during her freshman year and was stage manager for The Taming of the Shrew, this year's fall play.

Other crew chiefs are Barbara Gray Martin, heading the scenery crew; Karen Ruder, heading the light crew; Patti O'Neill, in charge of props; Ann Persak who is coordinating the sound effects; Barbara Fletcher, in charge of costumes; Peggy Waldo and Cherryn Howe, heading the make-up committee; and Carol Meyer, in charge of the publicity for the play.

Longwood girls acting in the play are Carla McNeil as Anya; Harriet Hunt as Alina, her step-daughter; Margaret Wright as Anyusha, Anya's daughter; Phyllis Duncan as Makrena, the step-mother-in-law of Anya; and the model of Nikita, and Mary Lynn Landers as Makna, one of Nikita's lovers.

Other Longwood girls cast in double roles are Dede Oxx as the Friend and the First Girl, and Maria Konovaloff as the Neighbor and the Matchmaker.

Pat Newton is the Second Girl; Ginny Turner plays the part of Marfa, Petr's sister; and the Neighbor in Act Two is played by Martha Spitzer.

Hampden-Sydney actors are Ed Baker as Nikita; Mike Oosthuis as Dede Oxx, the husband of Makrena and the father of Nikita; Dave Royle as Matt Rich, the hired hand; Rick Crane as the Bridgeman, and Phil Anderson as the Policeman.

Playing the double roles of John McNeil as the Village Elder and as Petr, Anya's husband; and Bill McGuire as the Best Man and as the husband to Marina.

NEW OFFICERS

Newly elected heads of major officers are Gay Taylor, Betty Ann Rex, and Lynne Osteen, Presidents of Athletic Association, Y.W.C.A., and House Council, respectively.

Serigraph Display By Lemen In Jarman

In the lobby of Jarman Hall there are 30 serigraphs which are to be on display until March 22. The prints are the work of Mrs. Janice Lemen, associate professor of art.

Serigraph is the newest type of print media. It came to the west coast of this country from Japan. It is done by using a series of stencils applied to silk which are stretched on a frame. The color is then forced through the silk with a rubber squeegee. For each color run a different screen is prepared, so that a print of varied colors requires a great many preparations and prints.

Mrs. Lemen first used this media in 1964 when she became interested in it because it is closer to painting than any other media. Mrs. Lemen is primarily a painter.

Of particular interest are the "En series," ("Encircled," "Entrapped," "Encountered," "In Bloom," and "In Passage.") The first color run on these is exactly the same. Mrs. Lemen then divided the paper into five groups and finished five different designs by interchanging the screens. This was done in the spirit of play, in order to see what would happen.

Her first prints were done by making a design and carrying it out, color for color. Beginning with the "En Series," however, the work became more spontaneous. Up until the plans done in 1962 there was no printing done, the designing and the printing were done simultaneously.

The prints range in size from little Christmas cards to a print which is 28 x 40.

For these prints Mrs. Lemen stated that more than usual attention had been paid to matting, mounting and framing. Each frame and mat was made for each print. Mrs. Lemen finished the frames after obtaining them from second hand stores, people's attics, and the dime store.

Library Exhibit Features Leitch Until March '3

Works by Nancy Leitch, Longwood art professor, are now featured in the exhibition room of the college library.

Sculpture, weaving, drawings, and pottery involving over fifteen years of work are included in this exhibit which will remain in the library until March 23rd.

This is the same exhibit which has been featured at Hollins College and Randolph-Macon Women's College this year.

Various media such as grease crayon, conte crayon, pencil, ink, and combined media have been used in the drawings. According to Miss Leitch, "Observation from actual subjects is the source of the idea in all of the examples, although these may appear simplified or stylized rather than photographic."

Examples of the basic four harness techniques with many wavy variations on warp of the same pattern using talley, twill, and tapestry weaves, with varied color and textural effects are shown in the weaving.

The sculpture in the exhibit uses various media, such as mahogany, wire, aluminum, slate, cherry, walnut, plaster, stone-ware clay, terra cotta, and hammered aluminum.

Some of the pottery on exhibit was made at the beach in the sand; other pieces were made over natural rocks.

Many of Miss Leitch's works have been exhibited at the Carnegie Institute and the Toledo Museum. Many have received awards at the National Ceramic Exhibit and the Carnegie Institute.

McCombs Students To Present Vocal Music Recital On Sunday

Pupils of The Department of Music will present a recital of vocal music in the Music Building, Sunday, March 17. The program will begin at 4 p.m.

Below is the program for the afternoon recital.

Pupils of Dr. James McCombs will present the recital.

She Never Told Her Love	Haydn
Piercing Eyes	Haydn
Carol Pierce, Soprano
Nancy Oldfield, piano
II pmo d'oro	Cesti
Ah! quarto e vero
E Dove t'aggiri
Judy Hester, soprano
Mildred Johnson, piano
The Pasture	Naginski
Sure on this Shining Night	Barber
Orfeo ed Euridice	Gluck
Che faro senza Euridice
Margaret Irby, contralto
Elizabeth Ann Rex, piano
Alma del core	Caldera
Tu lo sai	Torelli
Maria Konovaloff, soprano
Elizabeth Ann Rex, piano
Moon-Marketing	Weaver
Peace	Beech
Susannah	Floyd
The Trees on the Mountain
Marilyn Anthony, soprano
Betty Howard, piano

'Rotunda' Names Editorial Staff For Next Year

The Rotunda editorial staff of '64-'65 has been appointed by editor Denna Humphlett.

Managing Editor for the coming year is Maria Grant, News Editor is Joan Lord, Assistant Editor is Karen Ruder, Nancy McCreary is Desk Editor.

New Feature Editor is Patricia Wallace, assisted by Marcia Stegfred Sandra Jamison will be assisted in her position as Sports Editor by Jayne Eddy.

Worth It?

Included in the total expenses of a year at Longwood is a twenty dollar student activities fee. Since this fee is included in the total charge, it is paid without pain. That is, the Longwood student is not really aware that in paying the total charge of $840 she stipulates that $20 of those dollars be allotted to Campus Fees, therefore, she is not really concerned with how that money is spent.

For example, how many of us know how much May Day costs? The expenses of this production usually total more than $800. A tentative budget for this year's May Day includes a $50 allowance for crepe paper and a $45 allowance for miscellaneous. Added to these expenses are the costs of a dance, dresses for the May Court, flowers, construction in the Dell, and programs. We are paying in toto over $800 for these things when the same amount of money would amply pay a person's expenses for a year here.

The point is this: Is May Day worth the money that is being spent on it? Is this how we want our money to be spent? If negative responses to both of these questions are in the majority, one must ask why the tradition is being perpetrated? Is the perpetrator the ignorance of the Longwood student body? That is, are we, because, we do not care how our money is being spent, giving an affirmative vote to a tradition of which we do not approve? Or, on the other hand, if May Day is a tradition cherished by the majority of the students, is it really worth $800 dollars?

What's Wrong?

What's wrong with May Day? It's expensive. It's amateurish. It's time consuming. After the May Queen and her court have been selected, the student body grows apathetic toward the idea of dancing in the dell. In fact, the apathy is so widely spread, that dancing in May Day has become an integral part of more than one Physical Education 112 class.

By what process can the tradition of May Day be fitted into a modern context? Two problems require solution: how to make May Day look less like Ted Mack's Amateur Hour and how to destroy the expense and apathy without destroying the tradition.

There is no reason to discard the traditional May Court. The presentation of the court is the most popular and least harmful part of the May Day festivities. Showing off beauty at Longwood is justifiable.

But can the time, effort, and money that go into the accompanying program be justified? Not when students show disdain for the program by their lack of willingness to participate. Not when the net result is as unpolished as May Day tends to be.

There is a worthwhile substitution for the traditional May Day program. Because Longwood has a multitude of activities, there are certain organizations on campus that are well-qualified by virtue of their talented members to perform in a May Day program. The Longwood Chorus and Orchestra come immediately to mind. Each of these organizations has scheduled meeting times and practices. If each were to prepare a brief concert for the afternoon of May Day, the entire program would take on a new character. With no or little expense, the Chorus could present an open-air dance concert. In time, other groups might find it valuable to participate in the festivities.

No extra practices would be required. No great expense would be involved. These organizations have an inherent professional quality that cannot be achieved by last-minute preparations. The tradition of May Day would be preserved, but it would also be improved upon.

—Staff—

The Rotunda

ESTABLISHED NOVEMBER 10, 1920

Published each week during the college year except during holidays and examination period by the students of Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia.

Donna M. Humphreys	Editor-in-Chief
Divine Grant	Managing Editor
Pat Wallace	Business Manager
Sandra Jamison	Feature Editor
Nancy Mowrey	Sports Editor
Betsy Taylor	Book Editor
Linda Paris	Art Editor
Ann Peters	Photography
Dottie Marshall	Circulation Manager
	Advertising Manager

REPORTING STAFF: Barbara Agee, Theresa Albright, Leslie Aldridge, Suzanne Ballard, Paula Blackstone, Margaret Coles, Leo Criss, Don DeDiedrich, Jane Elder, Beverly Gode, Jodi Harkins, Judy Ivy, Sandra Jamison, Janet Leay, Susan Lane, Mary Anne Lipford, Joan Lord, Denise Mann, Charlotte McClung, Guyana Phillips, Barbara Poland, Karen Reed, Barbara Shigfild, Doris Smith, Lois Sullivan, Betsy Taylor, Allison Tuggle, Barbara Turner, Linda Turner, Pat Walker, Dee Watkins, Annette Wanger.

CIRCULATION STAFF: Suzanne Brist, Sandra Freedman, Cindy Gray, Cheryl Howe, Jackie Lash, Cabell Montgomery, Betty Lee Neal, Mary Lee Plunkett, Joyce Powell, Eleanor Richardson, Marion Russ, Gay Stump.

ADVERTISING STAFF: Mary Bradford, Diane Deth, Betty P. Galen, Jodi Harkins, Dottie Marshall, Sandra Parker, Faye Stone, Diane Woolley.

PHOTOGRAPHY STAFF: Mary Evelyn Compton, Gray Garkett, Dottie Marshall, Nancy Robinson.

BUSINESS STAFF: Leslie Aldridge, Olivia Gibson, Helen Woods.

(Unauthorized editorial written by the editor)

Member: Virginia Intercollegiate Press (Rating First Class), Columbia Scholarship Press Association (Rating First Place), National College Press Service.

Entered as second class matter at the Post Office at Farmville, Virginia under the Act of Congress on March 3, 1911. Registered for national advertising by the National Advertising Service. Printed by the Farmville Herald.

LITTLE MAN CAMPUS

SOMETIMES I DREAD THESE LITTLE 'DEMONSTRATION' SPEECHES.

Ski Slope, Tow Rope Capture LC Fancy

By Karen Ruder

It looks like skiing's the latest craze at Longwood. Mrs. Harris, Joanne White, Annice Bailey, Donna Franzen and others have become skiing enthusiasts.

Lately they have all been going to Davis, West Virginia, for the week ends. Davis used to be a mining and lumbering town with a population of seven hundred people. Although it is small, it has a lot of local charm and color. The ski lodge, Weiss Knob, which is right outside of town, is owned by Bob and Anita Barton of Richmond. There are three slopes — beginners, intermediate and advanced. The cost (about $15) includes two full days of skiing and two nights at the hotel.

According to Donna and Joanne, when you go up there, you can't help but have fun. Both of them have had several "experiences." Donna tells of a navy captain, a submariner, who was there one day. It is customary on the slopes to yell "truck right or truck left" when you are coming down behind people. It seems that the captain would come roaring down the slopes yelling "aoooa" which is submarine jargon for "dive."

Donna and Joanne both have heard many times, people on the beginner slope come tearing down yelling, "Where are the brakes on these things?" as they slide down the rest of the slope on their backs or stomachs.

Right now, Donna is recovering from a dislocated shoulder. She says that there are tow ropes to take a person to the top of the ski slope. One day, she grabbed on to the tow rope only to find that she had grabbed the wrong side, and ended up smashing into a pulley.

Joanne galls the story of the terrific German ski instructor up there. He teaches how to ski in six easy words: "Bend your knees, five dollars, please."

Donna and Joanne say this to beginners: "Get good instruction; right now it may sound dumb, but you'll never regret it. Rent skis with safety binders on them — these are straps which will release your foot from the ski before you can break your leg. One other thing — get out there and have fun!"

Elliott Joins Faculty As Education Professor

Mr. George Elliott joined the Longwood Education Department last June.

Mr. Elliott was born "only fifteen miles away," in Burkeville, where he attended elementary and high school.

He went to Randolph-Macon College for three years, but then came to Longwood, where he received his B. S. degree. He continued in graduate work to also obtain his M. A. degree.

Mr. Elliott spent three years in the United States Air Force. He was stationed in Florida and he said, "lived on the beach." His first teaching position was in Fairfax County. He later taught in Hampton and in Henrico. Before coming to Longwood, Mr. Elliott was Supervisor of Schools in Cumberland County, Next summer, he plans to attend the University of Miami to begin work on his Ph.D.

In his spare time, he enjoys refinishing furniture or making block prints, especially wood blocks. Calling himself a "Sunday painter," Mr. Elliott explains that he occasionally "dabbles" in oils.

He is a member of the National Education Association, the Virginia Education Association, and the Longwood Education Association.

Mr. Elliott is a member of the Longwood Education Association, the Virginia Education Association, and the Longwood Education Association.

MR. GEORGE ELLIOTT

Screening Board Lists Nominees, Qualifications For Minor Offices

The Minor Screening Board, composed of the newly-elected presidents of the five major organizations, the outgoing presidents of these organizations, and the chairman of Major-Minor Elections, met last week in order to nominate candidates for all minor offices for each major organization.

Lists of recommendations from each organization plus suggestions from members of the student body were brought before the Screening Board for consideration. There is no primary for minor elections; therefore final elections for all minor elections will be held tomorrow.

Each candidate was considered by the criteria used in major elections. The qualifications include: poise, tolerance, cooperation with the student body, the faculty, and the administration, character, a C average. Other qualifications are leadership experience, ability to accept responsibility, the ability to impartially judge. Also, some offices have special qualifications. Listed below are the nominations of candidates for each office with any special job of which that officer may be in charge.

Government

The vice-president of the Legislative Board of Student Government is in charge of the orientation of the freshmen. Candidates for the office are Dana Brewer, a junior history and Spanish major from Alexandria, and Evelyn Gray, an elementary education major from Portsmouth.

The candidates for secretary of Student Government are Bonnie Haney, a sophomore biology and math major from Timonium, Maryland; and Kathy Dodge, a sophomore elementary education major from Chesler.

Betty Shepard and Millie Woodward are the candidates for treasurer of Student Government. Betty is a sophomore elementary education major from Norfolk. Millie is a sophomore biology major from Richmond. The candidates for vice-chairman of the Judicial Board are Charlotte McClung, a junior Spanish and English major from Farmville; and Betty Jean Russell, a junior English major from Portsmouth, Virginia.

House Council

The vice-president of House Council is the hostess in the dining hall. Candidates for this office are Ann Fentress, a junior English major from Knotts Island, North Carolina; and Martha Garrett, a junior major from Lynnhaven.

Martha Garrett and Ted Sykes are candidates for secretary of House Council. Martha is a sophomore English major from Norfolk. Ted is a sophomore biology major from Norfolk.

The candidates for treasurer of House Council are Mary Jane Brillingham and Wanda Old. Mary Jane is a sophomore elementary major from Portsmouth. Wanda is a sophomore biology major from Roanoke.

The vice-president of the Athletic Association is in charge of the A. A. demonstrations in the fall. Candidates for this office are Norma Eady and Peggy Waldo. Norma is a junior elementary education major from Halifax County. Peggy is a junior physical education major from Chesapeake.

Sarah Jane Lynch and Anne Stead are candidates for the office of secretary of the A. A. Sarah Jane is a sophomore physical education major from Portsmouth. Anne is a sophomore economics major from Danville.

Melody Saunders and Carrie Lee Wilson are candidates for treasurer of A. A. Melody is a sophomore French major from Danville. Carrie Lee is a sophomore physical education and English major from Danville.

YWCA

The vice president of the YWCA is in charge Religious Emphasis Week. Candidates for this office are Mary Iva Cook, a junior math major from South Hill; and Margie Twilley, a junior elementary and Spanish major from Portsmouth.

Sandra Craig and Ann Persak are candidates for secretary of the YWCA. Sandra is a sophomore elementary major from Roanoke. Ann is a sophomore biology major from Verona, New Jersey.

The candidates for treasurer of the YWCA are Susan Beasly and Pauline Ferrer. Susan is a junior math major from Annandale. Pauline is a sophomore history and English major from Concord.

The Freshman Counselor is the advisor to the Freshman Commission. Candidates for this office are Jean White and Fran Lipford. Jean is a freshman art and elementary major from the Eastern Shore. Fran is a freshman Spanish major from Bassett.

Around The Campi

Did you know that professors are very sensitive to the way papers are folded?—Horizontally or vertically. It must be one or the other.

Have you heard about the latest T.V. program? "Leave It to Longwood."

The sun worshippers have begun their yearly migration to the roof.

Toujours Chi!

About the pulled ligaments while learning to do the "Bird".

About the dollar tree on Joan's sit-up-on.

Heard about the new sophomore dolls? Wind them up and they do something new.

Supply the right tune:

"Down with all this goo-oo . . ."

"Got the rep girls, got the pep girls . . ."

"And while we're at it we're proud to say . . ."

"We're not rats anymore . . ."

Have you heard about the girl who doesn't understand "Campi"? We thought she should be mentioned.

Seen the kites flying around?

Thought for the week: Forward with great vigor.

Don't know which class takes out the most books, but a junior has set a new fine record — $10.74.

AA Sets Up Schedule For Sports Competition

The general class volleyball and basketball practices ended Friday, March 8. Eight practices are necessary for all players who participate.

Everyone is urged to come to the intramural games to support her class team.

Players are cautioned to notice in which gymnasium their games are scheduled.

The class basketball games are to take place as follows:

Wednesday, March 13

4 p.m. Freshmen v. Seniors — Volleyball, NG

4:30 p.m. Sophomores v. Seniors — Volleyball, NG

Thursday, March 14

4 p.m. Freshmen v. Seniors — Basketball, SBG

7 p.m. Sophomores v. Seniors — Basketball, SBG

Monday, March 18

4 p.m. Sophomores v. Juniors — Volleyball, NG

7 p.m. Freshmen v. Seniors — Basketball, SBG

Tuesday, March 19

4 p.m. Sophomores v. Juniors — Basketball, SBG

Sophs Sponsor Art Competition Among Students

The Sophomore Class is sponsoring an Art Appreciation Contest to discover the hidden talents of Longwood students.

The Sophomores will award first, second, and third place ribbons in three categories. These categories are water colors, oil paintings, and drawings. Drawings may include cartoons, and may be done in ink or charcoal. All entries must be the original work of the student who enters them.

Entries should be turned in to Betty Wright at Tab 24 by March 16. Members of the faculty will be the judges and their decisions will be announced March 20.

Wygall Attends Annual Meeting Held At Roanoke

President Fred O. Wygall left Monday, March 11, for Roanoke where he is attending the Annual Conference of Division Superintendents. The meeting will extend through Wednesday, March 13.

This conference gives division school superintendents an opportunity to discuss professional problems. Colleges in the state are invited to send representatives to become acquainted with the problems of superintendents. In this way they will know better how to train teachers for the state's public schools.

— Basketball, SBG

7 p.m. Freshmen v. Seniors — Volleyball, SBG

Wednesday, March 20

4 p.m. Freshmen v. Sophomores — Basketball, SBG

7 p.m. Juniors v. Seniors — Basketball, SBG

Thursday, March 21

4 p.m. Freshmen v. Sophomores — Volleyball, SBG

4:30 p.m. Juniors v. Seniors — Volleyball, SBG

Nine Take Bids As Apprentices In Dance Group

Nine girls have accepted bids to become apprentices of Orchestris for the year 1963. Orchestris is the modern dance group on campus that encourages interest in dance.

Accepting a bid is Junior Diana Deik. Sophomores Ann Evans, Becky Evans, Betty Hockett, Jean Leary, and Jackie Walker have also accepted Carolyn Cline, Helena Hall, and Caryl Hogg are the freshman apprentices.

These girls must participate in two dance activities during the year to fulfill their obligation for initiation.

The club is now preparing for the annual Spring Dance Concert that includes dances from Orchestris, and the physical education classes 232 and 321.

Major Officers Pursue Variety Of Activities

(Continued from page 1)

Ann held membership in the Tri-Hi-Y, Girl Scouts, and Future Teachers of America Club. She also was on the staff of both her school newspaper and magazine and was President of the Senior High fellowship of her church.

Since coming to Longwood, Betty Ann has been very active in school activities as well as a consistent Dean's List student. During her freshman year she was elected class president for the second semester, chosen as Co-Chairman of freshman production, and wrote the words and music to our "Joan of Arc" song.

Since her freshman year, she has both helped with the music in Circus and May Day and been active in the activities of the YWCA. Betty Ann was Freshman Counselor of the Y last year and is very active in the work of her own Westminster Fellowship.

Other memberships here include Sigma Alpha Iota, Alpha Sigma Alpha, Alpha Kappa Gamma, and the Granddaughter's Club.

In the field of music, Betty

MAKE THAT SHOT!

Longwood shoots for basket during recent basketball game with M.C.V. last Thursday night.

Score was 98-11 in favor of Longwood.

I Love A Parade' Theme Of Show Of New Fashions

"I Love A Parade" will be the theme for the 1963 fashion show presented by the home economics majors. It will take place on Tuesday, March 19 at 7:00 in Jarman.

The girls will model clothes that they have made in their home economics classes. All of the girls who are majoring in home economics will take part either by modeling, working backstage, or ushering. The narrators will be Linda Givens and Anne Gordon.

Jean Cox is program chairman. The committee heads are as follows: stage, Barbara Ramsey; script, Jean Steele; social, B. J. Turner; clothing, Shirley Wilson; program and invitations, Sally Gill. The group is sponsored by Miss Laura Bernard.

Everyone is invited to the fashion show and a reception will follow in the home economics building by invitation only.

Ann is in Madrigals and plays the organ and harpsichord as well as the piano. She presented a solo piano recital her freshman year and is planning to do so again this coming May.

Taylor Holds Double Major. Gay is a health and physical education major and a biology minor from Greina.

A graduate of Greina High School, Gay was president of the Monogram Club, her freshman class, and her sophomore class. She played varsity basketball, was a member of the Ole Club, Beta Club, and Student Council and was selected as a May Court representative her sophomore year. Her senior year, Gay was chosen as Homecoming Maid of Honor.

At Longwood, Gay has played varsity basketball her freshman and sophomore years and varsity hockey her sophomore and junior years. She was varsity hockey manager during her sophomore year. Gay has participated in class archery, hockey, volleyball, and softball. She was secretary of Orchestris her sophomore year.

Before being elected as President of the A. A., Gay was its secretary. Asked how she felt about the election she said "At first I was quite shocked. Then, after realizing my new position, I was very honored." After graduation, Gay plans to teach in high school.

Visit The COLLEGE BOOKSTORE And See Our New Shipment of Paperback!

Southeast Faculties Prove Lowest Paid

The states of the Southeast pay the lowest salaries in the nation to professors and instructors on their college faculties. Four years ago this was true, too, but today the Southern salaries lag farther behind the rest of the nation than they did four years ago.

These facts, and some more about the toll they take of higher education in the South, are included in the Southern Regional Education Board's publication, Financing Higher Education, Issue No. 12.

Four years ago, the South paid its instructors an average of $394 less than the national average. Today they are paid some $619 less than the national average. Full professors in the South earned an average of $1,122 less than the average four years ago — today they earn some $1,320 less.

The gaps between faculty salaries grow larger in spite of the fact that salary levels in the South have increased 19 per cent for instructors and 26 per cent for full professors during the four years. The SREB reports: Such improvement is behind that made in other parts of the nation where instructors' salaries increased 22 per cent and professors increased 27 per cent.

These budget facts cheat the South of many potentially good teachers for its colleges and universities in two ways, the SREB said.

First, because young people in the South will be attracted to other professions which offer better salaries, and second, because those who do want to teach in spite of everything will want to teach in other parts of the country where the salaries are better.

A study by Dr. John W. Gustad made while he was at the University of Maryland shows that many college teachers who leave the profession give low salaries as the primary reason for their change. The study showed that other jobs attract them at better salaries than the colleges pay. For instance, the starting salary for jobs requiring a Ph.D. is $8,500 to $10,000 in industry — it is $5,000 to $7,000 at large colleges and universities.

"Most current surveys have shown that salary is important in the recruitment and retention of adequate faculty staff," said Dr. E. F. Schenckner of the SREB research staff. "The South's failure to provide good salaries and sufficient opportunity for advancement in salary at the university is costing its schools which are badly needed at this time."

Cuban Speaks

Cuban refugee Oswaldo Lamar spoke on "The United States and Castro's Cuba" at Longwood last night.

Mr. Lamar's visit was sponsored by the Nathaniel Macon Society.

Tempest Winners...Lap 2!

Did you win in Lap 3?

IMPORTANT! If you hold any of the 15 winning numbers, claim your Pontiac Tempest LeMans convertible in accordance with the rules on the reverse of your license plate.

All claims for Tempests and Consolation Prizes must be made by registered mail, postmarked by March 15, 1963 and received by the judges on or before March 20, 1963.

If you hold a Consolation Prize number, you win a 4-speed Portable Hi-Fi Stereo Set, "The Waltz" by RCA Victor. Or, you may still win a Tempest! (See official claiming rules on reverse of your license plate, and observe claiming dates given above.)

L&M GRAND PRIX 50

Sweepstakes for colleges only

More than 50 times the chance to win than if open to the general public.

20 Tempests to go!

Get set for the last lap... 20 more Tempests and 25 more Consolation Prizes! Of course, entries you've already submitted are still in the running—but enter again and improve your odds! And, if you haven't entered yet, NOW'S THE TIME! All entries received before March 29th will be eligible to win one of the 20 Tempests to be awarded in Lap 4! So pick up an entry blank where you buy your cigarettes... today!

Get with the winners... far ahead in smoking satisfaction!

SEE THE PONTIAC TEMPEST AT YOUR NEAREST PONTIAC DEALER!

LAP 3... 15 WINNING NUMBERS! 30 CONSOLATION PRIZES TOTAL!

- |           |            |            |
|-----------|------------|------------|
| 1 A468272 | 6 B304990  | 11 C426799 |
| 2 C356866 | 7 A622200  | 12 A441627 |
| 3 A062375 | 8 A000831  | 13 C741845 |
| 4 C628490 | 9 C050080  | 14 B443348 |
| 5 B797116 | 10 B711674 | 15 B597516 |

- CONSOLATION PRIZE NUMBERS!
- |           |            |            |            |
|-----------|------------|------------|------------|
| 1 B680126 | 6 B071111  | 11 D016331 | 16 C078858 |
| 2 C356481 | 7 C478623  | 12 B764908 | 17 A673087 |
| 3 C660864 | 8 C686698  | 13 A514488 | 18 B315344 |
| 4 A780891 | 9 B763700  | 14 H176098 | 19 B476043 |
| 5 A537928 | 10 B486825 | 15 B486004 | 20 C031599 |

DANCE ANYONE?

While checking on backstage scenery for upcoming Spring play, Ann Coleman and Barbara Gray Martin get in some dancing.

RMWC Holds Program On American Image

FOCUS, a student symposium, was held at Randolph-Macon Woman's College in Lynchburg on March 8, 9, 10. The theme of the symposium was "The Image of America at Home and Abroad."

Colleges and universities in the East and South sent representatives to make up the student participants. The Student Government Association was in charge of sending representatives from Longwood. Sophomore Jean Leary represented the Longwood Forum, sophomore Nancy Mowrey, and junior Jo-Anne Cartwright went as delegates of the Student Government Association.

There were five areas of the symposium: The Creative Image; The Image at Home; The Image Abroad; The Image Through Music; and The Religious Image.

An exhibit entitled "The American Image Through Painting" illustrated throughout the weekend the Creative Image. Speakers on Friday and Saturday presented the Image at Home. Among the speakers were William Proxmire, U. S. Senator from Wisconsin, who spoke on "The Image of Government;" Russell Kirk, author of "The Conservative Mind," who spoke on "The Public Image," and Charles Woodruff Yost, U. S. Deputy Permanent Representative to the United Nations, who spoke on the "Importance of the Image of America in the United Nations."

The Image Abroad was presented on Saturday through a panel discussion consisting of visiting professors. Lisa Sergio, a recent guest speaker at Longwood, was the moderator of the panel. The panel discussion was entitled "Communication of the Image Abroad." Several of the professors on the panel were L'Appolone, de Belia, of the University of Glasgow in Scotland, Rafael Oliver-Bertrand of the University of the South in Argentina, and Antoni Prejzisz and Statistics at Warsaw, Poland.

A concert by Charlie Byrd and his Trio on Saturday evening portrayed the Image Through Music. Also James Symington, Administrative Assistant to the Attorney General, was there in the afternoon. Mr. Symington, son of Stuart Symington, attended Yale University and received his law degree from Columbia University. During his years at Columbia he entertained with his folk-songs in a Manhattan night club.

The symposium was concluded on Sunday morning. Dr. Thomas Gowan, Professor of History at New York University, spoke on "The Religious Image."

YOU DON'T MEAN IT!

Acting out their respective parts in the French Club Play, "L'Appolone, de Belia," Nicole Charron (right) portrays the naive young secretary applying for a job under the supervision of Diana Belk, one of the firm's Businessmen.

LC Student Reviews College Focus Weekend

By NANCY MOWREY

FOCUS was an efficiently planned and smoothly executed weekend. The speakers, the format of the total weekend program, the accommodations, and the company made the week end profitable and enjoyable.

Clem D. Johnson, past president of the Chamber of Commerce of the U. S., gave the "Image of Business." He spoke well, but said little to add to our understanding of the business image. The most interesting thing he said was the following: the average life of a small business is 5.5 years, and due to automation it is necessary to retrain a laborer on the average of every five years.

Carry Speaks

James Carey, president of International Union of Electrical Radio and Machine Workers, AFL-CIO, was a complete contrast to Mr. Johnson. He said there was no free competition or free enterprise. Mr. Carey's stated purpose was to be provocative — he was! He defined a radical as a person who gets down to the root of a problem. Senator William Proxmire said that the problem today is one of education. He said we arm ourselves so that we can negotiate with the enemy. Proxmire said we must have tolerance, love and understanding for the peoples of the world. In answer to a question of how to resolve our arming with nuclear weapons and loving our brothers of the world, he answered, "We must."

The next morning Dr. Russell Kirk spoke. He charged the communications media of pseudo-event making solely to interest the public. He pictured the American image as reflected by television. Dr. Kirk presented a view of educational television as unreal, pseudo-educational, and replacing the teacher. In discussion periods I asked him questions which led to a most interesting discussion based on an obvious difference of opinions. Dr. Kirk pictured all education as psychologists and sociologists as mediocre scholars which seemed to me a glittering generality.

Discrimination Deplored

Next Pedro A. Sanjuan, director of special protocol of the State Department, said that our war is for human dignity; we must eliminate discrimination because of race and religion.

Charles W. Yost said that it is important to maintain our image consistent with our ideals and goals. He said we must present the image of a Christian, democratic, humanitarian nation by the elimination of discrimination.

Dr. MacBain of Scotland discussed the economic aspects of America's image in relation to Europe. Antoni Prejzisz discussed the American image as presented through literature. The "big four" novelists in Poland are Hemingway, Faulkner, Caldwell, and Steinbeck.

Rafael Oliver-Bertrand spoke of South Americans' image of the U. S. Chandra Sharma, an Indian, gave the Indian view of America which he reported as being quite favorable. Miss Sergio pointed out that the ideas expressed by these scholars would not represent total or even average views of their countries.

The panel discussion was one of the highlights of the week end. The names were not glittering, but neither were the value generalities. The best part of the week end was the individual discussion periods Saturday afternoon. The speakers were in separate rooms where we could go and discuss and ask questions of them. There were excellent exchanges between the students and scholars. Subjects ranged from English labor unions to stimulated student discussions—dinner conversations included integration, English education and American systems, and a Christianity.

Symington Sings

Saturday evening James Symington sang some of his own creations, some of which sounded vaguely like commercials: "A child can grow in a far off land" because of Food for Peace, and "Alliance parlez Progress."

Paul Clayton gave a lecture-concert. He demonstrated the dulcimer, a model instrument of American origin which was originally used to accompany folk songs.

Charlie Byrd and his Trio put the perfect finish to the day's formal program. Later we went to another building for refreshments. Clayton did some impromptu singing for a smaller group of us.

Sunday morning a student devotion began the program and Thomas Gowan spoke on the "Image of Religion." The week end was adjourned by Patay Derby, the Chairman of FOCUS.

Spring Vacation

Dr. C. G. Gordon Moss has announced that Spring Vacation will begin Saturday, March 23. Classes will be resumed at 8 p. m. April 1.

Ortner Speaks On Courtship March 15

The entire student body is invited to attend Union Vespers on March 17, at the Methodist Church. Supper will be served at 6:15 and students are asked to sign up by Friday, March 15, on the church bulletin board. The program, planned by the Methodist and Baptist students, will begin at 7:00.

The Rev. Donald Ortner will be guest speaker and his topic is "Love, Courtship and Marriage." Rev. Ortner, pastor of St. Johns Lutheran Church, is co-director of the guidance center at Hampden-Sydney where he is also professor of psychology. He has recently been appointed Dean of Students at Hampden-Sydney and works with the Lutheran groups at Longwood and Hampden-Sydney.

It is hoped that many students will plan to attend Union Vespers and sign up for supper by Friday. There is no charge for the meal.

School Adds New Speakers To Jarman Hall

Approximately 500 dollars worth of new sound equipment is now being installed in Jarman Auditorium.

Included in this equipment are two electro-voice speakers, located in the top outer corners of the stage. Each unit contains twelve speakers and is wired to three speakers located under the balcony.

These speakers are controlled by a 100 watt amplifier and a pre-amplifier operated in the projection room. By being able to operate the amplifiers from the projection room, the controller is better able to control volume levels. Previous sound equipment was built to be operated from backstage.

The pre-amplifier is wired to the radio studio in the basement of West Wing for recording and broadcasting purposes.

With the use of the new equipment, four microphones may be operated on stage at one time. Only two microphones will be used this year, and two more will be added next year. Also purchased are two new lavaliere (neck-type) microphones to be used for group discussions and similar purposes.

This new equipment will allow for the installation of out-door speakers for overflow crowds in the future.

PURE GENIUS

Preparing to test solution. Linda Hatch works in new biochemistry laboratory. The course is offered for first time this semester under Dr. Wells.

Science Department Adds Biochemistry

Biochemistry is the newest course in the science department. The field is very dynamic because of research.

The course is taught second semester with two lecture periods and two laboratories per week. The system of labs is worked partially on an independent study basis. A scheduled lab meets once a week to begin work on a problem; the student finishes her work independently. One lecture a week is devoted to discussion of the results of a problem.

Dr. Wells is teaching the biochemistry course. She describes it as a research course. She gives the class a problem and suggests possible ways of solving it. Dr. Wells says the course involves individual research and experiment, she does not know what the results will be.

An example of an associated problem is how to detect the presence of both fructose and glucose (two kinds of sugar) in a mixture. It is necessary to learn how to separate them from a mixture. The sugars are closely related and give the same reaction to many tests. Dr. Wells says the solution to this problem will probably be discovered soon. The course is using a new laboratory built within the last few months. A room used for storage was transformed into an efficient chemistry lab in quite a short time.

The equipment in the lab includes a refrigerator and a freezer. There is also a refrigerated centrifuge used for separating the heavy materials and lighter ones rise to the top. The centrifuge has a maximum speed of 4000 revolutions per minute. These cooling devices are to prevent deterioration of living matter.

Other equipment is the spectrophotometer, identification based on light absorption, and the magnetic stirrer used to automatically stir something until it is dissolved. Thin layer chromatography is used by the students to separate and identify the components of a mixture. The lab is also used in cell physiology. Presently seven students are taking the course. There are prerequisites of the last year of biology and chemistry. Eventually organic chemistry will be required. Brenda Isbell is the lab assistant for the course.

THE
COLLEGE SHOPPE
Completely Redone
For Your Comfort & Satisfaction
Come And See Us!

SOUTHSIDE SUNDRY

Get 10% Off
On Cosmetics
With This COUPON!
March 14, 15, & 16

English Leather

Give Now To... RADIO FREE EUROPE

The American People's Counter Voice to Communism
Mail your contribution to:
Radio Free Europe Fund
P.O. Box 1961, New York 18, New York
Published as a public service in cooperation with The Advertising
Council and the Newspaper Advertising Revenue Association.

AD MAT NO. RFE4-61—100 LINES

NEWMAN'S
MEN'S SHOP
Traditional Styles
See Our
Ladies' Sportswear

Owen-Sanford
Drug Co.
"In The Farmville
Shopping Center"
Phone EX 2-3167
FARMVILLE, VA.

Judith Anderson To Perform In Jarman For Thursday Lyceum

THE ROTUNDA

VOL. VII

Longwood College, Farmville, Va., March 20, 1963

No. 16

Student Body Elects New Minor Officers

Minor officers for House Council, Y.W.C.A., the Athletic Association, and Student Government have been elected by the student body. These officers will assume their respective duties in April.

Evelyn Gray, an elementary education major from Portsmouth, will serve as vice-president of the Legislative Board of Student Government. As vice-president, she will be in charge of the freshmen orientation week.

Dodge To Serve

Kathy Dodge, a sophomore elementary education major from Chester, was selected for secretary of the Legislative Board. Milly Woodward, a sophomore biology major from Richmond, will serve with her as treasurer.

The vice-chairman of the Judicial Board is Betty Jean Russell, a junior English major from Portsmouth, Virginia. Ann Pentress, a junior English major from Knotts Island, N. C. will serve as vice-president of House Council. In this capacity, her chief duty is to serve as hostess in the dining hall.

Martha Garrett was selected secretary of House Council. She is a sophomore English major from Richmond. Mary Jane Brittingham will serve as treasurer of the Council. From Portsmouth, Mary Jane is a sophomore elementary major.

The newly-elected vice-president of the Athletic Association is Peggy Waldo. Peggy is a junior physical education major from Chesapeake. Sarah Jane Lynch will serve as secretary of the A. A. She is a sophomore physical education major from Portsmouth. Melody Saunders, a sophomore French major from Danville, was elected as treasurer.

Twilley Heads R.E.W.

Margie Twilley is the newly-elected vice-president of the Y.W.C.A. A junior elementary and Spanish major from Portsmouth, she will be in charge of Religious Emphasis Week. Sandra Craig, a sophomore elementary major from Portsmouth, will serve with her as treasurer.

(Continued on Page 3)

JUDITH ANDERSON

Actress To Portray Two Dramatic Roles

By Dee Watkins

Dame Judith Anderson, frequently hailed by critics as "our greatest living actress," will appear at Longwood College in Jarman Auditorium on March 21, at 7:30 p. m. She will star in a double bill that includes her famous characterization of Lady Macbeth, and in "Medea 62," a streamlined version of the Jeffers-Euripides classic of blood and vengeance.

Beorc Eh Thorn, Pi Delta Epsilon Sponsor Williams

Longwood College will be host to Mr. Oscar Williams April 10 and 11. A poet and anthropologist, Mr. Williams will visit Longwood under the dual sponsorship of the English society, Beorc Eh Thorn, and the Journalism fraternity, Pi Delta Epsilon.

Mr. Williams has written four books of poetry. He serves as the general editor of the "Little Treasury Series," and has published a Little Treasury of Modern Poetry. This book, along with his two other anthologies in this series: Immortal Poems of the English Language and The New Pocket Anthology of American Verses are now accepted as modern classics in their fields. They are used widely in many colleges and universities.

Mr. Williams participated in the Festival of Poets at the Library of Congress in October, 1962. While at Longwood he will lecture the afternoon of April 10 and on the 11th he will read some of his poetry.

The two roles are generally regarded as the high points of the celebrated Anderson career. They have brought her two television Emmys as the outstanding dramatic actress of the year, and half a dozen other national awards for distinguished performance. Her relentless characterization as the murderous Medea caused critic Brooks Atkinson to hail her as an actress who "breathed immortal fire into the role."

Although born in Australia, Judith Anderson is one of the foremost ornaments of the American stage. She first came to public attention in COBRA, after an arduous apprenticeship. From then on the list takes on an historical quality, as hit after hit came along: STRANGE INTERLUDE, AS YOU DESIRE ME, MOURNING BECOMES ELECTRA, COME OF AGE, and THE OLD MAID.

Appears in 'Hamlet'

She made her first appearance as a classical actress in Hamlet, playing the Queen to Sir John Gielgud's Hamlet, and followed that, the next season, with her initial venture into the role of Lady Macbeth, which she recreated in six separate and highly successful productions the first at the famed Old Vic in London, opposite Laurence Olivier. She scored a stupendous personal success as Mary, the mother of Jesus in Family Portrait, and gave her first performance in a play that had long been close to her heart—Robinson Jeffers' Tower Beyond Trade. Then came her first New York appearance in Macbeth, opposite Maurice Evans, and the Katharine Cornell all-star production of the Three Sisters.

This extraordinary career had, however, not reached its height. There was still to come her shattering performance in the title role of Medea. Dame Judith has most often been compared, and to Berlin, for a similar international season. The theatre formerly reared by the great Sara Bernhard, to whom Dame Judith has most often been compared, and to Berlin, for a similar international season.

Scores in Movies

Although most of her work has been done on stage, Dame Judith's largest audiences have been reached via films and TV. Her first movie role, the part of the eerie housekeeper in the Award winning Rebecca, established a permanent demand for her in Hollywood. The part of "Big Mama" in the Tennessee Williams Cat on a Hot Tin Roof was her most recent role. She feels that she had the most fun with Jerry Lewis in Cinderella, a highly improbable assignment for an actress who won British knighthood by her classic talents.

Miss Anderson considers her knighthood by Queen Elizabeth II as a Dame Commander of the British Empire in 1960 to be the most exciting highlight of her career. Quite naturally she treasures this of her (Continued on page 3)

LC Graduate Presents Founder's Day Address

Founder's Day was highlighted by the address given in Jarman Auditorium by Mrs. Virginia Potts Redhead on "Living up to Our Legacies." Mrs. Redhead, who graduated in the class of 1927, composed the music for the alma mater.

The speaker, the former Mary Virginia Potts, majored in music here at State Teachers College. She was active in organizations such as Alpha Delta Rho, Pi Gamma Mu, Sigma Sigma Sigma, and the Pan-Hellenic Council. She was also a member of the Dramatics Club, the Student Council, Student Senate, Student Standards Committee, the Argus Literary Society, the Choral Club, and the Glee Club.

Mrs. Redhead said that there are three words that sum up the legacies to which they must live—courage, commitment, and character. The courage was shown by Joan of Arc and General Johnston, both of whom had to live during times of crisis. She said that these times are difficult and to live courageously is to follow their examples.

Commitment to the new ideas of education and an adherence to the old principles was urged by the speaker. She described the college of the future as having more serious students, new

NEWLY ELECTED

Front row, Fran Lipford and Susan Boatwright. Back row, Sandra Craig, Margie Twilley, Peggy Waldo, Sarah Jane Lynch, and Melody Saunders.

Front row, Martha Garrett, Mary Jane Brittingham, and Kathy Dodge. Back row, Ann Pentress, Evelyn Gray, and Milly Woodward.

Averages Show Study Increase For Sororities

"Everyone is working harder and of course, each year Longwood gets a higher caliber of student," stated Miss Ruth Wilson, Dean of Women, last week in regard to the seemingly high sorority averages.

Each year at the Panhellenic banquet a scholastic cup is awarded to the sorority having the highest average. This year there will also be a junior panhellenic cup given to the pledge class with the highest average.

On the 3-point system the sorority averages for the fall semester of 1962 are: Alpha Sigma Alpha, 2.97; Alpha Sigma Tau, 1.95; Phi Mu, 1.83; Alpha Gamma Delta, 1.81; Kappa Delta, 1.76; Zeta Tau Alpha, 1.70; Sigma Sigma Sigma, 1.65; Sigma Kappa, 1.61; Delta Zeta, 1.55. On the 4-point system, the sorority pledge averages are: Zeta Tau Alpha, 2.59; Kappa Delta, 2.55; Alpha Sigma Tau, 2.54; Sigma Kappa, 2.54; Alpha Gamma Delta, 2.49; Phi Mu, 2.49; Sigma Sigma Sigma, 2.40; Delta Zeta, 2.37; Alpha Sigma Alpha, 2.31.

FOUNDER'S DAY

Activity invades the Rotunda during past weekend as Longwood alumnae register for Founder's Day.

teaching mechanics (i.e. teaching machines and television, and new materials.

Character of mind and body was the third "C" Mrs. Redhead spoke about. She spoke of premarital relationships as being not only shameful, but as sinful. She said, "No matter what 'Reports' of any kind say, there is nothing right about this practice. Let's UP the percentages of Purity — or chastity — or whatever you want to call it — and I say this as reverently as anything I have ever said — for God's sake — and for your own — help us to preserve the most beautiful possession ever given a human being."

Moss Promotes Summer Session To Accelerate

Registration for summer school will be held on Wednesday, April 3, from 1:00 to 5:00 in Room 22. Dr. Moss urges all Longwood students to consider attending the summer session in order to accelerate their college by repeating courses for which they did not receive quality points, or to enrich their careers by taking courses which they were unable to take during the regular session.

Recognition Requested

Every society has members who go unrecognized for their necessary—however unglamorous—services. Longwood's society is no exception. Its unrecognized are its dining hall waitresses.

The responsibilities of the dining hall waitresses neither begin nor end with merely serving their assigned tables. Before each meal they must set their tables. During meals they are on hand to get "seconds" on request from the girls sitting at their tables. After meals they must clear the tables.

It is after meals that Longwood students are especially inconsiderate of their waitresses. Not only do we linger at our tables, we "table hop." We are totally unaware of how difficult it is for a waitress to clear a table when there several people standing around it.

Another sign of our lack of consideration is the stacks of dessert dishes that we acquire by rummaging through the dining hall in a search for seconds on a favorite dessert. We forget that if we bring extra dishes to our tables, someone has to carry them back to the dish room. And more often than not, that someone is a waitress.

It must be said that although the waitresses do not expect to be rewarded for responsibilities that they have voluntarily taken, they do expect to receive some consideration. We can wait until we leave the dining hall before joining our friends and conversing with them. Next, we can return any extra dessert dishes that we accumulate to the dish room. By doing these simple things, we can remind the waitresses that we have taken them into consideration.

Need For A Counselor

Editor's Note: The following editorial appeared in the May 2, 1962 edition of the Rotunda. The need for a counselor persists and becomes more acute as the size and calibre of the Longwood student body increases and improves.

The desire for all Longwood "Ladies" to be happy and well-adjusted is quite strong and, therefore, the spiritual and mental well-being of the individual student is often taken for granted. Recent occurrences, however, have proven in a most regrettable manner that there are at least a few girls here at Longwood who are not completely happy and well-adjusted. But is this distress peculiar only to a few, unfortunate individuals; or is it a more common, more prevalent thing.

The typical college student is between the teenage and adulthood and has attained, perhaps for the first time, the right to make her own decisions. Although this decision-making right is usually welcomed it frequently creates problems which are very difficult for the student alone to solve. The topics of religion, sex, and grades seem to cause the most concern among students of all colleges and universities and, of course, among Longwood "Ladies." On many of our campuses there are trained individuals to whom the student may take his or her particular problem. However, here at Longwood the girl who has religious or moral doubts, who is having trouble "adjusting," or need academic advice, will soon find that there is either no one who is properly trained to administer guidance or that the one person she may find to help her is preoccupied with classes or administrative procedure.

This girl may be fortunate in that her problem is not as serious as she thought, that the decision she makes will not have a long range effect on her life, or that she, herself, is capable of eventually solving the problem in an adequate fashion. On the other hand, the girl may, in desperation, act rashly and do permanent damage to herself and to the reputation of Longwood College. Either way the girl will experience lengthy periods of "Depression" and tension which will affect her well-being and that of her friends.

Other colleges and universities have acknowledged the need for professional help for the individual student. The enrollment at Longwood is approximately 1100, and the school is growing. The need for trained assistance increases each time a new student is admitted.

It is past time that the possibility of employing a Student Advisor was investigated. This advisor should be schooled and experienced in either the field of psychiatry, psychology, or sociology, should have no other duty than to be available to any student having need of his service, and should not be obligated to reveal information given in confidence to the Student Government or to the administration except in life or death instances. With this facility, it will be possible to prevent many tragedies, both those affecting Longwood as a whole and those which are personal in nature.

—Sharon Coulter

The Rotunda

ESTABLISHED NOVEMBER 20, 1930

Published each week during the college year except during holidays and examination period by the students of Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia, Inc. U.S.A.

Entered as second class matter at the Post Office at Farmville, Virginia, under the Act of Congress on March 3, 1879. Represented for national advertising by the National Advertising Service. Printed by the Farmville Herald.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

'Survey' Article Brings Response From Student

Dear Editor:

In reference to the "Student Survey" article which appeared in the Rotunda two weeks ago, I would like to comment on the question concerning the weakest department. In one instance, the language department was heading the list and in another it was second choice. The question was to have taken into consideration—material, lack of facilities and presentation. I would like to inform you that taking these qualities into consideration, it is impossible to say that the Longwood language department can be considered this weak, and certainly not the weakest.

Longwood College had one of the first language laboratories in Virginia and still remains among this select group. Not many colleges or universities have natives as professional instructors in their language department, nor do they have French and Spanish informants. According to modern methods the best way to learn a language is to hear the native voice and to learn to speak the language. Once the oral aspect is achieved, reading and writing can be mastered. I support this idea to the utmost, for I myself could speak scarcely a word of a foreign language before coming in contact with native speakers here at Longwood.

I don't think many students realize the opportunities available in the language department here. No other college or university in the country allows its students the privilege of going into a language lab at any time they please in order to practice or make up work. There, you either answer correctly in class or it's just "too bad."

Not many language departments have enough interest in their students to be willing to organize travel groups to study abroad during the summers in France, Spain, Germany, and Mexico. Few people realize that over half of the senior Spanish majors have either studied in or visited Spanish-speaking countries.

If the Longwood language department is to "weak," who do school superintendents prefer? Longwood language majors to teach in their school systems? I think it can be agreed that over half of the senior Spanish majors have either studied in or visited Spanish-speaking countries. I feel that it can be agreed that without the interest and work of Miss Draper and Miss Barkdale, the Longwood language department would have crumbled long ago. Often we fail to realize our debt to them and their effort to achieve and to maintain the top standards in the foreign language field which Longwood College possesses today.

However, language learning is like any other subject—if you

Around The Campi

A Senior finally took her swimming test and passed it—only she spent most of her time trying to float. It seems she kept sinking to the bottom."

Sweet Briar gave an average of $9 to WUS. So?

Know why an elephant has wrinkles in his knees? From playing marbles.

About the mouse that gets all the attention on third floor North.

Congratulations to the winners of the class games!

What professor has a monkey named Ralph?

Heard about the new junior dolls? Wind them up and they fight.++

Remark made by one of the alumnae Saturday night after the sing in the Rotunda, "Just like old times!"

Even if it is the same album every day.

The moon was out, people were asleep, and then the alarm went off in the education building. #

About the freshman who received a matador's ear from Madrid, Spain.

Many human "lobsters" have been seen milling around the campus. @

About the freshmen who volunteered to print the Chi Sign.

Thought for the week: Do the best with what you have, even though it isn't the best.&

HAPPY SPRING VACATION!
* She has now decided to take up skin diving. She figures she's a natural.

+ (Like in games)

@ (Hrmm)

@ Although they do not bite, it is best not to touch them.

& There's always room for improvement though.

Top Rat Meeting Seeks To Improve Old System

The Top Rats of the Class of '66 and the Honors Council met March 12 at 7 p.m. in the seminar room in Stevens Hall. The purpose of the meeting was to discuss the various aspects of rating. Dr. Carolyn Wells moderated the meeting.

She said, "The purpose of this meeting is not to condemn rating. The Honors Council is an organization interested in improving the academic atmosphere on campus. It was decided to hold this meeting to discuss things which seemed to be undesirable in one way or another."

"Bear several things in mind: (1) What is the purpose of rating? (2) How well does the present system of rating meet this purpose? (3) If it doesn't satisfactorily meet the purpose, how could it be altered to better this purpose?"

Discuss Rating
Dr. Wells further revealed that she and Dr. Helms, the advisor of the freshman class, have discussed the problem of rating at length. Both feel that the present program of rating should be modified. More organization, they feel, is needed. Since the general consensus of opinion is that the purpose of rating is to make friends, Dr. Wells and Dr. Helms have suggested that rating have a little less terrorism, a little more friendliness, and at the same time, have the freshmen feel inferior.

Before opening the discussion to the group, Dr. Wells said, "The primary thing I would like you to get done tonight is to reach some decisions and a long press. Ideas take a long, intelligent look at rating. Try to think the problem through. Make this meeting worthwhile. This is to provide an opportunity for discussion."

Although the discussion tended to be repetitive, certain aspects—good and bad—of rating were brought to the fore. Among the Top Rats rating was thought to be good, because it enables freshmen to make friends in their own class and in the sophomore class.

The Top Rats added that rating creates a feeling of a sense of unity and homogeneity among the freshman class. As one student stated, "Some girls come here from large schools where they have been very active and popular. The things that are done to them during rating humiliate snobbish freshmen and makes them united."

Many of the freshmen stated that they had not been scared by the sophomores during rating. One even said in regard to Hell Night, "It was actually a letdown to what was expected."

One student criticizing rating felt that it hindered the establishment of an academic atmosphere. She said that it was just another diversion in a series of diversions during the fall at Longwood. She stated, "May Day is about the only thing we don't have in the fall to interrupt your studying. There are too many activities—Circus, holidays, rating."

Impedes Academics

This same student, a member of the Honor Council, felt that rating has no place in a serious college society. "When I first heard about rating I thought 'here I am back in high school.' My main objection is that many make fools out of themselves to be popular and that it interrupts classes."

Dr. Wells interjected, "Just to give you an idea of how classes are disturbed: I gave a test during rating and the average grade was..."

Hell Night, the climax of rating, was also criticized. Some opposed to rating felt that it gives the sophomore class a sadistic pleasure and makes freshmen look ridiculous. The night of Little Rat Court was also criticized for the same reasons.

Some criticized the costumes that freshmen are ordered to wear. They felt that the costumes took too much time to prepare and that they added to the confusion in the classes that freshmen attend on Rat Day.

After discussing the pro's and con's of rating the group turned to the solution of the problems of rating.

To alleviate the confusion that rating creates in classes the Top Rats suggested that rating be held earlier.

One student said that "A very organized and coordinated plan should be used for all activities at the first of school. This should include everything. Plans that should have been made were not well organized. No time is given for studying."

The point was brought up as to how the rating process could seem more friendly. The freshmen seem to agree that the sophomores could be more friendly in the manner that they ask the freshmen to remember their names. One student pointed out that sophomores should ask and not demand that the freshmen remember their names.

Need Information
There was also felt a need to orient the sophomores in how to rate the sophomores. Some stated that the freshmen should be (Continued on Page 4)

Bids Accepted For Expansion Of Dining Space

With the dormitory expansion, allowing a large increase of students here at Longwood, it has become necessary to provide more dining space. The additional dining area is to be constructed in the Main Rec. It will work on a similar basis as that now used in the balconies. The Acme Equipment Company, Inc., of Richmond was apparent low bidder on the kitchen equipment required for the expansion of the dining hall at $14,680.

The Southside Plumbing Company of Farmville, with a combination bid of $35,375 was apparent low bidder for construction plans for a new show building and the renovation of the Training School.

A Senior Language Major

FORWARD WITH GREAT VIGOR!

Genetics Symposium Converges At MCV

A genetics symposium was held at the Medical College of Virginia in Richmond last week. It was held especially for men and women in the various fields of medicine and medical students.

Those students from Longwood attending the Wednesday night lecture were Judy Owens, Judy

Laing, Whitley Representatives At FBLA Meet

The Longwood Chapter of FBLA elected two delegates to represent them at the state convention in Richmond on April 20.

Kathy Laing will be the representative for Miss Future Business Executive in the state contest. Diane Whitley will run for Miss Future Business Teacher. Diane and Kathy will run against other FBLA representatives from two Virginia colleges.

The two winners from the state convention will go to Texas in the summer to compete in the National FBLA contest.

Spangler, Leeny Lue Steiner, and Milly Woodward, who went to hear. Others who went Thursday were Brenda Isbel, Mary Walecki, Jeanne Clabough, Dr. Drumfield, Dr. Holman, and Dr. Wells.

One of the questions raised was the treatment of certain genetic defects. Dr. H. Bentley Glass, professor of biology at Johns Hopkins University dealt with this subject. He said that methods are being developed for the treatment of inborn defects. The fact that a certain diet, begun in early infancy, can ward off, to a degree, mental retardation was discussed by Dr. David Young Hsia of Northwestern University.

But Dr. Glass said since this was individual treatment, the mental retardation gene can still pass to a greater number of the following generations. This will cause more work for the doctors.

Dr. Glass stated that the only solution is the alteration of deficient genes. Replacement of these bad genes is believed to be possible, but such an action is a long way in the future. The symposium ended Friday.

Volleyball, Basketball Renew Old Competition

Class volleyball and basketball games are well under way. Competition for additional points towards the color cup continues as red and white vies with green and white.

The sister class volleyball games led the traditional rivalry. The first game played by the juniors and freshmen resulted in a tie. However, the second game proved victorious for the juniors. The seniors were forced to forfeit their games to the sophomores.

Class captains for the volleyball teams are Judy Squires and Jane Eddy, freshmen. The sophomore captain is Earlene Lang. The junior and senior teams are captained by Myrtle Thomas and Susan Coe respectively.

In the sister class basketball games the seniors and the juniors defeated the sophomores and freshmen respectively. In a later competition, the senior-freshman game ended in a tie with each receiving one point towards the color cup.

Class basketball captains are Carolyn Cline and Helena Hall, freshmen; sophomores, Betty Wright, Gay Taylor and Lindy Hatch guide the junior and senior teams respectively.

PE Department Adds Equipment To Gymnasium

Three new pieces of equipment have been acquired by the physical education department, a balance, a side horse, and a set of parallel bars. They supplement the tumbling mats, Swedish box, and other equipment already in use for floor exercises.

At present, according to Miss Mary A. Heintz, there is a growing interest in gymnastics. Because of this interest, a greater emphasis has been placed on the teaching of gymnastics in the public schools. With the aid of this new equipment physical education majors will be able to learn new techniques which will help them to become better and more valuable teachers.

The equipment is only being used in physical education 103, basic techniques, a course for physical education majors alone. In the future, however, a general interest is shown, the department will reestablish the gymnastics course, physical education 318.

Club Members To View Plays By Paris Troupe

Members of the French Club are making plans to go to Paris to see the presentation of two French plays. The two plays are L'Apollon De Belais and Orpheus.

L'Apollon De Belais is a comedy in one act by Jean Giraudoux. The play concerns a young girl, Agnes, who learns that the surgeon is to win men to her is to tell them how handsome they are. The play is one of great charm and humor.

Orpheus is a tragedy in one act and an interval by Jean Cocteau of the French Academy. It is the drama of the poet and poetry brought, in modern settings, to the stage. The play shows the poet's role and his relationship to creation and death.

The plays are being presented by a professional theatrical company, Le Troupe de Paris, directed by Jean de Rigault. The company is now on a coast-to-coast tour of about sixty American universities. The tour is under the auspices of the Cultural Services of the French Embassy and the presentation at Radford-Mason Women's College will be the only one held in Virginia.

Baptist To Hold Campus Revival During April

A campus-wide revival will be held April 5, 6 and 7 at the Farmville Baptist Church. The three VPI students leading the services will be French Humphries, Jr., Ken Murray, and Earl Snyder.

The services will begin Friday night, April 5 at 8 p.m. The Saturday service will be at 4:30. The team will also be in charge of the Sunday morning worship service. Everyone is invited to attend this revival which is sponsored by the Baptist Students of Longwood College.

Sophomores Win Bridge Tourney; Receive Prizes

Shearer Ebert and John Poffenburger, winners of the Sophomore Pep Club bridge tournament, received their prizes at the class meeting Thursday night.

Leather key cases were presented to each of the winners by Carol Meyer and Marcy Hynes, organizers of the tournament.

The winners defeated Carolyn Gowen and Bobbi Burrell in the final round of the tournament.

IT'S HOT!

Taking advantage of recent warm spell, Longwood student 'take to the roof' or South Cunningham.

Windjammer Fleet Plans College Course

Students from colleges all over the country will take their studies to sea next year. A coed group of adventurers, including undergraduates, graduate students, and instructors, will circumnavigate the globe aboard the 160-foot schooner Yankee Clipper. The beautiful, air-conditioned ship, formerly owned by millionaire George Vanderbilt, has been modified to provide quarters for 50 passengers.

Yankee Clipper will depart Miami in January, 1964, on the 12-month, 50,000 mile expedition to offbeat islands and colorful ports of the South Seas, East Indies, Indian Ocean and tropical Atlantic. About 35 landfalls will be made and more than a dozen foreign countries visited on the unique, share-the-expense voyage now being organized by Capt. Mike Burke of Miami, owner and operator of Windjammer Cruises, whose famous brigantine Yankee recently completed her fifth round-the-world cruise.

The expedition's ports-of-call will include remote Easter Island, whose great stone heads have confounded explorers and archaeologists for centuries... historic Pitcairn, where the descendants of the Bounty's mutineers still live... incredible Galapagos, where Darwin, noting the strange animal life, developed the basis for his theory of evolution... incomparable Tahiti, with its lush natural beauties and lusty female beauties... mysterious Bali, with its aura of the Orient... sleepy Zanzibar, spice island off

Africa, where an inland safari will be arranged for interested passengers... and dozens of other exciting spots where cruise ships never call.

Capt. Burke's Windjammer Fleet is the largest of its kind and has carried over 12,000 passengers during the past decade. Five of his ships — Polynesta, Tondelayo, Cutty Sark, Mandalay and Caribbe — are used for 10-day cruises in the Caribbean and Bahamas. While the others are employed on extended ocean voyages.

"This round-the-world expedition is my real love," Burke said. "We're following a tradition set by Yankee's former owner, Commander Irving Johnson, and we'll keep it going as long as there are people with adventure in their hearts and a bit of salt water in their veins."

Further information and application forms can be obtained by writing to Capt. Mike Burke, P.O. Box 1051, Miami Beach 39, Florida.

MARTIN THE JEWELER

See Our Good Selection of Sterling Silver And Gold Charms

See Our New Shipment of Longwood Sweatshirts

And Contemporary Cards

LANSCOTT'S GIFT SHOP

EASTER GIFTS!

Marshall—Beyond Ourselves The New English Bible Easter Ideals... 50c-$1.50

Allen—The Life of Christ

WEYANOKE BOOK SHOP

(Ground Floor)

Hotel Weyanoke

State Theatre FARMVILLE, VA.

NOW PLAYING

LAURENCE FRANCE MATTHEW HARVEY-NUYEN-HYER - HAL WALLIS

A GIRL NAMED TAMIKO

PARAMOUNT TECHNICOLOR

MARCH 21-22-23

EDGAR ALLAN POES

THE RAVEN

PRICE LOU LORR LOUFF

MAR. 29 — APRIL 2

"SON OF FLUBBER"

A PERFECT HAND!

Winners of Sophomore Bridge Tournament, Johny Poffenburger and Shearer Ebert, look at typical bridge hand. Both received leather key cases during class meeting last Thursday.

ENCORE!

Taking bow for their performances in Spanish Club Play, "Sueno de una Noche de Agosto" (Dream on an August Night) are Mr. Edward Enrouf, Dana Brewer, and Joan McKenna. Play was presented on March 12.

Typical Spanish Play Presented By Club

by Jo-Ann Cartwright

El Club de Espanol recently presented Sueno de una Noche de Agosto (Dream on an August Night), a contemporary Spanish play in three acts by Gregorio Martinez Sierra.

Those acquainted with Spanish drama recognize the plot as typically romantic in the Spanish style.

The heroine, Rosario, (Joan McKenna), desires to be a modern young woman and consequently revolts against the established Spanish conception of womanhood. Adamantly opposed to this "Spirit of independence" are Rosario's two brothers

Emilio (Donald Houpe) and Pepe (David Viera). Sympathetically understanding towards her granddaughter is Dona Barbabita (Dana Brewer) who realizes the futility of Rosario's rebellion.

Act I takes place in Rosario's home where she, having fallen asleep while reading a romantic novel, is awakened by the sound of a man's fall falling in front of her. Startled, she realizes that there is a man, the aparecido, Edward Enrouf, coming through her window. In the course of the "exclamatory" conversation which follows, the aparecido somehow manages to give Rosario a recommendation for a longed-for position as secretary with all of people, her favorite novel.

The next day Act II, Rosario goes to the office where the office worker (John Allen) introduces her, and where she is assured of obtaining the secretarial position by the present secretary Rosalyn Romano. There, Rosario also discovers her new author - employer to be none other than her night visitor. Infuriated at having been deceived, she leaves and remains unhappy and despondent until he comes to her and proposes marriage (Act III).

As in all romantic Spanish literature the characters portray life "in character." The heroine is young and pretty; the hero is dashing and handsome; the family, while protesting, is lovable; the family servant (Bue Arnold) is the ever comic, complaining busybody - the combination of which is charming under the able direction of Betty Ann Alderson.

In conclusion, the theme, "the old vs. the new," as personified in the respective characters of Dona Barbabita and Rosario, is a kind of literary, the world over and, therefore, requires no explanation. Of greater interest is the way in which the conflict is resolved. Rosario, having struggled to free herself from the existing tradition ironically settles for one of society's oldest institutions - marriage.

To be commended are the entire cast who performed in a convincing manner providing the audience with a delightful hour's entertainment.

Birthday Dinner

Tomorrow night the monthly birthday dinner will be held. Following this will be a bazaar, featuring Judith Anderson.

Exile Relates Conditions Of Communism In Cuba

By Gianly Summers

There may be as many as 40,000 Russians still in Cuba, a Cuban exile indicated Tuesday night.

Oswaldo Lamar, a Cuban exile, told the Nathaniel Mazon Society at Longwood College that a friend of his from a small town in Cuba wrote him two weeks ago that Russians "continue arriving" in Cuba.

Lamar, who left Cuba in September, 1961, said his friend, writing under a fictitious name and address, said the Cuban people estimate there are about 40,000 Russians on the island.

Lamar said this figure corresponds with information other Cuban exiles in Florida have told him they get from friends inside Cuba.

Lamar said his friend wrote him Russian bases "on the interior" of Cuba are accessible to few Cubans. "Only very high-ranking officers of the Cuban army are admitted without a pass, and always in the company of Russian officers," Lamar said.

He said his friend wrote under a fictitious name and address because the Cuban authorities censor "all percentage" of outgoing mail. He said his letter had not been censored - "you can tell when the mail is censored."

Lamar left Cuba in September, 1961, when a tobacco company he was working for was nationalized by Castro. He is now leaf manager at the Imperial Processing Corporation in Kenbridge, Lunenburg County.

A native of Cuba, Lamar returned to his homeland after graduating from the University of Tennessee in 1952. He said he was able to obtain an exit visa in 1961 on the pretense that he wanted to study in Europe. His brother-in-law, a major in the Cuban army, aided him in getting the visa. The brother-in-law, he said, was later killed trying to escape from Cuba.

Asked if the Cuban underground would have a chance to overthrow Castro if Russian troops were not on the island, Lamar said, "I am absolutely convinced of that."

"Many Cubans in the Army would revolt but are forced to uphold Castro," he said. "Lamar said Castro lost face when Russia pulled missiles out of Cuba."

"Castro is not what he used to be," Lamar said, "he is not master of his own house. He is told what to do."

"Castro was put there (in power) because he had a nice personality and can talk to the masses," Lamar said. "Take the Russian troops away and Castro would be a plain Latin American dictator, and Latin American dictators are easily disposed of."

However, Lamar said, "the young people would support Castro, because all they have is due to Castro."

"Without Castro, the Russians could not control the Cubans as well."

Lamar called for a complete blockade of Cuba. We (Cuban exiles in America) don't think Khrushchev would do anything. Cuba is too far away from Russia."

Lamar said Cuban exiles "can not do anything. They (the American government) don't permit us to do anything. All we can do is talk and talk - like on the street corner."

He said Cuban exiles are generally opposed to current programs reestablishing them throughout America. "They think it means nothing will be done about Cuba," he said.

"We are not like the European refugees. We didn't say goodbye to Cuba. They said goodbye to us."

Two From LC Present Papers At Biology Meet

Dr. Carolyn Wells and Miss Lindy Hatch will present scientific papers at meetings of the Southeastern Biologists in Gainesville, Florida. The conference will be held from April 18 through 20 at the University of Florida.

The title of Dr. Wells' paper is "An Atypical Conjugation in Tetrahymena pyriformis." The paper discusses findings of the research in which Dr. Wells is presently engaged. The topic of the paper is the pattern of the irregular reorganization of the micronucleus during conjugation of certain strains of the ciliate Tetrahymena pyriformis.

Lindy Hatch will present a paper titled "A Cytological Study of Tripling Conjugation in Tetrahymena pyriformis." This paper is the result of Lindy's cytological study of the conjugation of three strains of this ciliate. The topic of this paper is the subject of Lindy's research in the honors program.

Representative To Participate In Flags Pageant

The Miss Longwood Contest, to choose the local representative to the Fiesta of Five Flags Pageant, will be held on April 4 and 5.

Emphasis will be placed upon intelligence, poise, personality and general appearance. Each contestant will meet with the judges in informal sessions, a bathing suit event, answering questions on general topics to be announced to contestants at a later date, and a three-minute talent or speech.

The winner of the Miss Longwood contest will receive her travel plus all expenses at Pensacola.

Entry forms must be filled out and turned in no later than March 24 to Box 470, Longwood College Post Office.

HEY, IT TURNS!

New revolving stage, the first of its kind at Longwood, was used during recent production of "The Power of Darkness," by Leo Tolstol in Jarman Auditorium March 14, 15, and 16. One set was used, mounted on rollers and revolved for scenes.

Busy 'Backstagers' Units Of Uniqueness

The play presented last week, The Power of Darkness, owes much of its success to some workers who quite often are overlooked, the back stage crews. Outstanding among these were the scenery crew and the production class, working under the direction of Barbara Gray Martin, Technical Director of the play, and the lighting crew under the direction of Barbara Stewart, Light Designer.

Anyone who saw the play was sure to note the effective use of lights, the revolving stage, and the taped soliloquies which enhanced the tragic mood.

Ruder Assists
Sideline to Barbara Stewart was Karen Ruder, who worked the light board as chief of the light crew. Barbara, a senior with four years experience, has taught Karen quite well, as could be seen in the lighting effects in the play. Other crew members were Pat Wallace, June Wilson, Judy Wilson, Bonnie Abbott and Phyllis Lasley.

Special color projections were built by the light crew; these gels were uniquely arranged in 4 x 4 ft. frames to create the color spectrum on the cyclorama during particularly crucial scenes.

Lights used were 12 ceiling lights plus 2 giant lokes, two 10' x 12' p. c's for the color projections, and one special projection light for the digging scene.

Also, a followspot, a special loko projection for the crossbars, and a strand projection light mounted on the second battens besides the usual cyclorama lights and two battens of lights. Lights reached a high point in technical development which has rarely been matched in any of the previous plays.

Technical director, B. G. Martin, along with the scenery crew under Natalie Miller and Mr. Wiley's Play Production class are responsible for the construction of the revolving stage.

The circular platform, and the

'65, '66 Advisors Discuss Aspects Of 'Rat' Crisis

(Continued from page 3)

active more information about rating. One student suggested a rating handbook.

Dr. Wells then asked the group if they felt that the discussion had been beneficial. The students were generally in agreement. They further agreed to meet with their class sponsor, Dr. Helms, to discuss rating and to organize the rating program for next year.

In conclusion, Dr. Wells said, "Traditions should not all be changed. Many of them have purposes."

platforms on it, required about 100 lbs. of weight. Completion of stage right was a truck axle with a pipe through the top for turning it. Ropes were arranged all around the underside of the revolving stage and extended through a pulley system to the axle.

B. G. and Ann Coleman turned the pipe which revolved the stage. Pulling the drop curtain was Connie Birch, and operating the shutters on the stage right and stage left proscenium platforms were Pat Dugger and Allene Tugle.

The base of the revolving is now a permanent fixture to the scenery department. By using the revolving stage, only one acting was necessary, different angles being used for different scenes, and the former more lengthy procedure of changing scenery between acts was eliminated. This effect aided the continuity of both plot and mood.

Sound devices were coordinated by Ann Pernak. Soliloquies taped by the actors beforehand were played back to show the thoughts of the actors during intense scenes. Music which was typical of the mood was played before acts and during some scenes. The effects of sound combined with the lighting devices resulted in a successful innovation.

Patronize

The Rotunda

Advertisers

Visit The

COLLEGE BOOKSTORE

for your

Library

And

Punctuation

Guide

SOUTHSIDE SUNDAY

Get 10% Off

On Cosmetics

With This

COUPON!

March 14, 15, & 16

THE LINE-UP

Faculty lines up for academic procession during Alumni Assembly on Saturday, March 16.

THE ROTUNDA

Attend Williams
Lectures

VOL. VLI

Longwood College, Farmville, Va., April 10, 1963

No. 17

Sprague Speaks On Elizabeth I At Institute

Miss Rosemary Sprague, Associate Professor of English, lectured at the St. Thomas Moore Institute of the University of Montreal on "The Phenomenon of Queen Elizabeth."

Dr. Sprague received the A. B. degree from Bryn Mawr College and the M. A. and Ph.D. degrees from Western Reserve University. She taught for three years at Notre Dame College, South Euclid, Ohio, and has served for a number of years as Lecturer in English at Western Reserve University and at Penn College. Dr. Sprague came to Longwood College in 1962.

Dr. Sprague has written a number of short stories and articles, as well as written and had published seven historical novels for children. She has also lectured at the University of London and at Stratford, England.

Movies

The next movie in the series of art films on campus will be Les Enfants Terribles. The movie will be presented April 20 at 7:30 p. m. in Jarman Hall.

The remaining presentations for this semester will be Bel, Book, and Candle, and Henry V.

Bowles To Lead French Society For Next Year

At its April meeting, the French Club recently elected its new officers for the coming session. They are: Bettina Bowles, president; Donna Kafka, vice-president; Betty Shepherd, secretary; and Carolyn Wagstaff, treasurer. Lorene Miller will serve as historian, and Dolores Watkins will be reporter. Music chairman is Shirley Gunn, and project chairman is Rosalyn Roane. Miss Draper is the sponsor of the organization.

Six Acquire Membership In Alpha Kappa Gamma

Six girls were recently tapped into Alpha Kappa Gamma membership during the annual spring tapping ceremony of AKG. These girls, all juniors, are Evelyn Gray, Lois Obenshain, Gay Taylor, Lewann Rippey, Margie Twilley, and Betty Jean Russell.

Evelyn is an elementary major from Portsmouth. She has served as vice-president of the Junior Class and was class treasurer during her freshman year. She is a member of Alpha Sigma Alpha social sorority and has served as its second vice-president. Evelyn has been active in many Longwood activities, such as Circus and productions. She was ringmaster for Circus last fall.

Next year Evelyn will serve as vice-president of the Legislative Board of Student Government.

Lois, from Roanoke, is a physical education major and a biology minor. She was selected as a Top Rat during her freshman year and she has participated in class sports, varsity sports, and Circus.

She is chairman of the Activities Committee of Student Government and treasurer of the Athletic Association. She is a member of the H2O Club, and Kappa Delta Pi.

Lois has been elected chairman of the Judicial Board of Student Government for the coming year.

Also tapped was Gay Taylor, a health and physical education major and biology minor from Gretna.

Gay has played varsity basketball and hockey. She has also participated in class sports and is a member of Omicron.

She is a member of Alpha Gamma Delta social sorority.

Gay is the president of the Athletic Association for the coming year. Lewann Rippey is an elementary, English and social science major from Richmond. Her freshman year Lewann was a member of the Spanish Club, the Richmond Club and a reporter for the Rotunda. She has also held the positions of exchange editor and desk editor for the Rotunda.

Lewann has served as class representative and literary editor for the Virginia. She is a member of the Student Education Association, Pi Delta Epsilon, Pi Gamma Mu, Kappa Delta Pi. She is on the Wesley Foundation Council.

Margie, a Spanish and elementary major, is from Portsmouth. She has been the Junior class president and was vice-president of her sophomore class. She has been on the YWCA Cabinet for three years.

(Continued on page 3)

Poet, Anthologist Williams Lectures, Reads Poetry

OSCAR WILLIAMS

Visitor Acts As Editor Of Noted Poetry Series

By SHIRLEY GUNN

Oscar Williams, poet and anthologist, will be on the Longwood campus today and tomorrow. Everyone is invited to hear him read his poetry tomorrow at four o'clock in the Student Lounge.

Magnifico Gives Speech On Math At Conference

Mrs. Josephine H. Magnifico, Assistant Professor of Mathematics, attended the 41st Annual Meeting of the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics held this week in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

Mrs. Magnifico gave a lecture on Thursday, April 4 in the Monongahela Room of the Pennsylvania Hotel at 10:30. The topic was "An Approach to Problem Solving."

This afternoon he spoke to Miss Sprague's Victorian Poetry class and Mrs. Schlegel's Comparative Literature class at one and two o'clock respectively.

At four o'clock this afternoon he spoke to the members of Boere En Thorn and Pi Delta Epsilon, the sponsors of his visit.

Tomorrow morning he will speak to Mrs. Savage's philosophy class and Mrs. Schlegel's introductory Literature class. He will meet with individual students to discuss their poetry at eleven a.m. tomorrow.

Thursday afternoon he will speak to Mr. White's Advanced Expository Writing class.

Mr. Williams, born in Brooklyn, says he became obsessed with poetry at an early age. His poems were first published in the June Semper of Younger Poets. He has now written four books of poetry.

He serves as the general editor of the "Little Treasury Series." The anthologies that he has published in this series are A Little Treasury of Modern Poetry, Immortal Poems of the English Language, and The New Pocket Anthology of American Verses.

Mr. Williams, one of our finest contemporary poets, is a "city" poet rather than a "nature" poet. He writes of subways, bridges, and other aspects of our modern civilization. He lives in the busiest commercial section of New York City — in sight of the Brooklyn Bridge.

He believes that the emotional aspect of poetry should come first and then the intellectual aspect.

At a University of Connecticut writers' conference that Miss Rosemary Sprague attended, Mr. Williams said, "Poetry is literature and to ask that it be understandable to the half-educated is to demand that it be the poetry of illiteracy."

Glee Club

The Longwood Glee Club will present a joint concert with the Men's Glee Club from the University of Richmond Wednesday, April 17 at 7:30 p. m. in Jarman Hall.

The two groups will each present a thirty minute program. After an intermission they will together sing selections from Lerner and Loewe's "My Fair Lady."

Gresham Speaks At Conference About Education

Poster B. Gresham, Associate Professor of English attended a conference on English Education at Indiana University March 28 through 30 and participated in the Thirtieth Conference of Teachers of English held at the University of Virginia April 6.

At Indiana University Mr. Gresham served as chairman of a discussion on "Improving Liaison Between Departments of English and Education." He presided as Executive Secretary of the Virginia Association of Teachers of English at the University of Virginia. Mr. Gresham has served as Executive Secretary in this organization since 1959, has been president, and has edited its publication, The Virginia English Bulletin, since 1950.

Mr. Gresham has served as consultant and speaker for many workshops and conferences of language arts teachers in the state. He has also served on the Board of Directors of the National Council of Teachers of English and on its committee on the Preparation and Certification of Secondary English Teachers.

Mr. Gresham came to Longwood College in 1954. He holds the A. B. degree from Randolph-Macon College and the M. A. degree from the University of Virginia.

Andrews Wins Title As 'Miss Longwood'

Jo Leslie Andrews was chosen Miss Longwood Friday night, April 5, in Jarman Auditorium. As a result of being selected, Miss Andrews will represent Longwood College in the Festival of the Five Flags in Pensacola, Florida.

First runner-up was Patti O'Neill. Other contestants were Virginia Summers, Virginia Petty, Harriet Hunt, and Wanda Old.

The first level of the contest was in bathing suits. The purpose of this was to judge for beauty.

Jo Leslie's questions were: What are your plans for life after graduation? and What is your opinion of federal aid to education?

The last round of the contest was talent.

Virginia Summers did an original dialogue based on the character of Scarlett O'Hara from the novel Gone with the Wind. She designed her costume and used a tape of her own piano accompaniment as background music.

Jo Leslie Andrews performed a dissertation on paramita.

LONGWOOD BEAUTIES

Contestants for Miss Longwood, Patti O'Neill, Jo Leslie Andrews, and Ginny Petty; back row, Wanda Old, Harriet Hunt, and Ginny Summers.

Next came informal talks with the judges. This was for poise and personality judgment.

A series of questions was then asked by Mrs. John Allen, who acted as mistress of ceremonies. The first was an "open-end" question and the second dealt with a more serious, political question.

Contestants, pose before pageant last Friday night, New Miss Longwood, Jo Leslie Andrews, will attend Festival of Five Flags in Pensacola, Florida.

which turned into a song routine.

Patti O'Neill did a pantomime based on the character of Marcel Marceau. She portrayed a sculptor in "A Day in the Studio."

Harriet Hunt sang a Scottish ballad, "Mary Hamilton." She (Continued from page 2)

Busse Lectures To LC Students During Banquet

Dr. Bernard Busse, professor of music at the University of Virginia, spoke to the Longwood student chapter of Music Educators National Conference at a banquet in the Tea Room April 8.

Speaking on the subject "What's Wrong with Teaching in Virginia," Dr. Busse stressed the fact that too often music teachers fail to represent a balance of truth, goodness, and beauty in their field.

He said that Virginia is "too performance conscious," that the people are more interested in a spectacle than in the quality of the music. Among other things he mentioned the need for more participation in music organizations.

AKG TAPS

New members of Alpha Kappa Gamma include, front row, Betty Jean Russell, Gay Taylor, and Margie Twilley; back row, Lois Obenshain, Lewann Rippey, and Evelyn Gray. Recently tapped girls are all juniors.

Communication

A newspaper is a means of communication. As a means of communication it transmits information. However, merely transmitting information is not a newspaper's only endeavor; it should also receive information from its readers. Thus, it performs the same functions that any means of communication performs—transmitting and receiving of signals.

If a newspaper merely transmits signals, it becomes dull, and ceases to function as a true communicative system. Upon the reception of signals a newspaper gains vitality and purpose. Therefore, it is the duty of each responsible member of a community to read his newspaper critically and to publicly chastize the editorial staff when it fails to operate as it should.

Not many in the Longwood community have accepted that responsibility. A student has complained to a hallmate that the Rotunda never praises anything, that it only criticizes. Several professors and students objected to the poll that the Rotunda ran several weeks ago. The student has yet to make it known what she wishes the Rotunda to praise. And of all the students and professors who questioned the veracity of the poll, only one, a student, presented reasons for objecting to it.

As members of the Longwood community, professors are urged to write letters when they feel that the Rotunda is "stepping out of bounds." They, too, have obligations as responsible readers; yet few fulfill their obligations. The faculty has justly criticized the apathy of the student body and yet its members are apathetic themselves. They more than the students should realize that failure to comment on an action is the same as condoning it.

The students especially should respond to the Rotunda for they are more than mere readers, they are its publishers. The Rotunda is paid for by the Student Fees; therefore, failure to accept part of the responsibility for its views means that a student is losing part of her investment in the college.

The students and faculty of the Longwood community must realize that the Rotunda like any newspaper has two alternatives when its readers desert it. Then, it can either only transmit only the signal it wishes, becoming a propaganda device, rather than a community effort, or it can cease to exist.

It does not seem probable that the members of the Longwood community would force its newspaper to make the choice between these alternatives. And it will not have to make this choice if the members of this community fulfill their obligations and transmit their signals via "letters to the editor."

Letter Policy

The Rotunda follows a simple policy regarding "letters to the editor":

1. All letters to the editor must be signed by their writers.
2. The Rotunda staff reserves the right to edit letters when necessary; however the staff will never alter the essential meaning of a letter.

The staff feels that only letters signed by their writers should be printed, because unsigned letters indicate either that the writer does not want to be held responsible for her views or that she does not firmly believe in them.

Editing letters is at times necessary because of limitation of space.

The Rotunda

ESTABLISHED NOVEMBER 12, 1920

Published each week during the college year except during holidays and examination period by the students of Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia Box 188.

Donna M. Humphlett	Editor-in-Chief
Marie Grant	Managing Editor
Joe Lord	Business Manager
Pat Wallace	Feature Editor
Nancy Jamison	Sports Editor
Nancy Hawkey	Books Editor
Betty Taylor	Art Editor
Betty Ann Atkinson	Critic
Linda Davis	Photography
Ann Foye	Circulation Manager
Dottie Marshall	Advertising Manager

Member: Virginia Intercollegiate Press (Rating First Class), Columbia Scholarship Press Association (Rating First Place), National College Press Service.

REPORTING STAFF: Barbara Aron, Theresa Albright, Leslie Aldridge, Susanne Ballard, Paula Harkness, Margaret Cooke, Lee Criss, Dee Dee Dietrich, Jean Eddy, Beverly Gooden, Jodi Hackney, Judy Ivy, Sandra Jamison, Janet Lory, Renee Lane, Mary Anne Lipford, Jean Lord, Shelia Jamison, Charlotte McClung, Wynne Phillips, Barbara Poland, Karen Rader, Marvle Sigfried, Doris Smith, Lois Sullivan, Betty Taylor, Allene Tuggle, Barbara Turner, Linda Turner, Pat Wallace, Dee Wallace, Annette Wenger.

CIRCULATION STAFF: Susanne Briel, Sandra Freedman, Cindy Gay, Cherise Howe, Jackie Louth, Cabell Montgomery, Betty Lee Neal, Mary Lee Plunkett, Joyce Powell, Eleanor Richardson, Marian Ross, Gay Stump.

ADVERTISING STAFF: Mary Bradford, Diana Dell, Betty F. Garner, Jodi Hackney, Dottie Marshall, Andrea Parker, Faye Stann, Diane Wollay.

PHOTOGRAPHY STAFF: Mary Evelyn Compton, Gray Gashart, Dottie Marshall, Nancy Reberson.

BUSINESS STAFF: Leslie Aldridge, Olivia Gibson, Linda Weeks.

(Unsigned editorials write by the editor)

Entered as second class matter, at the Post Office at Farmville, Virginia under the Act of Congress on March 3, 1879. Registered for national advertising by the National Advertising Service. Printed by the Farmville Herald.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

"PROBABLY THE BIGGEST PROBLEM FACING YOU YOUNG STUDENTS IN COLLEGE TO-DAY IS: WHERE TO FIND A PARKING PLACE FOR YOUR CAR!"

Counseling Need Receives Reply

By Dean Wilson

Dear Editor:

The main thesis of the editorial written by Miss Sharon Coulter, which has appeared twice in The Rotunda (May 2, 1962 and March 20, 1963) is well taken, i.e. the need for a good psychiatrist whose only responsibility would be to serve as a counselor to those Longwood students who feel the need for such specialized and confidential services.

It is doubtful that anyone would question Longwood's need for such a person, even now, and certainly as the enrollment increases, the need will become acute. The Administration is not unaware of this. In fact, the question of employing a psychiatrist was discussed by the Administrative Staff long before Miss Coulter's editorial appeared the first time. The problem, as with so many things these days, is mainly a financial one. A good psychiatrist, even if one could be found who would be willing to leave a private practice, commands a salary far in excess of the top salary of professors and deans! But the idea has not been abandoned and we look forward to the day when Longwood can, and will, employ a full time counselor, whether he (or she) be a psychiatrist, psychologist, or sociologist. In the meantime we do have on campus several people who are qualified to counsel in specific areas.

In the area of general counseling (and this term includes those areas mentioned by Miss Coulter—religious and moral doubts, academic problems, or adjusting to college life in general), there are many of us who are both willing and able to talk (or listen) to any girl who needs us.

It is true that most of us have a number of other responsibilities, and we may not be available when a girl stops at an office on the chance of seeing one of us at that particular time. It is not that we are "preoccupied" (which suggests indifference); not one of us would knowingly deny a girl the right to see us. The fact is that too often we are unaware that someone came, only to find others waiting, and his gone on her way, probably thinking we are too busy to bother with her. Nothing could be farther from the truth. We are never "too busy" and we never feel that a girl's problem is "too small or too silly" for us to hear; but making a definite appointment will assure a girl an opportunity for a conference.

Those of us who do counseling as a major part of our work are Dean Moss, all members of the Dean of Women's Staff, department heads, and faculty advisors. In addition many faculty members do a tremendous job of counseling outside their ac-

'Critic's Choice'

Student Reviews

Anderson

By Betty Ann Atkinson

Dame Judith Anderson, is perhaps, the greatest actress of the twentieth century. We of Longwood count our blessings for her appearance at Jarnan Hall was very likely one of the greatest and most profound artistic experiences any one of us here will ever have. She employs the multiple techniques of the heroic "Old School," and at times, a little bit of the provocative Del Sartre to perfection.

Dame Judith has mastered her awesome technique so thoroughly that she conveys the gamut of emotions magnificently even in a state of physical exhaustion. There are not many actors who can do this. With a slight turn of the head, this great lady can realize an emotion such as grief so powerfully that she makes the obvious lamentations of lesser actors appear false and affected.

Her "Medea," raging and agonized, is a masterpiece. A supreme finesse characteristic of only the greatest talent. The role was created for her splendid artistic powers by Guthrie McClintic, which means, of course, that all of the greatness of Judith Anderson can be seen at once.

More significant of her brilliance, however, lies in her divine interpretation of the Lady Macbeth Sleep-Walk Scene. Here Dame Judith displayed the art of subtlety in acting which despite the current "Method," is very, very rare indeed. She carried off the pathos, wretchedness and utter hopelessness of the lost Lady Macbeth with an art so supremely subtle that it was truly a masterpiece. Lady Macbeth was a living, breathing human being, thrown into the depths of despair and madness; and no one but Miss Anderson could have conceived of her as such an aesthetically majestic and yet pathetic figure.

It must be admitted that the first two acts of "Lady Macbeth" did not meet the standards of Miss Anderson's enormous critical acclaim; but considering the circumstances—she was very ill with a consuming influenza—her efforts to warm up to a cold house and fight her physical condition were indeed ennobling and valiant. But when she reached the Sleep-Walk Scene, all apprehension was thoroughly dissolved, and Dame Judith lived up to her name.

The audience went into their intermission expecting great things of Medea and, indeed, they were more than well satisfied. One of the most striking things about Medea's bedside great portrayal of the grief-maddened sorceress was Dame Judith's brilliant application of humor. The outstanding case in point was Medea's reaction to Jason's ideas of his own greatness. The audience, for the most part, not expecting any form of humor in a tragedy, couldn't help her spontaneous burst of laughter. The people, out of the deepest respect for Miss Anderson, did not know whether or not to laugh; but they could not control themselves in this instance.

Needless to say, Miss Anderson was supported by an excellent cast, most notably William Roerick (Jason) whose noble countenance and statuesque bearing impressed a good many of the female members of the audience, and Lilyan Chauvin (the Nurse in Medea) whose artistic ability impressed everyone.

Fred Forsman handled his Creon with perception and adeptness too. The versatile staging of Gene Cornelius added just the right touch, making the production aesthetically correct. We must extend our heartfelt thanks to Dame Judith Anderson for a most engaging and rewarding evening. Certainly no one who saw her could see anyone less than the brilliance of the true artist anonymous with her distinguished name.

Petty Sings In Competition

(Continued from page 1)

accompanied herself on the guitar.

Wanda Old did a dramatic reading. It was entitled "The Creation" by James Weldon Johnson.

Virginia Petty sang "Cry Me A River" and accompanied herself on the piano.

The Judges were Henry Miller of Richmond, Mrs. Elizabeth Wilson of Crewe, and Mrs. Virginia Price, of Farmville.

Around The Campi

The rooftops are getting crowded these days. Also, the makers of Solarcaine are getting rich.

The new collegiate spelling for an old word—gradeau.

Hope CHI had a nice cabin party last Wednesday.

Since when does the college crowd go for 13-year-olds' combos?

About the girl who had 13 tests last week.

Live spelled backwards is evil.

Have you heard about the new senior dolls? Wind them up and they count the days.

Seems quite a few people had an exciting Spring Vacation.

About the girl with the green chicken.

And then there was the 11:30 party to celebrate the beginning of spring. And then there were the 20 call downs to celebrate the end of the party.

They said it couldn't be done—but someone burnt their fingers in a bowl of grits.

Welcome back senior class. You are no longer a minority group.

Thought for the week: Smile—you're on Candid Camera.

Hail, Caesar!

ratiocination

Today the forsythia, sparkling over like a federal fountain, is the harbinger of that season everybody loves. Who would be foolish enough to think negatively about spring—except maybe English professors or poets? No, I must agree, as printemps life is wonderful.

But there are some things that need to be said—things that deserve compliments. First, there is the delicious new cake we had twice before spring vacation. How wonderful it is to have nice fresh spice or nut cake with butter frosting. Next we should notice how beautifully our dining hall is decorated. And while we are in the dining hall, let us tip our bonnets and curtsy to our waitresses. They deserve our gratitude.

demio areas. The President, himself, is always glad to talk to students. Every day many girls take advantage of the counseling service we do have. It is our hope that those who have felt that there was no one to whom they could turn will now be reassured.

Ruth B. Wilson
Dean of Women

The retiring student government deserves recognition. It was they who began our two branch system of government. In spring and early summer I can find many things to compliment—are you still with me? Good, then you are proof that someone likes to read compliments, too.

Peace Corps Desires Physical Educators

June graduates with degrees in physical education or recreation will find ample opportunities to use their skills and training in Peace Corps service. Requests for Volunteers with experience in these fields have doubled for 1963 as emerging nations look to the Peace Corps to supply persons with this specialized knowledge.

Ten countries, India, Sierra Leone, Morocco, Guatemala, Venezuela, Colombia, Ecuador, Cameroon, Ethiopia and Barbados have appealed to the Peace Corps for sports educators. They will serve as teachers and coaches in elementary and secondary schools, on the university level and some will also work in general athletic programs.

Specifically, the Volunteers will be assigned to develop physical education curricula, supervise and administer sports programs and organize teams to participate in local, regional or international competitions.

A total of 200 men and women with the necessary backgrounds and qualifications will go into training this summer for these projects.

At present, the Peace Corps has nearly 100 Volunteers actively engaged in physical education and recreation projects in seven countries. Coaches are involved in athletic training in Thailand, the Ivory Coast and Senegal. Teachers of physical education are giving classroom instruction in Tunisia and Colombia; recreation workers are organizing youth groups in Venezuela and a new group of Volunteers are now in training for assignment to Indonesia.

"These projects will enable teachers and recreation leaders to gain invaluable experience overseas," Jules Pagano, Director of the Peace Corps' Professional and Technical Division, has stated. "The opportunities are both unusual and challenging and provide a real training ground for dedicated Americans who wish to share their skills while learning from others."

Pagano listed these opportunities for potential Volunteers:

1. Opportunities to develop physical education and recreation programs for students in highly detailed programs.
2. Opportunities to work with people who are eager for instruction and want to be helped and guided.
3. Opportunities to do research that may lead to a Master's Degree in the chosen field.
4. Opportunities to demonstrate the principles and philosophy of American sports through the establishment of well-rounded, well-organized and well-administered physical education or recreation programs.
5. Opportunities to learn about other countries, the people, the language and culture and to show them how Americans think and work.

6. Opportunities to work with Olympic teams in some of these countries.

7. Opportunities to achieve solid experience which will be of great value to the Volunteer as he plans his future career.

To qualify for any of these Peace Corps projects one should have a degree in physical education or recreation. Teachers with degrees in other academic majors, but who have worked in recreation or physical education are also eligible. Experience in physical education, either through coaching or organizing team competition is highly desirable.

"Persons with sports training who do not have college degrees would be eligible for some of these projects," Pagano said.

"We can use people who have worked with 'Little Leagues,' participated in high school or college athletics or developed recreation activities at YMCA, YWCA's, YMHA's, or other community associations. As long as they know their field and can teach it, there is plenty of room for all kinds of Volunteers with sports and recreation backgrounds."

Volunteers must be American citizens over 18. There is no maximum age limit. Married couples are eligible if both can do needed jobs. They may have no dependents under 18.

A Volunteer receives $75 a month readjustment allowance. The total, $1800, is paid at the end of the two-year tour of duty.

He also receives allowances for clothing, housing, clothing and incidentals. Transportation and medical care are provided.

All Volunteers go through a training program in the United States which prepares them for their jobs. They study the history, culture and language of their host country; technical courses in their special areas of concentration; American history and world affairs; health education and physical fitness and preventive medicine.

Additional information and Volunteer Questionnaires are available by writing to Mr. Pagano, Professional and Technical Division, Peace Corps, Washington 25, D. C.

ADD IN!

This Longwood student to try out tennis courts, takes time out from studying

AA Council Sets Up 1963-64 Committees

The AA Council has chosen its committees for the following year. They are as follows: Varsity Hockey Managers, Judy Wilson and Barbara Ragland; Class Hockey Managers, Marcia Hynes and Jackie Walker; Varsity Basketball, Carrie Lee Wilson and Margie Bernard; Class Basketball, Norma Rudy and Jayne Eddy.

Also, Tennis Managers, Henrietta Gilliam and Ann Downey; Archery, Lurline Robertson and Nevis Borne; Swimming, Chris Longstreet; Historian, June Wilson.

Also, Class Volleyball, Tot Sykes and Earlene Lang; Softball, Carolyn Cline and Judy Squires; Publicity Committee, Frances Stewart, Chairman, Shirley Metcalf, Butch McDaniel, Arlene Steiner, and Dana Gerhardt; Social Committee, Brenda Isbel, Chairman, Ann Cardwell, Lynn McClutchen, and Leslie Burris.

Also, Recreation Committee, Betty Wright, Chairman, Phyllis Collins, and Phyllis Lesley; Ways and Means Committee, Barbara Aage, Chairman, Amy Haley, and Shirley Carr.

Heintz Publishes Health Article In Quarterly

Miss Mary Heintz, Associate Professor and Chairman of the Physical and Health Education Department, published an article entitled "Device for Testing Back Strength" in the December 1962 edition of the Research Quarterly. The magazine is published by the American Association for Health, Physical Education, and Recreation, National Education Association.

This article discusses an inexpensive device called a "tenometer" for testing back strength and the determination of its validity and reliability.

Miss Heintz received the B. S. Degree at Boston University, M. S. degree from the University of Tennessee and she is currently working on her doctorate at the State University of Iowa.

AKG Members Active In School

(Continued from page 1)

and was president of the Freshman Commission for her freshman year.

She is a member of Kappa Delta Pi, Student Education Association, and Alpha Sigma Tau social sorority.

Next year Margie will be president of AST and vice-president of the YWCA.

Betty Jean is an English major from Portsmouth. She served as vice-president of her freshman class and was the Circus representative her freshman year. She is a member of the Student Education Association and Alpha Sigma Tau social sorority.

She was secretary of the YWCA and has been a member of the screening board for two years. Betty Jean was the second vice-president of AST.

Betty Jean will serve as chairman of the Judicial Board of Student Government for the coming year.

Swimming Meet Brings More Color Competition

The annual class swimming meet will be held April 23 at 7:30 p.m. Competition for the color cup continues as red and white vies with green and white. The only qualification for participating in the meet is a person must attend three "free" swims it is emphasized that one sign up with the life guard. At the special practices individual instruction will be given in diving, starts, turns, etc. The practices will be held at the following times:

Monday Nights

April 8 — 10 p.m.

April 15 10 p.m.

Thursday Nights

April 11 — 6:50 p.m.

April 18 — 6:50 p.m.

One does not have to be an excellent swimmer in order to participate in the meet. Team work will be stressed more than individual competition.

There are several categories of events scheduled for the meet. There are relays, diving, individual competition, funny and serious events. Any student who is interested in participating in the meet is urged to attend the required practices in order to become qualified for the class meet.

The swimming meet sponsored by the H2O Club is headed this year by co-chairmen, Chris Longstreet and Peg Waldo.

AA To Sponsor April Activities For Fun, Frolic

Starting Thursday, April 11, the A. A. will sponsor recreational activities each Tuesday and Thursday for the month of April, from 6:45-7:45. The program, which is solely for fun and relaxation, is under the supervision of Miss Phyllis Harris, while Norma Eddy will be participating as Chairman of the Recreation Committee of the A. A.

Badminton will be played in the old gym, ping-pong and croquet in the sunken gardens. Various members of the A. A. will be present to aid in the activities, and everyone is invited to come out and have fun relaxing the sporting way.

NEWMAN'S

MEN'S SHOP

Traditional Styles

See Our

Ladies Sportswear

Tempest Winners...Lap 3!

Did you win in Lap 4?

IMPORTANT! If you hold any of the 20 winning numbers, claim your Pontiac Tempest LeMans Convertible in accordance with the rules on the reverse of your license plate. Gift! You may choose instead a thrilling expense-paid 2-week Holiday in Europe—for two! Plus $500 in cash!

25 CONSOLATION PRIZE NUMBERS!

1. 0328072	6. A818471	11. C191819	16. A112433
2. 8552083	7. C175380	12. A078503	17. A337477
3. 8631755	8. A131483	13. 0215452	18. C467893
4. 0148138	9. C702472	14. A609159	19. 8911494
5. C591755	10. A509191	15. C613177	20. A026160

CONSOLATION PRIZE NUMBERS!

1. 0381081	6. A103664	11. C672240	16. A737594	21. A022026
2. A260110	7. C173067	12. 0799969	17. A177588	22. A929561
3. A601067	8. A719483	13. 0335471	18. 0602223	23. A165856
4. A145897	9. C631403	14. C032631	19. 8874490	24. C402016
5. A481051	10. 8885569	15. C757103	20. A057656	25. A070720

If you hold a Consolation Prize number, you win a 4 speed Portable Hi-Fi Stereo Set, "The Waltz" by RCA Victor. Or, you may still win a Tempest! (See official claiming rules on reverse of your license plate, and observe claiming dates given above.)

L&M GRAND PRIX 50

Get with the winners... far ahead in smoking satisfaction!

SEE THE PONTIAC TEMPEST AT YOUR NEAREST PONTIAC DEALER!

From The Board

In case you're wondering what the big idea is... Well, our idea isn't really so big yet. 'Twas only born two weeks ago at the new Legislative Board's first meeting. The following thoughts led to the advent of a branchchild: publishing a weekly column in which we'll tell you just what your Legislative Board is currently discussing and doing.

Despite the constant reminder to you, the Student Body, that all legislative meetings are open, few have ventured into our chambers this year — perhaps because you felt the agenda might not embrace something that really concerned you. Or perhaps because you plain didn't have time. Certainly the latter reason is understandable. But we on the Board are strongly convinced that everything on our every agenda concerns you — everything!

So we chose Evelyn Gray and Nancy Moorefield to compile the happenings of every week's meeting and submit them to the Rotunda in hopes that as the newspaper reaches each of you, our business will reach you, too — and become a vital concern of yours, as it is of ours.

Special thanks go to Evelyn, Nancy, and to the Rotunda staff for this extra service to the students.

Won't you let us in on your opinions of this column and all our work this year? We'll gladly include your letters in our column. And we'll even more gladly welcome you to our weekly 7:00 meetings in the Colonnade room. Bet you have a few big ideas yourself!

Mary Anne Lipford

Mr. Allen has asked the Legislative Board to inform the Student Body that the office right across the hall from his own office is open for student use. The office houses the ever-needed duplicator and mimeograph machines, so if you have stencils to run off and if you are familiar with the workings of the machines, come down anytime during the school day.

Lois Obenshain and Mary Anne Lipford will represent Longwood College at the Southern Intercollegiate Student Government Association convention in Deland, Florida during the week-end of April 20. This convention is held annually, and Sandra Phlegar is currently secretary of SISGA.

Right now, handbook revisions are the main concern of the board in its Tuesday night sessions. We hope that by a few changes in order and form such as the possibility of placing the constitution at the front of the handbook, we may improve upon and clarify many issues that have come up this year and in previous years. Since the rest of the handbook is based on the Longwood Student Government Constitution and the constitutions of the other major organizations, this seems to us to be a good starting point.

We are also going over the social rules which seem to be of most general concern to the Student Body. We are trying to clear up ambiguous loopholes in this section and make some of the rules more practical and applicable.

In conjunction with handbook changes, the board is now working to revise and add to the proposed rule changes made by this year's Activities Committee. The committee and the past and present legislative boards thank the students so very much for their interest, concern, and indispensable advice and suggestions in regard to this matter. The purpose of these proposed student regulation changes is "To unite the students of the college for more efficient living." Thanks to you it seems that this purpose may be realized.

* from the Student Government Association Constitution.

SPRING HAS SPRUNG

Taking advantage of warm spring weather, Longwood student pause on front campus to talk and relax.

Schlegel To Read Paper On Philosopher Diderot

By Glany Gilmore

Dr. Dorothy B. Schlegel, associate professor of English at Longwood, will present an original paper in Geneva, Switzerland, this summer.

The paper, to be read before the International Conference on "Diderot: The Transmitter of Shafsbury's Romanticism," this conference, sponsored by Theodore Besterman, the Director of the Voltaire Institute and Museum in Geneva, will be attended by scholars in world literature from all over the world. The papers presented at the conference are to be published in book form.

The main thesis of this paper, says Mrs. Schlegel, is that most of the romantic ideology prevalent in the 18th Century was a direct transmission of the thinking of the First Earl of Shaftsbury, and English pre-Romanticist.

Diderot is Transmitter Denis Diderot, a French philosopher and writer of the mid 18th Century, although he denied it strongly, was the transmitter of these Romantic roots from Shaftsbury's England to France, where the Romantic movement came into full bloom.

In the translation of Shaftsbury's works from English into French, Mrs. Schlegel believes, the basic ideas presented by Shaftsbury became thoroughly entrenched in Diderot's mind.

Thus, he became so involved with Shaftsbury's writing, that he could not free himself of it. Although he claimed that all of his writings were the products of his own original thought, all can be traced back to Shaftsbury.

Passed On Through Rousseau Although Diderot was highly revered by his contemporaries, he was not the popularizer of Romantic thought. However, through constant association with the more popular Rousseau, these basic ideas were spread quickly by Rousseau, where they spread quickly, bringing about a complete reversal of the pre-existing Neo-Classical tradition in France.

Thus, as Mrs. Schlegel claims in her paper, if we can correctly assume that Rousseau was the "Father of Romanticism," Diderot must justly be called the "Grandfather," and Shaftsbury the "Great-Grandfather."

Research on Societies While in Europe, Mrs. Schlegel also plans to do research for a series of papers dealing with the influence of secret societies on the literature of the 18th Century in England, France, and Germany.

One such paper is to be entitled "Rostrocian Imagery: The International Language of the 18th Century," and others are planned in this general area. She also hopes to find proof of the theory that Shaftsbury was a Rostrocian. Mrs. Schlegel is receiving a small grant from the school to carry out this research.

Granddaughters Host Visitors April 6

High School Day was held Saturday, April 6, 1963. The members of the Granddaughters Club were hostesses to about fifty high schools throughout Virginia.

Following registration in the Rotunda at 9:00, the visitors were allowed to visit classes until 11:00 when they met with the administration and the faculty. Lunch was served in the Main Rec followed by campus tours with the Granddaughters as guides.

VOLKSWAGEN'S

New And Used
Now Taking Orders
For May and June
Delivery.

Ward Motor Corporation
Richmond, Virginia
Telephone BE 2-2371

Visit The New
COLLEGE SHOPPE
Remodeled For Your Comfort
&
Convenience

Special Treat
For These Hot
Spring Days

Cherry Lemonades
13c
COLLEGE SNACK BAR

Federal Aid Conference Convenes In Washington

Plans for a National Student Federal Aid to Education (FATE) Conference to be held in Washington, D. C. on April 25, 26, have been announced by the 17 member Steering Committee for the Conference.

This Conference will draw together student opinion already expressed by many of the sponsoring organizations concerning the great problems of financing education today and the role that the Federal Government should play. It is completely non-partisan," they stressed, "and both Young Democrats and Young Republicans have been invited to participate."

The Conference will begin on Thursday night, April 25, and continue through Friday night, April 26. The schedule will include three workshop sessions, addresses by prominent educators, Congressional leaders, and HEW officials. Students attending will also be given a chance to visit with their Senators and Congressmen and express their views on Federal Aid to Education and other issues of concern to them as students.

The 17 organizations which have already announced their sponsorship and are urging their members to attend include: B'nai B'rith Young Adults, Campus Americans for Democratic Action, Congress on Racial Equality, National American Indian Youth Committee of Arrown, Inc.

Also the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People College and Youth Division, National Federation of Catholic College Students, National Federation of Catholic College Young Democrats, National Student Clubs Federation, National Student Christian Federation.

And North American Student Cooperative League, Students for a Democratic Society, Student National Education Association, Student Religious Liberals, United States National Student Association, United States Student Press Association, Young Adult Council, and Young Christian Students National Staff.

Church Groups Elect Officers For Next Year

Several religious groups on campus have recently elected their officers to serve for the coming year. Such groups include the Baptist Student Union, Gamma Delta, the Newman Club, and Wesley Foundation. The Westminster Fellowship, the group for Presbyterian students, will hold their elections later in the month.

New officers of the Baptist Student Union will begin their term April 22. Newly elected are Mary Iva Cook, president; Kay Barker, secretary; Joyce Stanley, LINK editor; Evelyn Smith, Center hostess; Rosalyn Roane, Y.W.A. president; Ann Sneed, freshman advisor; Jean Still and Doris Holland, Student school presides. Chairmen of the committees are Betty Hodnett, Promotional; Barbara Jo Crumley, Enlistment; Charlotte McClung and Shirley Gunn, Devotional; Fattie Cassels and Mary Ruth Reynolds, Social; Lucy Eanes, Stewardship; June Wilson and Faye James, Seminar; Pat Gallahan, Music; and Annette Deel, Deputation.

Officers for the Lutheran students' group, Gamma Delta, began their term the first of April. Gamma Delta, a national Lutheran collegiate group, was just formed last year and received its charter this year. New officers being filled are president, Lynn McCutchen, vice - president, Gay Bevelier; secretary, Marcia Stegford; and treasurer, Margaret Wright.

The Newman Club, for Catholic students on campus, held its installation service for new officers this past Sunday. Elected were Amy Haley, president; Linda Bassford, vice - president; Theresa Albright, secretary; Joann Held, treasurer; and Karen Engdahl, reporter.

Newly elected officers for the Wesley Foundation were installed in office last Sunday night. Taking office for the coming year are Sandra Craig, president; Mary Walker and Mimi Holley, vice - presidents; Olivia Gibson, secretary, and Mamie Harrell, treasurer.

MARTIN THE JEWELER

See Our New Selection of 300 Charms

DOROTHY MAY STORE

New Shipment
of
Easter Hats & Bags
From $1.99 up

Buy Books Now

From The
COLLEGE BOOK STORE

For Pleasure Reading
This Summer

See Our
Tote Bags
From Italy
At

LANSKOTT'S
GIFT SHOP

With This Coupon —

One Free
Sundae
April 12
At

SOUTHSIDE SUNDRY

HOLLYWOOD

BEAUTY COLLEGE
Try A New Coiffure
To Go With Your Easter Banner

—
Frost & Tip

$5 Plus Set

Permanents ..... $5 up
Shampoo & Set .... $1.25
Cut ..... $1.00

Group Extends Membership To Students

Mrs. Neil Griffin, Chairman of the Department of Home Economics, announced April 2 that Neil Martin and Shelby Jean Lucy were awarded a year's membership in the Home Economics Association by the Potomac Home Economists in Hometown.

Next year, Nell, from Nathalie, plans to work with the Virginia Extension Service as a home demonstration agent. Some of her activities at Longwood include, Secretary of Kappa Omicron Phi, a national home economics educational fraternity; treasurer of Home Economics Club; a member of the Baptist Student Union; and treasurer of the Tri - County Club. She was also on the Dean's List last semester.

Shelby Jean has accepted a position at Williams Fleming High School in Roanoke. Some of her activities at Longwood include, Executive Vice-President of Kappa Omicron Phi; a member of Kappa Delta Pi, a national honor society of education; Vice-President of the Granddaughters' Club; a member of the Wesley Foundation; and a member of the Home Economics Club.

SEA

On Thursday, April 4, the members of the Student Education Association elected their officers for the 1963-64 session. The new officers are as follows: Bonnie Ramey, president; Jean Leary, vice-president; Becky Evans, Secretary; Ann Evans, Treasurer.

Landers Writes Easter Play For YWCA

"The Voice of Your Heart Remembers" will be presented as the Easter sunrise service in the Sunken Garden at 8:45 a.m. Thursday. The play, directed by Mary Lynn Landers, involves the conflict between Pilate, who is attempting to forget his part in the crucifixion of Christ, and his wife, Claudia, who acts as his conscience. The play was written by Mary Lynn, based on a short story which she had read.

The main characters are Pilate, Betty Wright; Claudia, Susan Brittingham; the narrator, Elaine Lohr; first servant, Jenny Turner; and second servant, Louise Mann.

THE ROTUNDA

VOL. VII.

Longwood College, Farmville, Va., April 24, 1963

No. 18

AKG Sponsors 'Faculty Follies' As Spring Work

Alpha Kappa Gamma is sponsoring "Faculty Follies," April 28 at 8 p.m. Admission is fifty cents.

This production is the Spring project of Alpha Kappa Gamma. The Alpha Kappa Gamma purpose is "to foster a better relationship between faculty and students." All proceeds will be applied to the Longwood Endowment Fund. Ja. Lee Harris and Barbara Moyer are co-chairmen.

Talent will be displayed by many members of the faculty and staff. There will be singing groups, dancing, and skits to name only a few.

Savage Attends Three Meetings Of Philosophers

Mrs. Helen Savage, assistant professor of philosophy at Longwood, has attended several philosophy conferences in the past month.

The first, which was held March 22, and 23 at Emory University in Atlanta, Georgia, was the fourteenth annual meeting of the Metaphysical Society of America. The theme, which was contemporary problems of metaphysics was developed by critical discussions and the presentation of five theories by some of the country's most eminent philosophers. The most interesting papers, according to Mrs. Savage, were by Dr. Leonard Russell of the University of Birmingham in England, who protested against the movement of "Linguistic Analysis," and by Stephen Pepper, who proposed a fifth metaphysical system called the "reality of actual experience."

She also attended the Conference on Phenomenology: Pure and Applied, held at the University of Lexington, Kentucky, on April 4 and 5. Attending the conference were medical doctors and psychologists as well as philosophers.

Phenomenology is a western European movement which is gradually spreading to the United States. The term can be explained as the exploration of the human life world with an emphasis on living out conscious intentions as in contrast to Freud's theory of the importance of the subconscious. Some of the aspects presented and discussed were logotherapy, or the will to meaning; Lebenswelt, or "lifeworld," in which reality leads to a concrete self-awareness; and the Fiat of consciousness, which emphasizes rationalism and respect for others as well as oneself.

The weekend of April 11, 12, and 13, Mrs. Savage attended a meeting of the Southern Society for Philosophy and Psychology at Miami Beach, Florida. The University of Miami, which was host for the meeting, had planned several sessions to be held at the same time, since it is the largest organization of its kind. The many topics presented included the fields of philosophy, psychology, metaphysics, dimensional ontology, epistemology, ethics and political philosophy, religion, sensation, and many others. The meeting was highlighted with an address by the president of the society, Leroy E. Loemker, of Emory University, who gave an "excellent resume of philosophy of the present day," entitled the "Case of the Emperor's Clothes."

State Board

The State Board of Education will meet here on campus Friday, April 26 in the Little Auditorium. The sessions from 10 a. m. until 1 p. m. are open to the public.

Art Students Display Works In Library Show

Student art is on display in the exhibition room of the library. The work will be displayed until April 29.

The art majors who have work in the exhibit are Carol Baumgardner, Brenda Brown, Pam Bullen, Frances Campbell, Gail Dickson, Harriet Hunt, David Murdock, Wanda Robertson, Lynn Stephenson, Winifred Walker, Peggy Whitaker, Melanie Wilkes, Li da Woodall, and Judy Woodyard. However, some of the outstanding work of the exhibit was done by non art majors.

All of the work was completed this year in the second semester. Among the examples of art to be seen are water colors, oil paintings, wood cuts, serigraphs, sculpture, pottery, and crafts.

One painting by Brenda Brown is done in different shades and tints of blue. The painting, in which a part of the face appears, seems to have light shining on it. The crafts are shown in the display case in the middle of the library. Of particular interest is the jewelry and chip carving.

Alumna Rogers Receives Grant For Ph.D. Study

Lillie Belle Rogers, a Longwood College graduate of 1961 and currently teacher of English in the Rochester, New York, school system, has just been awarded a $2,000 National Defense Education Act Fellowship for graduate study leading to the Ph.D. degree in English at the University of California.

Lillie, a native of Blackstone, received one of three NDEA awards offered by the University "to assist graduate students who are preparing to teach in the nation's colleges and universities." This is the first NDEA Fellowship to be won by a Longwood alumna.

While at Longwood, Lillie was president of Boere Eh Thorn and poetry editor of the "Colonade," to which she was a frequent contributor.

LILLIE ROGERS

Coyner, Miller, Kilpatrick Lecture During Institute

COL. FRANCIS P. MILLER

JAMES J. KILPATRICK

Cast Practices For '63 May Day Start Monday

Practices for the whole May Day cast will begin April 28. The practices on April 29, 30, and May 1 will be at 4:00 p.m. in front of Wheeler Dormitory. On May 2nd and 3rd the practices will be at Longwood Hall at 4:00 p.m. Box supports will be furnished at that time for the cast by the Slater System.

Individual dance practices begin on April 22. See the schedule below for the time and place.

Tom Sawyer
Main Cunningham Rec.
Wednesday	6:55
Thursday	9:30
Friday	6:55
Hansel & Gretel
Wheeler Rec
Wednesday	4:55
Thursday	9:30
Friday	4:55
Snow White
Tabb Rec
Wednesday	4:55
Thursday	9:30
Friday	4:55
Wooden Soldiers
Old Gym
Wednesday	6:55
Thursday	9:30
Friday	6:55
Clock Dance
Wheeler Rec
Wednesday	6:55
Thursday	9:30
Friday	6:55
May Court
New Gym
Wednesday	6:55
Thursday	9:30
Friday	6:55
Indian Dance
Main Cunningham Rec.
Wednesday	4:55
Thursday	9:30
Friday	4:55

Upshur Presides In Spanish Club

The Spanish Club recently elected its officers for the '63-'64 session.

Diana Upshur is the new president. Vice-president is Henrietta Gilliam. The other new officers are Sandra Jamison, secretary; Li da Ennes, treasurer; Norma Davis, historian; and Dee Dee Diederich, reporter.

Three Visiting Speakers Discuss State Politics

By SHIRLEY GUNN

The annual Institute of Southern Culture will be held a Longwood Friday, April 26 with the general theme of "Virginia Politics." Dr. M. Boyd Coyner, Jr., Mr. James J. Kilpatrick, and Colonel Francis P. Miller will be the lecturers. All lectures are open to the public.

Col. Miller is to speak at 11 a.m. in Marman Hall on "Has There Been Progress in Political Democracy in Virginia?" "Jefferson and Virginia Politics: The Gentle Radical and a Conservative Tradition" will be the subject of Dr. Coyner's lecture at 4 p.m. in the Student Lounge.

At 8 p.m. Mr. Kilpatrick will speak on "Byrd: Contemporary Leader in Politics" in Jarman Hall.

Col. Miller received his AB from Washington and Lee University and his BA and MA from Oxford University.

He has served as Chairman of the World's Student Christian

Federation, Commissioner to the General Assembly of the Southern Presbyterian Church, Moderator of the Synod of Virginia, member of the Central Committee of World Council of Churches, and President of the Virginia Council of Churches. At the present time Col. Miller is a special assistant in the Department of State, Washington, D. C.

Dr. Coyner, born in Lynchburg and reared in Farmville, received his BA, MA, and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Virginia.

He served as Associate Architect of the Virginia State Library.

He was assistant professor of history at Southwestern in Memphis until 1958, when he became associate professor of history at Hamden-Sydney College.

He was rated among the three most effective professors at Hamden-Sydney by a student poll during the term of 1961-62. He is past chairman of the Board of Deacons of the College Church.

Dr. Coyner is currently working on a biography of General John Hartwell Cocke, Virginia and Alabama planter and social reformer who was one of the most independent, progressive, and original figures of the ante-bellum South.

Mr. Kilpatrick was born in Oklahoma City and received his Bachelor of Journalism degree from the University of Missouri.

After graduating from Missouri, he became a reporter for the Richmond News Leader. For several years he covered State and Federal courts and offices. When he was assigned to the capital staff he covered the General Assembly, the Governor's office and state political matters.

In 1949 he became associate editor of the News Leader under the late Dr. Douglas Southall Freeman. When Dr. Freeman retired, Mr. Kilpatrick succeeded him as editor.

Mr. Kilpatrick is the author of several books. His most recent one, The Southern Case for School Segregation, was published in 1962. Other works include The Sovereign States and The Smut Peddlers, a history of obscenity censorship. He served as co-editor with Louis D. Rubin, Jr., for The Lasting South.

The Institute of Southern Culture was established at Longwood in 1956 to promote the study of traditional aspects of southern civilization through academic course work, special lectures, and the publication of research in the field. The Institute spring lectures, as well as course work in both undergraduate and graduate levels, provide a means for exchange of ideas about various aspects of Southern regionalism.

Bedford Works On Exhibition In Fairmont

Miss Virginia Bedford, Chairman of the art department of Longwood College is currently exhibiting "enamel" in the art gallery of Fairmont State College, Fairmont, West Virginia.

Miss Lillian Rhodes, a Longwood Alumna, is head of the art department at Fairmont State College.

While Miss Bedford is thoroughly acquainted with modern art mediums, she specializes in ceramics and enamel on copper work.

A native of Columbia, Missouri she received the B. S. degree from the University of Missouri and the M. A. degree from the Teachers College of Columbia University. She has also studied at the University of Tennessee; University of New Hampshire and in Mexico.

She is a member of the Virginia Education Association and the National Art Education Association.

She has spent the greater part of her teaching career at Longwood College.

Human Situation Subject Of Talk By Hopper, Beim

Dr. Stanley R. Hopper and Dr. Norbert Beim will lead a two-day discussion May 8-9 in the Episcopal Parish House. The topic of these discussions is "The Human Situation: Nature, Meaning and Cure." The meetings will begin at 7:30 each night.

Dr. Hopper is Dean of the Graduate School at Drew University in Madison, New Jersey. He has lectured to Longwood students previously during the 1962 Lenten Season Programs held by the Episcopalians.

Dr. Beim is a Jewish psychiatrist from Paterson, New Jersey. He is well-known in the field of psychiatry, and has studied under Adler in Vienna.

The first meeting will be devoted to the definition of the human situation as seen by Dr. Hopper and Dr. Beim. They will bring in the other aspects during the Thursday evening talk. These men are being brought to Longwood under the auspices of Canterbury, the Episcopal student-faculty group on campus. The public is invited to attend these discussions free of charge.

Alpha Psi Omega Presents Plays

Next Thursday and Friday, May 2 and 3, the Longwood chapter and the Hampton-Sydney chapter of Alpha Psi Omega will present two one act plays.

A Resounding Tinkle and The Form: The plays will be presented at 8:00 in John's Auditorium at Hampton-Sydney. A Resounding Tinkle will star Mike Cochrane as Ben Parado, Dottie Cox as Middle Parado, and Pat Newton as Uncle Ted. The Form will star Dave Revena as Mr. Whunby, Carl's McNair as Miss Havor, Mary Lynn Landers, and Ed Baker as Mr. Chatterton.

Campus Fees — Where?

The March 13, 1963 issue of the Rotunda contained an editorial which stated, "... the Longwood student is not really aware that in paying the total charge of $736 she stipulates that twenty of those dollars be allowed to Campus fees; therefore, she is not really concerned with how that money is spent." Such should not be the case. Following is a list of all organizations and their respective appropriations from Campus Fees:

Organization	Appropriation 1962-63
Art Committee	$ 400.00
Athletic Association	2,480.00
Boerc Eh Thorn	100.00
Class of 1963	500.00
Class of 1964	500.00
Class of 1965	400.00
Class of 1966	400.00
Colonnade	1,750.00
FBLA	100.00
Film Committee	400.00
French Club	100.00
H-O Club	750.00
Honors Council	100.00
Home Economics Club	100.00
Kappa Delta Pi	100.00
Longwood Choir	500.00
Longwood Forum	100.00
Longwood Players	800.00
Lycium	5,500.00
Lychnos	100.00
Music Ed. Natl. Conf.	100.00
Orchesis	100.00
Pi Delta Epsilon	100.00
Pi Gamma Mu	100.00
Pi Omega Pi	3,400.00
Rotunda	100.00
Spanish Club	100.00
S. E. A.	100.00
Student Government	850.00
Virginian	5,225.00
YWCA	700.00

Now that we know where our $20 goes, we should ask two questions. First, we should ask if each of these organizations is worth the money appropriated to it. Then, if we feel that some organization does not render the students services equivalent to the money appropriated, another question should be asked: how does that organization spend its money? Each organization must be prepared to give complete answers to the second question. If an organization can not give a complete answer to that question, it should question its right to exist on campus.

Situation: Static

State Senator L. Armstead Boothe in his speech on "States' Responsibilities and States' Rights" said, "Without public schools we will not live in a society that will reach the level it should." We the students at Longwood, have for four years lived within a county that has no public schools. We are the "we" of Senator Boothe's speech and the society to which he referred is ours, for he was referring to the society of the future and we will form that society.

While living in this county, we have been told to watch the school situation and wait; we have been told not to comment publicly on it. We have watched NAACP rallies, we have read the newspapers, we have stood by helplessly when a young Negro boy had difficulty writing his name. And we have waited for the schools to open. Now we are tired of watching and waiting.

Youth is impetuous; we admit that. But a situation such as the one existing in this county ages the young. We have grown old while watching and waiting for a satisfactory solution to this problem.

We can stand by no longer and watch the number of "intellectual morons" grow. We can not allow our future society to be stunted by the present situation. We can remain in a state of limbo no longer. The future is ours, and we want to help build that future.

The Rotunda

ESTABLISHED NOVEMBER 30, 1959

Published each week during the college year except during holidays and examination period by the students of Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia Box 148.

Donna M. Humphlett	Editor-in-Chief
Marla Grant	Managing Editor
Joan Lord	Business Manager
Pat Wallace	New Editor
Sandra Jamison	Feature Editor
Nancy Mowery	Sports Editor
Betsy Taylor	Desk Editor
Betty Ann Atkinson	Art Editor
Linda Perry	Editor
Debbie Marshall	Photography
	Circulation Manager
	Advertising Manager

Member: Virginia Intercollegiate Press (Rating First Class), Columbia Scholarship Press Association (Rating First Class), National College Press Service.

REPORTING STAFF: Barbara Aage, Theresa Albright, Leslie Aldridge, Suzanne Ballard, Paula Bostons, Margaret Cooks, Lee Crain, Dee Diehl, Eric Jase, Eddy, Beverly Gooden, Jodi Hucker, Judy Lee, Sandra Jamison, Janet Lear, Susan Lane, Mary Ann Lipford, Joan Lord, Heidi Mann, Charlotte McHugh, Gaylene Morris, Barbara Poland, Karen Rader, Barbara Rieffler, Davis Smith, Lela Sullivan, Betsy Taylor, Allison Tuzillo, Barbara Turner, Linda Turner, Pat Wallace, Dee Watkins, Annette Wenger.

CIRCULATION STAFF: Suzanne Briel, Sandra Peterson, Cindy Gray, Cheryl Howe, Jackie Lash, Cabell Montgomery, Betty Lee Noel, Mary Lee Plunkett, Jerry Powell, Eleanor Richardson, Marian Ross, Gay Stettin.

PHOTOGRAPHY STAFF: Mary Evelyn Campbell, Gray Garhart, Debbie Marshall, Nancy Robinson.

(Unlabeled editorials written by the editor)

Entered as second class matter at the Post Office at Farmville, Virginia under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879. Approved for mailing as national newspaper by the National Advertising Service. Printed by the Farmville Herald.

Survey Gives Opinions Of Longwood Faculty

A few weeks ago in the Rotunda a student survey was published, with questions including school improvements, professors, traditions and other topics. Since many of the questions concerned professors, we decided that the faculty should have equal time to voice their opinions on various subjects, including students.

Of the 30 or more teachers at Longwood, only 30 responded to the survey sheets. Because of this, the answers will not be in the majority but it will serve to give at least an idea of how the faculty looks on certain questions. Of the 30 who answered, 8 were from the English department, 5 from science, 4 from education, 3 did not mention the department, 2 from art, 2 history, 2 from math and 2 from physical education, 1 from language and 1 from music. Names were not included on the sheet.

Following are the 8 questions (of which the faculty could answer as many as they wished). For the most part, quotations from the survey sheets will tell the professors tell their own story.

If you read the Rotunda survey on students, what, if any remarks do you have concerning the survey in general or specific questions asked, and answers?

The most common answer was that the survey was too hazy and not precise enough.

"It was sloppily reported—no exact questions, no percentages, no exactness of any sort. And even well reported, the opinions of girls who are more interested in circles than anything else are worthless."

Also some felt it was unscientific or biased. "The results should not be taken too seriously, and I don't suppose the Rotunda claims to be a Dr. Gallop."

One professor remarked that, because he had not seen the raw material, he could not judge; and another said while it was worthwhile for the faculty, it was not conclusive.

Eight professors had no comment. Another stated that he favored the students' wishes for more academics.

"I read a great part of the survey with amusement because of the inconsistency and immaturity of some of the value judgments. Too frequently found students or even nonqualified students gave the answers. The ideas were timely and clever."

"I was appalled and saddened by the fact that no student seemed to feel that eagerness to learn was a necessary attribute for any student at Longwood."

On the other side, 3 felt the survey was all right in conclusions reached and the fact that students are entitled to express their opinions.

Two still different remarks concerned the fact that the survey was too critical, or perhaps too much in judgment of the departments.

"(Perhaps the real weakness was in the preparation of the questions.) I recall that—as an example—students complained of boredom in class, or of the work not being sufficiently difficult, and then in the next question replied that there should be more ghost-like parades from CHI, that rattling was fine, etc."

What is your opinion of an unlimited cut system?

On this subject came a variety of ideas. One teacher felt there should be no cuts at all, but no Saturday classes either. The same professor felt that it was a fallacy for seniors to have unlimited cuts. Three others felt the present system is workable. "As the present system disallows all but the hardest teachers from taking attendance, it's not so bad." And three others said students would tend to take advantage of the system.

Unlimited for all but freshmen was the idea of 2 of the teachers and another said it should be for all those having a C-plus or better average. Four gave no opinion.

As far as being definitely for or against, it was 12 for and 9 against. The arguments covered numerous ideas: "To my opinion there is no reason why it should not work if the school has a responsible student body."

"The best students rarely miss class; the poor students would cut their own throats under an unlimited cut system. Need I say more?"

"If the girls would really play fair and would not expect the teachers to help them make up work that they had missed, I would be in favor of it. But human nature's being what it is makes it unlikely that the unlimited cut system would work here in a situation in which many young people are not yet willing to take the blame for their own faults."

"I would like such a system. The students would have more responsibility, something which many Longwood girls need badly. Schools with 'limited cut' systems have no better attendance than those without attendance regulations."

"I attended an undergraduate university which had no 'cut' system, and it worked out fine because there were so many students smarter and more serious than I that I was literally afraid to miss a class. I would like to see us try such a system here—perhaps on an experimental basis for a limited time."

"To adopt it would assume an adult attitude on the part of students and an ability to keep up with class work. If a professor is successful in making meetings meaningful—giving more than in the text, few could afford to miss class. We have some such professors; if a girl is so bright she can keep up anyway, then I would not oppose cuts."

"I think unlimited cuts based upon having taken no cuts for a period of time is detrimental. Often a very weak student can get unlimited cuts. If such students do get unlimited cuts, the professor should be able to get the student off such a list if and when the student abuses such a privilege."

"Why is it, when students come to college, supposedly to attend classes and learn, that the first thing they seem to think about is how many classes they can cut? I am not in favor of an unlimited cut system."

"I would be in favor of an unlimited cut system provided the students were aware that with such a system came responsibility. To date I have not seen much of the latter."

Do you have any suggestions for improving student-faculty relations?

In answer to this covered a multitude of reactions. Two professors felt that existing relationships between students and faculty were good and 7 had no comment. A few others continue the student-faculty relationship.

"Forget about them. What else do you expect—to hold hands?"

"The students might do well to engage in more informal conversation with faculty members. More 'Tea Room Clubs' are needed."

"More time for individual conferences and more time for in-depth research on the part of students."

One teacher stated that there "should be no concern... if all teachers did the 'good job' in the classroom."

"Mutual respect seems to be the key to good student-faculty relations. I am happy to say I do both respect and like my students."

"Make the students more intellectual, but I guess that's a dream."

"Let's do away with the unconscious student assumption that the college exists solely for their benefit. Colleges are traditionally communities of scholars which would exist whether students sat in classrooms or not. College professors do have dignity and pursue in which existence and pursuits in which the students do not participate. We respect their own work; let the students respect ours."

In general, how do you measure the results of your teaching? (Continued on page 4)

POET RELAXES

During recent visit to Longwood college campus, Oscar Williams enjoys conversation with Dr. Rosemary Sprague, Betty Ann Atkinson, and Peggy Pond.

Poet Tours Campus During Recent Visit

by Betty Ann Atkinson

Oscar Williams, the noted poet and distinguished anthologist, paid Longwood a visit April 19th and 21st under the sponsorship of Boerc Eh Thorn, Pi Delta Epsilon and Dr. Rosemary Sprague. A tremendously inspiring lecturer as well as poet, he spoke informally to several classes and formally at a lecture-hall given by the two English organizations. He also favored us with a reading of his exciting poetry. The man who exalts poetry as the highest art ("Poetry is the wine on the table of contents," and a poet of "modern civilization," Mr. Williams believes that literature in general, and poetry in particular, is the forte of the intellectual class.

Contravertually, he advocates that poetry should be understood by the intellectually elite; that, if it be otherwise, it is not true art. In clarification, good poetry—poetry that is a manifestation of the great good Art—should be written on a variety of levels so that each reader, be he intellectual or otherwise, can derive some meaning from it. In fact, he says, no two persons should come up with the same interpretation of one poem. A variety of levels makes for greater depth and universality and the more intellectual a person is, the more he will appreciate the true work of art holds for him.

Williams Tours Campus Peggy Pond and I had the immense good fortune to be delegated by Mr. Williams' guides during his stay. Whenever he had a free moment, we gave him a tour of part of the campus and enjoyed the little gems of wisdom tapped by wonderful words which fell periodically from his lips. At the library we introduced him to Mr. Charles Utter, a fellow poet of the distinguished Yale Series of Younger Poets. Mr. Williams charmed us with his wit and his acerbically quipped, "The only difference between Mr. Butler and I is my name appeared in his book, and his did not appear in mine!" The poet was decorated with our library and particularly by our collection of rare books, notably the F. Scott Fitzgerald autographed first edition.

Later on when asked his opinion of "Longwood Ladies," Mr. Williams eloquently declared, "I want to marry them all!" When questioned a little more closely about the minds of Longwood girls, he said optimistically that he had "never been around so many bright young women before." This statement led into a discussion of ignorance and innocence, and Mr. Williams again came up with a delightful little gem: "Ignorance is a sad state of experience; whereas, innocence is a marvelous state period."

Poet Reviews Works of Students The poet graciously took time to read and critique some of the works of Longwood's budding poets. The girls, expecting severe criticism were not disappointed; but they were also high ly pleased for Mr. Williams offered excellent criticism and profound encouragement to all of them, most notably to Alice Joy Peble, who was "the most poetic," Peggy Pond who has "A marvelous sense for sound," and Sharon Coulter whose parody on E. E. Cummings he declared he was going to publish in his next anthology.

Current trends in college poetry became a topic of conversation at the luncheon for Mr. Williams, and he stated that most student poetry was "electrically controlled" in construction and philosophy. He said that college poets and professional poets in a college situation hold an advantage over poets on the outside because they are constantly exposed to new ideas other than those in current publication. They read their own poetry as well as that of others. Moreover, they are required to read established works all the time and "Can't answer back." He declared that "in the last twenty years poetry has finally found a haven in the college," for the poet can earn his living in the everbrant, intellectual atmosphere of such a situation. The poet has indeed found his corner in the college.

When asked how he got his start as a poet, he said he did not get a start; he was "condemned to be a poet." Then he added in his distinctive manner, "A sentence was passed upon me."

Influence of Poet Remains

I say it is lucky for us that someone saw fit to pass that sentence. Mr. Williams left us with the gift of his intellectual and personal influence. Every one of us who came in contact with him, either through his poetry or by meeting him and listening to him, or both, has felt the impact of his verile mind and his kindly good-humored nature. His visit is one of the highpoints in our college career and, perhaps, our lives.

Letters To Editor

"Traffic Jam" Receives Praise From Student

It seems that the sophomores have a wacky "traveller" that is more effective than many of the ordinary—non-mistake variety. This "traveller" is but one of the clever items I have enjoyed seeing on their bright green bulletin board. This case of interesting tidbits not only sports a dean's list but sometimes even a reprimand. The sophs about to be congratulated for keeping their board timely and fascinating to the extent that the hall often gets a curious bulge by passers-by. Let's have more traffic jams.

Priscilla Sallie

Longwood Alumnae Do Graduate Study

Five Longwood alumnae are doing further work at the University of Tennessee. They are Nancy Andrews and Willie Taylor of the class of '59 and Morag Noyer, Virginia Parker and Faye Ripley from the class of '62.

All of these women are working for their masters degree in physical education, which they expect to get this summer. Each was awarded a teaching scholarship, and each teaches several hours daily in addition to doing her graduate work.

Nancy, Willie, and Virginia teach service classes such as tennis, badminton, and folk and square dance at the University.

Faye teaches physical education at the Tennessee School for the Deaf. Morag helps with recreational therapy for the mentally disturbed at the Tennessee Eastern State Hospital.

All of these "majors" also participate in cocurricular activities such as the Water Pageant and Dance Club demonstration. They did technical work and some participated in the activities themselves.

All five expect to complete the classroom courses this quarter and plan to work on their theses during June and July.

Willie Taylor's paper is a study on the effect of remedial physical education on college women with low physical fitness and motor ability.

Nancy Andrews is a comparison of the top ten percent and lowest ten percent of freshmen women scoring in the motor ability and physical fitness tests. Faye Ripley is making a survey of varsity sports for high school girls in Virginia, and Morag Noyer is developing a general sports knowledge examination for women at the University of Tennessee.

Virginia Parker is studying the relationship between physical education grades and overall academic averages of sophomore women at the University of Tennessee.

Nancy will remain at the University as a member of the physical education staff. She will teach swimming and be advisor for the swimming club and water pageant.

Two Longwood physical education staff members, Miss Rebecca B. Brockenbrough and Miss Olive T. Her recently visited these five alumnae and reported great pleasure at seeing the "girls'" enthusiasm and progress.

New Death Record Set By Motorists

Motorists in 1962 raced down the nation's highways on their way to a new — and tragic — death record which for the first time exceeded 40,000 fatalities, according to a report released by The Travelers Insurance Companies.

The number of people injured in traffic accidents also took a sharp turn upward.

The authoritative report, first issued in 1931, is prepared annually by The Travelers and is based on information provided by state motor vehicle departments. More than 3,000,000 copies are distributed every year.

U. S. highway deaths in 1962 totaled 40,800, a seven per cent increase over 1961. Not since 1941, when 39,969 persons lost their lives, has the traffic fatality record been so high.

The report also reveals a nine per cent jump in the number of injured in 1962 compared with 1961. In all, 3,345,000 men, women and children were hurt in auto accidents last year.

"As it stands, last year's record is truly tragic," a Travelers spokesman commented. "But what makes it even more disheartening is that it comes on the heels of what we had hoped was a downward trend beginning in 1961."

Excessive speed again led the way as the primary cause of accidents. Nearly 13,000 people were killed and more than 1,145,000 were injured as a direct result of speeding violations. Other major causes of accidents included driving on the wrong side of the road and reckless driving.

LC Group Visits Washington DC; Other Places

April 11, the members of Pi Gamma Mu, the Nathaniel Macon Society, and Dr. Helms' seminar history course went to Washington, D. C.

Places that they visited in Washington were sessions of both the House of Representatives and the Senate, the National Art Gallery, National Archives, and the National History Building. On its way back to Longwood the group stopped to see Robert E. Lee's home and Arlington Cemetery.

All who went have received passes for the eight-eighth session of the House of Representatives.

The members of the trip all agree that the trip was very successful, interesting, and enlightening. In fact, the trip was such a success that Dr. Helms is planning for the groups to go again next year.

Members of the 232 class are Jo Bartlett, Nevis Bern, Carolyn Cline, Phyllis Collins, Anne Cordie, Carol Doak, Jayne Eddy, Rebecca Evans, Charlene Garner, Melaine Hall, Elizabeth Hodnett, Carl Hoger, Donna Kalka, Phyllis Lasley Mary Munox, Joyce Neal, Barbara Regan, Lurise Robertson, Melody Saunders, Judith Squire, Carolyn Stephenson, Frances Stewart, Jackie Walker, and Carrie Wilson.

Members of Orchestra are Ellen Barnes, Sue Durham, Janice Harris, Joan Lord, Brenda Johnson, Sarah Jane Lynch, Glendon Merchant, and Joyce Waldburger. Argentinians of Orchestra are Caroline Cline, Dottie Cox, Diana Delk, Kathy Dean, Ann Evans, Rebecca Evans, Helena Mail, Elizabeth Hodnett, Carl Hoger, Jean Leary, Joanne Otto, and Jackie Walker. Mrs. Emily K. Landrum, associate Professor of Physical Education, is advisor.

Bloodmobile

A second Bloodmobile will be at the Armory in Farmville April 26. Those who would like to give blood are asked to see Eunice Lewis.

WORKING FOR MASTERS

While studying for masters degree at University of Tennessee, above Longwood alumnae, Virginia Parker and Morag Noyer (seated); and Willie Taylor, Nancy Andrews, and Faye Ripley continue teaching several hours daily.

Modern Dance Students To Present Assembly

Orchestra members and apprentices with students from the various dance classes will present an hour of dance at the April 30 Student Assembly, in Jarman Hall. Twenty members of Orchestra (including apprentices) will make up one group for dancing. Students enrolled in Modern Dance (Physical Education 232) and Advanced Modern Dance or the Dance Choreography class — Physical Education 321, make up a second group.

All dances will relate to some daily aspect of college life at Longwood. Spectators will be given opportunities to estimate what they would do with the problem as it will be unfolded beforehand or after the group has danced. Some dances will be shown more than once. Some dances will be torn apart and then put together. In another instance spectators will listen to music without being told what it will be done on stage, but they will be given the opportunity to probably realize that some of their ideas coincide with those which the dancers develop.

"Watchers Watch Watchers" is the first work to Malament's music, simply entitled "Contrasts." The Modern Dance class will perform in this group work, which intentionally creates or engenders the feeling "Who is watching whom?" or "Who are you now?" A close scrutiny of the two different themes as they identify themselves in the use of space, and the quality of movement, patterns are clues for the audience. Watching for a change of original positions of those who appear stealthily and of those who are more direct or bold may indicate a dramatic theme of the whole work, but a return to the original theme clarifies both watcher groups.

Graduation is the second dance as a formal group design to Lohoff's music. Members of Orchestra and students in the Advanced Modern Dance class will portray the trials of graduating. "Who graduates? Who fails?"

"It's spring" describes a typical dorm scene possibly more clearly defined at the freshmen-sophomore level. The Modern Dance class will perform here as four distinct dances, which are examples of spontaneous combustion, or the group process at play and not study.

At this date, according to the students in all modern dance classes, it is doubtful that a Rainy Day" will be finished for showing if there isn't an actual downpour as the walks to and from Wheeler and Cunningham are too dry for actual practice. The last work, Autumn Leaves, to a stylized version of the tune will be spearheaded by members of the Advanced Modern Dance class with apprentices assisting. Each member of the class is responsible for one aspect of the color and painting study, since the theme of autumn leaves in body design movements in space is developed through musical themes and these relate to specific colors. This work will be shown a second time to exemplify that the human eye can only absorb so much the first time. In the second showing, one is able to relate one color to another color, since movement in space and body design in space objectify the final picture.

Members of the Advanced class will be in charge of staging, lighting, makeup and sound. These are: Betty Ann Atkinson Mary Ellen Barnes, Dorothy Cox, Diana Delk, Glendon Merchant, Shelby Webb, and Joyce Waldburger.

Members of the 232 class are Jo Bartlett, Nevis Bern, Carolyn Cline, Phyllis Collins, Anne Cordie, Carol Doak, Jayne Eddy, Rebecca Evans, Charlene Garner, Melaine Hall, Elizabeth Hodnett, Carl Hoger, Donna Kalka, Phyllis Lasley Mary Munox, Joyce Neal, Barbara Regan, Lurise Robertson, Melody Saunders, Judith Squire, Carolyn Stephenson, Frances Stewart, Jackie Walker, and Carrie Wilson.

Members of Orchestra are Ellen Barnes, Sue Durham, Janice Harris, Joan Lord, Brenda Johnson, Sarah Jane Lynch, Glendon Merchant, and Joyce Waldburger. Argentinians of Orchestra are Caroline Cline, Dottie Cox, Diana Delk, Kathy Dean, Ann Evans, Rebecca Evans, Helena Mail, Elizabeth Hodnett, Carl Hoger, Jean Leary, Joanne Otto, and Jackie Walker. Mrs. Emily K. Landrum, associate Professor of Physical Education, is advisor.

FORE!

Practicing for Virginia Collegiate Golf Tournament are Bobbie Burrell and Joanna Otto, members of Longwood's

Burrell, Otto Compete In Collegiate Tourney

Longwood's golf team participated in the Virginia Collegiate Golf Tournament at Mary Baldwin April 20 and 21. Members of the team are Bobbie Burrell and Joanna Otto.

Joanna tied with the winner of the tournament and came in second. Both girls improved on the back nine holes of the course. Joanna improved 12 strokes and Bobbie improved 9. They had been told that the back 9 holes were the hardest.

Bobbie's father acted as her caddy, but did not counsel her for the shots, because he was afraid she would get nervous. She was so excited about playing that she played until after dark Sunday night and her father had to use a flashlight to see in the dark.

Visit The Newly Remodeled
COLLEGE SHOPPE
and try
Our Delicious
Pizzas!

Speaker

Delma Kennedy Field Representative of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers will speak Thursday, April 25, at 1 p. m. in the Small Auditorium. Mrs. Kennedy is sponsored by the Student Education Association.

State Theatre FARMVILLE, VA.

Tickets on sale at the State Theatre for "The Longest Day" now playing and "Cleopatra" opening June 26. Willow Lawn Theatre, Richmond, Va.

Wed.-Thurs. — April 24-25

April 26 Thru 30
To kill a Mockingbird
— GREGORY PECK

May 1 - 2
LAURENCE OLIVIER
SIMONE SIGNORE
"TERM OF TRAIL"

FARMVILLE DRIVE-IN THEATRE Farmville, Va.

Wednesday Only—April 24

'CASH NIGHT'
$30.00 FREE

—On The Screen—

Wed.-Thurs.—April 24-25

Friday — April 26

"SPEED CRAZY"
And
"REBEL SET"

Saturday — April 27

"BROKEN LAND"
And
"HELL IS FOR HEROES"

Sun. - Mon. - Tues.

April 28 - 29 - 30

Troy Donavue-Angie Dickinson

Rosano Brazzi-Suzanne Plekhette

"ONE ADVENTURE"
TECHNICOLOR WARNER BROS.

Wed.-Thurs. — May 1-2

Each Wednesday Night

Remember Mother
With a Decorated Cake
from
LEESE'S PASTRY SHOP
$1.20-up

SUMMER JOBS
Send now for list of 1000
summer employers.
camps, hotels—U. S.,
Canada, Mexico
$1.00 To
Stanley Associates
Box 2144
Philadelphia 3, Pa.

VOLKSWAGENS
New and Used
Now Taking Orders for
May and June Delivery
Ward Motor Corporation
Authorized Volkswagen
Dealer
216 Petersburg Pike
(Seven Blocks South
of Lee Bridge)
Richmond, Virginia
Telephone BE 2-2371

Pretty New Shipment of Party Dresses and Formals (Shorty & Long)
$14.99 & up
at the
DOROTHY MAY
STORE

Professors Ask Student Body For Contributions To Classes

(Continued from page 2)

The most-used answer to this was tests and quizzes. One professor clarified his answer by saying these meant only temporary knowledge, however.

Another is went along with the idea of tests, quizzes, exams and papers. Class participation was cited by 6 as being important.

Improvement, success of former students, and observation each got 2 "votes" of approval. Two other answers were similar to this one:

"I don't try. I prepare for every lesson. I aim to get across one new idea each period. I want to know I have failed."

One other said the grading system is inadequate but "a necessary evil."

An all-encompassing statement was: "class discussion, practical application of ideas to case studies, dramatizations, oral reports, panel discussion, objective test, essay tests, conferences, etc." And another remarked: "genuine interest on the part of students and enthusiasm, understanding, sense of achievement of students."

On the negative side was this answer:

"Whenever students talk in class, are inattentive — looking out in space, etc. — I am doing a poor job!"

What, in general, do you expect of a student?

In the previous survey it was asked what a professor "owed" a student, and a picture was given of the ideal professor. Of course this was from the student's point of view. Now here is the ideal student, from the professors' point of view.

The ideal student uses her head (thinks, is mentally alert, and is open-minded). She is interested in her work and has a desire to learn as much as possible. "Willingness to learn not only material that will be covered in tests, but material relevant to the course which might increase her intellect; study through interest and inquiry, not study for a grade. Respect for the college as a place of learning."

She is diligent, "intellectually stimulated and stimulating," does not work only for a grade, is attentive, and honest. She has integrity, "intellectual curiosity, perception," and is willing to take correction. Perhaps included in "the best work the student is capable of doing" are participation in class, handling in assignments or tests, not talking in class and a certain involvement with the subject.

Along different lines are: "...decorum, good humor and manners" and "to be courteous — even at 8 a.m."

Someone summed up the answer this way: "1) assimilation of information, 2) information, 3) application of information and 3) application (where appropriate) of information by analogy to new problems and situations."

What do you enjoy least about teaching?

Under this heading was one outstanding dislike — "grading reams of papers." Eleven professors answered thusly.

Among other things were calling roll (3), extracurricular work (5), reading tests and exams (5), and other "busy, busy work."

Not enough cultural advantages in a small town, the closed mind of some students, "lack of intellectual curiosity," and the inadequacy of the grading system were other dislikes.

One teacher said he did not like students asking "What's going to be on the test?" and 3 stated they would like to see the abolishment of Saturday classes. Two had no comment.

Another point of view: "... dull students you see, some of you aren't as inspirational and stimulating to the intellect either."

What do you enjoy most about teaching?

This is where the professors came up with perhaps the most interesting and provocative remarks. Some of the survey quotes would probably be the best variation of thoughts:

"Provoking a few minds now and then. Those students who think I am adding to their development. This does more for my ego and sense of well-being than any salary check could."

"I like to see a student work and work towards a goal and finally accomplish said goal and then continue onward and upward."

"Being able in a small way to impart a little understanding of my subject to the students."

"Trying to get the student to want to learn for learning's sake."

"I have inquiring minds—a challenge."

"Seeing imaginations take fire. Opening hitherto unopened doors and seeing the results of new revelation."

"The real reward is to be conscious of a student's growth and development."

"Discussing ideas with those who seem interested in them. Most people of college age would fit this category. I think we still think that teaching is the most completely satisfactory work in the world."

"Almost everything. Teaching to me is not a job. It is my way of life."

Any other comments which might add interest to the survey?

On this question, also, the professors outdid themselves with everything from disliking railing to their personal words of wisdom. One teacher suggested that professors give out cards at mid-semester and ask for students' ideas on improvements or suggestions. Then this could be repeated again at the end of the year "because what a student wants to improve in a course while taking it is most of the time very different from what a student would like to improve in the same course after he or she has finished it."

Another said, "The Registrar's office needs an IBM..." and one added that "more vigorous" was needed on our campus."

The fact that our generation will soon be the important factor in leading the world of tomorrow possibly prompted a professor to state the need for our taking advantage of all means of learning. "If students can be motivated to take advantage of these superior means of instruction, the educational level of society could be raised more in the next generation than in the whole history of civilization to the present time."

Seven teachers had no comment, but a cross-section of those who did follow:

Longwood will not improve academically until the caliber of the student body and faculty improves."

"Each student should ask herself, 'Why am I in college?' ... and then she should think critically, yet, keeping in mind that criticism based upon understanding is good and criticism without understanding is hollow."

"What is the purpose of this survey?"

"Learning is not fun. There is a lot of drudgery connected with it. There is joy in learning, however, despite the drudgery."

"Sir up things. Give more surveys. Make more people mad. Be a thorn in the side of colleagues."

This seems to be a good thought on which to end:

"The further one goes in graduate school, for instance, the more one frees himself from the teachers. The moment of complete independence comes when one finally realizes that he is his own best teacher — that he can learn best from his own reading and thinking. When that moment arrives, the teacher becomes almost a liability. Perhaps in the undergraduate stage the needs teachers to keep one at his work, but the more one can study for himself and the less he depends upon the teacher or teachers the better off he will be."

The Rotunda welcomes any comment on this survey, and any suggestions for future surveys and how they can be improved so that they can be of more importance and value to Longwood in general.

HISTORIAN SPEAKS

While waiting to present lecture in Jarman Auditorium last Thursday, noted historian Dexter Perkins chats with Dr. Helms. Topic of Dr. Perkins' talk was "The Constitution after 175 Years."

Noted Historian Perkins Speaks On Constitution

Dr. Dexter Perkins, professor of American Civilization at Cornell University, addressed a "small" group of Longwood students Thursday, April 18, at one o'clock in Jarman auditorium on the "Constitution after 175 Years"—a subject of vital interest to everyone. In his speech, Dr. Perkins attempted to point out why such a relatively "old" document with only one structural change, the seventeenth amendment, has been able to endure in our dynamic society.

Aluding to this trend of slight constitutional revision, and this only by amendment Dr. Perkins attributes it predominantly to the wisdom of our constitutional fathers who have given us a good basic outline for our democratic system—the Constitution having proved itself flexible enough to meet the exigencies of a changing society.

From the beginning, however, he explained, the Constitution has faced the problem of reconciling liberty and increased governmental power. As is evident from the document's content, the framers of the Constitution were not totally libertarians and therefore provided those checks against excesses of the majority familiar to every student of American history. One of these "implied" checks, judicial review, has had a complicated history since its debut under John Marshall.

Beginning with the Marshallian epoch and epitomized in the era of the New Deal, the trend has been towards increased Federal power. In coordination with state Senator Boothe, Dr. Perkins apparently feels that our national government has asserted its jurisdiction over the states because the latter have failed to fulfill their responsibilities.

As an example of obvious dereliction of duty, he pointed to the Baker vs. Carr in Tennessee dealing with the apportionment of that state. This neglect on the part of Tennessee, Dr. Perkins termed "shameful." Today's society being an industrialized, urban one, state representation should be apportioned accordingly. However, he interjected, the states need not fear for their survival as they form the integral part of the two-party system as it is in the states that the reconcentration of the power of the losing party takes place. Since it is in turn this same two-party system which forms the basis of our democratic government, the states cannot disappear.

Without doubt, the American people have enlarged Federal governmental power but only because they have been forced by necessity to do so. To illustrate this Dr. Perkins utilized examples in which such as in the desirability to that protection of the individual, the restrictions placed on monopolies, the economy!

In conclusion, Dr. Perkins stated that our Constitution has provided safeguards against the two extremes, anarchy and totalitarianism, and in addition, has served as a means of adapting our form of government to a world in a state of perpetual change.

Senator Boothe Visits Longwood To Give Speech

Armistead Boothe, Virginia state senator, spoke to Longwood in assembly about "States' Rights and States' Responsibilities." Senator Boothe, the only politician to speak about politics at Longwood in several years, was sponsored by the Longwood Forum. Senator Boothe contributed the honorarium given to him by the Longwood Forum to the Lancaster Scholarship Fund.

The senator began his talk with convoluted remarks about being a foreigner from Northern Virginia, ironically in a typical, southern manner. The real substance of his message was that states have no rights, but only responsibilities. The sole function of the states is to protect the rights of its individual citizens.

The Bill of Rights is to protect the citizens from the federal government. Since World War II the federal government has been using the powers provided in the 13-15th Amendments to protect the individuals against the states, said Boothe.

During the states mentioned by Senator Boothe are the construction and maintenance of highways, protection of the "right to vote," responsible representation, proper administration of welfare functions (hospitals, workmen's compensation, etc.) and actuation of a climate for industrial development. Senator Boothe named education as the greatest single function of a state.

Poll tax was a topic of discussion both in the speech and in the students' questions. Senator Boothe did not approve of the poll tax because it is a hindrance to "clean, crisp voting" rules. He also proposed that registration be simplified; once registered, if one votes every year, he stays registered, he suggested.

"Public schools should not be closed," said Boothe. Regardless of how one feels about the desegregation problem, it is a state responsibility, but one that has not been fulfilled. He said he did not approve of the presidential commissions, or other agencies coming in to take over that is for the Virginians to work out. The lack of public education hurts the whole economy of the community. Senator Boothe adjured that the right to education will be written into the decisions of the courts as a basic right.

When asked what we as students in Prince Edward County can do, the senator answered we must leave it to the legislators. The fact was brought up that the county confirmed that Longwood students are counted in the population of Prince Edward County.

Faculty Committee Organizes Institute

The Institute of Southern Culture, founded in 1956, has since been active on the Longwood campus. Its purpose is "to promote the study of traditional aspects of Southern civilization through academic course work, special lectures, and through the publication of research in the field."

In 1959 the theme was "Education in the South." The speakers and their topics were namely: "The Civil War Comes to the Campus" by Mary Elizabeth Massey; "The Image of a Southern Orator: Weyland's Stand in the Senate" by David Wiley; "The Southern Bourbon: What He Was and What Education Did to Him" by John K. Batters; "The Southern Reaction to the Ogedon Movement" by James W. Patton; "Factors in Virginia's Educational Development with Special Attention to Longwood College" by M. Boyd Corner; and "Education in Colonial Virginia. Formal and Informal: An Interpretative Study" by C. G. Gordon Moss.

"Art and Music in the South" was the central idea in the 1960 series. The lecturers and lectures were as follows: "The Art Museum and the Southeast" by Gregory D. King; "The Southern Origins of Rock and Roll Music" by James McCombs; "Domestic Architecture in Virginia" by Annie Lee Ross; "Music in the South" by K. D. Kunkle; "Art Music in Colonial Virginia" by John W. Molnar; and "Painting in the South — A Double Portrait" by Jon D. Longaker.

In 1961 the main topic was "The Dilemma of the South Writer." Those topics lectured upon were as follows: "The Writer as Parish in the Old South" by Willard Thorne; "Poe in Richmond: The Double Image" by Robert D. Jacobs; "Mary Johnston and the Historic Imagination" by Lawrence W. Nelson; "The Shadowy Society of Ellen Glasgow" by Richard K. Meeker; "Cabel and His Critics" by Dorothy B. Schlegel; and "Faulkner and the South" by James B. Meriwether.

The lecture series for 1962 consisted of Quality Education for the Southern Woman" by Althea K. Hotel; "Higher Education and the Nature of the Southern Woman" by Francis B. Simkins; "The Twentieth Century Revolution and the Higher Education of Southern Women" by Gladys Boone; "History of Higher Education in the South" by Fleischer M. Green; "Coeducation and Coordination versus the Traditional Woman's College" by Eudora Ramsey Richardson; and "Higher Education in the Traditional Woman's College" by Otis Singletary.

"The South in Perspective" was the theme of the 1958 session. Those taking part and by topics are as follows: "Jameson Revisited" by Marshall Fleischer; "The Changing South" by Gordon W. Blackwell; "James Branch Cabell and Southern Romanticism" by Dorothy B. Schlegel; "The Younger Generation of Southern Fiction Writers" by Richard

From The Board

At the April 9th meeting Melody Saunders and Lois Obenshain, representing the Student Activities Committee, presented the proposed changes in the Regulations concerning Student Activities to the Legislative Board. After discussion of the changes and further clarification of some of these changes, the regulations were accepted and formally approved by the members of the Board.

There were several additions to the clauses of these regulations:

1. The business manager and assistant editor of The Virginian shall have the same grade requirement as the editor of that publication.
2. The business editor and assistant editor of The Colonnade shall have the same grade requirement as the editor of that publication.
3. The managing editor and the business manager of The Rotunda shall have the same grade requirement as the editor of that publication. (This grade average is 1.3 (3) and 2.3 (4).)
4. All other under-editors of The Rotunda, The Virginian, and The Colonnade shall have a 1.1 (3) and 2.1 (4). This corresponds with the grade average necessary for "the officers, representatives, managers, and permanent committee chairmen" which comes under Rule 3, A, on page 1 of the revised mimeographed copy of the Regulations.
5. Number 9, page 2 of revised mimeographed copy of the regulations; any violation of these rules will be dealt with at the discretion of the governing Board of Student Government. This seemed to us to be the most convenient way of checking the enforcement of these rules. It was not made in anticipation of any breakage of the rules. We know that the student body will uphold them as a principle of personal honor.

Government Passes New Constitution

The Legislative Board of Student Government held a special meeting Monday to discuss the rewritten constitution.

After discussing the document in detail and amending it in part the vote was taken. The constitution was unanimously approved for presentation to the student body for ratification.

The following is the constitution as approved by the Legislative Board.

PREAMBLE

We, the undergraduate students of Longwood College, desirous of assuming appropriate responsibility in the management of our affairs, do ordain and establish this Constitution for the Woman's Student Government Association.

Article I

(Legislative Authority)

Section I.

All legislative powers herein granted shall be invested in the Legislative Board.

Section II.

The Legislative Board shall consist of two (2) representatives from each of the four classes, one (1) day student representative, and the President of House Council. Representatives shall be elected for a term of one year beginning no later than April 15 and must be in good academic standing, excepting the Freshman representatives who shall take office no later than November 1.

Section III.

The Legislative Board shall determine and publish the rules of its own proceedings and it shall be the judge of the elections and qualifications of its members, two thirds of whom shall constitute a quorum to do business.

Section IV.

The Legislative Board shall have the power to:

- raise and collect such funds as shall be necessary to pay the debts and provide for the operation of the Association.
- to establish and define the powers of such boards, councils, committees, or offices as it shall be necessary to call into special session by the President of the Association in executing, enforcing, or administering the laws and functions of the Association.
- make all student social regulations and all laws necessary and proper for the protection of the health, safety, and general welfare of the Association.
- make all laws concerning student activities (nonacademic in character) and to approve of the existence or formulation of all clubs, societies, associations, and societies (honorary or otherwise).
- remove an officer of the Association and - or officer or member of the Legislative or Judicial Board with the concurrence of two-thirds of the members of the Board and two thirds of the student body. Elections to fill the vacant office then shall be held on the 10th day following the action.

Section V.

House Council shall be a subsidiary organization of the Legislative Board.

Section VI.

No bill of attainder or ex post facto law shall be passed.

Section VII.

The Legislative Board shall meet once each week and such other times as it shall be called into special session by the President of the Association.

Article II.

(Executive Authority)

Section I.

The executive power shall be vested in a President of the Association. The term of the President, together with the Vice-President, Secretary, and Treasurer, shall be one year, beginning not later than April 15. They shall be elected by the student body.

Section II.

The President and the Vice-President must be members of the Senior class, and the Secretary and the Treasurer must be members of the Junior class.

Section III.

Duties of the officers of the

Association:

- It shall be the duty and power of the President to call an President at all meetings of the Association and of the Legislative Board, and perform all other duties pertaining to the office of President.
- The Vice-President shall preside in the absence of the President. If for any reason the President cannot serve, the Vice-President shall become President and a new Vice-President shall be elected. The Vice-President shall be in charge of the orientation of new students.
- The Secretary shall assume all duties pertaining to the office of Secretary.
- The Treasurer shall keep a record of all funds received and expended by the Legislative Board. She shall serve as a member of the student activities fees committee.

Article III.

Judicial Authority)

Section I.

The Judicial authority of the Association shall be vested in a Judicial Board which shall consist of two (2) representatives from each of the four classes and one (1) day student to be elected by the student body. They shall take office no later than April 15, excepting the Freshman representatives who shall take office no later than November 1.

Section II.

There shall be a Chairman, Vice-Chairman, and a Secretary of the Judicial Board. The Chairman and the Vice-Chairman, from the Senior class, and the Secretary from the Junior class, shall be elected by the student body and begin their term of office no later than April 15.

Section III.

Duties of the officers of the Judicial Board:

- It shall be the duty and the power of the Chairman to call and preside at all meetings of the Judicial Board. It shall also be the duty of the Chairman to execute the law, and to supervise and direct its enforcement.
- The Vice-Chairman shall preside in the absence of the Chairman. If for any reason the Chairman cannot serve, the Vice-Chairman shall become Chairman and a new Vice-Chairman shall be elected. It shall be the duty of the Vice-Chairman to prosecute violations of the law.
- The Secretary shall assume all duties pertaining to the office of Secretary.

Section IV.

The Judicial Board power shall extend to all cases and controversies arising under this constitution or laws made in pursuance thereof.

Section V.

The Judicial Board shall supervise and direct the operation of the Honor Code and try all cases arising under it.

Section VI.

The Judicial Board shall have the final authority to interpret this constitution and on request shall give advisory opinions.

Section VII.

The Judicial Board shall establish the rules of its own proceedings except that no accused person shall be denied the right of counsel, nor the right to know the nature of all charges brought against her, nor the right to have witnesses in her behalf.

Article IV.

(Recall)

Any elected officer of the Association may be removed from office if two thirds of the student body shall vote to support a petition signed by one fourth of the student body asking for the removal of an officer.

Article V.

(Voting)

The time, place, and manner of holding election shall be determined by the Legislative Board.

Section II.

Fifteen days before an election the President of the Association shall publicly announce the

(Continued on page 3)

See Poll
Page 4

Read
Constitution

THE ROTUNDA

VOL. VII

Longwood College, Farmville, Va., May 1, 1963

No. 19

Betty Howard First Organist In State Meet

Betty Howard, a music major, from Arlington won first place in the Richmond Organ Competition sponsored by the American Guild of Organists. The finals of this contest were held April 27 at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church in Richmond. The first place prize was $75 along with a contract to give the first recital in the 1963-64 Repertory Series of the Richmond chapter.

BETTY HOWARD

Betty first entered this competition when she submitted a tape recording of one movement of a Bach Trio Sonata (No. 5) and a piece by Bernhard Christensen entitled "Gisleden Hjer Er Fdi i Dag" (a Danish piece). The tape was sent on March 29.

Four finalists were picked under this category and Betty won first place in the taping competition. The four finalists were invited to play on the 27th where Betty won the first place.

Recitals

Student and faculty recitals have been planned for the month of May. Jeannette Elder and Pat Gallahan will present their recital May 5. On May 12, Betty Ann Rex will present her recital. Dr. Adams has a recital scheduled for May 19.

Students Find Tuition Increase In 1964 Session

Tuition costs of Virginia students at Longwood for the 1963-1964 session have been increased from $78 to $90. This increased charge results from the increased cost of running the college.

The total $80 is distributed as follows: $325, college fees; $20 student activity fee; $40, room, board, and laundry; $15 construction fee; $1, Post Office box rent. The only increase over last session lies in the proportionment for room, board, and laundry.

The cost for day students will be $372, a decrease of $10, due to the decreased construction fee for all students. The fee for non-Virginia students remains the same relative to the increased cost for Virginia students.

Editor Selects Colonnade Staff For '63-'64 Term

Barbara Poland, editor-in-chief of the Colonnade, has announced her staff for 1963-64. Working with Barbara as assistant editor is Diana Upshur. Evelyn Gray is short story editor; Judy Beck, poetry editor; Earlene Brown, essay editor; Melaine Wilkes and Judy Woodard are co-editors. Anna White is the business manager of the Colonnade. Assisting her are Katherine Pulley, circulation manager and Betty Ann Wall, head typist.

MAY DAY PRELUDE

Preparing for May Day, students practice dances for afternoon festivities. May Day will take place Saturday, May 4, at 3 p.m. at Longwood estate.

Players, Jongleurs To Present Plays In Johns Auditorium At H-S

Two one-act comedies by N. F. Simpson will be presented by the Hampden-Sydney Jongleurs, the Longwood Players, and the Drama Fraternities of both schools, Alpha Psi Omega. The plays will be given at Johns Auditorium at Hampden-Sydney at 8:00 on May 2 and 3. This will be the first time in five years that Alpha Psi Omega will have presented a play in Johns Auditorium. All rehearsals have been held at Hampden-Sydney, but the scenery crews worked in Jarman.

These two plays, The Form and A Resounding Thistle, are a series of crazy incidents. This is typical of the new trend in American drama, the Theater of the Absurd, similar to the French Avant Garde. The Form takes place in an office and is about two men and their two secretaries. A Resounding Thistle tells of the problems that Middle and Bro Paradock have with an elephant Mr. French. The Form will star David Reya as Mr. Whinby, Carla McNair as Miss Havior, Mary Lynn Landers as Miss Ongew, and Ed Baker as Mr. Charlerson. A Resounding Thistle will star Mike Couchman as Bro Paradock, Dottie Cox as Middle Paradock, and Pat Newton as Uncle Ted.

The heads of the crews and committees are as follows: Stage Manager, Marcia Stegfred; Light, Karen Butler; Scenery, Ann Coleman; Props, Patti O'Neill; Costumes, Bobbie Fletcher; Make-up, Cheramy Howe and Peggy Waldo; Publicity, Scottie MacGregor.

The admission is free for Hampden-Sydney students, 50 cents for Longwood students, and $1 for adults. Free transportation will be provided for Longwood students.

May Day To Celebrate 'Fantasy Fair' Theme

Longwood's annual May Day celebration will begin at 3:00 Saturday, May 4 with the theme of "Fantasy Fair." The first event of the evening will be the entrance of the May Court escorted by the Pershing Rifles, who are members of the crack drill team at V. P. I.

The following girls will be members of May Court: Susanne Ballard, Janice Carol Blowe, Jane Frances Bryan, Roberta Gresham Cadow, Meredith Cate, Pamela Gay Croy, Donna Rae Prantzen.

Also, Barbara Oakley Loth, Wanda Leigh Old, Cecelia Lynne Olsen, Connie Parkins, and Lellani Kay Robinson. Gari Wells Dickson will be Queen of May Day, and her Maid of Honor will be Sandra Lee Little.

As the evening progresses, one will be taken to see Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs Hansel and Gretel, Tom Sawyer and his friends, and Pinocchio. As various phases of the program the following dances will be seen: Tom Sawyer, Hansel and Gretel, Snow White, Wooden Soldiers, Clock, May Court, and an Indian Dance.

Cindy Gay is this year's May Day Chairman, and the following students have been working under her in their respective committees: Carol Martin and Lynn Hancock, dance; Cheramy Howe, decorations; Amy Haley, invitations; Carolyn Anderson, tickets; Freshman Commission, refreshments; Jane Carol Madison, advertising.

Donna Franzen, B. Reamy, Cindy Gay, Barbara Loth, Shirley Moody, and Susan Rollins have worked on theme and script; Evelyn Gray, May Court; Ann Persak and Lynn Guerin, properties; Per Waldo and C. Ruffit, make-up; Connie Birch, Natalie Miller, and Barbara Fields, technical directions.

Brenda Isbel is chairman of scenery; Doris Harrison, Maria Costan, and Jo Ann Stack, publicity and program; and Laurie Hamlet, Signe Young, and Joyce Cundiff, costumes. Drinks will be sold in the Dell by the Freshman Commission.

Literary Works Receive Awards In '63 Contest

Winners of the 1963 Colonnade Literary Contest were announced in Assembly Tuesday, April 23. First, second, and third prizes were awarded in the poetry and essay categories. First and second prizes were awarded in the short story category.

Poetry

Peggy Pond won first and third prizes in the poetry category. Her winning poems were "The Island" and "A Memory." Rebecca Wilburn won second prize with "A View."

Essay

Nelda Shields won the first prize in the essay category with her critical analysis of "To Celia" by Ben Jonson. Ann Friedman and Harriet Hunt won second prize with an excerpt from their novel, A Broad Abroad. Shirley Gunn won third place with her essay, "Hawthorne: The Artist."

Short Story

Ginny Gilmore won first place in the short story category with "The Test." Maria Grant won second place with "Charlie." The judges for the contest were Dr. Rosemary Sprague, Dr. Maurice Sneller and Kay Willis.

Government Passes New Constitution

The Legislative Board of Student Government held a special meeting Monday to discuss the rewritten constitution.

After discussing the document in detail and amending it in part the vote was taken. The constitution was unanimously approved for presentation to the student body for ratification.

The following is the constitution as approved by the Legislative Board.

PREAMBLE

We, the undergraduate students of Longwood College, desirous of assuming appropriate responsibility in the management of our affairs, do ordain and establish this Constitution for the Woman's Student Government Association.

Article I

Section I.
Legislative Authority

All legislative powers herein granted shall be invested in a Legislative Board.

Section II.
The Legislative Board shall consist of two (2) representatives from each of the four classes, one (1) day student representative, and the President of Young Council. Representatives shall be elected for a term of one year beginning no later than April 15 and must be in good academic standing, excepting the Freshman representatives who shall take office no later than November 1.

Section III.
The Legislative Board shall determine and publish the rules of its own proceedings and it shall be the judge of the elections and qualifications of its members, two thirds of whom shall constitute a quorum to do business.

Section IV.

The Legislative Board shall have the power to:

- raise and collect such funds as shall be necessary to pay the debts and provide for the operation of the Association;
- to establish and define the powers of such boards, councils, committees, or offices as it shall be necessary to aid the president of the Association in executing, enforcing, or administering the laws and functions of the Association;
- make all student social regulations and all laws necessary and proper for the protection of the health, safety, and general welfare of the Association;
- make all laws concerning student activities (non-academic in character) and to approve of the existence or formulation of all clubs, societies (honorary or otherwise);
- remove an officer of the Association and/or officer or member of the Legislative

Board with the concurrence of two-thirds of the members of the Board and two thirds of the student body. Elections to fill the vacant office then shall be held on the 10th day following the action.

Section V.

House Council shall be a subsidiary organization of the Legislative Board.

Section VI.
No bill of attainder or ex post facto law shall be passed.

Section VII.

The Legislative Board shall meet once each week and such other times as it shall be called into special session by the President of the Association.

Article II

(Executive Authority)

Section I.

The executive power shall be vested in a President of the Association. The term of the President, together with the Vice-President, Secretary, and Treasurer, shall be one year, beginning not later than April 15. They shall be elected by the student body.

Section II.

The President and the Vice-President must be members of the Senior class, and the Secretary and the Treasurer must be members of the Junior class.

Section III.

Duties of the officers of the Association:

(a) It shall be the duty and power of the President to call an assembly at the meetings of the Association and of the Legislative Board, and perform all other duties pertaining to the office of President.

(b) The Vice-President shall preside in the absence of the President. If for any reason the President cannot serve, the Vice-President shall become President and a new Vice-President shall be elected. The Vice-President shall be in charge of the orientation of new students.

(c) The Secretary shall assume all duties pertaining to the office of Secretary.

(d) The Treasurer shall keep a record of all funds received and expended by the Legislative Board. She shall serve as a member of the student activities fees committee.

Article III

Judicial Authority)

Section I.

The judicial authority of the Association shall be vested in a Judicial Board which shall consist of two (2) representatives from each of the four classes and one (1) day student to be elected by the student body. They shall take office no later than April 15, excepting the Freshman representatives who shall take office no later than November 1.

Section II.

There shall be a Chairman, Vice-Chairman, and a Secretary of the Judicial Board. The Chairman and the Vice-Chairman, from the Senior class, and the Secretary from the Junior class, shall be elected by the student body and begin their term of office no later than April 15.

Section III.

Duties of the officers of the Judicial Board:

(a) It shall be the duty and the power of the Chairman to call and preside at all meetings of the Judicial Board. It shall also be the duty of the Chairman to execute the law, and to supervise and direct its enforcement.

(b) The Vice-Chairman shall preside in the absence of the Chairman. If for any reason the Chairman cannot serve, the Vice-Chairman shall become Chairman and a new Vice-Chairman shall be elected. It shall be the duty of the Vice-Chairman to prosecute violations of the law.

(c) The Secretary shall assume all duties pertaining to the office of Secretary.

Section IV.

The Judicial Board power shall extend to all cases and controversies arising under this constitution or laws made in pursuance thereof.

Section V.

The Judicial Board shall supervise and direct the operation of the Honor Code and try all cases arising under it.

Section VI.

The Judicial Board shall have the final authority to interpret this constitution and on request shall give advisory opinions.

Section VII.

The Judicial Board shall establish the rules of its own proceedings except that no accused person shall be denied the right of counsel, nor the right to know the nature of all charges brought against her, nor the right to have witnesses in her behalf.

Article IV.

Any elected officer of the Association may be removed from office if two thirds of the student body shall vote to support a petition signed by one fourth of the student body asking for the removal of an officer.

Article V.

(Voting)

Section I.

The time, place, and manner of holding election shall be determined by the Legislative Board.

Section II.

Fifteen days before an election the President of the Association shall publicly announce the

(Continued on page 3)

See Poll

Page 4

THE ROTUNDA

Read

Constitution

VOL. VLI

Longwood College, Farmville, Va., May 1, 1963

No. 19

Betty Howard First Organist In State Meet

Betty Howard, a music major, from Arlington won first place in the Richmond Organ Competition sponsored by the Richmond Chapter of the American Guild of Organists. The finals of this contest were held April 27 at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church in Richmond.

BETTY HOWARD

The first place prize was $75 along with a contract to give the first recital in the 1963-64 Repertory Series of the Richmond chapter.

Betty first entered this competition when she submitted a tape recording of one movement of a Bach Trio Sonata (No. 5) and a piece by Bernhard Hertenstein entitled "Gledesen Hier Er Fdt I Dag" (a Danish piece). The tape was sent on March 29. Four finalists were picked under this category and Betty won first place in the taping competition. The four finalists were invited to play on the 27th where Betty won the first place.

Recitals

Student and faculty recitals have been planned for the month of May. Jeannette Elder and Pat Gallahan will present their recital May 5. On May 12, Betty Ann Rex will present her recital. Dr. Adams has a recital scheduled for May 19.

Students Find Tuition Increase In 1964 Session

Tuition costs of Virginia students at Longwood for the 1963-1964 session have been increased from $786 to $810. This increased charge results from the increased cost of running the college.

The total $810 is distributed as follows: $325, college fees; $20 student activity fee; $449, room, board, and laundry; $15 construction fee; $1, Post-Office box rent. The only increase over last session lies in the proportionment for room, board, and laundry.

The cost for day students will be $372, a decrease of $10, due to the decreased construction fee for all students. The fee for non-Virginia students remains the same relative to the increased cost for Virginia students.

Editor Selects Colonnade Staff For '63-'64 Term

Barbara Poland, editor-in-chief of the Colonnade, has announced her staff for 1963-64. Working with Barbara as assistant editor is Diana Upshur. Evelyn Gray is short story editor; Judy Beck, poetry editor; Earlene Brown, essay editor; Melanie Wilkes and Judy Woodard are co-art editors. Anna White is the business manager of the Colonnade. Assisting her are Kathleen Pulley, circulation manager and Betty Ann Wall, head typist.

MAY DAY PRELUDE

Preparing for May Day, students practice dances for afternoon festivities. May Day will take place Saturday, May 4, at 3 p.m. at Longwood estate.

Players, Jongleurs To Present Plays In Johns Auditorium At H-S

Two one-act comedies by N. F. Simpson will be presented by the Hampton-Sydney Jongleurs, the Longwood Players, and the Drama Fraternities of both schools, Alpha Psi Omega. The plays will be given at Johns Auditorium at Hampton-Sydney at 8:00 on May 2 and 3. This will be the first time in five years that Alpha Psi Omega will have presented a play in Johns Auditorium. All rehearsals have been held at Hampton-Sydney, but the scenery crews worked in Jarman.

These two plays, The Form and A Resounding Tinkle, are a series of crazy incidents. This is typical of the new trend in American drama, the Theater of the Absurd, similar to the French Avant Garde. The Form takes place in an office and is about two men and their two secretaries. A Resounding Tinkle tells of the problems that Middle and Bro Paradox have with an elephant. Mr. French The Form will star David Reylea as Mr. Whinby, Carla McNair as Miss Havor, Mary Lynn Landers as Miss Ongew, and Ed Baker as Mr. Charterson. A Resounding Tinkle will star Mike Couchman as Bro Paradox, Dotie Cox as Middle Paradox, and Pat Newton as Uncle Ted. The heads of the crews and committees are as follows: Stage Manager, Marcia Slegfried; Lights, Karen Ruders; Scenery, Ann Coleman; Props, Pattie O'Neill; Costumes, Bobbie Fletcher; Make-up, Cheramy Howe and Peggy Waldo; Publicity, Scottle MacGregor.

The admission is free for Hampton-Sydney students, 50 cents for Longwood students, and $1 for adults. Free transportation will be provided for Longwood students.

May Day To Celebrate 'Fantasy Fair' Theme

Longwood's annual May Day celebration will begin at 3:00 Saturday, May 4 with the theme of "Fantasy Fair." The first event of the evening will be the entrance of the May Court escorted by the Pershing Rifles, who are members of the crack drill team at V. P. I.

The following girls will be members of May Court: Suzanne Ballard, Janice Carol Blowe, Jane Frances Bryan, Roberta Gresham Cadow, Meredith Cate, Pamela Gay Crox, Donna Rae Franzen.

Also, Barbara Oakley Loh, Wanda Leigh Old, Cecelia Lynne Olsen, Connie Parkins, and Lellani Kay Robinson. Gary Wells Dickson will be Queen of May Day, and her Maid of Honor will be Sandra Lee Little.

As the evening progresses, one will be taken to see Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs Hansel and Gretel, Tom Sawyer and his friends, and Pinocchio. As various phases of the program the following dances will be seen: Tom Sawyer, Hansel and Gretel, Snow White, Wadon Soldiers, Clock, May Court, and an Indian Dance.

Cindy Gay is this year's May Day Chairman, and the following students have been working under her in their respective committees: Carol Martin and Lynn Hancock, dance; Cheramy Howe, decorations; Amy Haley, invitations; Carolyn Anderson, tickets; Freshman Commission, refreshments; Jane Carol Maddox, advertising.

Donna Franzen, B. Reamy, Cindy Gay, Barbara Loh, Shirley Moody, and Susan Rollins have worked on theme and script; Evelyn Gray, May Court; Ann Pensak and Lynn Guertin, properties; Peg Waldo and C. Ruffin, make-up; Connie Birch, Natalie Miller, and Barbara Fields, technical directions.

Brenda Isbel is chairman of scenery; Doris Harrison, Maria Costan, and Jo Ann Slack, publicity and programs; and Laurie Hamlet, costume design, and Joyce Cundiff, costumes. Drinks will be sold in the Dell by the Freshman Commission.

Literary Works Receive Awards In '63 Contest

Winners of the 1963 Colonnade Literary Contest were announced in Assembly Tuesday, April 23. First, second, and third prizes were awarded in the poetry and essay categories. First and second prizes were awarded in the short story category.

Poetry

Peggy Pond won first and third prizes in the poetry category. Her winning poems were "The Island" and "A Memory." Rebecca Wilburn won second prize with "A View."

Essay

Nelda Shields won the first prize in the essay category with her critical analysis of "To Celia" by Ben Jonson. Ann Friedman and Harriet Hunt won second prize with an excerpt from their novel, A Broad Ahead. Shirley Gunn won third place with her essay, "Hawthorne: The Artist."

Short Story

Ginny Gilmore won first place in the short story category with "The Test." Maria Grant won second place with "Charlie."

The judges for the contest were Dr. Rosemary Sprague, Dr. Maurice Seiler and Kay Willis.

Encomium

To the student who wants the Rotunda to praise something:

Complying with your request is like writing a "Dear Virginia" letter: Yes, Student X, there is something worthy of praise at Longwood.

During the past two weeks, there have been several visiting speakers on campus. But more important — and praise-worthy — is the reaction of the student body to these speakers. Students have asked these speakers questions, have talked with them, and on occasion have disagreed with them. Such behavior on the part of the student body is most worthy of praise, for it demonstrates our ability to think.

Since this ability to think has never before been so widely demonstrated, the Rotunda wishes to praise it.

A Hollow Victory

The following editorial appeared in the November 16, 1960 issue of the Rotunda. The situation which motivated the writing of this editorial remains unchanged. — Ed.

The day was cold and the man stood alone, motionless, looking across the mud, the piles of brush, and the rectangular blocks of stone that seemed to be the only things pushing their way through the barren ground. A wind swept toward him, bringing a sudden chill. The man shuddered and turned to go.

He turned his back on his attempt. His building would replace a crumbling older one. His building would protect and save; the older building, a painful production of the past, had become a hazard; it would destroy. He would selflessly shield the innocent from what was not meant to be.

The wind rattled the dry leaves and bare branches. Strange, it reminded him of the cheers last summer, of the handshakes and backslaps, and of the trusting look of a blue-eyed little boy. Strange he should think of that, for the dried leaves sounded hollow.

His gaze met a taut wire reflected in a puddle of shivering water and he thought of the flood of warm messages and offers of help that had poured themselves upon him a year ago. Strange to be suddenly reminded of the shimmering hurt in an old friend's eyes the day he turned an initial shovelful of earth up from the ground to make way for his building, the day he won his moral fight.

He heard faraway shouts of children at play and the wind carried the hoarse bark of a distant dog. The dog for some reason reminded him of the animal feeling he saw in the eyes of a man he had passed on the street earlier in the day. A feeling reflected in his eyes as the two, like jungle beasts slinking around opposite sides of a fire to pass warily in the night, had passed in the routine of the day.

A lone tree withered, silhouetted on the horizon, caught his eye. He knew how the tree might feel if it could. Or did he imagine that suddenly he was a solitary being alone and not very reassured at all.

He shrugged and continued his retreat. Yours to build, the wind called mockingly after him, you destroyed and you alone can restore. He continued his walk down the hill, his back to his school's foundation.

—Judith Van Detrich—

From The Board

The chairmen of the various committees for May Day reported their progress and problems to the Legislative Board on the night of April 23. In general, plans for May Day seem to be fairly well in order. The main problem is that there are too few people who really have time to devote to the numerous facets and preparations that go into May Day. In other words: "The same old problem."

The reports given concerned:

Costumes	Signe Young, Joyce Cundiff
Script	Donna Frantzen
Properties and Scenery	Brenda Isbel
Program	Joanne Gray
May Court	Evelyn Gray
Dance	Carol Martin

The script sounds lively, and the event promises to be fine. There will no doubt be many odd jobs to be done during the next few days, so if anyone has some precious extra time to help out just wave madly to Cindy Gay in the hall or on the lawn, and she'll respond quite appreciatively.

Members of the Legislative Board ushered at the Choir Concert on April 25.

Proposed handbook changes regarding the social rules were completed at this meeting. They will be reviewed by Miss Wilson Monday, April 29 and will then be posted with all changes, deletions, and new parts marked as such. A pad of paper, a pencil, and a suggestion box will accompany these proposed changes. We will announce the posting and hope that you, the students will be sure to let us know what you think; these are your rules; they deserve your concern.

Some of you have been wondering when the Activities Committee regulations will go into effect. This will be September 1, 1963. Any obligations accepted before this time may be kept, however after September 1, grade averages must be maintained and quota of memberships and offices met in accordance with the new regulations.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

"DON'T WORRY ABOUT TH' CHAPTERS WE SKIPPED—I BELIEVE I'VE COVERED THEM ADEQUATELY IN THE FINAL."

Bowling Accepts Unusual Contract

By Ginny Gilmore

One of the most unusual contracts offered to a senior planning to go into the field of education next year, was that received by Home Economics major Jane Bowling.

Jane has received a verbal contract for the position of principal and teacher in Gladstone Elementary School in Nelson County. She plans to be married in June and she and her fiancé decided to live in Nelson because of the proximity to Lynchburg. Although she was born and has lived all of her life in Danville, Jane feels very much at home in Nelson County, her father's family home.

JANE BOWLING

cause of the proximity to Lynchburg. Although she was born and has lived all of her life in Danville, Jane feels very much at home in Nelson County, her father's family home.

Temporary Position

Jane has hoped for a position as Home Economics teacher in one of the local high schools, but none were available for next year. Because she had no minor or other major, the local superintendent suggested a position in one of the elementary schools until a job is available in her own field.

After two interviews, the superintendent suggested the dual teaching-administrative position for which she felt she was well qualified. Jane was flattered with the offer and felt no qualms about taking the responsibility of "her own school" until she came back to Longwood. "After I came back, everyone started to suggest all the situations that I might have to handle, and I began to get a little nervous."

Plans Summer Training

Although Jane has no formal training in administrative work, she plans to spend her summer conferring with the present principal on her particular duties. She feels that with this summer training and with the help she

English Journal Features Gibb On Auden

Dr. Carson Gibb, assistant professor of English, has contributed a point of view concerning literary criticism to the April 1963 issue of The English Journal, publication of the National Council of Teachers of English.

In response to a previous article on W. H. Auden's poem "O What is that Sound?" Dr. Gibb attacks the kind of criticism which "treats poems as though they were ink blots in a Rorschach test." He argues instead for logical critical guidelines and "for an end to the interpretational orgy, an absurd to teaching on the absurd assumption that a poem means what anybody happens to want it to mean."

Dr. Gibb is teaching this semester an advanced undergraduate literary criticism course in "Literary Criticism."

Classes Elect New Officers For Next Year

Freshman and sophomore class officers for the '63-'64 year have been elected by their respective classes.

New sophomores in office are: president, Melody Saunders; vice-president, Pat Wallace; secretary, Betty Tate; treasurer, Anne Cordie.

Leaders of the freshman class are: president, Claudia Stormin; vice-president, Jean Haynie; secretary, Betty Garner; and treasurer, Lee Criss.

Softball Schedule

Judy Squires and Carolyn Cline, class softball managers, have posted the following times for softball practices to be held:

Monday - 5:00
Tuesday - 6:45
Wednesday - 6:45
Thursday - 5:00

Around The Campi

Then there was the "academic experience" Monday night.

What blonde senior is now the dragstrip queen?

About the people hanging around the parking lot last Wednesday night.

Seen the ivy professor who wears pink and burundy?

What freshman accidentally locked a junior's books in West Wing?

Have you seen the Beta House on second floor South?

P.E. for P.E.

The most popular girl at Longwood is going deaf. Huh?

Then there is the professor who likes Afriker.

And the professor who forgot to come to class, and the one who forgot to make out a test.

Know why an elephant is gray? Only her hair-dresser knows for sure.

A sophomore is now the Sweetheart of Sigma Chi.

About the sit-in at Southside.

About the professor who skips around in his office.

A Longwood professor was seen carrying a bagged lunch into a Washington restaurant.

The day that the rains came down (gave Chi hope).

Thought for the week: Be a good classmate.

'Critic's Choice'

Acis and Galatea Acclaimed

by Betty Ann Atkinson

I am very pleased to report that Longwood has an abundance of talent heavily concentrated in the Department of Music's Concert Choir and the people connected with it. Singers Marilyn Anthony, Marie Kounovall, Judith Hester and Mr. James McCombs revealed enormous vocal gifts to Dr. John W. Molnar's superb arrangement of Handel's masque, Acis and Galatea.

Molnar arranged the entire masque to be performed by an all-girl choir, assisted by a bass-baritone, a harpsichord and an eight-piece orchestra. This immense undertaking was brilliantly executed in the delightfully delicate classic manner.

Eight members of the Richmond Symphony orchestra performed Handel's fugue melodies with rational and classical perfection while the Choir sang the beautiful love story in all the precision and delicacy of the composer's great period. For an hour an enthralled audience listened spell-bound to the rich music, swelling into lovely fugue harmony with the principle soloists sparkling in their solos and recitatives.

Anthony Plays Galatea

Marilyn Anthony, brilliant as the heroine Galatea, sang with her usual like and lyric grace. Judith Elaine Hester performed Galatea's rich voice revealing the depth of the heroic love. Maria Kounovall sang the shepherd Damon in a recitative too short to content the audience. She has a gift of tremendous powers, her voice rendering lovely and golden tones.

Mr. James McCombs sang the jealous and vengeful god, Polyphemos with strength and bravado, his powerful bass-baritone perfect for the giant god. Miss Joanne Curmish at her harpsichord added just the right touch to the classic motif of the lovely masque.

Fraises Concert The concert was indeed an experience to behold for it was exquisitely carried off. Perfection is the word to describe it.

because it was, in essence, executed with precision in every lovely detail. Such precision in detail we have not seen here in many a long while. Everyone who attended agreed that it was a delight, refreshing in its astonishing excellence.

Dalton Speaks To Students In Jarman

"Your Anticipation Quotient" was the topic of a talk given by Mrs. Virginia Lewis Dalton at the assembly Tuesday, April 23.

Mrs. Dalton stated that the purpose of Longwood College was to prepare young women to teach, and from there she went on to explain what society expects of future teachers.

Why are we so responsible? Mrs. Dalton brought out facts concerning the responsibilities of teachers in relation to our present world.

There is a great shortage of teachers but this does not take away from the fact that one should seriously consider the occupation before taking on the assignment. To do less would be a social injustice, Mrs. Dalton said. Mrs. Dalton concluded by saying that our hope "ride high with the future educators of America."

H-S Glee Club Gives Concert

The Hampden-Sydney Glee Club will close its 1962-63 season by presenting its annual Spring Festival of Music on Saturday, May 4 at the Farmville Methodist Church at 8:00 p.m. They will be joined by the Glee Club of the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina, and by two well-known New York soloists, Florence Manning, soprano, and Robert Falk, bass. Brahms' Requiem will be presented.

Seniors Make Plans For Various Futures

By Beverly Goodes

As graduation draws near, many seniors have made definite plans for next year. Most have accepted teaching positions. Others have been accepted to further their studies in graduate school and some will follow non-teaching professions.

Those accepted by graduate schools are Mary Catherine Lancaster, Sharon Coulter, and Landy Hatch. Longwood seniors who will follow non-teaching professions are Betsy Thurt, who will do social work in Lynchburg; Nell Martin, who will be a home economist in Virginia Polytechnic Institute; and Rae Ferguson and Annice Bailey, who will be mathematicians for NASA in Hampton.

Many seniors have made definite decisions about their teaching positions for next year. Teaching in Alexandria will be Betty Lou Dunn and Ann Davidson; in Chesapeake, Pate Stone, Wanda Evans, Elizabeth Lee, Shirley Russell, Sue Wilhelm, Neida MacPherson, Dianne Penzabba, Marguerite Shelburne, Joyce Cundiff, Brenda Johnson, Raye Turner, Bobbie Mast and Joan Ivy will teach in Hampton. In Lynchburg Lana Tucker, Sandra Parker, Betty Farley and Betty Paulette will be teaching. The following have signed Norfolk contracts: Kay Nottingham, Marilyn Hobbs, and Sandra Little. Mary Virginia Harris is to teach in Portsmouth.

Those teaching in Richmond will be Sarah Decker Johnson, Melinda Walker, Mary Morris, and Janice Harris. The following will teach in Roanoke: Freida Boykin, Robin Frantz, Ann Friedman, Susan Lane, Shelby Lucy, Dot Fretz, Clara Mays, Pat Ford, Betty Chappell and Beth Goodwyn have signed Colonial Heights contracts. In Danville Susan Coe, Phyllis Covington, Dorothy Waymack, Sherill Hudlow, Betty Olive and Judy Purcell will teach. In Staunton Scottie MacGregor will teach; in Suffolk, Joyce Dunkley; in Virginia Beach, Judy Jones Tharrington, Cissie Griggs, Marilyn Miller, Libby Predmore, Carol Gregory, Betty Boyd, Susan Harwood, Carol Nye, Rose-Inn Wright, Margaret MacMullen, Betty Stack and Rosa Pettit. Alice Joy Peale will teach in Williamsburg; in Warynsboro, Joyce Ouland Bord; in Augusta County, Ellen Brogan. In Arlington County the following will teach: Ann Hoska and Mary Martha Wagner; in Campbell County, Sandra Phlegar; in Charlotte County, Rebecca Wilburn; in Chesterfield County these women will teach: Virginia Carol Brockwell and Margaret Ann Turner; in Fairfax County, Nancy Lee Burton, Carol Hall, Sandra Freedman, Joyce Snyder, Ellen Brady, Elizabeth Jones and Jean Ellis Lowry.

In Halifax County the following will teach Mary Lee Seay; in Henrico County, Anne Snowe, Jean Pollard, Sandra Phelps, Lillian Turner, Mary Wyatt, Raye Wapole, Beverly Moser, Betty Lee Doggett, Elaine Lohr, and Diane Wade; in King and Queen County, Gaynell Gasky; in King William County, Charlotte Brooks; in Loudoun County, Margaret Vaughan and Jerri Clarke.

Teaching in Mecklenburg County will be Penny Blackburn and Mrs. Virginia Smith Evans; in Nelson County: Jane Bowling; in Nottingham County: Mrs. Elizabeth Seay Robertson; in Powhatan County: Flossie Barnard; in Prince William County: Suzanne Sloop, Harriet Brooks and Ellen Terry.

These women will teach in the following places, Roanoke County: Shirley Moody; in Rockbridge County: Mrs. Ruby Layton and Kaye Lockridge; in York County: Nancy Oldfield; in Baltimore County, Maryland: Judy Frye, Margaret McCue, Callie Foides, Tinsely Crump, and Mary G. Lipscomb; in Massachusetts: Lucy Swink; in North Carolina: Nancy Hague.

BATTER UP!

Class softball managers Judy Seay and Carol Nye look over equipment. Weekly practices have been set up for those students wishing to participate. Time schedule is posted on AA bulletin board.

Red 'n' Whites Win Points In Swim Meet

The score for color cup competition was raised to 40-3 in favor of the Red and Whites in the swim meet held Tuesday night April 23. The final score in the swim meet was 55-26.

In the 25 yard freestyle Geri Gerhardt came in first followed by Bobbie Allen and Lela Quirk. Sharon Francis was the winner of the bobbing race. She was followed by Rena Weld and Phyllis Laskley.

The 25 yard backstroke was won by Lee Chris. Ann Green was second with Melinda Walker, third.

In diving Kris Longstreet came in first followed by Linda Spenna.

The 25 yard breast stroke was won by Kris Longstreet. Sharon Francis and Karen Ruder tied for second place. Third place was taken by Arlene Steiner.

The Red and Whites were victorious over the Green and Whites in the inner tube relay. Again the Red and Whites were victorious; in the 75 yard medley relay the Red and Whites surpassed the Green and Whites.

In form swimming Kris Longstreet came in first with 125 points followed by Sharon Francis with 121 points and Ann Pensak with 109 points.

In the 100 yard freestyle relay the Red and Whites defeated the Green and Whites.

The points for individual events are as follows: first place, 5 points; second place, 3 points; third place, 1 point; medley relay, 8 points for the first place and 4 points for second place; freestyle relay, 6 points for first place and 3 points for second place.

The judges were Miss Smith, Miss Heintz, and Mrs. Harris.

RPI Wins Over Longwood Girls In Tournament

With spring in the air, the Longwood varsity tennis team played their first tournament of the season against R. P. I. here on Saturday.

In a closely knit tournament, the L. C. team was downed 3-2. The varsity girls won the two double matches, but failed to win the three singles which proved to be the decisive factor in the outcome of the game. This year the members of the tennis team include: Henrietta Gilliam, Barbara Ragland, Nancy Moorefield, Carol Nye, Ann Greene, Carolyn Cline, and Shearer Ebert.

Carol Nye, a senior physical education major from Cascade, Maryland, was elected captain of the tennis team.

The manager of varsity tennis this year is Henrietta Gilliam.

Three additional tournaments are scheduled to be played. William and Mary will be the scene of the next tournament which is to be held on April 30. The L. C. girls will compete with the Lynchburg tennis team here on May 8. The last one scheduled to be played will be here with Westhampton.

Self Study Improves Educational Efforts

Self study is one of the major accomplishments of Longwood at the present time. "This is the first comprehensive study Longwood has made of itself," says Mr. Magnusson, who is heading the overall effort.

The essential purpose of this self study is improving the educational effectiveness of the college. It is designed to reassess our objectives, to measure our success in attaining them, and to provide a means whereby we can explore ways by which the educational efficiency at Longwood may be improved. It has also helped us to plan for the future needs of the college consistent with our growth over the next ten years.

Cooperative Effort

This has been a total effort on the part of both the faculty and the administration. It has been a fully cooperative effort, with the faculty and administrative officers giving full support to the study, said Mr. Magnusson.

"As of present, we are in the final stages of assembling the full reports from both the general committees and various departments."

"Of the eleven general committees five have completed their final reports," he said.

The general committees include the Committee on Purpose, Committee on Organization and Administration, Committee on Educational Program, Committee on Faculty, Committee on Library, Others are the Committee on Student Personnel, Committee on the Physical Plant, Committee on Special Activities, and the Committee on Graduate School. Also included are the Committee on Research and the Steering Committee.

Compiling Report

The Editorial Committee will edit the information gathered by these committees and the various departments. Mr. Gresham will spend the summer compiling the final report which will be a summary in narrative form. In addition to this there is a report with strictly factual information with such questions as how many hours per week is the library open? Another sample question from this report inquires the number of faculty members who belong to learned societies.

The fruit of this two year effort will be full reaccreditation by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools. The committee will visit Longwood in March 1964, to read the report.

Standards Met

According to the pamphlet containing the standards of the Association, Longwood meets and exceeds most of the standards. For example the minimum number of hours the library should be open per week for colleges is 60, universities 80. Longwood's library is open over 70 hours per week. The standards of the Association, says Mr. Magnusson, are quality standards, not quantity.

Kafer To Head Phi Beta Lambda For Next Year

At its meeting on April 24, the Longwood College chapter of Phi Beta Lambda elected its officers for the coming year. They are: Jeanne Kafer, president; Jean Lundie, vice president; Doris Sadler, secretary; Carolyn Wall, treasurer; Mike Forbes, reporter, and Shirley White, historian.

On April 20, eight representatives from the chapter attended the FBPA-Phi Beta Lambda Convention in Richmond. At the convention, Anne White was elected State Reporter, and the chapter received an Honor Chapter Award. Dr. Landrum received a certificate of appreciation for his years of service as faculty advisor of the Longwood chapter.

Patronize Rotunda Advertisers

With This Coupon
1 Free Sundae
On Friday,
May 3
At
SOUTHSIDE SUNDRY

FARMVILLE DRIVE-IN THEATRE

Farmville, Va.

Ends Tues. — April 30

Troy Romaine

Angie Dickinson

Rossano Brazzi

Suzanne Pleshette

ROME ADVENTURE

TECHNICOLOR WARNER BROS.

Wednesday — May 1

On The Screen

"CASH NIGHT"

$35.00 FREE

Wed.-Thurs. — May 1-2

DEAR MARTIN LANA TURNER

WHO'S GOT THE ACTION?

Friday — May 3

Double Feature

"SCREAM OF FEAR"

— and —

"THE HELLIONS"

Saturday — May 4

Howard Keel

"ARMORED COMMAND"

— and —

JOEL McCREA

"THE OKLAHOMA"

May 5-6-7

ONE TWO THREE

RAY WILDER'S EXOTIC NEW COMEDY

ONE TWO THREE

ONE TWO THREE

ONE TWO THREE

ONE TWO THREE

ONE TWO THREE

ONE TWO THREE

ONE TWO THREE

Constitution Awaits Student Ratification

(Continued from page 1)
date of the election and the last day for the filing of petitions of candidacy.

Section III.

Any person meeting the qualifications for an elective office of the association may be elected a candidate for the same by filing a petition of candidacy, supported by the signatures of 10 per cent of the members of the student body, with the President of the Association seven (7) days or more before the election.

Section IV

No student may sign more than three petitions for each office.

Section V.

No candidate, nor any of her supporters, may expend any money in support of her candidacy. However, at its expense, the Association shall provide an appropriate and equal amount of advertising for each candidate.

Article VI

Section I.

The Legislative Board, if two-thirds of its members deem it necessary, shall propose amendments to this constitution which shall be valid for all intents and purposes as part of this constitution when ratified by a two-thirds of the student body.

Section II.

The Constitution may also be amended if two thirds of the student body shall vote to support a petition, signed by one fourth of the student body, for the proposed amendment.

Article VII

This Constitution and all laws made in pursuance thereof shall be the supreme law of the Association.

Article VIII.

It is understood that this Constitution, all laws made in pursuance thereof, and all officers of the Association remain subject to the supreme authority of the President of Longwood College.

Try Our

Cherry Lemonades

13c

at the

COLLEGE SNACK BAR

VOLKSWAGENS

New and Used

Now Taking Orders for May and June Delivery

Authorized Volkswagen Dealer

216 Petersburg Pike

(Seven Blocks South

of Lee Bridge)

Richmond, Virginia

Telephone BE 2-2371

MARTIN THE

JEWELER

See Our New

Selection of

Charms —

Gold Filled &

Sterling Silver

For Your

Summer Reading

Ideas

Visit The

COLLEGE BOOKSTORE

NEWMAN'S

MEN'S SHOP

Traditional Styles

See Our

Ladies' Sportswear

Shop

OWEN-SANFORD

DRUG CO.

(In The Farmville

Shopping Center)

for a

Complete Line of Cosmetics

Stop By And See

Our

Mother's Day Gifts

LANSCOTT'S

GIFT SHOP

Miller, Kilpatrick Vie In Institute Lectures

By Jo-Anne Cartwright

To the tune of "Carry me back to ole Jeffersonian Virginia" or "We're there already with Byrd," the Institute of Southern Culture convened at Longwood College, April 28. Three extremely well-qualified speakers, Francis Pickens Miller, M. Boyd Coyner, Jr., and James Kilpatrick depicted Virginia today—its problems and heritage.

The series of lectures began at 11:00 in Jarman Auditorium with Col. Miller's address entitled "Has there been progress in political democracy in Virginia?" Commencing with an invocation of the principle of Jeffersonian freedom as found in the Declaration of Independence, Col. Miller seems to believe that Virginia has deviated from the path which leads to Monticello—the one of true political democracy also fostered in our constitution.

As tests for determining the amount of progress, Col. Miller

Virginia. Apparently, our state has made little progress. In the field of education, Col. Miller sees Virginia as unprogressive in comparison with the other United States. This, he attributes to a lack of emphasis on education on the part of the state legislature and the consequently low salaries paid to Virginia teachers.

In freedom, Virginia, according to Col. Miller, has made it possible, even less progress. Everywhere, the political scene reflects a uniformity of opinion deliberately strengthened by the one-party press in certain areas of Virginia (not Norfolk).

The third test dealing with suffrage likewise seemingly has proved a lack of progress. With two isolated examples, Col. Miller depicted the Virginia voting situation as one in which only "certain" people were supposed to vote and certain others as being of the group who could not exercise this privilege.

The fourth test concerning awareness of the real issues which could be effectively utilized today. By this time, the listener sees Thomas Jefferson as something of a political schizophrenic embodying on the one hand the ideals of political democracy (Col. Miller's) and on the other, as having formulated those techniques (discipline, secret caucus, etc.) peculiar to monolithic partyism. However, Mr. Kilpatrick, without mentioning Jefferson's name, managed to reconcile the two in his revelation of the nature of Byrdian politics—the quasi-illumination of Jeffersonian political techniques from which evolved those as associated with the Virginia organization.

Mr. Kilpatrick's lecture entitled "Byrd: The Contemporary Leader in Politics," was held in Jarman at 8:00. Almost everyone expected in Mr. Kilpatrick's speech more violent shades of Miller's "own philosophy of history" lecture of that morning. And indeed, Mr. Kilpatrick did commence in the anticipated manner—in refutation of Col. Miller's statements in his morning address.

First of all, Mr. Kilpatrick denounced the idea that quantity in voting should take precedence over quality pointing to the relatively honest government enjoyed in Virginia for so long. His

SPEAKER CHATS

Longwood students Nancy Mowrey and Jo-Anne Cartwright chat with Col. Francis

F. Miller, Friday, April 26, during Institute of Southern Culture meeting.

which could be effectively utilized today.

By this time, the listener sees Thomas Jefferson as something of a political schizophrenic embodying on the one hand the ideals of political democracy (Col. Miller's) and on the other, as having formulated those techniques (discipline, secret caucus, etc.) peculiar to monolithic partyism. However, Mr. Kilpatrick, without mentioning Jefferson's name, managed to reconcile the two in his revelation of the nature of Byrdian politics—the quasi-illumination of Jeffersonian political techniques from which evolved those as associated with the Virginia organization.

Mr. Kilpatrick's lecture entitled "Byrd: The Contemporary Leader in Politics," was held in Jarman at 8:00. Almost everyone expected in Mr. Kilpatrick's speech more violent shades of Miller's "own philosophy of history" lecture of that morning. And indeed, Mr. Kilpatrick did commence in the anticipated manner—in refutation of Col. Miller's statements in his morning address.

First of all, Mr. Kilpatrick denounced the idea that quantity in voting should take precedence over quality pointing to the relatively honest government enjoyed in Virginia for so long. His enlightening and surprisingly unbiased dissertation concerning Byrd's rise to and maintenance of political power in Virginia. The greater portion of Kilpatrick's speech dwelled on the election of 1952 in which Byrd was opposed by Pickens Miller. In view of Kilpatrick's "over-ture" and known opposition to Miller, this at first appears only another manifestation of animosity towards his arch political opponent. However, after considering the lack of bias reflected throughout the lecture and the fact that this was after all, the election in which Byrd was most strongly challenged, one can agree that the election of '52 was treated with no more emphasis than it deserved.

Although serving as an excellent illumination of the Byrd epoch in Virginia to those unfamiliar with this phase of Virginia history, the Kilpatrick speech served "no other useful purposes."

In the manner of the true historian, Mr. Kilpatrick presented the good and bad aspects of not only the campaign of the opposition but also that of Sen. Byrd. Secondly, his speech shed light on the reality which is politics—neither completely pure nor totally corrupt.

Finally, Mr. Kilpatrick answered student questions. Sev-

Poll On County School Problem Gets Reaction From Students

By the Staff

The editorial staff of the Rotunda distributed a questionnaire in the dining hall April 22. This questionnaire was "to determine the attitudes of Longwood students toward an educational problem."

The staff realizes its lack of qualifications for compiling a questionnaire of this type. Nevertheless, it compiled the questionnaire and distributed it.

Of the 877 students who ate dinner in the dining hall April 22, 730 students responded to the questionnaire. Of those 730 students, 132 were seniors, 148 were juniors, 176 were sophomores, and 240 were freshmen. Fourteen students failed to indicate their respective classes.

Following are the questionnaires' 45 questions and the way each of the classes answered them:

Q. If public schools were closed in your locality, would you: A. tolerate it indefinitely; B. tolerate it temporarily; C. not tolerate it at all; D. no opinion.

Sixty-seven seniors, 49 juniors, 79 sophomores, and 81 freshmen checked this answer. A. checked this answer were 53 seniors, 73 juniors, 50 sophomores, and 108 freshmen.

D. no opinion: Sixteen seniors, eight juniors, nine sophomores, and 16 freshmen had no opinion on this question. Two seniors, five juniors, five sophomores, and four freshmen failed to answer this question.

Q. If you were asked to teach in an integrated classroom would you: A. Refuse to do so; B. agree to teach with limited integration; C. agree to teach with unlimited integration; D. no opinion.

A. Refuse to do so: Sixteen seniors, 16 juniors, 33 sophomores, and 43 freshmen checked this answer.

B. agree to teach with limited integration: Sixteen seniors, 69 juniors, 57 sophomores, and 112 freshmen checked this answer.

C. agree to teach with unlimited integration: Fifty-five seniors, 51 juniors, 71 sophomores, and 71 freshmen checked this answer.

D. no opinion: Ten seniors, 7 juniors, 11 sophomores, and 3 freshmen had no opinion. Twelve students, three from each class, failed to answer this question.

Q. As future educators in any capacity, what degree of responsibility should we have toward the uneducated youth of Prince Edward County—

A. definite responsibility: Fifty-five seniors, 56 juniors, 62 sophomores, and 106 freshmen checked this answer.

B. indirect responsibility: Forty-two seniors, 45 juniors, 61 sophomores, and 68 freshmen checked this answer.

C. no responsibility: Thirty-five seniors, 30 juniors, 35 sophomores, and 78 freshmen checked this answer.

D. no opinion: Sixteen seniors, 18 juniors, 14 sophomores, and 14 freshmen failed to answer this question.

Q. Expenditures of public funds for private schools should be: A. permitted; B. restricted; C. not permitted.

A. permitted: Thirty-one seniors, 28 juniors, 31 sophomores, and 37 freshmen checked this answer.

B. restricted on a limited basis: Checking this answer were 50 seniors, 42 juniors, 44 sophomores, and 78 freshmen.

C. not permitted: Sixty-one seniors, 64 juniors, 89 sophomores, and 107 freshmen checked this answer. D. no opinion: Seven seniors, 10 juniors, 12 sophomores had no opinion. Two seniors, 3 juniors, 3 sophomores, and 4 freshmen did not answer the question.

Q. If an acceptable plan to alleviate the problem of closed schools were put forth, would you—

A. be willing to take action and participate: Sixty-nine seniors, 74 juniors, 97 sophomores, and 136 freshmen checked this answer.

B. participate indirectly through contributions of state-meat of opinion: Thirty-seven seniors, 33 juniors, 39 sophomores, and 53 freshmen checked this answer.

C. not participate: Twenty-five seniors, 18 juniors, 18 sophomores, and 21 freshmen checked this answer.

D. no opinion: Fourteen seniors, 15 juniors, 15 sophomores, and 24 freshmen checked this answer. Nine seniors, 6 juniors, 6 sophomores, and 4 freshmen failed to answer the question.

Q. Do you believe that the results of this poll should be published in the Rotunda?

One hundred and fourteen seniors, 125 juniors, 144 sophomores, and 209 freshmen answered "yes." Thirty-four seniors, 19 juniors, 23 sophomores, and 29 freshmen answered "no." Four seniors, 4 juniors, 9 sophomores, and 2 freshmen failed to answer the question.

There was much student criticism of the questionnaire. Many who criticized it felt that it was vague and ambiguous. Others felt that the questions were too loaded. Still others felt that the Rotunda was delving into an area which does not concern the school.

An overall picture as to how the body of the 716 students who indicated their classes is provided by the following percentages. Of those answering the first question 8 per cent checked A, 33 per cent B, 43 per cent C, and 7 per cent D.

The second question was answered thusly: 14 per cent checked A; 36 per cent B; 35 per cent C, and 4 per cent D. Of those answering the third question, 39 per cent checked A; 30 per cent B; 11 per cent C, and 8 per cent D.

Of those answering the fourth question, 18 per cent checked A; 30 per cent B; 46 per cent C, and 6 per cent D. In answering the fifth question, 53 per cent checked A; 23 per cent B; 11 per cent C, and 9 per cent D.

Eighty-three per cent of those who responded to the questionnaire answered, "yes." 15 per cent checked "no."

Abundant praise was also given the questionnaire. One student said, "At last someone is doing something."

The staff feels that the fifth question was the weakest point on the questionnaire. As a student pointed out, "If an effective plan were found, everyone would go along with it."

After compiling and tabulating the questionnaire, the Rotunda feels that there is a need on campus for objective analyses of both sides of the issue. Objective information on the issue is badly lacking; this is evidenced by the lack of opinions on several questions; and, in some cases, by the failure to answer questions.

Members of Rotunda editorial staff work late to evaluate poll taken by staff on student feelings toward school situation in Prince Edward County.

PROFS CONVERSE

During visit to Longwood College campus, Friday, April 26, Dr. M. Boyd Coyner, Jr.

takes time out to talk with Dr. Rinaldo Simonini, head of English Department.

proposed the following questions: Is our population becoming more literate and better educated? Is there a steady movement towards universal suffrage for all literate adults? Is there a vigorous exercise of the freedoms? Do we have political parties and a state government responsive to the will of the majority and fulfilling their responsibilities toward the dissemination of accurate information to the people? Do we have in Virginia a society which increasingly recognizes that political democracy ultimately derives its justification from a moral concept of the universe?

Before examining these tests, Col. Miller gave a brief review of the history of political progress in Virginia. As the principal deviation from the ideal Jeffersonian way, Col. Miller pointed to the 1862 decision of the general assembly not to abolish slavery. From then on, Miller observed, the Jeffersonian critical spirit steadily evaporated leaving in its place only empty forms of political democracy. Depositing those time-honored concepts of natural rights, free inquiry and reason was that age-old philosophy of defense combining liberalism in religion and intolerance of social criticism.

Col. Miller even went so far as to intimate that such vestiges as the latter ones remain in Virginia today. From this period onward, the colonel feels that Virginia has been steadily retrogressing from Jeffersonian ideals. Strongly emphasizing this trend, he noted, is the increasing antipathy of the white people in regard to voting and education—the former having been promoted both politically and psychologically by the poll tax. Concerning the preceding years, they have been characterized by ups and downs in the realm of progress in political democracy.

At this point, Col. Miller returned to the subject of the previously mentioned tests and began applying them to today's seems a failure as the predominant issue in Virginia has been throughout the last few decades the pay-as-you-go policy and a balanced state budget, largely ignoring the more important issues: better education, the U. S. foreign policy of "keeping up with the Russians," conservation of natural resources, and especially, race equality. Col. Miller then concludes with an appeal for a completion of the 1776 revolution and a return to Jeffersonian principles of political democracy.

In contrast to Col. Miller's emphasis on his philosophy of history is Coyner's strictly historical lecture, "Thomas Jefferson and Virginia Politics: The Gentle Radical and a Conservative Tradition." In his paper Professor Coyner admirably demonstrated this paradox which is Jefferson in a most crude fashion employing stimulating vocabulary and strikingly a propos quotations. Through Prof. Coyner's eyes, the listener views Jefferson from a slightly different point of view as previously seen in Col. Miller's speech. Here, Jefferson is depicted as the founder of monolithic partyism in Virginia and Virginia particularism (both still evident in today's Virginia). Indeed, one could point to numerous parallels between Jeffersonian and Byrdian Virginia which were obvious from the address. The ruralism and agrarianism of Jefferson's day are still dominant political forces despite the fact that Virginia is today predominantly an urban, industrial state.

Of specific interest was Jefferson's stand on the race problem. Here, the Jeffersonian editor of a newspaper and one which received numerous "lively" letters to the editor, he knew that dissent was by no means in absentia from Virginia. After this "lively introduction," an affirmative testimonial to Mr. Kilpatrick's closing remark, he proceeded to deliver his prepared lecture—a most second point of refutation dealt with those "high-sounding" Jeffersonian principles found in the Declaration of Independence. Mr. Kilpatrick said, was composed of two distinct parts, the first being poetry (Mr. Jefferson's beautifully idealistic phrases) and the second, only, as having political value.

EDITOR DINES

Visiting Institute of Southern Culture speaker, James J. Kilpatrick, talks to student and Mrs. John Allen in Longwood dining hall. Mr. Kilpatrick, editor of Richmond News Leader, spoke Friday, April 26, at 8 p.m. in Jarman Hall.

Then, Mr. Kilpatrick proceeded in an extraordinarily clever fashion to maneuver himself out of the "trap" set for him by Col. Miller's references to those "one-party pressmen who give Virginia a distorted view of the important issues." Finally, Mr. Kilpatrick stated that as the editor of a newspaper and one which received numerous "lively" letters to the editor, he knew that dissent was by no means in absentia from Virginia.

After this "lively introduction," an affirmative testimonial to Mr. Kilpatrick's closing remark, he proceeded to deliver his prepared lecture—a most enlightening and surprisingly unbiased dissertation concerning Byrd's rise to and maintenance of political power in Virginia.

The greater portion of Kilpatrick's speech dwelled on the election of 1952 in which Byrd was opposed by Pickens Miller. In view of Kilpatrick's "over-ture" and known opposition to Miller, this at first appears only another manifestation of animosity towards his arch political opponent. However, after considering the lack of bias reflected throughout the lecture and the fact that this was after all, the election in which Byrd was most strongly challenged, one can agree that the election of '52 was treated with no more emphasis than it deserved.

Although serving as an excellent illumination of the Byrd epoch in Virginia to those unfamiliar with this phase of Virginia history, the Kilpatrick speech served "no other useful purposes."

In the manner of the true historian, Mr. Kilpatrick presented the good and bad aspects of not only the campaign of the opposition but also that of Sen. Byrd. Secondly, his speech shed light on the reality which is politics—neither completely pure nor totally corrupt.

Finally, Mr. Kilpatrick answered student questions. Sev-

THE ROTUNDA

VOL. VII

Longwood College, Farmville, Va., May 8, 1963

No. 20

Hatch Completes Research Study In Honors Paper

Marilyn (Lindy) Hatch has compiled her studies into an honors paper on the Cytological Study of Tripling Conjugation in Tetrahymena pyriformis after having completed two semesters of research on the subject under the sponsorship of Dr. Carolyn Wells.

Lindy recently presented part of her paper at a convention in Florida of the Association of Southeastern Biologists. On May 10 at 4:30 in room 101 of the science building, Lindy will go before a board composed of Dr. Richard P. Kimball, biology department of the Oak Ridge

LINDY HATCH

National Laboratory; Dr. Roscoe Hughes, chairman of the department of biology at the Medical College of Virginia; and Dr. Jane Holman, department of natural science here at Longwood, for her oral examination. Lindy is a senior biology major from Annandale. During her four years at Longwood, she has been active in many phases of college life. She is a member of Alpha Kappa Gamma, national leadership fraternity, and Lynchos, local science society. She has been a member of the hockey and basketball teams. This year she received a white blazer.

The results of the examination, if satisfactory, will enable Lindy to graduate with honors.

Organ Study

If any upperclassmen are seriously interested in organ study for next fall, they should meet Dr. Joanne Curnutt in her office at 12:45 Friday, May 10. An overflow of organ students is anticipated.

Sophomores Plan Banquet For Class Of '63

Longwood's annual Senior Banquet, as planned and organized by the sophomore class, will be Monday, May 13. The Student System sponsors the annual Senior Banquet.

The tentative menu calls for fillet mignon and pecan pie. This year's banquet is under the chairmanship of Nancy Via.

Working under her as chairman of various committees are the following students: Carolyn Anderson, decorations; Ann Douglas, place cards; "Dixie" Grant, entertainment; Judy Ivy, favors; and Polly Lane, programs. Shirley Moody is serving as the senior chairman.

The skit, as planned by "Dixie" and her committee, is organized around a secret theme with various spot lights through the evening.

Display Of Art From Museum Visits Campus

The Artmobile, sponsored by the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts is on campus next to Stevens Hall this week. The Artmobile contains a display of pre-Columbian art.

The works of art include various works of pottery, painted modeled heads, replicas of temples, jewelry, textiles, dolls, and clothing.

The countries represented in the display are Mexico, Guatemala, Panama, Colombia, Costa Rica, and Peru.

ART DISPLAY

This mustachioed figure of kneeling musician was included in Virginia Museum's 25th Anniversary Exhibition and is now part of Artmobile display, "Art Before Columbus."

Honoraries Elect Officers

English, Drama Groups

Select New Members

Eight of the several honor organizations have elected officers during the past few weeks. These organizations are: Alpha Kappa Gamma, Boere Eh Thorn, Kappa Delta Pi, Kappa Omicron Pi, Pi Delta Epsilon, Pi Gamma Mu, Pi Omicron Pi, and Sigma Alpha Iota.

Alpha Kappa Gamma, National leadership fraternity has elected Evelyn Gray as president; Betty Howard, vice-president; Charlotte McClung, secretary; Lewann Rippey, treasurer, and Mary Ann Lipford, historian.

Marie Murphy is the newly-elected head of Boere Eh Thorn, local English society. Pat Hudson is vice president; Melanie Wilkes secretary; Judy Wood, treasurer, and Margaret Cooke, historian.

Kappa Delta Pi, national education fraternity, has Charlotte McClung as its new president. Betty Howard is vice-president; Dana Brewer, secretary; Jeanne Kafer, treasurer, and Donna Arnold, historian.

The newly-elected president of Kappa Omicron Pi, home economics fraternity, is Anne Snead. First vice-president is Joan Cox; second vice-president, Linda Givens; recording and corresponding secretary, Barbara Turner. Jean Ball is treasurer; Ann Gordon, keeper of the archives, and Shirley Wilson, keeper of the gurnard.

Joan Lord is the new president of Pi Delta Epsilon, national collegiate journalism fraternity. Lewann Rippey is secretary-treasurer, and Ann Carroll is historian.

Newly elected president of Pi Gamma Mu, national social science fraternity, is Barbara Hewitt. First vice-president is Jo Anne Cartwright; second vice president, Mary Catherine Pulley; secretary, Marie Murphy, and archives chairman, Dolly Dogans.

The new president of Pi Omicron Pi, national business fraternity, is Anna White. Vice president is Betty Ruth Stimpson; secretary, Katly Laung.

treasurer, Joanne Woods; reporter, Kay Cobb, and historian, Kay Orr.

The new officers of Sigma Alpha Iota, national music fraternity, are Doris Harwell, president; Marilyn Anthony, vice president; Mildred Johnson, secretary; Karen Templeton, treasurer, and Jeanette Elder, chaplain.

Marla Clifford is president of the Longwood Players, local drama group. Carol McNair is vice president; Bobbie Fletcher, secretary; Ann Persak, treasurer, and Patty O'Neill, technical director.

Several groups recently initiated new members. Among these groups are Boere Eh Thorn, Kappa Delta Pi, and the Longwood Players.

The newly-initiated members of Boere Eh Thorn are Judy Parters, Barbara Poland, Charlotte McClung, Danette Blondel, Marjie Tully, Lewann Rippey, Dee Watkins, Judy Beck.

The newly initiated members of Kappa Delta Pi are Betty Howard, Jean Ester, Melanie Wilkes, Charlotte McClung, Lois Obenshain, Cynthia Davenport, Dana Brewer, Janet Culpeper, Lewann Rippey, Nancy Oldfield and Mary Catherine Pulley. Also, Donna Arnold, Charlotte Craig, Marjorie Twilley, Shirley Metcalf, Lynne Garner, and Dixie Perkins.

Players of the Longwood Players are Pat Newton, Barbara Agee, Dolores Antoine, Margaret Wright, Karen Ruder, Maria Kovaloff, Nancy Woltz, Mesh Marler, Bonnie Ramsey, and Bobby Rice. Also, Kay Callison, Bobbie Fletcher, Phyllis Savelen, Shirley Gumm, Sydney Tutwiler, Peggy Grill, Mary Lee Barnes, Judy Owen, Carole Moyer, Peggy Gay Pat Wallace, Brenda Estel, Carole Gibson, Lelf Erickson, Ann Coleman, Al, Allene Tuglie, Pat Dugger, Linda Overby, Winnie Walker, Jenny Turner, Sally Fulton, Sally Jarman, Shirley Fleming, Elizabeth Hammer, Linda Lunceford, Ann Friedman, and Harriet Hunt.

HEADS CHOSEN

Posing after their recent elections are new presidents of honorary organizations on campus. On front row (l. to r.) are Anne Snead, Kappa Omicron Pi; Barbara Hewitt, Pi Gamma Mu; back row, Joan Lord, Pi Delta Epsilon; Marie Murphy, Boere Eh Thorn; and Doris Harwell, Sigma Alpha Iota.

Lanning Visits Campus, Lectures White Classes

George Lanning, novelist and short story writer, will be on campus on May 8 through 11. Mr. Lanning is currently associate editor of the Kenyon Review, one of the foremost literary journals in the country.

Mr. Lanning will meet with two groups during his visit, and will be available for personal conferences with interested students.

Meets with Classes

On Wednesday evening, May 8, at 7:30, he will meet with Mr. White's Creative Writing Class and anyone else interested in attending. At this meeting, Mr. Lanning's discussion will center around fiction.

The following day, he will meet with Mr. White's Advanced Composition Class and interested students at 1:30, at which time he will discuss English prose style.

Mr. Lanning comes from Lakewood, Ohio, and is a graduate of Kenyon College. His short stories have appeared in The Sewanee Review, The Kenyon Review and The Prairie Schooner.

Publishes Book

He is the author of This Happy Rural Seat, and is the co-author, with Robie Macaulay, of a book on prose style, to be published this fall.

Any student interested in speaking with Mr. Lanning during his visit, should see Mr. White to arrange an interview.

Biology Majors Visit Gloucester For Weekend Of Marine Study

A group of students accompanied by Mr. B. S. Batts, Professor of Science, took a trip April 20 and 21 to the Virginia Institute of Marine Science at Gloucester Point.

The girls who went were all biology majors and included Susan Brittingham, Elizabeth Lee, Kathy Flynn, Connie Birch, Mary Allen, Jane Harrison, Barbara Clevenger and Kay Clevenger (Barbara's twin sister who attends Mary Washington College). The Information Officer was Robert S. Bailey.

The group traveled by car, leaving campus at 6:30 a.m. on Saturday and returning around 8:00 a.m. Sunday.

At the Institute there are four main research buildings, working with oysters and other shellfish, oceanography, fish, plankton, drifting plants and animals, bacteria and fungus. The work is concerned with the marine habitat of the Chesapeake Bay, Yorktown and James Rivers.

From 10:00 a.m. until 12:00 noon the group toured the research buildings. In the afternoon, the group collected plants and animals from the beach in front of the Institute. Among their collection were sea cucumbers, starfish, oysters, clams, barnacles, fish and plankton. These were all preserved and brought back to the Science Department.

The group ate supper in a seafood restaurant and spent the night in the Tidewater Motel in Hayes, Virginia, near Gloucester.

On Sunday, they again collected plants and animals from the beach in front of the Institute. This trip was the result of the Field Biology class and the Methods of Experimental Biology class. It was planned by Mr. Batts for any girls who were interested, especially Biology majors. Mr. Batts says this was the only opportunity to visit coastal areas, and if there is enough interest shown by the students, he would like to make the trip an annual affair.

Parish Lectures

Everyone is invited to attend the lectures on the Basic Nature of Man to be delivered by Dr. Norbert Bein of Vienna and Dr. Stanley R. Hopper tonight and tomorrow in the Episcopal Parish House. Tonight's talk will begin at 8 p. m. and tomorrow's will start at 7 p. m.

IT'S GETTING CLOSER

As June 2 draws near seniors get ready for pre-graduating activities. Here they practice for Senior Assembly, which will be held next Tuesday at 1:00 in Jarman Auditorium.

First, Last, Always

Last Rotunda, last assembly next Tuesday, last exams later in the month. And so, the weeks and days before graduation are filled with many "last" activities.

Still, there are many "firsts" during this time: hoods worn for the first time, degrees after names, and for some, re-exams.

It's the beginning and the end for the seniors. And for the other classes, it's the end of something. For the freshmen, it's the end of that awful first year. For the sophomores, it's the end of the first half of their college careers. For the juniors, it's the end of having a class ahead of them.

Beginning or end, it's time to evaluate the time we've been here. Has it been meaningful? If seniors answer, "NO!", nothing can be done; their four years are ended. However, underclassmen are fortunate, they have from one to three to rectify their mistakes, and make their college years have a valuable meaning.

Constitution: Now-Then

The Constitution for the Woman's Student Government Association has been passed by the Legislative Board and is awaiting student ratification. This constitution, is extremely well suited to Longwood's Student Government.

There are some very good changes in this new constitution over the old one:

The treasurer of the Legislative Board is a member of the Student Activities Fees Committee (Article II, Section I, d.).

The secretary of Judicial Board is to be elected by the student body instead of by the board from its members; thus, allowing the class representatives to give their full attention to the case (Art. II, Sec. II).

The chairman of the Judicial Board is to execute and enforce the laws (Art. III, Sec. III, a.). She will act much like the president of the United States in that she will have the duty of enforcing the laws. The vice chairman's duty is "to prosecute violations of the law." She will read the charges, ask the questions, and generally direct the prosecution. When a person is charged, it is the vice chairman who will prove the charges are true by using evidence and questions.

This is infinitely more just, in theory, than our present system. The way the Board now works is similar to having a whole tribunal of prosecuting attorneys judging the defendant. That the person who accuses and prosecutes the defendant is separate from the judge is a well established principle of justice. A judge should hear the facts, state what the law (rule) is on the matter and pronounce punishment (sentence). Our informal system at Longwood would not preclude the judges' (members of the Judicial Board) asking questions, but the main question should come from the vice-chairman (prosecutor).

This system insures a much fairer hearing to each case than the method of representatives acting as prosecutors and judges at the same time.

Not stated in the constitution, but implied is that the chairman, because she executes, and the vice-chairman, because she enforces the laws, shall have no vote in the decision. If either of them votes, the whole system breaks down, and the benefits of having a prosecutor are lost.

Article III, Section VII is one of the greatest parts of this constitution. It guarantees certain rights to the accused: the accused shall not be denied the right "... of counsel, ... to know the nature of all charges brought against her, ... to have witnesses in her behalf." These rights are basic!

The new nomination procedures are much more democratic than in the old system. This new method is described in Article V. The person running for an office will have to think about her future responsibilities before she is elected.

This new constitution is the product of the labors of several people. Mr. John Allen of the Public Relations Office and Dr. Richard Barron, Professor of Political Science, each wrote constitutions for the Legislative Board to work with. Originally the Legislative Board under Annice Bailey worked on the constitution. The document that has been passed is a product of the editing efforts of Bonnie Ramey and Dana Brewer. Bonnie is presently a representative to the Legislative Board. Dana was a member of Annice Bailey's Legislative Board.

Our thanks should go to all of these people for their efforts and interest.

The Rotunda

ESTABLISHED NOVEMBER 28, 1959

Published each week during the college year except during holidays and examination period by the students of Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia. Vol. 148.

Thomas M. Humphreys	Editor-in-Chief
Marie Grant	Managing Editor
John Lind	Business Manager
Don Walker	News Editor
Sandra Jamison	Feature Editor
Nancy Mervin	Sports Editor
Becky Tucker	Desk Editor
Becky Ann Atkinson	Art Editor
Linda Parle	Critic
Ann Peters	Photography
Debbie Marshall	Advertising Manager

Member: Virginia Intercollegiate Press (Rating First Class), Columbia Scholarship Press Association (Rating First Place), National College Press Service.

Entered as second-class matter at the Post Office at Farmville, Virginia under the Act of Congress on March 3, 1934. Represented for national advertising by the National Advertising Service, Planned by the Farmville Herald. (Assigned editorialists written by the editor.)

LITTLE MAN CAMPUS "BIBB"

'Farmville' Student Recounts Surrender

This story is based on a true account, "The Chivalric Side of General Grant," written by Minnie Harrison, a girl 13 years old, at Farmville Female College at the time of this episode. The account was published in Harper's Weekly on July 10th, 1865.

The year is 1865, and the month is May. Looking back to last month it all seems almost unreal. There were only 80 of us at Farmville Female College under the direction of Professor Arnold Prosser.

In the midst of civil war we continued our studies, hoping the tide of war would not come our way. Eventually we heard that the Yankees had taken over our Confederate capital of Richmond. It came as a blow to all of us at the college and we waited anxiously for further news.

On the 6th of last month we heard rapid firing in the direction of High Bridge. It quickly spread through the school that General Lee's army was in full retreat, with General Grant's forces at their heels. All of us felt an overwhelming fear about what would happen to us and the town.

All of our usual activities ceased as we spent that evening sadly watching the weary, starving Southern army march by.

Many girls had brothers, friends in that pathetic group, and they stopped long enough to speak and ask us to be brave, for they (soldiers) would soon be in the hands of the enemy.

All during the night we heard the continuous rumble of wheels and the sound of marching feet.

The next morning, which was grey and misty, we saw a squadron of the 1st Virginia Cavalry dash by at full speed, firing backward as they went.

We bade farewell to the Army of Northern Virginia when behind them, out of the morning mist, came the advance of Sheridan's legions.

Minnie balls fell around the building and one crashed through a window near some of the girls. By the time they recovered from their panic, the army in grey had vanished completely.

We stood watching fearfully the wonderful spectacle of the Northern Army. Their horses were well-fed and the men looked like giants in their winter overcoats and big hats. As the mist turned to rain, the columns moved on to the music of their magnificent bands, looking neither to left, nor right.

Our minds were centered on only one question—what would happen to our soldiers?

In a short time, and as far as the eye could see, the country surrounding the town was a vast camp. The Federals had marched in what seemed a

Around The Campi

This week's Around the Campi is dedicated to the Class of '63.

ON GRADUATING

Cop and gown are put away,
Both were worn the last today.
Four short years of memories
Summed up in conferred degrees.
More than that was growing up
To this day from freshman pup.

No more rats to climb the wall.
No more plays in Jorman Hall.
No more point fights, "mickey stuff,"
Four short years were long enough.
No more classes, books and such.
Didn't look forward to them much.
No more tramping through exams;
Call downs, cards, or other slams.
No more games, Rotunda sings,
Color Cup, and all those things.
No more Circus skits, parades,
Walking down the Colonnade.
No more dorm with all the noise;
Seeing all the H-S boys.
No more singing in the "recs."
No more pseudointellecs.
No more little study nooks,
Trusty cup and lots of books.

No more student teachers' plights;
Long discussions, shorter fights.
No more clubs and paper work,
Doing things you'd rather skip.
No more May Day in the Dell.
Charlie Hop was really swell.
No more 'round the old camp
Watching for the white-robed CHI.
No more Alma Mater songs,
Or the tower's eerie bonns.
No more days of rivalry,
Since the last of old L.C.
No more sings 'round Joan of Arc,
As the evening sky grows dark.
No more walking 'cross the stage
Now that you have filled that "page"
Cap and gown are put away,
Both were worn the last today.

—M. G.

'Critic's Choice'

Absurd Comedies Lauded

By Betty Ann Atkinson

The theatre of the absurd was the subject of the design and direction of Mr. David Wiley, presented the last week end at Johns Auditorium. The Hampden-Sydney Jokers the Longwood Players, and Alpha Psi Omega in conjunction sponsored a truly notable production of Simpson's comedies, "A Resounding Tinkle," starring Mike Couchman, Dottie Cox and Pei Newton, and "The Form" with Dave Relyes, Carla McNaair, Mary Lynn Lander and Ed Baker.

It is curious how the theatre of the absurd is a reflection of the completeness of our civilization. Western culture has become so thoroughly civilized that there is no longer a trend in any of the arts to enhance our status of civilization; rather, the pendulum is swinging the other way, toward the enhancement of the more primitive aspects of human nature. People today seem to be breaking away from formalized civil tradition and observing basic and "natural" behavior in the face of almost overwhelming civility. The result in the arts is the elevation of man at his most primitive, man stripped of all the artificialities of a highly overt system of socialization. All the arts, music, dance, and even literary character are tending toward this. The theatre is an especial case in point. Anti-theatre, such as that of the French playwright, Ionesco, and absurd theatre, such as that of the English playwright, C. P. Snow, exploit the logic of the civilized thought process. Simpson, in his satire on English middle-class life, "A Resounding Tinkle," exposes the logical illogic of the raw mind under the a most overwhelming circumstances of social pressure and ritual. His characters live a high-speed and thoroughly engrossing life of naming pet elephants and experiencing things vicariously. All of it was utterly delightful.

Dottie Cox and Mike Couchman, veterans of the Longwood stage, played the leading roles most engagingly. Dottie, groomed handsomely, acted with grace and personality, her "Middle" uttering beautifully hilarious examples of logical illogic with ease and spontaneity. Mike, one of the finest comedians I have seen yet, was again at a peak in his role as "Bro." Freshman Pat Newton, an ever-so-slight British accent, emerging from her lips and endowed with a naturally lovely voice, showed much promise of what is to come. These three carried off a play of some difficulty with admirable finesse.

The other play by Simpson, "The Form" an awesome thing indeed, was expertly done. For such difficult material to work with, the actors did a remarkable job. Dave Relyes took the spotlight in this one with his superb portrayal of a puppet playing a bureaucratic puppet. This motif was carried through all the characters. Dave has a uniquely fine talent, which came beautifully to the fore in his arduous role. Carla McNaair and Mary Lynn Lander played the two usually - usual secretaries with their usual finesse. Carla displaying a fine flair for comedy. Her facial expressions were hilarious. Ed Baker was excellent as the bytish blustering huge armadillo-character comedy—is definitely his line. He has a manner of physical and vocal gestulation which is of considerable humor.

The two plays were highly entertaining—in fact they were the highlight of this year's theatrical activities. Mr. Wiley once remarked that he was best at light, brittle comedy, and he was so right. It is a pity that more people could not have seen his latest work. My only complaint is that all the actors being accustomed to the acoustics in the huge Jorman Hall applied the same stentorian quality to their roles at the small Johns. This tended to be rather grating to the ears at times, but otherwise the plays were an excellent evening's entertainment.

Group From Longwood Attends VSSA Meeting

The thirty-sixth annual meeting of the Virginia Social Science Association was held Saturday, May 4 at Randolph-Macon Woman's College in Lynchburg. Attending from Longwood were Professors Schlegel, Simkins, Lane, Hanson, Magnusson, Vieira, Barron, Dean Moss, and two students, Nancy Morefield and Jo Ann Cartwright. Two of the professors, Mr. Vieira and Dr. Barron, participated in the political science section of the Association's program. Mr. Vieira gave a paper entitled "The State Department and its Latin American Policy: A Criticism" which evoked the lack of respect accorded the seemingly effeminate national character of the United States by the "Don Juanismo" Hispanic-Americans. Dr. Barron gave a reply to the speech "Contemporary Study of Virginia Government," by Prof. McClellan Gilliam of VMI, a former student of Dr. Barron's. Mr. Gilliam stated that Virginia government is not taught at the undergraduate level. Dr. Barron countered this statement by pointing out that the undergraduate student receives a knowledge of the state's government in the general government courses.

The convention composed two general sessions. In the Sociology section, "Administration and Democracy in Morocco" by James R. Shuster of the College of William and Mary showed Morocco's steady progression towards greater democracy despite its monarchical status.

In the Political Science section, three papers were presented — the two previously mentioned and "The Place of Theory in American Political Life" by Morton J. Frisch, of William and Mary. Immediately following luncheon Dr. John F. Morse, American Council on Education, spoke on "Education, Legislation and the Federal Government," which he said that there is hardly an area of education in which the federal government does not already give aid.

In the afternoon session, many of the United States was given by Dr. B. U. Ratcliff of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, and "Non-Market Aspects of an Oligopolistic Economy" by Anthony L. Sannetta of William and Mary.

Dr. Ratcliff pointed out that the United States of today is a good place in which to borrow money, but a bad one in which to invest. Professor Sannetta said that big business today has evolved its own system retaining some aspects of competition but more aspects of manipulation.

The papers of the history section were largely concerned with slavery, agriculture, and Congressionalism. These were the following: "The Role of Anti-Slavery Sentiment in the Growth of American Congressionalism: 1830-1862" given by Samuel C. Pearson, Jr. of Saint Paul's College, "Virginia Agricultural Societies: 1811-1860" by Charles W. Turner of Washington and Lee, and "John Curtis Underwood and the Anti-Slavery Movement in Virginia" given by Mrs. Patricia P. Hicken, Jr. of the University of Virginia. The last paper treated the post Civil War activities of J. C. Underwood, naming him the possible father of West Virginia and of Virginia Republicanism.

Following the three papers, Professor Corder of Hampden-Sydney College commented briefly on the three papers.

BULL'S EYE!

Practicing for upcoming archery meet, member of Longwood team takes aim at target. Class archery practice will start soon.

Archery Team Shoots In Telegraphic Meets

The archery season is back again. The varsity team has been busy already. Last Friday and Saturday, four people, Melody Saunders, Lurline Robertson, Sandra Waugh, and Barbara Allen shot in the Intercollegiate Telegraphic Meet. This consists of taking the total score for the group and sending it in to compete against all other colleges in the nation.

By the way, last year Melody set a new record for archery with a score of 457. Last Friday, while shooting in the meet, she broke her previous record with a score of 459.

Starting today, the varsity team, Melody Saunders, Sandra Waugh, Lurline Robertson, Barbara Allen, and Earlene Lang, will start keeping their scores for the next two weeks. The highest score for each person during that time will be sent in to the Women's Intercollegiate Mail Archery Tournament.

For those of you who are interested, and know how to shoot, class archery is coming up. To get your practices in, go and see Miss B. If you have had a class in archery here, or can prove your ability to handle a bow attend her classes and get your eight practices in.

Junior Group Visits Richmond Hospital

Junior physical education majors visited the Crippled Children's Hospital, the School of Physical Therapy and the Anatomy Laboratory at Medical College of Virginia on May 7.

The annual tour is a definitive part of the course. The Body Mechanic, Adapted and Corrective Program in Physical Education 340, at Crippled Children's Hospital, the group comes in contact with cases relative to orthopedics or bone and joint conditions, which a text book only describes.

A visit to an actual situation where the child gets treatment, as in the physical therapy department as well as watching children studying at the same time they are convalescing clarifies the corrective and adaptive program that these children need when they get back to regular schooling.

Visit. Enlightening. A visit through the School of Physical Therapy plus visiting in the actual clinics relative to treatment for various conditions is revealing those who, for the first time are visiting a general hospital clinic.

In both — Crippled Children's Hospital and the School of Physical Therapy and its adjoining clinics for hospital patients — in and out patients, the students have the opportunities to grasp the real meaning of exercise for the individual relative to his specific problems.

The Anatomy Laboratory, as the last place on the day's tour, becomes the most meaningful, experience-wise. For the first time, students are confronted with the real situation of a patient for the first time. Some, at first refuse to even look, but before the session is ended, everyone wants to stay longer.

Meaningful Experience. The field trip becomes a day of meaningful experiences, which clarify many concepts studied but heretofore vague. This year's group are intent upon clarifying the concept of exercise as it is defined in the total physical education program. According to the group — Lois Obenshain, Chris Longstreet, Shirley Metcalf, Emma McDaniel, Gaynelle Taylor and Peggy Waldo, they have gained insight into the meaning of teaching people in activities and the danger in dealing in exercise as clarified, which means—the physical education teacher literally takes a person's body and manipulates it.

Awe for the problem of rehabilitation as seen on the field trip and the challenge in teaching physical education to people and dealing with their bodies becomes more awesome after the actual experience.

Mrs. Emily K. Landrum, Associate Professor of Physical Education teaches these courses, The Body Mechanic, the Adapted and Corrective Program. Mrs. Landrum has had field experiences in three hospitals in the New York City area as a part of her special study with Dr. Josephine L. Rathbone. These field studies were at New York Orthopedic Hospital, St. Luke's Hospital and the Snowden Clinic at Medical Center where the Kraus-Weber tests were originally tested.

Rytex Princess Informals
Personalized With Your Name
Gay Spiral ..... $3.89
Reg. $5.50
Also Visiting Cards
from $2.95 up
MARTIN
THE JEWELER

Longwood Tennis Team Plays William And Mary

William and Mary played host to the Longwood tennis team in a series of matches played on Tuesday April 30. Henrietta Gilliam, Nancy Morefield, and Pat Burdette played the single matches while the double matches were played by Ann Green and Carol Nye, Lory Gilchrist and Rosemary Rudy.

Henrietta lost her match, 6-3, 6-3. Nancy Morefield won with a score of 6-2, 6-3. Pat Burdette also won with a score of 6-1, 6-3.

The next match is scheduled for Wednesday, May 8. It will be here with Lynchburg College. Nancy Morefield and Henrietta Gilliam will represent Longwood in the Middle Atlantic Collegiate Tennis Championships to be played at Mary Baldwin from May 9 to May 11. The matches will be both singles and doubles. Several other colleges will be represented. They are: Sweet Briar, Randolph - Macon College, Hollins, William and Mary, Mary Baldwin, Richmond Professional Institute, and Radford College.

TENNIS, ANYONE?

Nancy Morefield and Henrietta Gilliam, Longwood representatives in Middle Atlantic Collegiate Tennis Championships, pause before beginning afternoon practice.

NO HANDICAPS, PLEASE
Two women are preparing to board the airlines. One of them turned to the pilot and said, "Now, please don't travel faster than sound. We want to talk."

Aquatic Group For Virginians Meets At VMI

The Second Annual State of Virginia Aquatic Conference will be held at Virginia Military Institute May 11-12.

The Conference will be conducted by Charles G. Arnold, head of the Physical Education Department at V. M. I. Mr. Arnold and other lecturers will speak on the topics, Competitive Swimming, and Diving, Drown-proofing, Resuscitation and External Heart Massage.

Lectures on Skin Diving, Swimming Pool Operation, and Maintenance, Synchronized Swimming, Teaching Swimming and Diving, Water Shows, Weight Training and Camp Aquatics will also be given.

Try Our Special
Strawberry Sundae
20c in the
COLLEGE SNACK BAR

Come In And See Our New Shipment of Rose Marie Reid
SWIM SUITS
$19.99 up
1 & 2 Piece
DOROTHY MAY
STORE

Tennis Teams Vie For Points In Color Match

Following are the results of the third round of the class tennis games:

Weld and Obenshain vs. Taylor and Eudy - Taylor and Eudy, 6-1, 6-1; Dixon and Uphur vs. Harrison and Waldo - Dixon and Uphur, Forfeit; Knewstep and Wright vs. Slack and Stewart - Slack and Stewart, Forfeit.

The Sammis and Sykes vs. Puckett and Wright match has not yet been played.

The next round will be the runners-up and from them will come the winners. Points will be given toward the Color Cup for the class that comes out on top.

Visit The COLLEGE BOOKSTORE for your Summer Reading Ideas

THE VANITY BEAUTY SHOP

We Permanent Wave Problem Hair
Corrective Hair Coloring Done Expertly
All Work Guaranteed and Reasonably Priced.
Phone EX 2-4460
Corner Main & High Sts.
Farmville, Va.
IDA SOUTHAL, Owner

MODERN DANCE

Members of Orchestra and modern dance classes perform during recent assembly held in Jarman Auditorium. Orchestra is honorary modern dance society on campus.

Modern Dance Students Show Dance Potentials

The assembly presented by the students of modern dance will long be remembered. The production presented on April 30, was wedded between the Faculty Folies and the annual May Day, but still had a satisfying effect for many students.

It was simply a demonstration-program showing the potential dance in everyday life, and an intent by Orchestra to carry on toward a more realistic approach to understanding dance as an art form. It is an example of the blending naturally of the curricular with the extracurricular, i.e. three units combining for one goal — understanding.

Judging from comments of students, one could visualize for herself in two of the events as the program unfolded the traditions of college life as the student "feels" it. Others, when questioned, would answer "four times." What does this say? One lives his traditions although he isn't aware of it until it is shared in some manner.

Most students, according to un-polluted opinion, liked Autumn Leaves. When asked to close their eyes, and visualize an appropriate color, the majority of students thought of red while others saw yellow.

Why the tree melted into the background was another question, which can be explained as an unfinished problem of staging to be clarified in next year's program. In the yellow leaf group, one was wearing red because another yellow outfit was not available. It was important for everyone in the classes to be participating.

Orchestra wants to thank the student body for its response to the program of dance. And for everyone participating — kudos.

HUP, 2, 3, 4!

Longwood's wooden soldiers are on the march! They were part of May Day festivities held Saturday afternoon at Longwood Estate. This year's theme was "Fantasie Fair."

HER MAJESTY

May Queen Gari Dickson reigns with her court over May Day festivities at Longwood Estate, Saturday. May 4. Theme for this year's program was "Fantasie Fair."

1963 May Day Program Features Fantasy Tales

By Karen Ruder

Last Saturday, Longwood presented its annual May Day program. This year's theme was "Fantasie Fair." The program opened with the presentation of the May Court and the crowning of the May Queen, Gari Dickson.

Down the hill came Jimmy Cricket. Jimmy, with a few magic words, took us back to our childhood and its fantasies. The wooden soldiers, who only appear at Christmas, made a special trip to go through their drill.

Snow White, lost in the forest, was found by the seven dwarfs; and finally rode off with Prince Charming on his steed.

Remember how we used to play cowboys and Indians? The Indians were whooping it up in the dell.

Have you ever seen a gingerbread house? Hansel and Gretel did, but inside was a mean old witch who was seared away when she saw herself in the mirror.

Pinocchio, the puppet, fell asleep and dreamed he became a real boy. When Jimmy Cricket awakened him, he found that his dream had come true. Tom Sawyer was smart; he had his friends whitewash his fence while he took it easy.

But all fantasies must come to an end, and our May Day was concluded for another year.

Confederates March Past College In 1865

(Continued from page 2)

The room we had was stripped of furniture except for a carpet and one sofa. One of the girls, who was sick, used the sofa, and the rest of us slept on the floor. But there wasn't much sleeping. Someone had brought a tall candle and we spent most of the night talking of our present situation.

A little after midnight there was a knock at the door and when we asked who it was, a voice replied, "A Confederate soldier makes a request." We opened the door and the soldier told us his friend was dying and wished a letter taken to his home in Albemarle County. One of the girls went for the message.

At daylight the soldier was dead.

Shortly after sunrise, after a breakfast of pump water, the wagons again rumbled on through the masses of Grant's army.

"Our" officer and his men were kept busy charging and counter charging with uplifted sabres upon the ineffectual infantrymen who tried to look at us at the "Rebel" girls.

By this time we were too hungry and exhausted to pay any attention to the passing landscape and marching forces.

By afternoon we reached Burkeville, but we were too late to catch the train to City Point.

We said farewell to the "captains" and followed the lieutenant to another hospital. This time there were plenty of blankets and it was more comfortable.

The next morning the lieutenant sent us a bag of "hardtack." It was good after so long without food. We tried to buy something else to eat before leaving the town, but there was nothing. The citizens didn't have enough for themselves.

Eventually we got on board a train to City Point. The coaches were so old they threatened to collapse any moment.

Ours was filled with Northern soldiers, resident in epaulettes, stars, and gold braid. We proved to be great courtesies for the well-groomed soldiers in our homemade hats, pleated - out dresses, and calfskin shoes.

We were near the desolated Petersburg when the ancient engine's boiler burst. Not until sundown did we reach City Point on the James.

Upon arrival we followed the conductor to the Provost Marshal's office, and again through Grant's orders, we got on board a spanking new steamboat.

Compared with our former lodgings along the way, the steamboats were wonderful. At Uncle Sam's expense we ate ravenously.

The next morning after breakfast we were transferred to a river-steamship which took us to Richmond.

After so long I finally reached home, called "Midway" in Albemarle County, Virginia, thanks to the orders of a victor at Appomattox.

QUEEN GARI

Longwood's Queen of the May, Gari Dickson, is presented to her subjects. Queen and court were escorted by members of Pershing Rifles from Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

Examination Schedule

Second Semester 1962-63 Session
Examination Day and Date	Morning 8:05-11:05	Afternoon 1:05-4:05
Friday May 24	Reading Period	10:05 TTS Classes TTH Classes TuS Classes ThS Classes
Saturday May 25	2:05 MWF Classes MW & WF Classes MTWTF Classes	9:05 TTS Classes TTH Classes TuS Classes ThS Classes
Monday May 27	11:05 TTH Classes	2:05 TTH Classes
Tuesday May 28	1:05 MWF Classes MW Classes WF Classes MTWTF+ Classes	9:05 MWF Classes MW & WF Classes MTWTF Classes
Wednesday May 29	4:05 MWF Classes TTH Classes	9:05 MWF Classes MW Classes WF Classes MTWTF Classes TWTTHS Classes
Thursday May 30	3:05 MWF Classes TTH Classes	11:05 MWF Classes MW & WF Classes MTWTF Classes
Friday May 31	8:05 TTS Classes TTH Classes ThS Classes	10:05 MWF Classes MW & WF Classes MTWTF Classes
Monday, May 27, 7:00-10:00 P.M. - Conflicts, Room 21

Any student with an examination conflict should notify the professor responsible for administering one of the examinations in conflict. The professor will deliver the examination for the student to the Dean of the College before the Monday evening examination conflict period.

Any deviation from the above schedule must be approved in advance by the Dean of the College.

Examinations for evening classes will be scheduled on the evening of the regular class meeting during the examination period.

From The Board

The nominations of important committee chairmen for the committees under Student Government were made at the April 30 meeting of the Legislative Board. The Activities, Calendar, and Assembly Chairmen must be approved by the Student Body.

Karen Diederick and Joyce Powell will be in charge of the Southern Intercollegiate Association of Student Governments' convention which will be held at Longwood in the Spring of 1964.

Filling the post of Assembly Chairman, Betty Ann Atkinson will work with her committee, the student body, and the faculty and administration to prepare worthwhile assembly programs for the 1963-64 school year.

Eva Moore is the new calendar chairman, and her duties will be to keep a record of events, meetings, and such and to post these so that students and faculty may have a reference when they wish to know what is happening when. This is not to be confused with the calendar across from the business office. It is, instead, a more complete one, that will list all class and club meetings.

The Co-Chairmen of the study group set up to evaluate May Day will be headed by Suzanne Briel and Ann Cordle.

Dana Brewer and Anne Downey are chairman and co-chairman respectively of the Activities Committee for next year. Representatives from each class will be chosen to complete this committee.

It is probable that a class in parliamentary order will be offered next Fall to heads of organizations and to their parliamentarians. It is felt that the class would be beneficial to most organizations. The Board welcomes your opinions concerning this.

The Judicial Board will join us on the Student Government picnic May 8 at Longwood Estate. Nancy Morefield and Linda Bassford will make the arrangements.

Consider the proposed new constitution for the Student Government Association. We think it's quite concise and that it meets the students' needs and clarifies matters that have been ambiguous in the past. Note the changes in procedures and consult your class representatives! This is a big step, and it is up to you to point the direction.

Evelyn Gray
Nancy Morefield

Patronize Rotunda Advertisers

SOUTHSIDE SUNDAY

Cosmetics

20% Discount

Thru

May 16th

VOLKSWAGENS

New and Used

Now Taking Orders for
May and June Delivery
Ward Motor Corporation
Authorized Volkswagen
Dealer

216 Petersburg Pike
(Seven Blocks South
of Lee Bridge)
Richmond, Virginia
Telephone BE 2-2371

COLLEGE SHOPPE

Coming Soon!

Homemade

Pizza

Pies

HOLLYWOOD BEAUTY COLLEGE

Thank you for your wonderful patronage. We will miss you during the summer and will await you in the fall with new fall styles. Make plans today for your pre-summer hairdos and hair cuts.

Shampoo & Set .... $1.00
Cut ..... $1.00

Permanent Waves

$5.00 & up

Frostings, Tips and

Streaks — $5 & Set

A Pleasant Summer — Staff —

THE LONGWOOD

VOL. XLIII

Longwood College, Farmville, Va., October 2, 1963

No. 2

AKG Circles Convene On Longwood Campus

Longwood will witness the annual Alpha Kappa Gamma National Convention to which the AKG circle of Longwood College will play hostess October 4 and 5. The last such convention to be held here was five years ago in 1958.

There are only six AKG circles, five of which are located in South Carolina, and the other is located here at Longwood. Representatives and sponsors from the following colleges will attend: University of South Carolina, Queens College, Columbia College, College of Charleston, Lander College, and Erskine College. It is anticipated that forty representatives will be present.

Six Circles Meet

The purpose of the convention will be to bring together the six circles of this leadership group in order that they may evaluate what each group is doing for its school. However, there is also an underlying purpose. Some of the national officers will be bringing girls from other colleges, and it is hoped that they will choose to create new AKG circles in their respective colleges.

Judging from the schedule of events, it promises to be a very busy week end for these girls. After registration on Friday evening the 4th, there will be a welcoming party in the Wheeler recreation room for the delegates from 9:00 to 10:00 p.m.

Tour Appointment

Business begins early Saturday morning with various meetings in the Student Building. One of the matters on the slate will be the election of new national officers. Following these meetings there will be a historical sight-seeing trip to Appomattox during the afternoon hours.

Wilson Speaks

The final event of the convention will be a banquet which will be held in the tea room Saturday evening. Members of the administration will attend in addition to special guests such as Miss Florence Stubbs who was the Dean National Secretary of AKG. Dean Wilson will be a principal speaker for the evening. Also at this time the new national officers will be installed.

Freshman Class Elects Smith As Sponsor

The newly-elected sponsor of the green and white class of '67 is Miss Barbara Smith. Miss Smith who is new at the job of sponsoring a class, said, "I am looking forward to working with this class."

Miss Smith, a native South Carolinian, was graduated from Limestone College in South Carolina and the University of North Carolina.

At Longwood Miss Smith teaches golf, swimming, and freshman physical education. She taught previously at Whetstone College in Norton, Massachusetts.

Along with her interests in physical education, Miss Smith also enjoys photography and good music. Her special interest is in synchronized swimming.

On commenting on her new position, Miss Smith said, "I feel quite honored to have been selected to be a part of the Class of '67."

Another green and white spirited professor who has been a loyal sponsor for many years at Longwood is Dr. French known as "Charlie Hop to everyone. His class of 1963 graduated last year, but the Class of '65 has unanimously elected him as honorary co-sponsor along with Dr. Caroline Wells for their green and white class.

SCHEDULE OF PLAYS

November 7, 8, 9, "MAJOR BARBARA" by G. B. Shaw.

December 12, 13, 14, "GHOSTS" by Ibsen.

Tryouts for both plays:

Thursday, Oct. 3, 7-9 p.m.

Friday, Oct. 4, 2-4 p.m. - 7-9 p.m.

Rehearsals for the first play begin Monday, October 7. Open House meeting for all those interested in any aspect of stage work will be Wednesday night, Oct. 2 in Jarman Auditorium.

Campus Chaplain

The Rev. Jack Adams, part-time Episcopalian chaplain for Longwood, will be on campus every Wednesday from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Anyone wishing to see him may leave a note in the Home Office. The Rev. Mr. Adams' home address is Box 224, Appomattox, Virginia.

Freshmen Choose Circus Chairmen

The freshman class has elected its Circus chairmen.

The chairman of the circus is Billie Sue Board. Billie Sue is from Roanoke, Virginia. In high school Billie Sue was treasurer of the student government her junior year and the vice-president her senior year. She was vice-president and president of the Future Teachers Association, G.R. State and the Southern Association of Student Councils in Texas were two trips that Billie Sue made her junior year.

Music is Billie Sue's major. Showing her interest in music, she was the accompanist for her school choir. She was also in the all-state choir.

Billie Sue's comment about this years Circus is, "There is no doubt that this will be a green and white Circus if all freshmen will support and work hard for their committees."

Co-chairman

Sally Ritcher is her senior class and a member of Tri High V. One of her favorite hobbies is writing. She wrote the class prophesy her senior year. "Circus will be great if the freshmen stick together. The class of '67 is the best that Longwood has ever seen," is Sally's comment on Circus.

Sue Goodes, this years booth chairman for Circus, is from Richmond, Virginia. She is co-chairman of the Future Teachers Association, treasurer.

"With 500 freshmen to help, this certainly ought to be a green and white Circus. I think the skill is going to be fabulous," says Sue.

Barron Offers Political Science To LC Students

Dr. Richard W. Barron, instructor of political sciences, is leading students into two new fields of political science beginning with this semester. The new fields are political theory and international politics. These are taught during alternate years and classes will be conducted three periods each week.

Political theory and American political theory are being taught this year for the first time. During the first semester, Dr. Barron is teaching political theory which is the study of the history of political philosophy from Plato to sponsor with some attention to contemporary ideologies.

Political Theory

American political theory will be taught the second semester. This course is a critical examination of the thought which has conditioned the political life and institution of the United States.

Next year the international politics will be taught for the first time. Beginning with the first semester will be an introduction to international politics.

(Continued on page 4)

Former Classmate Of Castro Joins Foreign Language Staff

DR. OSVALDO SOTO

Spanish Club

The first meeting of the Spanish Club will be held on Wednesday, October 9, at 4:00 p.m. in the Little auditorium. Dr. Osvaldo Soto will be interviewed about Cuba and the Castro regime, and there will be entertainment by members of the Spanish Club. Faculty and students are invited.

Seniors Begin First Block Teaching

Many of our seniors have begun preparation in earnest for their chosen profession. The first block of student teachers have already begun their practice teaching in a number of Virginia schools.

Those teaching in the Danville area are Sally Barclay, Sandra Cowan, Gloria Dobyns, Norma Eudy, Frances Haga, Betty McFall, Joan Pritchett, Beverly Pruitt, Barbara Ramsey, Linda Rippey, Anne Snead, Joan Still, Sallie Williams, and Ola Worley.

At Roanoke are: Sarah Brewer, Nancy Combs, Pam Croy, Jeanette Elder, Carolyn Houser, Frances Hudson, Jean Kable, Jean Kafer, Marlene Keen, Sydney Latimer, Carla McNair, Marion McCormick, Mary Catherine Pulley, Betty Ann Rex, Wanda Robertson, Kathy Shelton, Joyce Smith, Mary Ward, Rowena Yates, and Judy Hayler have started their first weeks of observation before actually taking over in the classrooms.

Marilyn Anthony, Carol Benton, Elisabeth Cox, Nancy Dobyns, Pat Gallahan, Barbara Gibbons, Sara Gill, Betty Howard, Ann Jones, Brenda Mitchell, Bonnie Underwood, Peggy Vaughan, Joan Voliva, Anne Woelke, Evelyn Woods, Wanda Barnett, Pat Brooks, Nancy Burke, Barbara Dunn, Molly Freeman, Barbara Hewitt, Joan Martin, Linda Nelson, Katherine Patterson, Johnel Poffenberger, Barbara Sours, Joanne Slack, Ann Stokes, and Virginia Summers are in the relatively new areas of Richmond and Henrico county.

Teaching locally are Cynthia Alcock, Janet Cupepper, Phyllis Matthews, Judy Melchor, Carl Nurney, and Mrs. Waddell.

Cuban Refugee Teaches Spanish To LC Students

By Marget Loffthelm

Dr. Osvaldo N. Soto, Longwood's new professor of Spanish, is a refugee from Castro's Cuba. He comes to Longwood from Riverton, Wyoming, where he taught Spanish at Riverton Junior High School. Dr. Soto obtained his job with the Riverton school system through a placement service for Cuban refugees.

The son of a wealthy Havana family, Dr. Soto received a doctorate in law from the University of Havana. While attending law school there, he was president of the student body. In Cuba this is of greater importance than in the U. S., because students there are very active in national politics.

Friends With Castro

In the class ahead of him was Fidel Castro, who failed a year and ended up graduating with Dr. Soto. The two men seemingly had a great deal in common, for they studied at each others homes, dated the same girls and became close friends. They ran against each other in a number of campus elections, all of which Dr. Soto won. He also was on the varsity football, basketball and track teams. Outstanding in track, he set a record that still stands in Cuba today.

Dr. Soto was recognized throughout his years at the university as an outstanding anti-communist student leader. Castro was known as an odd character.

When Castro was planning his revolution he felt close enough to Dr. Soto to confide his plans to him. Dr. Soto spent a fortune in backing Castro. He solicited funds from his friends and actually took part in concealing known revolutionaries. Because of his known friendship with Castro he was arrested by Batista twice.

When Batista fled on January 1, 1959, Dr. Soto was one of the guests when Cuba's new president was seated. From that time Dr. Soto began to have doubts about Castro's concern with Cuba.

Works Underground

October saw the final break and Dr. Soto began to work in the anti-Castro underground. In January, 1960 they started the MHR "Save the Revolution" and 2000 men took to the hills to fight Castro.

On October 9, 1960, Dr. Soto came to the U. S. to buy arms and leave his family. Before their departure his brother-in-law had been arrested several times, each time managing to escape with his brother-in-law's help. Just before going back to Cuba, he received a telephone call from a friend in Havana. It was too dangerous for him to risk coming back for his house and property had been seized.

Joins Council

The Sotos were lucky, for they had money here in the U. S., and were able to live without difficulty. Dr. Soto joined the Cuban Revolutionary Council and helped found the 10th of May Group. On March 13, 1961, Dr. Soto enlisted with his brother-in-law's force, and was sent for training to Louisiana. He was trained to become one of the leaders who would set up the new government. His position was to be throughout the world of letters"

(Continued on page 3)

What Is Longwood?

Many Longwood students half-laughingly, half-disappointedly say, "Nobody ever knows where Longwood is until I mention that it's located in Prince Edward County." And unfortunately, most of us are not aware of what our college stands for and what it has to offer us. We complain, we moan, and anxiously await the day when we can pick up our diplomas and forever leave this school behind us. And in leaving we, too, forget where Longwood is.

Primarily, Longwood, like any college, is a community of scholars. At each convocation many of us stand in awe as the faculty in their impressive academic regalia march past us; but in our awe we forget that there are men and women wearing that regalia. The academic attire is a symbol of the years, the sweat, and the tears that each of those men and women has given—and continues to give—for an education.

The privilege of wearing a particular robe for special occasions is a minor thing in the lives of these men and women. To them, the results of an education are more important than its privileges. And we only have to look around us in order to see those results: classroom lectures, novels, poems, textbooks, contributions to scholarly journals.

And we at Longwood are most fortunate, because we are not only allowed the privilege of attending their classes, we are allowed to talk to these men and women. The professor who ends his contact with his students when the bell rings is a rarity here. Most of our professors are happy to have us come to their offices and talk to them. In these informal sessions, they may give us advice, suggest we read a certain book, or let us ask questions that a fifty-minute class did not allow.

If we can discover what each of these men and women stands for, we can begin to become aware of what Longwood is. And in our becoming aware of what Longwood is lies the possibility of others' becoming aware of where Longwood is.

And The Tree Fell

Editor's Note: The following editorial appeared in the November 1, 1961 edition of The Rotunda. In view of the events of the "crucial summer," the staff felt this editorial warranted a re-run, for it asks a pertinent question: Is there a place for magnolia tree attitudes in our society today? Each person must answer the question for himself.

A farmer when he felt he was too old to till the land any longer turned his farm over to his son. And the son was to run the farm as if it were his own. There was one condition that the son was to abide by—he was not to chop down the magnolia tree which stood in front of the farm house.

The son thought that this was little to give in return for the farm, and so he agreed to the condition. Later, when the son's wife had their first child, she began to worry about the tree's falling, for it stood near the child's bedroom window.

The old man told her she was being foolish, and proceeded to tell her how beautiful the tree had been when he had been a young man and how it had shaded the front porch during the hot summer months.

"But," she retaliated, "it no longer is beautiful. And it will never have leaves again. It's just an old rotten tree." She turned to her husband for support, but he could not say anything, for in doing so he would lose the farm.

Constantly the young wife begged the men to chop the rotten tree down. But the old man would not listen to her, and the young man could not.

One night a storm came up. The winds beat heavily against the tree. Thunder roared, and torrents of rain fell. The old man could not sleep, so he stood at his window and watched the storm.

There was a loud crack, and then he heard the scream of his grandson.

The Rotunda

ESTABLISHED NOVEMBER 18, 1959

Published each week during the college year except during holidays and examination period by the students of Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia Box 186.

Donna M. Humphreys	Editor-in-Chief
Marie Grant	Managing Editor
Joan Lind	Business Manager
Pat Wallace	News Editor
Paula Jamison	Feature Editor
Nancy Moxley	Sports Editor
Betty Ann Atkinson	Book Editor
Linda Smith	Circle
Cherene Hays	Photography
Dorrie Marshall	Circulation Manager
	Advertising Manager

Entered as second-class matter at the Post Office at Farmville, Virginia under the Act of Congress on March 3, 1879. Represented for national advertising by the National Advertising Service. Printed by the Farmville Herald. (Continued editorial written by the editor)

Russell Comes To LC From Florida;

Finds New Home Charming

REGARDEZ CES LIVRES!

While becoming accustomed to new position as head of foreign language department.

Dr. Olga Russell selects book for reading pleasure from her office.

Dr. Olga Russell, new chairman of the Department of Foreign Languages, was born in Connecticut where she lived until she was 14.

In the eighth grade Dr. Russell became interested in teaching as a profession. As a freshman in high school she felt that secondary school would be her level of concentration. When a freshman at Connecticut College, where she obtained her AB Degree, she chose French as her major and Latin as her minor. She also holds the AM Degree in French from the University of California. The AM Degree in Romance Languages and Literature from Radcliffe College.

Studies, Travels

While studying in France, Dr. Russell visited Spain, Belgium, and Italy.

She comes to Longwood from Florida, which she says is quite a change. Not only is the weather different, but also there is a strong traditional background present in Virginia which is practically absent in Florida.

Longwood Interesting

Dr. Russell feels that Longwood and Farmville have a great charm. She likes it very much and said, "I had a good time discovering both the college and the town before school opened. This is Dr. Russell's first experience of living in a small town.

Dr. Russell likes Longwood students very much and feels that all students get better every year.

Music Students Organize Plans For Band Group

The music department of Longwood has recently developed plans for an instrumental program. This department wants to organize a string ensemble, a wood-wind and brass ensemble, and a college band.

The main problem is finding a time when all participants can meet. If the music department is unable to find a suitable time, rehearsals may be held one night a week. At present the band is meeting on Monday and Wednesday at 4:00; the orchestra on Tuesday and Thursday at 3:00.

All students interested in joining one of these groups are urged to contact a member of the Music Department.

Letter Policy

The Rotunda follows a simple policy regarding "letters to the editor":

1. All letters to the editor must be signed by their writers.

2. The Rotunda staff reserves the right to edit letters when necessary; however the staff will never alter the essential meaning of a letter.

The staff feels that only letters signed by their writers should be printed, because unsigned letters indicate either that the writer does not want to be held responsible for her views or that she does not firmly believe in them.

Editing letters is at times necessary because of limitation of space.

Letters To Editor

Angry Freshman Speaks Out

Dear Editor:

After reading the editorial on rating, the first emotional feeling that swept over me, was a disgust for its author.

The benefits of rating are innumerable. First, I became aware of class competition and the REAL meaning of a sister class. On September twelfth, five hundred freshmen arrived, with only one thing in common—all were freshmen. Sharing common "rating" experiences can be the beginning of many friendships. A sense of belonging was soon developed as rating progressed. This feeling also cured many cases of homesickness.

By "rating" the class of 1968 I hope to install in each one of them the same feeling of belonging. If I am successful, each one will love Longwood more deeply than they ever thought possible.

There is absolutely no substitute for rating. Perhaps the idea of freshman-sophomore mixers has been conceived. If this idea is looked into rationally, it is obvious that close relationships that are developed through rating could not develop so abundantly through a mixer. Primarily the cost and the space to give such a party would have to be fantastic. Remembering casual acquaintance is almost impossible but when mandatory, names are remembered and friends are made.

In closing, I would like to say that rating has started many close friendships for me. My overwhelming love and devotion for Longwood College would never have developed without rating.

Ginny Hammond

Day Student Praises Rotunda

Dear Editor:

As a sophomore at Longwood College, and particularly as a day student, I should like to take this opportunity to commend you and your staff upon the first issue of The Rotunda for the Fall, 1963 session. I was impressed by the news coverage, and by the general quality of writing; especially was I impressed by the fourth page.

I being a day student, do not always keep abreast of campus happenings; thus, for me, articles such as that concerning the dormitory fire, are of particular value. It was also struck by the immedacy and soundness of the first editorial in last week's paper.

This promises to be a good year for both Longwood and The Rotunda. My best wishes go to you.

Sincerely yours,
E. R. Kevan

"Stopping on a dime" is a myth. It just can't be done for the simple reason that a stop from only 20 mph would need a dime measuring 40 feet across. And at 60 mph, that dime measures 263 feet across.

Never pass other cars unless there is plenty of free road ahead. Driving at 60 mph and passing a car that is going only 45 mph is like passing 40 cars packed bumper to bumper. You need that room for your safety.

By Maria Grant

Hi. This is my roommate. And that's my other roommate and my other one and . . . Oh excuse me. That's just my other roommate.

My name is Caty Cramped. I'm so glad you could come and visit Longwood for the week end. Where are you staying? Oh. I didn't realize that many bunks could fit on the stage. Oh well.

Come on and I'll show you around the campus. Yes that's the mail. It gets lots of attention. There's plenty of room to run around and release tension. Ho. Ho.

Uh huh. This is Cunningham. Oh the rooms are all like this: wall to wall beds, 3 feet of free space, cardboard dressers piled on top of each other, etc. . . . No all the desks are suspended from the wall. Now isn't that clever?

I was thinking about going into acting but this living out of a suitcase is for the birds. Who? That girl? Oh she fell out of her bunk and broke her leg. Uh huh. Yes. It is pretty cold in here. I think the new arrangement is to turn the heat on in May and turn it off in October.

Watch out! Gosh I should have warned you about those metal things sticking out of the beds. See my nasty black and blue leg? Uh huh.

Huh? You mean that spastic person yelling and screaming and jumping up and down? Well I guess some Freshman just got a coke in the machine and it makes noise and it's after 11:00 p.m.

Well I use the trash can turned upside down. It makes the neatest chair. Of course it does leave me rather sore.

Her? I guess she's looking for a free bathroom. There are 6 people getting ready for class in that one. Sometimes they get their toothbrushes mixed up. Ugh. I think we've set a new record on campus for the greatest number of students getting to 8:00 classes on time though.

I guess it's because no one can sleep with 6 alarm clocks going at the same time.

The lights? Well you see there's a building going up somewhere else on the campus and they test sometimes. Well, yes, my eyes do seem to be a little weaker lately.

Of course there's no swimming pool in Wheeler! The water? Oh that's just water from our stoppered-up drains. You know how it is with all these people taking showers. Uh huh.

Strict study hour? Well we kind of have one. With so many girls it's rather hard to stop all the uke playing and foot races and screaming and . . .

That girl? Oh she slipped on the stairs. She'll probably be all right in a few weeks. Sure there are plenty of places to study outside of the dorm. Uh huh. But then there is a mad rush to take showers before 11:00—before the hot water is turned off. Oh well. What? That scream? Oh Someone probably forgot to yell before they flushed the . . . You see the hot water in the shower has a tendency to suddenly rush out . . .

No, I didn't get a pillow. I just use my third roommate.

Gee I hope you enjoyed the tour and all. You'll have to come back and visit real soon when we can offer you a pillow of your own.

Testing Group Conducts GRE

The Graduate Record Examinations required for admission to many American graduate schools will be conducted at examination centers throughout the nation on November 16.

The Educational Testing Service which administers the test has set these dates in 1964 as administration dates: January 18, March 7, April 25, and July 11.

Each applicant should inquire of the graduate school of his choice which examination he should take and on what date.

Included in the tests offered is a test of general scholastic ability as well as advance level achievement tests in seven different fields. A candidate is permitted to take both the aptitude and an advanced test on any nationwide testing date.

A bulletin of information for candidates may be obtained from Dr. R. C. Simonini, J., chairman of the English department, or directly from Educational Testing Service, Princeton, New Jersey.

A test registration form must reach the Educational Testing Service office not later than fifteen days prior to the date of administration for which the candidate is applying.

Nine Seniors Receive Blazer Awards At AA Dinner

Seniors receiving blazer awards include (seated, l. to r.) Lois Obenshain, Gay Taylor, Peggy Waldo, Shirley Metcalf, Brenda Isbel, Chris Longstreet, Butch Mc-

Daniel, and Sandy Waugh. Blue blazers are awarded to those seniors earning 20 points, and white blazers to those earning 30 points.

Nine senior girls received blazers Thursday night following the Athletic Association banquet. Three received white blazers, awarded for earning thirty points, and six received blue blazers, awarded for twenty points. Points are earned for participation and organization in athletic activities.

White blazers were presented to Lois Obenshain, Gaynelle Taylor, and Peg Waldo. Blue blazers were presented to Norma Eidy, Brenda Isbel, Chris Longstreet, Emma McDaniel, Shirley Metcalf, and Sandra Waugh.

Lois Obenshain, a physical education and biology major from Booneville, is also chairman of the Judicial Board of Student Government, and a member of the H2O Club, Alpha Kappa Gamma, Kappa Delta Pi, and the Monogram Club. She has played varsity hockey, tennis, and basketball, as well as various class sports.

Gaynelle Taylor, a health and physical education major from Gretna, is president of the Athletic Association. She is also a member of AKG, the Monogram Club, Orchestra, and Alpha Gamma Delta social sorority. Other participations include varsity hockey, basketball, and class sports.

Margaret (Peg) Waldo, a health and physical education major with a certification in biology from Churchland, is a member of the Monogram Club and Longwood Players. She is vice-president of H2O Club, Athletic Association, and Alpha Gamma Delta social sorority. Besides participation in class sports, Peg has played varsity hockey and is a member of the Tidewater hockey team.

Norma Eidy, an elementary major from Clover, has played varsity basketball, and class hockey, volleyball, and tennis. She is vice-president of the Monogram Club and a member of the Athletic Association Council.

Brenda Isbel, a biology major from Portsmouth, is secretary of the Monogram Club, a member of the Athletic Association Council, Longwood Players, Alpha Gamma Delta social sorority, and is co-chairman of Circus for the Senior Class.

Christine Longstreet, a health and physical education major from Colonial Heights, is president of the H2O Club, a member of the Monogram Club and Athletic Association Council, and has played Varsity hockey and many class sports.

Emma (Butch) McDaniel, a health and physical education major from Hurt, is president of the Monogram Club, a member of the Athletic Association Council, and has participated in class hockey, basketball, softball, volleyball, and tennis.

Shirley Metcalf, a health and physical education major from Portsmouth, will also certify in history. Shirley is treasurer of the H2O Club, and a member of the Monogram Club, Kappa Delta Pi, and the Athletic Association Council.

Sandra Waugh, a biology major from Culpeper, is vice-president of the senior class, secretary of Alpha Psi Omega, and is a member of Longwood Players, the Monogram Club, Athletic Association Council, and Orchestra. She is on the archery team and plays in class sports.

Soto Describes

'Bay Of Pigs'

(Continued from page 1)

Judge Advocate for the group going into Oriente Province two days before the invasion.

His group never landed, but went back to the Bay of Pigs, where they were without food and water for four days, before they were picked up about 200 miles out of Key West by two U. S. destroyers.

Of 2000 men in the invasion force, about 500 escaped. Dr. Soto was among the 500. Back in Miami he continued his work against Castro. In March, Dr. Soto left the Cuban Revolutionary Council in Havana, He feels that the U. S. failed to live up to its commitments. He continued pouring his now diminishing personal fortune into the Cuban cause. In March of this year he was forced to quit and find work that would bring in a steady income.

After a year in Riverton, Wyoming, he has joined the faculty here at Longwood University. Dr. Soto and his wife, Bertila, have three sons, Eduardo 6, Rigoberto 4, and Osvaldo, Jr., 7. They are expecting a fourth child the first of October. The two oldest boys are enrolled in the Prince Edward Academy.

While here at Longwood, Dr. Soto plans to work on a text to be used on the high school and college level. It will be a comparison between English and Spanish grammar. He also hopes that he will be able to speak to the student body, and various other groups in the school.

Group "Therapy" Method Helps Heavy Smokers

Heavy smokers are being helped to cut out cigarettes by the "group therapy" methods made famous by Alcoholics Anonymous. Many of the ideas developed in the group approach can successfully be used by individuals who want to give up smoking on their own.

An October "Readers Digest" article reports on the new method, which was developed by the British doctors and is now being applied at eighteen anti-smoking clinics throughout Great Britain. Author of the article is Gloria Emerson, an erstwhile two-and-a-half pack-a-day smoker who has not had a cigarette in the last eight months. First step in her battle against smoking was to list her reasons for wanting to give up the habit. "I wrote down eight reasons, beginning with a bad cough," she writes. "For the first time I knew I really wanted to stop."

Other reasons might range from how much money you can save to how much longer you can live.

Another helpful idea is to buy the brand of cigarettes that you like least rather than your favorite kind. Also, delay smoking for as long as possible after meals and at other times when a cigarette is customary. Keeping cigarettes out of easy reach will help too.

Following these rules will make it easy to cut down on cigarettes. Gloria Emerson went from fifty a day to just seven. But giving up entirely is another matter. "The prospect of never tasting another cigarette made me quake," she writes. "I couldn't bring myself to say I was ready to stop."

Here again the doctors have good advice. Select a date to quit when you have no pressing business or social engagements coming up, when life will be peaceful. Once the date is set, stick to it!

After you've stopped smoking, other tips can help you stay "on the wagon." Get plenty of fresh air. Don't let yourself get hungry; carrying a piece of dried fruit to munch on will help. Get up and do something active after meals when the urge to smoke is great.

Giving up smoking on your own is tougher than doing it with others in a "no more all this together" atmosphere. But curing yourself of the habit can be a richly rewarding experience. Says Gloria Emerson: "The rust is gone from my throat, my hands and nerves are steadier, and my nose can really smell again."

And while it is not easy to stop, the total effect is "no more narrowing than a bad cold," writes this confirmed non-smoker.

If your wheels go off the road into a soft or low shoulder, do not apply brakes or try to turn back onto pavement immediately. Take foot off accelerator, keep firm grip on wheel until car slows down — then turn wheel sharply toward pavement.

"Rec" Swims

Recreation swims are scheduled at the following times:

5 p.m.
Monday
Wednesday
Friday
10 p.m.
Wednesday

Aquatic Group To Initiate Girls Into Membership

The H2O Club will hold a cook-out at the A. A. cabin Thursday, October 3, for the purpose of initiating those students who were students who were given bids last semester to join the organization.

The following students will be initiated this Thursday night: Bobbie Allen, Harriet Anderson, Lee Criss, Kathy Dodge, Gert Gerhardt, Sally Gill, Anita Holmes, Carey Howell, Earlene Lang, Ann Persak, Nancye Rowan, Karen Ruder, and Linda Spinner.

Purposes of Club

The purposes of the H2O Club are to sponsor the water show and class swimming meets and to provide life guards for "rec" swims. In order to be eligible for membership, one must have had a course in life saving and shown an interest in swimming. Tryouts are then held, and the student is voted on by the members of the club. Chris Longstreet is serving as president of the H2O Club this year, with Peg Waldo as vice-president and Miss Barbara Smith as the sponsor.

Tryouts for the spring water show will be held October 7, at 5:00 and 7:00 p.m. H2O members will be present at "rec" swims to teach stunts to the girls who wish to try out for the pageant. Everyone who is interested is urged to come to the tryouts.

Sportin' Chance

By Linda Turner

The time of cold, brisk afternoons sitting on uncomfortable bleachers and newly polished heels covered in mud and lime from the walk across the football field is drawing nigh. We thrill at the chance at attend a university game on Saturday afternoon and spend hours in preparation to sit among a screaming mob of school spirited football lovers, but we have no interest in what is going on among the twenty two men running up and down the field. Instead we take the opportunity of observing the people and fashions from other schools, and tallying the "Who was at game with whom" list to report back to the dorm. Occasionally, the stadium will abound with outcries of praise to players and cheers for a good play, we jump up and shout with them, wondering what could be the cause of such a commotion.

The announcer seems to have a vocabulary all his own, and indeed a layman to the sport might have difficulty in transposing their descriptive dialogue to a personal interpretation of their meaning. "There goes No. 37 with a quarterback sneak to the left. Yes, folks, Quarterback! has shown this crowd some action." "Quarterback sneak? Must have been a courageous act on 37's part to warrant such applause. Then comes the fade, fair catch, fake, the first down and field goal. Three points already. The players run over to the hash lines, pat a teammate on the back and send him out to gallivant around. More tailbacking, spot passing, wing back and a screen pass to put No. 13 under the goal. Thank heavens for a minute of enjoyment—at least I can appreciate the marching band.

Fifteen minutes later the bulky uniformed characters are back and snoring face to face again while one stands up to kick the ball away from his team. Whistles blow and red flags flutter while the striped man does a cheer for the teams. However the crowd does not seem pleased with his performance and the announcer blasts, "Slugging." Your head begins to ache under the uproar and try as you may, America college sport is still an extraordinary concoction of split T's and right formations. Gun shot—a blessing. "We won, didn't we?" Bright lights display the evidence on the score board and you rejoice with the crowd, but leave the game in a cloud of new words and a particular idea of how you think the game is played.

Library Expands With New Books In Varied Fields

There have been many additions to the library stacks since May. All fields are represented from Journals to reference books to fiction to juvenile books.

One of the most pertinent volumes to the Longwood student body should be Dr. James B. Conant's The Education of American Teachers. Dr. Conant's ideas in conjunction with other educators have recently been featured in the Richmond Times-Dispatch. There are two copies of this book available.

Other new books include: A Dictionary of Art Terms: Painting, Sculpture, Architecture, Engraving . . . by R. G. Hager. The Nobel Foundation edition of Nobel: The Man and His Prizes. Masterpieces of Murder by Gerald Gross, Patricia Hayward Blake's Dissonant Voices in Soviet Literature, and Renoir, My Father by Jean Renoir.

J. P. Wynne's Theories of Education is also new. More books are: The Dance: From Ritual to Rock and Roll by Joost Meerloo, Ender by Howard Nemerov, P. Scott Fitzgerald's Flappers and Philosophers, and The Tin Drum by Gunter Grass.

Maxim Edwin has written a biography called Edwin's Wife, and another new biography is Toulouse-Lautrec: A Definitive Biography by Henri Peruchat.

New Studio Cards with

Longwood Greetings
"Books For All Ages"
at the
WEYANOKE BOOK
SHOP
Hotel Weyanoke
Ground Floor
Phone EX 2-4027
9:30-5:30

Patronize
Rotunda
Advertisers

MARTIN
THE JEWELER
Welcomes
You
Back!

The Best In Flowers Await You
at
COLLINS' FLORIST
Phone EX 2-4154
EX 2-3330

Simkins Sees South As Unchanged Area

By Nancy Mowrey

"Southernness may be disengaged," smiled Dr. Francis Butte Simkins knowingly, "but they will never be integrated." This is the contention of Longwood's illustrious Professor of History. In a luncheon interview, Dr. Simkins talked about some of his "30-odd" years at Longwood.

Dr. Simkins was born in Edgefield, South Carolina. He earned the Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of South Carolina and the Ph.D. degree from Columbia University in 1929. He received a fellowship for postdoctoral work from the Social Science Research Council in 1929. Dr. Simkins is also a Guggenheim Fellow. He has served as vice-president (1953) and president (1954) of the Southern Historical Association.

Author of New Book

Among his books published are the Titanium Movement in South Carolina, South Carolina During Reconstruction, Women of the Confederacy, and Plutarch Bill Titman. October will see the publication of his latest book, The Everlasting South, a group of essays.

On September 23, 1963 the following letter appeared on the editorial page of the "New York Times":

To the Editor of the New York Times:

Your College students came to this town in the summer of 1962 to instruct Negro children. These young men were amazed when they met with no violence, although they broke a three-century taboo by living with Negroes and by refusing to attend assemblies where Negroes were not welcomed.

This past summer a bevy of New Yorkers repeated the benevolent activities of the previous summer without meeting violent reactions. These visitors openly practiced interracial familiarities to an extent heretofore unknown in the South.

Why did a region noted for its "strain of violence" not resort to violence? The South has not, as your news items imply, suffered its racial attitudes. You have been led to believe by diplomatic clergymen, professors and journalists that the heart of the region below the Potomac is being changed by educational devices.

The actual reason for the lack of vigorous opposition to assault on the regional mores is fear that "the Assyrian host" in the form of Federal police and para-military may descend upon the South. Southern communities will not violently resist Federal orders as long as this threat remains.

Sincere acceptance of racial equality will never be an emotional or psychological thing. The South in general will continue to wear an asbestos suit against the fires of integration. Remove the threat of Federal force and the "intergration" in the South will disappear as did the first attempt at "integration" when the Federal troops were withdrawn in 1875.

FRANCIS B. SIMKINS
Farmville, Va.
Sept. 9, 1963

Professor Simkins taught for three years at Longwood College and State University. He also taught at University of North Carolina and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. He taught at Farmville as a bad place until he was sent down to Baton Rouge. Then he says he found out how good Farmville is.

He spent a year at Princeton University as a visiting lecturer. He had informal conferences with students. Of Princeton young men he says, "Those boys scare me; they are too handsome. You can't tell them apart. They are made of sweet cheese. They don't believe you."

Remarks Paid

The final saw sprinkled with the little stories Professor Simkins is so noted for telling. About Longwood Dr. Simkins says the social history is the most important aspect of his past life. He says to tell stories about "Charlie Hop's" trips around the state to drum up students. "I went with him sometimes. It was a lot of fun, he says. Professor Simkins relates how "Charlie Hop" would pop up his talks about Longwood by saying, "I'm on my way to Williamsburg." "In those days," he recalls, "the faculty used to drum up students. 'Charlie Hop' was a good drummer."

Dr. Simkins has many opinions and ideas about Longwood girls. He says, "Yankees are shocked at this place. The girls are indistinguishable; they talk to anybody." He also thinks Longwood is more religious than many religious affiliated colleges. He refers to Longwood's being in the "Bible Belt."

Comments on Students

Of the students he says, "Here, Philistinism is first, manners second, and intellect third." His provocative remarks are often left unchallenged when he explains, "They (the students) are too polite to contradict."

An example of the Simkins brand of provocation is the following statement, "Harry Byrd is just as extravagant on the Virginia scale as Kennedy is on the national scale I think."

Dr. Simkins is almost synonymous with Longwood. What can one say about a man who everyone knows? This beloved professor will always be a living monument to Southern individualism.

Longwood Adds Foreign Policy To Curriculum

(Continued from page 1)

This is a study of geographic demographic economic ideological, and other factors conditioning the policies of states and the methods and institutions of conflict and of adjustment among states, including the functions of power, diplomacy, international law, and organization.

Foreign Policies

For the second semester, foreign policies of the United States, Russia, France, England, Communist China, Japan and Germany, as well as selected smaller powers will be studied.

The Road Toll

by Jerry Marcus

26.9% of the fatal accidents involved drivers under 25.

LC Girls Comment On Various Seminars

Seven thousand of Washington's summer employees crowded into waiting cars, taxis, and busses July 7 to attend the first of several seminars given by top level officials in the Kennedy administration. After more or less herding into the Coliseum, Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson stepped up to the rostrum and delivered the welcoming address. This began the first of the summer seminars.

Students Attend Lectures

The unusual characteristic concerning the listeners was that they were all students in various colleges and universities throughout the country. The aim of having the seminars was to lure these future college graduates into Civil Service, and to perhaps poll a few votes for the 1964 election.

Two girls from Longwood,

Nancy Mowrey and Barbara Poland, took part in the program. Upon interviewing them, they both agreed that it was a very good experience in that they were able to see, in person, people who are making the news. Moreover, they had the benefit of question and answer periods after each speaker.

Hear Various Talks

The break-down of the plan included two groups of seminars, those presented by the White House, and those sponsored by the Department of Defense. Such people spoke as Edward R. Murrow of the United States Information Agency, Col. John Glenn of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, Averell Harriman of the State Department, Attorney General Robert Kennedy, Hubert Humphrey, Eugene G. Fubini, and William P. Bundy.

After the seminars given by the Defense Department, the crowd broke up into smaller groups, from 10 to 20 in number, in which the students could ask questions and discuss issues. The response to this type of meeting was tremendous. Students here blasted the speakers with questions, and none went unanswered.

Of all the speakers heard, Nancy and Barbara said that they were most disappointed with Robert Kennedy. They felt as though he talked around his topic of civil rights and integration. Besides that, they thought that he evaded answering directly the questions the students asked him.

On the other hand, they were very impressed with Edward R. Murrow. They felt that he really came to grips with his topic and gave very straight-forward answers to every question.

Evaluate Seminars

In evaluation of the program, Barbara said, "I thought the program was good because it gave us a chance to hear some of these people and their ideas on current issues. It made us feel like we had actual contact with the people in Washington."

Although Nancy was very appreciative of the program, she maintains that "the overtones of the seminars was definitely political." One of her bewildering if not humorous experiences occurred around her meeting the President. Shaking his hand she said, "I go to Longwood College in Prince Edward County." The President answered flatly, "Oh."

Around The Campi

A sophomore was overheard discussing her American History professor—"He's already founded the thirteen colonies and I'm still on the way over with Columbus."

Longwood suffered through its first effects of fallout Sunday night at 7:00 in front of the Rotunda.

Faculty Firesides: Shades of F. D. R.

Hi—to all the minors from the majors—P.E. that is!

According to a well-known medical authority on campus, ascots help reduce the chance of contracting communicable diseases.

Remember to write to S'Mama!

Sarah Jane Lynch, Lynne Guerin, and Marcy Hynes had the honor of being the first students to ride in the Cox elevator.

Chi—the secret organization on campus???

From the files of October 1, 1931: College is largely a matter of give and take—give money and take examinations!

Overheard from a rat day visitor on campus as the trench coated, somber summons delivering sophomores shuffled past, "Just what I always wanted, a full grown Mickey Mouse Club."

How many students know that according to a dining hall announcement we have a French movie teaching chemistry?

We request that everyone be extra careful when smoking in the dorms. About the only place to house water-logged refugees is in the Science Building.

There was a new game played at H-SC two Saturdays ago. It was called "Lights Out."

Two weekends ago Longwood had hootenannies in Wheeler and North Cunningham. Thank you, Meg, and hurry back!

Upon returning to school we found that a fence was not the only place one finds pickets.

WIN

IN THE MARLBORO
BRAND
ROUND-UP CONTEST

PRIZES:

1 St. Prize
Beautiful 19" Portable Television by Admiral

2nd. Prize
Portable Stereophonic Record Player by Admiral

WHO WINS:

Prizes will be awarded to any recognized Group or Individual submitting the largest number of empty packages of Marlboro, Parliament, Philip Morris, Alpine or Paxton.

RULES:

1. Contest open to qualified students only.
2. Empty packages of Marlboro, Parliament, Philip Morris, Alpine or Paxton must be submitted in order to qualify.
3. Closing Date Nov. 13, 1963.
4. No entries will be accepted after official closing time. — 2 p.m.

★

MARLBORO ★ PARLIAMENT ★ ALPINE

PHILIP MORRIS ★ PAXTON

★

From The Board

Several changes will be evident in the over-all assembly program this year. As chairman of the Assembly Committee, Betty Ann Atkinson has made a special effort to select high quality programs: ones that will entertain and benefit the students of Longwood. There will be no assemblies just to "take up time." The committee is still writing letters to obtain noted people to come for assemblies. Among these are authors, dancers, musicians, and possibly a student of Marcel Marceau.

The seating arrangement in Jarman poses a problem which will be resolved by giving the various classes a period during which they will not be required to attend assemblies.

Bonnie Ramey and Dr. Barron are working on a set of by-laws for the Legislative Board. These will be the rules of procedure for the board and will be published so that students may better understand the workings of this branch of Student Government.

Dr. Barron will offer a course in Parliamentary Procedure for presidents and parliamentarians of College organizations. Anyone else who is interested is invited to attend also. The class will meet at 5 o'clock each Thursday. The place will be announced later.

"Fortuity Firesides" will be initiated soon. A member of the faculty will lead an informal gathering which will discuss some speciality area in the faculty member's field. Students are urged to attend these gatherings. Dr. Simonini will lead the first "Fireside" meeting. Time and place will be announced.

Dr. Jackson will continue to sponsor the work of the Activities Committee. Dana Brewer is chairman of the committee that will be working to maintain a balance in Student on campus. Students will soon fill out a form listing their memberships and officers in organizations and their activity positions. These will be filed in the new Honor's Council Room on second floor Student Building.

—Evelyn Gray

THE ROTUNDA

VOL. XLII

Longwood College, Farmville, Va., October 16, 1963

No. 4

BARBARA BISHOP

AKG Convention Chooses Bishop For President

By Barbara Melton

The National Alpha Kappa Gamma Convention brought back to Longwood two of her former students, Barbara Bishop and Minnie Lee Dean. Barbara graduated from Longwood in 1960 with a degree in art. As a student she was very active in campus activities. Her interests in art were expressed through 1960 with a degree in art. As a her work on the Colonade for two years and as assistant art editor of the Virginian for three years. She was also Editor-in-Chief of the Virginian during her senior year.

Barbara was very active in various other phases of campus life. Among some of these were Pi Delta Epsilon of which she was treasurer, Alpha Gamma Delta sorority, and the Pan-Hellenic Council. She also was a member of Chi and Who's Who. She became a member of Alpha Kappa Gamma during her junior year, and the following year was elected president of the Joan Circle. However she was elected vice-president on the national level, and at the convention held at Longwood on October 5, she was elected as the new president of national AKG. Barbara is currently serving as an instructor of art at Southern Seminary Junior College in Buena Vista, Virginia.

Longwood's other returning guest was Minnie Lee Dean who graduated in 1959 with a degree in elementary education. During her years as a student she participated on Student Council for four years, and served as treasurer in her junior year.

In all four years of her college career Minnie was active in the Canterbury Club and Alpha Sigma Tau sorority. She served on the Pan-Hellenic Council for two years and was chosen for Who's Who.

As an AKG member, Minnie served as president during her senior year. She was elected as national president for 1960-61. As of the convention held recently, she will serve as the national executive secretary of AKG.

Currently Minnie can be found teaching elementary school in Fairfax, Virginia. However she is still striving for higher education by working toward her masters degree.

Berkis Speaks

Dr. Berkis will speak on the United Nations tonight at 7:00 in West Wing 318. The Nathaniel Macon Society urges all students to attend.

Schlegels Visit North Carolina For Convention

Dr. Marvin W. Schlegel of the history department and Dr. Dorothy Schlegel, associate English professor, attended the American Association for State and Local History held at Raleigh, North Carolina, October 2-5.

This association is devoted to the development of history at the local level. Members are usually directors of historical societies, museums, or shrines. Dr. Marvin Schlegel became an active participant in the Association in the 1940's when he worked with the State of Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission. During this time he contributed much writing in the historical field including a book entitled The History of Pennsylvania during the Second World War.

Since moving to Virginia, Dr. Schlegel has written much on Virginia history including Calver's Commonwealth, a history and government of Virginia.

Pedroletti Joins Language Staff At Longwood

Mademoiselle Catherine Pedroletti has joined the Longwood faculty as Instructor of Foreign Languages. She is a native of Besancon, France, a town of slightly more than one thousand inhabitants, located in the mountains above the Alps.

Languages were Mademoiselle Pedroletti's concentration at the University of Besancon. There she received a "licence" in English which is equivalent to the M. A. degree in the U. S.

Mademoiselle Pedroletti arrived in New York on September 4 aboard the large steamship, La France. She spent a week in New York and then came by bus to Washington, where she spent two days before continuing on to Virginia. She said that traveling by bus gave her a much better opportunity to see the landscape of the country than other means of transportation would have provided.

This is Mademoiselle Pedroletti's first trip to the United States but this is not her first teaching experience. She has had about two years experience teaching French at the Institute de La-gue et Civilisation Francaise of the University of Besancon.

LC Foundation Chooses Large As President

Mr. Maurice R. Large of Farmville was elected President of the Longwood College Foundation at its annual meeting. He succeeds Mr. Thomas C. Boush, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Bank of Virginia in Richmond.

Mr. Large is a graduate of the University of Virginia. He presided last year in Farmville for fifteen years before becoming President of the Farmville Manufacturing Company. He is also President of Andrews, Large Realty Company and Secretary of Lumber, Inc., Rice, Virginia and Andrews, Large and Whitten, Inc., Farmville.

Elected to serve as Vice President of the Board is Mr. Harrison Mann of Arlington. Mr. J. H. Wamsley of Farmville was re-elected to the office of secretary-treasurer.

GR. THE KROGH CHRISTENSEN

Christensen Plays Organ For Assembly

Organist Grethe Krogh Christensen will appear on campus Tuesday, October 22. She will give a concert in the weekly assembly. Her visit is being sponsored by the Music Department and the Assembly Committee.

A native of Aarhus, Denmark, Miss Christensen is in this country on a traveling scholarship from the Danish government. Her appearance at Longwood will be the fourth in a series of six public appearances.

Her first appearance was at

Board Sanctions Book Publication Of ISC Essays

At the October 5 meeting of the Board of the University Press of Virginia the board authorized the publication of a book of essays from the Institute of Southern Culture at Longwood College. Mr. Victor Reynolds, Director of the Press, said that the book will probably be published next spring.

The manuscript for the book, edited with an introduction by Dr. Ronald Simonet, was submitted to the University Press during the summer. The book will contain eight essays on Southern Literature selected from previous publications of the Longwood College Institute of Southern Culture.

The essays included in this book are "The Writer as Parish in the Old South," by William Thorp; "Fox in Richmond," by Robert D. Jacobs; "The Image of an Army: The Civil War in Southern Fiction," by Louis D. Rubin, Jr.; and "Mary Johnson and the Historic Imagination," by Lawrence Nelson.

Also "Ellen Glasgow and the Southern Literary Tradition," by C. H. Hughes; "James Branch Cabell and Southern Romanticism," by Dorothy B. Schlegel; "Faulkner and the South," by James B. Meriwether; and "The Youngest Generation of Southern Fiction Writers," by Richard K. Meeker.

It should be noted that one of the essays is by a current member of the board (Continued from page 2)

the St. Paul's Cathedral in Pittsburgh. On October 15, she appeared in Fayetteville, Arkansas. She appeared at Bruton Parish Church in Williamsburg three days ago.

After visiting Longwood, she will travel to New York where she will make an appearance at the Interchurch Center.

At home in Denmark, Miss Christensen is the organist in the Christianskirk, a Lutheran parish that includes 22,000 people. She says that six to eight weddings on Saturday are not unusual. Then, she plays for the two Sunday services.

No newcomer to the United States, Miss Christensen was a faculty member at the University of Arkansas for a term four years ago.

Miss Joanne Curmatt, professor of music, says that she was particularly anxious for the Longwood students to hear Miss Christensen, because she was one of the faculty members at the Danish-American School for Organists which several Longwood students attended this summer.

Holman Attends First Congress Of Acarologists

Dr. Lola Holman attended the First International Congress of Acarologists at Colorado State University in August. It was a five day session in which acarologists (specialists in ticks and mites) from 23 foreign countries and 37 states met to discuss their findings in the field.

The session was divided into several sections: Systematics and Terminology; Soil Ecology; Medical and Veterinary Acarology; Genetics, Physiology, and Behavior of Acari; Agriculture and Stored Products Acarology. After each session, the acarologists were given time to meet informally and discuss their research work.

Dr. Holman stated that she enjoyed the conference very much, and hopes that she can find time to attend the next one which will be held in England in 1967.

Munoz Urges LC Students To Take Oral Polio Vaccine

The Farmville Junior Chamber of Commerce is undertaking a massive program to immunize 12,000 Farmville and Prince Edward County residents with the newly-developed Sabine oral polio vaccine.

The project which will be called "SOS", Sabine On Sunday, has the goal of immunizing every resident of Prince Edward County (including college students) against the disease of polio at the least possible cost. The complete treatment requires three clinic visits.

Immunizations clinics will be set up in four localities. The Farmville clinic will be held at the Farmville Firehouse. The clinics will be open between 12 noon and 6 p.m. with the first clinics set for October 20.

Three strains of the Sabine vaccine will be given in their order of importance: Type I, which is the most powerful will be given at the October 20 clinic, Types III and II vaccines will be given separately at six to eight weeks' intervals. The exact dates for these last types will be announced later.

The program has been endorsed 100 per cent by the Southside Hospital Medical Staff.

Dr. William P. Terry, president of the local medical staff, said "Even though a large number of individuals have been immunized by injection, it is advised by the medical staff that these people take the Sabine vaccine also."

Dr. Anthony J. Munoz, vice president of the Jaycees and director of the polio program for the club explained that the vaccine given on a sugar cube. The vaccine is tasteless. After you take it you are immune, no set up is required. The Sabine vaccine confers a life-long immunity while the Salk method requires booster shots yearly.

Dr. Munoz said that the sponsors are requesting a 25 cent donation from those taking the vaccine. Minors are required to have a permission sheet to take the vaccine. These are available on the head table of the dining hall. Every Longwood student is urged to take the vaccine. If permission is required, please put several names on one sheet and have any official of the college sign it.

There was plenty of time to catch up on parallel reading and letter writing, etc. The train moved slowly along. Things were muted, when suddenly someone mentioned food. The last time we had seen any was in Lynchburg about 1:30.

One of the Lexington girls casually mentioned there was a dining car, and furthermore there was no little man running up and down the aisles with "kisses."

But there was hope, for they said also that when we got to Greensboro we could hop off the train and grab something in the station. The train hadn't arrived yet. There was then a mad rush to the other station via taxi. The driver was a nice old gentleman who chewed on a cigar and related the fact that he had to stay at the Continental Hotel in Farmville many years ago.

Within 10 minutes we had arrived, bought the tickets, gone halfway down the wrong side of the track and back to where we were supposed to be.

Naturally the train wasn't behind schedule, our train was standing patiently (for awhile) next to us, and upon inquiring we found they were recently graduated technology students at Virginia Baptist Hospital. They were waiting for the train to take them home to Lexington, N. C.

After awhile everyone began to get rather restless. The two girls behind me, who were sitting by strolling up and down the side of the track.

About 4:45 (only 55 minutes behind schedule), our train crawled into the station. Approximately 15 minutes later we were off (Charlotte, here we come!) But no, it was just a figment of our imagination. The little monster went 29 yards down the track and then backed up 30. This happened several times. Finally there was a definite forward movement and the nasty machine crawled out of the station.

The first stop was a cattle (or was it cow?) crossing 10 minutes away. And the next stop was a platform 12 minutes away. About 15 minutes away there was . . . and the next stop . . .

There was plenty of time to catch up on parallel reading and letter writing, etc. The train moved slowly along. Things were muted, when suddenly someone mentioned food. The last time we had seen any was in Lynchburg about 1:30.

One of the Lexington girls casually mentioned there was a dining car, and furthermore there was no little man running up and down the aisles with "kisses."

But there was hope, for they said also that when we got to Greensboro we could hop off the train and grab something in the station. The train hadn't arrived yet. There was then a mad rush to the other station via taxi. The driver was a nice old gentleman who chewed on a cigar and related the fact that he had to stay at the Continental Hotel in Farmville many years ago.

Within 10 minutes we had arrived, bought the tickets, gone halfway down the wrong side of the track and back to where we were supposed to be.

Naturally the train wasn't behind schedule, our train was standing patiently (for awhile) next to us, and upon inquiring we found they were recently graduated technology students at Virginia Baptist Hospital. They were waiting for the train to take them home to Lexington, N. C.

After awhile everyone began to get rather restless. The two girls behind me, who were sitting by strolling up and down the side of the track.

About 4:45 (only 55 minutes behind schedule), our train crawled into the station. Approximately 15 minutes later we were off (Charlotte, here we come!) But no, it was just a figment of our imagination. The little monster went 29 yards down the track and then backed up 30. This happened several times. Finally there was a definite forward movement and the nasty machine crawled out of the station.

The first stop was a cattle (or was it cow?) crossing 10 minutes away. And the next stop was a platform 12 minutes away. About 15 minutes away there was . . . and the next stop . . .

There was plenty of time to catch up on parallel reading and letter writing, etc. The train moved slowly along. Things were muted, when suddenly someone mentioned food. The last time we had seen any was in Lynchburg about 1:30.

One of the Lexington girls casually mentioned there was a dining car, and furthermore there was no little man running up and down the aisles with "kisses."

"Rotunda" Answers Student Query

If the majority of the students at Longwood College feel the Rotunda is not meeting the expectations of a college newspaper, but rather those of a pseudo-intellectual minority, would it be permissible for these students to cancel their subscriptions to the Rotunda, thereby diminishing superfluous annual fees?

This question was sent anonymously to the editor of the Rotunda. Although it is not the policy of the Rotunda to run anonymous letters, it was felt that such a question could not go unanswered, because if this student represents the majority of Longwood students, she is not asking for the cancellation of a subscription, she is asking for the cancellation of a newspaper.

The first point in question is the writer's reference to "superfluous annual fees." Because this is a state-supported school it costs each of our $810 per year to go to school here; if it were private, it would cost us $1300. Included in our $810 total annual costs is a $20 activities fee. When this activities fee is multiplied by the number of students at Longwood, the result is $28,000. Of this $28,000, the Rotunda receives $2,500. When $2,500 is divided by the numbers of students at Longwood the quotient is approximately $1.79. Longwood students pay less than four cents per copy of the Rotunda.

The primary job of any local newspaper is to cover the immediate news field. This means that the first source of news for the Rotunda is the Longwood College community. However, this college is not an island isolated from contact with the rest of the world; it is a part of a town, a State, a nation, and an entire world.

Therefore, the Rotunda takes as its secondary source of news, events of vital interest that have occurred in the outside world. The editorial staff of the Rotunda feels that the students on this campus are capable of thinking beyond the boundaries of Longwood College.

A third source of news is through "letters to the editor." These letters are not written on assignment by the editor of the Rotunda, and members of the Rotunda editorial staff are prohibited from writing them. When a "letter to the editor" appears on this page, it appears because a member of this college community feels that additional comment on an editorial or news story is needed. Or the letter appears because its writer wishes to call attention to something that the Rotunda has not included in its issues. If the writer of the above question feels that the Rotunda has failed to cover campus news adequately, she can write a "letter to the editor" and express her opinions.

Not only does the Rotunda carry various kinds of news stories, it runs an average of two editorials each week. These editorials, unless signed, are written by the editor. Therefore, an editorial represents the opinions of the editor, and she alone stands responsible for her own opinions.

As to the Rotunda's meeting the expectations of a "pseudo-intellectual minority" only one point needs to be made. The editorial staff of the Rotunda is composed of people who as a group are active in every phase of campus life. Among them are Circus workers, sorority members, members of the various honorary organizations, athletics, choir members, ad infinitum. They represent no one group on campus; therefore, no one group controls them. These girls have one thing in common—they care enough about this college to think about it in its many contexts. And if thinking in such a manner is enough to brand a person a "pseudo-intellectual, then, we need more "pseudos" on this campus.

If the person who asked this question feels she can aid the editorial staff in more effectively covering the news, she is cordially invited to one of the staff's meetings to give them her suggestions. (The staff draws up the week's news Wednesday at 5 p.m. in West Wing 101.) Or she can write a "letter to the editor." (Signed, this time, please.)

If this person has no suggestions, she is invited to come by the Rotunda office Tuesday at 12:45 p.m. There she will be given the $1.79 which the editorial staff has taken from their own pockets for this purpose.

This space which usually contains the editorials is blank for two reasons:

- (1) The tone of the editorial which was to appear here was considered by the administration to be too antagonistic for publication.
- (2) The blank space is to remind us that an unsolved social problem exists and will continue to exist until we find a satisfactory solution to it. Such a solution can come about only through the combined efforts of the groups who have created it. May we be willing to put forth that effort.

Letters To Editor

Student Criticizes LC Manners

Where has it gone — the Longwood Spirit, I mean. Gee, isn't it too bad that Longwood Spirit has resorted to thoughtlessness. We all realize that conditions in the "Dorms" are crowded! Especially the 7:00 a.m. rush to the one-sink-bathrooms by six people. (However, I personally don't think this excuses the unthoughtful attitudes displayed in recent weeks.

Perhaps this forgetfulness is only a minor thing to many today, especially since there's such a rush about the life we now live. However, at Longwood this is not the way we live. Longwood students and faculty members have always prided themselves on the friendly, thoughtful, and happy spirit which exists among us. I realize increased enrollment somewhat limits the remembering of every name, but may I remind you that RESPECT is still in existence today. This is one fact which has not gone out of style, but it seems that some of us have discarded it with our old clothes we throw away last year.

Forget? Sure we all forget, but we should all remember that it's the woman professor whom we hold the door for — not the professor who holds the door for us. It is the Head Resident who corrects us (students) if we are in error — not we who correct the Head Resident. If someone falsely accuses you there is a way to POLITELY right the wrong. Tell them they are wrong, but do it nicely. Respect, kindness, and patience are virtues we all have but sometimes neglect to display.

Forgot? Have you — in today's rush — forgotten to take your manners, charm and sweet ways out of those half unpacked trunks? If so, stop — look at yourself — and please go get those manners out of hiding if that's where they are.

Remember to remember!
And don't forget not to forget!
J. Butler

Schlegel Work In Collection Of Essays

(Continued from page 1)
ber of the Longwood faculty, Mrs. Dorothy B. Schlegel and that another of the essays is by a former Longwood faculty member, Dr. Richard K. Meeker.

The faculty committee of the Institute of Southern Culture consists of Miss Virginia Bedford, chairwoman, Dr. Francis Simkins, Mrs. Helen Savage, and Dr. Rinaldo Simoni.

Irate Student Queries Denial Of Hot Water

Dear Editor:

As we enter the halls of Longwood, one of the first things we hear is the beautiful suggestions of human congeniality — what promotes it and what doesn't. Two of these questions have been infamously denied within the past weeks.

First, Longwood was hostess to a national Alpha Kappa Gamma convention. As hostess she failed in respect to proper manners by not having hot water for her guests.

Second, cleanliness is a wonderful trait; however, the right to be clean has been denied since hot water seems to be out of style at Longwood.

It is understandable that progress is important, but should the rush for it overrule immediate needs?

S. Waugh

OH, BOY!

Shy youngster, Julio Bright, enters up when his new counselor takes him on trip to New York park.

Unusual Opportunities Reward LC Student

By Margot Loethin

NEW YORK, New York. Work with children and teenagers in a program of recreation and instruction at the church and local community center as well as family visitations. Six college students, 20-25, pref. Episcopalian, nine weeks, end of June through end of August. Room and five meals a week provided plus $270 stipend. Apply: The Rev. John Wilson, St. Peter's Episcopal Church, 346 West 20th St., New York.

With no more information than that in the above brochure piece, Longwood senior, Ann Carroll, applied for a summer job in New York.

Ann had worked the previous summer as counselor in an Episcopalian camp in Wisconsin. It had proved an interesting experience and she had come back for more. This summer proved quite different. When she inquired for additional information on the job she was told to wait and "see what we are when you get here."

Arrives In New York
Therefore, after all the warnings of friends about the "big city," Ann arrived in New York on Sunday, June 30. It was far from what she had expected. From the Port Authority Bus Station Ann took a taxi to the rectory on 20th St. When she knocked there was no response. After a few moments of uncertainty a little girl with braids came up to her. Ann introduced herself, and the girl stood and stared. "Maybe this isn't the day," was her only thought. Then the child took her inside and up to the third floor apartment which she was to share with another girl, Mary Orr, a student at Barnard College. Such was Ann's introduction to New York.

On Tuesdays through Fridays Ann, Mary, and Dotson Rader (Continued on Page 4)

New York street scene is typical of those viewed by Longwood Senior, Ann Carroll, during her summer job roll, during her summer job as counselor for Episcopalian church group.

The Rotunda

ESTABLISHED NOVEMBER 28, 1929

Published each week during the college year except during holidays and examination period by the students of Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia. Est. 188.

Donna M. Humphlett	Editor-in-Chief
Marie Grant	Managing Editor
Joan Lord	Business Manager
Pat Wallace	Feature Editor
Randa Jamison	Sports Editor
Nancy Mearns	Book Editor
Betty Ann Atkinson	Circle
Linda Paris	Photography
Cheray Howe	Circulation Manager
Dottie Marshall	Advertising Manager

Entered as second-class matter at the Post Office at Farmville, Virginia under the Act of October 3, 1917. Represented for national advertising by the National Advertising Service. Printed by the Farmville Herald. (Unsolicited editorials written by the editor)

Longwood Gets Ideas From Other Colleges

(Continued from page 1)

we flew down the streets of Charlotte, unloaded the car, and entered Harris Hall.

Queens College is composed of around 600 young women (who live in an informal but rather intellectual atmosphere), several beautiful modern dorms, and usually quite a few men from Davidson hanging around.

Saturday morning started the conferences. There were three main discussion groups: 1) Problems and Methods in Communication and Publication, 2) The Structure of an Expanding Student Government and 3) Student Apathy versus Student Involvement.

Then make an effort to involve the student in such a way as to satisfy the need and capability.

And what was actually accomplished by these meetings? First of all the common problems faced by the colleges represented made the discussions very profitable. Secondly, because there were small groups there was an opportunity for everyone to contribute. Third, the informal and loosely organized setup made it more relaxing and therefore more conducive to success.

Following is a list of the schools and a brief summary of observed data:

Agnes Scott — (near Atlanta, Ga.) around 600 students; rather strict rules; intellectual atmosphere; contributed several good ideas, especially concerning exchange programs.

Converse — (Spartanburg, S. C.) 700 students; an aggressive student body (active); one of the most outstanding contributors to the conference.

Hollins — (near Roanoke) about 600 students; organized; intellectual; good ideas in all phases of discussion groups.

Longwood — (Farmville) about

1400 students; no stereotype; contributed something to each discussion.

Madison, Mary Baldwin, and Mary Washington were invited, but unable to attend.

Queens — (Charlotte, N. C.) 600 students; growing in all phases; changing; eager student body.

Sweet Briar and Westhampton were invited but unable to attend.

Randolph — Macon — (Lynchburg) around 500 students; well-run; intellectual atmosphere with something for every student; good publications.

Salem — (Winston - Salem, N. C.) 600 or 700 students; only there for short time.

Spelman — (Negro college in Atlanta) probably smaller than Longwood; unified student body; liberal in some respects, strict in others.

Winthrop — (Rock Hill, S. C.) 200 students; more cosmopolitan like Longwood; good ideas for both larger and smaller colleges.

If the delegates from each of these colleges are representative of their student body at large then there is basically nothing wrong with these colleges — all they need is a chance to show what they can do. Perhaps with the ideas, suggestions, and criticisms which came out of the discussions there will be, in the very near future, a change of face on college campuses — for the betterment of both students and administration.

On Saturday night in the gym there was a concert sponsored by the Queens Dance Committee. Davidson College, plus the visiting delegates were invited. Brown and Dana, a folk singing duo, were the main feature. Then the Davidson Esquires played awhile, and finally the Continentals topped off the night.

Sportin' Chance

By Linda Turner

Baggataway, tehontshksahalks, or lacrosse as the North American Indian called the game, has changed its rules of having 800 to a 1000 on a team and goals as far as two miles apart. Might as well be honest and admit that the technical language is due to my having just witnessed my first lacrosse game and having read about the sport later. You can imagine my shock when twenty figures stumbled on the field masqueraded in helmets with rubber chins, metal bars across their faces, and huge sunglasses. Everyone had on oversized gloves and their shoulders and arms were out of proportion with their bodies. It appeared to me that these men had to scrap together some sort of costume from leftovers in the field house. However, they didn't seem embarrassed or upset, so I clapped along with the other enduring spectators.

Once the gun had been fired, the men began a game which has the crash of football, the dash of baseball and the action of ice hockey. Evidently with in the mass confusion of clashing sticks and scooping up the ball, the players decided to celebrate some brave act, because the man standing in front of a large wire contraption kept the ball from hitting himself. His actions were in self defense, but he received an abundant applause.

Instead of simply throwing the ball to a teammate by hand, they had miniature crab nets to heave and pitch the ball from teammate to teammate. The ball would disappear for several minutes and then appear among a group of dodging, pivoting, constantly running players who would attempt time and again to hit the man standing in front of that wire cage. If by chance they missed him, they scored. That's why I couldn't understand why they tried to hit him at all. This pace was kept for over an hour with only a few moments rest when they let their grudges be forgotten and they walked off the field with their arms around each other's shoulders. We had watched a miracle in action—none of the swinging nets had seriously socked anyone. This football, baseball and hockey combination never lacked a vigorous moment of play. I have sighed with relief several times since the game that I have escaped even playing "tehontshksahalks."

Longwood Tennis Teams Active In LC Sports

Henrietta Gilliam and Ann Downey are the managers of tennis activities on campus. Henrietta is in charge of the varsity tennis team, and Ann is in charge of class tennis.

Class tennis which is now in progress, is one of the sports that contributes points to the Color Cup. The singles matches are now being played, and the second round should be completed within the next two weeks. The winner will add five points toward the Color Cup.

Varsity tennis practice usually starts about the first of March. Everyone is urged to try out for the team. Henrietta stated that no one should fear the word "varsity" when considering trying out.

Miss Heintz is the new varsity tennis coach. She is replacing Mrs. Harris who is attending the University of Tennessee, where she is studying for her master's degree.

The varsity team usually plays from six to eight matches with neighboring schools. Some of those schools are William and Mary, Lynchburg College, Madison College, Westhampton College and Mary Baldwin College. When the team visits other schools, they generally play three singles matches and two doubles matches.

Last year Longwood had two representatives in the Mid-Atlantic Collegiate Tennis Championships at Mary Baldwin. They were Henrietta Gilliam and Nancy Moorefield. The tournament lasted three days. Some of the best players in the nation participated. This was the first time that Longwood had representation in the tournament and it was quite an honorable experience.

From The Files

In the April 28, 1948 Rotunda is a poll on what the students like best about May Day.

"The fact that I'm not in it."

"The rain that comes with it."

"The girls who run out and point several times."

Wonder what a similar poll would reveal today?

• • •

A joke in the April 7, 1948 issue:

"Do you know any foreign languages?"

"No," answered Senator Sorghum, "and I'm glad of it. I can at least postpone the shock by waiting to have the bad news translated to me."

The co-authors of The Ugly American were probably duly impressed by this joke. Maybe they'll write another book.

• • •

Headline in the March 15, 1950 issue:

SENATE KILLS BILL DESTINED TO MAKE LC COED COLLEGE

Needless to say, the editor commented on the legislative action: "... the majority of opinions expressed have been those of shock and disappointment."

Tables Changed For Convenience Of LC Students

There have been a few rearrangements made in the dining hall lately. A number of tables have been moved in order to make more aisle space. This change, which is only slight, is only experimental and is still in the testing stage.

Instead of the one main aisle down each side of the dining hall, two small aisles have been formed. It is hoped that this change will relieve congestion.

WELCOME...

LONGWOOD & HAMPDEN-SYDNEY STUDENTS (FACULTY, TOO!) TO

Davidson's COLLEGE NIGHT

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 17 AT 7:00 P. M.

FREE DOOR PRIZES

BE SURE TO REGISTER FOR THE FREE DOOR PRIZES... YOU MAY WIN A $25.00 OR A $15.00 MERCHANDISE CERTIFICATE TO BE USED AS CASH ON ANY MERCHANDISE IN OUR STORE. THERE'S NO OBLIGATION TO REGISTER.

REALLY SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT... THIS WONDERFUL FASHION YEAR 1963. SEE WONDERFUL FASHIONS BY JAN-TZEN, MCGREGOR, COUNTRY SHIRT, GARLAND, QUEEN CASUAL, RUSS TOGS, SHIP 'N SHORE AND MANY OTHER NAME BRANDS.

10%

DISCOUNT
Will Be Given On
All Purchases

- REFRESHMENTS WILL BE SERVED -

STU-GU MEETS

Meeting at Longwood during past week end for Southern Intercollegiate Association of Student Government included representatives from southern states, Virginia to Florida.

Planning Conference Prepares For Spring Government Meet

Last week end the four officers of the Southern Intercollegiate Association of Student Government met here at Longwood for the Fall Planning Conference for the Spring Government Meet.

The officers who met here last week-end were: Eleanor Lee, president, from Agnes Scott in Georgia; Frankie Floyd, vice-president, from Lander in South Carolina; and Lura Penney, treasurer, from Meredith in North Carolina. The officers met with the Co-chairmen, Joyce Powell, a Junior and Karen Diederick, a Sophomore, appointed by the Longwood Student Government to be in charge of making necessary preparations.

The Fall Planning Conference set up the theme for the Spring Convention to be "Integrity: Me, Myself, and I." These girls met with Dean Wilson and tentatively set up a program of entertainment for the guests. A trip will be conducted either to Williamsburg, Luray Caverns or Appomattox. Also, there will be four or five speakers.

Dean Wilson will make the keynote address, and it is hoped to have a man from Washington, D.C. to speak on how student government should work. The committee is trying to get a debate team on some topic pertaining to Student Government. The committee would also like to work out some sort of co-operative program with Hampden-Sydney — having open house at the fraternity parties for example.

The Deans from these colleges will accompany the delegates to the Spring Convention. Dean Wilson will be their official hostess, and she will entertain them at a Dean's Luncheon. There will be a banquet for all the delegates.

From The Board

The Legislative Board of Student Government had special guests at its last meeting. Dr. Richard Brooks and Dr. Charles Patterson were invited to discuss, with the board, the possibility of changing the date for major-minor elections and elections of class student government representatives. The proposed change had been discussed only, and the board is interested in telling you a few of the reasons that the change has been proposed.

If elections were held two months earlier than is customary: in late December and early January instead of March, the new Student Government members would begin their duties second semester of the academic year. In past years all senior members and other accelerated members of Student Government, the YWCA, House Council, the Athletic Association, and various heads of other organizations on campus have had to leave campus for a nine week period to do student teaching. Others have stayed at school and have done their teaching locally, still carrying out their positions in their organizations.

The Legislative Board feels that this system is not beneficial to the Student Body. The girls elected to represent the students in the various capacities mentioned should be on campus during their entire term of office and should be free to concentrate on preparing for their professions when the time to Student teach comes. There are not adequate facilities in the local county school systems to take care of the student teaching blocks which grow larger each year. Girls in several major fields must go off campus to teach, since the local systems do not offer work in their areas of study.

If major-minor elections were held in December, and early January, and the turn-over in major organizations came at the beginning of second semester, all girls leaving office at this time could teach third block without neglecting partially or completely their organizational duties. The board will further consider this proposal, and a meeting of the Student Body will be held soon to explain it further, to answer questions you may have and to hear all comments you may want to make.

—Evelyn Gray

Brumfield Tests Timothy Root In Research

By Barbara Melton

A light burns late in the science building, a search is being made, a mystery is being solved. The detective in this investigation is Dr. Robert T. Brumfield, biologist at Longwood College.

Dr. Brumfield is probing into life's greatest mystery, that of cell growth. In his own words, "Our research is concerned with the control of cell growth and division. Our hunt is for the biochemical mechanism that controls cell division."

Test Timothy Root

His principal test object is the Timothy root. The use of such a root has advantages because of its availability, and because of its distinct cellular structure which allows accurate observation and measurement during the growth process.

"It takes only 24 hours for the cell in the root, after germination, to duplicate the growth process that goes on in all of nature . . . to divide itself into two cells, mature, and produce a root hair," Dr. Brumfield explained.

Dr. Brumfield has conducted experiments whereby root cells are bombarded with ultra violet rays. When this happened, the elongating cells recoiled, but another chemical protected the cell from such radiation, and it continued its normal course of growth. Taking into consideration the concern of radiation in atomic warfare, naturally the Atomic Energy Commission was interested.

Not only was the AEC interested, but also the National Science Foundation. Consequently Longwood has received more than $85,000 in contracts and grants for the continuation of research in this field in the last eight years.

It is not difficult to imagine what wonderful things could come of discoveries made in the process of cell growth. In cancer, cells forming body tissues suddenly go berserk, dividing over and over. They crowd out the normal cells of the tissue and prevent them from carrying out normal life processes. If cell growth such as this could be controlled, the number of cancer victims could be drastically reduced or even eliminated.

Of course Dr. Brumfield is not the only one conducting experiments in this field. Others in Europe and in many American universities in Connecticut, Pennsylvania, and California are working on the same mystery. The search for life's key is long and difficult, but the possible rewards of such a study override the long hours of work and the expense.

Butlers Visit Europe During Summer Trip

By Jodi Hackney

England, France, and Ireland were the recent stopping places of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Butler. Immediately after the summer school session here, Mr. Butler, who is the Longwood librarian, and Mrs. Butler left for New York and sailed from there on the Rotterdam. After docking at Southampton, they chose London as their headquarters as they made various side trips in that vicinity.

Dr. James Wellard, a former English professor here, provided them with his "flat" for a week of their London stay. The home of the poet John Keats near Hampstead Heath and the Bronte Home at Haworth were of special interest to Mr. and Mrs. Butler as well as the Midland-York area.

In London they saw Oh, What a Lovely War and Chips With Everything, two of the current plays. Mr. Butler said that he had recently read that Chips With Everything had been in New York with he English club. From London they took the channel boat to Paris where they toured the museums and palaces. The Butlers also spent two weeks in Ireland in the cities of Dublin and Limerick.

Mr. Butler was especially impressed by the cordiality of the people and told of an interesting afternoon in an English household. This is the second such trip for Mr. and Mrs. Butler; they were in Europe in 1952.

'I Plan To Go Back,' Says Carroll, Of N.Y.

(Continued from page 2)

worked at P. S. 11 on 21st street from 9:30 to 4:30. Ann was a mother, babysitter, teacher, social worker, counselor and friend, all at one time, to a group of children, mostly boys, ages 6-12. Her official role was as a supervisor in a large recreation room where these children came to play. Saturdays she spent at the church working with its children. They took trips to the parks, beach, etc.

Sunday and Monday were what Ann terms "the tourist side of me." She saw the Statue of Liberty, Grand Central Station, the Empire State Building, the Cloisters, Tiffany's, Times Square and Greenwich Village, etc.

When asked about one of her most meaningful experiences she replied, "Luis." A seven year old with a very poor family situation, Luis was what is termed a problem child. He had been in a fight just before he was supposed to leave to see the play, "Alice In Wonderland." After being forced into the theatre he would not sit with the group. Ann proceeded to spend the whole time from 2:45 talking to Luis. He didn't understand how someone unrelated to him should have so much patience and forbearance. When they returned to the school Ann felt that she had accomplished nothing. "Minutes later," she says, "he kissed me on the cheek and said thank you."

Friends With Julio
Julio was also one of Ann's young friends. A nine year old, he was very talented at the time and drawing. But he never said anything. At night Ann would walk around the block, stopping to talk to her boys. When she walked by Julio's stoop he would join her on her walk, but never saying very much. Gradually she talked him into visiting the restorer. He was fascinated by the piano, and so she taught him to play chopsticks. After a couple of weeks he started bringing his sisters and then his cousins, who also wanted to play the piano. One day he asked her to his house, where they had Pepsi and ice cream. The conversation was stilted and abruptly Julio asked, "Well, are you going to leave now?" Nevertheless, Ann was invited back.

One evening Ann was talking to Julio and his mother. She was telling the mother about some drawings Julio had done. Through Ann's praise the woman gave no sign of awareness. The only emotion Ann seemed to invoke was that of confusion. Julio finally told Ann that his mother spoke no English.

Looking back on her summer Ann says, "I plan to go back . . ." For next year her plans are less definite. She will be leaving in November for Roanoke to do her student teaching. She will be at Woodrow Wilson Junior High School and will probably teach the eighth grade.

Circus Practice Schedule

DATE	CLASS	PLACE	TIME
Monday October 14	Freshman Sophomore Junior Senior	Gym N. Gym Wheeler Sr. Rec.	10:00-10:50 10:00-10:50 10:00-10:50 10:00-10:50
Tuesday October 15	Freshman Sophomore Junior Senior	Gym N. Gym Jarman Sr. Rec.	10:00-10:50 10:00-10:50 6:45-7:30 6:45-7:30
Wednesday October 16	Freshman Sophomore Junior Senior	Gym Jarman Wheeler Sr. Rec.	10:00-10:50 10:00-10:50 6:45-7:30 10:00-10:50
Thursday October 17	Freshman Sophomore Junior Senior	Jarman N. Gym Wheeler Sr. Rec.	10:00-10:50 10:00-10:50 10:00-10:50 10:00-10:50
Monday October 21	Freshman Sophomore Junior Senior	Gym N. Gym Wheeler Jarman	6:45-7:30 10:00-10:50 10:00-10:50 10:00-10:50
Tuesday October 22	Freshman Sophomore Junior Senior	Gym N. Gym Jarman Gym	10:00-10:50 10:00-10:50 10:00-10:50 6:45-7:30
Wednesday October 23	Freshman Sophomore Junior Senior	Jarman Jarman Wheeler Gym	6:45-7:30 10:00-10:50 6:45-7:30 10:00-10:50
Thursday October 24	Mass Rehearsal	Jarman	7:00-10:50
Friday October 25	Mass Rehearsal	Jarman	7:00-10:50
Saturday October 26	CIRCUS	CIRCUS	CIRCUS

Stevens Obtains New Microscope For Research

The science department has added a new microscope for research.

The microscope, perfected by Ernest Leitz in Wetzlar, Germany, is a Leitz phase-contrast microscope. This microscope enables one to see a non-stained object.

It has a Heine condenser that gives off three types of lights. These different lights are of various wave lengths; therefore, many different views of an object may be seen. The microscope, which cost $1,800, may be used only with special permission, and only under the guidance of a qualified person who knows how to use it.

Patronize
Rotunda
Advertisers

Need A
Special Gift?
Come In And
See Our
Silver Charms
MARTIN
THE JEWELER

Hungry For Italian Food?
Drop In To The
COLLEGE SHOPPE
and Try Our Delicious
Pizzos!

English
Leather

OWEN-SANFORD
DRUG CO.
(In The Farmville
Shopping Center)

Craig, Anderson Head AKG 'Circus, '63'

SANDRA CRAIG

Ringmaster

'Neath Canvas Skies' Culminates Saturday

By Joan Lord

Midst circus music, clowns, and circus spirit, all "neath canvas skies", Sandra Craig and Harriet Anderson will lead off the festivities of Circus, 1963 at 8 p.m. in Jarman Hall, October 26.

In top hat and high black boots, Ringmaster Sandra Elizabeth Craig will welcome the audience to Circus 1963.

Animal Trainer Harriet Rebecca Anderson will tame the wild beasts and put them through their paces.

Sandra is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Overstreet of Roanoke. She is majoring in elementary education.

Previous Circus activities for Sandra include working on the float committee during her freshman year and participating as an usherette last year.

Active in 'Y'

Sandra has been active in the YWCA. She was a member of Freshman Commission and was Freshman Counselor during her sophomore year. Presently she is serving as secretary of the Y. She is president of the Wesley Foundation this year and has served as its secretary. Sandra has also been a member of the Screening Board. She worked on committees for Freshman Production.

When asked how she felt, Sandra replied, "I was most surprised and excited, and I hope to be in the show."

From Radford

Harriet is a biology major from Radford, Virginia. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Anderson.

Last year Harriet was co-chairman of Circus for the freshman class. Again this year her class has selected her as class co-chairman. She represented the Class of '66 on last year's Circus Court.

Harriet was secretary of the freshman class last year. She is publicity chairman for Wesley (Continued on page 3)

HARRIET ANDERSON

Animal Trainer

THE OUTLOOK

VOL. XLII

Longwood College, Farmville, Va., October 23, 1963

No. 5

Rush Calendar

Changes have been made in the Formal Rush Calendar, according to Panhellenic. A party scheduled for Saturday, November 9, has been cancelled, and will take place on Sunday, November 10, instead.

Since will begin on Monday, November 11. Everything else has been moved up one day.

Honors Council Plans Activities For School Year

Members of the Honors Council met recently to make plans for the remainder of the school year.

The purpose of the Council is to coordinate the activities of the Honor Societies and to promote academic atmosphere on the Longwood Campus.

The Honors Council consists of the presidents of the nine Honor Societies. This year's members are Marie Murphy, Beorc Eh Thorn; Charlotte McClung, Kappa Delta Pi; Betty Ann Atkinson, Alpha Psi Omega; Anne Sneed, Kappa Omicron Phi; and Elizabeth Smith, Lynchons.

Also, Barbara Hewitt, Pi Gamma Mu; Joan Lord, Pi Delta Epsilon; Doris Harwell, Sigma Alpha Iota; and Anna White, Pi Omega Phi.

At the first meeting, Joan Lord, representing Pi Delta Epsilon, was elected chairman for the year.

The members decided that to make the work of the Council more effective there should be a junior representative from each of the societies. This will be done in order that the Council's work will not be completely confined to seniors.

Mrs. Eleanor Bobbitt is the advisor of the Honors Council this year.

Prince Edward Tries School Experiment

By JoAnn Cartwright

Inside Prince Edward County, an unusual experiment in education is being performed—the Prince Edward County Free School Association. Approximately one thousand, six hundred students are participating in a program which employs two comparatively new concepts — from an instructional standpoint, that of team teaching and from a structural point of view, that of the non-graded school.

The reason for the utilization of this plan is self-evident in view of the past history of the enrolled students. As is well-known, the majority of the students are those who have not attended any kind of regular school since the closing of the public schools here in 1959.

Because of this fact, there is naturally a great discrepancy between the education of the Free School Association student who received no formal education during this period and of those who did. The plan adopted by the Association represents an attempt to breach the educational gulf between such students.

Furnishes Education

Primarily, the Association's goal is to furnish a place where any child — Negro or white — may receive an education. Although there are only four white students presently enrolled, Dr. Nell Sullivan, superintendent of the Association system, maintains that the guiding principle of the Association is "equal" education for all.

The Free School Association is in actuality an attempt, due predominantly to the efforts of Governor Harrison, to reestablish "titular" public education in the country. For this purpose, four schools and their buses were released.

Appoints Sullivan

To head the Association, Dr.

Neil V. Sullivan, was appointed. Finances were provided through various foundations such as the Ford Foundation, and from numerous contributions. To compose the faculty, some eighty teachers from all over the country, with emphasis on the Virginia area, were employed. Impressive is the only word to describe the qualifications of these people forming the integral components of the Association's staff and administration.

At the summit stands Dr. Sullivan who appears a bulwark of experience and intelligence counting to his credit, his degrees from Columbia and Harvard staunchly reinforced by his past sixteen years as superintendent of schools.

Experienced Staff

Also imposing is the staff itself. Some twenty have master's degrees with the number of years' experience averaging around nine — ranging from fifteen years to none. From this it seems evident that the Association has a well-equipped force of educators.

Internally speaking, the schools are, excluding a few minor problems which invariably beset any new school, in remarkably good form. The principal difficulty seems to revolve around becoming sufficiently well-organized to begin actual classes.

Two such difficulties which have plagued the schools have been the delay in receiving books and work materials for the students and the problem of placing each student at his proper level of facility in the non-graded system. Function-wise, the schools seem to be running smoothly.

P.T.A. Begins

Various activities have been incorporated including a P.T.A. which boasts five hundred members. Of singular interest is the

(Continued on page 3)

SCHOOL DAYS

Students of Prince Edward Free School listen attentively during lab session. Classes opened September 16.

Judicial Board Prepares First Case Procedure

By Maria Grant

Before the end of school last year a committee of three from the Judicial Board of Student Government began working on a tentative case procedure — the first in Longwood's history.

Not only did the Judicial Board feel this was a necessary part of Student Government — student relations, but under the new Constitution there is a provision that both branches of government set up such a listing of their procedures.

The committee used as its basis the case procedure of Converse College, Spartanburg, S. C. This basis was altered so as to fit the particular set-up of Longwood — its ideals, attitudes and problems.

Summer Work

Over the summer the tentative procedure was mimeographed and sent to all Judicial Board members, who then edited, subtracted, and criticized the copy.

(Continued on page 3)

After debating and going over the copy thoroughly, an even more suitable procedure was drawn up.

At this time the supposedly "finished product" was taken to the Administration for comment and advice. The initial comment proved unfavorable, but not without suggestions for improvement.

Again the case procedure was brought back to the Judicial Board and further debating took place. Several revisions were made and the Board finally decided on a more definite set-up. Again the copy went to the Administration and this time it was accepted.

Final Copy Made

The next day enough copies of the procedure were run off for the entire student body. That is the "history" of the present and first Judicial Board Case Procedure.

The procedure is divided into five major sections:

1. Scope of Responsibility — purpose and aims of the Judicial Board.
2. Procedure for Investigation — explanation of de-

Beorc Eh Thorn Chooses Sixteen For Membership

Beorc Eh Thorn has recently initiated sixteen new members. Beorc Eh Thorn is a local honorary English society with membership of thirty-three.

The new initiates are: Sandra Ashworth, Suzanne Ballard, Marina Bergeron, Janet Culpepper, Anna Howard Evans, Martha Garrett, Shirley Ginn, and Mrs. Margaret Irby.

Also, Mary Lucille Jones, Eleanor Kevan, Mary Lynn Lander, Mary Ann Lippold, Pauline Perrow, Carol Snelton, Neida Shields, and Virginia Summers. Officers of Beorc Eh Thorn are Marie Murphy, president; Polly Hudson, vice-president; Melanie Wilkes, secretary; Margaret Cook, treasurer, and Judy Woodyard, historian. Dr. Rosemary Sprague, associate professor of English, is serving as faculty advisor.

The program of meetings for Beorc Eh Thorn has been announced for 1963-64. Members will hear Betty Ann Atkinson speak on "Camus" on November 7. The December 5 meeting will feature Dr. Olga W. Russell, chairman of Longwood's department of foreign languages, in a talk on "Victor Hugo."

On January 7 Mr. David Wiley, assistant professor of speech and drama, will give a reading from Shakespeare at a Twelfth Night Party in honor of freshmen and junior transfer English majors.

A discussion of selected poetry will be the program for February 6 and will be a meeting open to the student body. Poetry will again be featured at the March 5 meeting in residences by Miss Elizabeth Exelston of Hampden-Sydney, who has won awards in the Virginia Poetry Society for her work.

A distinguished speaker, who will be announced later, has been secured for the society's annual Spring Tea on April 22. The final meeting on May 9 will be a spring banquet or picnic.

Ask . . .

There is an old Chinese proverb that says, "He who asks questions is a fool for five minutes while he who does not ask questions remains a fool forever." And many times in our lives we meet with situations which we find necessary to question. Our generation has met with such a situation—the plight of the negro which has been caused by many generations of not asking questions.

In a few years this situation is going to be handed to us, and we must be prepared to handle it wisely. The wise handling of such a situation can be effected only if we understand the problem. An understanding of the situation at hand is possible only if we begin to question it.

We must not only question the situation as it is, but as it will be if it continues. We must question both sides of the situation, for to question only one side is to ignore the problem as a whole.

And when we have assimilated the answers to our many questions, we can then begin to understand it. With understanding as our basis, we can work toward a solution of the problem.

Such questioning does not mean waving red flags and making loud noises. However, it does mean a chance to work quietly as individuals toward a wise handling of the problem.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

"GRAB A PENCIL, MISS ALLEN. I WISH TO DICTATE AN EXAM FOR MY MONDAY MORNING CLASS."

Hull Joins Music Staff As Vocal Instructor

By Pat Wallace

This year's absence of Mr. John McCombs has created a vacancy in the instruction of voice and the direction of madrigal singers. This position has been filled by Mr. Edward Glenn Hull. Mr. Hull is not only new to Longwood, he is new in the field of teaching.

Mr. Hull graduated with a B. A. degree from Syracuse University and received his M. A. from the University of Illinois where he is currently working on his doctoral degree.

Prior to his move to Virginia, Mr. Hull did extensive solo work in the New York area. He has appeared as soloist with the Syracuse Choral and Symphony. He also did solo work in the 1960 world premier of "By Blue Ontario's Shore" by the American composer Ernst Bacon. He has sung the bass solo parts in "Saint Paul," "The Messiah," "The Creation," and other oratorios.

While at Syracuse, Mr. Hull

EDWARD G. HULL

was director and soloist at the Elmwood Presbyterian Church. Winning the 1963 annual "Concerto Concert" award at the University of Illinois afforded him the opportunity of singing with the University symphony in a Wagnerian scene from "Walkure." He also won the "Civic Morning Musicals" scholarship in Syracuse for 1958.

Enjoys Sports

When not singing, Mr. Hull likes to play golf, softball, football, and swim. Another activity that occupies his time is working with the Y.M.C.A. During past summers, Mr. Hull has been assistant director at a Y.M.C.A. camp near Syracuse. While at college, Mr. Hull was a member of Lambda Chi Alpha social fraternity and the honorary music fraternity, Phi Mu Alpha.

Among his plans for the year are two recitals. The first will be November 17 and the second will be held March 8. Mr. Hull will also perform for one of the student assemblies. In December he hopes to work with the combined choirs of the community churches on the "Seven Last Words."

During second semester Mr. Hull is going to begin an opera. (Continued on page 3)

Junior Travels To Cyprus, Greece For Two Month Visit With Relatives

By Annette Wenger

To most persons a trip to visit relatives is not very interesting, but to Diedre Jacobides, it meant a trip to Greece and Cyprus.

In July, Diedre, whose father is from Cyprus, and eleven members of her family flew there by chartered plane for approximately two months of visiting and touring.

On Cyprus, she toured President Makarios's palace and saw the tomb of Lazarus. She was particularly impressed by the many nationalities and types of dress on the streets of the capital city.

"The roads over there are horrible," she commented. "They are real narrow. If there are not donkeys in the roads, there are sheep or people. The streets in some of the little towns are like mazes. You go through them at night and the people are sitting on chairs in the road. You can't blink your horn at night, so you have to blink your lights and wait for them to get out of the street."

Enjoys Beauty

Diedre particularly enjoyed the scenic beauty of the island. The water along the beaches is very clear and the beach itself is solid rock. Since the temperature reaches 102 degrees very commonly and there are almost no rainy days, she took advantage of the water.

She enjoyed most seeing again the people whom she had met on a similar trip. "The thing I noticed most," Diedre said was the hospitality of the people.

GLEAMING COLUMNS

Ruins of ancient Greece and the Acropolis are among sights seen by Diedre Jacobides.

They really will bend over backwards for you." She enjoyed the generous offerings of food, especially fruit, on her visit. Watermelons, grapes, and other citrus fruits were abundant everywhere. One bunch of grapes which she saw weighed seven pounds.

Diedre explained that they could not get this close to Greece and not see it; therefore, part of their time was spent on the mainland. She found Athens most beautiful at night. One day they climbed to the top of the Acropolis and viewed the city from there. They saw the Greek soldiers change guard, and visited the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

Notices Dialects Diedre noticed a distinct difference between the dialects of Cyprus and Greece. She said, "I could understand more than I could speak. I could speak brokenly and they could understand."

Some of the customs which Diedre encountered were quite interesting to her. In the small towns, the girls are not allowed to date the boys. The parents of the girl offer a dowry for the girl. The boy then asks the parents for the girl's hand. After her parents have investigated his family background and found it suitable, the couple becomes engaged. Only then are they allowed to date and usually only with a chaperon. If the couple discovers that they do not wish to marry, the engagement is broken. Otherwise, they are (Continued on Page 4)

THE GOOD LIFE

Scene of Greek women baking bread in outdoor oven was taken by Diedre Jacobides.

vises during summer visit to Greece and Cyprus.

Letter Policy

Editor's Note:

Because the Rotunda has received two more anonymous "letters to the editor," it was felt that a statement of its letter policy should be repeated. This policy applies to faculty, students, and administrators.

The Rotunda follows a simple policy regarding "letters to the editor":

1. All letters to the editor must be signed by their writers.
2. The Rotunda staff reserves the right to edit letters when necessary; however, the staff will never alter the essential meaning of a letter.

The staff feels that only letters signed by their writers should be printed, because unsigned letters indicate either that the writer does not want to be held responsible for her views or that she does not firmly believe in them.

Editing letters is at times necessary because of limitation of space.

Letter To Editor

Dear Editor:

The quite pregnant statement in the last edition of the Rotunda was a poor excuse for a filler. There should definitely be an editorial or editorials every week. A staff which can "get away" with such a pointed statement as in last week's edition ought to be able to publish an editorial without blaming the administration.

If the editor feels she is meddling with the affairs of others or is too timid about the publication of an editorial a cartoon would be very nice. Letters to the editor are not only a sign of a healthy newspaper, but they also can stimulate interest; such letters can be difficult when there are no editorials.

—Priscilla Salle

The Rotunda

ESTABLISHED NOVEMBER 18, 1920

Published each week during the college year except during holidays and examinations period by the students of Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia Box 138.

Donna M. Humphreys	Editor-in-Chief
Maria Grant	Managing Editor
Jean Loyd	Business Manager
Pat Wallace	News Editor
Sandra Jamison	Feature Editor
Nancy Murray	Sports Editor
Betty Ann Atkinson	Desk Editor
Linda Davis	Critic
Charmaine Howe	Photography
Dottie Marshall	Circulation Manager
	Advertising Manager

Entered as second class matter at the Post Office at Farmville, Virginia under the Act of Congress on March 3, 1959. Represented for national advertising by the National Advertising Service. Printed by the Farmville Herald. (Unsigned editorials written by the editor)

Scottish Hockey Coach Calder Visits Physical Education Classes

DRIBBLE THAT BALL!

Spirit is high on athletic games begin Tuesday, September 29, at 4 o'clock. field during class hockey practices this year. Actual

By Jayne Eddy

Scottish physical education coach and lecturer, Miss Jean Calder, is visiting the campus of Longwood today and tomorrow. While here, Miss Calder is instructing several physical education classes.

Miss Calder is noted for her personal achievements in the field of hockey. She was vice-captain of the Scottish Women's Hockey Team. She was a member of the Scottish Touring Teams that held conferences in Holland in 1962 and 1964, in Australia, 1956, South Africa, 1958, Amsterdam, 1959, and Belgium, 1961. In the East District, she plays for the Women's Warriors.

Miss Calder has a "B" umpire rating. Her other interests include tennis, squash, swimming, bridge, photography, dressmaking, and traveling.

Miss Calder was educated at George Watson's Ladies College and Dartford College of Physical Education.

A tea was given in her honor today by the Athletic Association Council. Arrangements for her visit to Longwood were made through the United States Field Hockey Association. In the past other coaches of a similar nature have visited Longwood.

Commenting on Miss Calder's visit, Mrs. Bobbitt of the Physical Education staff, said, "Longwood is most fortunate to obtain Miss Calder, who plays on the Scottish Team, which is touring the United States. Miss Calder follows several other foreign coaches who have broadened our horizons, brought new points of view, and refreshed our appreciation of the fundamentals."

AKG Requests Student View Circus Friday

(Continued from page 1) Foundation and she is a member of the H2O Club. Also, she is a staff member for the VIRGINIAN, and she participates in the class hockey games.

Admittedly, Harriet is very excited about Circus, and she said, "I'm very honored to have been chosen for Animal Trainer."

Students are urged to attend the dress rehearsal Friday at 7 p.m., as the Longwood girls will be seated until after faculty, alumnae, parents, and townspeople.

Also students are reminded of the hockey game, to be played Saturday afternoon with the Richmond Alumnae team and the pep rally on the Wheeler lawn after the game.

Hockey Squad Defeats Teams In Away Games

Longwood's varsity hockey team won its game with Old Dominion College on Friday. The scores were 4-1 and 5-0.

In the Longwood victory, the first team took an early lead. Three goals were scored in the first half and one in the second, giving Longwood an easy victory over Old Dominion.

In the second game, Longwood blanketed their opponents, 5-0. The five goals were scored during the second half of the game.

The previous Tuesday, Longwood hockey members defeated William and Mary's squad in two games. These games were played in Williamsburg.

In a closely matched game, the first team edged their opponents 4-3. The first half was largely an offensive game for the Longwood team, as they scored three goals. William and Mary remained scoreless until the second half.

In the second feature, Longwood downed William and Mary, 2-0.

Circus Day will be the scene of the first home game when Longwood meets the Richmond Club. In the morning the second team will face the Alumnae in their annual game.

Fall Tapping

Alpha Kappa Gamma has not yet held its Fall tapping for new members. The election of members and tapping procedures will be carried out in the usual manner.

'Directed Study' Offers Credits In French Field

By Dee Watkins

The French Department this year is offering an individual specialized study in literature. This study is only recommended when material cannot be studied in scheduled courses. Students are allowed to take this directed study by permission of the department. It is given three periods a week and the student receives three credits if it is successful.

In this directed study the student is required to write a dissertation which is on a subject in literature. This subject is both broad and specific at the same time. It is broad because a wide background of knowledge about the period is necessary; it is a study in depth because the student will do extensive research on one particular phase of the literature of the period.

The directed study not only teaches the student about the literature; it also teaches him the methodology and the attitude in honest and profound research.

Two Participate

At this time two French students, Glendon Merchant and Priscilla Salle, are participating in the program. Glendon Merchant's dissertation will be entitled, "The Roots of Sartre's Existentialism in the Classic Works of the Seventeenth Century."

The dissertation of Priscilla Salle will be entitled, "The Encyclopedists; Their Variety in a Rational Century."

Both girls have commented on their program of directed study. Glendon Merchant says, "My work in the directed study gives me a chance to delve deeper into the subjects which I would otherwise only skim. Studying Sartre gave me an understanding of communistic and atheistic thought as well as an understanding of the term which has become an everyday word — existentialism. This study also aids me to realize that 'there is nothing new under the sun,' for one finds the thought of Sartre today contained in the classicism of the seventeenth century."

Salle comments:

According to Priscilla Salle: "My topic concerns the men of the eighteenth century who undertook to publish an encyclopedia which would be a record of man's previous knowledge, including the revolutionary ideas in philosophy which contain the seeds of today's democracy. The paper concerns the variety of ideas which were represented by such men as Diderot, d'Alembert and Rousseau. The directed study is an excellent opportunity for one to pursue a favorite subject in particular depth."

Swimming Group Begins Practice On Annual Show

Longwood's annual Water Present will be participated March 25-27. The participants have been selected and are now known as the Synchronized Swimming Group.

